

The Temple of Zadra, Goddess of the Ocean, once drew Triton worshippers from across the Crystalline Sea but those days are long gone.

Forced to abandon their ancestral home some decades ago when a tribe of Sahuagin rampaged through their territory, the temple has fallen into disrepair.

Indeed what locals remain shun the site, whispering of a dark force that has corrupted the once holy temple.

Any would be traveller would do well to follow their example. Nothing good can come from disturbing things best left forgotten.

Excerpt from The Deepest Waters: A History of the Crystalline Sea by Gared Marak