The Earth shook, and Jack fell back on his ass as vibrations tore the ground out from under him. He stared up and around at the ceiling as it warped and twisted, and lifted. The walls ripped and shredded. The support pillars, now a strange shade of black, came up off the floor as the ceiling above flew higher, and tilted back. It was like someone was opening the basement the way you'd peel open a can of sardines.

“Jack,” a voice boomed, deep and loud enough it vibrated his body almost as much as the tearing ceiling. He knew that voice, too.

“Azamel! The fuck are—”

The world tore apart. Thundering crashes and explosions of impact turned the basement into the center of a giant subwoofer blasting a fucking RATM song. Jack covered his ears, but his rats and birds did more than that. They scattered, squawking and chittering like the world was ending. It felt like it was.

Light broke through a line along the wall by the stairs, met by crumbling bits of concrete and wood and tile, as the ceiling raised higher. Only once it was hoisted up a few feet could Jack see the shadow through the growing crack of where the ceiling over his head was supposed to be connected to the ground by the stairs. It wasn't. It was rising.

Finally, a pair of hands pushed under the crack of the building's basement ceiling, and picked it up. All of it. Two fucking giant hands, each the size of Jack's whole damn body, and they trembled as they put Azamel's strength and power up into the building from the bottom up.

She lifted the library up off the ground, and pushed it back onto the street behind it. It was a pretty big building, three stories high. A small library, sure, but small libraries were still enormous buildings, and Jack stared on as Azamel's elephant god body came into view. He couldn't move if he wanted to, trapped at ground zero as the building crumbled. Buildings weren't meant to be scooped up and pushed over, and the library ripped itself to shreds under its own weight.

Jack sat there as the wood, concrete, bars of metal, and even the fucking tile of the floor above rained down around him. Most of it rained behind him, past the back wall of the basement, and onto the mayhem of destruction that threatened to blow his eardrums. Again he tried to get up, and again he fell as the Earth decided it didn't want him standing anymore. It wasn't just the building falling over, literally directly behind him, that had the whole place vibrating. It was Azamel, her, her absurd size as she shifted and moved to pick up a fucking building and push it over. The whole nightmare trembled as she went retro and played a game of Rampage.

Dust and dirt should have splashed over Jack and the two Gangrels, and buried them in it. But as the building collapsed, they got buried in something else. Rain. Red. Fucking. Rain. The nightmare chamber didn't bother with things like dust and dirt, as if that wasn't worth the effort; more like whoever dreamed up the nightmare was a little more focused on other shit. And the rain fucking poured.

Finally, the crumbling building shut the fuck up, and Jack stood up. Reality smacked him in the face, and he snapped his gaze around. Garry was slowly pushing himself back up to his feet, but Michael was down. Not dead, not even in torpor, but down, a hulking mess of ripped open alien flesh that couldn't handle its own bulk anymore, just like the upturned library.

"Jack Terry," the four-armed elephant said again. And the bitch made no attempt to speak softly. That flubby elephant god's chest boomed with a voice so loud, what few rats and crows still remained either fled, or froze solid. Animalism would not move them. They were broken inside, mentally shattered, heartbeats skyrocketing and so much adrenaline pumping through their veins they were close to death. Some did die, just rolled over and died, rather than process the fact they'd been pulled into a nightmare version of Dolareido, with an ugly elephant god who literally pushed over the building they'd been under.

“Azamel, the fuck are you doing?” He pointed his remaining hand at her. Way way up at her. “Don't interfere!”

The stupid, old beast sat in the middle of the street, cross-legged and knees apart, two hands empty and resting on her knees while two others held her symbols. Those two hands held a chain by each end, one end a dangling fishnet filled with hundreds of human skulls, the other a dangling corpse from a hook, like bait. A fishermen of men, literally. Jesus would have been proud.

On the ground beside her were two scimitars, the size of trucks.

He was kind of getting sick of all the big fuckers he had to deal with. First Garry transformed into a tall bat gargoyle thing. Then Michael transformed into a giant hulk mutating beast. There was Sándor, who transformed into a much more classic, but much bigger gargoyle than Garry. Even Athalia and her weird half-body-skeleton nightmare thing was pretty damn big. And if Jack stacked them all on top of each other, they wouldn't have been as tall as Azamel was now, sitting on her ass. What a pain.

“If Jack Terry remained in control, I would not have.” The monster leaned forward and looked down at the trio of vampires. “But you're not Jack Terry. You're an abomination.”

Despite her attempts to sound commanding and powerful, she sounded weak compared to the first time he'd heard her talk through her Horror. Winded, weak, and pathetic. A dying beast putting on airs. Considering Azamel the human — human body anyway — was an emaciated old woman on death's door, it made sense her Horror would feel the same way when they merged. How the fuck the two entities worked together, he had no idea. A big diff between Begotten, and old and new Jack's relationship. But either way, they seemed linked. If she died, it died.

“Ha! Funny, coming from you, someone who owes their existence to the dark corners of other people's minds. You're nothing more than the reflection of someone else's fears. You'd be nothing without the people you feed on.” He grinned up at her. “So you can act all high and mighty and call me an abomination, but you and I both know you're just a leech.”

“How quaint, the vampire calling a true monster a leech.”

He shrugged. “I wasn't created in the mind of some terrified, religious shmuck running through the jungle.”

“No. You were created as a tool, nothing more than an infection for your masters to spread. And where are those masters now, you cursed thing? Where are their black wings? Shadows of shadows. Useless remnants of an age past, desperate to hold onto the Kindred who left them behind.”

“I...”

She was talking about the Strix. She knew them? Knew about them? Even he didn't know a damn thing about them, except what Susanna had to do to create him.

“Jack Terry. Are you capable of taking control, or not?”

“Old Jack is shutting up until I'm done.” Shrugging, Jack pulled the necklace out of his pocket. A sturdy string, barely a necklace at all. “This is the only reason old Jack even exists anymore.” An ancient artifact from back in the day when assholes made shit like this, hidden in caves or forests or underneath castles, deep in abandoned dungeons.

“Then put it on.”

“You know what? Sure.” The Jack inside was fighting to get back in control, and the Ripper knew he’d win that battle eventually. As long as there were two of them sharing this body, he couldn’t keep old Jack suppressed forever. Which meant, if he destroyed the necklace, old Jack would eventually retaliate. Go to Antoinette, lock himself in a box, wait for sunrise, something.

You’re never taking this body.

Yes, I will. You can feel it. You know each time I come out, I take more control.

You sound like a Saturday morning cartoon villain.

Jack snickered as he looked down at the necklace, and put it back into his pocket.

“I’ll put it back on, after I’ve killed these two.” He turned around, gave Azamel the finger over his shoulder, and walked toward Garry.

By this point, the man had regained his footing, and he took a small step back from Jack as he got into a fighting position. But the man knew he was outmatched. It was written in every one of his nine eyes.

“You do not get to kill these two,” the stupid booming voice behind him said flatly.

Jack snapped his head back. “I’m sorry, what?”

“You will not be killing Garry, or Michael.”

He laughed. “And why the fuck not?”

“Their deaths will create a vacuum. More chaos. I will not allow this city to—”

“The fuck do you care!?” He turned around, marched up the short stairway up to the sidewalk, and stared up at the fat bitch.

The nightmare version of Dolareido was pretty damn big, and impressive. A blood moon, with raining blood, and an especially large amount of it pouring over the Elysium tower too if memory served; couldn't see it from here. Only a couple cars in the street this far out from the city center, but just like last time Jack came to this nightmare, there were some people in the cars. Petrified, and made of literal stone. A few of them stood in windows of nearby apartments, more statues. One stood next to a streetlight. A fucking weird streetlight that didn't do a very good job penetrating the darkness of the city, which was also too dark for Dolareido in general.

Everything was tinted red. The nightmare wasn't subtle at all. Whoever dreamed this insanity had one very clear picture in mind of what Dolareido was truly like: a bloody place full of cold, lifeless people. Probably some dumb bastard in Devil's Corner who offed themselves cause their mom didn't love them enough. Roland, maybe? It'd figure, but nah, the nightmare looked mostly modern.

“I care because I will not leave my family to political chaos and a bloody, ash-filled wasteland.”

“Ah I get it. You want your nest to be a good place for your kids? Newsflash! They ain't your kids!” He laughed again as he faced Michael and Garry. “And besides, you really want these two idiots around? They've got the city fighting itself, vampires killing each other and burning down buildings, because they can't get over a grudge! Over something they didn't even do! Roland killed himself you stupid fucks! It's not your fault!” He pointed at Garry. “Or your fault!” He pointed at Michael. “It's Roland's fault! Get it? He killed himself! The only one to blame, is him! But you're both looking back at the past with rose-tinted glasses so thick, you've apparently turned this guy into a fucking martyr!

“You don’t even realize the Prince and the werewolves are trying to save the city from a strange, weird ritual being done in it, or on it or something, do you? They’ve been working on this problem for years now, and you don’t have a fucking clue. Course Avery won’t tell you, Garry, cause she knows what everyone knows! You, Michael, you’re both too pathetic, stupid, juvenile, shortsighted, and fucking deluded to take five fucking seconds to think maybe there’s more shit happening in Dolareido than your moronic grudge!”

Garry stared at him, obviously confused. He tried to hide it of course, but the hints were there. Michael reverted his transformation, a disgusting display of popping, gurgling bubbles of flesh and bone that shrank in on themselves like thick ooze going down the drain. But soon his suit emerged from the folds of muscle and skin, and Michael remained. A broken, tattered, beaten Gangrel, who half sat, half knelt, as he tried to push his weight onto his hands but only succeeded with one. He looked confused, too.

“Oh I’m sorry, did you not catch that? Let me repeat. No one told either of you for a fucking reason! Because everyone knows you two are so fucking worthless, with heads jammed right up your asses, that telling either of you anything was a recipe to tip off whoever’s doing it! You can’t be trusted by anyone, and hey! Guess what? You proved everyone right, by starting a war, over a fucking hundred-year-old grudge!” He marched toward Garry, and clenched and unclenched his only remaining fist. “So die, you fucking useless sacks of shit.”

He didn’t get much further. Azamel roared, a full on elephant roar, complete with a trumpet of her giant elephant trunk, and Jack whipped his head around in time to see her swing her hand for him.

She was slow, slower than he remembered. A giant, heaving creature soon to die of a wound it should have died of months ago. But, problem: he was pretty fucking beat up, too. Kinda had his body broken and smashed into mulch ten minutes ago, not to mention getting his left arm cut off. And the fact she was fifty feet tall, sitting, made dodging a giant hand difficult.

But he managed. He jumped high, damn high, clearing twenty feet so her huge hand swooped underneath him, nearly smashing into the two Gangrels; no such luck, she avoided hitting them. He landed on his feet, and turned to face Azamel, ready to give her another speech. But the damn bitch took another swing for him, with her other hand, palm open. Jack jumped it again, this time jumping straight toward her.

Yeah, she was gigantic. Yeah, she was fucking strong as hell. Yeah, this was her nightmare, her home turf, and for Begotten, home turf meant a fucking massive advantage. But she was old and dying, weak, vulnerable. One moment of focus, one moment as she recovered from lugging those gargantuan arms around, and he'd reach out and break her mind. Breaking the mind of an ancient vampire like Daniel might have been out of his reach, for now, but an old, dying bitch with a superiority complex? He was going to make her rip out her tusks and stab herself to death with them.

“Oh I am going to beat your fucking ass until you're dead! I don't know where Sándor and the others are, but all they're gonna find is your fucking corpse you fucking—”

She swung at him again, with her third and fourth arms, and plucked him out of the air. That, he hadn't expected. Those hands had held the fishing net of skulls and the long hook with the corpse on it like they were symbols essential to her existence. He at least expected her to set those objects down if she was going to use those hands. But she let them go, and the net, the huge black chain that connected it to the hook, it all came crashing down.

The giant net of skulls fell apart, and hundreds of the beautiful orbs scattered over the red-soaked street, shattering into dust. The hook landed on a roof of a parked car, and sank in through it, dragging the corpse along with and tearing it in half.

Azamel glared down at Jack as she brought him in front of her, holding him with both hands, like a god damn child holding a doll. He was just barely big enough that she needed to use two hands to make sure she completely encased him, with only his head and neck sticking up from between her leathery skin.

And before he could reach out through her dark eyes and into her mind to break the damn bitch, she slammed him into the ground. She was a lot stronger than Michael.

Jack, pinned on his stomach on the street in front of Azamel's knees, pushed his elbows down against the cracked asphalt. She kept his torso buried under one palm, and he managed to push up against it enough to shift the colossal weight. She may have been strong, but so was he.

“Let go of me you fucking—” The world cracked around him as a new weight slammed into him. Bitch just squashed her one hand onto the other, and she was not kind about it, pinning him to the street with both hands hard enough his vitae struggled to keep his bones from breaking into powder.

“Stay there,” Azamel said.

“Good job.” Garry's voice. That fucker. It was muffled, Jack buried under two giant hands after all and unable to see, but he could still hear him. “You ... should probably kill him. That curse—”

“I will do nothing of the sort.”

“I mean, he—hey! What the fuck!”

Loud sounds. Crashing. Thundering. Azamel was moving. Dealing with Garry. She kept one hand on Jack, and at this point Jack was a pancake. The rage tore through him, boiled his insides, lit an inferno inside him until he was screaming and roaring as he pushed up against Azamel's hand. But she fought against him, trumpeting her stupid elephant sounds as she refused to let him go. Even as he dug deep, poured his power through his body until his remaining hand cracked the asphalt as he pushed against it, Azamel rumbled her weird god sounds, and pushed her weight down against him.

And through all that, Azamel's weight shifted side to side. Judging from the grunts, roars, and pained hollers of Garry, and Michael evidently, she was fighting them. And winning.

"You will cease and desist! You are trapped here, in my domain!" Her voice poured through her arm, into her hand, and into his fucking head. Supposedly whales could sing so loud, if you were in the water with them and near them, it could pop your eardrums. Same fucking thing.

"Azamel!" Michael's voice. "The curse has to be dealt with. He—"

"I am in control here. You will silence your useless mouth, or I will crush you into oblivion. Do you understand me, blood leech?" Old bitch had apparently caught the two of them, judging from the sounds she was making.

Yeap, she'd caught them. She lifted her hand off Jack long enough for him to see Garry in one of her left hands, and Michael in one of her right, both back in their human bodies and trapped in her grip. But the moment Jack got back to his feet, she'd already brought her hand back down on him, two of them, and not to pin him. She crushed him, like swatting a spider.

He poured his vitae through his limbs, his skin, his bones, his muscles, everything. He was Jack the Ripper. He was better than her, a dinosaur falling apart at the seams. He was better than these two fucking cunt Gangrels. He was better than them, stronger than them! It wouldn't be long before he could kill them all, every last one of them, take the city for his own, and everyone in it. It wouldn't be—

Azamel swatted him again, hard enough he sank through the asphalt. Last thought before torpor took him: he probably made a funny human-shaped hole in the road.

Chapter 154

~~Jack~~

He woke up, wet and broken. Someone rolled him over, but his eyes were closed, and opening them took a little more effort than he felt like using at the moment. But once on his back, rain hit his face, and his chest. Wasn't he wearing a suit? Shouldn't that block the rain? Oh, right, the fight he'd been in had thoroughly destroyed it.

Pain came next. He groaned as his body did its thing, and what little vitae he had left got to work forcing his shoulders back into their sockets. His neck straightened out; spine was fucked up. His legs straightened out, arms too. Everything got back together just enough that they worked, and he could feel the wrecked muscles screaming with agony.

But at least everything was working again, so he opened his eyes. Yeap, this was still the nightmare chamber that belonged to Azamel, the one that looked like Dolareido. Red rain fell on his face, and he stared up into the strange red sky as it did. He was still alive.

“Jack,” a booming voice said.

“Azamel.” He sighed relief as he sat up. Tried to sit up. His right hand found the street just fine, but his left hand didn't, cause it didn't exist. He almost fell over, but rebalanced and sat up eventually. Relieved as hell that it was Azamel, but god damn, everything hurt.

Slowly, Jack looked around, taking stock. Michael stood nearby, suit and body in better condition than Jack's, but the man struggled to keep standing. Too proud to just sit the fuck down. Garry wasn't. The other Gangrel sat ten feet off, by the curb in front of the now exposed basement they'd been fighting in. Just like Michael, his skin was royally fucked, covered in bite marks. The two Gangrel probably healed or resisted the first thousand rat bites, but the next thousand got through, and left their mark. If Kindred blood was as thin as human blood, they'd both be bleeding to death.

Jack looked down. The necklace was back on, thank god. Fuck you Ripper.

Jack found the Ripper's thoughts, the curse's impulses, it's almost erotic need to destroy and maim, and cast them into the candle in his mind. Not easy to do, with fire burning through his muscles and bones, but getting thoroughly trashed was becoming so routine, he adapted quickly. When his thoughts were clear and normal again, Jack looked back up at Azamel.

There she sat, literally five feet in front of him, cross legged so one of her enormous shins was beside him, like a wall. Her scimitars were still on the street, and her other weapon, or fishing tool or whatever it was, was still a scattered mess. She wasn't even trying to clean it up.

"You appear normal again," Azamel said.

"Thank god," Garry said. "That was ... not fucking right."

The other Gangrel nodded. "Indeed. I was ... unprepared for how vicious it would be. And strong."

Jack laughed, but it switched to an aching cough, and he clutched his chest with his only hand. Yeah, those ribs didn't like doing that.

"You can see why I want to get rid of it now, right?"

"Yes. I can."

Jack nodded, and looked to Garry, then back to Michael. "You guys ... aren't fighting anymore."

Garry sighed as he shook his head. “You made ... some good points, Jack.”

Apparently Jack’s boss didn’t agree, or at least didn’t like agreeing. Michael’s scoffed, and shrugged. “You warned us something else was happening in the city, something I only have ... a small awareness of. That sounded more important than my quarrel with Garry.”

The Carthian leader laughed, but got the same result as Jack, wincing as his laugh ground to a halt. Yeah, none of them could do so much as bend over slightly without getting run over with pain, let alone laugh.

“If you hadn’t spared Tilly, I’d say this was all bullshit. But I owe you for that.”

Oh thank god, finally, communication. Actual talking.

“And...” Michael sighed and nodded toward the giant elephant monster. “Azamel spared us, if we agreed to a truce.”

Spared. Scary to think Azamel was in a position to kill all three of them. Well, they had beaten each other fucking senseless.

No. Michael and Garry hurt him, and they’d hurt each other, but the Ripper beat the two Gangrels. It ... he won that fight. And the only reason they were alive, and Jack was down, was because one of the most powerful entities probably on the fucking planet tricked him, pulled him into her nightmare realm where she was basically a god, and smashed him into the street hard enough to flatten a car. Multiple times.

“A truce is a good idea,” Jack said. “And you fucking know it.”

The two men sneered, at the same time. Which made them glance at each other, groan, and look away.

“Maybe,” Garry said.

“Maybe? I remember what the Ripper said. He ... told you guys a lot of shit I’d prefer he didn’t. But like Michael said, he warned you about something more difficult than your fucking stupid quarrel.”

Michael growled. “It’s not—”

“It’s fucking ludicrous. People are dead!”

Garry got up, teetered a bit, and pointed a finger at Jack. “Then why didn’t you tell us about it!?”

“Because you were both so fucking head-up-your-asses angry at each other over stupid shit, we knew neither of you were smart or mature enough to handle the information! You’d tip off the enemy!” Jack shrugged, and regretted it immediately, grumbling as the boiling pain smacked him around again. “Avery is your friend, Garry, and even she didn’t spill the beans. The fuck does that tell you?”

Garry glared at him for a few seconds before sighing and sitting down on the curb again, slowly, like an old man. He didn’t look any of them in the eye anymore.

Jack spared a glance for Azamel. She sat there, breathing heavy and deep, like she was permanently winded. But she seemed willing to let him keep going on his rant. Hell, looked like she wanted him to.

“Michael. What happened between you and Amanda?”

Michael sighed as he looked away. “She told me a friend of hers, a kine, was killed by Carthians in a brawl. She said the Carthians were reckless, hungry for violence, and accidentally shot her friend while starting a fight with some Invictus. Amanda wanted revenge. She came to me with a plan, and I agreed.”

“Yeah. Fuck you.” Garry held up his hand to Michael, middle finger up.

That sounded a little strange. He hadn’t heard anything like that from Invictus reports. “Did you double check the info?”

“No. She came to me the same night Garry attacked Xnomina. What reason would Amanda have to lie? It was a perfect opportunity.”

Too fucking perfect. Something wasn’t right.

“Make sure when you un-stake her that I’m there, Michael. Just you, me, and her. Damien too.”

Giving his boss orders was a recipe for confrontation, and Michael glared at him, broken and torn up face ready to pop. But just like Garry, he took a few seconds to think about it — finally, some motherfucking god damn reason — and nodded.

Jack looked back up to Azamel. “You knew I was going to deal with these two like this?”

“Of course.”

“How?”

Shrugging, the giant elephant gestured down at her side.

And out came Mark, a pile of squirming insects and rot. Literally. But at least Mark wore a dark, skin-like robe, giving his shape a human form, normal size. He had a skeleton in there too, but hard to see, among all the bugs crawling in and out of it.

He came out of the fucking shadow, something even the best Mekhet would struggle to do. The disgusting bastard was so damn good, Michael jumped back, and Garry almost jumped up ready to fight, before he realized the man wasn't a threat. Surprise, to fight-or-flight, to eventual disgust, as the man's rotting odor spread.

"Mark," Jack said. "Didn't the Prince warn you about spying on me?"

The man smirked. "I spied on you, not her."

Azamel chuckled, and lifted one of her fingers, closest to Mark. A subtle gesture, and Mark disappeared into her shadow again. Holy fuck he was good. No wonder he had the guts to spy on the Prince and Daniel in their own tower.

"I prepared," she said. "It is not easy to open a tunnel the way I did."

"Why did you?" he asked.

"Because if I hadn't, what would I be leaving my family? A broken city, about to suffer the wrath of an infantile curse."

He sighed as he looked her up and down. It took a lot out of her to do that. It took a lot out of her to flip a building and catch three powerful vampires, too. A lot out of her.

Nodding, Jack looked between the two Gangrels, thinking. He could keep yelling at them, and he kinda wanted to, but at this point both men were willing to talk. Yelling no longer required.

"Garry, Michael ... Roland wo—"

Michael stepped closer and shook his head. "Don't, Mister Terry." Oh hey, he had a title again. "I can only forgive so much. You used a deeply personal issue between Garry and I to confront us. I ... can understand why, and you made points I have to consider. Perhaps Garry and I have been letting our past poison our interactions."

Holy shit, what the fuck did they say to each other while he was out? Did Azamel play peacekeeper?

“But,” Michael continued, “you are no longer to speak of it. Understand? So much as mention Roland’s name, and it will not end well for you.”

Jack nodded as he smiled up at the man. What Michael wanted to say, but couldn’t, was Jack finally punched a little sense into his thick skull, but he better not try it twice.

“You’ll start going to Primogen meetings again?”

“Yeah,” Garry said, “so calm down. We already said truce. First thing we do when we get back, is get our covenants to back off each other.”

“And Jeremy Long?”

“What about him? Dude is a cutthroat businessman, and he has the connections and the tech I needed.” He shrugged. “And you probably noticed, he ain’t no pussy Ventrue or Invictus.”

Michael and Jack rolled their eyes. Ok, well, insults were a lot better than bullets and fire grenades.

“And Mister Terry,” Michael said, “we will be asking for more information about this threat you warned us about.”

“I ... I’ll try and tell you what I can. But the more you know, the riskier shit gets.”

The man rumbled in his throat. “Risk it.”

“I think,” Azamel said, “that these two dogs have calmed enough to see reason.” Of course she could insult them all she wanted.

“Ok, yeah, I’ll tell you. Um, tomorrow? It’s a long conversation, and it can wait a night.”

“Very well. It has been a trying night,” Michael said. Bastard could barely stand, and called it a trying night, like he’d just done a heavy workout.

Jack looked to Garry. “Avery will tell you everything. Just tell her about what happened tonight.”

“I will. She better have answers.”

“If you want to know more after me and Avery have explained stuff, ask Natasha, or the Prince directly. They’ve been dealing with it a lot more than I have. I’ve had my hands full.”

Garry laughed. A big, full, happy laugh. What the fuck.

“Yeah, I guess you have.” He raised his left hand, and wiggled his fingers.

Even Michael laughed. Not as loud as Garry, but he laughed, before they both groaned quietly in pain. Fucking assholes.

---

Michael and Garry left. They promised the first thing they’d do when they were outside the nightmare was call a ceasefire. He believed them. Some guys just needed to throw fists in order to calm down and see reason. Typical guy thing. Jack couldn’t wrap his mind around that sort of mentality, but he damn well knew a lot of guys who thought with their fists better than their heads. And reconciled with them too, evidently.

Tomorrow night, Michael and Jack would un-stake Amanda, and figure out what the fuck was going on.

Jack stayed in the nightmare. He wanted to talk to Azamel, and he was terrified it was going to be a painful, heavy conversation.

“I will release the animals you brought with you into the dream. The rats and crows.”

“Thanks.” He dragged himself back up to his feet, and leaned back against a car. “Christ I’m hungry.” He glanced again at the monster’s giant ruined tools that she made no effort to clean up before he looked up at her.

“Do not worry, Jack. I think you made your point to those men. They will still antagonize each other, and occasionally serve as enemies, but you have successfully earned a truce between them. Similar future negotiations will be easier.”

He wasn’t worried about that. He was worried about the giant elephant monster who looked like she was about to keel over and die.

“Thank god. Christ, how can anyone stomach politics for five seconds? The people who actually do shit with it, are the morons, and they have power and money and ... you can’t do fucking shit about them without doing something drastic.”

“Power is not given to those who deserve it. It is given to those who either stumble upon it, or are willing to take it from others.” She shrugged, as if this was the most obvious thing in the world. “If those who deserved it were simply given it, the world would be ... boring.”

He laughed, but it stopped quick as his ribs stabbed into him again. Yeah, his body wasn’t healing very fast anymore. He was running on fumes, getting very hungry, and he hadn’t even tried to regrow his arm yet. Strong as the curse was, it couldn’t make something from nothing.

“Azamel, I ... Thank you. If not for you, the curse would have killed those two morons.”

“Most likely.”

“And it ... he...”

“The curse grows stronger, each time it takes over, doesn’t it, little vampire? Stronger and more difficult to force out of your mind.”

Jack clutched his necklace. “Yeah.”

“And you have found no way to destroy it?”

He shivered as he looked down. “Black Blood says he—it can. Or not destroy, so much as remove and take.”

“A dangerous bargain. We already suspect the creature of threatening an apocalypse, and you think it will help you?”

“Only to help itself. I dunno if Black Blood will eat it, or bind it and use it on someone else, or what.”

“Then I suggest you find another way to deal with it. I will not be here the next time it needs to be dealt with.”

He winced. “Christ, I’m sorry. I ... I didn’t know you’d help. I didn’t know you’d ... You can’t find someone to eat to feel better?”

The elephant ran one of her human hands down her trunk, but set it back on her knee as she struggled to stay sitting upright.

“I am afraid not, little vampire. I may not be dead yet, but I will be. Soon.”

Soon. She said it softly, and that just made it all the worse. She didn’t mean weeks or months, she meant tonight.

“This is my fault.”

She laughed, a weak and winded sound. “Is it? Jeremiah has hunted me for decades, Jack. This is his fault, and mine.”

Jeremiah. Just hearing the name was enough to send a pulse of rage through Jack, and looking at the dying woman only made it a thousand times worse.

“We saw the flashback in Jeremiah’s ritual. I thought you were being pretty reasonable.”

“About ruling a city as a monster? About exiling my sheriff?”

“All things considered, yeah? Far as human and monster relations go, you had something going there. Something ... not all that far from Dolareido, kinda.”

She chuckled, a little bit of the sound coming through her elephant trunk and making a trumpet noise.

“Perhaps. It doesn’t matter. If I had done things differently, as Antoinette does them, then maybe things would not be as they are. Or maybe I’d have died much, much younger.”

“A life well lived, then?”

“I think so. My inheritance is beyond my reach, but perhaps that is for the best. The new generation will be a fine replacement.”

“What is this inheritance? Antoinette talked about it, but none of us are really sure what it means.”

She smiled down at him, as much as an elephant face can smile, tusks in the way and all.

“You think I am powerful now, little vampire. Imagine what I could do in this world if I were a true monster.”

“True monster? I thought Begotten were true monsters? You’ve said as much.”

“We are ... potential true monsters.” She leaned forward over him, one set of hands on her knees, the other set pressing on the street. “You have no doubt noticed my kin cannot merge with our Horrors in the physical world.”

“Yeah. But I see glimpses of it sometimes, when you’re fighting and stuff.”

“Indeed. Begotten are limited by the duality of the human and the Horror. But there are ways to overcome this ... flaw, to become a beast and Horror incarnate. I could walk the realm of the real, in a form such as mine now, to transform into at leisure. I could reach out and crush the minds and dreams of all within my grasp. I could master my hunger. I could ... become legend, Jack Terry. I could have become a true myth.”

“Myth?”

“Tales of my existence, whispers, stories in books, pictures painted by dreaming artists, songs and poems. True Begotten who become more than they were become monsters of legend, vampire. That was my goal. I came to Dolareido when Jeremiah found my trail, and I planned to defeat him and his companions here.” She sighed as she looked up to the red sky. “Imagine it, little vampire. Imagine the tale of the hunters who came to defeat the great Azamel, and her friend Athalia. A man, hunting his once lover and ruler. A girl, hunting her mother, only to find her defended by a great and terrible monster. What a tale. It would have been legen—”

“Wait for it ... Dary!”

She looked down at him, and blinked.

Jack threw up his hands. Hand. “Sorry, shitty joke from TV.” And him, trying to distance himself from how much it hurt her to hear her say all these things, each word raspy and exhausted.

It would have been kinda scary, and maybe a problem, if Azamel became some sort of literal monster who could go walking around, being a tyrant. Like, a fucking actual dragon or kraken or something. But now her dreams were crushed, and now she was dying. It fucking sucked.

And the last thing she wanted to do with her life was make Dolareido a better place for the other Begotten. Christ, Jack couldn't even begin to think in those terms, think ‘I'm going to die, better do everything I can to help those closest to me first before I go’. How the fuck does someone think that way?

She was old, and she wasn't a vampire. That's how.

“You may go now, Jack. The city needs peace, if you're to prevent this darkness I sensed from destroying everything.”

“You want me to go? You sure?”

“I am sure.”

Jack looked down the street, where Garry and Michael had disappeared into a building, a storage building. Azamel had created a doorway to the physical world there.

“... you're sure you sure? There's no one else here. I don't want to leave you ... alone, you know? I—”

Mark appeared from the shadow of a nearby bus stop. Damn that guy was good.

“She's not alone. I'll make sure Fiona and Athalia are here, too. I can have them here in minutes.”

Jack nodded as he looked down. Yeah, that made sense. If Azamel wanted to die with her family, that was a hell of a lot better than dying alone.

It was funny. She was such a bitch, such a massive pain in their ass, but to the three she'd been protecting, she was the quintessential grandmother. Jack didn't know his grandmothers, but if they were anything like Azamel, at least how she was supposedly like around Fiona and Athalia, he wouldn't leave them to die alone. He'd stay right the fuck here and be with them until the end.

A part of him wanted to insist. A larger part of him knew that was wrong, weird, and awkward. She wanted to be with her family when she died. That wasn't him.

"Thanks," he said. To Azamel, not Mark. Fuck that guy. "I know you helped me because you want to help your family, but ... you still helped me. Now, and other times. And I'm still sorry that I couldn't fix it. I—"

"You cannot fix everything, little vampire. That is an essential lesson in life, and one you seem to struggle with." She coughed. Azamel in her human body coughed constantly, especially after Jeremiah wounded her, but Azamel the monster never coughed. She did now, and it sounded guttural, loud, and awful. "Learn to accept that failure is not always, and often not, because you made mistakes, or did not do your best. Will you berate yourself because six Kindred have died in this turf war?"

Will he? He already had. Bruce was dead. Joe was dead. They were entirely his fault. Weren't they?

Azamel shook her head before he could say anything. "I have known many like you, Jack. You have an honest soul, and are full of empathy. But you must learn to harden yourself, or your desire to help others, to fix every problem you stumble upon whether you are involved or not, will break you. You will withdraw into yourself and try to hold the world at bay, as its pain and agony carve scars into your soul. You will grow bitter, and cynical. And I know you are intelligent enough to have seen this.”

Story of his life. Azamel would have been a great therapist, if she talked to him when his dad died. He had closed in on himself when that happened, and hurt his mother doing so. He’d gotten better about it since his first death, and the idea of going back to being a closed off, cynical asshole, criticizing every flaw around him, terrified him. If it wasn’t for Antoinette, he probably would have already, with all the shit that kept coming his way.

“Listen to me, Jack. The last words of an old monster who has made a million mistakes. Do not destroy yourself carrying the pains or burdens of others. Everyone must carry their own anchors, and while friends and family can help each other, you will destroy yourself trying to carry everyone’s.”

“I—”

“Do not argue, little vampire. I do not have the time or energy left.”

“You’re ... you’re right. Thanks, again.” He couldn’t even look her in the eye.

She nodded, and gestured to the building down the street. “Go. Make sure those two dogs put an immediate end to this war.”

He turned, walked toward the building, got two steps, and spun around. “Azamel, I—”

“Go, Jack.”

“But what about you? I can’t—”

“Do not worry for me.” Even as she said it, she struggled to stay sitting. The arm on her knee slid down to the street, and she leaned forward as her own weight dragged her down. She had to brace all four hands on the ground to keep from collapsing. Her breathing grew heavier and ragged, and her trunk dangled until it nearly hit the asphalt.

“Of course I worry! You’re dying! How can you just accept that!? How—”

“Jack.” She sighed again, smiling as she slowly shook her giant head. “I am glad to have met you. I am glad to have helped you. I am ... content.”

---

~~Damien~~

Damien checked his phone. A text had come in a few minutes ago, apparently.

~All Invictus, cease and desist any and all combat with the Carthians. Mister Tones and I have come to an agreement and a truce. Right Hands and senior members, report to the Xnomina Headquarters tomorrow night, 23:00.~

Damien blinked at the phone, several times, before showing it to Jessy. She blinked at him, the phone, then pulled hers out and did the same. They were sitting on a rooftop, Cloaked, and hiding from a dozen Carthians out roof hopping trying to find them. The phones didn’t buzz or make a sound, but the two vampires were hiding and didn’t have much to do for the moment. Good thing he checked.

Damien shrugged, pointed at the two of them, then toward the fastest street out of the Carthian district, and shrugged again. No reason to not just walk out then? They were about to take one of the more scenic routes to get around the patrols, but if things were called off, then no reason to not just walk back? On the road? Out in the open?

No, probably a bad idea. The Carthians might not have—

Jessy stood up, and threw up a hand. “Hey! Whatever assholes are chasing us, check your phones! If you can afford one, you broke bastards!”

Damien facepalmed hard enough it made a slap sound. “Jessy, Garry might not have sent them a message yet.”

“Ah come on, you think Michael would send that message first? Pretty sure they’d stand next to each other, and actively watch each other send the message, ready to fuck each other up if one of them tried to trick the other, you know?”

That was true. Damien slowly stood up, and checked around the rooftop for any pursuers. No one. He pulled out his binoculars, and spotted one vampire on a rooftop a good ways away. They were looking at their phone.

“Either way.” Damien touched her shoulder, and wrapped them in his Cloak of Night again. “I don’t trust the Carthians to not take a shot at us for fun, or they might say they shot us before the message was received.”

“Dude you are paranoid.”

“You would do well to be a little more paranoid.”

“Ha. You sound like my sire.” She started down the fire escape, and he followed after her. “So, you think Jack convinced them?”

“Yes. And probably not without a fair bit of violence.”

“Yeah, probably. I’ll go back to HQ and check up on Michael. You?”

“Back to my apartment.” Or Fiona’s. He was starving. After two hours of playing hide and seek with a bunch of Carthians, draining his blood reserves to fuel his Cloak, reapplying the Cloak over and over, he was quite drained. If necessary, he’d feed on a random kine, but Fiona preferred to be the one he fed on.

Feeding on someone frequently wasn’t healthy for the prey, if done too frequently in a small time frame. But Fiona healed quickly, and he was happy to indulge. It almost always led to sex, and he’d grown quite addicted to both the rush her monster blood sent through him, but also the sex. One more step to becoming yet another proper Dolareidian.

Another text came in, from Jack, from one of his backup phones. He did have a habit of getting them destroyed.

~You guys ok?~

~Yeah, we’re fine. Distraction work?~

~Yeah, worked great, thanks. Got Michael and Garry talking. It was brutal.~

Damien showed Jessy the conversation, before he called Jack. Texting would forever be a frustrating nuisance.

“The meeting tomorrow night,” Damien said. “You’ll be there?”

“Yeap. And before that, Michael’s taking me to Amanda. I want you there. Jessy can go out and make sure the Invictus and Carthians fucking listen to the truce order while we deal with that problem.”

“Any idea about why Michael staked her?”

“Yeah. Amanda gave him a story about Carthians killing a kine friend of hers, so she wanted revenge. I’m mostly sure it’s bullshit. Something’s up.”

“Will you Dominate her to learn the truth?”

“I’d prefer to not. And that’ll only help if she’s lying. Can you use Auspex to gleam some truth from her?”

“I can try.” It was not Damien’s strong suit. Speed, stealth, sure. He’d even glimpsed the past from objects on occasion with Auspex, or caught a peek at a hidden truth about someone. What Jack was asking for was Auspex’s ability to sync Damien’s mind to a victim’s, essentially becoming them for a time. A useful trick for uncovering memories or discovering secrets buried in a person’s mind. It was not something Damien could do, or at least not well. It was something Lucas struggled to do, and used rarely.

“Think I should ask the sheriff?” Jack asked.

“It may come to that. But the man is busy.” Hunting for anything he could about Black Blood and the ritual, no doubt. “I think we should talk with Amanda first.”

“Agreed. Let me talk to Jessy for a bit?”

Damien handed Jessy the phone.

“Dude, you got Garry and Michael to fuck off? How? Wait, seriously? Holy fuck dude, that’s awesome! Oh .. Oh Michael is going to be a sour bitch for a while isn’t he. Fuck. Well fuck you, man! He’s my sire! I have to deal with him more than you!”

---

He found Fiona on his bed. For a moment, he thought she was lying on her side in a sexy position, curled up with her head buried in his pillow, waiting for him to come ravage her. But as he came closer, he found her trembling, and her sobs muffled by the pillow.

“Fiona?” He sat down on the bed next to her, and stroked her shoulder. “What’s wrong?”

She lifted her head, revealing her ruined mascara. She was never the sort to wear a lot of make up, but what little she did wear was smeared all over her cheeks, and his pillow. Tears soaked both.

“Damien!” She threw herself at him, as much as she could while lying, and flattened her chest against his. She hid her face in his neck, and cried. And not a tender whimper, or a sad sob. She bawled, almost screaming as she cried directly into his ear.

He didn’t mind. Confused, but didn’t mind. He hugged her, twisting so he was sitting directly on the bed, and she was half on his lap, half pinned against his chest. With one hand holding her waist and back, the other held the back of her head, and he leaned in to press his cheek against the side of her head, against the almost spongy texture of her frizzy hair.

“What happened?” he asked, after a few minutes of her cries. The fancy, expensive apartments of Dolareido had a lot of sound insulation, but she was borderline screaming. Neighbors might notice.

“Azamel ... she ... she...” That was all she managed. Back to loud sobs and cries, and more than a few heavy sniffles. Some snot probably coated his shoulder, and he didn’t care.

So Azamel was dead. It was amazing she’d lasted as long as she had, considering what Jeremiah had done to her. After the failed ritual, Azamel had withered down to nothing in a matter of weeks, but somehow held on. Far as Damien knew, she’d been training Sándor to be her replacement, and acclimating him to the family. Fiona wasn’t the biggest fan of Sándor, because he was a pretty stoic guy, and preferred to be closed off. He was the father she now had to deal with, because the grandmother she used to live with died.

He sighed as he nodded, and stroked her head. He was tempted to say some platitudes, to offer some sort of condolences or sympathy. It wouldn't have helped, and he sucked at them anyway. Fiona didn't want meaningless words. She wanted Azamel. She wanted her grandma.

So he did the only thing he could. He hugged her close, and let her cry.

---

~~Antoinette~~

She stood in her tower, in the highest office, her grand office, and stared out the window.

'He's disappeared.' That was what Daniel had told her over the phone an hour ago. The man had been watching Jack, to perhaps interfere if the curse overstepped itself. And if need be, to remove Jack from the situation, deem him effectively dead, and remove him from the Invictus. He would no longer be allowed to help the covenants. A way to spare his life, to keep him for herself, while also satisfying whichever covenant succeeded in nearly killing him.

She snarled as she waited, grinding her teeth in a way most unbecoming. This had not been part of the plan. If the curse was released during Jack's encounter with Michael and Garry, Daniel would interfere. But while the Mekhet had looked for an opportunity to stop the Ripper, Jack and the two Gangrels disappeared. Which could only be the work of the Begotten. And since the Prince had no way to penetrate their realm of dreams, she was forced to wait until either Jack or the two Primogen found a way out of the maze of nightmares, or the Begotten released them.

If Azamel so much as—

Her laptop beeped. She turned and glared at it, ready to smash the thing to pieces. But self control won over, and she stepped over to examine the screen. A report from one of her thralls.

~Invictus and Carthians are both calling a truce.~

Well now, that was good news. If another building went up in flames, she would have been forced to pay a visit to the two infidels personally. Better news in that it likely meant Jack was alive, and had succeeded in his plot.

Then where was he?

It was another thirty minutes of agony before another report came in. Jack had been found, not far from where he had disappeared. Naturally, Antoinette sent a driver his way, and soon the boy was being escorted to her tower.

Not long after, the boy stepped into her office.

“Jack, you ... look terrible.” Normally she would have sat in her chair and offered him a seat in one of the visitor chairs. But she walked over to him, and set a hand on his shoulder as she looked him up and down.

He managed a weak smile, and nodded. Terrible was an understatement. His suit was in tatters. His left hand was missing. Chunks of his body looked dented and warped. His head missed a portion of skin and hair. He must have been in agony. And yet he did not show it.

“Azamel’s dead. Or ... will be, before the night is over.”

Oh dear. Antoinette sighed, and took Jack’s remaining hand. The office would not do for this conversation.

Jack said nothing as she took him back to the elevator he had just exited. He tried to look at her, to smile, but his eyes fell, and a heavy weight pulled on his expression. And as the elevator took them down and down into the quiet safety of her Elysium Tower's underbelly, he squeezed her hand.

She guided him to Ashley and Julee. Both girls were studying, each sitting on a couch while classical musical played in the background. They preferred EDM or dubstep, musical 'genres' crass enough to make Antoinette's skin crawl. But studying while listening to classical music was a proven methodology, and she insisted.

But they would soon be asleep, as Jack needed blood.

"My pets, if you please," she said, gesturing to Jack as she stepped into the quiet room of black marble and soft couches.

Jack did not so much as say a word. Normally he would insist he did not need their blood, that he could hunt on his own, or use Veronica. He had likely drained Veronica tonight to prepare for his bout with the two Gangrels, but that was not the reason he did not fight her on this. The poor boy looked drained, emotionally and physically.

Her two precious ghouls hopped up, and their smiles vanished. They stared at Jack, at his destroyed suit and broken body, and his missing hand. They both gulped, and walked to him, the invisible weight the boy carried dragging the two girls down with him through sheer proximity.

He took of both of them. No word, no fuss, and no attempt to treat the girls with a teasing hand or seductive Kiss. He simply drained them, quickly and efficiently.

Antoinette watched her lover as his wounds began to heal. The hand would take time to regrow, though considering the ludicrous amount of power the curse had, it would take merely a single night. The other wounds, the missing skin, the dented and broken flesh, wounds that left bits of his insides exposed, it healed over at such a rate she could see it with her naked eye. A terrible, and terrifying power.

Antoinette set both girls down on the couches, and made sure they were set in comfortable positions, before she turned to Jack once again, and subtly reached out. He did not even look at her as he took her hand, and held it as they walked to her bedchamber. Their bedchamber.

He sat at the foot of the bed, and she joined him, the colossal room and enormous bed suddenly seeming quite empty and sad, as if to match his mood.

“You succeeded with Mister McDonald and Mister Tones?”

“Yeah.”

“You had to fight them, I assume.”

“Yeah.”

“And ... the curse was involved.”

He nodded. “Didn’t break the Masquerade, but it got close.”

“I am sorry to say it, but I cannot deny that the curse is a forced to be reckoned with, if it was able to defeat Michael and Garry in combat. Did they defeat each other first?”

“No. I mean, they hurt each other, but ... yeah, it was mostly the curse.” His shoulders slumped, and the poor boy’s hand fidgeted with the blanket. “Another thousand rats died because of me.”

She nodded, and cast her eyes toward the door of the chamber. There was an art to listening. If someone was looking down and away while sitting next to you as they spoke, it was sometimes the correct thing to look to the distance, adopting the ‘thinking gaze’. It was not a deception, either.

“It is a terrible shame that such horrible things happen through you.” She waited for his response. There was none. She would have to coax more information out of him. “What happened after? Daniel reports you disappeared.”

“The fight was getting out of hand until Azamel showed up and ... opened a portal right on top of us, into one of her nightmare rooms. Not sure how she did it. Someone turned off the light in the basement. Probably Mark. Turned it back on, and we were in the dream world.”

Ah. Azamel was far too powerful for her own good. Though if Jack’s words rang true, the old woman was dead, and no longer a thorn in Antoinette’s side.

How callous. Clearly there was more to Azamel than Antoinette knew, considering how devoted her friends, her family were to her. And, considering Jack’s reaction.

“Why did she do such a thing?”

“Two reasons, I guess. She wanted Garry and Michael to start a truce, so ... so when she was gone, the war would be over. She was worried if the Ripper killed them, it’d create a power vacuum, you know? Vampires killing each other, burning down buildings ... everything that’s been happening, just worse.”

“Azamel is wise, and old. She has likely seen such destruction before. The other reason?”

He sighed, looking down, hands between his legs and resting against the bed's edge. "She wanted to help me. And ... you should have seen her, Antoinette. She was dying."

"I am sorry, my love, but you saw her only days prior. You—"

"No, she was merged with her Horror thing, you know? She was this giant monster creature, and she ... she could barely sit up. And I was talking to her, and she was dying right in front of me. I was ... christ, I was talking to her, and she was nice to me."

"Nice?"

"Nice, in a way I'd never seen. Fiona said Azamel was nice to her, but all I ever knew was this bitch old woman."

"You are not alone in that, my love."

"But she ... she was nice to me. She could have lived longer, you know? It wasn't easy for her to do what she did, to yank me and Garry and Michael into the nightmare, opening a door right on top of us. She even flipped a building. It took a lot out of her. A lot lot out of her, and then she beat me, and—"

"She beat you?"

"Defeated me. Got her hands on me and squashed me." He gestured to himself. "Half of this is from her."

"Oh my. And the Gangrels?"

"The Ripper beat them. But they were recovering while Azamel had me pinned, and she caught them. They wanted her to kill me, because of the curse, but she said no, caught them, and forced them to agree to a truce."

Azamel was a better negotiator than Antoinette realized. And why would she not be a great negotiator? The old woman ran a city once, many years ago. To be a talented negotiator would have been a requirement, to at least some degree.

After a few moments of silence, Jack leaned against her, and set his head against her shoulder.

“She could have killed me, Antoinette. That would have been an easy way to get Garry and Michael on her side. They wanted ... want me dead, for tricking them, for abusing—” He jumped to his feet and threw his arms up. “Oh shit! I told them. Ripper told them.”

“Told them?”

“About the ritual or whatever being done in Dolareido. They know something’s up now.”

Antoinette sighed and nodded. “That is unfortunate. The more that know, the more difficult it is for us to hide our actions. But Garry and Michael are not capable of only animalistic gestures and loud noises, my love. They are elders, and can be intelligent, and even reserved, when it suits their needs.”

Jack did not look convinced. Considering the Hell he had just gone through, all to deal with Garry and Michael’s infuriating, infantile grudge, she did not blame him. But the poor boy did not understand. Kindred did not deal with slights as humans did. Humans abandoned their grudges as they aged, or they were destroyed by them. Vampires were immortal, and struggled to change. To spend a hundred years living a single mile from someone you blamed for losing someone precious to you? Such resentment in such proximity eventually boiled over.

Slowly, he sat beside her again, and she slipped an arm over his shoulders.

“I will speak to them, to ensure they understand what ails my city, and what they must do.”

“Yeah ... yeah ok. Michael and I are going to unstage Amanda tomorrow night, and see if we can figure out what happened. I’m pretty sure she lied to Michael about something, to convince him to use her to trigger this war.”

“Is that what happened?”

“Yeah. Something’s going on. Me and Damien are gonna find out. Do ... do you think Daniel could do that Auspex thing I hear about? Sorta ... learn about her, and her secrets?”

Antoinette tapped a finger against her chin. “If necessary. Daniel spends his nights ... hunting. But if this is being done tomorrow night, then you may summon him.”

Auspex was a terribly tricky and fickle ability. It did not turn secrets into an encyclopedia to be read. Antoinette did not trust what information it gleamed, but that did not mean something of value could not be learned. With Daniel hunting for more information about Black Blood, and skirting the edges of its awareness, his time was valuable. And yet, if they could learn something from Amanda that suggested Black Blood was involved, that would be useful information indeed.

She ran her fingers over Jack’s head, against the grain of his buzzed hair, and the boy relaxed into her touch.

“This is a victory,” she whispered. “No more do two of my Primogen kill each other’s Kindred. No more do they burn my city. And while they have learned of the dark presence earlier than I planned, I had planned to tell them eventually. They had to know, my love.”

“I guess.”

“And if Black Blood is involved in Amanda’s supposed lie, then there is something to learn. You may have discovered the perfect opportunity to uncover this plot.”

Jack looked up at her, eyebrow raised. She chuckled, and rubbed his head more. There was no chance Amanda would be carrying a secret detail in her mind that would be the key to ending the ritual. Kindred, and likely other paranormal entities like Black Blood knew particular vampires, like Daniel, were capable of uncovering secrets from the darkness of people’s minds, and even experiences. They were careful.

A game of shadows. Kindred played them well, but whatever dark art Black Blood pursued, it must have done so for many years now, decades. Centuries? She had to be very careful. A private conversation with Mister Tones and Mister McDonald was in order.

Jack looked back down, and silence fell on them once more. The poor boy was often forward with her about his ailments, now that their relationship had progressed so. Not tonight, evidently. Perhaps a little more prodding, to see if he wanted to speak of it, but needed to be coaxed yet again.

“Something else is on your mind, my love.”

He sighed as he nodded, and nudged his temple into her shoulder. “Yeah.”

“Do you wish to speak of it?”

“I don’t know. It’s ... weird.”

“By all means, if you wish to hold it in...”

“It’s not that. It’s...” He turned his head enough his forehead pressed to her shoulder. “Azamel. I ... I offered to stay with her, until the end.”

“Yes, I imagine you did.”

“She said no. Basically kicked me out.”

“And this bothers you?”

“It ... It’s not what she did that bothers me. It’s why. She was protecting me, I think. From me.”

“Protecting you?” she asked.

“Yeah. She said some things, kinda told me I need to get over myself. That I can’t fix everything. And I noticed something she was implying. That I ... I guess I seek out shit to get wrecked over. That I’m a glutton for punishment. That I’m making myself miserable.”

“Oh dear.”

“Yeah, fuck me, right? Do I have a case of martyrdom, or something? A masochist? Do I throw myself into situations where I have to ... have to carry a burden?”

She mirrored his sigh, and stroked his head more. “I would be lying if I said you did not drift toward such situations.”

His sigh turned into a groan. “Azamel thinks if I keep it up, I’ll grow up to be a bitter, cynical old man.”

Antoinette chuckled, a tender and motherly sound. “Jack, you are already a bitter, cynical old man.”

“Hey.”

“But there is also a deep need in you to help others. For some reason, there is a spark inside you that craves not pain, but to block others from pain. Do not think yourself a masochist. You are, however, doomed to an eternity of throwing yourself between others and the pain that would befall them, even when it would be a poor decision. Even if nothing would come of it, except for more pain.”

“That ... does sound like me, yeah. I wanted to be there for Azamel when she died. Didn’t even fucking cross my mind that it’d be dumb to do that, that I’d be just throwing more weight on my shoulders. Azamel said she’s known people like me before, and she was insistent I go. Said Mark would get Athalia and Fiona, and that she didn’t need me.” He rubbed his forehead side to side against her shoulder. “Ugh, why am I like this?”

“You are not always like this. But when those you consider worth protecting are in pain, it is a reflex that takes over. Like Azamel, I have known people like you. But not Kindred.”

“Not all Kindred are selfish assholes. What about you?”

“You know very well my desires for a change in our nature, and in the methodology of our kind’s pursuits, is also a selfish desire. I am intelligent. I am wise. But I am no saint, little Ventrue. I am afraid you and you alone of the two of us, are burdened with such a horrible curse.”

He chuckled, but kept his head where it was. “That why I love you?”

“Partly.”

“Other part?”

“I am a buxom creature, and beautiful beyond words.”

He chuckled again. Good. It hurt terribly to see her little Ventrue suffer, especially when victory was had, and the pain should have been left behind. But Jack was Jack, and he picked up the pain and added it to the anchor wrapped around his throat without hesitation.

“I—” His phone rang. Connected to a private network, just for him, without fear of her monitoring his messages, or him monitoring hers. The joys of working for two different covenants. “That’s Damien.”

“By all means.” She released his head.

He checked his phone, and what little joy she had kindled in his expression vanished, ripped away by the inevitable.

“Azamel’s dead. Fiona’s crying in his arms right now. She ... she died not long after I left.”

Antoinette slowly nodded as she set a gentle hand on the boy’s. “Were Athalia and Fiona with her?”

“Yeah. They got to say their goodbyes, according to Damien.”

“Then I am sure she died content, my love. As content as a frustrating old woman like Azamel can be.”

Jack managed a slow nod, but no smile followed. “Yeah. I ... I think she did.”

Antoinette gently took the phone, and set it on the bed. With a tender smile, she reached out, and guided the boy to lie down, until his head rested upon her lap, his legs on the bed. There, she rested a hand on his stomach while her other caressed his head.

“I know you are in pain. I know you connected with Azamel in a way I did not. I know her death could have been avoided, if you, or any of us, managed to defeat Jeremiah before he enacted his ritual. I know the death of your sister, and Julias, at the hands of Angela eats away at you each and every night.” Her caressing hand gently slid over his face, and closed his eyes, before she returned to his buzzed hair. His eyes stayed closed. “But understand that not only are you not to blame for any of these horrible things, you also managed to pull victory from these dire situations. You have done better than most would. Take solace in that knowledge, that more people would be dead or hurt, if not for your efforts.”

A tiny smile broke through his morose expression, eyes still closed. “Yeah?”

“Our second lives can be cruel, horrible affairs, but you and I both strive to make them better for ourselves and the people in them. It is one of the many reasons I love you.”

Jack’s small but powerful smile remained, and he nodded as he relaxed against her lap.

Antoinette pet his head, and pulled out her own phone with her offhand. “I must send Daniel a message.”

“Something secret?”

“Non.”

“Oh ... about Azamel.”

“Oui. I believe my old friend will want to visit Athalia.”

“Athalia? Really? Figured she’d want to be alone, and brood and stuff. Azamel’s death will hit her the hardest.”

“Athalia will indeed want to brood and withdraw into herself. But there is more to her than a cold woman, made of ice. She will not realize it at first, I imagine. There will be some resistance from her. But Daniel will — due to my guidance — melt her cold shell and ... I am sorry, I am speaking of deeply personal matters of my good friend.”

“You need more girl friends to talk about this stuff with.”

“I have Ashley and Julee, and Elaine.” She grinned down at Jack, and poked his nose, causing his eyes to open. “And I have your mother.”

“Oh god. You don’t talk to her about sex stuff about me, do you?”

“I do not say your name, if that is what you mean.”

He stared at her, eyes widening. “But she can figure out who you’re talking about?”

“Most likely.”

“Oh god.”

“If it is any consolation, your mother is happy that you are a talented, giving lover.”

“Oh god.”

They chuckled, but after a few moments, the weight returned to Jack’s face. He closed his eyes again, and she stroked his hair, as the boy no doubt turned a thousand possibilities through his mind, looking for a way he could have done better. A compulsion he had little control over.

So she did what she could. She caressed his scalp, and did her best to soothe his pain. She was intelligent. She was wise. But from the outside, she could only help so much. It was her curse, to watch the man she loved tear himself to pieces.

---

~~Jack~~

The next night, he woke up to a regrown hand. Hard to say exactly how that worked, what happened during the day while he slept and whatnot. No vampire would feel comfortable being filmed while sleeping, either.

His aches and pains were gone, too. He sat up, rotated his shoulders, twisted his wrist, flexed his fingers — both hands — and wiggled his toes. All in working order.

More than that. Realization came like a rush, and he looked down at the blankets. The war was over. Azamel was dead, but the war was over, and she helped. He told the Begotten to stay out of it, but Azamel helped him in the end.

Figures. The first time she did something truly compassionate for him, for vampires, and it was with her last breath. Christ, that fucking sucked.

Don't be sad. You won, Jack. Sorta. Now he had a massive amount of clean up to do. He had to deal with Michael, and their relationship was probably worse now. But hey, if he got through to Garry and Michael, and he thought he did, then maybe it wouldn't be so bad. Either way, worth it to get people to stop killing each other.

He looked down beside him at Antoinette. She smiled up at him, head still on her pillow, but she said nothing.

“I gotta get ready for that thing with Michael and Amanda. Then there's an Invictus meeting after, and I'll be going to that too.”

“I see.”

“I'll tell you if we learn anything, from Amanda. Should I involve Michael?”

“You have little choice in that matter anymore.”

“I guess. I'll, uh, try and be reasonable with what I tell him.”

“Indeed. Avoid telling him more than he needs to know. Unfortunately, that means exposing that Black Blood is suspect, and possibly Jacob.”

“Damn. I’ll try and be discrete.”

She reached up from under the blankets, pushing them down enough to free her arm, and she rubbed his back. After a few moments, she used her nails, and scratched his back, sending pleasant chills up and down his body.

“It is the first night I do not need thralls scouting the city for potential Masquerade violations in many months. The first night in some time, I do not have to split my sheriff’s time between hunting for more of Black Blood’s acts, and worrying about what chaos the Carthians and Invictus might cause. All thanks to you.”

He grinned down at her. He recognized that tone in her voice, and the devious smile. She was purposefully stroking his ego.

He slipped back under the covers, cuddled into her side, and buried his face in her closer breast. Soft, heavy, supple, the huge pillow was ridiculously comfortable, and ridiculously massive. He never wanted to leave.

Antoinette bent her arm, its bicep under his head and neck, and rubbed his hair as she helpfully pressed him into her breast. They weren’t going to have sex. He had shit to do. But it was nice to spend ten minutes just cuddling with his lover.

It almost felt anticlimactic. The war was over, kinda. A truce. He didn’t need to worry about shit anymore. Mostly. He didn’t need to worry about getting sniped, or getting set on fire. He didn’t need to go on patrols. He didn’t need to deal with that fucker Jeremy Long. Now, he could focus on the much bigger issue.

He needed to talk to his mom. A weird as fuck thought to have, when burying his face in his super tall girlfriend’s super massive boob. But, the way Azamel spent her last bits of energy, or life, helping him and his problems? Couldn't help but make him think of a mom. Azamel had never seemed like a mother to him, despite Fiona's insistence that she was, or a grandmother. At least until last night.

Mental note: make time for your mother, you idiot.

---

He took a slow, useless breath, and opened the door.

Michael waited in his office, seated at the large table, dressed in a nice suit, but looking beat up. He didn't show it, but Jack could see some cuts on his neck and hands that weren't fully healed. They were a million times worse last night, but there were still wounds that Jack's curse would have healed over night if he had them.

Michael realized it, too. He looked at Jack, looked at his exposed head, neck, and hands, and the fact he had both hands back. A solid poker face, but Jack could see the man was annoyed Jack had fully recovered already. Which would make the following conversation even more annoying, with Jack having to navigate the man's ego.

"Mister Terry," he said. Ok, titles, that was good, kinda. "I see your curse has healed you." Wow, he even approached the topic directly. Strange.

"It's powerful. Too powerful."

"Agreed. I also spoke to Maria last night, after our encounter."

"Oh?" Uh oh.

"She admitted to telling you about Roland."

Jack forced down the desire to wince, and kept his gaze on Michael. "Did she?"

“Don’t play dumb. I’m not trying to get you to out her. She told you, and you decided to take matters into your own hands. You somehow arranged a trail of evidence that led to both Mister Tones and I believing that you were going to interfere with our ... strange competition.”

“I—”

“You decided the only way to have Garry and I talk and sort out our differences, was to have us butt heads with you in the middle. A free-for-all, fists flying.” The man frowned. Jack didn’t say anything this time. Michael wanted his monologue, so he let him monologue. “And there was some wisdom in that. Garry and I have been dancing around this issue for decades, and we never speak of it. It’s private, personal, and it’s been slowly growing more and more painful over the years. It was ... a rather cold slap of reality, to know that it’s blinded us to larger problems. And”—he pointed a finger at Jack, hand still on the table—“you will tell me about this larger problem, in greater detail, correct?”

Jack nodded. “Yes sir.” Don’t smile don’t smile.

“Understand that the Carthians fight the Invictus and Lancea et Sanctum in most cities with a Kindred society, Mister Terry. My issues with Garry are hardly the reason for such an aged and widespread conflict. But Maria has helped me see that you touched a grain of truth with your accusations.” The man sighed as he leaned back in his chair. “I do not know how long this truce will last. But for now, Mister Tones and I will instruct our covenants to leave each other be.”

“Thank you.”

“And I am fining you a million dollars, for your transgression against me. You will donate the money to the Xnomina corporation.”

A million fucking dollars. Holy shit. Jack didn't have that in cash, but he had it in assets, stocks, all that shit. Not a big slap for someone like Antoinette, but for someone like Jack, the only reason he could even afford it was because of all the shit he inherited from Julias, what the Invictus didn't take.

"Yes sir." No point in arguing with him about it. Better this than making a big spectacle, and possibly another fight.

"You crossed a line doing what you did, Mister Terry. You disrespected me. But I know you did it because you wanted to save Kindred lives, and because the city faces a potentially larger threat. Those are the only reasons I do not have you killed." And the death threat, of course.

"It had to be done." Jack held a solid, cold face. He couldn't get too subservient now, or Michael might try and undermine him somehow.

Michael frowned harder. "I suppose it did." Nodding, he stood up and gestured to the door. "Now that that's out of the way, let's go awaken Miss Pol."

Jack mirrored the nod, and followed after Michael. Damien waited in the hall, and a small trade of smiles was enough to let him know things went well. The three of them got into the elevator, and no one said a word as they went down and down. This was awkward enough, and you didn't chitchat with your boss around, especially not a mob boss.

They came out on the bottom floor, one floor below where they kept the armaments. Down here, it wasn't like the Elysium Tower's basement, which was a maze of halls that connected to a myriad of strange rooms of many sizes. Listening rooms, changing rooms, wreck rooms, electronic rooms, a pool, and then higher, the experiment rooms Jack wasn't allowed to see. But in Xnomina, it was all business. Sure it was sleek and pristine upstairs, but the basement was all metal, like some sort of military storage facility; basically what it was, considering the weapons it stored.

Michael took them down one of the halls to one of the storage rooms. You couldn't access a storage room without permission, and to get permission you needed to go through Xnomina. Unless you were Michael. He plucked a keycard out of his pocket, waved it in front of the scanner, and the big metal door went beep boop, and unlocked with a loud click.

Inside was a bunch of empty metal shelves in an otherwise empty room, some LED strip lights above, and a dark tile floor, beneath which was probably more metal. Invictus didn't fuck around protecting their shit.

In the center of the room, sitting in a metal chair, was Amanda, a stake in her heart. A somewhat short black woman, with thin long black hair, and a soft, kind face, even when in torpor. She had a little more bite to her than her face suggested though, kinda like her sire Gloria. Mekhet did love to be sneaky.

Damien approached first. He squatted down in front of her, and looked her up and down. Dressed in a typical business suit, skirt and all, she looked perfectly normal.

“Should I wait for you to read her first?” Michael asked.

“No. I might need her awake to help.”

The Gangrel nodded, and yanked the stake out of her heart with zero gentleness.

It took a few moments. Mekhet weren't exactly fast healers, and Amanda was only as old as Jack. But eventually her eyes shot open, and she sat up straight with a jolt as the hole in her chest sealed. A poor seal, just enough skin and flesh to keep her functioning.

The three men waited. Waking up from a stake in the heart was not fun, like waking up from daily torpor except with an even a harsher rush of awareness, and a whole bunch of pain. It was probably her first time getting staked, too. Combined with waking up in a storage room with three dudes staring at her, she was considerably freaked.

“Wh-What’s happening!? What’s going on? I ... oh ... Mister McDonald?” She blinked at him, the stake in his hand, and then Damien and Jack. “Ja—Mister Terry? Mister Burksen?”

“Miss Pol,” Michael said. “How are you?”

“I ... I’m in pain.” She clutched her chest, and after looking down at it under her palm, blinked several times at the hole in her suit. “I was staked?”

Michael gestured to the stake in his hand. “Take a moment to remember what happened. It was the night of the fire at Xnomina HQ, when the Carthians attacked.”

“Fire? Fire ... I ... what?”

Jack put up a finger. “As much as a building of marble and metal can burn. But yeah, we lost a lot of furniture and paintings and fake plants.” Which were replaced, of course. The Invictus would never let the Xnomina HQ look bad for any longer than a couple days.

“I see. Then ... w-why am I here?” She looked around at the storage room, more confused than Jack figured she’d be. “Xnomina storage?”

“Yes,” Damien said. “You don’t remember?”

“I remember ... I remember...” She blinked at them for the hundredth time before closing her eyes and clutching her head. “I don’t remember. I remember the fire, but ... I don’t remember any details. I don't ... remember anything for the past few days. Or, few days since I was, um, staked."

Of course she didn't, cause if she did, she'd be able to answer questions.

Damien stood up, and set a hand on Amanda's shoulder. "I'm going to try and open your mind."

"I don't—"

He shook his head. "Auspex. You'll learn it eventually. Whatever Gloria is willing to share with you."

Ah, the joys of being Kindred. Secrets everywhere. No one told each other a damn thing, Mekhet especially. How did Auspex work? Only the Mekhet knew, and even they kept its more powerful abilities hidden from each other. Good chance that Gloria didn't know shit about the crazy things Auspex could do, while Daniel knew a lot. Would Gloria ever learn them? Maybe. Hard to use a crazy ability unless someone came along and taught you how, especially Auspex.

Amanda nodded, gulped, and waited, eyes wide. She was scared.

Damien smiled at her. A comforting smile, subtle but there, and a much bigger smile than Jack was used to seeing on the dude's face. He'd changed.

Whatever Damien did, or was doing, it didn't have any outer expression. Like a lot of Kindred Disciplines, it was something that affected someone else's mind in some way or another. A human watching wouldn't see anything. But everyone in the room could feel something change. Damien pulled up his vitae, like flexing a muscle and lifting a heavy weight, and pushed it out to touch Amanda's mind.

And then he stood there for five minutes with a strange look on his face, like he'd tasted something sour and wasn't sure if to like it or not. Jack watched, eyebrow raised, and glanced between all three vampires. Michael didn't show any expression. Amanda waited like someone was going to pinch her, but it never came. And Damien continued to stand there, sour expression slowly growing worse.

"I can't..." His frown turned into a wince as he concentrated, and pressed a couple fingers against his left temple like he had a headache. Vampires didn't get headaches. "I can't get through."

"That's fine," Jack said. "We can ask the sheriff. Prince says he should be able to help, considering how important this is."

"Important?" Amanda asked. "The sheriff? Um, I ... w-what's going on?"

Michael raised a hand slightly, palm forward. "Amanda Pol, it seems you've been tricked into doing something ... problematic. I will reveal more details to you in the future, but know that you are to not speak of this conversation to anyone until I say otherwise. This is important. Lives depend on you." Way to lay it on thick.

Poor Amanda. Her eyes widened to freakish levels. If she'd been human, she'd have been having a panic attack.

"I don't know if the sheriff will have any better luck." Damien stepped back and paced from shelf to shelf as he looked down. Good to see Jack wasn't the only person who did that. "I can reach into the memories, try and remember things from before a few days of the attack, but then I get blocked."

"You mean you succeeded at, um, doing the mind thing?"

Damien nodded to him. "Barely, but, yes."

That, was damn impressive for a Mekhet his age.

“I get blocked every time I use Dominate,” Jack said. “I have to punch my way through. Maybe it’s like that?”

“This is different. This is ... like ... I don’t know, it just blocks me. I don’t know. I don’t know if the sheriff will be able to do anything either. I am barely able to use this ability, advanced as it is, and I’m sure Daniel is a thousand times better at it than me. But trying to ... find the memories, all I find is something stopping me. Like trying to trudge through a deep swamp. Cold, dark, and full of death.”

Amanda almost stood up, but Jack met her eyes and shook his head. Just sit tight and don’t move or ask any questions, Amanda, and you’ll be fine.

“That’s ... so scary,” she said, brought up both hands to her face, and hid her face in her palms. Slowly, she lowered her hands, and blinked at one of them. “Um, did someone put a ring on my finger?”

The three men all turned to look at her hand. Yeap, she was wearing a single ring, a tiny black band.

“That’s not yours?” Jack asked.

“No. It’s pretty ugly. A black ring? And it looks old, worn and warped and—”

Damien grabbed her hand before she pulled it off. “Don’t touch it.”

“Uh, I kinda already am.”

“Don’t remove it. Let me see if I can gleam something from it.” Eyes locked on the ring, Damien held Amanda’s hand in one of his, and touched the ring with the other.

Same thing. He stood there for a good five minutes, face sour, but otherwise the room was silent. Vampires didn’t breathe or fidget much, so even with four people in the storage room, it was just as quiet as before the vampires came in.

Slowly, Damien pulled the ring off her finger. Amanda winced as he did, Jack did too, half expecting it to explode, or for Amanda to drop dead. Deader. But the ring came off without issue, and Damien held it in front of him as he glared at it.

“I see ... the same thing. A cold, dark swamp, filled with dead things.”

“Fuck,” Jack said. “Not useful?”

“I see a black skeleton, huge, and its ... doing something to the ring. There’s a ... cauldron, and it’s dropping the ring into it. And then ... a street. Dolareido maybe. People ... drifting ... and the ring’s in the crowd somewhere. And then it’s on ... a corpse’s finger. The corpse is on fire.”

Amanda almost stood up, again. “Corpse? Fire!?”

Damien lowered the ring, and rubbed both temples with finger and thumb. Jack knew that look. The man was drained.

“I assume metaphor,” Damien said. “A corpse can be a vampire. The fire could be metaphor for inciting something.”

“Or not,” Michael said.

“Or not. The corpse could be the lie that you were told about the kine death, Mister McDonald, and the fire could be the fires the Carthians were spreading. There’s no way to be certain.”

Damien had told Jack about Auspex before, about how problematic it was to try and learn anything with it. It could be wrong. It could even give you one of those self fulfilling nasty prophecy visions, where it tells you exactly what to do to avoid death, and you end up dying because of it.

“Either way,” Jack said. “I think we know where this ring came from.”

Michael raised a brow but said nothing. Of course he didn't want to admit ignorance in front of Amanda, but a quick glare from the man told Jack enough. He was going to make Jack tell him everything.

“Should we ask the sheriff to take a look at her?” Damien asked.

“Yeah, but if you think he'll run into the same barrier, it can wait until he's free.”

“Miss Pol,” Michael said, “I say again, speak of this to no one. If Miss Jennings or anyone else asks, tell them you were involved in private Invictus business about the war.”

She nodded again, but her eyes were locked on the ring. It would be freaky to wake up from torpor, have several days of your life missing from memory, and find a random ring on your finger.

“Now,” Michael continued, “some things happened while you were unconscious. Let me explain.”

Explain he did. He told her about what Amanda told him during the Xnomina attack, about what they did, him staking her, the following war, and the people who died. Poor Amanda. Every thing Michael said made her sink further into her chair, until she couldn't look him in the face anymore.

“Oh my god.”

“It wasn't your fault,” Jack said, and he spared a quick glance to Michael, complete with a hint of anger. Michael returned it. Yeah, their relationship was going to suck now.

“Take your time recovering, Miss Pol,” Michael said, “and don’t be surprised if Mister Terry, Mister Burksen, or indeed, the sheriff, come to you again to ask questions or dive deep into your mind. Obey their requests, and you will be compensated. Don’t, and it will not end well.” He leaned down toward her, and eyed her. Classic mob boss eye, the sort that told her it was an offer she couldn’t refuse.

She took it, hook line and sinker, nodding like her life depended on it. Michael was a jackass.

---

Michael sat down in the main office where they had their meetings, a big long table with lots of chairs, and a touch screen on the wall, similar to the top office where the triumvirate held their meetings. It wouldn’t be long before the other Invictus seniors showed up, and they’d have to do a debriefing of the damage, and the truce. But there was enough time for the big conversation.

“As far as I know,” Michael said, gesturing to two chairs across the table from him, “Mister Tones has gone to Avery to learn about this. I’m going to learn it from you two. I assume Burksen knows as much as you, Terry, since you seem to tell each other everything.”

If they told him Jessy knew, how would he react? Not good, definitely not good.

“He does,” Jack said. “The Begotten were the first to tell us about it. He’s close with Fiona.”

“I see. Azamel told you, then?”

“Yes, about two years ago.”

“Two years. Impressive that you kept it secret for this long.”

Jack nodded as politely as he could. “Yes sir.”

“And the dragons know.”

“Yes.”

“So then. Explain.”

Jack and Damien glanced at each other, and Damien nodded to him. Well, fine, he’ll do the talking. How did he get this ambassador job?

Jack told him quite a bit. He told Michael about Black Blood, though Michael knew of the spirit’s existence, but only barely. He told Michael about the strange tears showing up, and how it seemed to be the markings of a ritual symbol they were pretty convinced was not good. Like, might destroy the city, or even the world bad.

Michael took the threat to the city seriously, but he wasn’t convinced about the threat to the world. Fine, whatever, taking the first threat seriously was good enough.

“So Jacob is our enemy? I know he conspires with the spirit.”

“We don’t know,” Jack said. “Maybe? We’ve seen nothing to prove he is.”

“Bold of the Prince to continue letting her childe maintain her romantic involvement with him.”

Yeah, Prince’s childe, not his mom or anything like that.

“She doesn’t know.”

Michael raised a brow. “Mister Terry, are you telling me you’re letting your mother risk her neck? You?” Oh now she was his mom.

Jack didn't bother hiding his scowl. "Yes. This is important. We don't know if Jacob is working with Black Blood, but there's a chance, and in either circumstance it's better we don't tell her. We don't want Black Blood knowing how much we've uncovered."

"An intelligent and tactical decision. I assume this was the Prince's plan, and not yours?"

"... yes." Oh this guy, this fucking guy.

Michael must have seen the frustration in Jack's eyes, cause he chuckled as he kept his gaze.

"And Azamel is truly convinced these tears are a threat?"

"Was," Damien said. "She died, not long after your encounter with her."

Michael sighed as he leaned back in his chair again. "I cannot say that life won't be easier without her, but she was worthy of respect. You don't often run into women willing to use an iron fist."

"True enough sir," Jack said. "She was ... banking on accomplishing some things in this city. That's why she told us about the dark ritual being cast; we didn't know that's what it was at the time. She told us so we could put a stop to it, so Dolareido would be a good place for her goals. And for her family."

"More sentimental than she seemed on the outside, wasn't she?" And Michael threw him another eye, like Jack should know that about other people, too.

"Yes. I think we should trust what she told us. The Prince does, and the dragons have been working on this problem for a while."

"Does this have anything to do with why Avery attacked Maria?"

“Yes. The werewolves followed a trail of evidence placed by spirits that led to her. We’re convinced Black Blood tricked them.”

Michael glanced up as he thought. “And ... not long after that, Amanda came to me with an idea that would trigger the war Garry and I had been tiptoeing around for decades. An idea she has no memory of. And a mysterious ring has been found on her finger, that Damien’s Auspex revealed to be linked to something rather dark. Which means you think Black Blood has been creating distractions.”

Damn, he put things together pretty quick.

“Yes sir,” Jack said.

“You give this spirit a lot of credit.”

“We do,” Damien said. “And it’s earned it. Black Blood is a terrifying, brutally intelligent creature.”

Jack raised a finger slightly. “Problem is, it’s hard to tell anything with Black Blood. It isn’t malevolent, far as we can tell. It helped Sándor, when Jeremiah had us all bound in a strange ritual, the one that wounded Azamel.” The one you failed to stop. No, no don’t think like that. Stop accepting responsibility for everything. That last words of a dying woman, Jack. Stop beating yourself up. “Jacob and Black Blood saved me, Damien, and the others from Jeremiah and Sándor when he was still enslaved, when we were rescuing Jessy, Clara, and Eric. It’s a tricky situation. We have to be careful, and not let Jacob know what we’re up to.”

“Garry and Jacob are friends, of a sort,” Michael said. “You think Garry won’t speak to him of this?”

“Once Avery tells him the details? I hope not.”

Michael nodded as he sat back, and let his eyes drift off to nothing as he entered thinking mode. He came back after a minute, and hooked his fingers together as he set his hands on the table.

“Mister Terry. Your curse revealed some other, rather important secrets. Namely that you killed your grandsire Viktor Honors, Tony, and even Lucas, Damien’s sire. That deserves elucidation.”

Jack and Damien looked at each other. Tell him? Well, too late to not tell him.

So Jack told him. Told him about the fire, and then told him about how Jack was at the tower when Lucas attacked, and how Jack managed to turn the situation around. Surprisingly, Michael’s face didn’t get more angry at the explanation went on. If anything, he smiled.

“Impressive, Mister Terry. Thinking on your feet, and a pure display of will. And the curse did not help you dominate Mister Burksen’s mind?”

“No. Or, maybe it did, but at that time it was still ... getting its claws into my mind, I guess.”

Michael grinned as he leaned back, and folded his arms across his chest. “Very impressive. Julias chose well.” He gestured to Damien. “As did I, and Lucas, and the sheriff. Our childer have all been Right Hands at one point or another for a reason.”

“You’re not angry?” Jack asked.

“I am angry at myself and my agents for not having discovered this sooner. I am ... happy, to know that Mister Mire sired as well as he did. If I had known you’d already created so much chaos and change in Dolareido, Mister Terry, I would not have found your disrespect and disregard for the chain of command to be so insulting. All this time, I felt I was being usurped by an idiot child. You've earned recognition."

"Um ... thank you."

The man's grin turned a little more sinister than Jack liked.

"But make no mistake. This curse of yours is strong, but without it, you would have died last night."

"Agreed, sir."

"You're not going to apologize for your behavior last night, are you, Mister Terry?"

"Probably not."

"Ha. There's a little more Viktor Honors in you than you might like to admit, Mister Terry. Ventrue, indeed."

Chapter 155

~~Jack~~

Two weeks later.

“She sounds like she was an amazing woman,” his mom said.

“She was a total hard-ass and a bitch. But, yeah, she was pretty amazing in her own way. Fiona’s wrecked. I haven’t seen Athalia since, but I bet she’s taking it worse.” He took a sip of his red. “It had me ... feeling a little sad, and thinking about us, you know? We don’t talk as much as we should.”

“You’re Invictus. I’m Ordo, sort of. And you have big responsibilities. I’m just a fledgling, trying to learn the ropes.”

“I know I know. But still, we should talk more.”

She nodded, smiling as she sipped from her glass. The two of them were in his mansion, but not in one of the rooms. So many rooms, rooms he didn’t need. They sat on the stairs in the lobby, in front of the big double doors, with a cool bottle of blood and a couple wine glasses. Both in suits, too. They looked ridiculous, and they’d laughed about it the first time. And the second time. By the tenth time they saw each other in suits, they’d gotten used to seeing each other in expensive clothes. How quickly one grows accustomed to wealth, Antoinette would say.

Well, he couldn’t grow accustomed to a bunch of fancy rooms. He liked the stairs. Did in his old home, and he did here.

“My mom wasn’t like her at all,” she said. “A lot softer. I guess I got a lot from her.”

“And granddad?”

“Quiet guy. Reserved. Bit like you. But this was the 50s, right? The only time a man was allowed to be emotional was when he was drunk.”

“Heh, don’t feel all that reserved these days.”

“Me neither. But your girlfriend changed life for the both of us.”

He glared at his mom hard, until she raised a brow and took a sip.

“What has Antoinette been telling you?”

“What? About what?”

“Sex.”

She coughed up a bit of the blood, but managed to keep the glass close and sputtered into it instead of all over his very, very nice stairs.

“You want to have the sex talk?”

“Ugh, no, not really. Just hearing you say ‘sex’ makes me clench. I think we should just both accept we’ll never really be comfortable with each other’s sex lives.”

“You think?”

He nodded. “I think. I’m never gonna be comfortable knowing my mom has a sex drive. And Dad’s dead and gone, so I get it, but ... blech.”

Laughing, she took another sip, conveniently avoiding eye contact.

“Talking about our sex lives is probably a little weird for a mom and son to do. But at the same time, sex seems to be the most common topic in Dolareido. At least in this part of South Side. And with vampires.”

This part of South Side was half of the whole damn city. Jack grew up in the other half, closer to the Carthian half.

“True, true. It’s hard to talk about anything really without it coming back to sex in Dolareido. Or with vampires.”

His mom grinned, took another sip, and raised the glass to him. “So we can avoid talking about it, at least when it comes to each other. But a little bird told me you have a very satisfying sex life, and are quite the lover.”

“Mom! The fuck!?”

“Hey! No cursing in front of your mother.”

He squirmed, groaned, took another sip, and damn well did not look her in the eye. “It’s pretty great, yes, okay? Happy? You’ve scarred your son.”

“Very.”

“Well, a little bird told me someone’s been in the spotlight of a few orgies. Center of attention and everything.”

“Jack!”

“Hey, I can play dirty, too.”

She scrunched up her nose at him, total chipmunk mode. Kinda reminded him of Natasha.

“At least I’m not building a harem.”

“It’s not a harem! It’s one girl!”

“So far.”

His turn to scrunch up his nose. “You’re a Daeva. You’ll build something like one eventually.”

“Like your girlfriend?”

“Well, I mean, she has two ghouls, and—”

“Girl ghouls. That must have been fun.”

His mom wanted to keep teasing him about his sex life. She’d changed. Either her new life was rubbing off on her, or her Daeva blood was emerging. It all mixed into a weird concoction on the subconscious, how the bloodline emerged in personalities. Jack always had a bit of a superiority complex, and he had no idea if it’d grown because it was just who he was, or because he was Ventrue.

“It was fun! Okay? Lots of fun. And you’ll get a couple ghouls you’ll get attached to that you’ll bring along to your orgies.” There, that earned another nose scrunch from her. Point for him. “I’m sure Antoinette’s told you about that.”

“Yeah. And Othello is super attached to his ghoul Madison. Only feeds off her.”

Jack leaned in toward her. “How many times have you fed off her?”

“Madison? Um ... uh ... a few times.”

“Uh huh.”

“Ok, maybe ten times.”

“In the middle of sex?”

“ ... maybe.”

He laughed. Ok, maybe this wasn't so bad. If Mary could talk to his mom about this, maybe he could too? They were all adults. Well, he was barely an adult, but he was getting there.

“Ok well, I have one girl. You have zero. Is your first thrall going to be a boy or a girl?”

“What? I don't know that!”

“Mom, I'd be lying if I said most girls in Dolareido weren't, uh, swinging both ways. Which includes you, apparently.”

“That is ... not something I've thought about. Getting a thrall, I mean. Not even a year embraced.”

“That hasn't stopped some vamps. Vinculum works no matter how old you are. It's a big responsibility to have a thrall, but some Kindred, like Jessy, got themselves some sex slaves the moment they could.”

“Sex slave? That sounds horrible.”

He rolled his eyes. “Yeah I used to think the same thing. It's, um, a pretty popular fantasy for a lot of people. A lot lot ... lot of people.”

His mom squirmed and looked back down at her drink. “That's just a fantasy! We shouldn't force things on people.”

“More than a few vampires have taken a thrall or ghoul against their will. Much as it sucks, they're prey, and we're the predators. We get to do what we want to them.” He didn't like that. Julius didn't like that. And his mom didn't like that. “But, there are ways to offer it to them. If they say no, you can get a Ventrue to wipe their memory of the conversation. No harm no foul.”

“Antoinette told me about that.”

“And normally, you tell them they can become a vampire eventually if they accept the deal. Veronica’s on the same deal.”

“Aaaand the sex slave deal?”

“She isn’t a sex slave. She’s my thrall.”

“Uh huh.”

“It’s true! Veronica is not—”

“Master? You called?”

Veronica walked into the grand entrance lobby of the mansion, dressed in her maid uniform. Except, not the more modern, sophisticated maid uniform, which was a borderline suit. Nope, she came out in a maid uniform you’d wear if you were looking to play the role in a porn film.

Samantha blinked at her, blinked at Jack, and then back at Veronica. Veronica blinked at Samantha, at Jack, noticed Jack vehemently nodding for her to go back the way she came, and she one-eighty’d and walked away.

If there was one way he was going to die, it was from awkwardness about sex stuff around his mom.

“That, was not my idea,” he said. “Antoinette got her those clothes, and sometimes she, uh, randomly puts them on.”

“Uh huh. It won’t be long before my son has a bunch of servants to take care of his mansion and his sexual needs.”

“I have a girlfriend!”

“Who’s probably encouraging this degenerate behavior.”

“Degenerate? I—” He stopped. She was smiling. She was teasing him. So he did the only thing he could do. He laughed. He’d changed a lot, but so had she, and in more ways than her sexual tastes.

It was still kinda weird, thinking about his mom having orgies with the witches. Thinking of his mom doing sexual things to Madison, while drinking her, probably touching her, while Jacob did things to her? Yeap, skeeved him right out.

But it was still nice to talk to his mom about stuff, about life.

“I think getting a thrall might be a bit much right now,” she said. “I’m still trying to wrap my mind how to hunt, and how to make sure I avoid the sun. And Antoinette has me reading history books about cults and stuff. Takes up a lot of my time.”

“Interesting?”

“Kinda yeah. Apparently reading about dark cults scratches the same itch watching crime documentaries does.”

“Sounds like it would.”

“Yeah. The stuff I read about is pretty scary, and knowing it actually happened makes it so much more interesting to read about.” She took another sip as she looked up, hunting for a new thought. “The Prince is happy you put a stop to the war.”

“Azamel put a stop to it.”

“Aw don’t say that. Antoinette says it was mostly you.”

“I ... guess it was. I couldn’t seal the deal without Azamel.”

“I should talk with Athalia.”

“What? Why?”

“She’s lost so much, you know? She lost her daughter, and now she’s lost her mother. Mother figure.”

“Antoinette says her relationship with Daniel’s progressed quite a bit.” The Prince basically forced Daniel to go to Athalia’s side after Azamel died. Apparently it worked out pretty well. “I—”

A message buzzed his phone. Something from Antoinette.

~I would like to go out tomorrow night. To Bloodlust perhaps, with your friends, and mine.~

~Like last time?~

~Ben oui.~

~Uh, with mom?~ Please no please no. Talking about sex with his mom was hard enough. If everyone got topless again, and his mom was there, the awkwardness really would get lethal.

~Your mother has a prior arrangement.~

~Oh thank god. Sure, I’ll be there.~

~Wonderful.~

---

~~Antoinette~~

“So Michael and I will stop trying to kill each other. For now.” Garry shrugged, and leaned back in his chair.

Antoinette, seated at the head of her table in the grand Primogen meeting room, offered Garry and Michael thankful nods.

“I am glad you have set your differences aside.”

“I wouldn’t say that,” the Carthian said. “But tempers have cooled a bit. We can keep the peace, for now.”

“Agreed,” Michael said. “Xnomina and Terra Den will handle the expenses for damages.”

Men. Instead of solving their differences with words, they solved them with fists, punching each other as if each collision contained meaning, as if each jab was a point or counterpoint in a debate. It was a method of arguing that humans — and evidently vampires — had been using for thousands of years before the invention of language, men in particular. And perhaps there was something to it, something to the raw exchange of brute force that spoke to a part of the mind she simply did not have, or had long repressed.

If that was what it took to get these two men to speak with each other again, with perhaps a rather harsh scolding from a young Ventrue, then she doubted she could have had the success Jack’s plan had managed. She could have done something no doubt, tricked them in much the same way she had Viktor Honors and her old lover Tony. But to come to this result? Only someone young, and likely male, could have thought this plan would have worked, and be correct.

“And the dead Kindred?” Jacob asked. Once again, her old friend was dressed in his old, dark robes. To him, the Primogen meeting should have resembled the meetings of the ancient days, of vampires hiding in caves and casting dark magics around a cauldron, boiling, with human bones within.

Jacob and Antoinette both knew he looked handsome, dashing, and oddly appealing in a suit, when he chose to wear one. It was part of what made it so infuriating, as if Jacob enjoyed taunting her with the lack of a suit, more than he enjoyed wearing the robe. Though she knew he wore suits occasionally, when taking Samantha out to visit the more extravagant and expensive locations in Dolareido; it had many.

Of course, after such events, he took her back to his cave, where he and his witches indulged in an utter buffet of sexual delights. Suits had no place in an environment where sex was had upon fur pelts, and against sloped walls of stone.

“Three vamps dead,” Garry said, “each. Yeah, it sucks. But shit came out even. We’re not gonna throw fists over it.”

“Agreed,” Michael said once again. “Xnomina and Terra Den will negotiate some property contracts as well. Hopefully we can avoid issues with goods distribution, while maintaining some territory balance. The Mirrden District will be shared.”

Maria lifted a single finger from the table. “The Masquerade remains intact. All in all, for these two Gangrels to stop squabbling, with such minimal damage to Kindred, the city, and the Masquerade, is quite a feat.”

Antoinette offered the corpse woman a small nod. Even in Dolareido, where Antoinette did her best to foster a spirit of cooperation in its Kindred, elders included, they could still be quite callous with the lives of those within. Antoinette agreed with Maria, that six deaths was ultimately a small loss. Jack would not agree.

“Finally,” Jacob said. “I was worried about stepping outside my house, and getting shot up in a drive by.”

After that, the meeting went on as per usual. Maria spoke of the Lancea et Sanctum and her progress in reviving it. A dozen Kindred now came to the cathedral, and listened to her and Damien speak of Longinus and the supposed decree passed down to all vampires. Utter stupidity, but Antoinette let her speak. After, Garry and Michael spoke of the finer details of territory proposals, and how the Carthians and Invictus could handle the borders better, such as at the Border Bar.

Garry and Michael knew of Jacob's potential allegiance to Black Blood, but they did not so much as look the man's way; no more than usual. All the Primogen were talented actors, a necessary skill that came to any vampire that wished to live for centuries. Antoinette however found herself looking at her old friend, and doing her best to read his expression. He had an advantage, with a bandage wrapped around his head to hide his empty eye sockets, but regardless, she tried. Nothing. The only expression she found was his usual pleasant, teasing grins, a few aimed at her, no doubt meant to tease her over how he had somehow started dating her childe, and her lover's mother.

Quite the intricate web. Quite the soap opera.

Everything was back to normal then. The Primogen conspired against each other, as they always did. Garry and Michael would no doubt pounce any opportunity they found to destroy the other, or at least castrate their position in Dolareido, but for the moment they put their claws away. Maria continued to slowly revive the infernal church. Jacob teased the three covenants over their silly goals, but otherwise did nothing to reveal his own goals. Antoinette did the same. The Circle of the Crone and the Ordo Dracul did not have goals relevant to Dolareido's politics.

Forever Antoinette played arbiter, acknowledging whose arguments made sense, and who would receive her permission to carry on. The city had changed much, since the death of Viktor and Tony, and again now that Lucas was dead and Maria was given permission to revive the Lancea et Sanctum. While each meeting tested her patience, she had to admit, it was a pleasant meeting, compared to the past. Progress, in a strange, hampered way, but progress nonetheless.

Through it all, not a single hint of Black Blood was mentioned. No talk of tears. No talk of dark rituals being cast in her city. Above all, no notion that anything was out of place, except for what could be observed naturally, that the werewolves continued to hunt for strange things.

She had already spoken with Garry Tones and Michael McDonald in private. They both agreed to keep an eye open, but they also both agreed that preventing dark rituals being cast across realms was not within their skill set. To their credit, they would try, and both realized how careful they had to be. All in all, a great step forward.

She had a moment to relax, for the first time in a long time.

---

Tonight, she was going to have her little Ventrue, and every man and woman nearby, Kindred or otherwise, squirming.

“You seem oddly excited,” Elaine said. She joined the Prince in the changing room, and while the room was filled with dresses for Antoinette, Elaine now had many. There was no shortage of ways for a rich woman to acquire new dresses in Dolareido, and she brought them to Antoinette’s tower, by the dozens.

“I am. Despite the troubles that remain, things have been quite peaceful in my city for two weeks. Not only that, all the Primogen are cooperating. As well as can be expected, at least.”

“Your little Ventrue accomplished much.”

“With the help of Azamel.”

Elaine nodded as she slipped out of her suit, and admired her naked body in front of one of the many mirrors. Hangers decorated metal bars, each with a dress, all lined against the walls of black marble with white veins. The lighting above offered powerful contrast, allowing for even the most untalented eye to notice what dresses created what lines and curves.

“The old monster was nothing more than an annoyance the last time she visited your city, yes?”

“Oui, very much so. But she spent her last moments helping my love, and my city.” Antoinette came up behind Elaine, admired the tall, thin and curvy blonde in the mirror, before she looked to the dresses at the side. What dress should her friend wear tonight?

“I suppose even an old fossil can change.”

“You think she changed?” Antoinette plucked a black dress from the rack, and stepped behind Elaine. Her friend took it, stepped into it, and pulled it up over her body, eyes in the mirror watching how the soft, thin, black fabric hugged her curves.

“I do, for her family. Athalia became the daughter she never had, if I had to guess.”

“And Mark?”

“The son, someone she relied on.”

“And Fiona?”

“Her granddaughter.”

“And Sándor?”

Elaine grinned in the mirror as she tied the back straps of the stress. “The son-in-law she found herself forced to pass her legacy to.”

The roles were not perfect analogies, and yet the comparison was accurate for how Azamel likely treated the other Begotten. Poor Sándor.

“Fiona will be joining us tonight. Perhaps she will speak of Azamel.” Antoinette looked over Elaine’s head, admiring her friend’s reflection, but they both shook their head after a few moments. Elaine stepped out of the dress, and Antoinette hunted for a new one.

“Quite a treat, little Fiona. Her enthusiasm, her joviality, her body.”

“Damien is a lucky man.” Antoinette found another dress, and they repeated the process. “I hope he has been a solid foundation for Fiona to stand on, as she weathers the storm of Azamel’s death.”

“And Daniel to Athalia.”

Ah, a quick sneer in the mirror from her old friend. Antoinette laughed, and set both hands upon Elaine’s shoulders as Elaine tied the straps of the black dress behind her neck.

“Keep trying, old friend. Perhaps you will sneak your way into their bed?”

“I somehow doubt Athalia will be willing.”

“Then you must seduce Athalia.”

“Ha, easier said than done. She does not like me. And I am no Daeva.”

“Are you not?” Antoinette chuckled as she pressed her chest against Elaine’s back, set her chin on the woman’s shoulder, and hugged her around her stomach. Elaine was tall, but Antoinette was taller, and she smiled at her friend in the mirror as she slid her hands up Elaine’s exposed stomach. The dress was barely more than a flimsy strip of fabric across her breasts, that left her back and stomach exposed, with straps that cut down across her sides to connect to a minuscule skirt.

“I am beautiful, and direct. But to seduce someone like Athalia, now that she has Daniel, I believe I would need subtlety. Have you ever known me to be subtle?”

“Not in the least. But with time, I am sure Athalia will grow more comfortable with her relationship, and more comfortable with Dolareido’s ways. I am confident you could seduce her, with enough time, and alcohol.”

She laughed. “Ah yes, she is not Kindred is she? Alcohol will go a long way.”

“But give her time. She mourns for Azamel. In a couple months, perhaps renew your attempts to seduce Daniel, and include Athalia in your efforts.”

“She is a terribly attractive creature, is she not? A bit tall, quite slim, the dark skin, the long black hair, the soft yet thin face?”

“And eyes of ice.”

“Indeed. I do wonder what it would be like, to sink my teeth into her, perhaps while she sits on your sheriff.”

“If you wish to make that fantasy a reality,” Antoinette said, “you must learn to seduce her mind, not just her body.”

“Then I am afraid I am lost.”

Antoinette laughed, and undid the knot Elaine had tied. She slid the dress down her friend’s body, and cast a glance to the door as quiet footsteps announced someone approaching.

“Jack, my love. How are you feeling?”

“Fine.” Which was, of course, not fine. “I—” His eyes opened wide as his gaze found the two women.

Antoinette was still dressed in her suit, but Elaine was now quite naked as she stepped out of the dress, wearing literally nothing. Naturally, without any attempt to communicate their devious plan, Elaine turned slightly to face her body toward Jack, and Antoinette turned with her. She set her hands against Elaine's stomach once again, and slid them up to cup her friend's delightfully huge breasts.

"We were trying on dresses, my love."

"Uh huh." He stood there, a half grin on his face, unbelieving. Though his grin faded away as his eyes locked onto Elaine's bare bust, and how Antoinette's fingers slowly caressed her old friend's pale vampire skin. And as Jack stared, Antoinette made sure to gently nudge the breasts up, hard enough they rippled lightly with their mass, before gravity molded them to her palms yet again.

It was the ultimate method to hypnotize her little Ventrue, and it never failed. The sight of a large breast rippling was his bane. But even as the boy stared on, Antoinette could see only a portion of the usual enthusiasm she would normally find. Still, a portion was better than none.

"Truly." Nodding, Antoinette let go of her friend, re-racked the dress, and plucked another. "It is often better to trust the opinion of another's eye over your own, where fashion for the self is concerned. Years of seeing yourself in the mirror distorts reality."

"Indeed," Elaine said, and she held up her arms while Antoinette slid the new dress down over her head, careful with her wavy blonde hair, of course.

Jack walked up to them, and sat upon a nearby couch. He attempted to avert his gaze, but after a few moments, he could not help but watch the display through the mirror. Considering Elaine now turned every motion into a sensuous, subtle dance as she slipped on the dress, Antoinette could not blame him.

They settled on a dress that consisted of a short skirt that reached up the back, tied in the front around the breasts, and also connected at the armpit for sleeves, while leaving both the shoulders and stomach exposed. The color? Nude. A dark white with a hint of flesh, almost the color of skin, meant to be worn with silver or white jewelry. It went well with her blonde hair.

“Uh, no underwear?” Jack asked.

Elaine shrugged. “The skirt covers everything. What use are panties or thongs, if others cannot see them?”

“I suppose hygiene isn’t a good answer. We’re vampires.”

The older Ventrue smiled and nodded, before she opened one of the large boxes sitting upon a vanity desk, exposing its many layers that raised sideways to show off its contents. Jewelry, necklaces and bracelets and rings, for arms and wrists, fingers and toes, and waists and throats. Tens of thousands of dollars worth of jewelry.

Antoinette had necklaces worth everything in that box combined, glamorous, and garish. She rarely wore them.

“What will you be wearing tonight?” Antoinette asked as she slipped out of her suit jacket.

“A suit.” He tried to say it gently, she knew, but a touch of frustration showed through. Not with her, but with his memories, with Azamel’s death, and the violence he suffered. With everything.

Poor boy. Azamel put a finger specifically on an aspect of his personality he suffered with, and now he battled against it, quite consciously. A battle she doubted he could win.

So she would distract him. And distract herself. Weeks, months of pouring through tomes, hundreds of experiments that summoned a myriad of spirits, and dozens of rituals tested. Combined with countless hours managing each and every report from her thrall spies, watching and monitoring Carthian and Invictus, and Lancea et Sanctum activities, she had had little time to simply stop, and go out. Perhaps she could host another ball for all paranormals in Dolareido?

No, not yet. Some Kindred would still be angry over the deaths of fellow Kindred. But soon. A month or three.

“Of course, a suit.” She chuckled as she slipped off the blouse, and the bra. Jack watched through the mirror, eyes locked onto her heavy bust, and she smiled at him in the reflection. “But perhaps a different color than usual? And without the tie, I imagine. Open chest.”

“I’m not exactly tall or big enough to really do that. The werewolves, sure, but me?”

“Well, that is half the joy of a suit, my love. It accentuates the shoulders.”

Elaine laughed, slipped on a thin silver necklace, and walked over to Jack. She sat beside him on the couch, reached over, and slipped a hand in through his shirt, undoing the first two buttons so she could caress his sternum.

“It is true women prefer a tall man. The fabled six feet.”

“Hey.” The poor boy scrunched up his nose as he squinted at his great grandsire.

“You are a small man, but with a wonderful physique. Show it off, childe of mine. Yes, women prefer tall, but they will also be delightfully surprised that the little man has taken care of himself physically, to the point of acquiring the body of a professional athlete.” She grinned, and leaned in, snuggling to his side as she teased her fingers up and down his chest. “And women find a man who has the determination and will to master his own body quite attractive.”

Jack squirmed a little, but did not stop Elaine. “I built the body, sure, but I only maintained it for like, a week, before I was embraced. I was hungry all the damn time before. I don’t do a thing to maintain it now.”

“The joys of being Kindred. Enjoy it, childe of mine.”

“Elaine,” Antoinette said, “come here and choose a dress for me, if you please.”

“Very well.” Elaine ran a finger along Jack’s neck, before she strutted her way over, each step ensuring Jack’s eyes drifted to her round derrière. Depressed as the boy may be, he could not help but watch. Understandable, considering it was Elaine and Antoinette toying with him.

“What color?” Antoinette asked, and she gestured to the hanging dresses beside her.

“Black.”

“Always with the black.”

“Black contrasts your white hair.”

“That does not mean I wish to wear only black for the rest of eternity.”

“Then you should not have altered your hair to be permanently white.”

“Perhaps I should dye it to be blonde?”

“Imitation is the greatest form of flattery.” Rolling her eyes, Elaine plucked a dress from the rack, and as Antoinette slipped out of her skirt and underwear, Elaine slipped the dress on over her head.

A loose thing, backless, with tiny shoulder straps. Barely more than a tiny, thin towel, meant to drape over the breasts, and hang before tightening to the waist and wrapping the hips and ass. It meant she would not be able to lean forward without her breasts falling free of the dress. Not that she usually minded, but it was an annoying dance, to constantly be aware of one's posture.

Antoinette looked to Jack in the mirror. His eyes had fallen, and his mind drifted elsewhere, likely to dark thoughts.

“My love, would you like for Ashley and Julee to come, and pleasure you while Elaine and I change? This could take a few moments yet.”

“No thanks.”

Elaine chuckled as she looked to Jack in the mirror. “You could always masturbate while watching us change. There is a certain charm in that.”

“No thanks.”

The boy's great grandsire turned and faced him. “I could take care of you, while she changes?”

“Girls, I'm alright, okay? Just thinking.”

Girls? Antoinette chuckled, slipped the dress off, and Elaine found her a new one. Similar to the last, this one surrounded and hugged her bust tight. Decidedly less slutty, and a surprise, coming from her old friend.

“Forgive us, my love. But it saddens us to see you morose.” Antoinette slipped out of the dress. “I feel like exposing skin tonight, but I do not want to have to dance with each step.”

“I see I see.” Elaine put the dress away, and found another.

She stepped into the dress, and pulled the black fabric up over her hips where it fit snug. The long, wide straps connected at the back of the skirt, crossed at the chest, and hooked behind the neck, the X over the chest hugging each breast snug. It was also just barely, slightly see-through.

“That looks pretty good,” Jack said. Both women looked at each other, and chuckled. “Hey, I know I don’t have any fashion sense, but I like—”

“Breasts,” Elaine said, and to prove her point, she stepped beside Antoinette, facing Jack while Antoinette still faced the mirror, and she cupped one of Antoinette’s breasts. The dress’s chest strap hugged it tight, while also having enough give that her breast was free to fill and conform to Elaine’s hand. “I picked the dress for this reason, of course. If you are going out with your busty lover, why not show off that bust?”

“You two are worse than Jessy.” Jack rolled his eyes, but he sneaked a couple peeks as Elaine continued to gently bounce Antoinette’s breast. Depressed as he was, he was a young man, and forever would be. A couple women willing to show off their bodies for him was one reliable way to distract him from his own misery. Temporarily, at least.

Antoinette gently slapped Elaine’s hand away, and turned to her own vanity desk. A black dress it was, so she had a wide assortment of jewelry that would match. Such was the wonders of a black dress.

Jack watched as the two women tried different forms of jewelry. Bracelets, necklaces, rings, and earrings. Predictably, he grew bored, no longer distracted by them as they lost themselves in the joy of fashion experimentation. Antoinette came up from her desk fifteen minutes later, finally having settled on some subtle earrings and a more pronounced necklace. Pearls. A timeless classic, arranged in a helix-like pattern beneath her collar. But alas, Jack's eyes had drifted down yet again, and his expression had soured.

She would have to work hard to distract him tonight.

---

It took the two women half an hour of trying different suits and jewelry on the boy to find a nice balance while also experimenting with the new color, and Jack stood there, obviously annoyed with being the center of their fun. But a small part of him enjoyed it, she knew, and every time he rolled his eyes as they stripped him out of a suit, unsatisfied, she laughed.

They settled on a dark blue suit for the young man. Very dark, with a hint of green. Double breasted, no tie, with a black shirt. And to finish the ensemble, a silver necklace, a couple silver rings, and a rather beautiful silver watch. Handsome, professional, but also playful and a touch mischievous.

They entered Bloodlust, and immediately all eyes found the three of them. Of course. They were gorgeous. Many of the denizens were used to seeing Antoinette and Elaine these days, but it had been a little while since they had last visited. The men and women of the club watched, eyes wandering over the two women, and the boy that stood between them. Newcomers were, unsurprisingly, surprised that a young man like Jack had two tall, curvy, gorgeous women on his arms, but now that the war was over, they would be seeing such a trio more in the future.

Bloodlust was an unusual place. A club, but not truly a club. And while the bottom floor had tables and booths, it also had a bar, and dance floor, where the prey danced to the heartbeat music. And upon the second floor were the large booths, capable of fitting ten people or more, where the music was a tad quieter, and the patrons were willing to spend thousands of dollars for service and space.

Arturo, Natasha, and Matthew already sat at the table. Beside Matthew sat Jessy, and beside her sat Eric. Elaine took advantage of the situation, slid into the booth first, and set herself beside Eric, quite close, shoulder touching his.

“Hey, bitch, he’s mine.” Jessy leaned forward over the booth table and gave the ancient Ventrue an angry glare. She knew very well Elaine was ten fold her age, and yet she felt comfortable enough to be aggressive. How playful.

Elaine chuckled and dismissed Jessy with a small swipe of the hand. “Hello to you too, Gangrel.”

“Jessy.”

“Yes, of course, Jessy.”

Jack rolled his eyes, and slid into the booth, leaving Antoinette to sit beside him close to the outer edge of the booth. Normally Antoinette sat in the center of the group, but to sit on the outside edge was a novelty she had not tasted in some time.

“Natasha,” Antoinette said, nodding to the little Mekhet. “Arturo, Matthew, Eric, Jessy. You all look lovely tonight.”

Little Vola smiled and waved. While her boyfriends wore loose button shirts with most buttons undone, and black jeans, she wore something far more scandalous. A tiny black skirt, terribly tiny, that left her hips and the hips of her thong exposed. And for her chest, a dangling piece of black fabric that tied to the neck with a small silver chain, and hung over the chest loose, unattached to anything. A glorified necklace, large enough to only barely cover her small breasts. If she leaned forward, everyone would see her delicious little torso.

Eric wore a purple suit. Bold. If he also wore gold jewelry, it would have been both hilarious and quite handsome, but no jewelry. Instead, a white shirt underneath the purple jacket, two buttons undone, simple and direct. Fitting for Eric Tanverson. The purple was likely Jessy's idea.

His mate wore something quite simple and direct. A black tube top, and a short black skirt, similar to Natasha's, though unlike her little friend, she wore no underwear. Natasha wore no jewelry on her neck, as her top was already essentially a necklace, while Jessy wore one piece of jewelry: a choker, thin, black, with a tiny silver heart dangling from its front center. The message was clear: Jessy was a hyper sexual creature. She woke up and went to sleep every night — day — with sex on her mind. If Eric had not become an Uratha, he would no doubt struggle to match her sex drive.

“Prince,” Matthew and Arturo said, at the same time.

Eric nodded deeply. “Prince.”

Jessy, perhaps a little reluctantly, eventually nodded toward Antoinette, a little deeper than she no doubt wanted. “Prince.”

Antoinette returned their nods, with less depth, and smiled at the group.

“Where is Young and Burksen?”

“Young?” Matthew asked.

“Fiona Young.”

“On the way,” Jessy said. “Only been a couple weeks since Azamel died, right? I've talked to her a few times since, and she's been taking it pretty hard. Can't even say her name without the girl tearing up.”

“Damien says the same thing,” Jack said. “But she'll come. Probably.”

“And we’ve prepared.” Arturo gestured to the several bottles of whiskey on the table. Scotch, how drôle.

“She may be a paranomal,” Elaine said, “but she is still partly human. Take care she does not kill herself with the bottle.” Bloodlust did not provide bottle service in the same manner as other clubs. Acquiring a bottle and glasses was possible however, especially for an employee. Privacy was important in a Kindred-run night club that was half lounge, after all.

Eric reached out and grabbed one of the bottles. “It’s a sipping whiskey. You really shouldn’t shoot this. Enjoy the taste.”

Jack shook his head. “Something tells me she won’t sip it.”

Arturo shrugged. “Far as I know, her Horror thing won’t let her body get liver disease or alcohol poisoning. Probably not.”

“Hard thing to know,” Matthew said.

“Damien,” Jack said, “is confident Fiona can recover from most injuries pretty quick. Not Uratha or Kindred quick, but quick enough.”

“Probably a good thing,” Jessy said. “She told me Damien drains her multiple times a week. And—oh hey, speak of the devil.” The Gangrel waved as Damien and Fiona stepped into view.

Damien wore what everyone expected, a rather dark and professional, but subtle and quiet suit. No tie. Fiona had likely convinced the silly man to leave it behind, and undo the first two of his shirt buttons as well. If the man ever embraced his almost feminine beauty, he would be a force of pure seduction. Alas, like Daniel, it would never be.

Fiona on the other hand seemed quite eager to express her beauty. Not merely eager, excited. To her, it was a fun game, not to be won but to be shared. She was a delightful mixture of innocence and carnal salaciousness, as was her dress. Of course the tiny, busty creature walked up to the table, and slowly turned, fully expecting everyone at the table to admire. They did.

Green, yet again. Antoinette did not blame her, as the color contrasted her red hair, freckles, and pale skin beautifully. A backless dress with tiny straps of silver chains that hooked to the dress front that hugged her bust before holding her waist snug. The skirt was not as short as Jessy or Natasha's, but it was split at the right side, and the split reached up past her hip, exposing much of the green thong she wore. And of course, cute green heels, two inches.

The three werewolves, apparently communicating telepathically, all clapped, earning giggles and smiles from the tiny ginger, before she slipped into the booth entrance opposite of Antoinette, and slid in close to Arturo. Damien followed her in, bringing the total amount of people at the booth to ten.

Damien Burksen. Fiona Young. Arturo Ibarra. Natasha Vola. Matthew Wilson. Jessy Herrington. Eric Tanverson. Elaine. Jack Terry. And Antoinette.

Quite the group. Sometimes she wondered if she should invite Jacob and Samantha, but that was not what Jack needed right now. Othello and Aaron? Othello was a gorgeous man, and Aaron was oddly beguiling, but Antoinette knew little of the two men. Beatrice and Jennifer then? Perhaps. They would certainly bring spice.

But considering the people in the booth as was, there was plenty of spice already.

“Scotch?” Fiona rolled her eyes, poured herself a glass, and shot it. “Ye racist bawbags.”

Natasha's werewolves blinked at each other, and Fiona burst into giggles as she poured another glass. But instead of drinking it, she slid it to Eric, who caught it with the confidence of a man who had caught many drinks in such a manner. She did the same for Matthew and Arturo, and they made a larger effort to ensure they did not get their pants soaked.

"Fiona hasn't had anything to drink in a couple weeks," Damien said. "She's making up for lost time."

"I!" Fiona waved her left hand in the air, finger up, as she shot another glass. Oh dear. "Am celebrating. Azamel is gone, and she told me I shouldnae be sad! I won't be sad anymore." Nodding, she poured a third glass. "To Azamel!" Before she could down the alcohol, Damien stopped her, which earned a sigh and nod from her. She sipped.

It had been some time since Antoinette had last tasted alcohol. Many Daeva Blushed Life and ate human food, only to vomit it later, and Antoinette did on occasion, but not for many years. She could barely remember the burn of alcohol on her throat, but she knew better than to shoot whiskey with such gusto. Fiona was apparently quite impervious.

The men grinned at each other, raised their glasses, gently hit them together, and held them out to Fiona.

"To Azamel," they said.

Fiona beamed, did the same, and the men shot their glasses for her.

It was almost enough to make Antoinette envious. Uratha were so effortlessly cooperative. Every act and motion was made knowing their kin were there to support them in some fashion or another. Kindred would never behave in such a manner, no matter how hard she tried.

“Did you wish to speak of Azamel tonight, Fiona?” Antoinette asked.

“Nae, I dinnae think so. I talked a lot with Athalia and Mark and Sándor. Damien and Jessy too.”

The group looked to Jessy, eyebrows raised.

“What? I can be supportive, you fuckers.”

They all laughed, even Jack.

---

“How is your father, Eric?” Elaine asked, wearing her devious grin.

To Eric’s credit, he did not so much as blink. He sipped the scotch, his fifth glass, and nodded toward Jessy.

“He’s fine,” Jessy said, returning Elaine’s grin. “Pretty damn happy, I might admit.”

“Oh?”

Eric sighed after another sip. “Jessy’s been giving him pictures of herself topless.”

Matthew coughed, nearly spitting out his drink.

“Hey, fuck you.” Jessy displayed her middle finger to Matthew before looking back to Elaine. “Dude was a hard-ass, and I’ve dealt with hard-asses like him plenty of times. Eric was basically trying to yell him out of bed to start taking care of himself. Any idiot would know that’d never work. What the man needed was a carrot.” She jutted out her chest.

“Soap opera drama,” Natasha said. “You g-going to sleep with him too?”

“Fuck no. He’s old, and I’m dating his son.”

“Sounds like good television,” Arturo said.

“The fuck kinda television you—no, wait, I know. Hope that last season doesn’t burn you too hard.” Her smile was utterly nefarious.

Jack leaned forward and set his elbows upon the table. “You all need better taste.”

Fiona giggled and shook her head after sipping on her drink. “Sounds like good television tae me. She could say things like ‘that isnae how yer da does it’.”

Everyone in the room visibly cringed, and Antoinette found herself chuckling a touch louder than the rest of them. They all looked to her, and she waved a dismissing hand.

“Vampires live long lives. I have known a few to have indulged in the parent, and then the child, once the child was of age.”

Arturo shot his drink, struggled to manage the burn in his throat, and poured himself another. “Well, as far as weird sex goes, I suppose that isn’t all that weird if you measure your lifespan in centuries.”

“I am 78!” Jessy again displayed her middle finger to Arturo, for perhaps the fourth time that night. “I ain’t no old bitch.” Elaine reached across Eric, and flicked Jessy in the arm. “Ow! Hey.”

“Be kind to your elders.”

“Ha, why? Cause you’ve got experience? Old and wise?”

Elaine’s smile was positively serpentine. “Because we could kill you with a single finger.” And to seal her point, she lightly tapped a fang with the finger she used to flick Jessy.

The table froze for but a moment, before Fiona burst into giggles. Laughter from the others followed soon after. What hint of seriousness Elaine may have held in her warning was quickly lost and forgotten in Fiona's joyful, drunk laughter.

"So, Jack," Arturo said after setting his glass down. "I hear you've got a harem now."

"It's not a harem!"

"Yet," Antoinette said, earning some more giggles from Fiona.

"Ah think ye deserve a harem!" Fiona said. "And a'm wantin' tae see movies about that, too."

"You—wait, too?"

She nodded. "Jessy showed me the sex tapes." Fiona sipped her drink, sipped it again, and again, before leaning forward and grinning at the small Ventrue. "That's a lot o' booba."

Poor Jack. He squirmed and wriggled in his seat, glanced up at Antoinette with a hint of annoyance in his face, before he shared it with the table.

"Y'all have seen the tapes, haven't you?" he asked. Everyone nodded. "Damn it Jessy."

"What?" Jessy said. "Come on, it was awesome. Not Natasha quality, but still awesome."

"Indeed," Antoinette said.

Natasha squirmed between her two boyfriends. "Well, I mean, lighting is s-s-super important."

Jack raised a finger from the table. "If Tash wants to become the next porn star—"

“H-Hey!”

“All the power to her. But it’s not high on my list of priorities.”

“Fiona my dear,” Antoinette said, “do not fret. I am sure Jack will agree to more videos. He owes Jessy for her valiant efforts to distract the Carthians. Damien as well.”

Damien shook his head. “I’m good.”

Fiona laughed and elbowed her boyfriend before leaning over the table, eyes wide with wonder as she looked at Antoinette. “Aye?”

“Ben oui. Jack always repays his debts.”

Jack groaned and slumped back into the booth. “I was hoping I could pay her back with money or something.”

“The boss fined you,” Jessy said. “You really got money just sitting around?”

“ ... no.”

“Then porn please.” She set both hands on the table, palms up. “Please sir, I’d like some more.”

“Aye! More!” Fiona said, and she did the same.

“Ugh, fine.”

“Yay!” Fiona giggled up a storm, seduced everyone at the table to laugh with her, before she took another sip of her drink. Indeed, she and the werewolves had drunk quite a bit, and were now either tipsy or drunk, but they had drunk enough to render a kine comatose. A joy of being a paranormal creature, and still alive, unlike Kindred.

But they would never know the joy of the Kiss, and that made a Kindred’s undeath worth it.

---

The bottles neared empty, and Arturo poured himself another glass. He missed, but corrected quickly. His aim was off, but he had also been watching Elaine.

Antoinette's gorgeous friend grinned at Jessy as she undid the front knot of her dress, where the sideways chest strap covered her breast and tied at the front before connecting into sleeves. With breasts now exposed, she turned toward the Gangrel slightly, enough to nudge her right breast into Eric's left arm, but her eyes were on Jessy.

Poor Eric. The man was drunk at this point, but he held his liquor well. Not well enough to not gulp as the tall blonde pressed her breast into his arm as she leaned in toward his girlfriend.

"You really don't hesitate to whip those out." Jessy said. "You could have said 'truth'."

"I am half a millennium old, young vampire. I have indulged in carnal delights you cannot fathom. You cannot seriously think this dare would give me pause."

Jessy rolled her eyes, and pulled down her tube top, revealing her own breasts in their entirety. While they were not as large as Elaine's, they were plenty large still, considering Jessy had the leanness of a fitness model, complete with defined abdominal muscles.

She had not even been dared to remove her top. But the Gangrel would not be undone, naturally.

"Bitch please, I can fathom a lot."

"We're doing this again?" Jack asked.

Ah, Jack. Sometimes his honesty devolved into foolishness. The most assured way to have a friendly group tease you, was to call out their behavior.

“Aye, again!” Fiona giggled as she slid the back strap of her dress up and over her frizzy hair, and let it drop to her lap, revealing heavy teardrop breasts. Damien rolled his eyes, but a smile sneaked its way through his annoyed expression.

The table went through the same dance as last time. Some shy glances from Natasha were soon dashed, and she pulled the hanging top off, slipped it past her hair, and set it on her lap. The men who had suit jackets on slipped out of them, and they undid their buttons enough to leave the entirety of their chests exposed. Jack complied, eventually, exposing his delicious muscle definition that rivaled the larger men.

Antoinette went last. Far be it from her to judge others based on the size of their breasts, but she must have been quite vain long, long ago, to give herself the body she had now. How terribly shallow of her. But, far be it from her to not indulge in what she had.

She leaned her head forward, reached behind, and pulled up the strap of her dress that hooked behind her neck. Slowly she pulled it up over her head, past her hair, and then down onto her lap, letting the X strap of fabric across her breasts fall with it.

The group went quiet as they stared at her body, men and women alike, and Antoinette grinned at them all. Even after centuries of drawing eyes and hypnotizing others with her crafted beauty, it still pleased her to do so again.

“I refuse to believe those are real,” Jessy said. “I mean, Fiona and Elaine? Yeah, some girls just got really huge tits. But you?” This woman, with all the subtlety and wit of a drunk young man. But her honesty was delightful refreshing. Poor Jack groaned and glared at his comrade, but he did not realize that while his honesty took a different form to Jessy's, they were still both honest souls, and Antoinette enjoyed that.

“Centuries ago, I am sure I changed my body in some way, for ... obvious purposes.” Antoinette caught Eric's eye, before she leaned in toward Jack, and further, until she had to use her hands to lift her breasts and set them on the table. They were in the way. “You have seen the videos, non? You said as much.”

“Yeah, I did. Fucking waterbeds. But still, I...” Jessy gulped as she realized what Antoinette was doing. “I can touch?”

“Oui, you may touch.”

Jessy outright groaned hungrily, leaned out far over the booth table, and scooped a hand under one of Antoinette's breasts. Of course doing so meant she pinned Eric against Elaine's side, her breast pressing into the man's chest, but Jessy did not mind. Like a child in a toy store, she wanted to touch, and everything else vanished from her simple mind.

The Gangrel lifted Antoinette's right breast in her left hand, and her groan turned into a moan, as she bounced it in her palm. Of course, considering the size of Antoinette's breast, it overflowed Jessy's hand, spilling over her fingers and palm, hiding them in its softness as her breast spread out over Jessy's wrist. As much as Jack usually tried to dissuade Jessy's crass behavior, he stared at Antoinette's bust, and how it jiggled in his comrade's hand. Everyone stared.

“And you can cum from these?”

“As I said, you saw the video. I have sensitive nipples when I Blush Life.” She did not Blush, but she was tempted to. “I have cum many times from Jack's lips around my breasts. And often, with Elaine's, or Ashley and Julee's, while Jack is—”

Jack coughed and gently nudged her side with his elbow. How adorable. He looked frustrated, but in a pleasant way, a friend being teased by friends, in a friendly game.

Naturally, Jessy did not stop touching her, even as Antoinette spoke. Hypnotized by the Prince's flesh, Jessy continued to experiment, shifting her hand and fingers in various ways, and outright bouncing Antoinette's breast. And lost to her own desires, her hand did more than touch. It caressed. Her wandering fingers stroked the underside of Antoinette's breast, and her thumb teased up onto her nipple.

At least until Jack intervened. He grabbed Jessy's wrist, and slowly pushed it back toward her as he glared at her.

Jessy laughed and shrugged. "Sorry dude. But, holy fuck, yeah I'd have my head between those tits every minute I could if I was you. So soft, and heavy, and..." Groaning, Jessy pushed herself into Eric, bare breast squashing against his arm, and she sighed up to him. "I need a boob job."

"You don't need a boob job." Quite the sum of willpower in Eric, considering how intoxicated he was.

"I want giant tits."

"You have large tits, Jessy, especially at your bodyfat percentage."

Frowning, Jessy reached across Eric's chest, and reached under Elaine's breasts. Elaine was still snug to Eric's side, and she only chuckled when Jessy gave her breasts the same treatment as Antoinette's. Though, Eric did not stop his girlfriend, unlike how Jack had. He leaned back, and took a deep breath to relax himself as he looked between Jessy and Elaine, and how they were both still snug against his sides.

"J-Jessy!" Tash said at last.

Jessy rolled her eyes as she lowered her hand. “I was just window shopping.”

That earned a several happy chuckles from the group. But everyone ceased their laughter, when Daniel and Athalia walked up onto the second floor and stepped into view.

“S-Sire?” Tash squeaked and covered her breasts with her forearms. Silly girl.

Daniel raised a brow as he looked at everyone, before he looked down at Athalia beside him, his expression unreadable to everyone else. But Antoinette could see a hint of a smile teasing its way along his lips.

“Uh, why is everyone topless?” Athalia asked, gesturing to them. While Daniel wore a suit, no tie, Athalia wore a red, sleeveless dress that covered her chest up to her collar. Though as she turned a little, Antoinette could see the dress was backless, and the skirt quite short. The woman had a playful side, after all.

Jessy snorted on a laugh, and shrugged. “Because we’re all hot?”

“Here here,” Art said with a gentle slap of a hand on the table. Not too gentle, causing some of their drinks to spill over their edges.

Fiona giggled as she sipped her drink. “Because this is Dolareido, ‘n ‘ere, we have fun! An’ a game o’ Truth or Dare gaun off the rails, as usual.” Her accent grew increasingly thick, and Antoinette was convinced it was partly on purpose. But it was also delightful, and had the group laughing yet again.

Athalia rolled her eyes, clearly quite familiar with her fellow Begotten’s rather noisy personality. And while Athalia tried to look annoyed, Antoinette saw past Athalia’s mask, and to the sad woman beneath, trying to forget her woes. She had likely seen a side of Azamel none of them ever had, of a protective mother, both trying to take care of her child, but also teach and prepare her. It would take her longer to recover than Fiona. But she was also happy to be here, and happy in the arms of her lover.

A practiced elder could tell much from the quick glances of a poor poker player.

“I’d say this is just a ploy to get the girls to take their tits out,” Athalia said, “but I’m guessing the girls are behind this insanity.” She eyed Antoinette, Elaine, and Jessy, with an abundant amount of disdain. Too much disdain. She was not serious. A classic personality type, to use exaggerated anger as a form of humor. Difficult for people who did not know Athalia well to understand, but once people did, Athalia likely had an interesting side to her Antoinette had never seen.

Daniel had seen it.

With a playful squeak, Fiona pushed on Damien’s shoulder.

“Make room for them ye knobs!”

Damien and Daniel both rolled their eyes, Daniel far more subtle, and everyone complied. Soon, they had somehow managed to fit everyone in the booth.

Daniel, Athalia, Damien with Fiona on his lap, Arturo with Natasha on his lap, Matthew, Jessy, Eric, Elaine, Jack, and finally Antoinette.

And predictably, most of them looked to the two newcomers expectantly.

Daniel shook his head. “I don’t think—”

Athalia reached up, and slipped the strap of her dress up over her head, past her long, thin black hair, and eventually down onto her lap. Everyone's eyes widened as they not only witnessed the dark queen's naked, beautiful breasts, but the adornments they wore. The woman wore a silver necklace, but the dress hid that the necklace dipped down to her sternum, before branching and hooking both under and over her breasts before disappearing behind her as two chains.

Jewelry, meant to be worn with more revealing clothes, but jewelry with one express purpose: to make a woman's breasts look beautiful, sexual, and regal, when naked or nearly so. And it worked wonderfully, silver contrasting against Athalia almost onyx skin, and highlighting the length of her slender form.

Fiona clapped her hands, clumsily. "Ye bought it!"

"Shut up." Athalia frowned at her companion, but a grin broke through it with time. "Christ, what a fucked up city, everyone with their tits out."

Jessy laughed and shrugged. "Well, I mean, this would just be another Friday night in this place really, if it weren't for Elaine and the Prince. Kinda mixes things up a bit when big important people show skin. Speaking of." Her eyes fell to Daniel.

The sheriff looked to Athalia, and when the Begotten rolled her eyes and nodded, Daniel undid the buttons of his shirt, and exposed his chest.

Jessy whistled. "Damn dude, you're a washboard."

Daniel was that indeed. A touch thin, but not enough to damage the appeal of his athletic, muscular physique. Muscle definition from head to toe.

Athalia smiled, unable to hide that she was quite happy with her boyfriend's body. "There, we've all seen each other's tits, man tits included. Happy?"

Elaine leaned forward as she returned the grin. “We are all gorgeous, and I for one delight in seeing that beauty. I am quite happy. Your body, and choice of jewelry, are exquisite.”

Athalia tried to maintain her half steel, half sarcastic grin, but it slowly melted away as blush fought against her dark skin. “You’re all horny twenty-four-seven, aren’t you?”

Jessy and Fiona both raised a hand, noticed each other, and burst into laughter, Fiona’s laugh closer to a pleasant bird’s singing, high pitched giggles that had Damien smiling.

“Th-They are,” Tash said.

Of course, the moment she said it, Art slid his hands up to her breasts, and cupped the small things in his large hands. She squeaked, but instead of tearing his exploring hands away, she shivered. A trained reaction, perhaps. Her pornographic videos had grown increasingly themed around reluctance and other domination fantasies, and it was obvious the theme was her own choice. For Art to touch her so, without her permission, in front of all these people, tickled something inside her.

“I,” Matt said, “am pretty damn happy with Dolareido. We should have come sooner.”

Art nodded, even as he continued to cup and caress Tash’s breasts. Eventually she melted back against his chest, letting the others see that the man was playing with her rather sexually. He did not stop, and Tash smiled sheepishly as she looked down.

“Well, I’ve been here for a while,” Eric said. “Didn’t really get to see the good side of it until recently.”

“Same,” Jack said. The boy was more comfortable this time, compared to the last time they did this. And to Antoinette’s delight, he even offered Tash some interested gazes, which had Tash smiling and squirming.

Antoinette tapped a finger on the table, gathering attention. “A shame. I feel I have done well with my city, but it is not perfect. And has an obvious bias for its paranormal denizens.”

Athalia took several peeks at Natasha, before she nudged her shoulder into Daniel. Soon, the sheriff slipped his arm up and over his girlfriend’s shoulders, and Athalia snuggled into him, pushing back his undone shirt so she could press her naked side into his naked side. While Fiona was obviously aroused, with swollen pink nipples against her pale skin, Antoinette did not expect Athalia to respond so quickly. But she did. She acted nonchalant, refusing to draw attention to it, but Antoinette could see the woman’s body language change, squirming slightly in her seat as her dark nipples hardened.

As if to justify her reaction, Athalia reached out, poured herself a glass of scotch, and shot it. And then two more, each earning a loud gasp from her. Evidently the younger redhead could handle the flavor with ease, compared to her senior.

“If I’m going to try and blend in with all these sluts, I’m going to need to drop a few IQ points.” With a sinister smirk, she poured herself a fourth, hesitated to shoot it, and sipped it instead.

“Things are better, aren’t they?” the sheriff said, glancing to Athalia before everyone else. “Now that Garry and Michael are leaving each other alone.”

“Aye!” Fiona nodded as she peeked at Tash, and immediately grabbed Damien’s wrists. After taking a moment to plant his hands underneath her large breasts, she nodded, as if she had put on a uniform, and she set her hands upon the table to resume drinking. Poor Damien was left with the duty of breast holder.

Considering how aroused Fiona was, and that she was sitting on Damien's lap, the vampire was no doubt fighting a desire to sink his teeth into her and drink her right there in front of them all. Drink her, and fuck her. And considering the sort of personality Fiona had, she would have no doubt loved that, to be pinned on the table and rendered helpless and put on display in front of everyone, as Damien Kissed her, and fucked her until she was a mess of sweat, quivering legs, and cum.

Antoinette met Damien's eyes, and grinned at him. He tried to hold her gaze, but as he realized she knew what dirty fantasies were no doubt going through his mind, he looked away.

"Better," Athalia said, nodding. "Azamel's gone, and that hurts, but she did good. Mark doesn't talk about himself much, but Fiona and I have it better than we ever have, here in Dolareido these days."

"I suppose I get little thanks in that," Antoinette said. Athalia looked at her, a touch shocked, but Antoinette waved a dismissing finger over the table. "I jest, young monster. It is indeed Azamel's efforts that accomplished much for your kind, and for my love."

"Agreed," Jack said, and he gave Athalia the best respectful nod he could manage from where he was, sitting half naked between two half naked women.

"We toasted tae her awready," Fiona said, "but ye werenae 'ere. Again!" She raised her glass.

Athalia and the werewolves raised their glasses, struggled to keep them steady, and all five of those with a heartbeat shot their drinks.

"So, Jack," Athalia said. "Your mom's not here?"

Antoinette eyed Athalia for a moment. The Begotten was difficult to predict when it came to how aggressive she chose to be. Would she seek an argument? Would alcohol bring it out of her?

“Uh, that would be a bit awkward.” Jack gestured to the table and everyone in the booth.

“Ha, true. But from what she told me last night, I don’t think it’d be that uncomfortable.”

“Oh god, what’d she tell you?”

“That she’s having a very satisfying time with the witches.”

Jack groaned and rolled his head from side to side for a moment. “Yep.” Oh ho, tactical of him to maintain a cool head as Athalia poked an uncomfortable spot.

“Then again, from the movies Fiona showed me, I guess like mother like son?”

Jack jaw-dropped, before snapping his gaze at the redhead. “Fiona!”

“What? Hey, yer a handsome lad! ‘Twas a very sexy scene! The way aw those girls buried yer dick in tits.” Fiona leaned forward, and grinned at him, the grin of a blissful drunk, before she nodded toward Antoinette. “Jessy said it. ‘Twas like ye were fucking a waterbed!”

Athalia laughed. “Sorry, not trying to be mean. Can’t help it.”

Antoinette met Athalia’s eyes for a moment, and smiled. Athalia attempted to return the smile, but despite herself, she too found herself looking at Antoinette’s breasts. And from the way she quickly tore her eyes away, she had no doubt remembered the video, and how Jack had looked when making love to Antoinette and the others.

Athalia and Jack had a very fragile relationship, and had probably never occurred to the woman that Jack was quite attractive, and looked even more attractive with his length buried between Antoinette's bust. To see the Begotten squirm with the memory was pleasing. How did she treat Daniel in bed? Antoinette knew the beautiful woman wanted the sheriff to play the role of tall, dark, handsome, and dangerous, to pin her, or hold her tightly and take her. Outside of bed, it would be the reverse, with Athalia being the dominant, loud personality, and Daniel happy to follow along with whatever she wanted. An interesting pairing, to be sure.

Mental note, Antoinette. Tell Daniel to spend time painting Athalia's breasts in his cum soon. It would undoubtedly appeal to the dark corners of her mind, considering how much she now struggled to look, and not look, at Antoinette.

"I didn't plan to make a bunch of sex tapes," Jack said. "And I didn't plan to make a harem." He again gently nudged Antoinette's side with an elbow. "But when in Rome, I suppose."

Fiona clapped, leaned back and set her head back against Damien's shoulder as she turned into his jawline. "Can ye make a harem?"

"I could," Damien said.

"Will ye?"

"No."

"Aw, why nae?"

"Cause you're drunk and you'll change your mind in the morning."

"Nu uh! Ah want a dozen lads tae take care o' me!"

He rolled his eyes as he pressed his cheek down against her frizzy hair. “Twelve boys, and me?”

“Aye.”

“For sex?”

“Maybe.” She grinned a terribly cute chipmunk grin, earning a chuckle from Athalia.

“I agree with the harem idea,” Jessy said, nodding, and she gestured across the table to the sheriff. “You got a harem, Mister Sheriff?”

“No.” The man did not so much as glance at Jessy’s breasts and beautiful abs. Or anyone else’s breasts. Forever a stone.

“Ever had one?”

“Not to my recollection.”

Jessy frowned. “Ever think of building one? You’re as old as these two.” The Gangrel gestured to Elaine and Antoinette. “And now with a girl on your arm, I can personally guarantee she’d love to have a couple guys or girls to help with the fucking.”

“I think I’m happy with just the two of us,” Athalia said. Everyone went quiet as they looked at her, expectantly, until she groaned, shook her head, and sipped her drink. “For now.”

Jessy beamed with pride, as if she had just seduced Athalia to the ways of Dolareido. Perhaps she had.

“And you, Jessy?” Elaine asked. “Does Eric not want to share you with four men?” Throughout the night, she had leaned closer and closer into Eric, until now her closer breast was completely squashed against his arm. And Eric, drunk as he was, did what he could to ignore her, but everyone could see the man had only so much will. Elaine was utterly breathtaking, and considering Jessy seemed happy to trap the man between herself and another topless vampire, there was no one to save him.

“Nah, he’s not. It’s a guy thing, I guess.” Shrugging, Jessy mirrored Elaine, and pressed her closer breast into him as she teased a finger down his chest. “I get it, not every dude wants to share with other dudes. Not every girl is as lucky as Natasha.”

“I’m ... p-pretty lucky, aren’t I?” Natasha said. She smiled brightly at Jessy, only for Arturo to again set his hands on her breasts, cupping the small buttons and gently teasing her nipples with roaming thumbs. Natasha shivered yet again, but remained sitting upright, as if being fondled was no reason to stop a conversation. How the little woman had changed.

Matthew grinned down at Tash and sipped his drink before looking to the rest of the group.

“Art and I have been best friends for decades. And we always kinda just, got along and shared everything, pretty much from day one.”

“Soul mates?” Antoinette asked.

“Ha! Maybe? Never really thought of it like that.”

Fiona took a peek over at the tiny vampire beside her, at what Arturo was doing, before she took Damien’s hands, still cupping her large breasts, and nudged him. Damien glanced around at the party for a moment, before succumbing to his little girlfriend’s desires. No longer simply cupping her breasts, Damien caressed them, letting their size and weight fill his hands while index fingers reached up and around to tease her thoroughly swollen, pink, large nipples. Unlike Natasha, Fiona was fully alive, and every touch Damien made upon her earned little shivers from her aroused body.

Antoinette glanced down at Jack. He struggled to not look, but Natasha and Fiona were wonderfully beautiful, inviting women, sitting directly next to each other on their men's laps, being fondled. And of course, Fiona was quite a busty creature, with breasts as large as Elaine's despite her short stature. Jack was Jack, he could not help his kinks, and he glanced at Fiona's bust more times than he probably realized.

"I have been dying to know," Elaine said, "what werewolf blood tastes like."

Jessy grinned. "I bet you have."

"Be a dear and share with me?"

"Nope."

"Why not?"

"Cause I love my man, and he's drunk. He ain't making any decisions tonight."

"I am ... kinda drunk," Eric said, half smiling. But despite himself, he took another sip.

"I see." Nodding, Elaine turned to face Natasha's boys, even as she continued to press her chest into Eric's side. "Natasha dear? Consider it a favor to a fellow dragon."

Natasha blinked at Elaine before looking to Antoinette. To which of course, Antoinette simply shrugged and smiled.

"Elaine's blood lust is harmless," Antoinette said. "Though do not be surprised if she clamps her legs around the first wolf to give her some blood."

“Well unlike you, I am single. Single and loving it, I believe is the expression?” Elaine shrugged as she looked over her shoulder to Antoinette, but eventually ceased her relentless teasing of Eric. She sat up straight, and look to Daniel and Athalia. “And you two? How does Begotten blood taste?”

“Great!” Fiona said with a squeak. “Damien says so. It gets him very aggressive, ye ken? He’ll hold me down ‘n growl ‘n stuff.” It was hard to tell whether Fiona was blushing due to embarrassment over her words, or her arousal. Most likely the latter.

“Oh my.” Elaine smiled at the tiny Scot, before her devil’s grin found Athalia and Daniel again. Daniel held Elaine’s gaze without so much as a glance down, but poor Athalia, she did not have her man’s resilience. As Elaine leaned forward, Athalia’s eyes drifted down to Elaine’s enormous bust, before she righted her gaze. Several times.

“Daniel says I taste great, yes.”

“Taste, but...” Elaine nodded toward Fiona, eyes still on Athalia.

Athalia groaned and looked to the side. Of course doing so set her eyes on Fiona, who was still being fondled by Damien. And unless Antoinette was seeing things, Damien’s touch was slowly growing more playful. The music was not too loud on the second floor, and to anyone paying attention, Fiona’s moans were audible.

“Elaine,” Daniel said, “don’t—”

“It’s fine.” Athalia leaned in, the jewelry dangling around her breasts hanging forward slightly over the table. But before she said anything, she looked back to Daniel. “Can I tell her?”

Daniel smiled, a subtle thing, almost invisible, and adjusted his glasses with a single finger. “Alright.”

Athalia grinned back at Elaine. “We don’t know why, but when a vampire drinks a monster, like Fiona or me, they get very ... aggressive.”

Elaine purred. “How aggressive?”

“Fiona said it, growling and pinning. And ... choking. And spanking. And ... some hair pulling.”

If Elaine had been Blushing Life, the woman would have grown wet. A Daeva in a Ventrue’s body. The old dragon groaned as she wriggled in her seat, and slowly cast her hungry gaze toward Daniel as she leaned further forward until her hanging breasts rested on the table.

“Water everywhere and not a drop to drink for me.”

“Come now old friend.” Antoinette leaned forward and toward Elaine, and gently pulled her back to sitting upright. “You—oh. Moreno. Harcourt.”

Jack, who had been watching Athalia — and her naked body — with a strange fascination, as if he had never considered before that Athalia had a sex drive, snapped to attention and looked beyond the booth. Clara Moreno and Brace Harcourt walked up to the stairs, and upon noticing the large booth utterly filled with people, stumbled over.

Stumbled indeed, they were both drunk. Harcourt wore a white shirt, loose and mostly open, while Clara wore a white dress, a skimpy thing with two straps that hung tightly over each breast before connecting to a skirt. A terribly beautiful woman, and an exquisitely beautiful man.

The two of them stared wide-eyed at the booth, and the twelve people within with their torsos fully exposed. But before Clara could understand what was happening, Brace took her hand, and walked over to the table. Well, he was a man, and intoxicated at that. Antoinette could not blame him for wishing to see. And the cherry on top, Brace had less social awareness than a beetle.

“Wow. Um, whatcha guys up to?” Brace asked, Clara at his side. The werewolf blushed horribly, but she was also perhaps a touch too intoxicated to stop herself from admiring the sights before her. Her eyes lingered on Eric and Daniel’s body, and Jack’s as well, before eventually settling on the myriad of breasts to feast her eyes on.

Antoinette expected her to look at the Prince for longer than she did. Yes, Antoinette was beautiful, but she was also unusually tall, unusually buxom, and had white hair and red eyes. It was a perfectly normal reaction, to stare at something statistically odd. But it was Natasha, and how her pack mate Arturo continued to tease and fondle her body that had Clara gazing. Had she seen the tiny creature’s pornographic films as well?

Jack sighed and shrugged. “We were celebrating Azamel. But apparently we’ve also developed a bit of a ritual now. Get together, get half naked, drink.”

Harcourt raised a brow. A considerable feat of dexterity, considering how he wobbled.

“Vamps don’t drink!”

“Not alcohol,” Antoinette said, and she licked a fang.

Clara noticed, and managed a small frown. But the frown vanished when Harcourt slid behind her, and slipped his hands around her waist to hug her. As if someone had just fed her decadent, delicious food, she melted back into the man’s arms, and smiled. Either alcohol agreed with her, and she agreed in return, vehemently at that, or something had occurred between her and Harcourt over the past few weeks. Most likely both.

Jack noticed. He frowned, for a moment, but the frown faded quickly, replaced with the first real smile Antoinette had seen him wear since Azamel's death.

"We," Fiona said, raising her glass as she did, "are bonny sluts! We deserve tae party 'n have fun."

"Fun includes tit fondling?" Clara asked.

"Aye, it does."

She nodded, grinning at the little redhead. "Glad everyone's happy, then." She shared a knowing glance with Jack, and the boy returned it, before she stepped a little closer to the table, Harcourt still behind her. "I admit, you are all pretty sluts. Matt, Art, seriously?"

Matthew shrugged, and sipped his drink. "Hey, I'm happy to be surrounded by a bunch of handsome dudes and very, very hot women who don't mind showing some skin."

She glared at him. "And you call yourself Canadian."

"Canada, I'll have you know, is slightly less concerned about boobs than the USA." He shrugged again, took another sip, and grinned down at his little vampire lover, who was still the subject of Arturo's attention.

"Uh huh." Clara turned her glare to Arturo. "Dude."

"What? We're all having a good time." Arturo, perhaps a little more drunk than his companion, slid his right arm around further to hug Natasha to his broad chest, caress and cup her left breast, while his left hand slid up her naked chest to her neck, and slowly wrapped her throat.

Natasha was, of course, not intoxicated, but the poor girl struggled to contain her doubtless growing arousal. All in the mind, without the Blush of Life, but it was enough. She did not stop Arturo, and melted into the man's huge arms, hands, and chest, as the werewolf hugged her tight. And the sight of the huge beast clutching her so intimately, had the entire table, Athalia especially, staring.

Clara watched her for a few moments, a few moments more, gulped, and slowly turned her increasingly distracted eyes to Athalia. "I uh, thought you wouldn't be down for this."

Athalia cast side glances at the two women being caressed and massaged beside her. She sighed, shrugged, and shot another glass of scotch before erupting into more gasps and coughs. She had only had half what little Fiona had had, after all, and was perhaps trying to catch up.

"They sold me on it," Athalia said, finally look to Clara. "I mean, yeah, they're all a bunch of sluts, but no one's getting hurt, and it's actually kinda liberating. They're just tits." With a playful grin Antoinette previously thought the woman was incapable of, Athalia leaned back, and shook her chest a little, causing her moderate breasts to jiggle side to side, and for the beautiful chains that clung to her chest around her breasts to sway as well. Considering her dark nipples were quite swollen, it was quite the sight.

Harcourt looked at her for perhaps a bit too long, and got a playful elbow in the gut from Clara. But then she and Harcourt both turned to the Prince, and took a few moments staring directly at her breasts. How quaint.

Clara said, "those are—"

"They are entirely real," Elaine said, and she leaned across Jack, cupped Antoinette's closer breast, and bounced it in her palm. The werewolf and hunter stared, hypnotized.

Jack of course rolled his eyes, but he did not stop Elaine. If anything, he could not help but watch as well. For Jessy to touch Antoinette perhaps annoyed him a touch, but for Elaine to touch Antoinette was quite normal at this point, and a regular part of sex for the little Ventrue.

“Damn,” Harcourt whispered. “That’s, uh, pretty insane.”

Clara rolled her eyes, but sneaked a few more glances to Antoinette as she faced the rest of the group.

“You know, there’s something to be said for hiding the goods.”

“Fuck that.” Jessy shook her head, and gestured around to the group. “We’ve got it right. And besides.” The Gangrel leaned forward and offered Clara a rather evil grin. “You enjoyed my gh—”

Eric elbowed her in the side. Jessy frowned at Eric and returned it, perhaps a tad harder than he had. So naturally, the man twisted enough so he could face her, and give her a playful shove of the shoulder. Which earned a dramatic jaw-drop from her, a glance to the group with a ‘can you believe this?’ expression on her face, before she returned the shove.

And the two of them grappled with each other for the next few moments, which soon had the group chuckling. Their antics were strangely adorable.

Harcourt whispered something into Clara’s ear, earning surprised eyes from her, but also, a strange grin. Part offended, part excited. Harcourt, drunk and riding the waves of joy the atmosphere exuded, slipped his hands over Clara’s breasts and pulled the two snug chest straps to their outer sides.

Clara managed a tiny squeak, and a squirm of surprise, but she made only a small effort to cover her breasts with her forearms, before eventually lowering them. And as she realized twelve more people were looking at her naked chest with obvious desire, she hardened herself, took a step forward, her moderate, tan-skin breasts still on display, poured herself a glass of scotch, and shot it.

Which left her coughing and struggling to swallow the drink down. Eric did not look happy to see another person wasting the drink.

“Smooth,” she gasped.

The group laughed. And most importantly, Jack laughed.

Chapter 156

~~Jack~~

Everyone was happy. Too happy. Alarm bells kept going off in his head, like the scene in a movie that sets up how happy everyone is, before shit goes down.

But nothing bad happened. He thought maybe Clara and Harcourt showing up would be the trigger of something bad. But nope, they were drunk, and happy, and it only took a few minutes before Clara had her tits out, and was working on getting blackout drunk. He doubted she could get that drunk, being Uratha and all, but either way, she laughed — hell, giggled — and even bounced around a little, showing off how hot she was as she got drunker by the second.

Jack didn't know shit about alcohol, but every time someone shot the scotch, Eric frowned.

Clara wasn't a sad drunk, evidently. Happy drunk. Genuinely happy. There were a lot of smiles going around. Well, the war was over, and as much as it sucked that Azamel was dead, she left the city in a pretty good place, all things considered. The monsters had Sándor to protect them, and that dude was ridiculously strong. And now, everyone was cooperating on the weird tears problem. Was it so wrong to just enjoy the night?

He really should have been, but he was struggling for some reason. He shouldn't have been, with two enormous sets of breasts around him from Antoinette and Elaine. Fiona and Natasha were both getting fondled, and loving it, and they were damn attractive, too. The room smelled of life, of desire, and his Kindred nose eventually blocked out the smell of the club to focus on everything around him with a pulse. The drunker and happier they were, the more his Beast told him to indulge in their pleasure, and feast on them.

It wasn't just him. All the vampires in the room were getting drunk on hunger. Damien was two seconds away from drinking Fiona. Natasha was two seconds away from turning around and drinking Arturo and Matthew. Jessy was going to jump Eric any moment. Even the stone cold sheriff made a few glances Athalia's way every so often, sometimes at her breasts, sometimes at her neck.

But, like walking with a grain of sand in the shoe, Jack couldn't forget the old woman. He tried to not think about Azamel, he really did. But every so often, as he chuckled and laughed with the group of dumbasses, his mind went back there. No matter how much the seven topless women distracted him with their gorgeous bodies, and they were fucking gorgeous, Azamel's final words crept up into his mind.

No wonder depressed people started drinking. There was one thing alcohol was really good at, and that was turning you into a moron where your brain jumped on impulse thoughts, instead of spiraling down neurotic thoughts; usually. And considering where Jack's neurotic thoughts were taking him, he wanted to get drunk and leave them behind. He wanted to get fucking shit-faced, and forget all the crap his own damn brain refused to drop.

All those times he thought people were being stupid because they refused to face their problems, and drank themselves into a hole instead. Now all he wanted to do was stop tearing himself up inside for five fucking minutes. Alcohol would be perfect. Christ, that was painfully humbling.

It hurt for a few minutes, seeing Clara so happy with another man. A small part of him still wanted to have her to himself, a slave to his blood, someone to drink and fuck whenever he wanted.

Someone for Antoinette to fuck whenever she wanted. The Ventrue in him, wanting to legit build a harem.

They traded glances a couple times, and each time she offered him an olive branch smile. She really was happy. Maybe Harcourt had listened to Jack. Plus there was the fact she had her beautiful breasts out, and was apparently the sort of girl to get horny, and giggly, when drunk. Harcourt eventually put his hands over her breasts, covering them, but after a few seconds of the two of them chuckling, he lowered them again, and continued to hug her from behind as the two of them stepped close enough to touch the table with their thighs.

“I gotta admit,” Harcourt said as he leaned forward, and set his chin on Clara’s shoulder, arms wrapping her stomach, her breasts sitting on his forearms, “I’m really liking Dolareido.”

“Wonderful,” Antoinette said. “If I can convince hunters that I have worked hard to keep my city a safe place for humans, then other hunters will know to leave us be.”

“I mean, I can tell them, but a lot of us don’t exactly talk to each other. The shit Jeremiah set up was pretty unique. I know there are some organizations and shit, but getting into them is more a ‘who you know’ sorta situation.”

“Regardless, it is a step in the correct direction.”

Clara nodded, and took another sip. “Everyone getting drunk — vampires excluded — in Bloodlust and showing off their tits is kinda weird. At least I kinda thought, right? But Brianna is right over there, getting Kissed and fucked by Derick and Santos, at the same time.” With a giggling sigh, she shrugged and took another sip as she waved a shaky hand toward another booth. “I bet that’s fun.”

“What’s fun?” Fiona asked.

“Getting drunk by a vamp.”

“Aye, it is! Very!” Fiona raised her hands, leaving her drink behind as she leaned back and rubbed her back against Damien. “Show them!”

“Uh, maybe we should—”

“Aw come on!”

“Fiona my dear,” Antoinette said. “I am all for sharing our delights publicly, but not all at once. Tease out the pleasure over time.”

Fiona stared at Antoinette like she just said something prophetic and profound.

“Aye, I get ye.”

With a playful smile, Antoinette looked down at Jack, and he tried to perk up in time, but she caught his sad expression. Damn.

“Clara my dear,” Antoinette said, showing Jack one of her patented evil smiles before she flipped it innocent, and looked to the werewolf. “You want to experience the Kiss?”

“What? I was joking. And uh, aren’t you a Daeva? Don’t you stick to drinking your ghouls?”

“Daeva do indeed. But Elaine here, she has been dying for a taste of a werewolf.”

“Oh yes indeed.” Elaine leaned forward, and she made damn sure to show off her breasts as she did. “Jessy here refuses. Natasha refuses. But you.” The elder grinned at Clara and Harcourt. “You are quite drunk.”

“I am drunk,” Clara said, eying Elaine like it was some sort of poker game that she really sucked at. “But, that doesn’t mean I’m going to let some random vampire drink me.”

“I will make it worth your while.” With a chuckle, Elaine slid over Jack’s lap, and then Antoinette’s; large booths, built specifically for romantic activities. Out of the booth, she made no effort to cover her huge breasts, letting them hang and jiggle as she slid off Antoinette’s lap before standing up. She came right up to Clara too, until only a foot was between them.

Elaine was tall for a woman. Clara was average height, and she had to look up at the buxom blonde who radiated enough confidence to drown everyone in her ego. It was kinda sexy, honestly.

“Worth my while? I—”

Elaine came in closer. Clara almost took a step back. Harcourt did. He was in the presence of a super ancient deadly vampire, so yeah, it kinda made sense for the hunter to do that. But Clara stood her ground, wobbly ground, but ground nonetheless, and managed a half frown as Elaine came in closer and closer. So close she leaned in, and put her lips to Clara’s ear.

She whispered something. No one heard, not with the music pulsing.

Clara blushed, hard. The werewolf looked utterly fucking shocked by whatever Elaine told her, to the point she took a few peeks at the group, before eventually hiding her face as she turned around, and whispered something to Harcourt. And whatever she said to him had him gulping and nodding like a puppy.

Chuckling, Elaine came up behind Clara, pressed her huge, pale breasts against the woman’s tan back, and slowly turned her to face the group.

Jack thought the night had already been pretty erotic. Ridiculously erotic, considering Fiona was still being fondled, and was probably soaking wet. Matt, Arturo, and Eric were all struggling to not let their erections get problematic. Natasha was struggling to not just turn around and pounce her boys. Jessy was one second away from pouncing Eric. Hell, even Athalia, cold and mean Athalia, watched Clara and Elaine with wide, surprised eyes, as Elaine turned Clara to face the group while slowly sliding her hands up the werewolf's body.

Yeah, Clara and alcohol were an erotic mix. For someone like her, to actually agree to a fivesome with four dudes she didn't know, just because Jessy sent them? Yeah, she'd been drunk that night. And the next time. And the time after that, according to Jessy. And unfortunately for Clara, Harcourt was, evidently, easily seduced when drunk. Sure, Jack would bet his life that Harcourt wouldn't ever cheat on Clara, but Harcourt was also pretty easily dumbstruck by the sight of a confident, busty, tall woman with a fashion model body getting her hands all over his girlfriend.

But considering everyone froze solid and stared, Jack couldn't hold it against Harcourt. No one said or did a thing, as Elaine slowly set her lips to Clara's neck, while everyone watched. Her hands slipped up Clara's bare stomach, found her breasts, and cupped both of them in her hands, as she sank her fangs into her neck.

Clara's eyes opened wide, and she managed a tiny whimper. No one could hear it over the music, but they could see the whimper, see her lips tremble, and her eyes struggle to stay open, as she melted back against Elaine's body. And considering how dramatically Elaine had Clara's body pressed to hers, everyone could see how Elaine's huge breasts molded against Clara's back. But more so, everyone stared at how Clara's breasts molded to Elaine's snug fingers, and her nipples swelled, visible between Elaine's knuckles, as the vampire pulled her deep into the pleasure of a Kiss.

Jack had seen Elaine and Antoinette do this dozens of times, fondle a woman like Antoinette's ghouls or Veronica, while drinking them. It was always intensely erotic. And holy fucking shit, seeing Clara melt like hot wax against Elaine as the older vampire drained her, slowly, was scalding hot. And as Elaine did, she traded a very specific gaze with Jack.

He knew that gaze. She wanted to finger Clara right there in front of them all. But that wasn't part of whatever deal she'd arranged. Massaging Clara's tits and hypnotizing everyone with how obviously Clara was borderline having an orgasm in front of them all from the Kiss, was. Clara moaned, loud enough they could hear it, and finally her eyes closed as her body started to go limp. Not so limp that she couldn't keep standing though, and Elaine took full advantage, continued to caress and massage the werewolf's breasts as she took more from her, and more, and more.

Clara managed a quick peek at Jack, saw his expression, grinned, and quivered in the vampire's arms.

"Elaine," Antoinette said, "if you do not stop, what will be left for Harcourt?"

Finally, Elaine lifted her lips. Blood coated their inner contours, and she licked it off, making an obvious show of it for everyone watching. Everyone in the booth either knew how awesome it was to Kiss, or be Kissed, and every one of them squirmed. Yeah, everyone was either getting or giving tonight, after seeing that. Was that what Elaine had whispered to her?

"My god," Elaine said. "Natasha, Jessy, you two have been indulging in this for many months, and did not share? Shame on you." Half groaning, half growling, Elaine slipped Clara's dress back onto her breasts, and gave her to Harcourt. Clara had enough power to keep standing, Uratha and all that, but it was a tough battle. Her legs wobbled a shit load more now, and Harcourt had to get under one of her arms and pull it around behind his neck.

Grinning, Elaine came up to Harcourt, leaned in, and whispered something in his ear. His eyes widened with the glee of a child in a toy store, told he could buy whatever he wanted. Nodding, and bouncing with new energy, Harcourt gave the group a goofy salute, a goofier bow to Antoinette that almost had Clara falling onto the floor, before he turned around and walked her out of Bloodlust.

He was going to take her back to his place, and fuck her silly. And considering what Elaine had just done to her, not only would Clara be helpless to stop Harcourt, the werewolf was going to cum her ever living brains out tonight. Which was pretty much exactly what Clara wanted from Harcourt, for him to set aside the nice guy shtick, and just fuck the shit out of her.

Elaine was a dangerous woman.

They all watched, smiles on their faces, cause they all knew what was going to happen. Of course, when Harcourt and Clara were gone, everyone looked back to Elaine. With her dress hanging around her hips, everyone could see how swollen her nipples were. The Kiss did that, got the vampire's body to Blush Life whether they wanted to or not, which meant Elaine's skin had color again, filled out again, and her pink areola were engorged. Having everyone look at her only made it worse, too. She was like Antoinette, and a lot of girls in Dolareido apparently. She liked being looked at.

Jessy stared at Elaine harder than the rest of them. She even nodded toward Elaine and nudged Eric when the man tried to look away.

“First time? Really?” Jessy asked the elder.

“That I can remember.” Elaine stepped to the table, replacing where Clara and Harcourt had stood. “Perhaps long ago, I tasted an Uratha, but forgive an elder and their memories. To remember things that happened literal centuries ago is difficult.” She ran a finger down her sternum, and down over one breast before reaching her stomach. “That was ... energizing. Powerful. Beyond rich. God, what a feast.”

Jack had indulged in Elaine’s amazing body on dozens of occasions now. More. But despite everyone at the table having seen Elaine on video, enjoying sex with Jack and Antoinette and their thrall and ghouls, they weren’t quite prepared for just how direct Elaine could be. She wasn’t like Antoinette, who balanced her obvious confidence with subtlety and grace. Elaine was like a wrecking ball, happy to bowl everyone over with just how ridiculously hot she was.

And she was Jack’s great grandsire. For the life of him, he couldn’t help but kinda admire and even envy her confidence.

Antoinette chuckled, and motioned with a curling finger to Elaine. The other elder joined her, leaned in, and Antoinette whispered into her ear. A lot of whispering tonight.

Elaine grinned over Antoinette’s shoulder at Jack, stood up, and nodded. “Very well, I think I will.” She stepped back from the table a couple steps, and looked over to one of the booths. That was the booth Clara had mentioned, with Brianna and her two boyfriends. “I am already dying for another taste.” Elaine turned, winked at Jack, and walked over there, dress still around her hips.

She disappeared into the booth out of sight, and Jack gulped as he waited for her to bring Brianna, Derick, and Santos back with her. She didn’t. She stayed in the other booth, probably on a quest to seduce three people. And considering the belly full of werewolf blood, and that Brianna was probably drunk, Jack would bet good money she’d succeed.

Athalia laughed. “She’s really, uh, led by her loins, isn’t she?”

Antoinette shrugged. “She knows what she likes.” She leaned in and smiled at Athalia. “That includes you.”

“What? Me?”

“Elaine is quite attracted to you.”

“I think she’s attracted to anything on two legs.”

“Give Elaine a chance, and I think you will be pleasantly surprised.”

“I doubt that.”

“Oh? She delights in her own power and beauty, yes, but she also delights in the beauty of others. If you let my old friend in, for just a moment, I think you would find yourself treated to the powerful joy of someone who wants to delight in you, and have you delight in her.” Antoinette winked at Athalia, so damn subtle Jack bet only Athalia and him noticed.

“I guess that is a pretty nice thing,” Athalia said. “I mean, slut, sure, but still pretty nice.”

Holy shit. How did Antoinette do that? Get someone like Athalia to change her mind that fast? Probably a combination of her words, and alcohol.

“Now, if you will excuse us.” Antoinette slipped her dress strap back on over her head, took a few moments to reset her breasts in the chest straps, and made a show of doing it too, before she slipped out of the booth and stood up. “Jack, would you like to join me?”

“Yeap.” He hopped out of the booth, did a couple buttons on his shirt, and slipped his jacket back on. “What about you guys?”

He regretted asking. He knew exactly what everyone else at the table was going to do. Jessy and Eric were in a playful mood, which was kinda neat to see cause Eric didn't usually do the playful thing. They were gonna fuck, and probably break a couch. Natasha and the boys were two steps from fucking already, and after seeing Elaine Kiss Clara, Natasha looked like she was going to burst with need to do the same. And the boys looked ready to throw her onto the table and spit-roast her. Fiona was getting closer to orgasm by the minute, with Damien teasing and fondling her for so long. Damien looked ready to Kiss her right there, no shits given to those watching. And Athalia had the look of a woman, an older woman finally coming to understand that she had a major sex drive, that she shouldn't be ashamed of it, and was ready to go get her brains fucked right out of her by her tall, sexy vampire boyfriend.

And Daniel didn't look like anything. Maybe Antoinette could read him, but Jack sure couldn't.

"Alright then," he said, not able to look at them too long. Yeap, kinda embarrassing, just a bit. But then again, they'd just spent a few hours talking, mostly about sex, a lot of that time spent topless. And as far as he could tell, literally everyone at the table had, at some point, seen Jack naked and having sex with Antoinette ... and Elaine and Veronica and Ashley and Julee. Pretty stupid to get embarrassed at this point.

Jack and Antoinette left. Elaine stayed behind. A quick glance to her booth showed the woman had made some very quick progress. Brianna looked like she'd already been Kissed, and Elaine was already on her lap, touching her, kissing her neck, maybe getting ready to drink her, while the two men with Brianna watched, and touched the two ladies. Knowing Elaine, she'd treat them to a giant buffet of sex tonight.

The two of them took a limousine home, but not back to the Prince's tower. They went back to his mansion. And on the drive, Antoinette reached over and pat his shoulder.

“I feel I did not succeed tonight, my love.”

“Succeed? With—oh, you were trying to distract me.”

“Cunning little Ventrue.”

“Heh. Well, yeah, you did succeed. Kinda hard to not get distracted in that environment.”

“And yet...”

“And yet, yeah, I am kinda stuck in a rut, I guess. You know me.”

“I do indeed.”

Jack glanced to the front window that blocked the back seats from the driver. Sound proof, far as Jack knew.

“I was pretty surprised Athalia got into it, so quickly. And she—”

“Is a terribly beautiful creature. Daniel is a lucky man.”

“Yeah. I’m happy she’s recovering. And Fiona.” He tried to hold the smile, but it broke, and he looked down as Azamel came into his mind again.

“They recover, and yet you do not?”

“That’s not it. I’m not still mourning her, not really, you know? Just, what she said. Still digs at me.”

Antoinette nodded, eyes ahead, thinking. Probably thinking up another way to try and distract him from himself.

He was cool with that. He could use the distraction.

“I did have fun tonight, Antoinette. And Clara—”

“I did not invite Clara.”

“You didn’t?”

“Non.”

“Angry she showed up?”

“Non. Surprised, and delighted, especially with how Elaine managed to open the woman’s eyes to a new experience.” Antoinette grinned at him, leaned in, and kissed him. “I am happy to see she is quite sexually compatible with Harcourt as well.”

“And, uh, Elaine evidently.”

“Ha, perhaps. Would it bother you, if Elaine slept with Brace and Clara?”

“Nah.”

“That is good, because Elaine will no doubt attempt it.”

“Cause she wants to tease me, sleeping with Clara when Clara used to be interested in me.”

Antoinette laughed and shook her head. “Not everything is about you, my love. Non, she will try to seduce her, because I saw the look in her eyes when she drank of her blood. Instant addiction.”

Jack laughed. Yeah, honestly, that was a lot better than the other reason.

---

He tried to stay happy. He had every reason to be happy. But Azamel’s words pricked at him, like a sewing needle someone left in his clothes. People were dead. She was dead. And he was utterly convinced he could have prevented it all, even though he also knew that was a stupid, illogical thought. And the worst part about it wasn't feeling bad; sure he felt bad but he wasn't beside himself with agony or misery or anything. The worst part was he couldn't quite shake it off, couldn't quite get back to normal, couldn't quite hold a smile.

Antoinette noticed. She noticed everything. She held his hand, and the two of them walked into his mansion, where Veronica quickly joined them. Thankfully she was wearing her modern maid's uniform, and not one of the sexy variants Antoinette and Elaine had given her, like the one she wore yesterday in front of his mom. Ho boy.

"Master. Prince." She bowed, but her smile faded as she looked at Jack. "Are you alright, master?"

"I'm fine." He knew she didn't believe him. He used the f word, after all. "How are Mulder and Scully?"

"They're enjoying their shower. As ... as much as undead birds can, I suppose."

"They enjoy it, trust me. They might not show it, but they enjoy it."

"Yes, master. They ... talk, sometimes. It's very weird to hear birds make sentences, and ask questions about things."

He smiled at her, and pat her on the shoulder as he started up the stairs with Antoinette.

"Trust me, Veronica, they like you, too." He smiled at her, earning a smile in return. It was nice, having her worry about him, even if it was half fake because of the Vinculum.

Antoinette took him up to one of his bigger rooms, leaving Veronica behind. The upstairs bedroom, with a giant four poster bed, red wood frame and headboard, and blood red blankets. Yeah, Viktor had been beyond cliché.

With a merry chuckle, Antoinette gently sat him down. Not on the bed like he expected, but in a chair in the corner of the room, another big thing with red wood legs and blood red cushions. Pretty damn comfy, and royal.

“Be a dear and sit still for me, would you? I would like to have some fun tonight, and I believe you will be happier for the experience.”

He smiled up at her and nodded. “I mean, sure, but I’m not—”

She kissed his forehead, and walked out. He’d expected her to get onto the bed, or ring for Veronica, not straight up leave. What was she up to?

Yeah sure, he was feeling kinda down, but he wasn’t depressed. At least he didn’t think so. But then again, at this point he knew better than to question his lover. If she thought something, it was probably right.

---

~~Antoinette~~

Down in the lobby, she rang a small bell that sat on a small table. A holdover from Viktor’s love for the classics. Antoinette would have used a phone, and an app, but at the same time, the bell had a distinct enough sound, and loud enough, that Veronica would hear it. Jack likely used his phone, but sometimes indulging in the classics was enjoyable. Not even vampires were immune from reveling in nostalgia.

Veronica returned to the lobby, and her eyes widened as she realized Antoinette was alone, and had been the one to ring her. But she was an eager thrall, eager to please her master, and she knew that meant pleasing Antoinette. Slowly, she approached, eyes downcast, shivering slightly.

“Yes, my Prince?”

Antoinette grinned down at the trembling thrall. Usually, she felt she had long grown past the old her, the one that delighted in how others feared her might, and how they trembled in the wake of her power. But seeing Jack’s pet shiver before her sent tingling joy through her, awakening old desires. The Beast in her enjoyed this.

“As you can see, Veronica, your master is quite stressed.”

“Yes, my Prince.”

“Speak freely.”

“Um, he is pretty stressed out, isn’t he? He’s been like that for a couple weeks now. I thought he was getting better, but I guess not. He even said ‘fine’, like, as if that wasn’t a huge red flag.”

“He frequently finds himself carrying burdens he should not be forced to bear. And half the time, he carries them of his own accord. But he survives.”

“Aw. He likes helping people.”

“Oui, that he does.” Nodding, Antoinette motioned for Veronica to follow, and she did, eyes looking up to take peeks at Antoinette and her dress.

“I like your dress.”

Antoinette chuckled and looked over her shoulder, down at the small, blue-haired kine. “Why thank you. But I am sure you will love it more later, when it is on the floor.”

A hilariously silly line, but Veronica blushed brightly and squirmed all the more. Antoinette had just confirmed that the woman would be joining the two vampires tonight, in what would inevitably be an extremely sexually satisfying experience. It took little to get Veronica excited. That was part of the reason Antoinette chose her as a thrall option, after all.

Antoinette sighed as she sat down on a cushioned bench, and motioned to Veronica. “Far be it from me to encourage gender roles, but dare I say, women have a ... knack, for soothing the wounds of others. Non?”

Veronica smiled and nodded. Still afraid, still in awe of the Prince’s power, but slowly growing more comfortable. This was the first time the two of them had ever spoken to each other directly and in private, but it was a good first step to acclimating the child to the world of darkness.

“Yes, Prince.”

“And as your master’s thrall, you will be tasked with soothing his wounds. I will not always be there to see when Jack Terry’s injuries to his mind and soul bleed. Indeed, sometimes it will be you he may speak to you, in the privacy of darkness and walls. He may speak to you of his troubles, his woes. He may speak to you of secrets he needs to share. He may speak to you of ... many things.”

Veronica’s eyes opened wider and wider with each example. “But I’m just, uh, a kine. Not even a ghoul yet. I can’t—”

“You can do much.” Veronica was Jack’s pet, and just how human owners talked to their pets about personal things, Jack may very well do so with her. “So I will give you some advice: do not sit there, and simply smile and nod when Jack speaks to you. Your master is a logical man. He does not voice himself to others with the mere intent of being heard, or to be echoed.” Though Antoinette sometimes wished he did. “If he talks to you of his troubles, respond.”

“Respond with what? I don’t know anything.”

“Your thoughts, whatever they may be.”

“Um, I’ll try, Prince.”

“Good. Now, for tonight, we will not simply be enjoying sexual delights. We will be helping your master, soothing his wounds. He is troubled, troubles himself, and needs to be distracted from himself.”

Veronica smiled. “Sounds like he could use a drink.”

“Agreed. But alas, he is Kindred. What he could use, is a Kiss.” Antoinette grinned down at the little creature. “Now come. We will prepare you.”

“Prepare?”

“Indeed.”

---

“Jack, my love.” Antoinette smiled at the man as she stepped into the room, her hands on the thrall’s shoulders in front of her. He yet sat within the large red chair in the corner of the room, a lamp on the nightstand beside him casting him in a powerful contrast. If he had been reading Edgar Allen Poe, it would have fit perfectly.

“Antoinette, you were gone for a while. I ... what’re you doing?” His eyes looked to her, before lowering to his thrall, and how she wore a classic maid’s outfit, and not her usual modern version. But also, it was an erotic version of a simple maid’s uniform, with no skirt, exposed legs, and a large window for cleavage. White frills with black lines highlighted her limbs, long black sleeves that ended in white cuffs. She also wore a collar with a small black tie, and a headband of more white frills.

With how large Veronica's bust was, the silly dress struggled to contain her heavy breasts, with nipples barely covered by the white frills of the dress's plunging front.

"You, my dear love, need to relax. And perhaps indulge in your role as ruler of this house, and master of its denizens. Veronica, your thrall, your slave, will happily serve your every need."

"I know that. I—"

"Your every need, my love. You need not focus on her pleasure every time you touch her. By all means, you are Kindred and she is your servant. Order her to satisfy you. And when she has, satisfy yourself with her." With a playful, knowing smile, Antoinette walked the thrall over to Jack, and after a gentle tap on her shoulders, the thrall got onto her knees in front of him. "Now, give your delightful thrall an order."

"Antoinette, come on. You know I—"

"My love, your servant would very much like to serve your needs. Is that not so, Veronica?"

The blue-haired little creature nodded, blushing and smiling. "Yes master. I want to help you, however you want. Your love says you ... you could use some stress relief. I'll happily do whatever you want."

Jack blinked down at the woman nearly touching his knees, and then up at Antoinette. Of course Antoinette returned his stunned gaze with a devil smile, and gestured toward him. Yes, listen, indulge in your dominant desires. As much as Antoinette and Jack usually enjoyed sex where Antoinette controlled the pace, and Jack enjoyed following her whim, sometimes the man enjoyed taking control. And she knew the man wanted to indulge that hungry, masculine side of him more, especially when Veronica was involved. Each time, Antoinette had to be the one to push him.

Let him chase his own desires, this night.

~~♥♥♥~~

Jack sighed, but Antoinette recognized the hunger and wonder in his eyes. There were things he wished to do, urges he wished to express that he could not with a woman as powerful as Antoinette. But a thrall, his own thrall, a servant who desperately wanted to be used, and perhaps a little abused, was an entirely different sexual delight.

The man's smile slowly grew, and he looked back down at the blue-haired pale creature at his knees. "Alright. I want a blowjob." Evidently, Antoinette's idea had struck a chord, because her love spread his knees, and Blushed Life. Antoinette did as well.

To Antoinette's utter delight, Jack relaxed back in the chair, slid his pelvis forward, set his elbows upon the arms of his chair, and set his chin upon his right hand's knuckles. He looked like a king. Perhaps weary, perhaps drained, but a king, comfortable in his power, and comfortable with the sexual delights about to befall him.

Smiling at her lover, Antoinette stepped around his pet, and stood beside the chair as she smiled down at Veronica. Veronica returned it, before she reached up, undid the fly of Jack's pants, and slipped his hardening length out through the flap of his boxers.

While Veronica had touched Jack's length on many occasions, this was the first time she had been given clearance to indulge herself like this, to be the center of attention before sex had even begun. She was nervous, to know her master's attention was fully on her, but also because so was Antoinette's. The poor creature. She gulped as she shivered, but the signs of arousal were blatant, skin flushed and breath quickening as she leaned in until her shoulders hooked over Jack's legs, and her elbows pressed outside his thighs while her breasts pressed between them. And with excited eyes, she leaned in, and kissed the underside of Jack's glans.

Jack quietly sighed his pleasure, and smiled down at his pet, but he said nothing. He wanted to. Antoinette could see the subtle twitch of his face muscles as he often did when Jack suppressed a thought.

"My love," Antoinette whispered, and she turned to face him more directly as she leaned down over him. "Be specific with your pet. What exactly must she do? How best can she pleasure you?" Grinning at her love, she undid the buttons of his shirt, exposing his chest of muscle and defined abs, both for Veronica's eyes, and for the gloriously erotic, artistic image of a seated, dominant man with his suit jacket and shirt opened while his pet pleased him.

Antoinette was throwing enormous logs into the boy's furnace, heat for his ego. He was a Ventrue after all. A simple breeze upon the embers of his ego would have stoked it into a fire, but she wanted the boy to indulge an inferno of desire tonight.

Slowly, Jack nodded. Yes, now Antoinette could see the heat boil in more than his loins. It burned in his eyes.

Chin still resting upon his knuckles, he reached out with his free hand, and touched the glans of his penis. Slowly, he traced the base edge of the exposed, swollen, reddened flesh, drawing Veronica's eyes as he did.

"The edge here, is very sensitive. I like it when lips slide back and forth on it, when I'm in your mouth. Up and down."

"Yes master." Happy to get any information about her master, Veronica leaned forward a little more, squashing her heavy breasts against the insides of Jack's thighs and the chair, her arms still hooked over his legs. With head forward, she slowly slipped her lips over the skin of Jack's glans. Once within her mouth, she slowly eased her lips up and down along the base edge of the bulbous tip, and she beamed with pride as Jack groaned softly.

"Veronica," Antoinette said, "I am sure you are aware by now, that vampires are blessed, sexually speaking. I—do not stop." Veronica, who had lifted her head at Antoinette's mention of her name, quickly put her lips around Jack's girth once more. "Vampires can indulge sexual desires all night, if they wish. There is no need to worry about an early climax. Do not hesitate to milk my lover of every orgasm you can."

She nodded, Jack's length still within her kiss, and she grinned up at her master as she resumed her gentle suckling of the head of his cock.

She outright melted and nearly stopped again, when Jack set his hand on her head, and rested it there, entwining it into her hair.

Antoinette chuckled as she watched the pretty creature, and how her eyes lit up with joy. Ashley and Julee behaved with similar, devoted adoration. Would they continue to, once they were sired? A painful question for another time.

The Prince stepped around Veronica and behind her. And as Jack looked up from his pet to her, Antoinette slipped out of her dress, slowly, teasingly. Now Jack was left with a dilemma. Continue to watch his pet bathe his cock in absolute adoration, or watch her, as she exposed her naked body to him. As expected, he struggled, and his eyes flicked between them, earning another chuckle from Antoinette as she eventually stripped down to nothing.

Without looking from her lover's eyes, Antoinette knelt down behind Veronica, and spread her legs as she moved forward. Soon her stomach was pressed to Veronica's back, and the thrall could not help but lift her head up in surprise.

“Come now Veronica, do not stop. Obey your master.” Antoinette grinned from over Veronica's head toward her love, who quickly grasped the message, and helped guide Veronica's head back onto his girth.

And only once the tiny, busty, shivering little thrall was again suckling on her master's cock, did Antoinette press her bare breasts against the woman's back and shoulders, and slip her fingers under the crotch of the half maid's uniform, half swimsuit. Drenched. Antoinette growled down at the helpless kine as she used her left hand to pull aside the crotch of the uniform, while her right hand — middle and ring fingernails clipped — caressed Veronica's swollen, and nearly dripping clitoris.

Antoinette could not see Veronica's eyes from the angle, but the look of awe and hunger in Jack's eyes told her all she needed. Veronica was not only enjoying Antoinette's touch, she was delirious with need for it, and Jack could see it in his pet's eyes. Combined with how Veronica relished being treated as a sex slave, being told to fellatio her master as her master's lover touched her, was tickling the girl's inner desires in way she had likely not expected.

How utterly perfect.

Antoinette chuckled as she caressed the woman's clitoris, and teased over the small chain dangling from its hood. Her other hand reached around Veronica's hip, slipped between her thighs, and sank two probing fingers up into the girl's slit, earning some squirming groans from her. Oh yes, absolutely drenched, and Veronica could not help but clench on Antoinette's fingers as the Prince curled them toward her g-spot.

Poor girl. Antoinette had spent over five hundred years not only with her only body, but the bodies of many women. With a single thought, she could have had Veronica lost to orgasm. But tonight was about Jack, and Antoinette slowed her pace to match Veronica's.

Jack melted back in his chair, and held his pet's head tenderly as the blue-haired creature kissed and suckled on his cock. Veronica's body language was clear. To hold her head and pet her drove her mad with heat, and her insides clamped down on Antoinette's fingers all the tighter as Jack looked down to her with the adoring eyes of a master.

Whether Jack wanted to admit it or not, there was Ventrue inside him, someone that delighted in being in charge, someone that wanted to take prey smaller and weaker, and ravage them. And while Antoinette could not satisfy that craving, his pet — soon to be many pets — could.

Antoinette released a perfect, husky sigh of pleasure, as she watched her lover's eyes half close with bliss. He shivered for a moment, abs flexing with a jolt of pleasure, and he melted back once more as Veronica slowed her lips, and milked him during his first orgasm of the night.

And as she did, Antoinette fingered her harder, and trapped her engorged clitoris between massaging fingers. Veronica trembled and squirmed against Antoinette's chest and breasts, but Antoinette did not let her go. As the thrall descended into blissful rapture, Antoinette eased her stroking of the girl's clitoris, but only increased how hard she curled her other fingers against her depths. Just as Veronica milked Jack, lips still locked around his cock, Antoinette milked Veronica, easily driving the girl to more trembling squirms until drops of her juices fell from Antoinette's fingers.

The pet's fellatio technique likely suffered, trapped in bliss as she was, but Jack did not mind, eyes drifting between both women with obvious joy.

Eventually Jack lifted Veronica's head, and she let it collapse onto his pelvis and hip. Moaning and mewling, she squirmed and wriggled in Antoinette's grip, more juices trickling down onto the Prince's fingers.

"Master ... help..."

Jack chuckled, a playful, dominant sound, before looking to Antoinette. "I think she's done."

Nodding, Antoinette stopped. The girl was no Kindred, or even a ghoul. A thrall had no more sexual stamina than any normal human, after all, and Antoinette would have to temper her expectations.

As Veronica recovered, Antoinette gently pulled her back against Antoinette's chest. Veronica, still trembling, gasped as she looked up at Antoinette, only to freeze as Antoinette slowly slid a hand up the half swimsuit, half maid dress, until her hand found the cleavage. Both ladies looked to Jack, excited to see his reaction, as Antoinette pulled the dress's frilly white front down, exposing Veronica's large breasts and pierced nipples.

They were engorged, with small chains dangling from each.

"Beautiful," Jack said, eyes meeting Veronica's with pure, wholesome, dominant energy. Which Veronica absorbed, and she quivered with delight.

"To the bed, my love?"

"God yes." He stood up, length still wet with Veronica's saliva, and motioned for his pet to sit on the bed. She did, but before Jack joined her, he motioned to Antoinette. “Antoinette, if you would be so kind as to sit back on the bed, and spread your legs?”

A direct request from her lover? He caught on quickly.

“Oh my. Am I to be the target of your pet’s affections?”

Jack laughed, his bright smile warming the room. “Yes.”

“Wonderful.” She climbed onto the large bed of red silk, piled up the many pillows behind her to create a leaning wall for her to sit back against, and she spread her legs.

Veronica knew what was about to happen. She was about to be asked to do something she had never done before: pleasure her master’s lover on her own, without the aid of Jack, or Elaine, or Ashley or Julee.

Julee and Ashley would be terribly jealous, but Antoinette would make it up to them. An orgy perhaps, with them at the center. And a decadent ice cream to follow.

“Veronica, get on your elbows and knees, and eat out my lover.”

The little blue-haired creature gulped, nodded, and crawled onto her knees between Antoinette’s thighs. She quivered with every inch, undoubtedly from a mix of post orgasm bliss dripping down her thighs, but also fear. She was quite terrified of Antoinette, but Antoinette could see that only added to the silly little creature’s arousal. And as Veronica got comfortable on her elbows, lips a single inch from Antoinette’s swollen, wet flesh, the adrenaline pumping through her was obvious.

“Envelop me in your mouth completely, little thrall. And use slow, heavy strokes. I will tell you when it is time to grow faster.” Unlike Jack, Antoinette had no trouble describing specifically what she found pleasurable.

“Yes, my Prince.” The little thrall gulped again, obviously scared she would do something incorrectly, but considering how many times she had had her lips on Elaine, and Ashley and Julee at that, Antoinette trusted her to do well.

And besides, watching Jack embrace his more aggressive desires, and unleash them upon his pet, was terribly arousing. Antoinette would need little, to find climax.

Veronica wrapped her mouth around Antoinette’s smooth, swollen slit, and did as ordered. With slow, heavy strokes of her tongue, she bathed Antoinette’s lips and clitoris in wet warmth, and Antoinette sighed as immediate, powerful sparks of pleasure shot outward from where Jack’s pet kissed her. Sharp, the tingling shocks spread out through her legs and down to her toes, announcing that she was indeed, quite aroused, but Veronica’s pace would not be enough to send her over the edge. For now, Antoinette could relax, and enjoy the build, while watching her lover indulge himself.

She sighed blissed as she hugged her breasts together up onto her chest, crossed her wrists, caressed her aching nipples, and smiled up at Jack as he got onto his knees behind Veronica, and pulled aside the crotch of her uniform. The smile on his face was positively joyful.

“Really?” he asked. The boy was, of course, referring to the strange blue gem sticking out of his thrall’s derriere.

“Of course. She will be quite tight, I do believe.” She had chosen a rather large anal plug for Veronica, after all.

Veronica smiled around Antoinette’s sex, but did not stop. She was learning quickly.

Chuckling, Jack hooked the bottom of the uniform around one of Veronica’s butt cheeks, exposing her for him, and he lined up his cock with her sex. Antoinette could not see the point of intimacy, with Veronica's ass raised and blocking her view, but the changes in expression in the thrall's eyes were clear as night. Jack was caressing her entrance, her folds, her clitoris, the piercing dangling from her clitoris hood, with his glans.

And then the boy grabbed her hips, and slammed himself into her hard enough her delightful rump jiggled with the impact.

Veronica almost collapsed. But as a heavy moan escaped her, and her eyes rolled up with bliss, she managed to keep her mouth around Antoinette's sex. A moment later, she resumed licking, and Antoinette smiled rewardingly as she teased circles around her large, swollen, pink nipples that jutted out from milky skin.

"Damn, that is ... very, very tight," he said.

Antoinette blew her lover a kiss. "I can imagine."

Jack looked down, and the hunger in his eyes doubled, as his gaze slid down Veronica's butt, down her back and maid uniform, to her head where she was firmly set against Antoinette's slit, and then to Antoinette herself. Naturally Antoinette had to create a display for him, to tease him with her wondrous body, and she did so, plucking playfully at her nipples with one hand while the other gently pressed up against the other breast in waves, causing it to ripple. And in his attempt to also create a delicious scene for her, he slowly eased his length out of Veronica, and delightfully flexed his core, as he thrust into his trapped thrall.

Veronica again groaned, but with her elbows spread underneath Antoinette's thighs, and head practically resting against her sex, she would not fall over easily. And once she recovered, she resumed licking.

"Faster," Antoinette whispered, flicking her eyes down to Veronica. Jack's pet nodded, and did as told, burying Antoinette's clitoris in almost desperate licks that doubled the jolts of bliss coursing down through the Prince's legs.

Jack also grew faster, but with far more haste than Veronica. He tightened his grip on his poor pet's hips, and slammed into her in rapid speed. The tiny creature resisted her master as best she could, and moaned around Antoinette's slit as she struggled to withstand the sudden assault.

Antoinette could pay little heed to the small blue-haired girl between her legs. Her eyes were locked onto her lover as he pounded his pet with need, with power, with hunger. And while both their eyes lingered to watch the thrall's lovely ass jiggle, rippling against his pelvis and abdomen before pushing forward toward the small of her back and then toward his own body again, they eventually looked to each other.

Antoinette watched her lover, and drank in the sight of his hungry eyes, his flexing abs, and his tightening arms as they squeezed and yanked on Veronica's hips. Jack watched her, and drank in her body, the way her breasts flowed with inertia against her chest and arms, and the delighted, lustful expression Antoinette offered him.

Antoinette came first. A touch embarrassing, but she had been quite ready for some time, after seeing her lover cum, and then fingering his pet to orgasm soon after. She shivered as the sharp pleasure sparks shot outward from her clitoris, and spread out through her pelvis, some reaching down through her thighs and toes. She set a hand on Veronica's head, and the pet knew to cease her licking, but Antoinette also did not let her raise her head. It felt delightful to keep Veronica's warmth upon her slit, as the pleasure shocks continued to pulse.

The moment Antoinette came down from her pleasure high, Jack thrust harder, and faster. Veronica raised her head as she gasped, and her eyes rolled up as her jaw dangled. For a single moment, she tried to look at Antoinette again, but it was for not. She collapsed, cheek pressing to Antoinette's inner thigh, and she came yet again as Jack fucked her.

Jack came as well. Antoinette lifted her eyes from the exhausted, mewling girl to watch her lover as his eyes focused on his pet. With his grip solid, he did not fuck her gently. He thrust hard and fast, driving into her with enough speed and force to have the bed creaking and shifting. But he slowed as he filled his pet with his cum, and he loosened his grip.

Of course, as Antoinette had taught him, Jack gave his thrall a rather harsh slap on the ass, earning another weak mewl from her that undoubtedly had her drenched insides milking every drop of his seed out of him. Again, and again, each earning more noises from his pet, carnal and salacious. But all good things come to an end eventually, and Jack stepped back from his thrall, exposing his soaked length.

He chuckled down at Veronica, and lightly pushed her ass to the side, pushing her over. She landed outside and beside Antoinette's legs, quivering, and smiling in obvious post-orgasm bliss.

"I believe I am feeling envious." Nodding, and donning her playful smile, Antoinette slid down the bed closer to her lover, and rolled over onto her knees, beside Veronica. And then onto Veronica.

"M-Master?" the thrall asked, trying to peek past Antoinette to Jack. But Antoinette covered the woman in her shadow as she knelt around her while also pushing Veronica onto her back. This left Veronica's face directly under Antoinette's breasts.

"Your master," Antoinette whispered, "is a generous lover, is he not?"

She blushed all the harder. "He is."

Antoinette nodded, and looked back to the young man. “My love, if you do not mind?”

Jack groaned as he stepped up to her. But her love knew better than to jump directly to sex with her. He slid between Veronica’s legs on his knees, took Antoinette’s hip into his left hand, and eased two of his right hand’s fingers into her insides.

Antoinette smiled down at Veronica as she lowered herself down a touch. Still on her hands and knees so she did not crush the tiny, busty creature, it did not take much to lower herself until her heavy breasts rested against Veronica’s neck and chin. Of course the terrified thrall dared not move, gazing up at Antoinette, unsure of what to do or say, as Antoinette let out a sultry, perfect moan.

“Veronica dear, treat your master’s love to your delightful touch.”

“I ... don’t know—”

“What the Prince means, my pet,” Jack said, “is she wants you to play with her breasts, the way you’ve seen me play with them. Do it.”

Veronica froze.

Antoinette smiled yet again down at the scared pet, and as Jack’s fingering grew harder and deeper, she arched her back and slid her breasts onto the thrall’s face. “Come now, do as your master ordered.”

Veronica’s eyes lit up with a new form of arousal. She had not considered that Antoinette would want her to pleasure her, while her lover also pleased her, as if Antoinette would not want to feel pleasure from her with her master already doing so. How silly.

The thrall tilted her head back, opened her mouth, and Antoinette’s swollen nipple slipped between her lips.

Instant sparks of pleasure flowed upward from Antoinette's breast into her chest, and she groaned down at Veronica as she smiled at her. An encouraging groan, the sort she had used for Ashley and Julee many times. It worked wonders, Veronica's eyes lighting up with new confidence, and she made her own happy mewl as she suckled and licked.

And of course, Jack's two fingers were pressing down against her g-spot again and again, a delicious rhythm that sent deep waves of bliss up through Antoinette's body and down her legs once more. Her insides boiled, and pleasure tremors worked through her as the two bathed her body in delight.

"Your pet," Antoinette said as she looked over her shoulder, "is quite beautiful, and talented."

Jack smiled at her. "I think so too."

Another peek down at the thrall, and Antoinette caught her prideful expression before she half closed her eyes as she again bathed Antoinette's swollen areola in happy kisses and suckles. Growing bolder, she brought up both her hands, and squeezed them down along the outsides of Antoinette's breasts. Her hands were far too small to encompass much of Antoinette's bust, but she still managed to cup and caress the skin, until one hand found the untouched nipple, and softly massaged it as well.

As much as Antoinette adored the sensation of lips on her nipples, and had indeed climaxed dozens of times from it and it alone, her lover was currently gripping her ass with one hand, and slowly increasing the pressure and speed of his probing fingers with the other. The pleasure his fingers sent through her as they pressed down hard against her aching g-spot grew explosive, and Antoinette released a practiced, but quite real moan as the tremors built, and built, and built.

The orgasm flowed out, and Antoinette's moan elevated to masterful groan. She peeked over her shoulder at her lover, but he was busy staring at her drenched slit and lips, and the juices she leaked onto his hand as he fingered her. And he did not slow down. Antoinette's groans grew weaker as the pleasure tremors pulsed through her, until her thighs shook and her toes curled. Three years of frequent sex together meant her lover knew how fast and how hard to push her, and soon Antoinette found herself struggling to manage the pleasure as the boy fingered her through the orgasm, drawing it out until the waves of bliss working up and down her body grew almost painful. He fingered her harder, harder than he normally did, and Antoinette quivered as a hard clench of her insides soaked the boy's hand. The noises were utterly lascivious, soon turning into a wet splashing sound as her lover's fingering grew rough enough to have her flowing juices splashing her ass and thighs.

A glance down at Veronica showed the thrall staring up at her in awe, slowing her suckling, but still offering gentle kisses. And as Jack finally let Antoinette come down from her orgasm, she slipped back further toward her lover, and then down onto the thrall, to bury Veronica's breasts with her own. Soft skin upon skin, Veronica gulped as she looked down at how her large breasts disappeared beneath the Prince's.

“Make my lover happy, little thrall, and I will reward you in ways you cannot imagine. And my lover craves one thing at this moment, little thrall: my pleasure.” Smiling down at the shocked thrall, Antoinette knelt higher once more, until her enormous breasts were again resting against the beautiful blue-haired woman's neck and chin. “The other, s'il vous plaît. And gently, little thrall. I grow sensitive.”

Veronica gulped, nodded, and resumed her work, now with the other breast.

Antoinette released one of her darker, hungrier groans, as Jack lined his length up with her slit, and slammed his cock into her. Orgasm aftershocks still tingled and shivered their way through Antoinette's body, and she clenched her depths in response to the sudden penetration. She was drenched. Jack's cock was already covered in juices, his and his pet's, and Antoinette's dripping entrance provided no resistance despite her squeezing muscles.

Jack took her hips, and fucked her. No one had touched him since his orgasm within Veronica, meaning it would take him several minutes at least to build up to another orgasm. And he seemed determined to do it while pounding Antoinette hard enough she could see her breasts jiggle against Veronica's face, and her ass shook hard with each impact. A peek again proved it, her plentiful derriere rippling as her deliciously lean, muscular lover fucked her with almost desperate speed.

Antoinette succumbed. She had planned to spend the night being rather dominant with Jack's thrall, but now Jack was fucking her as hard as he had Veronica moments before. Harder. It was terribly difficult to appear regal and powerful, when the body decided to rebel, and explode with pleasure. Antoinette sighed bliss as she lowered herself down to her elbows, squashing her breast over Veronica's face as her lover thrust into her hard enough she felt his testicles slap her tingling clitoris. Juices splashed, and Antoinette let her eyes drift nearly closed as he built her up to climax far faster than she had expected.

She clenched on his length hard, earning a hungry, animal groan from her lover, but he did not slow down. And as Veronica suckled and kissed and massaged Antoinette's breasts, the Prince quivered in the rising bliss. The heat boiled over, and her depths erupted in spasms as Jack fucked her from behind, each stroke driving his cock down against her g-spot before reaching deeper.

It was not long before each slap of his testicles against her swollen nub became a wet slap of soaked flesh. She drenched him yet again, and more besides, and she let out another perfect moan as Jack refused to stop. Pressure, delicious pressure, hitting down against her g-spot again and again, even as her clenching muscles tried to stop him. The pleasure slowed for only a moment before it boiled over yet again, and she trembled as her squeezing depths leaked more fluid onto her lover. It trickled down her thighs, down her stomach, and onto her breasts, no doubt reaching the suckling thrall.

She had not soaked her lover this terribly in some time. Perhaps the prospect of teaching his thrall how to properly tend to her lover's needs appealed to her in ways she had not expected?

Jack finally slowed, and Antoinette sighed with satisfaction as she pushed herself back up onto her hands. She backed up again, and again lowered herself down onto Veronica until their breasts molded together. She knew what it meant when Jack slowed in such a manner.

“Your master cums inside me as we speak, little thrall.” Antoinette grinned down at the deliriously aroused tiny creature, and titled her torso from side to side slightly, pressing their breasts together all the more. “He is a surprisingly talented lover, is he not?”

“He is! He is.”

“Indeed. I taught him well.” Antoinette grinned over her shoulder at her little Ventrue, and found her tingling body singing as she recognized the look of rapture in his eyes. A hard clench of her depths pulled a groan from him, and Jack offered her a slow, deep thrust in return, as he poured his cum into her depths.

Antoinette pressed her body down against Veronica, and gently rubbed their breasts together. They were both well endowed,

Antoinette absurdly so, thus she knew Jack could see both their breasts pushing out to the sides of their chests. Sure enough, Jack moaned, the sound he used when something both erotic and awe-filling caught his eye. He no doubt stared at how Veronica and Antoinette's breasts squashed against each other, molding to each other's shapes as they pressed outward from their chests. And she made sure to grin down at the scared, yet enthralled kine as she did.

Eventually Jack removed himself, and Antoinette rolled off his pet. The two women lay beside each other, Veronica panting with exhaustion and desire, and Antoinette still quivering with orgasm aftershocks.

Antoinette sat up onto her elbows, and licked her lips as she looked to her lover, who knelt between her legs, cock hard and dripping.

“All that, and he has yet to feed.” Laughing, Antoinette gestured to her love. “How would you like to finish this, Jack?”

It took him a moment to realize he was still in charge of this night, and he grinned like a serpent as he realized what Antoinette was willing to do for him.

“Sit back please, and let Veronica lie on you. I want to fuck her from the front when I drink her.”

Oh my, so direct. With a husky purr, Antoinette did as requested, sliding back up onto the mound of pillows until she was half lying, half sitting. And as if Veronica weighed nothing at all, she sat the girl down on her ass between Antoinette's thighs.

“Master? I—” She went silent as Antoinette softly wrapped a hand about her throat, and gently eased her back, until Veronica lay upon Antoinette's stomach. With her other hand, Antoinette lifted each of her own breasts, so Veronica had the room to rest her head against the Prince's sternum, while Antoinette rested her breasts upon the girl's shoulders.

"Spread your legs," Jack ordered.

Veronica gulped, and did so.

Jack, with an almost sinister grin, settled over top Veronica, and lowered himself down onto her. The most basic of missionary positions, but such a position was more than enough to bring a girl to orgasm when the Kiss was soon to be involved. Especially when said girl's ass was filled with a terribly large plug.

Jack slid his knees under hers, and eased his soaked cock into her dripping slit, the small chain dangling from her clitoris sliding along his length and its veins. Immediately Veronica gasped, and she pressed her hands against Jack's chest in loving adoration as she panted. Well, the thrall had cum many times, and was both exhausted, and still quite sensitive.

Chuckling, Antoinette slid her hands up to the frilly cleavage of the dress and where it sat under Veronica's breasts, before she cupped both of the large mounds. Veronica looked up and back to catch Antoinette's gaze, and she shivered as she looked back to her master, while Antoinette began to softly massage the woman's breasts. The tiny chains that dangled from her nipples were alluring, and Antoinette grinned at Jack as she gently bounced the pet's breasts until the chains bounced as well.

Veronica was still not used to the change in pace vampires often made during sex. To go from rough 'doggy' to gentle missionary was not something she was used to yet. The girlish squeal she made when Jack leaned forward, and with Antoinette's help, wrapped his lips around Veronica's left nipple, was utterly delightful.

They spent some time like this, Antoinette massaging both of the pet's breasts, enjoying the feel of their softness and heavy weight spilling over her palms, and how her swollen nipples jutted out with her piercings. They were beautiful, and Jack hungered for them. And Antoinette relished the look of delight in his eyes as he suckled upon his pet's nipple, pulling more whimpers from her, while Antoinette massaged the breast into his kiss.

“Veronica, Ashley and Julee will be terribly jealous when they hear of tonight. The next time you join my ghouls and I in bed, do try and make it up to them, would you?”

“Y-Yes Prince, I—nnng!” Her voice died away into a helpless mewl, as Jack lay upon her, buried his chest against her breasts, and sank his fangs into her neck. “Master!”

Jack growled into his pet's neck, and Veronica squeaked. He devoured his pet, face half buried into Antoinette's right breast as he drank from the right side of Veronica's neck. And as he did, he thrust into her again, and relied on the Kiss to let such a poor position easily push the thrall into rapture. Like an animal, his thrusts grew more and more impactful, and Antoinette's hands slid down to find his firm ass to squeeze, as her lover grew rougher with his pet. He continued to drink her and drink her, until Veronica looked up, met Antoinette's eyes, and drifted away into bliss.

Jack did not drain her until she slipped into unconscious. Rather, he drained her until she nearly had, as Antoinette had taught him; prey were far more fun to play with if they were still awake. He grinned at Antoinette, and slid his cock out from Veronica's insides. He had not orgasmed. He spread his legs, put Veronica's between his, and inched forward over her, until Antoinette was forced to spread her legs to make room for his knees, as he got comfortable on Veronica's stomach.

Ah, she knew what he wanted. Chuckling, Antoinette once again set her hands upon the pet's breasts, the outer contours, and pushed them together on Veronica's chest rather than let them pull aside to her ribs with gravity.

Jack leaned forward, set his hands on Veronica's shoulders, his knuckles snug under Antoinette's breasts, and set his cock in his pet's bosom. Of course, with a stomach now full of blood, the boy would need to be treated to orgasm again. And again.

Veronica, panting and shivering as she struggled to stay awake, managed to peek up at her master every now and then, as he fucked her breasts. But her arms dangled limp outside of Antoinette's legs, and her head rested snug between Antoinette's breasts, gently lulled to one side, with a drop of drool on her lip. But she was smiling.

Jack came. White seed spilled up through the valley of Veronica's breasts before rolling back down, with the girl half sitting up as she leaned back against Antoinette's stomach. Antoinette squeezed Veronica's breasts around his girth, and massaged them bottom to top in a milking motion, earning another gush from Jack, this one splashing against Veronica's neck. And another gush, and another, that soon collected along Antoinette's wrists and hands, only to be massaged into the woman's skin.

But he was not done. He reset his length between his pet's breasts, and they resumed, now using Veronica's cum-soaked flesh to satisfy him. Antoinette could not fault the boy for indulging his Blush, now that his stomach was full, driving his desires, his arousal. And most importantly, for truly indulging the more masculine side of his lust. So she grinned at her lover over Veronica's head, and continued to milk his length with his pet's body, until the boy came yet again. It did not take long. Antoinette was an expert, after all.

His fifth orgasm soon ended, though he knew better than to simply walk away. He stayed snug to Veronica's body, cock still buried between her breasts, and let the Prince milk him of every last drop. And when thick gushes of white ceased to flow onto his pet's sternum, she continued anyway, knowing full well each time she squished his pet's breasts against his length until it mostly disappeared between them, the boy loved it. They had done this with her own breasts, and Elaine's breasts, hundreds of times, and doing it with his pet's breasts was a joy. The way Jack shivered as his sensitive length basked in the warm, wet bed of Veronica's bust, all at Antoinette's whim, was glorious. His eyes half closed as he stared down at the bed of soft flesh, and how Antoinette's massaging fingers spread his cum over and around, until it spilled over her knuckles.

Antoinette was herself partly to blame for a night of such reckless indulgence. She could not help but drink in the sight as well, gazing down at her love's cock and how it shifted back and forth as Antoinette bathed it in his pet's bust. And, to her utter delight, Jack came yet again. A dangerous game, allowing the Blush to let him ride the edge of sensitivity so he could cum once more, and so quickly, but after the troubles that had befallen her lover, he deserved it. She squeezed Veronica's breasts snug around his cock, until his sixth orgasm of the night buried her in such waves that it overflowed completely, and soon Antoinette found her own breasts soaked in cum as it flowed up, over, and around Veronica's neck, and onto where Antoinette's breasts rested on the thrall's shoulders.

Antoinette let go of Veronica, and the spell was broken. Jack sat up straighter, and slid back a foot as he stared down at his panting, whimpering, cum-soaked prize.

~/♥♥♥~/

“Holy shit. I ... kinda really gave into it there, didn't I?”

“I remember when you found three orgasms to be an absurd idea, and it took forty minutes of sex to bring you to that limit.” She gestured down at his pet, and how her bust, and neck, and shoulders, and stomach, were entirely coated in white. “You have cum six times tonight, and three of them in ten minutes. I have seen Jackson Pollocks with less mess.”

“Fuck. I should probably tone it down a bit.”

“Perhaps. Again, as long as you do not find yourself enjoying fellatio while simultaneously discussing important business matters with Kindred underlings, I do not think you have crossed a line.”

“Business before pleasure?”

“Or vice versa, but never together.”

He grinned, nodded, and leaned in again. Not to fuck Veronica anymore, but to kiss Antoinette.

“Thanks. I needed this.”

“You are most welcome, my love.”

---

~~Natasha~~

They all left after the Prince and Jack did. Everyone getting half naked, and five of them getting quite drunk, was always going to be a concoction that led to sex.

Daniel and Athalia left first, though they didn't go down the stairs. Athalia took Daniel's hand, and took him further back, into one of the back corners of Bloodlust's second floor, where it was darker, with a more isolated booth.

Jessy and Eric left a moment later. Knowing the look in Jessy's eye, she wanted to get back to her place, or Eric's, and spend the rest of the night with a fully transformed werewolf inside her. Would a drunk Uratha still be drunk when transformed? Probably not, considering how quickly they recovered in that form.

Damien and Fiona left. Damien had to carry her out, and she giggled the whole time. Giggled, and tried to fondle and kiss Damien as he helped her. It was comical. Fiona was such a happy person, even when mourning.

And that left Natasha alone with Arturo and Matthew. To her surprise, Arturo stopped fondling her, and set his hands on her bare stomach instead, hugging her.

“N-Not gonna try and convince me to have sex here?” she asked, looking up over her shoulder at the man.

“Nah. I can hear Athalia and Daniel starting to, though. Figured you wouldn’t want to do that with your sire nearby.”

“And,” Matt said, “we know you’re more comfortable with walls, and a camera with good lighting.”

She frowned — playfully — at Matt before looking back to Art. “They are? Y-You can hear them?”

“Barely. Music is pretty damn loud, but yeap, I can hear her moaning.”

Daniel, and Athalia, having sex, in a public place. Natasha blinked at Art and Matt a few more times, before she picked back up the other half of her dress, and slipped it back on. It really was nothing more than a necklace with a dangling bit of loose fabric in the front that barely managed to cover her breasts. She really liked it.

She grinned at her boyfriends, held a finger up to her lips, and pointed down at the seat. Stay, while she did a little investigating. They both blinked at her and each other, before they smiled and nodded.

She slipped out of the booth, and poured vitae into her Cloak. A lot of it. She’d have to drain both her boys tonight, cause doing this was going to leave her ravenous, but she wanted a peek, and to Cloak herself from her sire was going to be difficult. Maybe impossible. But what was the worst that could happen? Her sire learned she was a pervert? She made porn! For fun! Good porn, but still porn. That ship had sailed.

Her sire was distracted though, supposedly, and with the darkness and the pulsing music covering everything, it was perfect for sneaking.

She didn't have to go far. One booth over, and she found a place to peek around the empty booth's corner, and into one of the further back booths.

There they were. Tash's sire really was a handsome man, shortish brown hair and beige skin, a bit tall and lanky, but with half his clothes off, all his muscle definition was blatant. In a different world, maybe Natasha and Daniel could have been an item. They had similarities. And horny as she was right now, it was easier to imagine her in his arms.

But Athalia fit so much better than Tash did. The woman sat on his lap, facing the table, Daniel behind her, and she ground her hips around and around at an almost desperate pace. Her dark breasts jiggled against her, bouncing along with the chest chain that circled them.

The hottest part, was how Daniel had one hand around her throat, squeezing, while the other disappeared under the table. Tash lowered her head to peek underneath, and shivered as she saw her sire's hand on Athalia's sex. Hard to see anything from where she was, but it was obvious the man was stroking her clitoris while Athalia bounced on him.

And it was nice. Super hot and sexy, yes, to see Athalia already close to orgasm; the whole night must have been turning her on more than she wanted them to realize. But it was also nice to see Athalia happy.

It got a thousand times hotter when Daniel sank his fangs into her neck.

Natasha knew, intimately, the feeling of Uratha blood rushing through the body. Thick, warm, delicious, and unbelieving energizing. Like cocaine mixed with an orgasm, maybe. But from what she knew about Begotten blood, it was different. It was like getting the aggression meter dialed up to eleven, and drunk, while also being outrageously horny.

For the first time, Tash got to see what Daniel looked when some genuine, real emotion was on his face. Maybe her sire could do what Tash could, and see better than most vampires in the dark. Hopefully he couldn't see Tash, still Cloaked, jaw dropped, staring, as her sire's eyes lit up with hunger, and desire.

Athalia's eyes half closed, lost to the Kiss, and orgasm. But Daniel was now riding on a wave of energy, and apparently whatever sort of dark, aggressive urges Begotten blood gave. He turned Athalia around, ensuring the now limp and exhausted woman rested her chest against his, and her head slipped into the nook of his neck and shoulder. He took her hands, both of them, and held them behind her against the small of her back. And with both his hands behind her, he pressed her toward him.

It was a strange mix of gentle, and dominant. Athalia was trapped in post-Kiss bliss, and she squirmed on Daniel, almost like she was trying to get away. She couldn't, not exhausted like she was, and not with Daniel keeping her pinned against him. And Daniel was more than strong enough to keep her hands pinned against the small of her back, while also pushing against it to keep grinding her pelvis into him. She wasn't trying to get away of course, but she made those movements anyway, as if she liked how it felt when Daniel stopped her. She probably did.

Considering Daniel just fed on her, Athalia was going to spend at least the next thirty minutes, if not longer, riding the sheriff.

Tash almost sighed happily as Athalia nuzzled into Daniel's chest, and hid her face in his neck. Too cute.

Curiosity satisfied, Tash left. From what she saw, she had enough information to fill in some blanks about what kind of person Athalia was. Cuddling up into her man, melting against him, hiding her face cause she was probably super embarrassed, and loving it, it was all so beautiful. And sexy.

If Azamel hadn't just died, the sex probably would have been a fair bit rougher, too. But, crazed as Daniel probably was, with a belly full of Begotten blood pulsing into his body, he seemed to have the presence of mind to fuck her in a way a little more reserved. Plus, it was probably Athalia's first time having sex in public.

She was definitely enjoying it, though.

Tash smiled, and sneaked away. It was so romantic! Or at least, romantic in a Dolareido way. Some nice, gentle but dominant sex in the booth of a night club? All cuddled up and hugging and holding each other? That was pretty romantic for Slut City.

Tash came back to her booth, but found the boys both peeking out into a nearby booth. Not Daniel's, they couldn't see it from here. They were peeking over into the booth Elaine had disappeared into.

Tash grinned at the boys, and sneaked closer to the other booth. Sure enough, there was Elaine, one of the most promiscuous — and powerful — vampires Tash knew of. The blonde elder sat on Derick's lap, while Brianna the werewolf sat on Santos's lap. Brianna looked absolutely exhausted, and was struggling to keep from falling over.

Elaine was stopping her. She was leaning over onto Brianna, squashing her breasts against the slightly shorter, dark skinned werewolf, and kissing her neck and hugging her. Not a Daniel and Athalia hug. An orgy hug, meant to maximize skin-on-skin rubbing.

Santos and Derick were obviously high on werewolf blood, and probably a little scared about the fact a five-hundred-year-old vampire had just come to turn to their threesome into a foursome. Elaine probably bullied her way into their group, at least a little, but considering the look on their faces, and Brianna's, they were happy to give in.

Elaine, that woman, marching around and doing whatever she wanted. That confidence was enviable, but Natasha didn't trust her. Not because she was the biggest slut Tash had ever seen; no vampire cared about promiscuity, especially in Dolareido. She didn't trust her, because she was sure Elaine was up to something. Jack knew it, and Antoinette knew it, but neither of them seemed to want to do anything about it.

It was hard to ask them about it, especially Antoinette. Elaine was a dragon, in a way Tash might never be, deep into the biggest secrets the order had, just like Antoinette. And they'd been friends for centuries. How could Tash tell her boss that she wasn't being suspicious enough of Elaine? It wasn't like Elaine didn't ever deceive her, considering Antoinette didn't know Elaine was Viktor's sire, and those vampires had all known each other before coming to the USA.

Either Antoinette knew something Tash didn't, or Elaine was tricking her again.

Chapter 157

~~Beatrice~~

The war was over. Jacob laughed when he told her that. Told her it was temporary, because the Carthians and the Invictus and ‘Churchies’ always eventually got in each other’s face and business. Tale as old as time, he said. But either way, for the moment, there was a truce, and that meant people could breathe easy; dumb metaphor considering vampires.

Triss and Jen were at the cave when Sam showed up, and she smiled and waved at them before she slipped into Jacob’s alcove. They hadn’t started working on crafting a body for her daughter yet, but they had scouted for potential people to kill. They’d brought Sam on those trips, too. Sam hadn’t liked that, but at the same time, exposing some of the horrible shit kine got up to settled her guilt, a little. Some kine really had it coming.

Ugh, Julias would not agree with that. He’d have counter arguments and shit, and most frustratingly, they’d be good ones.

Killing humans was a shitty thing to do, and Triss didn’t exactly like that it came easier to her than other vampires. Probably part of the reason Jacob took her under his wing. Probably part of the reason she got on the whole witch wavelength so easily. It wouldn’t be easy for Samantha, but the woman insisted on being part of the process. Best Triss could do was make it as easy as possible for Sam, and hopefully avoid scarring the woman for the next hundred years.

“I worry about her,” Triss said. Jen and her sat up in Jen’s alcove, a half dozen feet above the ground floor of the cave.

“So do I.”

“Elen’s still kicking. Last Jacob checked, he thinks she’ll be good for longer than we thought. More than long enough to get her daughter a body.”

“And when Elen’s mind goes?”

Triss shrugged. “She’ll still be alive? Jacob thinks whatever magics she’s powering will keep. No brain, but a pulsing, beating pile of flesh. And if we lose her somehow, we have her book, and her knife. We’re witches, right? Maybe we can put something together, a ritual or talisman, to keep her shit running.” Last thing she wanted was her Julias body to die because Elen’s magic stopped.

“New goal?”

“Eh, not yet. Strike when the iron’s hot, right? Or some other bullshit analogy. Let’s get Mary a body, and then we can worry about preserving Julias. Not like we’ll need to worry about Mary’s.”

“Assuming we can put Mary in the new body.”

“Black Blood says there’s something in the book to help with that. Mary can’t just hop into the body; that’d be possession and temporary, according to him. To actually put the soul into the body and bind it is different.”

Jen sighed and shook her head. “Binding souls to empty bodies. You know, four years ago, the biggest thing I worried about was staying out of Tony’s way, and which ghouls I wanted.”

Laughing, Triss slipped an arm over Jen’s shoulder. The two of them were sitting, leaned up against the cave wall with some blankets behind them, reading stuff. Triss was a moron, and didn’t do much reading in the past. That fucking changed when Jacob put a bunch of ancient tomes in her lap and told her to read them so she didn’t get herself killed doing some ancient ritual wrong. Lots of stories about people dying in weird, mysterious circumstances.

Some of them were straight up horror stories, with people's hearts exploding inside their chest, or eyes melting inside their skull.

The Circle had their own books, but were pretty damn secretive about them, Dracul-level secret. And according to Jacob, they didn't like writing shit down in general. Word of mouth, stories told and not written, that was the way of the Circle of the Crone.

She still hadn't told Jacob the details about the vision, about when the Crone and the motherfucking moon had had a chat with her. Maybe she would some day, but not now, not yet. It wasn't like she didn't trust him, but she didn't trust him, not completely anyway. Same for Black Blood.

"I'm hungry," Triss said.

"My boys aren't here. Want to go hunting?"

"Sure. I wanna go talk to Jack, too."

---

"Uh ... hi," Triss said, and she damn well knew she had one eyebrow raised right up to her hair. "Thought you had someone to answer the door for you."

Jack squirmed, wearing the sort of rich, royal red robe a dude would wear, a hundred years ago, after getting laid. All that was missing was a pipe.

"Uh, Veronica's indisposed."

"That she is," the Prince said from the top of the stairs.

Triss and Jen both looked up, and gulped. The white-haired bitch was so, so, so fucking hot. Wearing only a purple silk robe, and barely wearing it at that considering how loose she'd tied it, she looked like some sort of goddess of sex and power. Which had probably been her intent, when she did whatever she did, to give herself the crazy features, and the crazy huge tits.

“I was gonna ask if you wanted to go hunting,” Triss said. “Been a while since we’ve done that.”

“Oh. Um...”

“The lord of the manor has recently fed,” Antoinette said, grinning.

“I can see that,” Jen said, and she winked at Jack. “Has your harem grown?”

“It’s not a harem!”

“Of course not,” Jen said in a motherly, dismissing tone, which of course had Jack frowning and fuming.

Triss snorted on a chuckle. “Dude, you’re a Ventrue. Embrace it.”

“Uh huh. Um, Antoinette, did you—”

“I would prefer to spend the night together, you and I, my love.”

Jack shrugged and nodded toward Triss. “You heard the lady.”

“But,” the Prince continued, “I would like to speak to Beatrice privately. If you do not mind, my love.”

She did? Well, sure, probably to talk about Jacob, Samantha, and the nasty shit Triss was up to that Antoinette had to know something about.

“Yeah. Let us in.” Triss folded her arms across her chest and gave the little punk her best angry face.

He rolled his eyes as he motioned for them to come in. They did.

“You can’t run a mansion without servants,” Jen said. “And you are a vampire, and a Ventrue. You might as well make those servants a harem.”

“He will,” the Prince said as she walked down the stairs. And of course she made damn sure to sway those big hips under her tiny waist as she did. Just like Othello, the girl couldn’t help but flaunt her body with every motion. Jen did that, but it was something she actively did. She had to think about it and make the conscious effort to show off her body as she walked around. Daeva though, they did it as easily as kine breathed, and just as subconsciously. They couldn’t not do it.

And Triss was just as susceptible to looking at them as anyone else. Antoinette was hot, freaky hot, too hot in a weird kinda way. Super tall, white hair, red eyes, and utterly ludicrous tits? Yeah, it was actually hard to not look at her, and get pretty damn intimidated. Sure, dudes liked Jessica Rabbit, but there was a limit. Well, whatever, Jack liked it apparently. And if people could look past Triss’s crocodile teeth, or even find them oddly appealing, then there was damn sure a lot of people who were into girls as tall as giants with the white hair, red eyes, and tits each bigger than their head.

And Big Tits wanted to talk to her.

“Come Beatrice,” the Prince said once she got down to them. Hell, even barefoot she walked like she was on a fashion runway. “Let us leave the two Ventrue to discuss Ventrue interests.”

“Harems,” Jennifer nodded, and she grinned at Jack as she stepped in beside him. Jack inched away, but she inched after him.

Jen had balls to tease Jack with the Prince right there. But knowing Jen, it’d be her dream come true to be the subject of some angry sex from Antoinette.

Of course the Prince just laughed, and motioned for Triss to follow her down the halls of the mansion. She did, and she took a moment every so often to admire how damn pretty it all was. Yeah sure, Viktor's taste had been hilarious cliché for Dolareido, but all the royal reds, the golds and woods, it made every wall, every bench, every fucking window god damn gorgeous. And when the Prince took Triss into a private room, she got hit with the same sense of wonder.

And then memory. And then sadness. She'd been in this room before, with Julias.

“I—oh. I am sorry, dear Beatrice.”

“Sorry?”

“Do not attempt to deceive me, Beatrice. I can see the pain in your eyes. For a single moment, I had forgotten that you frequented this mansion to be with your love.”

Triss looked away. Wearing her emotions on her face in front of a Daeva was dumb, but it wasn't like she had a good poker face to begin with. Which made the whole conversation pretty damn dangerous for Triss. She couldn't lie, not well, especially not to the Prince.

“Lot of painful memories here, yeah.”

“But you came of your own volition?”

“Didn't plan to hang out. Like I said, just wanted to take Jack out hunting.”

The Prince smiled down at her as she sat in a luxurious chair, red and gold. “I am happy to know you are still friends with the boy.”

“It was a bit rough at first.” Triss sat down on the couch across from the seat, and did her best to ignore the memory of the time she’d fucked and cuddled Julias on it. “Even blamed him, for a little while. But my head calmed down eventually.” She pointed at her temple for a second. “And moved past it.”

“It will be a cold day in Hell, young Nosferatu, when someone can simply move past losing someone they loved with such fervor.”

Triss looked away again. God damn it, she didn’t come here for this.

“It’s a work in progress.”

“Jennifer has helped you with that, I assume.”

“She has. But I didn’t come here to talk about Julias, or my shit, Prince.”

“Indeed, but I am asking nonetheless.” She said it in her Prince voice, her ‘do what I fucking tell you to do’ voice, solid and flat, without a hint of anger or anything.

Triss frowned at her. “Yeah, Jen and me are pretty damn close.”

“And close with Samantha.”

“I—that what this is about? Your childe? You asking me if I’m ok, cause I hang out with Samantha?”

“Why can it not be both? Oui, I test the waters, to learn what waters my childe swims. But I am concerned for you as well, Beatrice. The waters you swim are dark and murky, and I can only guess what lies beneath.”

“You...” She almost asked if Antoinette meant about Elen, and what Triss, Jen, and Samantha were up to. Sure, Triss was a shit poker player, but she wasn't stupid enough to just reveal her hand flat out. "You know a lot about what I'm up to."

"Oui."

"But you let me keep pursuing it."

"Oui. There is no way to be taught the lessons you are going to learn, young Nosferatu. Those are lessons that can only be learned through trial and fire."

"And Sam? You're okay with her learning lessons the hard way?"

Antoinette sighed as she leaned back in the chair, and folded a leg over the other. "I do not know, Beatrice. But I am no coddling mother, content to wrap my childe in protection forever, preventing her from learning how to handle her second life. There are pains we Kindred face that are wholly unique, and you and her face a perfect example."

She knew. This damn bitch knew Sam stole Elen's book and knife. She knew Sam was going to try and resurrect her daughter. God damn it.

"I'm doing my best to keep Sam out of trouble."

"I appreciate that."

"But she knows what she wants."

"Does she? Or is she a single mother desperately grabbing onto things that could bring a semblance of her first life back?"

"She..." Triss smiled as she met the Prince's eyes. "She's Jack's mom."

"Ah oui. You mean deceptively intelligent, and surprisingly wise."

“Ha, yeah you could say it like that. I mean sure, she’s a broken woman in a way, and every night she struggles to claw herself out of a pit of misery. And that’s a deep fucking pit, Prince, deeper than anything I’ve ever dealt with.” Triss wasn’t so full of herself to think losing Julias held a candle to all the horrible shit that fell in Sam’s lap. “But she’s climbing.”

Antoinette returned the smile. “With Jacob’s help, I assume?”

“Ugh, it’s so sweet, you have no idea. It’s like reading some divorced mom’s shitty erotica, about a woman discovering how much she likes BDSM or something. Except the dude isn’t some sexy, scary obsessive stalker billionaire in this story. He’s Jacob.”

“You do not find your boss terrifying?”

“I mean, kinda? It’s not really the same, but I guess that’s a part of what turns Sam on about him, yeah. But other than that, he’s a fucking goofball.”

“He makes her laugh.”

“Yeap. And while I bet Sam would love to read that shitty erotica about the obsessive stalker billionaire who wants to dominate every aspect of his obsession’s life, I think Jacob’s been a lot healthier for her.”

“And her, him?”

“I...”

“I did not forget the request I made of you, so long ago, young Nosferatu. Jacob walks a dark path, and I am hoping you can steer him out of it.”

Triss shook her head. “You say that, but I’m not really ... I don’t know, I’m not in a position to help him.”

“Oh?”

“Maybe Sam is, but Jacob doesn’t involve either of us into whatever shit he’s up to. Maybe he will, some day, but so far he’s ... he’s content to let me get my hands dirty with my own shit, but not his.” Way to dance around the topic. How long could she talk about the crazy shit she was up to, without ever saying ‘resurrection’?

“I am sure Jacob watches you closely, Beatrice. I did not know the witches he had before you well, the witches from many decades ago, but there is a reason for that: they were not noteworthy. You are.”

“Thanks ... I guess.”

“It was a genuine compliment. Do you think I would let my child become entangled in the affairs of witches, if I did not feel at least one of them was worthy of consideration?”

Triss laughed. “Well, worthy of consideration I may be”—from a couple of gods too, apparently—“but I don’t know if I can help Jacob. I ... I mean ... maybe? We talk, and sometimes I get a small glimpse of the man in there, behind the clowning around and the jokes.”

“My old friend is difficult to dig out of his own mask.”

“Good a way of putting it as any. And I think Sam’s getting closer to him than me.”

“Perhaps romantically. But you are his colleague, and his friend.”

“Is Jacob even capable of having a real friend anymore?”

“I do not know, young Nosferatu. I do not know. But you can try.” Antoinette’s smile returned, and got a little evil as she leaned forward. Triss did her best to not notice how her huge tits almost hung out of the robe. “Sam refuses to describe her intimate time with the witches in the detail I wish, but she has hinted, more than once, that you have touched her.”

“Oh god.”

“Have you?”

Triss squirmed and looked anywhere but at Antoinette. “I mean, a little? It’s hard not to, you know? Jacob keeps putting her in more and more, uh, exposing situations, and she’s just...” Fuck it. “She’s cumming her brains out, and you can just tell she loves it when everyone’s watching her. So Jacob’s in her, Othello’s in her, Madison’s on her, so I guess, I mean ... yeah, I’ve touched her? A tiny bit?”

The look of joy in Antoinette’s eyes was actually kinda scary, like, a bit of that psycho joy. Jacob would probably have those eyes when doing his rituals and stuff, if he had eyes.

“Samantha, the center of attention, in an orgy.”

“I mean, is orgy the right word?” Triss squirmed a little more.

“Ha, perhaps not. Regardless, I am happy to know my childe can embrace such indulgences. As you said, she has suffered greatly. I am glad my Daeva blood has helped her find some joy in her second life.”

“Is it your blood, though? Jack’s, uh, got similar sexual tastes.”

“Similar, yes, though not the same.” The Prince leaned back and teased her lip with a finger as she let her eyes wander. “I do wish I could see it. I would enjoy seeing my childe in the middle of such pleasures, with Jacob and Othello sheathed inside her. To see her blush and squirm in embarrassment as she orgasms? Truly beautiful.”

“You really do got a thing for sex, don’t you? Like, Dolareido’s got this whole Slut City thing going on, and that is entirely your fault, isn’t it?”

The Prince grinned at her. “Oui, it is.”

“Well, your childe’s fully embracing it now.”

“I would oh so love to see it. Alas, she is Jack’s mother. That is a sexual boundary I think would be best not crossed.”

“Probably not.”

Antoinette laughed. It was a strange sound, cause even though the Prince was the sorta vampire to control every single sound they made, the laugh sounded genuine too. Half fake, half real. How did anyone last five minutes talking to this woman?

“Back to my earlier question. How do you feel about my childe and Jacob as a couple? Do they help each other?”

“I think so. I mean, I’ll be straight with you, I thought Jacob got into Sam’s pants for the advantage, you know?”

“Many assumed such.”

“But they hang out. They talk about stuff. They fuck a lot, sure, and now that Jacob’s got her comfortable with the group, she’s fucking Othello and Madison a lot too. And Jen and me get a little involved in that sometimes. But the two of them still fuck each other without the rest of us, a lot, and it gets super cheesy romantic, you know? Hugging, cuddling, kissing.” All the shit Triss missed. “Sam seems happy, and Jacob seems ... less psychotic. Dude always smiled, but now his smiles look more normal, you know?”

“That I do, Beatrice. Do you believe they love each other?”

“Jesus, that’s a heavy question. And personal.”

“That it is. We speak of things deeply personal about those we care about, but we are not gossiping. We are concerned with our friends, and would like to see them both happy.”

Triss eyed the Prince. A little. Couldn’t exactly give her the stink eye, considering she was the fucking Prince.

“I think Jacob’s got a lot of baggage in the way of genuine love. But if there’s anyone who can dig through that shit, it’s Jack’s mom.”

It was the right call, calling Sam Jack’s mom there, and Antoinette smiled as she nodded, and leaned back, relaxing in her chair.

“Perhaps you are right.”

“And uh, why are you so concerned with Jacob? You call him old friend, but I haven’t really seen anything to show that. You two come off as rivals, more than friends.”

“Can we not be both?”

“I guess if anyone can be both, it’s elders. Not like I know what’s going on in your heads.”

“Precisely.” Say one thing for the white-haired queen, she had confidence. And an ego. “Jacob and I have been at odds for centuries, young Nosferatu, as witches and dragons can often be; whenever they have the fortune of meeting each other, which is rare. Jacob and I disagree on almost every single aspect of how to run a city.”

Triss laughed. “Something tells me Jacob doesn’t want to run the city. So yeah, I guess he disagrees with your ideas, but isn’t interested in fighting you for the throne?”

“To an extent. But that is not why Jacob and I are friends, Beatrice. We are friends, because we share many of the same passions. We share much of the same vision, strange as that may sound. We share in many ideals and ideas, and we respect each other’s pursuit of them.”

“Share a vision?”

“In a manner of speaking.”

“You just said you disagree on almost everything.”

“Almost. Where there is overlap is quite important. But if you wish for details, it would be better to ask him.”

The Prince was nudging Triss in Jacob’s direction again. Concerned for her friend? Maybe. Concerned for her childe? Most definitely.

“Alright, I’ll keep an eye on Jacob and Sam. I mean, I am keeping a close eye on Sam already, but Jacob, I kinda thought he was ... getting better, you know?”

“I believe he is, Beatrice. But my old friend wears many masks. Be careful with him. And be careful with this dark road you walk. It has destroyed many a soul before.”

Yeah, she figured that.

“Alright, we done?” Triss asked. Antoinette eyed her. Probably didn’t like Triss’s tone. But after a few moments, she nodded. “K, I’m gonna get something to eat, then head back. Probably gonna find Sam in the middle of an orgy.”

“I hope so.”

“Ha. You think all the sex is doing her good?”

“I think she will calm as she grows more comfortable and confident with herself, and her second life. But for the moment, I believe embracing the joys of being Kindred will help her recover from her traumas, oui. What she needs is time, time to recover from her wounds, deep and plentiful they may be.” The Prince tapped her chin. “She is lucky to have a lover as skilled as Jacob, non?”

Triss stood up. “You could say that. I bet Samantha didn’t realize how slutty she could be, when she got involved with witches.”

Antoinette smiled, a devil’s smile. “I did.”

Figured. Fucking elders.

“Oh, can you tell Jack thanks for killing Joe? What an asshole.”

Antoinette’s smile faded, and she sighed as she nodded. “I will mention it, but Beatrice, do not be so callous.”

“Callous? Over Joe? Everyone hated that fucker.”

“Indeed. And yet, your old companions were willing to listen to him, and attack Jack directly.”

Triss shook her head. “They weren’t my companions. I didn’t fit in with the Carthians very much, and Bella and the gang didn’t really cross any bridge for me.” Which wasn’t surprising in hindsight, considering Triss covered that bridge in land mines and spikes. “But I know they weren’t idiots. No idea why they helped Joe.”

“They helped Joe, young Nosferatu, because they saw something in his words. To attack Viktor’s grandchilde? You know not the horrors Viktor performed upon simple, young Joe.”

“I—”

“Viktor Honors indulged in rather ... torturous methods of interrogation, as his mind turned against him in his age,” the Prince said. Which sent all sorts of shivers up Triss’s spine, because Jacob was a shit load older than Viktor was. “And while Joe, or anyone else could never prove it, he insisted Viktor had tortured him once.”

“Yeesh. Like—”

“He cannot remember the details, but I know the man suffered nightmares of staggering pain and trauma ever since. Things Viktor carved into the man’s subconscious. Torture.”

“Viktor ... did something to his head? Wiped the memory of being tortured?” Not like it was hard. Even Triss had managed to hit the fucker with a Nightmare a few years ago. If she could affect his mind, Viktor could have the dude eating his own hand.

“Indeed. The man has been nothing but rage ever since. Had. And your prior superior Garry Tones did his best to quell the boy’s rage, and turn it into a valuable resource.”

“Sounds like a shitty thing to do.”

“Perhaps, but the point still stands. You thought Joe was nothing more than a mindless brute. Did it ever occur to you that he was suffering, young Kindred? Did it ever occur to you that Garry did his best to steer the man’s rage away from self destruction? Did it ever occur to you that Joe’s death is a tragedy, and not a blessing?”

“No ... no, I suppose it didn’t.”

“Then let that be a lesson to you, Beatrice. People are complicated. Nothing and no one is who they seem on the surface, even souls as honest as Jack or Samantha.”

Triss winced as she reached for the door. “Point taken.”

“And please, do not tell Jack of Joe.”

“Heh, yeah. Kid would tear himself up over it, wouldn't he?”

“No doubt.”

Triss sighed, nodded a few times, opened the door, and smiled back at the Prince.

“Ok, enough with the heavy shit. Hoping to find Sam enjoying herself.”

---

~~♥♥♥~~

She guessed right.

“Triss! Jen! You're uh ... you're back early.” Sam squirmed as she forced herself to meet Triss's eyes.

Sam was a damn beautiful woman of average height, maybe a little less, thin and fit but still with some of that milf curvature to her. Big green eyes like Jack, softer though, and wavy brown hair to her ears in a modern woman kinda way. And at the moment, she wore nothing more than the white thong she'd worn the night the whole Circle — minus Aaron — had gotten pretty damn familiar with her.

She sat on Jacob's abs, facing his upright dick, her hands around it. And a quick glance at her thong showed how soaked it was; Jacob had probably been teasing and fingering her before. Or maybe, Madison had. Whatever the case, Triss and Jen had apparently missed the foreplay of this foursome.

Beside them, Othello and Madison did what they always did, without exception: anal sex. Only ghoulish regeneration kept that poor woman's ass in healthy condition. Othello was on his back beside Jacob, almost shoulder to shoulder with the man, hands on his girl's hips and holding on as Madison slowed danced and gyrated on him. Like Sam, she was facing away from her master, toward the entrance of the alcove. Unlike Sam, she was very much penetrated, and she waved at Triss and Jen like they were old friends, and they had simply caught her riding her new horse.

Sam was definitely the shyer of the two naked women, but they were both the happy sort, smiling and brimming with joy, even when embarrassed. It made Triss smile.

“Jacob, dude.” Triss walked over to them, making Sam blush even more and stop working her hands on her dude’s cock. “Aren’t you the leader of a cult of witches? I’m getting the impression you’d prefer this was just a hook up group for orgies.”

Jacob laughed, shrugged, and hooked his hands behind his head where it rested, half raised on the curving wall of the alcove and its blankets.

“I would think any witch joining a coven would expect orgies.”

Othello raised a hand. “I joined expecting orgies.”

Madison grinned back at the Daeva. “You get orgies, remember? We fucked a few kine two nights ago!”

The man shrugged. “More orgies.”

Giggling, Madison reached over and pat Sam on the leg. “Men.”

Triss snorted on a laugh. Men? Yeah sure Othello was a total horndog who couldn’t go a single second without thinking about sex, but Madison, Jen, and evidently Sam, were just as bad, if not worse.

Case in point, Jacob sat up, and whispered something into Sam’s ear. And Sam lit up like a neglected Christmas tree in July. Nodding, she managed a quick sheepish peek at Triss and Jen, reached down, and pulled aside her white thong. That was one soaked pussy. With her other hand still wrapped around Jacob's dick, Jacob had no trouble lifting her up, and gently lowering her down on his cock, turning her into a mewling, squirming girl each and every inch.

The damn milf loved being watched like this. And Triss couldn't help but do exactly that. She loved being watched, too.

Before Triss noticed Jen take off a single sock, a naked Ventrue hopped down onto the blankets, half sitting half lying against the wall a couple feet from Jacob. Course her eyes weren't on Jacob, they were on Sam. If it were anyone else but Jen, Triss would feel jealous her girlfriend was looking at someone else, but Jen was Jen, hilariously honest about her promiscuity, but oddly loyal to her relationship with Triss.

And the boys didn't even glance her way, other than to acknowledge that she'd come joined them. Jen was stupid fucking hot, hotter than all of them, but Jacob kept his bandage-covered eye sockets aimed at his lover's ass, and Othello did the same with Madison; though both Othello and Madison spent a fair amount of time looking at Sam, too.

Triss couldn't blame them. Everyone else in the room was pretty comfortable with sex, but no matter what Jacob did to Sam, she always had that guilty face on when she got fucked. And it was so damn fucking hot, everyone watched her. Which only made Sam look more guilty, and get more turned on, which had everyone staring even harder. A pretty vicious, sexy cycle.

Jen turned enough to look up at Triss, and held out her hands to her, big smile on her face. Shameless.

"Ugh, fine. Gimme a sec." Triss walked over to her own alcove, fetched her box of goodies, kicked off her clothes, and walked back to the sex room. Rolling her eyes, Triss got down on the blankets behind Jen, turned into her so Triss was the big spoon, and placed a vibrator against Jen's thighs as she set the vibration to low.

Instant purrs from Jen. Not every night required a deep tonguing. Sometimes it was nice to lie down and let toys do the work. And after a few minutes of teasing Jen's thighs with the vibration, she gently set the small blue toy against her clitoris, and teased it in caressing circles. Jen melted into her, and the two prepared for a show.

Jacob tightened his grip on Sam's hips, and got to work. He pushed his hips up into her hard, hard enough that she bounced on him, literally, and the poor girl immediately erupted into squeaks as her ass rippled with the impact, and her modest breasts bounced against her chest.

“Jacob! W-Wait! Slow ... down...”

Jen and Triss had missed it, but whatever they'd done to Sam before the two had come back from their hunt, had already put the milf on edge. Jacob pounding into her hard enough his balls slapped her clit, and her breasts jiggled up and down on her chest, was more than enough to push her over. She leaned forward, grabbed Jacob's legs, and held on for dear life as she came on his dick.

Poor Sam. Yeah Jacob, Othello, and Madison had probably been teasing her before Jen and Triss showed up, but for her to cum that quick? Sam knew she was a firecracker, and she knew they were all staring at her in erotic awe as she climaxed damn fast. Whatever embarrassment she'd been feeling before tripled.

And Jacob being Jacob, he loved torturing his poor girlfriend, so he pounded into her for a while, making sure he pushed her up to that point where her body kept cumming and didn't know how to stop. Sam was one of those girls he could push to orgasm, and keep her there, pounding into her until she was whimpering and begging.

Or Jacob turned her into that kinda girl? Nah. Like mother like son, Sam fucking loved sex. Like childe like sire, too.

Jen shivered against Triss as she came closer to climax, but she had a ways to go yet, and Triss was gonna take some time building her up. They were basically watching porn, which meant sit back, snuggle, relax, and build up.

Jacob slowed down, and Samantha sucked in a useless breath as she eventually managed to sit up straight again. Her thighs were still trembling though.

“Is everyone just gonna ... watch me?” Sam asked, looking to Othello before looking over her shoulder to Triss and Jen again. Everyone nodded. “Whyyyy?”

“Hottest girl here,” Jacob said, nodding, like it were an obvious fact.

Sam blushed hard, and half covered her breasts with the compliment, as if she'd just realized everyone in the room found her too damn gorgeous to not gawk at. Yeah, it really was damn fucking hot watching the milf get off on a hair trigger.

“Yeah! The hottest.” Madison slipped off Othello and his dick, came around between Jacob's legs, and smiled at their newest friend. Apparently Othello had whispered some orders to her, cause she came at Sam with a mission. Jacob made Madison nervous, but that didn't stop her from leaning down, and now that Jacob wasn't pounding away anymore, the ghoul was in the clear to bury Sam's clit in kisses.

“Ah! H-Hey, that's sensitive!” She clutched Madison's head, but didn't push her away. Wriggling like a worm on a hook, she held on as Madison planted playful, teasing kisses on Sam's undoubtedly over-sensitive clit.

Othello came around, got behind his ghoul, and sank his huge cock into her ass once again. Madison groaned, but didn't stop, continuing to plant more of those light kisses on Madison's clit, and earning more weak mewls from Sam. And Sam, poor sweet Samantha, started to grind her hips down into Jacob, unable to stop herself.

Triss sat up, grabbed a much bigger vibrator from the box, the curved one with the stupid flipper tongue on it for the clit, and slipped it into Jen's pussy. Her girlfriend groaned openly at that, but kept her eyes on Sam, even as Triss pushed it in deep, deep enough to fill her right up, and bury her clit in its lip. Her groan got outright carnal when Triss turned on the vibration.

Madison grinned up at Sam, pushed herself up, grabbed both the Daeva's hips with her hands, and set her mouth to one of the pale woman's very swollen pink nipples.

Sam squeaked, and hugged the curvy woman kissing her tits. No more shyness from the Daeva. Well, still shy, but sheer horniness was driving her now, and she made no attempts to hide it as she held the beautiful ghoul playing with her breasts, while Jacob took Sam's hips and ground her down against him.

Triss couldn't help but match Jacob's pace with the dildo, earning a quiet groan from Jen. Something about Sam was just too fucking intoxicating to not watch. Cause she was a Daeva? That had to be part of it. Othello certainly liked putting on a show, was damn good at it, and often had people watching. Sam could apparently do the same thing, she just didn't know it.

Plus, Sam being the only one wearing a shred of clothing, a beautiful white thong that looked like it coulda gone with a wedding dress, while in the middle of a foursome, was perfect.

Madison got her fingers on Sam's clit, and that was it for her. Sam hugged the woman tighter, and came hard, squeaking and mewling.

Triss couldn't see what was happening between Sam's legs from where she was, but judging from how the woman quivered and shook, she was clamping down on that dick hard and drenching it.

Sam recovered quickly. The old Sam would have taken minutes to get control of herself again, but this Sam managed to get back to it in thirty seconds, still trembling like a leaf on Jacob's dick, but functional. And after coming up from her second orgasm, the look in her eyes was total horndog, almost like a completely different person. She pulled Madison up so they were facing each other, and Sam managed a dreamy, groaning smile, as she reached down, and sank fingers into the ghoul's pussy. Returning the favor. Madison sighed bliss, and leaned in close enough to rest her forehead on Sam's shoulder, as the Daeva fingered her.

Of course Othello took it as a cue to start pounding his poor girl's ass. He tightened his grip on her curves, and thrust into her hard, the impact enough to have her big ass rippling and her large breasts jiggling against her chest. Madison held onto Sam like she might fall, and Sam only fingered her harder, her mouth open and eyes drifting up to look at Othello, as the two quickly rendered the ghoul an utter mess.

Triss stared at the dark-skinned beauty, and matched her thrusting with the toy to Othello's pace this time. Neither Jen or Triss were really paying attention to each other anymore, lost in the display. They'd both seen Madison cum hundreds of times, but watching her cum with Sam's fingers in her was a different matter entirely. It wasn't long before Jen pushed her ass into Triss, quivering, and Triss made sure to keep fucking her girl with the toy until juices reached Triss's palm.

Jacob lifted Sam up, right off his dick, and set her on his stomach. That was one very ripe cock, ready to explode.

Jen and Triss both groaned as Sam, lost in an obvious haze of overwhelming horniness, guided Madison's head down, and down, until the girl slipped Jacob's cock into her mouth. And again, Jen and Triss watched, eyes locked on how their boss's cock pulsed with cum. Even Sam leaned over to the side so she could look down and see what Madison was doing, her hand in the girl's hair, and nudging her down to take Jacob deeper.

The girl was literally helping Madison depththroat her lover's cock, easing the ghoul's head up and down. Only when Jacob stopped cumming, did Sam snap her hand up, letting go before she did.

“Sorry! Sorry, I ... I just kinda...”

Madison laughed, leaned forward, and kissed Sam's right breast. Sam slipped her fingers into Madison's hair again, and held her there with one hand as she leaned back, and planted her weight on Jacob's abs with her other. Damn, she was really getting into it, moaning louder than normal as the ghoul soaked Sam's tit in Jacob's cum directly from her mouth.

Triss kept working the toy inside Jen the whole time, barely aware of it as they both watched the most amazing porn vampire-kind was capable of. Apparently whatever Triss had been doing had been good, cause Jen had cum at least twice, and Triss only stopped now that Sam was taking a break with Madison sucking on her. And because she felt how soaked her fingers her with Jen's juices.

But christ she was so damn fucking horny now. Sam didn't even have a cock in her anymore, but seeing her sit on Jacob's abs, clutching Madison tight to her tit while the ghoul suckled on it and covered it in white? Mother of fuck.

“Jen, my turn.”

“Ah, damn.” Sighing, Jen sat up and crawled her way down to the center of the small room, ass swaying — on purpose — as she did.

She returned a moment later, two vibrators and lube in hand.

Triss lay beside Jacob, almost close enough to touch shoulders, and spread her legs. Screw Jacob, she didn't care about him; dude was sexy as fuck in that 'older man' kinda way, but that wasn't it. Their relationship was way too fucked up for there to be any sexual attraction. But lying shoulder to shoulder so they could both watch Sam and Madison put on a display? No prob. Best seats in the house.

Jen didn't waste time. Triss was damn wet anyway, but she didn't really expect Jen to just go shoving things into holes without prepping her first. But damn it, Jen, half distracted by watching Sam and Madison all over each other, sorta just jammed the first vibrator into Triss's pussy.

"Hey! Ow!"

"Oh calm down. You're a big girl." Jen, sighing haughtily, at least took the time to coat the second one in plenty of lubricant before she pressed it against Triss's ass, and eased it in. And because Jen had a thing for seeing Triss stuffed up to the lungs by things thicker than her own damn arm, she sank the biggest vibrator they had deep into her ass, and turned both on.

Both Madison and Sam turned to look at Triss, as she melted back into the blankets and groaned like a fucking animal. Ok, two very large things pushed into her, spreading her until she was fucking taut and borderline skewered with how deep Jen had pushed them in, and suddenly turned on so they vibrated fast and hard? That was a lot of stimulation, and Triss struggled to keep her eyes open.

"Ease ... up..." Fuck, her voice was a wavering mess already.

"Ha, fine fine." Jen dialed down the two toys to a much lower setting, and used both hands to gently ease both of them in and out of Triss's body. Delicious, wet friction deep inside her, rubbing against those fucking spots that had sparks tingling down through her thighs and into her toes. Much better. Triss relaxed back against the blankets again, reached down, and gently caressed her clit and piercing, as her eyes drifted back to Sam.

Sam was in another world. She was doing that Daeva thing, her clan's blood taking her for a ride and forcing her to indulge in whatever she was focused on. At the moment, that was sex, and all the crazy indulgences that came by proxy. Case in point, Sam grabbed Madison's hips, and pulled her forward, toward Jacob. The ghoulish didn't expect this, and she had to scramble a bit with her legs, getting them around Jacob instead of between his legs.

And once Madison was straddling Jacob, Sam pushed her down, right onto his cock. Madison let out a surprised grunt, and grabbed onto Sam's shoulders for support as she looked down. Not often the ghoulish got to be doubly penetrated like this, and rarely by the fucking five-hundred-year-old deadly vampire. Maybe never. Triss had never seen it. Madison was afraid of Jacob, but Triss recognized that look in her eyes as she stared down at her pussy spread around his thick cock. She kinda liked being afraid.

"God, that's ... so much," Sam said. With her hands on Madison's hips, Samantha looked the beautiful dark-skinned ghoulish up and down, eyes lingering on the curvy woman's huge, jiggling breasts.

Triss couldn't help but gawk when Samantha leaned down, and took one of those big tits into her mouth. Madison immediately groaned and set her hands on Sam in return, getting balance while Othello pumped her ass. Everything was jiggling. Sam eventually put her right hand on Madison's left breast, steadying it and massaging it while she sucked on the other.

Something about seeing a grown woman kissing and suckling another woman's tit, was god damn glorious, especially with how many groans and moans Madison was making. Triss melted back on the blankets as she watched, and idly stroked her clitoris, sending almost painful jolts of bliss down into her depths where Jen's toys were unpacking luggage and moving in. Even if she'd paid porn actors and actresses to come and put on a show for her, it wouldn't match this quality of porn.

Of course with Sam sucking on her tits, Jacob giving her a slow ride, and Othello pounding her ass, Madison didn't last long. She came again, groaning, then giggling, then groaning some more as another pleasure wave hit her. And as she did, Sam got in even closer, getting their legs all mixed up and hers on top of Madison's, all so she could get so close she could hug her. Full on breast squashing. God damn. Sam half hugged, half humped her, and sank her teeth into her.

Madison didn't get a chance to recover from her orgasm. Another hit her in the most obvious way, legs twitching and toes curling as Sam drank her. She even tried to push away from Sam for a few seconds, overstimulated, but Sam held on with a vampire's strength, squashing their breasts together as she devoured her meal. And she continued to hump against her as she did, all while Othello pounded her ass. Poor ghoul had three people fucking her at once. Combined with the Kiss, she turned into a squirming, mewling mess, and eventually went limp, arms dangling at her sides.

After a couple of long, drawn out minutes, Sam pulled her head back, and inched back enough the two women weren't squashed together anymore. She gulped, licked her lips, and looked down at the exhausted, almost comatose ghoul.

"Oh my god, she's so beautiful." Sam cupped both of the woman's large breasts, and watched, hypnotized, as they lightly bounced in her hands from Othello's fucking. The damn Daeva was quite content to keep pounding away at Madison hard enough she bounced on Jacob's cock. Of course Othello wasn't going to stop just cause Madison was exhausted, and he continued to thrust into her ass, half because it felt good probably, but half cause he liked watching Sam play with his ghouls' breasts. So did Triss and Jen, and the both of them stared at Sam as she playfully groped the woman. Jen had the better view, seeing from the side, but with how huge Madison's tits were, Triss could see plenty from where she lay beside Jacob. Giant water balloons bouncing around on Sam's palms.

"Nn ... nnn." Still awake, but just barely, Madison's head rolled to the side, still holding a tiny smile despite nearly passing out. "Mmm ... nn!" She managed a weak moan as Othello finally lifted her off Jacob's cock, then his own, and set the near comatose ghoul beside them on the blankets, opposite of Tris, cum leaking out of her ass.

Which meant now Sam was between two horny guys, with no Madison between them.

The look in Sam's eyes as she looked down between her legs, at Jacob's hard cock pointing up, and Othello's cock pointing ahead at Sam with the guy now kneeling upright, was pure excitement and embarrassment. Jacob's dick was soaked in Madison's juices, glistening even, while cum dripped off Othello's cock, a lot of it, landing on the blankets between Jacob's legs. Samantha stared at both with the ravenous look of a vamp who just had a fresh meal and was in desperate need of fucking.

Of course Jacob knew that. He grabbed her ass and thighs, lifted her like she was a feather, turned her around, earned a surprised squeak from her, and lowered her down back onto his pelvis.

Sam took one look at Jacob with her crazy horny 'fuck me before I explode' eyes before she gave in, grabbed his cock, and lined it up with her slit. Of course Triss stared hard at the sight, cause damn it was fucking arousing as all hell seeing a milf take a big dick so fast because she was so damn horny. She took him to the base, leaned forward, and kissed Jacob. Big, long, happy and charged sorta kiss, and Triss couldn't help but stare at that too, close as she was. Even when Sam started moving back and forth on Jacob's body, determined to keep kissing him as she fucked him, Triss watched the kiss. That wasn't just some mindless horny kissing. That was intimate, lovey dovey kissing.

But the kissing stopped when Othello lined his cock up with Sam's ass, and pressed its huge, fat tip against her entrance.

"Ah! W-Wait, I'm—" Her voice broke into a wavering moan as she stared back over her shoulder, and watched the big guy ease his lubed and cum-drenched cock into her ass. "Oh ... oh god..." And just like that, her dainty moans turned into animal groans. More than all the stuff that came before, Othello slowly easing his huge dick into her ass with Jacob already fully penetrating her pussy, had Sam's eyes rolling up and her mouth hanging open.

Othello took her hips in his hands, and gave her a few, slow, deep strokes, pulling more groans out of her and forcing her to wriggle on Jacob as she struggled to handle it. But before Othello could pick up speed, Jacob raised a hand, like a captain giving orders to his troops.

"Othello, sit back and hold still."

"W-What?" Sam blinked down at her man, before looking back at Othello, confused. The big guy was still snug against her ass, both dudes balls deep in her, but neither of them moved an inch.

"I feel, as leader of this bunch of misfits and morons, that I deserve a break, and special treatment." Jacob hooked his hands behind his head again, elbow almost touching Triss's head, and relaxed back against the blankets and curved wall. "You do the work, honey."

Triss laughed. Honey. On any other man, Jacob's stupid sexist bullshit would have warranted a smack or worse. But on him, Triss couldn't help but laugh about it; Jen too.

“Me?”

“Yes you. Othello! Punish her.”

Othello did as ordered, and gave the quivering Daeva woman a firm slap on the ass. Sam squeaked, sitting up straighter and hugging her hands against her collar, forearms covering her breasts.

“I ... um...” Blushing to new levels of red, Sam peeked back at Othello, back to Jacob, before looking to Triss and Jen again. The girl loved giving in, being taken, forced, held down, fucked hard even as she begged for a break, all that. But forced to do the fucking on her own? Especially with an audience? New territory.

Of course Triss was too damn horny to think any of this was anything other than the best porn someone could ask for. She idly plucked at her one of her nipple piercings, other hand teasing her aching clit, while Jen continued to work the two toys in and out of her. Though Jen was barely paying attention, keeping her hands moving with muscle memory more than anything. She was watching Sam, too.

Jacob raised a hand at the elbow, snapped his fingers, and again Othello gave the girl a good smack, louder this time. Sam’s squeak devolved into a mewling moan, and she lowered her hands to place them on Jacob’s chest. She managed to peek at the girls again, and the look of utter guilty pleasure on her face was fucking carnal. Which of course Jacob noticed, so he snapped his fingers twice, and Othello quickly spanked the girl twice more. Probably not just for Sam, considering how good it’d feel for the dudes to have the trembling girl squeezing on their cocks like a vise with each spank.

Sam, whimpering now, got to work. She pushed her ass back, molded it against Othello’s pelvis, before she worked it forward, aiming her hips down and toward Jacob. Othello sat back a little more, giving her more room, and she took it, sliding forward off half their lengths before devouring them again. First ass, then down to devour Jacob to the hilt.

Triss managed to tear her eyes away long enough to grin at Jen. Damn slut was making sure to match Sam's new, pitifully slow rhythm. It'd take a good hour to cum at this rate.

"Faster." Jacob snapped his fingers again, obviously enjoying his roll as drill sergeant, and Sam mewled as Othello spanked her again. She picked up the pace, getting to at least a slow fucking rhythm, taking both men to the hilt before easing up and forward off them half their lengths. Again, Sam peeked at the girls, and again she looked so damn guilty, like they'd caught her with her hand in the cookie jar. Some cookie jar, considering her mouth was hanging open, and she was panting and moaning with each weak thrust.

"Jacob, I ... I can't. It's ... it's hard to..." She slowed down again, arms visibly trembling where they pressed down on Jacob's chest. So, of course, Jacob snapped his fingers again, and held up three fingers while wearing a big, evil, mastermind grin on his face. "W-Wait! I—" She squealed after the first spank, squeaked after the second, and let out a tiny kitten mewl after the third.

Triss recognized that mewl. That was her 'one stroke away from cumming' mewl.

Trembling head to toe, Sam tried again, and this time tried a different tactic. She leaned forward, and set her elbows around Jacob's ribs; fucker still had his hands hooked behind his head like a king or something. With better leverage, she bounced her body back and forth, getting a few good slaps of her ass against Othello's body, even hard enough to make her modest breasts jiggle and sway underneath her.

From where Triss was, she got a great damn view of the action, each downward plunge onto her boss's thick cock going deep enough for Sam's smooth little swollen pussy to squash against his pelvis, each stroke drenching the dude. And of course, with Sam sitting forward like that, and Triss lying right next to Jacob, Sam couldn't help but look at Triss with how close she was; barely a foot between them. More of that pleasure-soaked guilty expression, eyebrows raised, eyes barely open, mouth dangling open and tongue almost hanging out of it.

Jacob knew exactly how to have Sam so horny she couldn't even talk. And it was so damn fucking hot, Triss couldn't help but clench down hard, and melt into a god damn fucking mess of orgasmic bliss. Powerful shocks deep inside her where she was stuffed exploded out from her core, up into her chest and down into her fucking toes. She didn't look away though. She smiled at Sam as she trembled on the blankets, knowing full well she was soaking the two toys inside her, and Jen's hands too, no need to look. Way too good watching the Daeva milf getting her wildest sex fantasies fulfilled.

Sam collapsed forward, and came too, managing another, knowing peek at Triss before her eyes rolled up. Her cheek planted against Jacob's shoulder, the one closer to Triss, and the Daeva looked up to her, inches away now, as she melted like butter. Othello got a grip on her hips and kept her snug against him, but the two dudes were happy to hold still — probably relishing how good her milking clenches felt — as she came.

“My dear, sweet sweet Samantha,” Jacob said, clicking his tongue several times in disappointment. “You have failed me for the last time.” Ok, yeap, dude was full on embracing the evil mastermind role at this point.

“I'm sorry, I—nn!” She squeaked again as Othello grabbed her arms by the biceps, huge hands easily circling them, and pulled her up until she was sitting upright again. “Wait, I'm still—”

“Othello my good minion, this sex slave isn't doing her duty. Punish her more thoroughly.”

Oh god, Jacob, the bastard. He had everyone smiling and laughing — everyone but the mewling Sam — but the few seconds of smiles and chuckles quickly jumped back into carnal delight, as Othello pulled back, and thrust into the ‘sex slave’. He thrust hard. Every inch of the dude’s fat cock slammed into her, and her ass rippled against his pelvis and hips. And poor, sweet Samantha, let out the most salacious moan Triss had ever heard. Say one thing for Jacob, he knew what buttons to push to make Samantha boil. Apparently those two buttons were: sex slave, and getting man handled by multiple men.

Jacob lay there, hands behind his head, pleased smile on his face, like a king watching someone get punished for doing a poor job. Totally cheesy, but it did wonders, because Sam erupted into squeaks and pants. She squirmed, trying to get away from Othello’s grip, but a few seconds later her arms went limp, dangling from where Othello held her biceps. She tried to keep her head up, but she only managed it for a few seconds at a time before it fell down again as the girl whimpered in defeat.

“Dude,” Triss said, gesturing to Sam, “you just gonna lay there while Othello does the work? She...” Triss gulped as she watched Sam, and shut up. Ok yeah Jacob was being a lazy ass, but it sure worked, cause Sam managed another hazy peek at Triss again, before she came again. Pussy swollen like crazy, she trembled on Jacob like she was trapped in an earthquake, and more of her juices leaked out onto him as Othello pounded her.

Jacob swatted Triss’s hand away. She swatted his hand away. They slapped at each other a few times. This was a very strange orgy.

“Jennifer,” Jacob said, “control your woman!”

“The fuck? She—” Triss groaned deep, right down into her guts, as Jennifer pumped the two huge dildos inside her again. And god damn it, it really didn't take much to have Triss up to boiling over at this point.

Being so close to Jacob didn't matter to her, good or bad, he was just there, her weird-as-fuck friend and boss. But Sam, god damn, watching her wriggle on Jacob's cock was amazing. Othello pumped her ass hard enough to have her bouncing on Jacob too, the sort of pounding you only gave a girl if she was comfortable with it. Jacob had been training Sam to handle quite a bit, and probably indulged her sex slave fantasy regularly, in ways Triss didn't know about.

Triss melted into the blankets, and let the heat inside her build up again. She managed a peek up at Jen, half guilty about watching Sam and Madison so much, but Jen wasn't even looking at her. She was admiring Othello, and the work he was putting in on Sam's ass. And with the skill of a damn master, Jen pumped Triss's insides at the same pace, making it seem all too well like they were all connected in some big mess of limbs and sex.

Climax ripped up through Triss hard, and she groaned as the waves coursed up and down through her body. She clenched hard, soaking the toys, until Jen pulled the smaller dildo out of her pussy, while keeping the far larger one in her ass. An empty pussy meant Triss's insides were free to clamp down hard, and force a hard squirt of her juices onto the arm holding a toy in her ass. And harder again, her juices landing onto Jen's big tits and soaking her.

Before Triss could recover, Jen shoved the dildo back into her slit, and Triss melted back into the blankets again. Sam was in the same boat. Othello and Jacob didn't give her a break. They fucked her, and fucked her, and fucked her, until cum leaked out of both her holes, white drenching her thighs. And with Othello holding her upright by her biceps, everyone could see Sam's expression on her dangling head. She'd cum her ever living brains out.

After a good while, Jacob and Othello finally eased up. How many times had they cum in her? A couple times each, at least. Vampires doing vampire things, taking human pleasure and dialing it up to eleven. But eventually they slowed down, slowed down a bit more, and stopped. Orgy over.

Well, that'd been an unexpected bout of fun. Triss and Jen were done, Othello and Madison were done. But Jacob and Sam weren't. The elder sat up, still beside Triss, hooked Sam's legs around his hips, spread his under hers and crossed them at the ankle, and hugged her. He whispered into her ear, quiet things Triss struggled to hear. Words like 'you ok?' and 'pushed you a bit hard there' and 'c'mere' and sweet stuff like that.

Jacob hugged the exhausted woman, and she hugged him back, burying her breasts against his chest and slipping her arms under his. With a whimpering sigh, she set her head against his shoulder, turned it, and faced Triss as the two of them kept on going. Except, it wasn't an orgy anymore. It was two people fucking, two lovers, slow and sweet, the only motion caused by Jacob's gentle and steady grip on her ass, while Samantha softly ground her hips toward him.

Everyone watched as the two fucked for a little while longer, so slow it was hypnotic. But sure enough, Samantha and her hyper sensitive body trembled on the man's cock, and after giving Triss a smile, she turned her head in to face Jacob's neck, and buried her face there as he came inside her again, too.

~/♥♥♥~/

---

"You really like her, don't you?"

Jacob raised a brow. "Just picking up on that, are you? We talked about this already. Christ. Why is every witch I recruit a dumbass."

Triss laughed as she looked back down at the city street below. They were on the Carthian Invictus border, on a building rooftop, looking down at the Border Bar to see if there'd be anymore fights. Nothing so far. Hell, the whole damn city had gotten pretty quiet now that those two covenants were leaving each other alone.

She was in her usual jeans and tank top. Jacob was in his dark, spooky witch robes, which coulda been made from human skin for all Triss knew. Too dark, but maybe he'd dyed them. She wouldn't have put it past him. Weird he was comfortable wearing the spooky robes in public, but unlike her, he could Cloak them both and keep them hidden easily, even from powerful Kindred. No chance someone was going to spot them.

"I mean, you really like her. Like, might love her."

He rolled his eyes; all in the head motion. "I'm trying." Wow, a direct answer.

"You two get along pretty well."

"She's fun," he said. "I like talking to her. She listens." Another direct answer. Apparently Sam was the antidote to the dude's insanity.

"What, I don't listen?"

He grinned at her. "Not even a fucking little bit."

"Ha. Well, I think she does more than listen. I think she talks, and you listen."

"Kinda happens when two people talk. At least, when the two people haven't been lobotomized as of late."

"Uh huh."

“And when the two people respect each other.”

“Sorta excludes most relationships.” She shrugged, and gave her boss a gentle punch in the shoulder. “Sounds like you guys got something special.”

“Maybe.”

“Hesitant?”

“Like I told you, I got scars from losing Minerva. So don’t expect me to start singing in the rain just yet.”

Jacob was so self aware, it was actually kinda irritating. How do you talk to someone who actually truly understood themselves? Half of talk between people was supposed to be about two idiots trying to figure shit out, especially about themselves, but Jacob already had a shit load about himself figured out. How the fuck did Sam talk to Jacob? How the fuck did Jack talk to Antoinette, for that matter?

“No ‘I love yous’ said yet?”

“Nope.”

“Well, if it matters, you two certainly look like you got something going on.”

“Hard to judge a relationship from the outside, Triss.”

She nudged his shoulder. “You telling me you’re not into her?”

“I didn’t say that.”

Nodding, Triss leaned over the roof edge, elbows on the railing, and she grinned at the old bastard. “I talked to the Prince.”

“Of course.” He leaned over the railing next to her. “What’d the old girl have to say?”

“She’s actually pretty happy about Sam.”

Jacob laughed. “A Daeva, happy her childe’s embraced sex. Whoda thunk.”

“Well, that, yeah, but she sounded happy about ... you.”

For a moment, Jacob’s lips fell into a frown, before he shook his head, and his usual smile was back.

“I was pretty happy for Annie, too, you know, when her relationship with Jack turned out to be more than just some fling.”

“You two really are friends, aren’t you?”

“Of course.”

“You say that like it’s obvious.”

“She’s good friends with Elaine, too. And Elaine’s done more to undo Antoinette’s work than I ever have.”

“What, really?”

“Yeah. I don’t know much about the Ordo”—she didn’t believe that—”but Elaine has gotten in Antoinette’s way a dozen times, back in Europe. The Prince was a young elder, just entering into her true power, and Elaine visited her castle. The two hit it off immediately, which probably included a whole lot of sex on top of a mountain of servants.”

Triss grinned at the man, but her imagination couldn’t resist. Jacob was one of those natural storyteller types. You couldn’t help but listen and get absorbed, and Triss instantly imagined those two big-titted bitches, squashing themselves against each other, while a couple dozen guys and girls did things to them. Kinda hard not to imagine it, considering she'd just talked to the Prince yesterday, and the damn woman had her tits nearly hanging out of her robe.

Or, Triss, you're just as much a horny slut as every other girl in Dolareido was. Slut City.

"But then they started doing Kindred things," he continued. "Dragon things. So imagine Doctor Frankenstein, doing crazy experiments in his—her basement, and then another dragon comes along and steals information from her, or gives her some information while knowing full well it's wrong info, sending Frankenstein down the wrong path of research."

"Sounds like a dick thing to do."

"It is, to kine and their short lives. Vampires live in a different world. Give it a hundred years and you'll approach things differently. Professional rivalry means nothing next to a friend you can trust with personal stuff, when you measure your lifespan in centuries."

"Does Antoinette trust you?"

"With personal stuff? Absolutely." His grin did that crazy thing it sometimes did, and went full Joker on her. "Professionally? Absolutely not."

"I can't imagine you pushing her out and taking over Dolareido."

"Honestly? Me neither. Been here for a long time, but if I wanted a city that did things my way, I wouldn't start it here."

She blinked at the man, and gave him a small nudge with her hip. "You'd leave?"

"I've thought about it."

“But...” But he was the only stable thing she had in her life, the asshole. And considering how unstable the fucker was, that was saying something.

He returned her hip bump, which was fucking hilarious considering he was a five-hundred-year-old vampire wearing a leathery robe probably made of human skin. Triss couldn't help but laugh, even as she gulped at the thought of her boss suddenly not being around anymore.

“I'm not going anywhere for a while, and even if I did, you could come.”

“Come? Leave Dolareido?”

He gasped and covered his mouth with a hand. “Leave Dolareido? But, Dolareido is life! No other city in the world exists! Beyond the walls, it's an endless wasteland! Radiation has poisoned the world!”

“Shut up.” She looked down at the street, and tried to process. “Vampires don't usually leave their cities.”

“You're right. But they do sometimes. Antoinette and I had big ideas when we came to America, and I think we succeeded in most of them. She definitely has.”

“But ... not you?”

He shook his head. “My goals have changed. If I want to obtain those goals, I need to make big changes. And you're invited.”

“I ... I don't...” Christ, that was such a scary thought. Leave Dolareido? Vampires had a healthy paranoia of leaving their home; being deathly allergic to sunlight did that. “Holy shit I don't know. When?”

“Not sure.”

“Jesus fucking christ, Jacob. That’s ... I...”

Jacob laughed again and pat her on the shoulder, before going back to scanning the streets below. “Don’t worry about it for now, kid. When the time comes, you’ll know, and I’m sure when it happens, you’ll have a better idea what you want to do.”

---

“Jen, come on, what’s this about?” It took a lot of mental effort to not mention what Jacob told her, but it’d been super personal. If her boss wanted Jen or the other witches to know, he’d tell them.

“It’s a surprise!”

“I’m not going to bang some random kine you found.”

“No no, it’s not that kind of surprise.”

Triss raised a brow. Jen was one of those girls who fully embraced how sexually freeing being a vampire was. Which meant they had sex on the mind every minute of every night; similar to Elaine, according to Jack. Both Ventrue. Funny. So for Jen to have a surprise for her that didn’t involve sex was pretty strange.

Jen guided her through the streets of Dolareido. Just a few years ago, Triss wouldn’t have felt comfortable doing this. If someone noticed her face, it’d have ended badly. But Triss had gotten pretty damn good at the Face in the Crowd discipline since then, considering how much she’d had to use the Obfuscate disciplines in that time. Shit got crazy, and she’d had to adapt.

Beatrice was good for her age, damn good. Some vamps got good quick, or they died. Triss survived. Jacob knew what he was doing when he picked her.

Ego stroking aside, Triss was now plenty comfortable walking down the street, knocking shoulders with the kine. She still kept her black hair shoulder length and framing her face, hiding her crocodile teeth cheeks a bit, but still, she wasn't worried. She was good enough, powerful enough, that it just wasn't a concern anymore. Which of course Jen took full advantage of, and started taking her out to places in Dolareido, places Triss had avoided in her younger days.

Case in point, Jen guided her to a fucking lounge. The Quiet Note. Oh god, hippies. No no no. Triss tried to turn around, but Jen laughed and pushed her in anyway.

The Quiet Note was, predictably, quiet, with maybe a hundred people sitting around on nice leather couches along the dark walls, and small circular tables spread around the floor. There wasn't much lighting, just some dim lights above. There was a bar, but the sort of bar that didn't take orders whenever a performer was on the stage on the other side of the room. The Quiet Note was written on that wall over the stage, written in gentle lights that didn't illuminate a damn thing. Even the walls had wallpaper, gray flower-like designs against the black.

The place was hideous. Just looking at it made her feel like she should have put on sweatpants and start writing shitty poetry.

"Ugh, this place is horrible," Triss whispered. "This is ... this is the sort of place Julias would have come to."

Jen laughed into her ear, careful to stay quiet. The whole place really had that silent observer vibe.

"It's neat. Interesting people show up."

"I'll take your word for it."

"Nope, you'll see for yourself." With a wicked grin, the damn Ventrue took Triss's hand, and over toward one of the couches in the back. Not much light there, good for a couple vampires who didn't want to be bothered.

Triss sighed, sat down, and looked over at the bartender. A woman, heavy, strong, and she cleaned some glasses as she watched more people come in. Apparently they knew Jen, to just let her in. Girl probably fucked with the bartender's mind, a bit of the ole Dominate; harmless. Jen was pretty damn strong, too, for a vampire her age.

"Cloak me too," Jen said. Shrugging, Triss touched her leg and wrapped her in Obfuscate as well. People would see them on the couch, but not really see them. Perfect for vamps hunting humans, and eavesdropping.

It took a few more minutes for the place to calm down, for the chatting to die out, and for the rustling to stop. The few lights in the place turned off, putting Triss and Jen in absolute dark, with only the people closer to the stage getting any of the light.

Someone came onto the stage, some dude, but the lighting didn't do a very good job showing who it was yet. Like it was part of the song, the build up, the fiddling with the lighting by someone offstage, and the tuning of the guitar by whoever just sat down on a stool in front of the mic.

People smoked. People drank, quietly, sipping their wines and shit, no beers. More than a few people were high, judging from the smell. But honestly, everyone was pretty damn chill, happy to be there, and happy to shut up and wait for whoever was on the stage to entertain them. Some of them wore jeans. Hell, a few of them wore t-shirts. Triss was still using Face in the Crowd, so she didn't give a shit about her jeans, tank top, and army boots. Jen wore a casual suit, and Triss expected more of the kine to be wearing suits like that too, or nightclub dresses, but nope, just a bunch of jeans, and a few eclectic tops and jewelry and stuff.

Yeap, this was the sort of place Julias would have liked. Full of introspection and self reflection, full of hippies going on soul journeys. Much as Triss loved her man, this sorta crap really irked her. Probably cause it was her impulse to respond to self reflection with a healthy dose of anger and bitterness.

Triss looked at Jen, glared, and mouthed 'well?' Jen grinned at her, and nodded toward the stage.

The lights finished turning on, and a very, very handsome man raised his face toward the mic. A white dude, with dreamy blue eyes, but they were hard, almost betraying their color. No beard, but he had a bit of dark gruff on his face, and dark hair so short it looked almost buzzed. He was a little tall, and muscular and lean. He wore some navy jeans too, and wore a black button shirt with a couple buttons undone.

That, was Sándor.

Triss stared at the man as he took a deep breath, adjusted an ear piece that was probably playing a metronome or something, and set his pick against the strings. Sándor, with a guitar. She knew the dude liked metal music, and that was pretty awesome, but he didn't say anything about playing an instrument. Embarrassed, maybe? Not so embarrassed the super antisocial gargoyle wouldn't play live in front of a bunch of hippies who were likley music and poetry snobs.

"Hello again," he said, voice soft, and deep. "I lost someone important to me, a couple weeks ago." The crowd aww'd. Triss clenched. "Well, maybe important isn't the right word. She was someone who ... who'd been holding a lot responsibility, and a lot of dreams. Those dreams are dead now, and those responsibilities are mine." He looked down, and Triss wasn't sure if the somber, hard look on his face was sexy, or stupid.

Oh god, was he going to play a super emo song? Some sort of ‘my life sucks my family is dead everything is horrible life isn’t worth living’ kinda song? Please no, she was just starting to like the guy.

“I thought about playing something about that, something that fit, something ... mournful, or regretful.” If he played Hurt, Triss was going to kill him. She loved the song, but she could only stomach so much misplaced guilt. “But she wouldn’t want that. She’d probably hit me for thinking it, if she was alive. She’s gone, and she wanted her family to get on without her. That was her goal. So, I’m going to play a few of my favorite songs, instead.”

He strummed the first chord, and picked the first few notes. The world stopped. The crowd sucked in a breath, before they settled into their seats, ready to go on a familiar, amazing journey. They knew the song. She knew the song. Anyone with fucking ears knew the song.

“On a dark, desert highway. Cool wind in my hair. Warm smell of colitas, rising up through the air.”

Triss froze, down to the fucking bone. She knew her mouth was open a little, and that Jen was looking at her, confused. Triss didn’t care. Girl probably didn’t even know the song. Damn kids these days.

She couldn’t look away from the man. His picking was perfect, but that was to be expected. If a paranormal learned to play an instrument, they had decades to master it, and from the way he held the guitar, she knew he had. It was easy to picture it, now that she could literally see it. Sándor, in a chair at home, picking away, practicing the hours away. A gargoyle with time to spend.

But it was his voice that ripped her to pieces. He sounded good. He sounded great. He sounded like fucking Bob Seger.

“Triss,” Jen whispered, “you—”

Triss punched Jen in the leg, softly, but kept her eyes on Sándor.

He didn't play some sappy song about regret or sadness. He didn't have to. It was on his voice. And god damn it, she wanted to hate it, to hate him for it. She didn't want to hear anguish or heartache or grief. She didn't want to hear the misery in his voice. But she did, just hints of it, little slivers of the man's past and soul coming through in his tone, as he sang about something completely different.

Ok, yeah, this was a lot better than him singing a sad song. This was perfect. This was too damn perfect. Butterflies flew around in her stomach, and she did her best to ignore them.

She melted back on the couch, and watched, and listened to the man charm the whole fucking crowd. Everyone was quiet. In any other place, people would have been cheering; which woulda been weird cause Sándor didn't put any energy into his body. He was reserved, solid, steady, and only his voice and his fingers showed emotion. But it was enough. To anyone who actually gave a shit about music, it was enough.

No one else in the bar knew the dude lost his family to a bunch of hunters, and then became the hunters' slave. None of them knew the dude had a wife and kid that he loved, dead. None of them knew the dude was hundreds of years old, and that family was the first good thing to happen to him in a long fucking time. None of them knew the dude blamed himself for more deaths, including Julias's.

Triss knew, and she could hear it in his voice. It fucking hurt, like fire on the skin. But she couldn't look away, and the butterflies multiplied.

Part 10

Chapter 158

~~Antoinette~~

Three months later.

She stared down at the corpse, and sighed. Sigh turned to frown. Frown turned into snarl. In her youth, she would have likely elevated to outright rage, and destroyed all in her vicinity. But she had long learned to control her anger, and she quelled it now as she stood, confused and frustrated.

Blood seeped out over the lines of the ritual circle, over the dark tile, and around her feet. She stepped about it effortlessly as she motioned to Daniel.

“It does not come.”

“No,” her sheriff said, “it does not.”

“We did the ritual correctly.”

“If the book is to be believed.”

She snatched the book off the nearby table. Deep in the tower’s basement’s basement, she was free to explore the darkest, most sinister, vile experiments, free of watching eyes or worry of contamination. Down, deep in the earth, surrounded by metal and stone, only she, her sheriff, and her tools existed.

The summoning circle was the same as it was before, though all electricity had been disabled. Only candles would do for this ritual. And the corpse, a woman, a murderer, was not old. The younger the sacrifice, the stronger the resonance.

Antoinette was not happy to kill someone so young, but dealing with Black Blood was too important. Dolareido was built with such options in mind, that it would have an underbelly where black hearts could enact their desires, only for Kindred to capitalize and use such kine for whatever purpose they wished. The city was a utopia for paranormals, not for kine. But she tried. She had found a balance, after all. There was less crime in Dolareido compared to similar cities, and what crime was committed was often untraceable, allowing Kindred to make problematic kine simply disappear without drawing the attention of the media.

But she did not enjoy using such a tool. Several criminals still sat within her cells, and she did not enjoy their presence. And killing them was never a joyful act. Worse was killing a young woman, a troubled girl who had killed her ex boyfriend and his new girlfriend in a fit of rage and madness. A crime of passion, and Antoinette did not enjoy being the judge, jury, and executioner for the woman.

But a body was needed. Black Blood was summoned by death, by decay, by corpses and blood and lifeless mounds of flesh. She could not contact the spirit without it. And yet, even as the girl died in the circle, spared the horror of death as she had been unconscious for it, there was nothing. The dark mist and oozing black blood, it did not appear. Antoinette and Daniel were left standing in candle light, in deathly quiet, with only the spreading blood of the corpse to remind them they were not frozen in time.

With a heavier sigh, Antoinette flipped through the pages of the tome. A terribly old book, she had had to encase each and every page in protective plastic, lest a gentle breeze destroy the parchment. And the cover, a leather of some kind, was encased in the clear plastic as well. Laminating or varnishing had been options, but she worried it would damage the rituals themselves, to permanently alter the book that held them.

A dragon was no dragon if they did not attempt to eliminate unknown factors from their experiments.

Alas, the experiment was for naught.

“Do you want to summon it normally?” Daniel asked.

She shook her head. “I summon it to attempt to bind it. I do not desire another pointless conversation. The damn monster made it perfectly clear last time we spoke, it will not parlay with me. And ... I do not wish to kill another soul this night.”

“Then I’ll call the clean up crew.”

She nodded. They could not let the thralls see the ritual circle, however, thus Daniel and Antoinette took steps to alter and damage the ritual. Once the site was sufficiently ruined, they left, and several thralls stepped past them into the room, armed with an assortment of cleaning tools.

No one was allowed to see the rituals she cast, save for Daniel. Not Natasha, not Elaine, not Samantha, and not her thralls or ghouls. These rituals were beyond dangerous, and only Elaine and Daniel could be trusted to have the mental fortitude to defend themselves from the prying minds of other Kindred. She did not share with Elaine for a different reason. It was best to keep her old friend out of this business with Black Blood and the tears, though as the months went on, that might change.

Daniel and Antoinette stepped into her main experiments room, where the resonance machine could summon spirits by amplifying the resonance of objects. No one sat within, so Antoinette sat with Daniel, and noted down her results, or lack thereof.

“I had meant to ask of Beatrice,” Antoinette said. “How goes her own experiments?”

Daniel sighed, but did not sit with her. He closed the metal door, locking them within the large room of black marble, the hanging chandelier and its blue light, and the nearby ritual circle of mathematical precision that decorated the floor.

“No sign of Julias.”

“Naturally. I am sure she and the flesh witch have finished preparing his body, but to pluck his soul from the afterlife? Every dragon in the world would beg to learn how she managed to accomplish such a feat.”

“And ... a few women kine have gone missing. Some of them young.”

Antoinette sighed as she leaned back, and met her old friend’s gaze.

“What do you think will happen?”

“I think Mary is dead, and Samantha is going to ... learn the hard way, that death is permanent.”

Permanent. So they assumed. Bold words for half-dead bloodsucking monsters of myth.

“Keep an eye and ear open for whatever catastrophe Samantha may unleash,” Antoinette said. “I will let her make these mistakes, but I will not allow them to break the Masquerade, or risk her life. Protect her from whatever creation or mayhem she may cause.”

Daniel nodded.

---

~~Jack~~

The Carthians stared at him, some of them dropping their jaws. That was fine. A little shock and awe, and fear, would make negotiations go better, hopefully. Julias taught him how to negotiate, and his sire knew the value in using both good cop and bad cop techniques.

So let them think he was the bad cop for a moment.

He held the pub door open long enough for Scully and Mulder to swoop in, and the two birds circled over the heads of the dozen Kindred waiting inside, before they landed on his shoulders. One still had a broken neck, the other a broken wing. It only made the Kindred in the bar more nervous as they looked between Jack and his two friends.

Jack would have scratched and pet both crows normally, but it didn't fit the image. Right now, he was Jack, childe of Julias Mire, Right Hand of the Invictus, Jack the Cursed, Jack the Ripper, or as he sometimes heard down the grapevine, That Annoying Little Asshole. Whatever, as long as they listened, he didn't care. And with the hilariously expensive black suit jacket and vest, the red shirt underneath, a black tie with a hint of a flowing pattern of blood red lines, and the two crows on his shoulders, he looked like a mob boss, or the devil's assistant, or Viktor's grandchilde. They knew him by that title, too, and it was a valuable negotiation tool.

There weren't any kine in the bar, except for the ghoulish bartender, and a few thralls and ghouls at nearby tables. The thralls and ghouls were particularly terrified of Jack at this point. He hated that. At least with the Kindred the fear was mixed with some predatory instincts. With the kine, they were straight up scared of him. If he grabbed one and threatened them, they'd freeze up. Viktor would probably have loved that.

Jack looked between the bar-goers without a pulse. Steve, Bella, Kass, and Garner were in the bar, Garry's four ancilla. He had others, but these were the four Garry used when things got physical. They were also the four ancilla Jack had thoroughly thrashed after killing Joe. Cory wasn't around. Good. He was still pretty young, and Jack didn't want to look that dude in the eyes, not after ripping a hole in his guts.

It was a typical bar, homely, with pictures of friends on the walls, and not all of them flattering. People knew each other's names here. He had to give that to the Carthians, they were better at fostering connections.

Lots of wood stools around dingy tables. Always stools, or chairs with short backs. Made it easier for people to socialize with each other, to quickly turn around and engage in new conversations. That was the point of bars, for people to drown in meaningless rapidfire conversation, something Jack doubted he'd ever be able to enjoy.

Jack walked up to the four ancilla. They sat at a table near the center of the room, and Jack grabbed a nearby chair from another table as he approached. He slid in close enough, sat down a foot back from the table, and leaned back as he looked between the four vampires. The whole room had gone deadly silent, everyone staring and watching, and more than a few Kindred put their hands closer to their nearby jackets hanging off chair and booth backs. Knives, guns, all of it hidden, all ready to come out if Jack got aggressive.

"I'm not here to follow up on my promise," Jack said. "I'm not going to kill anyone. I don't plan to, ever."

Bella snarled at him. Tan skin, a bit tall, with curly long black hair. And most importantly, Gangrel.

"You were pretty adamant you were going to kill us."

"The curse gets vocal. Sorry about that."

"More than vocal." Steve leaned forward, put his elbows on the table, and glared at Jack. "Gonna apologize about Joe?"

“No.”

Bella’s stare lit up like he’d thrown gasoline on a fire.

“You killed our friend.”

“Joe came at me and mine with fire. Bruce is dead because of him. And from what I can tell, that attack wasn’t something Garry told you to do, was it?”

The four of them looked between each other, angry, and wearing their thoughts on their sleeves. No, the attack hadn’t been Garry’s order.

“Joe had a good point,” Bella said.

Jack shook his head. “I don’t care how much Joe hated Viktor.”

“You might, if you knew what Viktor had done to him.”

Yeah, maybe he would.

No, he would not pick up pain that belonged to someone else. Enough of that shit. Whatever issue Joe had with Viktor, it wasn’t on Jack’s shoulders.

“No, I wouldn’t. I’m not Viktor. I did everything I could to stop Carthians and Invictus from killing each other. And I’m here for one reason only.” He leaned in closer, and the four ancilla stared at him like he was ready to flip the table and start a brawl. “To tell you I’m not going to kill you. I’m going to make every effort I can to make sure the curse doesn’t kill you. Okay?”

Slowly, the four ancilla sat up straight and traded glances. He knew those glances, the kind that said a hundred things, but outside observers wouldn’t understand any of them.

“And Carter and Sheela?” Bella asked.

“Donny and Carlyle died in that fire, too. Our bosses agreed there’d be no repercussions. We were all idiots.” Some idiots greater than others. Thankfully, that hadn’t included Jack this time. “Be happy I’m not seeking revenge for Bruce. It wasn’t just Joe who killed him. You were all involved, and we were the defenders in that fight. So I say again, I’m making a promise to not deliver on the curse’s threat. But that’s with the stipulation you pull your heads out of your arrogant asses and accept how much you fucked up that night. Do we understand each other?”

He glared at each ancilla, and Mulder and Scully both crowed once, announcing Jack controlled the conversation. He did control it. It was for everyone’s benefit, because if it wasn’t for him forcing these idiots to see reason, there was a good chance they’d stir up trouble in the future. If he had to force peace down their throats, he would.

It was times like these he realized how easy it’d be to become a dictator. It was so damn simple to assume he was right, everyone else was wrong, and if he could just force everyone to do what he wanted, everyone would be happier. A nice, lovely, cobblestone road of good intentions, with a big flaming gate at the end of it.

It took a moment for the ancilla to nod, after a fair bit of staring and more than a few sparks of anger, and fear.

“We understand,” Bella said.

“Good.” Jack stood up, adjusted his tie, and looked to the rest of the crowd. Everyone was watching, and more than a few of them still had mouths parted, like they’d expected shit to go a lot worse than it did. It could have. Even with a few months for everyone to calm down, tempers were still high between the two covenants.

But the Carthians responded well to direct, open dialog. So did Jack.

He stepped out into the night, and both his friends took to the sky before any nearby kine noticed the strange, small guy in the expensive suit with two birds on his shoulders. Ok, work done. Time to move onto good times. He had a couple people who were aching for a celebration.

---

He smiled at the three girls in the limousine with him. He sat beside Veronica, while Leilani and Rachel sat on the other side, looking at them, shy smiles on.

Jack had changed his suit. The black suit and tie with the crimson shirt were intimidating, and that wasn't his goal tonight. All three ladies wore dresses, dark as well, not crazy revealing like you'd find in Bloodlust or other nightclubs, but pretty nonetheless. They also had bags with them, with swimsuits inside. Because apparently, that's what the girls wanted for a celebration for Lei and Rachel becoming fully enthralled in the Vinculum: a trip to the Elysium Tower. Elaine had suggested the pool, because of course she did.

Veronica pressed into his side, and nudged her shoulder into him a little harder than necessary. She smiled up at him, before looking at his two new thralls, and they smiled brighter. All three of them were under the same contract: serve faithfully, grow more intelligent and skilled in combat, allow Jack to drink of them freely, and they'd be elevated to ghouls, and eventually Kindred. Sex was not in that contract. Swimsuits were not in the contract either. But it was damn obvious all three were eager to show off their bodies, and do everything they could to have sex with him. He'd made it damn clear it would not affect how quickly he'd consider siring them, but that didn't seem to matter. The Vinculum was a powerful, binding force.

Ok, maybe it was a harem.

Veronica Tam was a short woman, with blue hair to her shoulders, and blue eyes. Pale, and with large breasts.

Rachel was a couple inches taller than Jack, with a pixie cut of blonde hair, green eyes, and a thin but soft build. And even larger breasts.

Leilani was about Jack's height, tan skin on a lean, athletic body, with long wavy black hair, dark eyes, with a narrow and mischievous smile. Smaller breasts than her two fellow thralls, but still quite large, considering how lean she was. She almost looked like a bustier Clara, which was a pretty weird thought, considering Antoinette had picked the girls.

Jack had made it abundantly clear to Antoinette that he didn't want to pick thralls based on cup size. Yeah, he liked boobs, but picking who would be his servants for years, maybe decades, based on the size of their breasts? Pretty damn shallow.

She'd made a lot of good counter-points. They were kine, he was Kindred, and he was allowed to be picky. There were plenty of potential thralls in the city, and while he liked boobs, plenty of Kindred were perfectly happy to bind kine that didn't have huge breasts; some even preferred small. Those Kindred could have those thralls. And for the final point, that he was building a harem, and that meant sex. Lots and lots of sex. Why not go with the things he liked?

Of course he countered with how attractive he found Julee and Ashley, and despite trying his hardest to not, Natasha too. But Antoinette found him a couple more busty kine to enthrall anyway. And honestly, now that people were visiting his mansion more, maybe having more than one helper was a good idea.

And as Veronica snuggled into his side, and Leilani and Rachel watched her with envy, he couldn't help but feel his ego grow. Yeap, he wanted a harem. He, evidently, wanted a trio of gorgeous girls to tend to his every whim while he and his lover lay back and enjoyed themselves. Hell, more than a trio. Ten girls fawning over him, doing anything and everything they could for a chance to touch him? Yeap, his brain had gone off to fantasy land, and was now thoroughly brainwashed and drowning in the Ventrue side of him.

He almost offered Lei and Rachel another 'you can go home if you want' ticket. He had already. But it was clear they wanted to come, and it only made them sad when he even suggested they didn't need to be with him. And it had them smiling and blushing when he even so much as suggested an order. If he gave them a proper order, they'd obey, happy to oblige and hoping for a reward when they did.

No wonder Kindred got full of themselves as they got older. Thralls and ghouls were like injecting pure narcissism and hedonism straight into the ego.

They stepped out of the limousine outside the Elysium Tower gardens, and both Lei and Rachel gasped as they looked the building up and down.

"This is where the Prince lives?" Rachel asked.

"I told you which building it was." Jack shrugged and motioned for them to follow. They did, side by side, each practically glowing with excitement, and fear. Veronica was a little afraid, and she always would be; Antoinette had that effect. The others had met Elaine and Antoinette, several times, but not as intimately as Elaine's first meeting with Veronica. They were damn scared of Elaine, and utterly terrified of Antoinette, the Prince, their master's lover.

Hopefully tonight would alleviate that a bit.

He took his time walking up to the building, letting the girls look at the garden maze. Jack took a moment to peek, too. Christ, four years ago he went into that maze with Antoinette, sat down on a bench with her, tried to Dominate her at her request, to test his power. Then Tony showed up, and Jack walked right past him, probably nearly getting himself killed in the process. Tony really hated his ex, and probably started plotting Jack's death at that very moment. Half to scorn his ex, half because Jack didn't act like the scaredy cat an elder expected a fledgling to.

Four years. Might as well have been a fucking lifetime.

"Oh my god," Rachel said as they stepped into the building. "This place is huge! And pretty!"

Jack grinned at her as he looked at the walls of the huge lobby. Black marble with white veins of lightning. Columns stood around made of the same material, with dragons carved into them, coiling the pillars.

The stairway down had them gawking as well. It wasn't exactly common, a stairway that opened up into a larger stairway that went deep underground, but there it was. The stairway he'd been standing on, when he controlled Damien, and used him to kill Lucas. Jack took them deeper and deeper, and as they passed rooms, the girls took peeks. He didn't stop them. There weren't any important rooms connected to the main staircase, but there was plenty to see. Giant rooms filled with everything from computers, enormous TV screens, and giant speakers, to art rooms filled with paintings and sculptures.

Ashley and Julee waited at the bottom of the stairs, and they waved excitedly.

"Hi!" Ashley said.

"Hello." Julee said.

Lei opened her mouth, but Ashley jumped in close.

"Oh my god you're pretty! Jack is lucky." Ashley reached out, grabbed Rachel's hand, and immediately pulled her off toward one of the changing rooms. “Come on, let’s go get changed! The mistress and her friend are already swimming.”

Jack’s thralls looked to him, a little shocked by Ashley’s outgoing attitude. But he laughed, shrugged, and motioned for them to go with her. They did, and he caught their excited smiles returning.

Jack rolled his eyes, and went to one of Antoinette’s changing rooms to get into his swimming trunks. Why Antoinette picked Ashley and Julee to be her ghouls, he’d never quite understand. They were smart, but they weren’t exactly wise. Antoinette couldn’t talk to them about philosophy or politics. She couldn’t talk to them about the existential crisis of being a vampire, or human for that matter. She couldn’t talk to them about much, really. But she loved talking to them, cause they enjoyed life in a way she — and Jack — struggled to.

Antoinette and Julias would have had a lot to talk about. They both looked for the same thing in other people.

---

He walked into the pool room, tugged at his necklace idly, and smiled as he spotted Antoinette and Elaine. They were in the pool, swimming, which was an interesting problem for Kindred. Without the Blush of Life, vampires had a habit of sinking. But both elders were already Blushing Life, and floating along easily enough. A wasteful indulgence for most Kindred, spending blood on the Blush like that, but they were beyond secure in their ability to get more blood.

That was one of the joys of Dolareido. Even young Kindred had an easy time hunting.

Jack grinned down at the two women as he came closer, walking past a dozen pool chairs over the white tile of the enormous room, before coming to the edge of the enormous pool. Not Olympic size, but close. There was a hot tub further in the back, and that thing was huge too, but it was empty, the only people around for the moment just Jack and the two most powerful women in the city. Probably the two most powerful women in the state.

“My love.” Antoinette smiled up at him and swam toward him. “I trust your thralls are changing?” She set her hands on the pool edge, but stayed in the water, its surface at her chin.

Black bikini. Black string, tiny bikini. Wet hair. So simple. So god damn hot. Plus the fact her boobs refused to sink, and floated up against her chest until they bobbed just under the surface of the water.

“Yeah. They’ll be here in a minute.”

Elaine swam up beside Antoinette, and put her hands on the pool edge too. Similar bikini, but red. With a decidedly more evil grin than Antoinette’s, she reached out and ran a finger down his shin.

“You will let me touch them this time, yes? You have had these two new thralls for a month now, and I have yet to taste.”

“I might.” He rolled his eyes, and sat down on the pool edge, both women parting so he could sit between them, his legs hanging at the knee in the warm water. “They’re both anxious to get physical.”

“Of course they are,” Antoinette said, and she hooked both her hands over his right knee, elbows hanging off, and set her chin on her hands, weight on his knee. “My love is a gorgeous and wonderful man. What woman would not wish to sleep with him? Especially after having, no doubt, heard stories of his sexual prowess from their fellow thrall Veronica.”

“Undoubtedly.” Elaine mirrored Antoinette, hooking her hands over his other knee so she could rest her chin on them, elbows hanging off either side of the other leg. “I presume you told them they are allowed to sleep with each other?”

“Yeah. I don’t think they have yet, but after tonight, I’m guessing they will.” Leilani and Rachel both knew the pleasure of the Kiss now, but not the Kiss when combined with sex. Ashley and Julee were on each other every single night, according to Antoinette. Veronica, Lei, and Rachel probably would be, too. “Any news about Garry?”

“Non, mon amie, nothing new.”

Jack nodded, before grinning down at Elaine. “Managed to fuck him yet?”

“I will have you know, I respect the man’s sexuality. He is entirely homosexual, and there is little I can do to change that.”

Surprising to hear that. Elaine kinda gave off ‘I can make anyone want to fuck me’ vibes.

“And Avery’s pack? Sleep with anymore of them?”

Elaine wiggled her eyebrows. Subtly, sexily, but a double eyebrow wiggle was funny, and he couldn’t help but laugh.

“I have, in fact. Mason and his Kindred girlfriend made delightful bedfellows.”

“Uh huh. He transform?”

His great grandsire shivered and half closed her eyes. “Oh yes. You cannot imagine how overwhelming it feels to be filled by something so huge.”

“Sounds painful.”

“At first, but the body adapts. You feel ready to burst, but then things swell, engorge, and the friction and pressure become orgasmic.”

“Uh huh. You know I have a perfectly average-sized penis, right?”

Elaine shrugged, chin still on her hands, still on his knee. “If large penetration was all I sought from sex, I would stay at home with some large toys.”

“Some girls do.”

“We are not those girls.” Antoinette laughed, reached out, and plucked at his trunks with a finger. “And how did your meeting with Michael fair?”

“The boss still leaves me alone, for the most part. I’ve been doing a lot of negotiating with Terra Den, and that isn’t exactly fun. Apparently I really pissed Jeremy Long off, when I threatened him about the incendiaries he was making. Guess he didn’t like my Ventrue attitude.” He had to be careful how he worded these replies. They hadn’t included Elaine in their search for answers about the tears and Black Blood. She probably knew about it, considering who she was. And considering who she was, she’d probably concocted her own plans to take advantage of the situation somehow.

“Should I get involved?” Antoinette asked. “None of the corporations I control interact with Terra Den, but that does not mean they could not.”

“It’s fine. I can handle it. What about Garry and Michael at the Primogen meetings?”

“Dogs, barking at each other. But that is how it has always been. I am happy they are talking, even if it is little more than angry noise.”

“Gangrels.” Elaine sighed and rolled her eyes. “Mongrels.”

Antoinette smiled at her friend. “Spoken like a Ventrue.”

“Gangrels are good for little else than being at the forefront of a battle.” Elaine shrugged before she set her hands on the pool edge beside Jack, and pushed herself up. Considering how little a string bikini covered, her breasts rippled against her chest quite a bit, and Jack watched. No point in trying to hide how much he loved that anymore. Elaine chuckled and sat beside him.

“That is hardly fair,” Antoinette said, and she pulled herself up on Jack’s other side. Same thing. She made sure to push her breasts together with her arms, showing off just how absurd they were as they jiggled, before she sat beside him, too. “I have known many Gangrel to be valuable. Two of them are my Primogen, after all.”

Elaine laughed. “They started a war.”

“That is hardly the fault of their blood lineage. Ventrue, Daeva, and Nosferatu are as equally likely to start wars, non?” Shrugging, Antoinette snuggled into Jack’s side, and turned to face him. She leaned down, he tilted his head back, and she half closed her eyes as she brought her lips to his. “Blush for me.”

He did. She sighed happily, and nudged her face into his, burying him in the kiss. He had to put both his hands back against the wet floor to keep from falling over.

A hand slipped its way under his trunks, and teased soft fingertips along his still soft member. He had to do some mental gymnastics to realize Antoinette’s left hand was beside him, and her right hand was on his chest. Which meant Elaine was touching him.

No point in resisting, or being shy about any of this anymore, not after the stuff they’d done. He melted into Antoinette’s kiss, and with her enormous bust squished against his arm and chest, along with Elaine’s expert touch around his cock, he could already feel his fake blood begin to fake pulse.

“We’re not gonna wait?” he asked.

Antoinette sighed, but sat back up straight, and gave Elaine a soft slap on the wrist. She sighed, mimicking Antoinette perfectly, and sat up straight as well.

~~♥♥♥~~

They didn't have to wait long. Giggles announced Ashley's arrival, and the three vampires looked back to watch the five kine approach. Ashley wore a yellow bikini with blue dots. Julee wore blue, no dots. Both were very skimpy, almost as skimpy as their mistress's.

And then there were Jack's thralls. Apparently they'd decided to coordinate colors, cause they all wore white. Hell, more than just color, they all wore the same swimsuit. Bikinis, exact same brand. High hip bikinis, unlike Ashley or Julee's, and just as skimpy as Elaine and Antoinette's. Which meant every step they took included a fair amount of jiggle.

Much as Jack was instantly hypnotized by the sight of thralls, his thralls, strutting toward him with full intent on showing off with every step, it was their necks his eyes locked onto. All three of them wore chokers, white chokers that matched their bikinis. As thin as their tiny bikini strings.

Jack looked at Antoinette, and frowned at her. "Your idea?"

"Of course. They are your sex slaves, after all."

"They're not my..." He groaned and rolled his eyes, but he could feel his smile breaking through.

Antoinette grinned down at him, and motioned for the kine to come closer. "Veronica, Leilani, and Rachel, come, swim. The water is warm, and you need not stand on ceremony while in this room." Her grin turned a tiny bit evil. "Elsewhere, I am Prince. But here, we swim, and relax."

Ashley clapped, ran past Elaine, and jumped into the pool. Water splashed over Jack and the elders, but they were already soaked. Now that he was Blushing Life, there was the first shock of getting wet, but the water was warm, and he laughed. God, it did feel nice to relax. This whole night was going to be the sexual equivalent of binging on ice cream and streaming a TV series, a pure, ridiculous indulgence. And maybe an indulgence he deserved, after everything that'd happened.

Julee jumped in after, far gentler, and Jack's thralls took the nearby stairs down instead. They each took excited glances at Jack, looking up him and down; Lei and Rachel hadn't ever seen him near naked, and while Veronica had probably told them what he looked like, it was still a first. He was happy they were happy with what they saw. Not a night went by he didn't thank Julias for making him bust his ass to get in shape.

Of course, their eyes got stuck on Antoinette and Elaine. Anyone with a pulse would get their eyes stuck on those two, considering their bikini tops only had enough front to cover their nipples, and nothing else. The fabric strained.

Jack couldn't help but smile at his thralls as they got comfortable in the water, and more comfortable with the situation. More comfortable as they looked steadily less afraid as Ashley and Julee started playing with some pool toys. But then less comfortable, as they grew more aroused. Old Jack wouldn't have picked up on the signs, the squirming, the flicks of hair over shoulders, the glances. And human Jack wouldn't have noticed the flushing skin, announcing increased blood flow.

He noticed it now, and he noticed they noticed. And he noticed they liked that he noticed their growing interest.

Ashley and Julee had fun, goofing around in the pool, jumping and swimming and diving and hitting each other with pool noodles.

Lei, Rachel, and Veronica had fun too, but it quickly became apparent they were doing more than having fun. They were showing off. Every motion, every jump they made, every dive, every time they bumped into each other, they made sure to do it in a way that showed off their bodies. At first it was actually kinda irritating. He wanted his thralls to have fun, not spend every moment of the night trying to get his attention. But that was what thralls were, mental slaves, and it was stupid of him to expect them to ever do otherwise. Even Ashley and Julee made damn sure Antoinette got eyefuls of their lithe ballerina bodies.

It was the nature of a vampire and thrall or ghoulish relationship. It wasn't balanced, or a two-way street. His thralls would be obsessed with him, until either the Vinculum was broken — not an easy task — or they were embraced, ending the Vinculum in the moment of their death before they awoke as vampires. He doubted he'd ever get comfortable controlling them like this, but then again, they agreed to the contract, and eventually he would embrace them. If they proved themselves as thralls, they'd become ghouls. If they proved themselves as ghouls, they'd become his childer.

“Master,” Veronica said as she swam close. “Will you swim with us?” Brave of her to get this close, actually touching his knees with her hands. She even managed a couple shy glances up at the two elders.

“I think,” Elaine said, “he very much would like to join his pets. But let us move to the hot tub?”

Ashley swam up to them, and set both hands on Elaine's knees. “Yeah! Hot tub! So much better for sitting around, talking, and touching.” Much as Ashley loved her mistress, she and Elaine had grown pretty close, physically speaking.

“Agreed,” Antoinette said, and she stood up. Which had everyone pausing and watching. “Come.”

Jack got into the hot tub first, opposite of the two-step stair. Antoinette came in, sat on his left, then Elaine on his right, each strutting and swaying hips. Then came Ashley and Julee, who found random places to sit, only to drift to other places every few seconds. Then came his thralls, and they sat by the stairs so they could look directly at Jack, each of them biting bottom lips or fidgeting with their fingers.

It was like, a perverted, grown-up version of being a kid in a candy store.

Antoinette leaned down, and whispered to him. “Whatever you want, my love, they will do. And I would like to see that.”

Jack grinned up at his lover. Yeah, of course she would. She’d really, really gotten off on seeing him get more aggressive and dominant with Veronica. It was hard to be dominant with Antoinette, considering how much bigger she was than him, and curse aside, a dozen times stronger than him. But it was easy to be dominant with his thralls, and each time he did, it had Antoinette boiling.

“Rachel, Lei,” he said, “stand in the middle of the tub, and take off your tops.” He kept his voice solid, but quiet, almost teasing. He’d practiced this voice, the ‘sexy dominant man’ voice. Apparently it worked.

Both thralls sucked in surprised breaths, glanced at each other, blushed bright, and stood up.

“Yes, master,” they said together, before they walked to the center of the tub. Slowly, they undid the knots of their tops, first the bottom string so the small triangles of the tops dangled over their nipples, and then the top string. They let the tops float away in the water, and Ashley snatched them both up with a giggle, before tossing them out of the tub.

Rachel's breasts were utterly huge, almost as big as Elaine's. The blonde pixie cut combined with being a little taller than Jack almost made her seem like a smaller version of Elaine, too. Unlike Elaine, her nipples were pierced, with tiny studs in each.

Lei's breasts reminded Jack of Jessy, considering both women were athletic, though Lei wasn't quite as muscular as the Gangrel. But like Jessy, she had larger breasts than a woman as fit as her would normally have, and Jack licked a fang as he looked between her abs to her large, tan breasts and dark tan nipples.

You're obsessed with breasts, dude. Just accept it.

"Come closer," he said, voice darkening a little. Just playing, having a bit of fun, but both thralls shivered at his tone.

They came closer. Time to see if they really wanted to get in deep with how sexual these nights could get. They were allowed to back out, he'd made that clear.

"Veronica, come, and do the same."

Veronica slipped between her two new companions, and made the same dance when taking off her top. Heavy pale breasts, with pierced nipples. More bottom heavy than her fellow thralls'.

"Now, come closer."

They came closer.

"Closer."

They came closer, close enough their knees touched his, and the knees of the two elders. Poor thralls. Veronica had been through this sort of teasing a few dozen times, and it always had her shivering and blushing with excitement. But for Lei and Rachel, this was entirely new, and they glowed red with embarrassment, and desire. He didn't have to compliment them. He damn well knew his eyes told them how extremely hot he found them, and the erection pushing up against his trunks did the same.

“Now, press up against each other. Kiss, and touch. I want to see my pets ... my slaves, pleasure each other.” Calling them slaves irked him, for a moment. But Antoinette was right. In the heat of the moment, with their hearts pumping and their nipples swollen, his thralls wanted to be treated like sex slaves. It was a fantasy. And a pretty damn compelling one, considering how all three girls shivered, despite how warm the water was.

They turned to face each other, kept him in the corner of their eyes, and hugged each other. Three girls, topless, in thongs and chokers, squishing their breasts together, all because he asked them to. Yeah, his ego was going to burst.

Jack slid his trunks off, earning some quiet sighs of delight from the girls, and he leaned back against the wall of the hot tub. He almost masturbated, but decided against it. Better to keep everything building up, so—

“Ashley, Julee,” Antoinette said, “join them.” She looked down at Jack. “If you do not mind, my love.”

“Not at all.” Power couple? Power couple.

Lei and Rachel gasped as they looked to the two ballerinas, but Ashley only giggled as she slipped out of her bikini, top and bottom. Before Julee could so much as say something, Ashley yanked her friend out of her bikini too, and pulled her over to join the three other humans.

Ashley set her body against Lei's back, pressing her breasts into her, and slipped a hand around her and under her thong. Julee did the same for Rachel. Veronica, between everyone, managed a quick peek at Jack, before she melted into the roaming, fingering hands of Lei and Rachel.

Rachel leaned down, and set her lips to Veronica's. With Julee's naked body against her, and fingers inside her, hidden under the bikini thong, Rachel melted quickly, and her kiss on Veronica was deep. Her hand under Veronica's thong grew faster, as did Lei's. Veronica managed to turn around, peeked at Jack again, breathing heavy, and she kissed Lei the same way Rachel had kissed her.

Five women, rubbing against each other, with the three in the center burying each other in slow, hungry kisses. It took every ounce of willpower Jack had to not jump and drink them right there.

Elaine took off her top. Antoinette did the same. Before Jack could say anything, both elders stood up, and moved into the group. He thought maybe they'd go to Ashley and Julee, but nope, Antoinette slipped in beside Julee, lowered herself down, and pressed her chest into Rachel. The blonde woman stared, eyes wide, but they rolled up and closed as Antoinette rubbed her body against her, and slipped her fingers under her thong. Elaine got behind Lei, wrapped a hand around her throat, and slipped her other hand under her thong, too.

The moment any girl didn't have someone pressing into her, Elaine or Antoinette arranged it so they did. Ashley and Julee frequently found themselves ducking down so they could bury their faces in all the breasts, either the vampires', or the thralls'. Ashley in particular was eager to taste the new women, and she spent most of the time with her lips around Rachel's enormous breasts, experimenting with her tongue on pierced nipples. Rachel loved it.

Antoinette took Veronica's hand, and guided it under her own bikini bottom, before taking the girl's head, and pressing it to her breast. Elaine pressed her butt into Julee, and Julee eased her fingers into Elaine. So many fingers, feeling, caressing, entering, with breasts pressing to shoulders and backs, and other breasts, in a mess of squashed skin.

But no one came. They got close, but always Elaine or Antoinette stopped them. Lei at one point clutched Julee tight to her tan breasts, and gyrated against Antoinette hard as her voice melted into whimpers. But whimpers turned into desperate mewls as Antoinette stopped fingering the girl.

For fifteen minutes, Jack watched all seven women get closer and closer to the edge. Every single one of them made sure Jack got to see everything. Fingers playing around underneath bikini bottoms. Breasts squished, molding against each other, malleable flesh conforming against other breasts, shoulders, and backs. And moans that got louder and more desperate. But the two elders made sure not a one of them climaxed.

Antoinette stepped back first, evil grin only growing. “Everyone is prepared, my love.” She let out a practiced, perfect hungry growl, and stepped through the water closer to him. Her pink nipples were absolutely swollen against her pale skin. “But hot water makes for terrible sex. Perhaps you would like to lie down?”

All seven women moved over to him, and they lined up, shoulder to shoulder. Every one of them looked ready to burst, though Elaine and Antoinette used it to look even more in control of their sexuality, while the five others looked like they were going to fall over and masturbate if someone didn’t help him.

“Yeah, I think I will.” He stood up, and got out of the tub. They weren’t the only ones who looked ready to burst. His cock was so hard, it hurt. It only got worse when his three thralls moaned — on purpose — as he stood up, exposing his body entirely. Water droplets trickling down the body did add to the sexy factor, no lie.

Antoinette nodded to her two ghouls. “Fetch us several of the thicker towels, if you please.”

The two ghouls jumped out of the hot tub, not bothering with the stairs, and returned with a mountain of very fluffy towels. Without missing a beat, they threw them on the floor by the tub, stacked them, and created a makeshift bed. They held out their hands, Jack took them, and the two ghouls lowered him down onto the towels like he was royalty. It was a game to them, one they’d played before and were excited to again.

Antoinette came out of the tub first, hips swaying with each step as she stepped over Jack, and grinned down at him.

“Pets,” she said, “prepare him.”

Ashley and Julee giggled as they got down beside him, each on opposite sides, and Ashley grabbed the nearby lubricant they used. Thick silicone-based stuff for fighting off water. The blonde ballerina wasted no time, and drenched his hard cock in it before she wrapped it in her fingers and spread the lube around it.

Antoinette stepped over him, and smiled like the devil as she lowered herself down onto him. Ashley shifted over to Jack’s shoulder, held onto his cock, and shivered as she watched her mistress pull aside her bikini thong, and lower her pink slit down over his length. Jack shivered too. No matter how many times he had sex with the Prince, it was always amazing how she knew exactly how to move, how to squeeze, how to instantly bury his cock in pleasure with her gripping, wet muscles.

She straddled him, knees snug to his side, and looked to the hot tub still full of ladies.

“Come join me. If you are to serve my lover, your master, you should learn to serve me.” She curled a finger at the three thralls. “Sit with me, and suckle upon my breasts.”

“All three of them?” Jack asked.

“Ben oui. Come.”

Jack chuckled, and motioned for his pets to do just that. They did, each of them blushing and quivering. Still on edge, still dying to have someone push them over, his three pets sat down beside Antoinette, Veronica and Leilani on his left, Rachel on his right. They gulped as they looked down at Jack, eyes sliding up and down his body before up Antoinette’s, where her thong was pulled aside and her pink lips were spread around Jack’s cock, before they looked up to the elder vampire’s gigantic breasts.

Lei and Veronica, shoulder to shoulder, leaned forward. Lei was closer to Jack’s head, and she had to put a hand down on Antoinette’s thigh to get leverage, but she managed to get her lips against Antoinette’s breasts, closer to the inside, while Veronica put her lips to the outside. After a few kisses led to an encouraging, blissful sigh from Antoinette, the two thralls brought their lips to her nipple. Jack couldn’t see very well with Lei’s head in the way, but from how close they were, it was obvious they weren’t just kissing Antoinette’s breast. They were kissing each other, with her swollen nipple between them.

Rachel stared at the sight for a few moments, before she leaned in to Antoinette’s free breasts, and set her lips around the Prince’s other nipple. And she made sure to stay out of the way, so Jack could see how her lips enveloped and pulled on his lover’s areola until Antoinette’s large nipple filled her mouth.

The reaction was instant. Antoinette loved to have her breasts played with, especially her nipples. To have three girls kissing them had her insides clamping down, hard, and Jack groaned. His three pets turned and looked at him, and each of them blushed and smiled as they realized what happened. They looked back up at Antoinette, fear and anxiety melting away, and resumed kissing and licking.

Jack turned, and watched Elaine slowly step out of the hot tub. Her eyes were on him, and she grinned at him as she made a showing of leaving the hot water, her long blonde hair flat to her back and shoulders. She reached up and slid her fingers back over her hair, draining some water from them, and looking exactly like a model doing a pool photoshoot as she did. Everyone looked at her, especially the two ghouls, and Elaine grinned at them before Jack again.

Elaine stepped over Jack's legs, and got down on her knees behind Antoinette. Antoinette leaned back against Elaine, and Elaine pressed her chest into Antoinette's back as she snuggled up behind her, reached around her waist, and slid her fingers down Antoinette's stomach, her bikini bottom, and onto her clitoris.

Antoinette held perfectly still, curled a hand onto the back of Veronica's head, another onto Rachel's, and held them closer to her, encouraging them to more thoroughly kiss her bust. With Elaine's fingers caressing and massaging her swollen clitoris, Antoinette's insides clamped like a vise. It was a game they'd played before, just not with this many participants. Jack had to hold still while Antoinette was buried in pleasure, forced to endure her powerful grip on his cock, and how hot and increasingly drenched her insides were. Boiling heat, combined with pulses of clenching muscles. She was going to edge him to orgasm.

"I trust, my love, that Leilani and Rachel will be joining us regularly?" Antoinette nodded with a motherly smile down at the thralls, and she ran her fingers through their hair as they continued to kiss her body.

"I—" He sucked in a breath as Antoinette squeezed, hard. Toying with him. "I plan on it."

The two girls managed quick peeks at him, more excited smiles, before getting back to Antoinette.

“Wonderful.” Antoinette motioned to Ashley and Julee. “Elaine deserves pleasure, my pets. Come, take a leg each, and see to her needs.”

Jack raised a brow as he glanced between the two ballerinas. Both crawled past his thralls, past Antoinette, past Elaine, and got behind her. Ashley sat over his left leg, Julee his right, and both of them lowered themselves until he felt their smooth pussies squash against his quads. He couldn't see what they did with their hands, but whatever it was, it required more lube. Ashley soaked her hand in it, and got to work on Elaine, while Julee had already been reaching between Elaine and Antoinette's body to get access to Elaine's front.

Julee was probably fingering her pussy, and Ashley was fingering her ass. Judging from the sounds Elaine made, it wouldn't be long before she came.

But Antoinette came first. She shuddered, and tightened her grip on Veronica and Rachel's heads.

“Stop,” she whispered. Everyone did, though she still kept the two girls pinned to her breasts. For Jack, it was all he could do to not use his Kindred strength and drive his hips up into her to push himself over the edge. Her insides edged him closer and closer, but without enough friction, it'd take him forever to cum this way. Antoinette, on the other hand, had four other people pleasuring her.

The muscles spasms of her insides were so damn tight and pleasuring, it was almost torture.

Antoinette, coming down from her orgasm, reached over, and picked Lei up.

“W-What!? I—oh...” Lei bit her bottom lip as Antoinette turned her until she was facing Jack, before she sat the girl down on his lower abs, her ass snug against Antoinette’s thighs and pelvis.

Tall as Antoinette was, and with how utterly huge her breasts were, they pressed around Lei’s shoulders and outside them, so Veronica and Rachel had no problem finding her nipples again. They resumed their work, gentler this time, letting Antoinette’s hyper sensitivity settle. But it was Leilani Antoinette had her attention on now.

“My lover,” she said, “is quite a handsome man, is he not?” She chuckled as she hooked her arms under Lei’s arms, and then around Lei’s stomach before reaching down between the girl’s legs. Breasts ridiculously gigantic, her arms had to hook outside and underneath them so she could get her hands between Lei’s thighs, causing her breasts to spill outside along Lei’s shoulders and arms where Rachel and Veronica continued to suckle.

Lei looked terrified. She had no idea what was about to happen. Her tan skin glistened with water and sweat, and her large breasts and dark nipples shuddered against her chest.

“He is. I ... I really like these.” Lei pointed down at his chest, and his upper abs.

Jack grinned up at her, took her hand, and pressed it down against his stomach. Lei shivered, and ran a finger along the indentions of his abs. She had abs of her own, but they didn’t have the same hard chisel Jack’s did.

“Would you like to cum?” Antoinette asked. “You may cum for your master, while your master master cums inside me. I am sure he will enjoy watching you squirm.”

“I—nn!” Lei gasped, and set both her hands against Jack’s chest, as Antoinette slipped both her hands under Lei’s white thong, and sank fingers into her body.

Jack reached up, wrapped his hands around each of Lei's breasts, and massaged them while caressing her swollen nipples with his thumbs. Normally he'd use his mouth, like Veronica and Rachel were, but he couldn't sit up with Lei straddling his stomach. It was nice like this, lying back, and touching his thrall for the first time as she melted into the touch of his lover.

Lei came quickly. Her mouth fell open in a moan, and she leaned forward as she grabbed his shoulders with an almost desperate grip. She stared at him, eyes struggling to stay open, wet dark hair falling down around her face as she shook.

Chuckling, Antoinette reached up, hooked a hand around Lei's throat, and pulled her back up until she was pinned to her chest. Veronica and Rachel continued to suckle on Antoinette, growing bolder and using a hand to massage and caress the huge, pale pillows, but their eyes switched to Lei, and they stared as Antoinette tightened her grip around Lei's throat. And considering Antoinette was the greatest sexpert in the world, she knew exactly how to keep fingering the thrall during her orgasm. Antoinette would never be satisfied with her victim having a simple orgasm, one and done. She had to milk it, and turn the girl into a quivering mess riding the edge of overstimulation until she couldn't breathe anymore.

Jack smiled at Lei as she melted back into Antoinette, shaking, one hand around her throat, the other under her white bikini bottom. He continued to play with her large breasts, squeezing them softly, molding them to the shape of his palms, and enjoying how her hard nipples pressed into them, while the gorgeous girl trembled. But then Antoinette came again; Elaine hadn't stopped playing with her either. The tall blonde grinned over Antoinette's head, straight down at him, and pressed her body into Antoinette's back, smooshing her body into her, as she had Antoinette sighing in pleasure and clenching on Jack's cock.

And then Jack came. He lowered his hands, set them on Lei's hips, and smiled as he let out a small groan as Antoinette milked him. It was enough to have every single girl — except Ashley and Julee — looking at him. Apparently they liked his quiet groans.

Veronica and Rachel, after a gentle push from Antoinette, inched closer to Lei than the Prince. They leaned into Lei, pressed their bodies into hers, and kissed her.

Jack shuddered as he met Antoinette's eyes, and she blew him a kiss as she squeezed on his cock in rhythm. She moved, just a little, a small grinding motion that nudged her back and forth on him, and into Lei and Elaine's body, while she continued to finger the squirming girl. Pleasure overload. Jack's eyes fell back down to his thrall, and he groaned again as Lei's mouth found Veronica's. Veronica's hand slipped into Jack's, entwining with his fingers around Lei's breast. Rachel caught on and did the same, getting her fingers in with his around Lei's other breast, and soon she pressed in closer and nudged her nose into Lei's neck. Lei turned to look at her, and melted into Rachel's kiss as the woman set her lips to hers.

Antoinette knelt up, and his cock slipped out of her, tight muscles milking him until his length pulled forward and pressed to Lei's butt. Before Lei knew what was happening, Antoinette lifted her hips up, and dropped her down onto Jack's cock with zero preparation.

“Nnng!” Lei managed a gasp, but it turned into a guttural groan as Veronica and Rachel lowered their kisses down her jaw, neck, and chest, until they wrapped around her nipples. Apparently whichever girl Jack was having sex with got the luxury treatment, two girls kissing and licking her breasts. Strong as Antoinette was, she also had no trouble taking the girl's hips, and pushing her back and forth, hard.

Jack shivered. He'd just cum, and his glans was still sensitive. Not as sensitive as Lei though. With three girls doing things to her, and his cock inside her, the girl melted in seconds, shivering again as her body slipped over the edge.

Jack sat up. Rachel and Veronica backed away, confused, making room for Jack as he slipped his arms up Rachel's sides, then behind her, and held the trembling woman to him as he gave into his hunger. There was nothing like how a woman's body squeezed when Kissed, and he growled into Lei's ear before doing exactly that.

"Master! Oh ... oh god..." Pinned between him and Antoinette, with the Prince still forcing her hips back and forth, making the thrall fuck Jack whether she wanted to or not, Lei could do nothing. She went completely limp, and mewled openly as her body fell into the Kiss. Her quivering insides drenched him in juices. Her noises faded, growing weaker. Her legs quivered, even as her arms dangled. And Jack growled louder as he drained her.

Warm, thick blood coated his insides, and quickly shot out from his stomach into his limbs, pumping fake life through him as pure ecstasy. But he didn't drain her into a post-Kiss coma. He came close though, before he pulled back, licked his lips, and lay back down. Lei, still pinned to Antoinette's chest, sat there on his cock, trembling, whimpering, and drooling a little.

"That ... looked amazing," Rachel said. "She's still shaking."

Chuckling, Antoinette worked the exhausted girl back and forth a few times more, but eventually slowed, and let Lei come down from her orgasm. Jack expected his lover to pick the girl up and replace her with another, but instead, Antoinette slid out from between all the bodies, and crawled over to Jack, giant breasts swaying underneath her. Licking her lips, she sat on her side and hip, and slipped her thighs under his head, giving him his favorite thing: a lap. And the angle meant her breasts nudged against his forehead, but didn't block his vision.

Elaine replaced Antoinette, and lifted Lei off him. "Rachel next then?"

"Oh god yes." The taller of the three thralls straddled Jack, even as Lei, still trembling, lay beside him and snuggled into his side, breast against his ribs. Rachel's eyes were on his cock, and she reached down and guided it up toward her, before lowering herself down. Again, a new sheathe of drenched, hot, clenching muscle enveloped him. And with a belly full of fresh blood, Jack's cock was hard as stone.

Unlike Lei, Rachel didn't melt. She got hungry. She met Antoinette's eyes, and the Prince nodded to her with a playful smile, before nodding to Veronica. Some silent girl talk. Whatever they said, Rachel reached over for Veronica, and pulled the girl up onto Jack's stomach. Veronica let out a small squeak, but it melted away as Rachel pulled her in close, until Veronica was forced to get her legs over Rachel's. Whatever kisses Lei shared with Rachel and Veronica moments before was nothing compared to how Rachel locked lips with Veronica now, hugging and holding her tight as she ground her hips back and forth on Jack. And with how busty both women were, their breasts squashed against each other and pushed outward to the sides of their chests. Jack could see them rippling against each other, even with Veronica's back to him blocking some of his view.

And then Elaine came in closer. As if replacing Antoinette, she pressed her breasts against Rachel's back, put her hands on her hips, and helped grind her down against Jack. And she wasn't gentle. Before long, the slightly smaller blonde was bucking back and forth on Jack, with Veronica held tight to her, all at Elaine's whim. A minute later, Rachel held onto Veronica for dear life as she lost control, and came. Everyone held still for a few moments as they let Rachel tremble on his cock, her insides squeezing and milking, but Elaine forced her to move again before she'd finished recovering. Just like Antoinette, Elaine knew how to make a girl cum long and cum hard, until the toes curled and legs trembled.

Elaine came again as well. She peeked back behind her at Antoinette's two ghouls still fingering her, and grinned down over Jack's two thralls as they buried each other in desperate kisses again, but her eyes locked onto Jack. Whatever Ashley and Julee were doing to her out of sight, Elaine licked her lips with obvious pleasure. Like Antoinette, an orgasm wasn't enough to break her control, and she continued to make Rachel fuck him, even as she shuddered.

"May I, Jack?" Elaine asked, and she nodded down toward Rachel.

Jack slipped an arm under Lei, and helped her cuddle into his side. "Sure."

Elaine's eyes lit up with a new hunger, a vampire's hunger. Before Veronica or Rachel knew what was happening, Elaine leaned down, set her lips onto Rachel's neck, and sank her fangs into her.

Jack knew it the moment it happened. Rachel's whole body went rigid for a single moment, before the overpowering pleasure and relaxing bliss of the Kiss hit her. Her insides clamped down and muscle spasms pulsed through every inch of her pussy, milking him hard as Elaine drank her, and forced her hips back and forth. To an elder, a Kiss was hardly enough reason to stop fucking.

Rachel's eyes opened wide, and her kiss broke. Veronica leaned in over Rachel's other shoulder, exposing Rachel's face to Jack, and she ground her body into her new thrall friend. Both Rachel and Elaine stared at Jack, Elaine's eyes lighting up with the pleasure and power of the Kiss. It left Rachel drained and slipping into a coma, but it lit Elaine's body on fire, and her eyes glared at Jack with predatory need. Rachel could barely keep her eyes open, and Jack found himself looking between the two of them, admiring the contrast as Elaine only grew hornier and more energetic, while Rachel slipped away, even as Elaine continued to make her fuck Jack with the strength of her hands on her hips.

Before Jack could cum again, Elaine broke her Kiss, and lifted Rachel off his cock. The feel of her quivering insides squeezing him as he slipped out of her almost broke him, and he ignored the pleasure as best he could. But, damn, he was going to burst the moment someone did anything else to him. And Elaine knew it. She grinned at him as she set Rachel down beside him, and the nearly sleeping thrall didn't hesitate to cuddle into Jack's side, opposite of Lei, squashing her breasts into his ribs and chest and resting her head on his shoulder as Jack moved his arm out for her.

Elaine grabbed Veronica, pulled her thong aside, and sank her down onto Jack's cock, still facing Elaine.

"Nn! M-Master, I—" Veronica stopped as she looked over her shoulder, and noticed Jack's expression. She probably recognized his O-face. "Master..."

Jack did his best to smile for her, but pulsing waves of hot cum shot up through his cock into her, and he desperately wanted to thrust his hips up. But he couldn't. Julee and Ashley were still both riding one leg each, drenching his quads and thighs in their juices. Elaine was straddling both legs near his pelvis, both ghouls pressed to her back and butt. Veronica sat on his cock, facing away from him, her body and breasts squashed into Elaine's. His head rested on Antoinette's lap, and Lei and Rachel were both snuggled into his sides. He couldn't move without disturbing the giant mess of limbs.

Veronica moved though. She ground her body back and forth on him, her groans getting desperate and turning into mewls as she milked him. Unable to keep looking at him, she clutched Elaine's hips and buried her face between the much taller woman's breasts, as she did everything she could to milk Jack like Antoinette had taught her. All Jack could do was lie there, and watch the young woman dance on his cock.

"May I?" Elaine asked, again. Someone was feeling greedy tonight.

Jack forced down a groan, barely. "Yes. But slowly."

"Master? I—" Veronica squeaked as Elaine pulled the thrall's legs over her hips, clutched the small girl tight to her, leaned down, and sank her fangs into Veronica's neck. Poor Veronica erupted into whimpers and arched backward; Elaine was so much taller than her, she had to. One of Elaine's hands held the small of her back, and dipped her back as the other clutched her ass hard, and forced her to keep moving back and forth as Elaine drained her.

Thankfully, Elaine listened to Jack. She Kissed Veronica slowly, taking her time drawing the thrall's blood into her. Sex with Veronica had only just begun, and Jack would feel guilty cutting her fun short. Elaine knew exactly what Jack wanted though, and she made sure Veronica came her brains out. A very long, slow, drawn out Kiss, all the while making the girl grind, and even bounce on his cock, stimulation Jack desperately wanted.

But before another orgasm came his way, Elaine gently lifted Veronica off his cock, and set the exhausted, trembling girl atop Rachel. Gravity ensured she slid down onto Rachel's back, spooning her, and from the panting breaths, Jack knew she was thoroughly exhausted.

"Elaine," Jack said. "You are a greedy bitch."

Elaine laughed as she crawled forward, breasts jiggling underneath her as she got over his pelvis. With a wink, she undid the knot of her red bikini bottom, and tossed it aside.

“I am your great grandsire. You owe me tribute.”

“Uh huh. I—” He sucked in a breath and watched, as Elaine lowered herself down onto his cock. He knew that angle.

He never considered himself an anal guy, but the way Elaine eased her round ass down onto him, leaning back as she did so he could see her empty slit shiver, even drip with juices from previous orgasms, as his cock slowly entered her ass, was glorious. Julee and Ashley had definitely prepared her.

His three exhausted, drained, barely conscious thralls all lifted their heads slightly, and stared with dreamy eyes at the sight of Elaine’s empty slit hovering a couple inches over his pelvis as her ass molded to him, and her asshole took him to the base.

Ashley and Julee both slid in closer, and pressed their chests against Elaine’s back as the elder vampire leaned back to let them both slip under her arms. With a devil grin Jack recognized from Antoinette, Elaine slowly ground her ass on him, dancing in a slow, swaying motion, as both of Antoinette’s ghouls reached between her thighs, and slipped their fingers into her pussy.

All three of Jack’s thralls let out tiny moans as they stared.

With Elaine leaning back, her heavy breasts partly flattened against her ribs, and they softly rippled with her dancing motions. The angle she sat at and leaned back on meant his hard cock pushed forward, toward her belly, and she made sure to keep every inch of him in her ass as she clenched the ring of tight muscle around the base of his length. She liked the feeling of his cock pressing toward her pussy like this, from inside her ass. And he shivered in bliss as she danced on him, as both ghouls slipped more fingers into her slit, spreading her and filling her. He could feel it through the walls of her flesh.

Elaine came again quickly. Probably her third or fourth orgasm, considering how long both ghouls had been playing with her. Ashley and Julee pulled their hands free, and almost like they'd planned this, they both gently pulled Elaine's vulva apart, just a little tension against the skin near the thigh, allowing everyone to see Elaine's insides and how they clamped with muscle spasms. A juicy orgasm that had more of her cum dripping out of her and down her skin, soon reaching her ass, her thighs, and Jack's abdomen.

Chuckling, Antoinette reached forward. She still sat on her side, one hip to the floor, legs bent slightly and creating a nice lap for Jack's head. But with one hand against the floor for support, she could easily reach forward with the other, breasts sliding over Jack's face as her long arm found her friend's pussy, and eased two fingers into her.

Ashley and Julee were extremely well versed in the art of sex by this point. But Antoinette was Antoinette. Jack didn't know exactly how she got it so perfectly every time, but she knew exactly how to curl her fingers, what pressure to use, what motions, to have Elaine cumming again in seconds. And unlike Ashley and Julee, she kept her fingers inside her old friend, fingering her through her orgasm.

"You realize Jack is my lover, before he is your great grandchilde, oui?" Antoinette asked, and she fingered Elaine harder, quickly bringing up another orgasm out of the very-slightly trembling vampire. Ashley and Julee slipped off Jack's legs, knelt beside him, and watched their mistress's work with hungry eyes.

"Blood before romance, dear." Only a tiny bit of husk came through in Elaine's voice, mid orgasm.

"I hardly believe that. And you are no blood relative."

Elaine grinned at Antoinette, leaned forward, and set her hands on Jack's shoulders. Antoinette removed her arm so Elaine was free to take charge. And take charge she did. Jack gulped as the tall woman's huge breasts swung back and forth over his head, as his great grandsire rocked back and forth on his cock hard. Finally, a proper fucking rhythm. Every orgasm he'd had so far had been edged, or with Elaine or Antoinette grinding the girls back and forth on him, pleasure reaching almost painful levels before his body decided it was time to cum. But Elaine bounced on his cock with a purpose, and she grinned at him as she slid her hands down to his chest, and pressed down on him as she bounced.

He came. He grabbed her hips, and now that Ashely and Julee were sitting beside her and not on his legs anymore, he thrust up into her, managing to pull a few quiet moans out of her, before she came again as well. It was cheating, really. She'd just fed, on two kine. Her belly was full of blood and her body was on fire. A random feather on her back could have made her cum. But damn, it was still amazing that a tall, busty woman was riding him cowgirl, and cumming on him as he fucked her ass.

"My god," Lei whispered, and she nudged her head against his chest as she looked to Elaine's thighs, and where her empty pussy dripped a couple more drops onto him as he pounded up into her. Hot, thick gushes of cum his flowed out of him with each hard clench of his muscles, filling her ass until he could feel it leak out of her and join hers.

Elaine slowed as her trembling came to a stop, and Jack slowed as his pleasure sparks finally died down. The damn woman timed it, a rhythm to make sure they came together. Christ it felt amazing.

"There. I think I am satisfied." Nodding, Elaine knelt up off his cock, and slid in behind Lei. The kine gasped, scared again, but eventually melted into Jack as Elaine pressed up against Lei's back.

Jack looked to his left. Rachel had moved down so her head was on his chest, snuggling his side, and Veronica behind her scooted up a bit so she could rest her head on his shoulder, squashed to Rachel's back and Antoinette's leg. She wanted to be touching him too. Lei shifted down so she could snuggle into his side lower down, giving Elaine the room to snuggle in over Lei's head, and rest her head on Jack's shoulder, opposite of Veronica, both of them close enough to nudge their heads into his jaw.

Ashley and Julee blinked at the six of them, then at each other.

"Oh my god!" Ashley clapped her hands, and giggled like a mad scientist as she crawled onto Jack. "We survived."

Julee's eyes widened, realization kicking in, and she clapped once as she followed her friend onto Jack.

"We never survive."

"Come now my pets," Antoinette said, "that is not true ... is it?"

They both nodded.

"We always get Kissed early on," Ashley said. She beamed as she gestured to the three thralls. "Not tonight!"

"Sorry," Jack said. "I didn't—"

Ashley grabbed his cum-soaked cock, and sat on it with all the grace of an ox. Well, that was sudden. He winced for a moment as she handled him with far too little gentleness; an erect penis wasn't exactly immune to pain. But once he was inside, he shivered as the excited ghoul bounced and danced on him. She was dripping wet, and very, very tight.

Ashley grabbed Julee, and pulled her up onto Jack's stomach, facing her. With more giggles, Ashley pulled Julee in close, until she was pressed up against her like Veronica had been to Elaine or Rachel a bit ago. And in the same way, she hugged her close, and set her lips to her friend's.

Antoinette chuckled, but didn't interfere. Normally she'd have said something, to remind her pets they weren't to do things without her permission. But they were right. They rarely got to 'survive' a whole night.

Everyone watched as Ashley and Julee took turns, neither of them going more than few minutes before they traded off who rode Jack. It suddenly became a game for the two excited ghouls: who could make Jack cum first. Julee was, naturally, horribly embarrassed by the game, but both girls had been on edge so long, it didn't take much to have them getting into it, and cumming seconds later.

They really did like each other. Maybe even loved each other. They were intimate friends before Antoinette found them, and watching them now, it was easy to imagine. They kissed each other, hugged, massaged, and ground against each other, as they traded off who had Jack inside them.

And with a belly full of Lei's blood keeping him hard and boiling, they both got to make him cum once each.

~/♥♥♥~/

---

Jack took his thralls back to his mansion. They had their own rooms, and now that Leilani and Rachel were fully bound by the Vinculum, they were invited to stay as well. It wasn't easy, getting his exhausted, drained thralls into some clothes so he could take them outside and into the limousine, and the fact all three girls took every opportunity to drape themselves on him made it even harder. Almost like drunk girlfriends who couldn't stand under their own power. Three of them.

But he managed. With Elaine's help, he got them into the limousine, and they went back to his place. The moment the car pulled up into his long driveway, two crows circled above, waiting.

Once Jack opened the front door, Mulder and Scully flew down, and into the mansion.

“Your pets serve you well,” Elaine said.

Jack, with Veronica in his arms, looked back to her and nodded toward the limousine. “Wanna help?”

She blinked at him, like he’d just suggested she pick up dog shit with her bare hands.

Jack rolled his eyes. “Mulder. Scully. Go back and keep an eye on my thralls please?” After a few annoyed caws, his two friends flew back out, and landed on the limousine. “Thank you.”

Elaine grinned at him as she followed through the mansion halls. “I am your great grandsire, an esteemed dragon, and elder Kindred. I am not your assistant.”

“Uh huh.”

It took a minute to get to Veronica’s room, big as the damn mansion was. He’d given her free rein to decorate it however she wanted, and she’d taken that to heart. Gone was the rich red and royal golds, now replaced with pinks and blues; she had a thing for sky blue, hair included. Stuffed animals, a laptop with stickers on it, a white cabinet with color trinkets and toys inside. Decorations on the walls, felt pictures with words of vague, meaningless advice on them. But at least one of the cute posters was funny. ‘Wake a sleeping princess at your own peril.’ He’d laughed when he saw it.

He tucked her into bed. She tried to stay awake, to say something, but all she managed was a quick smile before she passed out. A glass of water and some multivitamins stood on the white nightstand beside her bed. She’d need them.

Time for the other two.

He scooped Lei out of the car next. Fast asleep. Their rooms weren't setup yet, and he didn't want them waking up disoriented and confused, in a room they didn't know. So, he brought Lei into Veronica's room, and tucked her into bed with her new colleague.

And then of course his mind wandered. Ashley and Julee had been all over each other, while riding him. That'd been damn hot. And the way his thralls had been all over each other had been basically every man's dream. He hadn't expected them to get so into it with each other, but he did tell them they were free to be sexual with each other, whether he was around or not.

So of course now he had images in his mind of his three thralls fucking each other, and then him and Antoinette walking in, catching them by surprise, and punishing them appropriately.

One more to go. After retrieving her from the car, he tucked Rachel into the bed, and smiled down at his thralls. Three beautiful women, all deceptively smart and aware. And with some more years under their belts, ghouls, trained in weapons and martial arts. And sex. He really was living the dream.

A dream with a nightmare looming around the corner. They still didn't know what to do about the tears. They'd investigated, found some of the ones Natasha had predicted, but no way to seal them. So while Natasha and the werewolves looked for ways to do that, Jack, Damien, and Antoinette looked for ways to deal with Black Blood.

He kinda wished they switched jobs. Sneaking around, looking for any information he could on how to deal with Black Blood was like cutting random wires of an active bomb. A nuclear bomb.

“Does the necklace continue to serve you?” Elaine asked, following him back into the lobby. Damn woman hadn't lifted a finger to help him, and had enjoyed every minute of watching him do the labor.

“You know it does.”

Mulder and Scully sat on the stair railings, one on each, and they both cawed at Elaine; once, and quietly.

“That is good. And I do believe I have uncovered something that may be of interest to you, in regards to the curse.”

“Shit, really?”

“Mhmm.”

“Anything to do with how you got rid of the curse?”

“I...” Sighing, she sat down on the lobby stairs. That, was strange. She knew he liked to sit on the stairs often, but seeing her do it was straight up odd. “I have information regarding that as well, but I do not think you will like it.”

“Oh.” Jack sat down beside her. “That’s why you came with me tonight.”

“Indeed.”

He took a deep, useless breath. “Alright, hit me.”

“With which information?”

“What information did you get about how you got rid of the curse?”

He almost wished he didn’t ask. Try as Elaine might, she couldn’t hide the look of shame and guilt. They were subtle of course, just tiny hints in her eyes, unnoticeable to someone who didn’t know her. But he’d been around her for many months now. He knew her well enough.

“I committed diablerie.”

Jack slowly looked away as he flexed his arms, hands clutching at his knees. He stood up, and paced in front of her, both his birds watching from the front railing posts. Black Blood had been right, then.

It wasn't like Kindred didn't commit murder. Jack had killed before, and diablerie was killing another vampire. Except it was more than that. He didn't know if souls existed, or if some kind of energy at a level beyond human consciousness existed, or any of that shit. But he knew something did, and Julias had explained to him in no uncertain terms just how fucked up it was to commit diablerie.

You drank another vampire to death, and beyond death. You drank them until everything they were, everything deeper than skin and flesh, was consumed. It was the most fucked up thing a vampire could do. And far as Jack knew, any Prince in the world would have a diablerist executed.

She was trusting him a lot, telling him this. God damn it.

He took another useless breath, and after a minute of equally useless pacing, he sat back down beside Elaine.

“Alright. Tell me more.”

---

~~Author's Note~~

Ok, that was three chapters of sex. Woops! Time to focus on story for a bit.

Chapter 159

~~Jack~~

“Not long after I sired Viktor, I left him, and disappeared.” Elaine held his eyes, for a while, but eventually she looked down. “I was not proud of abandoning him. I do not think he ever forgave me, even after my return.”

The two of them were still on the stairs in his mansion. The stairs were the best place for a conversation, and their magic powers could hopefully disarm an elder vampire.

“I wondered about how you could have been his sire, without anyone knowing.”

“It was not an easy feat. I met Antoinette after I returned, and avoided Viktor. When the man realized I had returned, he wanted nothing to do with me, and I had to make concessions to him so he would keep our connection a secret.”

“But you never told him about the curse.”

“No.” She flinched.

“He never found out about what you did? To get rid of your curse? He never found out you were ever cursed, or that he still was?”

“No.”

Jesus christ, that was cold.

“Julias told me diablerie marks you. Makes you ... easy to notice. Like, you become tainted.”

Those words hurt her a lot more than he thought they would. She winced. Elder vampires didn't wince, unless it was acting, or someone just sucker punched them hard in the emotions. Making an elder wince was tantamount to cracking them over the head with a steel beam. It felt bad, doing that, but he needed to know.

"It does. I avoided contact with everyone for years, hiding in caves, terrified a Kindred would find me. It was quite some time before the darkness left my mind and Beast, and before the ... the addiction left as well."

His turn to wince. Being terrified made sense, considering how diablerist were pretty much a kill-on-sight situation in cities with a Kindred presence. And then there was the whole addiction thing. A diablerist around other Kindred was a meth addict surrounded by ... meth.

"You remember?"

"No. Only small details, certain memories that burned themselves into my mind, while most are lost."

"But you remember killing another vampire. You remember breaking free of the curse."

"I do."

"You told me you didn't remember. You told me—"

"I lied." She smiled weakly. "You can understand why."

"If Antoinette knew—"

"Antoinette is not the concern. The Ordo, is. I violated the third law. The Ordo would not suffer a diablerist to live." She laughed and shook her head. "Not one so stupid as to admit to it, at least."

“You ... think there are diablerists in—”

“There are diablerists, vile and putrid beings, who continue to commit diablerie regularly, who are in positions of power, young Ventrue. While a curious Mekhet may discover them, they...” She shook her head. “Do not worry. None of the Primogen here in Dolareido are tainted. And neither am I any longer.”

“Does anyone else know? Antoinette?”

“No.”

“Jesus fuck. You told me, but not her?”

She smiled at him, gaze steady, eyes carrying a billion hidden meanings he could barely scratch the surface of. “You are my great grandchilde.”

“But you two have been friends for centuries. Plural.”

“She does not know what it is like to have something vile inside, poisoning her every action. I do.”

“Your curse was still bound.”

“And yet I can still remember its claws, deep in my soul.”

Jack shuddered. “It ... it’s better now for me, in a way. Now that the curse is free, at least it’s distinct from me. Before, it felt like it was me, slowly becoming some sort of violent psychopath. Christ, I was fucking convinced I was turning into Viktor.”

“You were, in a way. How Julias managed to stay above the curse’s influence, I do not know.”

“Julias was ... he was one of a kind. He—”

Nodding, Elaine stood up. Apparently she didn't want the conversation to go down that road.

"I have shared with you a dangerous secret, my childe. If you somehow convinced my peers, or even others here in Dolareido, about what I have done, it could end quite poorly for me."

"That's part of the reason you told me, right? That I can't exactly prove it. Whatever you were before, you seem pretty normal now. The Begotten say you look normal."

"Indeed. But there are ways." She shook her head as she slowly paced. She was uncomfortable. Hell, Jack would have been too, dropping a truth bomb like that. "I have not told you the worst of it."

"Oh christ."

Chuckling, she shook her head again. "And I will not. For now."

"You're ... gonna dangle a carrot in front of me, information, about something even worse you've done?"

"Quite perceptive of you, childe of mine."

"And the thing you want me to do? The reason for the carrot?"

"You, are going to join me in a ritual."

Frowning, he looked between his two pets.

~Do not trust her, master, ~ Scully whispered into his mind.

~Do not trust her, master.~

"What ritual?"

"In my hunt to find a way to remove the curse, I discovered a ritual that will ... let me take a peek within."

“Within ... me?”

“Precisely. I wish to take a look inside, Jack. I want a peek at the curse.” She stopped pacing, and smiled down at him as she hooked her hands behind her back. He knew that look. That was a happy business look, like someone excited to make a contract, a binding one. The look of a Ventrue delighted with the way negotiations were going.

“You can’t expect me to agree to that.”

Her smile didn’t waver. “I do.”

“Why?”

“Because it is connected to how I removed the curse.”

“You committed diablerie to get rid of the curse.”

She flinched, just barely. “Yes, I did.”

“You might do it to me, to get the curse back, now that it’s unbound, out and swinging.”

Her smile slowly faded, and she came closer to him. “You trust me that little?”

“I’m not sure.”

“You told me, sweet childe of mine, what the curse is like. I have seen its disturbing rage and sick fetishes with my own eyes, as well. I have...” With a heavy sigh, she gestured back toward the door. “Do you know what I spend much of my time researching, for the Ordo? The dark secrets I have written and stashed away into the depths of records hidden from all eyes? Terrible mysteries I have not shared even with my good friend, your lover?”

“I ... The Strix. You’ve been researching the Strix.”

“Naturally, and I am sure my old friend suspects. I am known as an Architect of Terror, in the Ordo Dracul.”

“Right, I remember hearing that title, the night I met you. I never understood what it meant. You said once it meant researching the Beast?”

“Indeed. We dragons keep our secrets, young Ventrue. But I feel comfortable enough to tell you that I research the Beast, this creature that exists inside all vampires, and that I delve into uncovering its mysteries. Why is there a creature inside us? Why does it have its own desires, its own instincts? How is it awoken in us, when we rise from our first death? My research into striges is proxy to that research.”

“I guess that makes sense. You had to learn about them, if you were going to remove their curse.”

She sat down beside him again, close enough her shoulder touched his. “That necklace you wear is one of the results of my research, something I found in my efforts.”

Sighing, Jack reached under his suit shirt and pulled out the necklace. “I ... do owe you a lot for this.” Owe didn’t even do it justice. She taught him how to pull his thoughts away from his Beast, separate him from it, and gave him a necklace to force it to shut up. If it hadn’t been for Elaine showing up, the curse would still have been running rampant in his mind, fighting him for control every night.

He owed her his life. And Elaine did seem to take his warning to heart, about how awful the curse was, especially now that she’d seen it for herself after his fight with Avery. It’d be pretty damn strange for her to suddenly betray him now, unless her goal was to lull them all into a false sense of security.

Look at you now, Jack. Thinking like a true Kindred. Fucking lovely.

“Jack,” she said, “it has been centuries since I committed that vile act. I stowed myself away, knowing what it would do to me. Only after the horrible taint fled my being, and the voices stopped, did I —”

“Voices?”

Nodding, she looked down again, and leaned into him a little. Not a sexy lean. He expected sexy leans, sexy touches, sexy anything, flirtations she knew would go nowhere but enjoyed teasing him with anyway. This was a weary lean. A tired, even exhausted lean.

“I can barely remember them. And I did not record anything of my time hiding from the Kindred world. Any record could be used against me. But there had been voices, of the vampire I killed. They lingered in my mind, and they were ... unhappy with me.”

“Just like—”

“I do not know if the voices are similar to the curse’s voice. Perhaps they are related. You said the curse was created by the Strix, with an act of diablerie as the sacrifice, confirming my suspicions.”

“Yeah.”

“Then I can only assume there is a connection. This curse, this taint, it is connected to the Strix, and to the devouring of souls.”

Devouring of souls. Amaranth. Diablerie. Yeah, no wonder diablerists were a ‘kill on sight’ situation.

“So, I would look like a diablerist, if someone with Auspex looked at me? Cause I’m pretty sure I’ve been thoroughly examined by peeking Mekhets.”

“Indeed. The curse is ... unique. Striges have ways to infect, to take hosts, and the marks they place upon the soul are similar to those left on a diablerist before the taint dissipates. And how this is connected to our Beasts is of great interests to me. The fact you are not tainted is another unique element I wish to learn of.”

“Christ. This is ... all pretty fucking terrifying.”

“I know. I have waited to bring this idea to light because I was not sure if I could trust you.”

“Trust me? You’re the one who committed dia—”

She put a hand over his mouth, long enough to shut him up before lowering it. For a moment, she looked angry in a way he had never seen, but it faded quickly.

“I have danced around this issue long enough. I had to tell someone, and it makes sense for it to be you. I have a black mark upon my soul, for all eternity I imagine, but the infection, the taint, has faded to nothing. I ensured it did, before I returned to the world, and met your lover, her sheriff, and returned to my ... abhorring childe Viktor. Years of fighting against an addiction so powerful you cannot imagine, while hiding in caves.” She nudged her shoulder into him again. “Is it truly strange that I would hide such a past?”

Things clicked into place. She wasn’t being sneaky — or at least not entirely — because she was trying to maneuver Jack into a position she could use to kidnap him, or somehow remove his curse. She was being sneaky because if Antoinette or Daniel, or hell maybe Jacob, found out what she did, they might do something about it. Maybe even kill her. They’d certainly be ashamed of her. And on top of that, she looked ashamed, too.

“I still can’t believe you told me.”

“The others do not understand. Could you truly live with this curse for an eternity, Jack? Would you not do all you could to remove it?”

He would. He damn well would. No matter what Jack said or did, the Ripper was a psychopath killer, always riding some weird edge of rage and sick fetishism for gore and death. You didn't get much more fucked up than that.

“But ... but diablerie...”

“It is beyond vile, childe of mine, and yet you will be more disgusted with me when you learn who I devoured.”

“Oh god.”

“But that is a secret I will keep for now, to share later, after you have indulged me. Will you allow me to perform this experiment upon you, without your lover or anyone else knowing? I cannot risk them tracing the ritual to its roots. It is ... connected, to my past.”

“You—”

“I swear I will not kill you, Jack, in any capacity.” She sighed, still leaning against him, like she had an anchor around her neck, pulling her down. He knew the feeling. “But we flirt with such dangers. It must be done in secret.”

He wanted to trust her. The look in her eyes was genuine, as far as he could tell. If she'd tried to look overtly pained or guilty, he wouldn't have believed it. Elders didn't get to be centuries old by regretting their decisions until they self destructed. Whatever regret or self-loathing they had, they repressed it and grew into monoliths of power and will. He could see it in her eyes, the will to push past the shitty things she'd done, and it didn't get worse than being a diablerist.

“You think this will help us get rid of the curse?”

“I do. While it will not remove the curse, it will garner us knowledge. Intimate knowledge.” She said ‘intimate’ with a glint in her eye. Not the sexy kind of glint. The mad scientist kinda glint.

Was he stupid enough to trust her? She was going to put him in the center of some kinda ritual, just him and her, no Antoinette, no sheriff, no back up. But after everything that’d happened, and all the help she’d given him...

“Fuck me, I’ll do it.”

---

“I will be hosting a ball soon,” Antoinette said. “Tempers between the Carthians and Invictus have settled well enough.”

“You think?”

“Oui. Do you disagree?”

He shrugged. “Eh, I’m fifty fifty on it.”

“That is as good as it ever gets between covenants.” Chuckling, Antoinette reached up and pat him on the head.

They were in one of the bathrooms in her tower, lying back in a huge tub, Jack half sitting up half lying while Antoinette leaned back against his chest, between his legs. Bath time. Completely unnecessary for vampires, but still damn relaxing. And it was one of the places Jack and Antoinette had their best conversations.

It might have had something to do with the fact it was a comfy way for Jack to play with Antoinette’s breasts. At this point it wasn’t even sexual, he just really liked the feel of heavy, soft, supple flesh filling his palms. Case in point, his hands were cupping her breasts at this very moment, and gently bouncing them in his palms so the water's surface slipped above and below the tops of them over and over.

He had a problem. They'd tried those squishy stress balls, but it just wasn't the same. Antoinette had even gotten him a giant stress ball that looked like a boob, nipple included, with a similar texture and malleability and everything. Still wasn't the same.

If the rest of the city knew how much he was obsessed with tits, it'd have probably damaged the whole image he was cultivating for himself. The man in the black suit, the guy with two undead crows, the Ventrue with a mansion, imposing but intelligent, deadly but reasonable, tiny and terrifying, stuff like that. It was all true he supposed, but only half the time. The other half of the time, he just wanted to sit in a tub with his lover and play with her boobs.

"So everyone's coming?"

"Ben oui. Avery and her pack are invited, as is Eric. The Invictus and Carthians. Sándor and his monsters. And the Circle."

Jack frowned. "Ugh, really?"

"Of course. Do not be silly, my love. You cannot seriously imagine I would not invite them."

"I was hoping."

"Despite the fact the city is mine, and I rule it, Jacob is as responsible for this city's original growth as I. He will always be invited."

"Damn."

"And besides, he is dating your mother," she said, making him groan. All that did was make her laugh. "Come now, my love. Their relationship has lasted for some time. Surely you do not still hold it against him.”

“We don’t trust him.”

“We do not trust Jacob with grand affairs that affect the city. But I trust him with your mother’s heart.” She hesitated for a moment, before chuckling again. “And body.”

“Please don’t.”

“You do not want your mother to enjoy sex? She told me you explicitly told her to ‘get laid’.”

“That was before Jacob.”

“If it is any consolation, I believe she is enjoying Othello’s touch nearly as much as Jacob’s.”

Jack lifted Antoinette’s breasts high, let them go so they hit the water with a splash, and set his hands on the sides of the tub, grunting. It took a lot to break his desire to fondle. Antoinette drove over that line with a truck, and she laughed.

“Yeah,” he said, “I know, but I’m trying to not think about her that way. She’s my mom.”

“Well, I am afraid you will be forced to think of her that way. I will be encouraging a friendly environment at this ball, with thralls and ghouls to be shared, and skin to be laid bare.”

He groaned and squirmed underneath her, making her laugh again. Maybe in a few hundred years, he’d have an easier time thinking of his mom as a sexual person, but not yet. He told her to get laid, but he hadn’t expected his mom’s sex life to suddenly be a part of his life. Healthy separation! He didn’t want to be in one of those creepy families where everyone was so comfortable with each other, they didn't mind seeing each other naked.

Unfortunately, that was exactly the sort of environment Antoinette wanted. Well, she didn't have living family from her first life anymore. He did!

"Can we ... at least avoid having mom and I see each other naked, and especially avoid us seeing each other, uh, sexually occupied?"

"I doubt your mother will be having sex at the ball. Though I would not be surprised if Jacob pushes her into some delightfully erotic situations."

"Oh god."

"But she is just as squeamish about the idea of seeing you naked and having sex, as vice versa."

"You haven't shown her any of those films?"

"Non, of course not. She is your mother."

"Thank you. Know if anyone else has?"

"I do not believe they have, though Jessy and Fiona seem intent on showing everyone."

He was getting more comfortable with the idea of half the city having seen him naked in the movies. He looked good in them, and the ladies looked amazing in them. But if his mom ever saw them, that'd be a whole new level of awkward he doubted he could handle.

"Different topic. Beatrice. She ... she uh ... she make any progress?" He was terrified to ask Beatrice about it. Better to think she'd never succeed at whatever she was trying to do. Or maybe succeed beautifully. No. No, it was too tempting to get his hopes up, too good to be true.

“I know little,” she said, half lying. For his benefit, he knew. “Perhaps Sándor knows more?”

“Sándor? Why him?”

“I know the young Nosferatu has been visiting a lounge the man frequents. I have come to understand Sándor is a musician.”

“Wait, really?”

“Indeed. I have not had the fortune to visit myself, but my spies say he is quite the marvel.” She raised a leg into the air, long, milky white, and ran a finger down it before settling it back into the hot water again. “Musicians will forever be attractive, my love. And mastering an instrument expands the mind in powerful ways. Learn to play one.”

“I will I will.” Procrastination was easy when he was alive. It was twice as easy now, with eternity for a lifespan. “But, uh, Beatrice is visiting him?”

“She is visiting the lounge. I assume she is speaking to him, but I have not informed my spies to confirm. Such activities are quite personal, non?”

“Yeah, yeah they are. But I could ask her.” He knew Sándor had been asking about her, and Julias, months ago. But he also knew the man hadn’t acted on it. With all the rumors about dark rituals and resurrection going around, Jack found it hard to talk to her sometimes. They still did, but there was a wall between them they couldn’t quite tear down.

“Perhaps. I would approach the subject ... not delicately, but perhaps indirectly. Beatrice likely has Jennifer pushing her toward the man, or any man, in a desperate attempt to have the girl penetrated.”

Jack coughed on a laugh. “I thought—”

“I doubt Beatrice would ever let Othello touch her, or Jacob. And Aaron would not be interested in their sexual affairs. Non, I believe Beatrice has enjoyed the hands of Jennifer many times, and perhaps your mother as well.” Oh god. “But not another man’s, except maybe a fleeting moment with a kine she and her friend have hunted. Knowing Jennifer, she would delight in nothing more than having Beatrice penetrated by a man, while Jennifer pleasures her.”

“Elaine and Jennifer. I’d swear they were Daeva.”

It was Antoinette’s turn to laugh again. “Agreed.”

Jack slipped his hands back under Antoinette’s breasts, and resumed the most therapeutic form of stress relief known to man: playing with a woman’s boobs.

Tell her about Elaine? No, definitely don’t. As much as Elaine and Antoinette were good friends, she was his great grandsire, and she’d trusted him with the biggest secret she probably had.

He was taking a hell of a risk trusting her, but Elaine had pulled through multiple times, especially with the necklace. If he told Antoinette what she’d done, it’d probably lead to a confrontation, and then Elaine not helping Jack. Christ, just thinking the thoughts put holes into the idea. He couldn’t trust Elaine, not completely.

But he saw the look in her eyes, when he’d finally gotten through to her about how horrible the curse was. There’d been something there, something real, and after last night, he did trust her. More, at least. Hopefully his habit of trusting people wouldn’t get him killed.

Besides, he had a few contingency measures.

---

~~Beatrice~~

She threw up her hands. "It's hard with claws!"

"Trim the claws." The stupid Mekhet shook his head at her like she was brain damaged.

"Dude this ain't like most things. It's part of the Nosferatu shtick. If I trim them they just come back." She eyed him, and pointed a claw at her right cheek. No cheek there, just giant crocodile teeth. "See these?"

Damien leaned away from her slightly. "I do."

"One of the first things I did when I realized I was a vampire was try and rip out the extra teeth. They grow back."

"Everything a vampire has grows back."

"Not like this. The deformities can't be suppressed or plucked. They just come back, quick as the body can remake them. Being a Nos fucking sucks."

Sighing, Damien took her right hand, and gently set it back down on the piano keys. "You're playing the piano, not typing on a keyboard. Or tenderizing a steak, for that matter. Stop hitting the keys so hard, and use more of the underside of the tip of the finger. Relax your wrists."

Ugh, why did she agree to this? Two weeks of this shit and she still struggled to play Mary Had a Little Lamb.

"I'm fucking trying, but it feels nicer to just hit the keys with my fingertips. Must smash."

"Yes but you'll ... I suppose you'll never strain a muscle, but you will make it harder on yourself to get the patterns and flow between them. You're playing an instrument. It's a dance for your fingers."

"I don't dance. I headbang." Beatrice leaned back, let her head fall back over her shoulders behind her, and groaned. "I suck at this."

"Yes, you do."

Arg, this man. She sat up straight and glared at him, and Damien met her gaze with the tiniest smile. Somewhere along the line, he'd developed a sense of humor. Triss wasn't sure she liked it, but at least he had one.

They were in his apartment. Apparently the dude had gotten a piano, which seemed kinda weird to Triss considering he had one of those keyboard pianos on the shelf. Maybe he just preferred a real piano; Maria probably did.

He had a really nice apartment. Fucking Invictus money. Just like Jack's old apartment, it was all streamlined and modern and fancy, lots of black and silver, and she fully expected a serial killer had lived in it at least once. They were in his living room, the piano near the giant window, drapes closed, with some couches behind them pointed at the nice TV.

On the couch was a little redhead, flipping through stuff on her smartphone and occasionally looking up to giggle at Triss. She wore jeans and a t-shirt, like Triss, and neither of them really fit the apartment's look. Damien did. Dude was dressed in a casual dark suit, something Maria probably insisted on.

Well, whatever. The man seemed to be doing pretty well for himself, considering only four years ago he'd been a sewer rat hiding from everyone.

"You're a shitty teacher."

"Probably. You could ask someone else for help."

“I can’t ask a kine to fucking help, jackass.” She pointed at her teeth again, and her snake eyes, and her claws. “And I don’t want to go around asking people who know me. I just wanna do this privately, you know?”

“Aye, we know.” Fiona beamed at her, big smile on, before looking back at her phone.

Damien looked back at Fiona before back to Triss, eyebrow raised. He didn’t know why Triss was here learning this shit, or he did a good job hiding the fact he knew. Considering Fiona was Fiona, he probably did know, and was just pretending he didn’t for Triss’s sake. Nice of him, if annoying.

“Listen here, red tits.” Triss threw a glare and pointed finger at Fiona. “I’m doing this for me, okay? Jacob says I should expand what I know about things, cause it’ll help me be a better witch. Learning an instrument is mind expanding, right?”

Fiona nodded, eyes still on the phone. “Aye, but I bet there’s something else yer looking to get expanded.” As if she’d made the wittiest joke ever, she burst into giggles, but kept her eyes on the phone anyway.

Damien smiled, too, but Triss shot him a glare and the smile vanished.

“Beatrice, learning to play an instrument as a vampire is difficult. You’re constantly fighting your Kindred biology.” He pointed at his skull. “I told you. Your brain is influenced by the vampire curse.”

“Yeah yeah, but”—she gestured at her tattoos and piercings—“I can use the Kindred part of me to adapt, right? I got this shit after my embrace.”

“I told you it’s possible, but it’s ... difficult, to narrow down the focus.”

“Sounds like the same problem I’d have if I was alive and trying to do this. Just exercising a different muscle.”

“More like, the same problem kine would have, plus a whole new problem on top of it.” Damien shrugged, and played a short tune.

Triss scooted close enough on the piano bench to hit the man with her shoulder. “You think I don’t have focus?”

“I—”

“You have any idea how much focus it takes to do witch stuff? The fucking ... ugh, never mind. My point is, I got focus. It’s just these damn claws!”

Fiona giggled again. “Why don’t ye ask Sándor for help? He knows how to play a lot of instruments.”

Triss eyed red. “Maybe I will. If—”

A phone rang. Damien sighed as he stood up and pulled a phone from his pocket. “Yes Natasha? I ... oh.” He looked to Triss and Fiona before nodding. “Yeah, I’ll be right there.” He hung up. “I have to go. Important business.”

Triss eyed him, too, but not the same eye she gave Fiona. No, Damien was serious, and he immediately walked to the closet and put on his trench coat without so much as looking Triss’s way again.

“Alright, guess I’m outta here.” She stood up and—

“Stay, with Fiona. Practice. She can help.”

Slowly, Beatrice sneered as she glared at Fiona, which Fiona returned with a big, bright grin. The wonder child had started learning to play along with Triss, and unlike Triss, was a natural.

“Sure you trust me alone in your place?”

“I don’t.” Damien nodded to Fiona. “Vrall could easily beat you in a fight.”

Fiona’s grin grew absolutely maniacal as she hopped off the couch and joined Triss on the bench. “Ye think ye can take me, lass?”

Triss rolled her eyes, especially when she saw the smile on Damien’s face as he closed the front door behind him. Ugh, they weren’t wrong. Beatrice was plenty strong for her age, but the Begotten were strange, and strong. Fiona, aka Spider-Woman, would probably win any fight the two of them got into, especially if she got the drop on Triss. Well, give it a couple hundred more years and the tables would turn, assuming Fiona was still alive.

“So!” Fiona pulled down the cover for the piano keys, set her elbow on it, chin in palm, and smiled at Triss. “Ye like Sándor?”

Oh god damn it.

“It hasn’t even been a year since Julias died, Fiona. Gimme a break.”

That earned a small flinch from the girl, but Fiona recovered quickly. She shook her head and gave Triss a gentle shove with her free hand.

“Aye, but ye know Julias would want ye to be happy.”

This girl. She was blunt like Jessy, but none of the aggressive was there. To Fiona, there was a silver lining to everything, and joy hidden everywhere. All you had to do was go looking for it. The fact the girl had lost her adopted grandmother only shy of four months ago, didn’t seem to put a dent into that personality at all.

“Fiona, you’re what, twenty? You don’t know. You haven’t experienced enough shit.”

“Aw come on, that’s ... only a little true. Damien and I love each other.”

“You’re a kid.”

“But Damien’s nae. He’s experienced a lot of stuff, and—”

“He’s a pedophile.”

Fiona laughed. “And the Prince? Or Jacob?”

Triss couldn’t help but laugh, too. Yeah, vampire relationships were weird. You didn’t keep getting older when you were sired, you sort of half-stopped aging. Sure, you got smarter, maybe even wiser, maybe even more mature, but a lot of your personality and who you were stayed the same. It was part of what made it so damn hard for a vampire to learn to play a fucking instrument!

“Ok, yeah, vampires can be a little weird with the dating ages.”

Giggling, Fiona scooted in closer on the bench until they were touching hip to hip. “I hear Samantha is getting some fantasies crossed off her bucket list.”

“She ... is, yeah.”

“Details!”

“You know I’m not going to gossip about her behind her back.”

“I get ya. But, what if I told ye I’d heard some things from another gossiping vampire?” Damn it, Jen. “And she said Samantha was getting quite full, from both ends, ye ken? Like—”

“Ugh, fine. Yeah, Samantha’s enjoying sex with the Circle. Witches and orgies go hand in hand, I guess. There, ya happy?” She pulled up the cover off the piano keys, forcing Fiona to stop leaning on it.

“Aye.” Giggling again, Fiona set her right hand on the keys, some octave high up, and played a simple tune. “Vrall used to have worshipers for that sort of stuff.”

“Before you?”

“Aye. Musta been over a thousands years ago.”

“That’s ... kinda interesting, actually. I can picture it, ancient tribal people in a jungle, worshiping some scary, sexy monster of spiders.”

“Aye! The memories are blurs to me, ye ken. They’re not mine. But Vrall remembers them well enough. Folk, making sacrifices to her. Folk, mostly lads, surrounding her and filling her and covering her in white.” She licked her lips.

“Jesus, with memories like that, no wonder you’re a hornball.”

Giggling, Fiona shook her head. “Nae, I was always like this, before Vrall came to me. Masturbated myself raw the moment I figured out how.”

“Is it ... a redhead thing?”

“Lass! ... maybe?” She erupted into giggles again. Damn, her laughter was contagious. No wonder Damien loved her. Just being around her was enough to have Triss laughing, smiling, and forgetting just how shitty everything had been the past year; envy over her natural piano skills aside.

“And I’ll have you know I’m not here to learn to play for Sándor. Sure, we’ve been talking more, and sure, he’s really good at the guitar ... and singing...”

“He is, isn’t he?” Fiona blushed a little as she squirmed for a second. “He’s tall.”

“He’s ... a bit tall, yeah. Not very—”

“And he’s lean, and has muscles.”

“Ok, yeah, he’s got a nice body. But—”

“And he’s got those eyes! Deep blue eyes that are so ... mmmm.”
Fiona set both her elbows on the piano keys, oblivious to the noise it made, and sighed a dreamy sigh as she set her chin on her palms.

“You have a boyfriend.”

“Pfft. Damien and I are allowed to look at other folk! I happen to know he thinks Jack’s new thralls are sexy as fuck.”

“They are pretty hot,” Triss said. Jack was probably thoroughly enjoying himself, with three sex slaves to tend to his — or Antoinette’s — every whim. “Kid really has a thing for tits.”

Fiona giggled as she sat up straight, leaned back a bit, and bounced on the bench a couple times. No bra was keeping those things in check.

“Ye think—”

“No chance in Hell Jack, or the Prince, or Damien, will ever let you get involved in any of their shenanigans, Fiona.”

“Aw, but Damien would come, too! I’d never leave him behind.”

“Pretty sure that’d be too awkward for Jack and Damien.”

“But Art and Matt—”

“Aren’t most dudes. They’re more like ... me and Jen, I guess, without the bisexuality.”

“True. Tash is lucky as aw fuck.”

Triss set her claws back on the keys, and tried to relax the wrist and fingers. Not the fingertips, but the undersides. Stop smashing the keys. After a few minutes of experimenting, she managed to play a simple five-note melody with her right hand. It was so damn hard to get the volume consistent. Sometimes she pressed too hard and it was almost ear-splitting loud. Sometimes she pressed too soft and it barely made a noise. Maybe she should start with the keyboard piano?

Fiona brought up her phone, flicked through some things, and put the phone in front of Triss, between her eyes and her fingers, forcing her to look.

A video of Natasha, hands tied behind her, getting choked and fuck by Arturo from behind, her whole body on display. Matthew walked up to her, huge dick in hand, and spent some time rubbing his cock's head against the girl's obviously drenched, very tiny, very smooth slit, all while Arturo pounded into her ass, before Matt eventually shoved himself balls deep into the little girl.

The camera was in the perfect spot to show everything, even the small bulge on the girl's belly. The dudes were huge, and she was very petite and thin.

Triss groaned pushed the phone aside. "I get it. Come on. Can you stop thinking about sex for a moment, and—"

"Ye ever wonder if Sándor can fuck when merged with his Horror? Cause I know."

"You ... do?"

"Aye. Sándor does nae like to talk about himself much, but lately, I've managed to coax a few short conversations from him. Managed to piece a few things together."

Triss looked down at the piano keys, keys she should have been hitting to try and work some muscle memory into her stupid Kindred brain. But instead, she let out another annoyed groan, and looked at Loki incarnate.

“Can he?”

She scrunched her nose in a wicked, evil grin. “Aye. Apparently it’s very ... large.”

“Oh come on. He didn’t tell you that.”

“Nae, but he said a few things about time spent with his wife when in his lair, and certain ... anatomical problems because of size.” Somehow, her grin only got more evil.

Well, that’d certainly make Jen happy, if she could somehow convince the dude to indulge her.

“Your, uh, Horrors, make a habit of having sex? Can you all even have sex?”

“Vrall can, as you know. Sándor can. But I dinnae think Athalia or Mark can.”

“Heh. Well, the spider girl is pretty damn hot, admitted.”

“Aye! But she likes to tie Damien up. That’s nae fun.”

“Because you want to be the one tied up.”

Fiona nodded like accepting a gift of chocolate. “Aye.”

“Any ... any idea what Sándor likes? Or what his Horror would like?”

“Nae, sorry.”

Christ, now Triss was picturing it. Big, muscular gargoyle dude, oddly handsome in that ‘oh shit please don’t eat me enormous monster’ kinda way, with a girl not even half his height on his lap. Less sex than it would be like being a sex toy in a giant monster’s hand. Which tickled the witchy part of her so damn much. Sure, she loved being pampered and being treated like a princess, but god damn there was some part of her that wanted some demon beast with a cock the size of a log to use her like a toy.

Which of course made her feel guilty again, cause fuck, she liked Sándor, and the idea of fucking someone she liked rubbed up against the part of her that still wanted Julias in her life, the part of her that missed the fuck out of him. The part of her that was getting neck deep in shit with an ancient spirit of death, a flesh witch, and some ridiculous pursuit everyone told her was impossible.

Then what the fuck was she doing here, learning to play piano? So she could impress Sándor? God damn it, she fucking hated this, and hated herself for it, too.

“Alright. I’m gonna get going, anyway.”

“Already?”

“Yeah. I stole a keyboard to play on. I’ll practice back at my place.”

Fiona eyed her, obviously suspicious. The girl made no attempts to hide her emotions; if anything, she exaggerated them on purpose.

“I know ye’ve been hanging with Sándor occasionally. Ye—”

“Don’t, Fiona. Just don’t.” Before Fiona could apologize, Triss waved a dismissing hand. “It’s fine. But like I said, it hasn’t even been a year.”

“Ok ok.” She put up her hands in surrender. “Talk later then?”

“Yeah, later.”

---

~~Eric~~

“Oh my fucking god. That fucking ... that fucking ... fuck!”

Eric raised a brow at Jessy, but he knew he didn't have to ask what she was angry about. She'd tell him. Say one thing for Jessy, he never had to worry about her hiding her feelings.

The two of them sat in his apartment, curled up on his couch, watching some comedy drama episodes. He wasn't a big fan of sitcoms, but comedy dramas were a different beast, and he did occasionally laugh watching them. A guilty pleasure. Jessy didn't feel a shred of guilt about it, but she didn't really feel that way about anything she liked.

“Look at this!” She showed him her phone. Someone had sent her a video.

Jack, lying on his back, on what looked like a bunch of giant white pool towels. His head was on Antoinette's legs, and she was topless, giant tits hanging right over his head. On Jack's right was Rachel and Veronica, with both snuggled into him somehow. On the left, Leilani, and Elaine, doing the same thing. Jack had introduced them yesterday. They were all naked, and the three kine were exhausted. Elaine and Jack had probably Kissed them, and fucked them.

The perspective of the camera was from whoever was currently riding the kid. The camera pilot turned it around to point at her, and lo and behold, Ashley the ghoul blew the camera a kiss, before panning the camera down her body. Julee sat behind her, hands running up and down her naked skin, before settling above the blonde ghoul's very smooth, very small slit. And Ashley made damn sure the camera remained pointed right at where Jack penetrated her, as she ground her body around and around on him while her friend played with her clitoris.

Jessy groaned like she'd just be run over by a semi. "She must be so tight. Like, look at that tiny waist! Probably hard to fit a single finger in that pussy."

It was true. The Prince's ghouls had skinny bodies, the sort you had if you were a professional acrobat or ballerina or something. Kinda like Natasha, but taller, average height.

"They are pretty skinny."

"I know, right? And—" She groaned again as Elaine reached out, smiled at the camera, took it, and aimed it at Ashley proper, so the video had Ashley and Julee as the center of attention. But Elaine also occasionally took time to aim the phone down at Jack and how he was drowning in a sea of huge breasts, before she aimed the phone at herself and teased her own breasts, then pointed it at the Prince and teased her breasts, before pointing it back at Ashley.

That, was one spoiled kid.

Kat sat in Jessy's lap, and she pawed at the phone, earning a laugh from the vampire. As much as Eric loved his cat, Jessy apparently loved her more, and possibly vice versa. A shame she was spayed. If he could find another cat as chill as Kat, he'd be able to have a family of cats too useless to even hunt a mouse. Which was fine. Jessy was a hunter, and he was a hunter. They didn't need a third.

"Seven girls," Eric said. "That's—"

"A lot of pussy."

"I was going to say intimidating."

She restarted the video, because of course she did. “Talk to Avery lately?”

Talking about Avery and the pack was one thing. Doing that while Jessy held out her phone for the both of them to watch the kid Ventrue get fucked, was another, and weird. But he’d gotten pretty good at just rolling with Jessy and her brazen attitude by this point.

“How’d you know?”

“Tash sent me a message about it.”

He sighed and looked back to the TV, the show on pause. Try as he might, he couldn’t help but take peeks at the video. It had audio, and Ashley wasn’t exactly quiet. Hell, judging from the way her, and even the shy Julee, were bouncing and dancing and giggling, this was a treat for them.

“Avery wants me to come with her on some hunts.”

“Sounds like business as usual.”

“Yeah, maybe. But we talked about some other stuff, some Uratha stuff, and I get the impression she’s gonna try and include more of ... that.”

“That?”

“She’s going to try and be my mentor, teach me what she knows, and turn me into her student.” Which wasn’t exactly a bad idea. Avery’s pack wanted to stay in Dolareido. Eric lived in Dolareido and didn’t plan to leave. He was going to have to get along with Avery eventually, and she knew he kept going into the Hisil on his own to do his own hunts. So naturally, she was worried he was going to fuck something up, maybe knock out a key pillar of the ecosystem, and ruin everything.

She was also probably going to try and teach him about the history of the Uratha, what she knew of it, and about Father Wolf and that shit. Considering he'd been visited by the actual moon, on several occasions, he probably should have taken Avery more seriously. But Eric knew himself well enough to know he wanted to do things on his own, his own way, even if it meant making mistakes. Got that from his dad, no doubt.

“Yeah, Avery does have that preachy kinda personality, doesn't she?”

Eric laughed. Any other girl, or reasonable person, would have sided with Avery. Not Jessy. His girlfriend knew how important it was for some kinds of people to make their own mistakes and forge their own path, even if it meant walking over broken glass in bare feet. No wonder his dad liked her.

“Send more pictures to Dad?”

“Hell yeah. He didn't tell you?”

“I told him to stop telling me when my girlfriend shows him her tits.”

She laughed and punched him in the shoulder. “I made a deal.”

“Pretty sure that was for one showing. Not a feed of pics.”

She shrugged as she grinned at him. “I mean sure, I can stop. But last I heard, the dude is exercising, eating well, even doing some actual resistance training, you know? My tits have healing powers.”

“You checked up on my dad?”

She waved the phone, still showing Jack in the middle of his three ... four ... eightsome. “I message him every so often.”

“You do?”

“Yeah. And I know you don’t, you asshole.”

“I ... I talk to him.”

“Once every month on a thirty-minute visit.” Before he could defend himself, she put up a hand. “I know I know. Men. To get you dumbasses to actually talk about shit is like pulling teeth.”

“Funny, coming from you.”

“The fuck’s that supposed to mean?”

“You’re practically a man.”

“Fuck that! Just cause I’m awesome and speak my mind and know what I like and shit doesn’t mean I’m masculine. I talk to Tash about girly stuff all the time.” She jammed her finger into his shoulder. “You should talk to your dad more often.”

“I should.”

“Then do that.”

“I will.”

She poked him again. “Don’t make me nag. I suck at nagging. I go from zero to a hundred quick and start throwing things.”

“I’ll talk to him, don’t worry.”

“Good, because he’s probably excited to show off his new girlfriend.”

“I—wait what?”

Laughing, Jessy scrolled past the porn vid to a picture. “See?”

Yeap, that was his dad, in much better shape now, half hugging a woman while looking at the camera. A caretaker was taking a picture with his dad's phone, and the woman under his dad's arm was smiling bright. An older lady, like his dad, a black woman whose curly hair had started going white. She had a nice smile.

She looked nothing like Eric's mom.

"I ... didn't know."

"Course you didn't. Your old man's probably embarrassed, maybe feeling guilty over having a new woman in his life, or maybe some other reason. You'll never know if you don't talk to him." Nodding at him like she'd just spoken the words of God, she scooped Kat up, and set her on the back of the couch.

Before he could say anything, Jessy pushed him onto his back on the couch, pulled his closer leg up so it was on the couch, and she climbed between his legs. Thump, she fell onto his chest with her whole body, almost knocking the wind out of him.

He rolled his eyes, but hugged her as she got comfortable, lying on top of him, her legs between his.

"I guess that vid got me thinking," he said.

"The vid of Jack?"

"Yeah."

She grinned at him as she inched over his chest further until she set her lips on his. "Get you horny? Cause, I mean, damn. Antoinette's tits are—"

"Not exactly what I meant."

"Not exactly?"

“I mean, I know you’ve been wanting more people—”

She shoved her hands down against his chest as she forced herself up, weight on her palms. Ow.

“Really!?”

He pushed her hands off his chest, and she fell down, making him wince as he prepared for her skull to dent his sternum. Thankfully her elbows hit the couch cushions instead, catching her weight.

“Yes, if you want—”

“Oh my god you have no idea how fucking much Jack’s and Natasha’s vids have been driving me crazy!” She thumped her forehead against his sternum once, like a goat. “Can we—”

“Keep it reasonable, if you please.”

“Ugh, fine fine. I’ll keep it reasonable. Baby steps. Ya big baby.” She got up off the couch, scooped Kat up, and hugged the cat tight to her chest and shoulder as she paced circles around the couch. “I gotta plan this. I suppose you don’t want another dude in the bed.”

“Probably not.”

“Probably.” She leaned over the back of the couch, Kat snug and purring into her chest, and grinned at him. “Any dudes you’d be willing to share me with? Gotta worry about that fragile male ego, ya know.”

He didn’t bother sitting up. “No, I don’t know any guys I’d be happy sharing you with.”

“Mister big bad werewolf gonna be all possessive of me? Hold me down and claim me?”

“Nope.”

“Aw, please? Jealous guys can be kinda hot, when they get all possessive and stupid and shit. Puff up their chests and—”

“Nope.”

She frowned, but resumed pacing her circle around the couch. “I know a girl who’d be happy to join us.”

“Who is it?”

“It’ll be a sur—”

“No surprises.”

“Spoil sport.” She stopped pacing in front of the couch, held Kat up from under the cat’s arms, and rubbed foreheads with her. “Marge.”

“Saw that coming.”

“Hey! She goes to Bloodlust regularly, and we talk and—”

“And you Kiss her.”

Jessy grinned. “Yeap.” Not a hint of shame or guilt there, just mischievousness. “She’s been hesitant to leave Dolareido. From what I can tell, the whole fiasco with Jeremiah broke her, you know? Might not go back to being a hunter. Might give it up.”

Understandable. That’d been one giant shitshow that’d had monsters on both sides, and got a whole bunch of Marge’s friends killed. He didn’t know what sort of history Marge, or Brace or Dennis had before coming to Slut City, what sort of things might have driven them to be hunters, but considering everything that’d happened, no one could blame them if they decided to give it up.

Well, give it up was probably an exaggeration. They were hunters. You didn’t go down that road for no reason, and no one came out of that vocation without mental scars. Marge, Brace, Dennis, they'd all probably keep hunting, but maybe visiting neighboring cities, or keeping an eye on what went on in Dolareido. An interesting move on Antoinette's part, letting them stay in the city, but she did like to play the long game.

"Marge is pretty hot," he said.

"Fucking right? Love the tiny body and the light black skin, you know?"

Eric rolled his eyes. This girl.

"I haven't talked to her much."

"Well, I can guarantee she'd agree to it."

"I suppose she'd agree to anything in the middle of a Kiss."

"Hey! I didn't coax her into anything."

"Uh huh."

Jessy rolled her eyes, mirroring him. "I didn't! Just a talk between two ladies, a talk that came up several times, with maybe a Kiss here or there..."

"Uh huh."

"I can guarantee she would be delighted to sit on that dick."

"Uh huh."

Laughing, Jessy came over and sat down beside his hip, her ass on the edge of the couch. "Slut City's really rubbed off on her. Give her a few more years and she might even agree to become Kindred." After a confident nod, she hugged Kat snug to her chest, and cradled her on her back, like a baby. Kat made no motion to escape.

“Really?”

“Yeah. She didn’t get into the whole hunter thing the way most people do. I haven’t suggested it to her or anything, but I can see the signs. She’s pretty surprised with Dolareido and how Kindred do things here.”

“Still. She used to hunt vampires. I bet she’s lost friends to them.”

“Yeah, she has. But you never know.”

Jessy put Kat down on Eric’s chest on her side, rolled Kat onto her back, and buried her face in Kat’s belly. Kat didn’t mind. If anything, she liked having her belly touched, and she purred away on Eric’s chest as Jessy rubbed her face back and forth in the fur.

His phone rang.

Jessy groaned, and grabbed it off the glass table. “Avery.”

“Ignore it.”

“Dude, you know Avery hates phones. If she’s calling you, it’s important.”

“How about, we go find Marge, and have some fun, and Avery can —”

Jessy laughed, but shoved the phone into his face. “Don’t fucking do that! Don’t tempt me. Come on, this is important.”

He groaned, but answered it. “Yeah?”

---

Eric and the entire pack of werewolves stood in front of a tear. It was in a basement, under a factory in North Side, an abandoned one. Assuming it was Black Blood making the tears, it’d done so in a place humans weren’t likely to find it, but unlikely didn’t mean impossible. Hell, it was a wonder no kine had found one; they were a lot more hidden in the physical realm than the other realms, but still.

Jessy was with him. Natasha too. Everyone wore typical casual clothing, jeans and t-shirts and whatnot, everyone except Natasha. The little vampire wore a suit with a skirt and a trench coat, almost like she wanted to look like a tiny version of her sire. It looked good on her.

“Garry wants to get involved,” Avery said, talking to Clara. “I keep telling the dude to back off.”

“He’s committed to the city.”

“He’s going to get himself killed.”

Clara shrugged. “You ever meet an elder vamp that could take a younger person’s advice?”

“Nope.”

They continued talking, trying to find some way to get Garry to stay out of their Uratha business. Eric had a few ideas, but he doubted any of them would work. Garry was just one of those guys who liked to get his hands dirty, and see things get fixed with his own eyes instead of in spreadsheets. Eric could respect that, but it was also problematic. If Garry found a way to get involved in spirit affairs, or cross the Gauntlet somehow on his own, it’d make everything so much more complicated. No wonder Avery wanted to get Eric under her thumb.

Matt and Art both stood by a stack of pallets, chatting, while Natasha walked around the tear with phone out, taking notes. Caleb and Noah were there, talking to each other about the tear. David stood by himself, watching the tear, eyes filled with wonder. Monica and Mason, Carter and Erica, and Brianna, all there. Big crew, all to check out this one tear.

“I d-don’t know,” Natasha said. “It shouldn’t exist. It’s n-n-not in the plan...” Frowning, she scrunched up her nose as she stood in front of the large, horizontal cut in the air, and stared into its deep blackness. “It’s just ... a random tear?”

Avery walked up to the little vampire, and matched her frown as she stood in front of it. “These things aren’t random. Sure, there are ways to cut holes through the Gauntlet, but the natural ones aren’t cuts or tears. They’re more like sinkholes, and they’re rare as fuck. This”—she gestured to the tear—“is made. Someone tore this open, and we all know who.”

Eric sighed as he watched from the sidelines. Jessy sighed with him, but she only did it to mimic his sigh and try and make him laugh. Didn’t work. They’d thought they had the spirit’s plans figured out, but this threw a wrench into everything. It didn’t fit into Natasha’s graph at all. The first and only mistake she’d made, when predicting the tears.

Jessy walked up and joined her friend. “So this just doesn’t fit anywhere in your calculations?”

“No.”

“Hmm. We going in?”

“W-What? No we’re not going in! We don’t know what’s through there!”

Avery stepped closer to the tear, and sniffed. Clara did the same.

“The Gauntlet is pierced here,” Clara said, gesturing to the tear, “but it doesn’t come out in the Hisil. And ... and it doesn’t feel like the normal Gauntlet, almost like it's ... I don't know. Almost like it's brushing up against the Gauntlet, but not quite?"

Natasha sighed and put her phone away. "We n-need a Begotten to help us, then. Who should I call?"

Jessy put up a hand. "Call Sándor! Gorgeous Mr. Stoic will save the day."

Tash frowned up at Jessy and glanced past her to Eric, but he just shrugged and offered the little vampire a sympathetic smile. As deliriously horny as his girlfriend was, he trusted her. And considering he couldn't go a single night without her trying to get him to look at other women, least he could do was let her look at other guys. It wasn't like Sándor was a threat anyway, considering the dude kept a brick wall between him and everyone else.

Natasha called him, and sure enough, Sándor the gargoyle came, promptly at that. Casual wear, jeans and t-shirt like the most of them. What did a gargoyle do for fun in his spare time?

"This is unusual," Sándor said. "It cuts into the Great Below."

Eric sucked in a breath. The Great Below. Ghosts, wandering weird planes of dark stone in what seemed like a gigantic, endless cave. But not an empty cave. It apparently reflected parts of Doareido, especially the older parts.

"You sure that's where it goes?" Jessy asked. "Cause, like, I'd be down for visiting a realm with something other than ghosts and shit."

"Perhaps one day I will take you to the realm of the Fae."

"Haha ... Wait, seriously?"

“A dangerous place, and a dangerous journey to reach it. But it teems with life, and ... interesting creatures. Dangerous creatures, but interesting ones as well, some you would no doubt recognize.”

Jessy stared at Sándor like he'd just told her Santa was real. Maybe he had. A realm of fairies and shit? It'd probably make perfect sense for a jolly fat dude flying through the sky delivering gifts to exist there.

Damien stepped into the basement, expression as stone as Sándor's as he walked up to the tear.

“W-What kept you?” Natasha asked.

“Jack wanted me to check out something with the Carthians. He's still trying to patch up some problems with Bella and them.”

“Bella's a bitch,” Jessy said. “There ain't no fixing that.”

“That does seem to be the case.” Damien shrugged before looking the tear up and down. “It—”

“Goes back to the Great Below,” Jessy said. “So I vote we don't go there, cause that place ain't fun. Let's just close it.”

Avery shook her head. “We can't. If we could, we'd have closed the others, too.”

“Then the fuck do we do?”

“Go in, like we did with the others,” Clara said. “There has to be a reason this tear exists. I doubt it's easy for Black Blood to make them. And if it made one that isn't on Natasha's chart, which has been right about all the other new tears so far, we should check this one out. It's new, too.”

Sándor shook his head. “Too dangerous.”

Avery walked up to Sándor and gave him her usual angry face. Considering how small she was, it should have been cute, but Eric had seen too much of Avery's angry side to find it funny anymore.

They argued for a while. A lot of back and forth, Sándor saying they could die, Avery insisting Uratha could handle it, Jessy insisting ghosts were scary. Eric didn't say a word.

Eventually they settled on a plan. Avery, Tash, the boys, Eric and Jessy, and Sándor would go in. Clara and the rest of the pack would stay behind, in case Black Blood decided to start shit while they were all preoccupied. Damien would stay behind with her.

Eric shouldn't have answered the damn phone.

---

~~Natasha~~

Sándor went in first. Apparently last time they went through a portal like this, from one of the dream chambers and into the Great Below, it'd been cut very high. Plummet to your death high. Sándor insisted he could fly even when not in the dream realm, if only momentarily, so they followed him.

Avery made a few comments about how weird it was that the Gauntlet was there, and at the same time sort of not. It probably had something to do with the location of the realms and how they connected to each other. If the Gauntlet was a barrier between the physical and spirit realms, then why would going from the physical to the ghost realm brush against it? And how did you brush against a barrier? Was the Gauntlet less like a wall, and more like a nebula? Were there other types of barriers, blocking different realms?

She needed to draw a map. Some sort of fancy, weird, alien, special map that talked about realms and stuff. Antoinette would love that, both to have the map, but also to see Natasha step outside her comfort zone of science, and look into the crazy magical world they lived in. Sometimes it was easy to see how the Prince and Jacob ever became friends, with so many overlapping interests. The Circle was full of witches, and the Ordo was full of mad scientists who'd happily do something like try and mechanize a portal to a Hell dimension so they could harness it for fuel.

Antoinette probably had something like that in her basement already.

Natasha kept her boys close. She'd been in the Great Below a couple times over the past few months, but it was always creepy. A giant cave that went on and on and on, with all sorts of disturbing scenery. One night they found an ocean of dark water, with little glowing wisps swimming in it. Sándor had been adamant they don't touch the water. Another night they found a well, big and made of stone, with a rope and bucket pulled up. Jessy had tossed a rock in, and it never made a sound. That same night, they stumbled onto what looked like one of Dolareido's tunnels, one of the super old ones, and it went down. And down. And down. They didn't follow it much further.

And then there were the ghosts. Thousands, sometimes tens of thousands of them, in the distance. Whenever they came close, which was rare, they looked like white blurs, sometimes with more defined forms, and often wisps that faded into nothing. But at a distance they carried green lanterns. Tash and her crew had been damn careful to avoid them whenever they came here, but it wasn't all that hard, mostly. Whatever the ghosts did, they floated about doing their own thing, moving as a giant, slow-moving swarm. Like thousands of green fireflies, except moving with all the speed of turtles.

The only thing anyone could see past a few hundred feet in these strange endless, enormous cave tunnels, was fog, and floating green lights.

There were levels to the ghost realm, according to Sándor. He made sure they didn't go any lower than the top layer. His own trips into deeper layers he only talked about a little, giving them hints about 'dark' and 'mysterious' things he avoided, ghosts that transcended ghosthood, and strange places where the ghosts were bound by stranger laws. He even mentioned a river, something that acted as a barrier between the first layer and the ones below it.

A genuine journey into the pits of a strange afterlife. This was exactly why Natasha had fled the Ordo when Daniel had sired her. Crazy, horrifying things. It was so much easier to worry about real things like money and power and blood, all the Invictus ever cared about. But the dragons dipped their toes into so many strange places, and now she was dipping hers, too. And despite herself, she kinda liked it.

Her phone didn't like this place, though, and attempts to take pictures failed. Figured. If she had time, she'd get a sketchpad and draw things, but she wasn't exactly a skilled artist.

The cave went on, and they walked. Rolling waves of stone, usually smooth, sometimes not, the occasional enormous boulder bigger than a house, and then patches of sand, as if they were walking on a beach. Far as they could tell, the realm didn't change under their feet, so all they had to do was turn around when they wanted to go back. Still, it was a super easy place to get lost, and if it hadn't been for the Uratha or Sándor, Tash would have preferred they leave a trail of breadcrumbs to follow.

"This place is empty," Eric said, gesturing around, "and I don't see anything important. Maybe we should go."

Sándor nodded. "It is empty. If Black Blood tore a hole open to here, then either we can't see why it did, or it made a mistake. Perhaps the tear wasn't meant to exist, since it doesn't fit on Natasha's predictions."

“The predictions could b-be wrong,” she said. “I mean—”

“Tash,” Avery said, “you’ve been right about all this shit for months now. Get your head out of your ass, and stop defaulting to ‘I could be wrong’ anytime someone pokes at the plan. Yes, we all know you could be wrong. Congrats, that’s life. But when you got a plan that seems to be working, you fucking default to believing it first, questioning it second. Get me?”

Tash squirmed as she looked away from Avery. “I-I know.”

It didn’t take more than a second for Jessy to march up to Avery and stare down at her. “Hey! Don’t be a bitch. Christ, you like this with that Henry dude? Guy must have the patience of a saint.”

Avery glared up at Jessy like the vampire was only an inch tall. “Don’t bring my personal life into this.”

“If you plan to live in Dolareido, don’t expect much privacy.” With a very evil wink, Jessy licked one of her fangs.

“Strange, cause I thought I’d done a pretty good job of keeping my private life private.”

“Oh? A little birdie told me a certain werewolf bitch, short, milf body, silvery blue eyes and black ponytail — you might know her — has a thing for giving her man handjobs in locations she probably shouldn’t. Movie theaters and stuff, you know? Where it’s all dark and no one can see what you’re doing.”

Everyone stopped, and stared. Matthew and Arturo dropped their jaws. Natasha backed up, several times, until she put the boys between her and the volcano.

“You ... fucking spied on me? When I was just hanging out with Henry?”

“Invictus spy on everyone.”

“We’re allies!”

“Pffft. We’re acquaintances with similar goals. Thralls and ghouls all over the city are watching you, and Jack isn’t the only vamp in the city with some animals to help him.”

“You fucking ungrateful little shit!”

Jessy didn’t back down. If anything, Avery’s anger was gasoline on her fire. God, Jessy could be such an evil bitch. And right now, Tash was glad to have her as a friend. Maybe.

“Oh get over it. We’ve got all sorts of intel on the lot of you and the sort of shit you get up to when you’re not locked up in your little apartments with drapes shut tight. I know Carter’s found himself a little kine fox who’s into older guys. I know Erica’s been exploring her dom side, whips included. I know Monica’s got really close with a kine couple. Everyone knows about Mason and Tilly, and Brianna and Santos and Derick. Bet you didn’t know Noah, your resident closed-off antisocial asshole, has become really close friends with a couple girls who—”

“I get it! Holy shit, don’t you fucking respect people’s—”

“And I know you, oh holier-than-thou bitch, not only like to take charge when fucking, but apparently you really got a thing for anal.” Without dropping the grin, Jessy shrugged like it was no big deal. “Vamps really go for anal a lot, cause there’s no clean up required, right? We’re ready for anything, all the time. But werewolves gotta eat, right? Must be a pain in the ass — ha!— to get prepped for anal sex with your man all the time.” Jessy leaned down toward Avery, full-on eye contact engaged. “All. The. Time.”

Tash stepped behind Matthew. Hopefully the width of her giant boyfriend would be enough to block the impending explosion.

“I ... I ... am a grown woman, vamp. I’m not going to be embarrassed about the things I like.” Which was an obvious lie, considering she was blushing. Not a lot, not nearly as much as Tash would have been if Blushing Life, but still, more than they’d ever seen the woman blush.

“Uh huh. Well, be nice to Tash, or I’ll have every dirty, sexy little secret you Uratha have, all out in the open. And I got more.”

Jessy wasn’t lying. She had a lot more secrets than that, for sure, with all the tools the Invictus had for spying on people, plus the stuff she knew about Clara and her time with Jessy’s ghouls.

“Be nice? I’m not being mean. I’m—”

Eric raised a hand. “It was a little mean.”

Avery glared daggers into Eric, before looking to Matt and Art. “What do you think?”

The boys looked between each other, before squirming a little.

“You can be harsh with us all you want,” Art said. “But, uh, yeah you kinda cross the line when talking to other people.”

Matt raised a hand. “Not that Jessy isn’t crossing a hundred lines right now—”

“Says the porn star,” Jessy said, chuckling.

“But, um ... maybe be a little nicer?”

Tash smiled up at the back of Art and Matt’s heads. Aw, her boyfriends were defending her. Which normally she’d appreciate, but Avery was a dangerous bear to poke. Wolf.

Avery glared at Matt with enough intensity to melt steel. And when Tash peeked out from behind her, Avery leveled her gaze straight at her. It was like staring into the eyes of a raging storm.

But after a few moments, Avery took a deep breath, sighed, and relaxed.

“Sorry, Natasha. I’ve dealt with a few Uratha like you before, and ... I guess I’m just falling into old habits. You’re smart, ok? Just go with it.”

Slowly, Natasha stepped out from behind Matt, and offered Avery her best apologetic smile.

“Th-Thank you. And I know Jessy is a bitch, but—”

“Hey!”

“She means well. And I’m not made of g-glass, Jessy. I can handle a little criticism. I had Maria for a boss for a long time.”

Jessy groaned and scrunched up her nose. “Christ, right. I don’t miss having that bitch in the council.”

“M-Maria wasn’t that bad. She just ... w-wanted to make sure things went well.”

Avery laughed as she started walking, and everyone else followed her cue. “I get that. I hate that vampire corpse bitch, but I get it.”

Crisis averted. Everyone started moving again, Sándor at the front, with Eric and Tash’s boys behind him. The girls took the back this time.

Jessy leaned in toward Avery, walking beside her. “You’re really hot, by the way.”

“Don’t start.”

“Aw come on, don’t be like that, I’m just trying to settle the water. Besides, I wasn’t lying. You really got that milf—”

“I never had kids.”

“Cougar then, whatever. You got this tiny, compact, deadly woman thing going that is fucking hot as sin. And the pony tail down to the ass makes you look like a nineties action hero or something.”

Avery rolled her eyes, but Tash could see a hint of a smile there. While Jessy had absolutely zero tact, she had the unnatural ability to disarm people, at least when sex was the topic. Usually. Sometimes.

“Sorry if I’m not as comfortable with sex as you, vamp. Having a pulse and body hair and a menstrual cycle kinda gets in the way of that whole immortal succubus vibe.

“Then it’s a good thing you’re in Dolareido, so you can get every wax imaginable whenever you want, night or day.” Jessy winked at Avery as she came in a bit closer, and bumped hips with her. “And I know you do.”

“Fuck I hate you.”

“No you don’t. I’m delightful.” Jessy nodded, as if it was the most obvious thing in the world. “Just ask Eric.”

“The pup might be a bit biased, don’t you think?”

“True.” Not deterred, Jessy hip bumped Avery again. “You looked great by the way.”

“Looked? You—”

“You and Henry didn’t bother closing the drapes. Not all the way, anyway.”

“We didn’t fuck against the window!”

“That don’t matter. It was an apartment building. Lots of people with telescopes, and drones and stuff. Wasn’t just my spy that saw you riding that dude on the couch.”

“Oh fucking god.” Unable to take it anymore, the poor woman hid her face in her hands. “They recorded it, didn’t they. You got me on tape.”

“Pfft, please. I got everyone on tape. It’s Dolareido.”

“I don’t suppose you’ll—”

“Watch it with you? Sure. You got no idea how hot that firm ass of yours looks with a dick in it. And the way you rode him, facing away, squeezing his legs? Poor guy was just trying to survive how much of a hornball you were being.” Jessy leaned in closer again. “Your legs were shaking.”

Natasha, standing with Jessy between her and the pack leader, gulped on a dry throat as she peeked up at her friend, and then across to Avery. She was blushing again, but at least she didn’t look angry; not livid, anyway.

“I’m not making porn for you, Gangrel.”

“Too late now.”

“And I ... I ... I know what I like. Henry’s a nice guy, and I guess I like—”

“Putting on a show? Taking a kind guy and pampering him with all sorts of kinks he never thought a girl would happily satisfy?”

Cowgirl anal, and then enjoying it so much you can't help but get all tingly and swollen, and everything inside just fucking boils. Before you know it, you're soaking guy's balls, hands clutching his shins as you cum." Thankfully she whispered it, because Avery blushed a thousand times worse than before, but the boys didn't hear it. Tash did, with how close she was. "It's an interesting spin on the trope. Hardass boss still likes being in charge in bed, but likes being gentle? Dommy mommy? It's unique. Usually the hardass bitch boss wants to be submissive in bed."

"Jesus christ, is sex all you ever think about?"

"No, but I think about it a lot. Everyone does. I'm just honest about it." Shrugging, she gestured down at Tash. "You must have seen the vids of this girl getting stuffed with cock right up to the lungs." This, Jessy didn't bother whispering.

Oh god damn it. Tash punched Jessy in the hip, but Jessy just laughed.

Avery took a quick peek at Tash before looking away. "I ... have."

Tash gasped. "Avery!"

"What? Everyone in the pack talks about it, about Matt and Art suddenly being porn stars. I wanted to see what the fuss was about."

Jessy growled like she was about to sink her fangs into a fresh meal. "Tash is so small, you can actually see their dicks pushing out against her belly. Fuuuuuuuck it's so hot."

Now it was Natasha's turn to be hyper embarrassed, but at least she couldn't blush without the Blush.

"At least she fucks them while they're in human form," Avery said.

Jessy grinned. “For now.”

“For now?”

“Yeah. I’m gonna break her, and get her to fuck the boys when they’re transformed at some point.”

This was ridiculous. Why were they talking about this when walking through the fog of the Underworld? Ghosts everywhere, hidden in the mist. Ghosts above and in the distance, hovering along, thousands of them, green lights on a path Tash didn’t understand. It was a scary place! But the moment Jessy saw the opportunity to steer the conversation toward sex, she did with the utmost gusto. The girl had a problem.

Avery sighed and shook her head. “It’s weird.”

“Nah, come on. What girl hasn’t fantasized about getting pinned down by some huge, oddly handsome monster, you know? And filled to bursting and—”

“Not that. I mean, Dolareido. There’s a presence here, something that calms the wolf in us. I thought for sure Eric was going to rip you in half if he transformed when you guys were intimate.”

“He nearly did.” The grin on Jessy’s face was positively filthy.

“Not ... not that kinda ripping. Girl, what the fuck is wrong with you. No, never mind, forget I asked. What I’m saying is, there’s something weird about Dolareido. The whole damn city is odd. Like, I feel like there’s something ... else, happening. Someone or something out there is fucking with this city in ways we don’t know about. Apparently Eric’s talked to the actual Luna, so maybe he knows something, but he doesn’t tell me shit.”

“Well stop being an ass and he’ll tell you more. Use a carrot.”

“A carrot? Bribe him?”

“I mean, kinda? I got his dad in good shape by promising him pictures of my tits. That seemed to work. Maybe it runs in the family?”

Tash groaned. Avery groaned. There was no helping this woman. The only person who was as devoted to sex as the entirety of their personality, was Othello, and Othello didn't go around poking and prodding people with it. Far as Tash knew, the gorgeous man was content to be a sex addict in silence. But Jessy, she turned it into a game. How uncomfortable could she make people with her sheer abrasiveness and shamelessness?

“I'm not going to show your boyfriend my tits.”

If her comment had been an attempt to throw Jessy off, it didn't. The woman was impervious.

“Nah. But Eric's trying to do his own thing as a werewolf, right? Get this whole vigilante thing going, while you're against that. Maybe if instead of trying to convince him to do otherwise, you actually help him out? I don't mean physically help him on his hunts, but maybe teach him a thing or two, without trying to turn him into your bitch?”

“I haven't been trying to turn him into my bitch. But I'm not so dumb I can just ignore—”

“That's exactly what I'm talking about. Let the dude do his own thing, and—”

Natasha put up a hand, and gestured forward. The boys had stopped, and all of them were looking out into some sort of ravine, complete with jagged, sharp rocks, and lots of places to fall.

Slowly, everyone came up to the edge of the ravine and looked down. Fog, but not so thick they couldn't see it was about a hundred feet down, climbable even. Tash half expected to see green lanterns down there, but no, no ghosts, near or in it. Left and right, it was one long canyon cut into the dark rock, and weirdly enough, it looked half natural, as if time and weather had created it, but also that it'd been helped along by human hands with tools.

Tash squinted as she crouched down, tapped her vitae, and gazed into the mist and dark. She peeled away the darkness and found identifying marks as best she could, cuts in the black and gray stone, and several old chisels. As she adjusted, she found more things, more bits of metal, man made, things like shovels, and some old railroad carts. All of it was rusted and worn.

There were more than rocks and old tools down there. With what Jack and Jessy told her about the old train graveyard they found months ago, she had to assume the Great Below reflected the places it was close to in the physical realm, or was connected to them somehow. This long canyon had to be reflecting something from Dolareido, maybe from its massive expanse era, same as the train graveyard.

She sucked in a useless breath. There were enormous spiderwebs down there, many of them. God damn it, not again.

Chapter 160

~~Jack~~

“So, uh, what’re you gonna wear to the ball?”

Elaine laughed as she lit another candle. “Obviously whatever I can that is both luxurious and fashionable, and scandalous.”

He watched her as he paced around the mansion’s basement’s basement. Viktor had several large rooms carved deep into the Earth, offshoot rooms from the empty cells and the secure sleeping room. Torture rooms. Something about blood got into concrete and changed it, altered the color. You could never quite get it out, far as Jack knew. Doubtful Viktor tried. Fucker probably enjoyed sleeping down the hall from the smell of death.

Well, either way, the room was useful, once he removed the chair Viktor had probably tortured people on. Now it was just a big, empty concrete room. Was empty. Candles sat in the room corners and in the corners of the symbol Elaine drew on the floor, which she of course drew with blood because why the hell not.

“You could wear something not scandalous, you know.”

“Where is the fun in that?”

“Elaine, come on. You’re five hundred years old. I seriously doubt you get excited by wearing something scandalous anymore. You could strut naked in a packed football stadium and not even blink.”

She grinned at him over her shoulder, before dipping her small, dark brush into a black jar filled with blood, and working on her symbols again.

“I could.”

“Then why bother with scandalous?”

“Just because I have played the game for hundreds of years, does not mean I no longer enjoy the game. We go through phases, young childe of mine, we all do. Antoinette knows what it is like to be filled by half a dozen men, at the same time, while another half dozen coat her in white. And yet I have seen her enjoy some of her most fulfilling sexual moments with you, a single, small man.”

Jack frowned, but it just made her laugh.

“What I mean,” she continued, “is that Antoinette is now in a phase in her life where she finds her greatest joys in fulfilling your sexual desires. Perhaps in a hundred years, you will wish to do the same with her, and she will enjoy that you will enjoy satisfying her with a myriad of kinks.”

“What’s this got to do with scandalous clothing?”

“Phases. Your lover and I show off our bodies for different reasons than your younger companions, now that we are as old as we are, but we still wish to show them off. I am blessed to have been sired at the height of my beauty, and I am blessed to have had the genetics to be so lovely a creature.”

“Not lacking for confidence, that’s for sure.” Ventrue she was.

Again she laughed. “Well, unlike your lover, I am all natural.”

“I guess that’s true.”

“Dressing scandalously is, for Antoinette and I, a game about making other people squirm. The goal is not to show off, but to force reactions from others. Surely you noticed how many times Antoinette has done something, not with the intent of drawing the eyes of others, but to make specifically you wriggle?”

Jack groaned and paced faster. “Yeah, that happens a lot.”

“After centuries, you learn to accept reality, and stop seeking validation. She and I are beautiful, and no longer look to prove it. We look to tease others, and indulge in this mischief.”

“That’s what you matured into? Teasing people? Cause I knew more than a few girls in high school who thought the best thing in the world was teasing young guys. A little flirting, a boob smooch, anything to get the guy to blush or squirm.”

“As I said. Phases.”

“I don’t buy it. I think you’re both just a couple girls who’ll always be a couple girls, using tits and ass to flirt and tease cause you like causing, as you said, mischief.”

“That would imply Antoinette and I are quite young at heart. Do you believe that?”

He eyed her, even gave her his best stink eye, but Elaine just laughed as she drew another line on the concrete floor. No, he didn’t believe that. As much as he loved Antoinette, there was no denying that was she was old, right down to the soul. Hell, that was part of the reason he loved her.

“Think of it as nostalgia, then,” she said. “Antoinette and I are indulging our nostalgia, when we act like young women. Forgive us old monsters our guilty pleasures.”

That did make a lot more sense. Nostalgia was a powerful force, and even Jack, in his mid twenties now including his nine years, found himself occasionally listening to old songs or watching old movies from his childhood for a taste of it.

“I suppose of all the silly immature habits an elder could have, being outrageously flirty is pretty reasonable.”

“Indeed.” Laughing, she stood up, walked over to another corner, and continued expanding the symbols below. “I suppose you told Antoinette that I was here?”

“Yeah.”

“You do not trust me?”

“I trust you enough to try this. Not so much that I won’t tell Antoinette you’re here. I’m a pretty trusting guy, Elaine, to a fault, and I didn’t tell her anything about your past or what we’re up to. But I made sure she knows we’re up to something, in case you stake me, throw me in a box, and ship my ass to Europe.”

“Come now my childe, I would never use something as dull as a box. An expensive coffin, on the other hand, would be far more comfortable.”

“Pretty sure there’s issues with shipping dead bodies across borders.”

“Then it is a good thing the Ordo can make such issues disappear.”

He hadn’t considered that. In Dolareido, the Invictus had their fingers in every aspect of running the city, from the mayor to the police to its criminal groups. A lot more than that, considering how big an organization the Invictus was. The different cities normally ignored each other, but when they had to, Invictus had ways to help each other out, and that probably included getting into other countries without issue. No reason to think the Ordo Dracul didn’t have the same systems in place.

“So, um, are you gonna stake me?”

“It is always a possibility. Will my great grandchilde be so valuable a prize, I steal him away and lock him in a dungeon somewhere, where I can experiment upon him in peace?” She shrugged, laughed again, and lit another candle, as if she hadn’t just threatened to basically be his undoing. “I suppose it will depend on developments. But, for what my word is worth, it is not my plan. It is clear the curse you bear is not a blessing.”

“You did remove yours for a reason.”

“Mine had been bound, eating away at me as a whisper I could never quite define. You said the same of yours, before my grandchilde’s death broke it free.”

Jack winced. “Julias’s death didn’t break it free. I did.”

“Regardless, your tales of your time with the curse before then were quite vivid, while my memories of it are blurry scars.”

“But...”

“But now, your curse is no longer bound. It is free to run amok in your mind, instead of some insidious part of your subconscious. I do wonder if it could somehow be extracted.”

Jack paced some more, if only so Elaine wouldn’t see the moment of surprise on his face. Yeah, Black Blood had suggested that very idea, and Black Blood gave the impression of a villain who liked telling the truth, so he could make people suffer with it. The idea was there, an option Jack considered every night now, letting Black Blood extract the curse. No way he’d do it knowing the spirit-not-spirit was performing some kind of ritual the size of the damn city, but still.

“I assume,” she said, “you will be wearing a suit to the ball?”

“What dude won’t be?”

“I suppose that is true. How many variants can you make of a suit, before you retread ground? Suits three hundred years ago looked closer to penguins than they do to the suits of today, and yet, still suits. Women have so many more options.”

“Yeah well, guys don’t wear suits for how they make the guy look visually.”

Elaine smiled, like a teacher glad her student figured something out.

“Correct. The world of fashion for men is an entirely different beast, filled with social posturing and silent proclamations of power and control. I do not envy the fashion game men play. I am quite content to be judged solely on my looks, particularly when it comes to a ball.”

“Easy to say when you’re thin and have huge breasts.”

Licking a fang, she came closer, walked past him, and scooped up a book from the floor.

“Do not forget my ass.”

He rolled his eyes, even as he took a couple peeks at her ass and the suit skirt snug to it. Anal sex had become pretty norm for them, because Antoinette liked burying him in kinks, but wasn’t a fan of anal herself. So Elaine was a tool Antoinette could use to treat him, an ass for him to fuck. Which Elaine seemed to enjoy, being treated like a sex toy by her friend. Elders were weird.

It really was a great ass, though.

“I wonder,” she said, “about your friend Beatrice.”

“Triss? What about her?”

“I’ve come to understand she and Sándor have spoken to each other several times over the past few months.”

“I know, but—”

“And several more times besides, when pursuing the dark path your friend follows.”

Jack winced again. “Really? I was hoping she ... fuck, I don’t know. Beatrice and Sándor are nothing alike, but then so was Triss and Julias. Maybe ... Maybe she and Sándor could get involved, romantically, and help each other be a little happy.” If that was even why they were hanging out. If Sándor was hanging out with Triss because of the whole resurrection rumor, Jack wasn’t sure if that was a good thing.

“You do not hate Sándor for his role in my grandchilde’s death?”

“You know I don’t. He wasn’t in control of himself. And fuck me, if Triss can get past his role in Julias’s death, I can.”

“Perhaps. I wonder if Sándor’s guilt, and Beatrice’s resentment over his part in Mire’s death, has led to a strange connection between them. Perhaps he aids her in her ultimately futile goal, to settle his guilt? The poor fool reeks of it.”

Slowly, Jack sucked in a breath as he shook his head. “I trust her. She’s smarter than she seems. Same for Sándor.”

Elaine raised a brow as she met his eyes. “I am surprised. Ventrue normally prefer to control their friends, and meddle in their lives.”

“I get that. Part of me really wants to get involved and say something about what Triss is doing, and Sándor’s involvement. But I won’t.” He gestured to the circles drawn into the floor, and the candles at the connecting points between lines between the circles. “Ready?”

“Indeed. Kneel in the center, if you would please.”

“Kneel.” Yeah, he hated this. “Reminds me of the vision I had, of Susanna, and the priest binding the curse. You ever find that dude?”

“No. There was much chaos during the 1500s. Upheaval, death, communities ruined by flame or disease. I have no idea what happened to my sire, as you know. And I have no knowledge of the priest who bound her curse. If she told me of him, it is too far a faded memory.”

“He was in the vision, but I can’t really remember what he looks like. Like trying to remember a dream, but he was there, casting the spell on Susanna. And he was there, watching, when Susanna sired you.”

Elaine nodded as she flipped through the pages of her book. Her very old, very creepy book.

“Shadows of my past.”

“Think they’re still alive?”

“No. They would be ancient elders by today, and I have not discovered any elder Kindred older than I, few as they are, that could be those from your vision.”

“Damn.”

“As I said, the time period was fraught with dangers for Kindred. With the curse bound and weakened, Susanna and her extreme tastes — as described by you — would likely have led to her exposing herself, but without the power to defend herself, not against an entire mob armed with pitchforks and torches.”

“But those urges were because of the curse ... right? It didn’t have any visions from before Susanna cast the ritual and got the curse.”

“Naturally.”

“I ... remember what she was like when it and her were in full bloom together, slaughtering people by the thousands. It was just like when the curse gets a hold of me, that crazy blood lust that’s psychopathic. Like ... rage, and eroticism, mixed into some kinda gorefest.”

“Then the question is, how much of the curse’s personality is a product of the Strix, and how much of it is a remnant of Susanna?”

“Lot of questions about Susanna.”

“Indeed. If only my sire would reappear, and answer all our questions for us in a dramatic storytelling moment.” Elaine looked to the concrete tunnel stairs, and waited. No one appeared. After a minute, she sighed and shrugged. “Alas, we are on our own.”

Jack chuckled and knelt in the center of the circles. The chuckles vanished, and he gulped on a dry throat as he looked down. He felt it. Holy shit, he felt it, felt the invisible lines in the air circling him and tugging on him. He felt the power in the blood, the dead life used to tear down the barriers between physical and otherworldly. He felt wind swirling around him, even though the air was still.

It’d always be a shocker that magic actually existed. For some reason, it was easier to believe in vampires, werewolves, and stuff like spirits and other realms and dream monsters. But magic? It felt too silly, too ridiculous, but kneeling in the center of a ritual circle smashed him the face with the truth of it. And it was terrifying.

Elaine stepped outside the circle, and fetched a knife from her purse. More like a curved piece of stone that looked like it’d been chipped out of a bigger piece of stone, complete with a wooden handle bound to it by leather strings. Just looking at it was enough to put images in Jack’s head of someone getting sacrificed under the full moon, having their heart cut out or something.

His great grandsire looked the book over a couple more times before she set it down, and walked over to him. Face steady and unfazed, she nodded, and slowly dragged the knife across her palm. Kindred blood resisted leaving the body naturally, so Elaine had to focus, eyes locked onto her split palm, until a thick, heavy, dark droplet of vampire blood fell and splashed onto the floor beneath her in front of him.

White lightning cracked across his vision, silent, and blinding. He closed his eyes and looked away, but when another one of her drops of blood fell, it hit him again. Not actually there then, but inside him. He ground his teeth as a third droplet summoned a third bolt of lightning, brighter than the others, blanketing his vision in white until it was all he could see.

And then he wasn't kneeling. Standing, naked, in white, endless white that curved at edges beyond any distance he could ever reach. A dome, not endless, but it certainly felt like it.

He'd been here, multiple times. As far as he could tell, it was some sort of interaction point in his head, some place his mind created when it needed to communicate with other entities at a level deeper than dialog. If psychics existed, true telepaths, and he assumed they did with all the other shit that apparently existed, they probably had their visions or conversations in this place.

Elaine stood there as well, also naked. As much as seeing the tall blonde naked would usually send Jack's mind into the gutter, it didn't seem to be how this place worked. Naked meant as much as clothed in this place: nothing. Plus, there was a ravine between him and her, some sort of pit carved into the white, exposing endless black, a canyon that couldn't be crossed. It was maybe ten feet wide, and Elaine and him were maybe twenty feet from each other, but he just knew, no matter what they did, this canyon couldn't be crossed.

“It has been some time since I have gleamed the inside of a mind,” Elaine said. “Someone else’s, or mine. I rarely cast such rituals, even at the height of my experiments.”

“I see it far too often.”

“Oh?”

“Something the curse does, I guess. Whenever we Dominate, it lets me see this.” Jack gestured around him. “Dominate didn’t let me do that before.”

“Indeed. Dominate does not let you meld minds with your victim. It is predatory, not an exchange.” Elaine folded her arms under her breasts as she came closer to the edge and looked around. “If the curse allows you to see this part of your mind frequently, it is perhaps using your mind in ways a vampire cannot normally.”

“Yeah, maybe. It was in here I ... I freed the curse.” And as if his subconscious was intent on torturing him, a sledgehammer materialized in his hand, dangling and half resting against the nothing floor. A moment later, the chains appeared on the floor too, giant and broken, surrounding him.

He tossed the hammer aside. Fuck his subconscious and its masochistic desires.

“Then ... perhaps it is not that the curse is using your mind in a unique way, but rather it is letting you see into it in a way not normally possible. Perhaps the curse is letting you see what the Beast sees, when it attacks someone’s mind.”

“You mean this room isn’t mine? This isn’t my head? It’s the Beast’s?”

“I imagine there is overlap. But to Dominate someone is to use the power of the Beast, as is all acts of using our Kindred Disciplines. It is not you, but the Beast that makes true contact with another's mind, in order to Dominate. After a fashion, at least. Thus, if you are seeing this room when other Kindred do not, you are being shown something the Beast normally cannot show you ... or perhaps simply prefers to not show you. That is until it is cursed by the Strix."

"You make it sound like it's an animal guarding its own interests."

"I would not be the first Kindred to come to such a conclusion. The difference now, is that your curse connects both your Beast and your consciousness." She looked down, chin in her fingers. It was easy to see now why she was a dragon. It wasn't just the lust for power, cause she could have easily been Invictus if that was all she wanted. But in her eyes, he spotted some real hunger for knowledge, as if everyone else vanished and questions and answers were the only things that mattered anymore. "Perhaps it—"

A heavy growl silenced the both of them, and Elaine stepped back as a growing black mist seeped up from the white floor near Jack's feet. Up, and up, and up, until a cloud of smoke stood twenty feet over Jack, twisting and swirling on itself. Red eyes flowed within, occasionally joined by a beak, or set of fangs, or a snout, or mandibles. Claws occasionally reached out from the cloud to touch the floor, sometimes talons, and sometimes a tail or a black feather.

Elaine blinked at Jack, and blinked up at the Beast and the curse melded to it.

"Extraordinary," she whispered.

"So here's the bitch, finally paying a visit." The Ripper snorted, a guttural sound mixed with rasp and bass. Here, inside Jack's head, the curse felt like a Goliath. Standing beside it ... him, was enough to have Jack trembling, and he had to force himself to stop shaking as the curse hovered closer to the canyon edge.

“You are the curse.”

“I am Jack the Ripper.”

Elaine squinted at the giant creature. “You are a Strix creation, infecting my great grandchilde’s Beast.”

“And you’re nothing more than a whore Susanna pulled off the streets, cause she knew you’d make a valuable asset.”

After a few seconds of cold staring, Elaine growled. “What do you remember of my sire?”

“More than you.”

“Tell me.”

“Why the fuck would I tell you anything? You’re nothing. How much power did you have hiding under your nose, but instead of releasing it like Jack here, you fucking removed it?” The curse laughed, and his titanic body of compressed black mist vibrated.

“You are an unseemly creature.”

“And you’re a waste. Susanna saw potential in you, you know? She groomed you, prepared you, because she thought your tits combined with your aggressive personality and quick reasoning, she could get some real value out of you. Not exactly a lot of women like that five hundred years ago. But what did you fucking do? You ran from power, and then spent the rest of your life chasing it again.”

“Chasing it?” Jack asked.

“Chasing. You heard it yourself, Jack. She’s an Architect of Terror, and according to her, that means she’s spent her time with the dragons studying the Beast. Now why would someone do that, someone who used to have power, power attached directly to their Beast?” The cursed laughed, a heavy rumble that shook the metaphor room. “She wanted the power back, of course. She did everything she could to find a way to get the curse back without the Strix influence.”

Laughing all the more, until both Jack and Elaine were wincing, the curse extended an arm, something covered in feathers and ending in claws. He pointed it to the endless, infinite wall behind Jack, and waved an arm. The wall disappeared under an image, blurry colors that danced over the white, and both vampires watched, intrigued, and maybe a little terrified.

And then the projection came to them. Both vampires jumped back, startled, as the image the Ripper summoned became 3D, and surrounded Jack. It didn't cross the canyon, leaving Elaine to look on from a distance, but she had no trouble seeing with how defined the blurry images slowly became.

“Now that she's here,” the Ripper said, and gestured to Elaine with a freshly sprouted black arm, “I think it's time to show you what sort of person Elaine really is, Jack.”

Viktor. Elaine. A party. Jack winced as he stepped back from the images sitting around fancy tables drinking wine and whatnot. Not this again.

“Beast,” Elaine said, “you cannot scare me off with a simple memory.”

“But this isn't your memory, is it? You showed up out of nowhere after disappearing for years, and now look at you, watching Viktor, after a failed attempt to get back on his good side.”

It was true. This was Viktor's memory. This must have been not long after Elaine showed back up in Viktor's life, and the man didn't want anything to do with her. He sat at one end of the table, and Elaine sat near the other. Jack didn't know anything about the party, who the people were, or how Elaine could show back up years later and just invite herself into their home. But she had. She chatted with the kine, the ladies in their gowns and bodices, and men in their penguin suits with lots of trim, from probably the 1700s. The rich people of Europe.

Elaine, the past Elaine, kept glancing Viktor's way, and every so often, she licked a fang. Not exactly a big tell, and easily mistaken for someone just being hungry, especially a vampire. But combined with the hunger in her eyes, the mad scientist hunger, it was obvious what was going on. It was a look she'd given Jack many times when they talked about the curse. She wanted to experiment on her childe.

The memory changed, this time to Julias.

"Ripper," Jack said, "don't—"

"Shut up." The creature chuckled as he slammed a hand against the white floor, before it again changed into a different floor. A street, Dolareido, maybe eighty years ago. People walked it, but not packed to the shoulder like today, and the clothes were kinda drab. Right after the industrial boom in Dolareido then, maybe?

Julias walked alone, face unreadable; probably on a mission for the Invictus. Slowly, Jack's sire looked up and then left, toward the road and across it. Old cars drove by, slow as hell considering it seemed to be the 1940s at night, and the city wasn't glowing so much back then. Someone on the other side of the street had caught Julias's attention.

Elaine. She met Julias's eyes, before disappearing into the crowd.

The Ripper sliced the image in half, and Jack jumped back as the creature's claws slammed into the street. The street vanished, and the images faded, leaving the three of them in endless white once again.

“How many times did you come to Dolareido, to see if you could somehow capture Viktor or his childe, and lock them away so you could experiment on them, hmm?” The mocking tone was palpable.

Elaine wouldn't be deterred. She stood her ground and stared at the monstrosity across the ravine, and even tapped her foot, like some kinda impatient mom.

“I admit it,” she said, “and I know the others have surmised as much. I had great interest in the curse, and sought a way to isolate it.”

“Isolate it, or reunite with it?”

“I never wanted you back, monster! Disgusting, abhorrent, vile creature. You are a tool to be harnessed and nothing more!”

Jack winced as he looked Elaine's way. Was that the first time she'd ever raised her voice? Hearing her get emotional like this, loud, angry, was strange as all fuck.

“Oh really?” The Ripper formed a head, a crow's head, enormous, and it reached out from the giant ball of mist with a snake's body for a neck. “And this ritual we're in? This isn't some little magic circle to let us just talk, is it?” Bird head still attached to the weird, long, black snake neck, the Ripper pecked at the space over the canyon, and his beak collided with the air. There was a wall there, invisible.

“I have no intention of telling you anything, creature.”

The Ripper snarled hard enough Jack felt it in his throat. But after a few moments, the curse purred. “Then how about a trade?”

“A trade?”

Uh oh.

“You want to know more about Susanna, and the Strix gift. I want to know more about how you removed the gift from yourself. The ritual. Who you killed. All of it.”

“Why do you want information? You are a tool. A magical tool, but a tool, and one to eventually be disposed of.”

Another growl. “Says you. But either way, I’ve been here, digging through the memories hidden in the echoes of the Strix. And I have images that will interest you.”

Before Jack could say anything, the Ripper summoned up another image. Not a memory from Viktor or Julias, but Elaine.

“Don’t,” Elaine said, eyes growing wide as she realized what was happening. “Don’t.”

But the Ripper just laughed, and the Beast creature hovered out of the way so they could see what he wanted them to see. Elaine, naked, covered head to toe in blood. She was in a hut, some sort of wooden cottage or something, and there were three corpses around her, two men, one woman. One of the men was in her arms, Elaine sucking the man dry, her arms wrapped around his chest and holding him to her.

Her eyes were wide and crazed, like a hungry, rabid animal.

Elaine dismissed the image with a swing of the arm. “This isn’t—”

“Oh it’s very real. The Strix gift still flowed through your veins back then, and any moment where you brought me out, the memories are vivid. Would you like to see another?”

“I—”

The Ripper didn’t wait. It pulled up another image, with a similar result. Except this time, there were two people, a man and woman, and Elaine was currently in the process of drinking the man mid sex, with the woman behind her, pressed against her back lovingly. Another wooden home from easily nearly five hundred years ago.

The image fast forwarded quickly, showing the violence as a rapid display of carnage. Elaine, ripping the man's throat open with her teeth, still mid sex. The woman screaming in shock. Wolves, literal wolves, breaking into the house. Wolves eating the woman alive.

Meal complete, Elaine stood up, smiling widely as the dying man's fresh blood dripped down her jaw, neck, and her naked body.

Jack looked away. "She got rid of the curse for a reason, Ripper. You're not showing us anything we don't already know, or will fucking sway us about anything." A peek Elaine's way showed stubborn defiance, but he recognized the guilt he saw last time they talked, when she explained some of her past to him. To have it rubbed in her face by someone as fucked up as the curse, must have fucking sucked.

Jack knew the feelings, too. He knew what it'd been like to have fucked up, thoroughly twisted thoughts running through his mind. The things he wanted to do to Angela would have landed him in a psych ward as much as a prison, if he'd been human.

"Then how about this," the Ripper said.

The image swirled around Jack, but not all that much. Still some sort of wood building, but no snow outside. Elaine gone, wolves gone, corpses gone. No, wait, Elaine was there again, in bed, with another woman, and Susanna.

Elaine gasped. This was Susanna's memory. Or was it Elaine's, from the moment of her embrace?

"There she is. The first vampire to hold me." The swirling mass of black smoke drifted over top now, and pointed down at the hallucination that surrounded Jack with a myriad of his flowing claws. “Look at her. Tiny, and unassuming. How’d she seduce you?”

The elder Ventrue snarled. “That does not matter.”

“Uh huh.” Laughing, the curse pointed again, this time at the man watching them from the side of the room. The Sanctified vampire. “Recognize him?”

Elaine shook her head. Of course she couldn’t recognize the face, considering it was blurry.

“I suppose you can’t sharpen the memory,” she said.

“Nah. Sorry. Reaching across five centuries of time, through memories that have echoed in the veins of the Strix gift, isn’t exactly easy. Moments where I came to the surface, moments where I was called, used, or where my beloved Beast was called, those are moments I remember. But even then, five hundred years is too damn long to keep the memory crisp.” He chuckled again. “With time, and maybe a little help from a smart dragon with some crazy rituals on her side, I might be able to recall more.”

“If...”

The Ripper shrugged. Considering he was currently a giant hovering ball of black smoke filled with swirling, disappearing and reappearing feathers and claws and beaks and fangs, shrugging looked weird as fuck.

“You know what I want, old bitch. You know I want control of Jack’s body. I want it, the body, the mind, the soul. I want it all, and I want it now.” Oh fucking god he even sang it to the tune. “But if you’re not willing to help me with that, then tell me about the ritual you used to destroy the strand of me that lived inside you?”

“Tools do not live.”

Another cackle. “I’m not a tool. Christ, I sound like a broken record.”

But all he earned was another snarl from Elaine. “You can’t conjure up the memory of how I removed my curse?”

“Can’t remember things I wasn’t there for. This strand of me split off from you when you sired Viktor. But if you come over here,” he gestured to the floor near Jack, by where Susanna, Elaine, and the third woman were having sex on the bed, “I can delve into your memories on my own. Might be able to sharpen up some of these blurry images, too. Maybe even remember some names we’ve both forgotten.”

“I think not.”

“You wanted to talk to me. You wanted to see what I’d be willing to share. I’m willing to share a lot, if you’re willing to tell me — or show me — what you did to remove your gift. I figured you committed diablerie, but what I need are the details.”

“You will learn of it eventually, but not until it is too late to do anything about it.”

The Ripper laughed. “Nice bluff. If you remembered exactly what you did, you’d have shared it with Jack by now.”

“Not everyone is as eager to embrace Amaranth as you, vile creature. When Jack is freed of you, it will not be over the ashes of other Kindred. I will not have my childe suffer as I suffered.”

Jack blinked at Elaine. That sounded altruistic, and much as he knew Elaine could just be acting for the Ripper’s benefit, there was something about this place, this metaphor room, this endless white space in his skull, that stripped away a lot of the bullshit. He believed her.

With an annoyed growl, the Ripper slashed away the image, and Jack ducked as the Beast's claws sliced right through him. They passed through him like knives cutting through fog, thank god.

The projection faded, but another replaced it almost immediately. Oh fuck not this one. Jack stepped away from it, but the metaphor room didn't react to his feet on the ground. Efforts to walk away didn't do shit, and he stopped trying as the image around them grew, and grew, until they were in blackness.

Susanna, on her knees, with a vampire in torpor beside her. A huge, withered tree, deep underground. And glowing yellow eyes in the darkness, a dozen of them at least, bodies hidden in the black around the tree branches.

"You forsook their gift, vampire. But I have a shred of a few memories I haven't shown Jack, a few things I'm sure would be of use to you."

Elaine paced the canyon as she stared at the tree, and what it represented. Answers. To someone like Jack, he was happy to leave dark dirty secrets to die in black caves that meant nothing but death. But to a dragon, answers to something like how or what or why the Strix did anything was borderline existential. After all the history she had with the curse, and now the fuzzy memories she had of it teasing her, combined with the Ripper taunting her with power she didn't know she'd given up, Jack couldn't blame her for staring with hungry eyes at the image the Ripper conjured.

"And if I cannot remember the details of the ritual I used?"

"Then do what you can to help me take over this body. Get rid of the necklace, and keep the Prince and her boring sheriff out of my way. Do that, and I'll show you more than I showed Jack. I'll show you what it was like in Susanna's mind, when she first used the curse, when she first used me, when I was free. I'll show you everything I know about how she learned about the Strix, how she knew where to go, what to do, everything.” Two arms of black mist erupted from the Beast’s sides, and crashed into the ground hard enough the entire endlessness around them shook, shattering the image. It decayed into nothingness around them. “All yours! If you give me what I want. And I want my freedom.”

Jack gulped as he stared up at the monster, before looking back to Elaine. If she either gave the curse information about how Elaine got rid of her curse, likely allowing the Ripper to prevent such a thing from happening to him, the curse would help her. Or, if she helped the Ripper take over Jack permanently, he’d help her. Either way, Jack would lose the battle for his body, and probably switch places with the Ripper, a voice with no control in his head, while the Ripper got to do whatever the fuck he wanted.

Elaine looked at the curse, the Beast it infected and controlled, and then looked to Jack. They met eyes for a bit, neither of them looking away, and Elaine gave him a small smile and nod.

“I did not begin this ritual to barter with you, curse. I am here, to understand my enemy. And now I do. You are no bastion of ancient power. You are a child, a cruel and sick thing without a shred of humanity, wielding power you do not deserve. Strix indeed. Any bargain we made would be tainted. The moment you had your freedom, you would rain destruction on everything around you, including me.” Elaine swiped an arm through the air. “And besides, the conversation was mostly a distraction while the ritual took hold.”

“What are—” The Ripper sucked in a snarling breath as he stared across the canyon.

Chains snapped out from Elaine’s side of the ravine, and crashed into and over the curse. The Ripper’s snarl turned into an ear piercing shriek of fury, and Jack covered his ears as he watched the giant thing come crashing to the white floor. More chains snapped out, more and more, crossing the uncrossable canyon, and wrapping around the creature.

The Ripper roared and shrieked. Any attempts at words were nothing more than garbled curses mixed with guttural sounds.

“Holy shit,” Jack said. “You bound it?”

“Only for the moment.” Sighing, Elaine reached behind her, and pulled out her ritual book from nowhere. Metaphor room, right. “This ritual you sit within, Jack my childe, can be used to suppress the Beast in draugr, if only momentarily. At great cost to the caster, I might add. But it should suffice long enough for my purposes.”

Jack winced as he tried to hear her over the sounds of the Ripper screaming. “Uh, purpose? I thought you wanted to have a chat with the curse?”

“That was part of my purpose. And now for the other part.”

“I didn’t agree to—”

“Of course you did not.” Elaine looked down at her book held in one hand, while her other hand pointed out at the curse. The chains had come out of nowhere before, but now that she had the book in hand, the chains were coming out of it now. “Rest assured, this will be of no issue to you, Jack.”

Jack eyed his great grandsire, but said nothing. The fuck could he do? She was on the other side of the canyon, and far as he could tell, the only way she was able to do anything across it, was cause Jack was currently sitting in the middle of a fucking ritual circle, powered by her vitae and her weird book. If it wasn’t for the Ripper, Jack doubted he’d even be consciously aware of any of the shit that was happening in his skull.

Another chain shot out from the book, this one tipped with a spike. It didn't surround and tie up the curse like the others. It sank right into the giant pile of black smoke's flank, and ripped out a chunk of it. Again, the curse screamed.

And then it was done. Elaine smiled, closed the book, and the dream ended. The screaming disappeared, she disappeared, and Jack disappeared. It all went away like someone blowing out the candle in an otherwise pitch black room.

Jack opened his eyes. Back in his mansion, in the basement. Back with Elaine. Groaning, Jack tried to stand up. No good, his body didn't want to listen, as if he was human again and had just gone back to the gym for the first time in years.

“Elaine, the fuck did you—”

Elaine stumbled back, dropped her book, and almost crashed into a wall. Only a snap of her left hand stopped her skull from getting cracked like an egg. She didn't use her right hand, cause it was holding something.

A tiny vial. He saw only a glimpse of it before it disappeared between her fingers.

“Elaine.” After another groan, he forced himself up to his feet, driving vitae into his limbs. “You took something from the curse.”

Elaine peeked over her shoulder at him, and stumbling even worse than he was, she gave him a small grin before she grabbed her purse and put the vial inside.

“Do not think me so altruistic I will risk my life for zero gain, childe of mine.”

“Thought the gain was learning more about the curse, Susanna, and the Strix.”

“I doubted the curse would ever share such knowledge. If I gained it, then I would be a terribly happy dragon, but I knew I would not. Instead, I intended to acquire some of its vitae.”

“Its vitae?”

“When the curse takes control of you, it fills you, yes? Dominates every inch of you, and alters your vitae.”

Jack walked over to her, eyeing her closely with each step. “Yeah.”

“I had two choices, if I wished to acquire some of that vitae. Wait for you to lose control to the curse, and somehow acquire vitae from it in some ridiculous battle that could very well spell my doom. Or, extract it via ritual.”

“Extract it? How the fuck does that work?”

“In the same manner Dominate allows us to penetrate the minds of others with merely eye contact.”

“Magic.”

“Precisely. Though far be it from a dragon to use such an archaic term.” Chuckling, her own energy returning, she scooped the book back up, and motioned for Jack to follow her.

Jack wasn't so keen on following her, considering she'd lied to him about the ritual. But then again, she had to lie, cause the Ripper heard everything they said. Couldn't exactly plot behind his back when he got to eavesdrop on everything.

“You really do whatever you wanna do, don't you?”

“Of course. It is the prerogative of elders.”

“Uh huh.” Rolling his eyes, he followed after her as she walked up the stairs. He looked behind him at the ritual circle, and how the marks in the floor were now black, as if they'd been burned to ash. Did all rituals do that, or just ones that dealt with horrible shit like Strix curses?

Jack locked the door to the basement behind him. The real one, the thick metal one with giant metal bars. After that, he closed the wooden door that hid how ridiculous and obvious the giant metal one was. Much as he trusted his thralls, he didn't want them stumbling onto information they shouldn't have. Last thing he wanted to do was mentally scrub his own thralls' minds of any secrets they were better off not knowing.

He felt a little guilty blocking off chunks of the mansion from his thralls, but only a little. The Prince did the same, and didn't let her ghouls into her room during the day while she slept, either.

“So what, now you have a vial of the Ripper's vitae? I thought the vitae part of our blood didn't last when outside the body.” Plus the whole burning away to cinder and ash part.

“It would not, normally. But we of the Ordo Dracul have measures to keep things in the state we need them.”

“And what're you going to do with it?”

“I cannot tell you. But do not worry. I plan to help you deal with this curse, Jack. That has not changed.”

He wanted to accuse her of lying, get in her face about exploiting him and making him drop his guard. But, again, it was hard to fault her for her tactics.

“Could you stop acting like it's no big deal?” he asked. It was, however, much easier to fault her smug attitude. “You make it so damn hard to trust you.”

“Never trust me completely, young Ventrue. All decisions must be calculated. But...” Sighing, she stopped walking and turned to face him. “I do hope you will trust me, perhaps more than I think you should.”

Fuck, she was doing that thing with her face again, little hints of guilt showing through. And for the fucking life of him, he couldn't throw it out as some sort of trick. It looked, and felt, genuine.

“You came to the city years ago, to take a look at Julias.”

Her lip twitched. “I did. The curse did not lie to you.”

“You wanted to get him under a scalpel, didn't you?”

“I ... wanted to explore possibilities. I was visiting my good friend Antoinette, and—”

“Was that the main reason, or was seeing if Julias was a candidate for you to steal and operate on your primary reason?”

“Can it not be both?”

Jack folded his arms across his chest, and tapped a foot on the floor. Full on frustrated parent stance.

“What stopped you?”

“From what?”

“From abducting the man. I can understand being careful around Viktor. He knew who you were, was a powerful elder, and had the curse feeding his power. You were afraid of him.”

“I ... was.”

“But Julias? In that memory, he was still a neonate, and I doubt Antoinette would have gone to bat for him at that point. Why didn't you kidnap him? Afraid Viktor would find out? Afraid it'd cause an incident?"

After a few quiet moments, Elaine slowly shook her head, and set a hand on the front door of his mansion.

"Perhaps I was hesitant to acquire a power I once nearly destroyed myself to remove?"

"Maybe."

"Perhaps ... I did not wish to see someone who was nothing like myself or his sire suffer."

"Again, maybe. I admit, I do like that second reason quite a bit."

She smiled. "You look for the best in everyone."

"I used to. But everyone's been telling me that's a bad idea. Antoinette, you, even Julias told me to be careful about it."

"Then I suppose you will have no choice but to trust in your judgment. Can you trust me? Will I betray you? Antoinette does not think so, but she also knows to listen to the old lesson: trust no one. And Daniel has never trusted me. That leaves you, childe of mine, with only yourself to believe. What do you do?"

"I ... don't know."

With a wicked grin and a small wave, she walked out of his mansion, and under the watchful eyes of his two crows perched on a nearby statue, left. Jack watched her go, and idly flicked at the necklace around his neck, the only thing keeping his Beast down and the Ripper down with it.

If there was one way he was going to die, it'd be from trusting the wrong person.

---

~~Eric~~

Every hair on his body stood up. His heart rate jumped. Adrenaline flooded his system. Breathing quickened. Every faculty he had prepared for war.

But nothing came. They stood still, looking around, listening so close Eric could hear Begotten and Uratha heartbeats, along with his own. Nothing.

“Can you smell it?” Sándor asked.

Eric shook his head as he squatted down next to Natasha at the ravine edge. “Only traces. If an azlu has been here, it’s been gone for days.”

“Days,” Art said, “but it’s been months since the last one died.”

Avery groaned as she joined them. “Which means there’s another one. Fucking christ.”

“There’s been some disappearances,” Matt said, “of people who work in North Side, over the past few months. But I hadn’t seen anything to imply azlu.”

Art nodded. “It’s getting sneakier.”

Avery shook her head. “Azlu don’t get sneakier. It’s a creature as old as Father Wolf. It can’t get any sneakier than any real spider does.”

“If it’s th-that old,” Natasha said, “then m-maybe it’s evolving? Some real spiders are ... very sneaky.”

Eric shuddered. All the Uratha did.

The boss woman groaned again. “Terrifying thought. I’m going to assume it’s been doing the same thing it’s been doing for the past million years, and just hiding until it thought we’d leave. They are smart enough to do that, sometimes. Then it got hungry and only recently starting feeding.”

Art nodded. “I suppose that’s more likely than it suddenly getting smarter at how it hunts.”

“So this is its lair?” Eric asked, gesturing down at the small canyon. “I’m not seeing any bodies.”

“Yeah,” Matt said. “Maybe it was hiding out here? Might have a lair somewhere else, and relocated here? Here, because...” He gestured back to the path they came from. “Because it has a new tear to try and sew up?”

Right. Azlu were driven by some sort of great, ancient instinct, to plug holes between the spirit and physical world. They also took it too far and covered the Gauntlet in so much webbing that all flow between the two realms stopped. And when flow stopped between the two realms, the area died. Not died as in death, which the spirit realm was perfectly equipped to mimic or embody. Death as in, void of everything. Life, death, all of it, like turning a color movie to black and white.

The tears were why the azlu were in Dolareido, according to Avery. Sure, azlu showed up in places with a lot of human activity to do their thing, since human activity was one of the strongest forces for punching holes through the Gauntlet at a large scale. A big, active, lively city like Dolareido was bound to attract azlu. But three, or more, in only a few years? No, they came for the tears, driven by their instinct to sew them up as best they could.

Eric stared down the path they’d walked. Natasha did too.

“Why is there a t-tear here, then?” Natasha said. “W-Wouldn’t the azlu be here, trying to close it?”

Avery shrugged. “Maybe that’s why there’s only a few traces of the azlu being here. The tear is new, and the azlu only stayed for a little while, trying to sew it up, gave up and left and started feeding. It might come back bigger, stronger, and better equipped.”

“Either way,” Eric said, “I guess we have something to hunt, now.”

Natasha shook her head. “We’re b-busy! We have to stop the ritual.”

Eric gestured around. “We don’t even know what the ritual is, Tash, or how to close these tears. Best we got is to let the azlu keep doing what they’re doing. They’ll close them eventually I’m guessing, after they’ve killed a few dozen innocent people.” Knowing how fucked up vampires could be, especially Antoinette and Jacob, it wouldn’t have surprised Eric at all if they’d be perfectly okay with that. Maybe they had dungeons full of humans they deemed ‘fodder’, to be sacrificed in situations just like this. But unless they had literal dozens of people tied up in cells, people that deserved a horrible fate, Eric wouldn’t agree to it. And he knew they didn’t. As many people as there were in Dolareido, it didn’t have dozens and dozens of murderers just lying around, ready to be plucked like ripe fruit for dark rituals and shit.

He didn’t even want to think about the rumors about Beatrice.

“Regardless,” Sándor said, “we won’t accomplish anything here. Let’s leave, and leave a guard post on the physical side of the tear.”

Eric suppressed a smile. Guard post. Dude talked like he was alive hundreds of years ago. Probably was.

“Agreed,” Avery said. “If we catch the azlu around, we can get here asap and burn the fucker. But we all know it won’t be that easy.”

Something's going to happen that's going to throw a wrench into things."

Yeah, that was true. Much as Eric wanted to disagree, this was too weird. Why a tear that went nowhere, that wasn't on Tash's graph? There were tears many years old, maybe centuries, and none of them were on the graph, but all the new ones, all seemingly made in the past three or four years, were all on it. This new one wasn't. The only thing it did, was lead them to the remains of azlu activity that'd only temporarily been in the area.

Easy to think the azlu had just been around for a bit, and examined the tear, before leaving. Scarier to think Black Blood created the tear to point them at the azlu. And damn it, it was too scary an idea to not share.

"I wonder," Eric said. "Is Black Blood ... actively making us hunt azlu?"

Avery spit on the floor. "I was wondering about that. Disturbing idea, that that spirit is making us chase something that's its problem, considering it's the one creating the tears. More disturbing because now we have to do what it wants. Ain't no Uratha gonna let one of the Hosts live, especially us."

Right. Avery and her pack were Hunters in Darkness, the Meninna. Their specialty was hunting Hosts, Shartha. The perfect predators to deal with azlu, and azlu were inevitable with literal tears in the Gauntlet showing up.

It did all fit together way too perfectly.

---

~~Beatrice~~

"You sure you want to be a part of this?" Triss asked.

Sándor nodded, subtle, but sturdy and solid. Pretty much summed up the dude's whole personality. Well, that was fine. She could go for some sturdy and solid right about now.

Triss sighed, and looked to Jen and Sam. Jen managed a small shrug, and Sam just stood there, shaking, eyes on the floor. Poor girl.

"I'll stay out here," Sándor said eventually, after a glance Sam's way. Before they could say anything, the man moved to the center of the abandoned building's basement, and stood there, facing the stairs. Stood wasn't even the word. Dude turned into a fucking statue, holding so still he'd make a vampire in torpor envious. If he was breathing, Triss couldn't see or hear it. God damn.

Nodding, Triss stepped into the walk-in fridge first, and undid the magic seal. Jen and Sam followed her in, and Triss closed the door behind them.

"W-Why is Sándor helping us?" Sam whispered, doing her best to avoid staring at the pile of bodies Triss had in the corner of the huge fridge. With the giant door closed, they were able to talk privately.

"He's ... keeping an eye on things," Triss said. "He wants to be a protector, I guess, for the paranormals in Dolareido. He feels indebted to Jack, and me, and the others for helping him." And he felt guilty as all fuck for getting Julias killed, and indirectly, Mary. No point in trying to convince him otherwise. Dude knew logically that Julias's death, Mary's, and his own family's weren't his fault, but knowing it emotionally was a different thing altogether. At least he didn't keep trying to apologize for it. Triss wouldn't have been able to handle it if the dude suddenly got on his knees and tried to say sorry for everything; she'd probably have ripped his heart out. Sándor didn't use words, he just did shit and let his actions speak for him.

She understood that. She appreciated that.

Sam gulped as she took a step toward the bodies. “Ok, ok. So ... so I...”

Triss gestured to the pile. “Grab a body, any body.” Sam already knew this, but the girl was trembling. Best to say it all again. “You need the skull and heart, and put them into a container.” She held up a small black bag, identical to the one she’d used when she did the ritual herself. “Then, you need to remember the person you’re trying to ... clone, essentially. That’s what the ritual’s going to do, take the power of the dead person, trapped in the mind and heart, and combined with your memories and vitae, turn it into a ... a defining blueprint, a magical one.”

“But I can’t cast a ritual, or do magic, or any—”

“I’ll be casting the ritual. Just follow the steps.” Like helping a kid jump into a pool for the first time, Triss had to help Sam with every inch, including repeating instructions, and promises of help. It fucking hurt. Sam shouldn’t have had to do this.

Christ, how did Sándor feel about this? To him, this was an opportunity to maybe help some people get back what they lost, people that wouldn’t have died if he’d just done a better job defending himself from Jeremiah years ago. Or, it was an opportunity for him to clean up the inevitable mess Triss and Sam were going to create, when all this backfired, and they accidentally created some sort of monster they had to put down with fire.

Damn it. Now all she could think about was that fucking sickening scene in Alien Resurrection where Ripley had to kill her fucked up clones with a flamethrower.

“Samantha,” Jen said. “You can stop any time you want to, you know that. You don’t have to do this. We don’t know if any of this is going to work, ever.”

“I know. But ... but I want to try.” Nodding, still trembling, she walked over to the pile of bodies.

She knew the deal. Much as Triss wanted to do this for her, Sam had to do it herself. It was the deal with the ritual, and all rituals. It wasn't about the fancy symbols or the words or the tools. It was about the symbolism, and the effort put into the ritual. It was about the sacrifice. If you had that, and the mentality for magic and shit, you could cast rituals. Triss most definitely did not want to teach the rituals to Sam, especially not the way witches did, with pain and suffering.

The poor woman reached down, and grabbed a man's body. It was fine if it was a man. The sacrifice just needed a skull and heart, while the painful part came after. And fucked up and sexist as it was, Triss had to admit, it was easier cutting up a man than a woman. She didn't blame the Daeva when she found an older man, and got to work.

No claws. She brought a knife.

Jen didn't watch, but Triss did. This was important, and if Sam was going to join Triss on this fucked up journey, the least she could do was watch and make sure she did it right. Sure enough, Sam struggled, but Triss watched and waited for Sam to ask for help. She didn't. Grimacing, Sam sawed at the man's head, breaking through the skin with the obvious clumsiness of someone who didn't know what they were doing. She'd watched Triss tear bodies apart, and bring pieces to Elen, so they could sculpt the body for her daughter, but she hadn't taken part in the process herself. Triss didn't want her to, but now she could see that was a mistake. Sam was struggling, but hopefully, this would be the one and only time she had to dismantle a dead body.

It took time, and more than a few times Triss thought Sam would burst into tears. She did sob a couple times, making Jen flinch and glance over her shoulder to the gory mess before quickly looking away. But the mother pushed through, sawing and carving, until she peeled the skull out of the dead man's torn open skin. She looked away when she scooped out the insides with a spoon Triss had given her for this exact purpose.

“Here,” Sam whispered, and handed the skull to Triss. Triss met the woman's eyes, gave her a silent ‘you're doing great’ smile, and dropped the skull into the bag.

Next was the heart, and that was going to be harder. Cutting open a face, ruining it, separating a skull from spinal cord, and scooping out eyes and brains was tough. But there was something absolutely guttural about cutting open someone's chest, and Sam quickly ran into the biggest issue when she set the man between her legs, lifted the knife, and stared down at his shirt. She had to get inside him.

She slammed her knife into the sternum, and the crunch of breaking bone was audible. Everyone winced, and Sam dry heaved several times. If she'd been human, she'd have puked everywhere. She looked away and closed her eyes, even as she yanked down on the knife, and forced it through the rest of the sternum, and down through the man's abdomen. Slowly, she set the knife down, and forced herself to look back at the body.

No gloves. It'd ruin the weight, the impact, and both were core ingredients in the ritual. So with hands soaked in the blood of a dead man, she set them into the chest cavity of the corpse, palms facing out, and pulled. More things went crack and pop, and Sam again dry heaved as she stared down into the insides of the victim. Heart, lungs, diaphragm, esophagus, stomach, small and large intestines, spleen, kidneys, liver, all of it was there.

It was the ultimate dose of reality. Vampires were special. Something in them kept them ticking, despite the fact their organs were withered and no longer functioning. Shoot a vamp clean through the stomach and it didn't mean shit. Humans, on the other hand, were blood bags, running entirely on electrical signals and the flow of oxygen. Sacks of meat. Vampires needed them, but whatever it was that so was so special about life, whatever it was humans had that made them the center of so many aspects of the paranormal world, it didn't do shit to keep them from dying. Humans were beyond fragile.

Mary had been stabbed to death. This, was a really fucking shitty way for Sam to learn what it felt like to stab through flesh and bone.

She reached between the lungs with one hand, grabbed the heart, cut the pipes with the knife, and plucked the organ. And just like Triss, she stared at the disgusting, bloody thing in her hand. She felt it too, the power, the spark of weird, mystical voodoo, something Triss didn't know and neither did Jacob. Life. Whatever it was that gave kine life, traces of it were left in the heart and mind, something that crackled silently and sparked invisibly.

Sam took a slow, useless breath, and set the heart in Triss's bag.

“And now ... I have to remember Mary, and bleed into the bag?”

“Yeah. For me, I had a picture on my phone I—”

Sam nodded, and clutched her necklace tight in one hand, soaking it in the dead man's blood. One of her daughter's necklaces. And like she was clutching her daughter herself, she closed her eyes, and shuddered. Little shivers worked through her, head to toe, and she sniffled a couple times. She wanted to cry. Hell, she was crying, but without the Blush, there weren't any tears to join it, no sniffles, no choking sobs as the throat swelled. All she had were tremors, little things that grew into larger things, until she let out a low groan.

Poor woman. Triss loved Julias, loved the fuck out of him, and digging through her memories until Julias was forefront in her mind so she could empower the ritual, had been fucking horrible.

One of the worst things she'd ever done, even compared to all the painful torture she'd gone through to learn crúac rituals with Jacob. But she'd known Julias for only a few years. Sam knew her daughter for over two decades. On top of that, she'd bonded heavily with her daughter when her son disappeared. And on top of all that, Sam was her damn mother. No parent, ever, fucking ever, should have to know what it's like to lose a child.

After a few more moments, the trembling woman settled, let go of her necklace, and faced Triss. Nodding, she dragged the knife across her palm, and held it out over the bag.

Drip.

Drip.

Triss closed the bag, and met Sam's eyes. The woman looked destroyed. Normally Sam did a damn good job keeping her sadness at bay, same as Triss, but the girl was a little too honest for it. You could always see a hint of sorrow behind her eyes. Now it was all laid bare, and Triss couldn't look into those eyes for long. Felt like trying to stare down a blizzard raining ice shards straight into the eyes.

Triss closed the bag and raised it high. "Be found and returned, Mary. I call to the darkness that watches and listens, that knows the dead. Find, and bring a piece of Mary back to me." Nodding, she handed the bag to Sam, and with a shivering hand, the poor woman took it.

Death descended on them. Triss didn't know who listened to the ritual, what spirit or god or whatever decided to entertain their stupidity, but someone or something answered the call. They stood there, looking at each other again, and the two of them gulped as the air twisted and exploded into a hurricane. Black mist swirled around them, disappeared, and reappeared, toying with them as it worked its magic. Felt like something twisted and horrible. Not

Black Blood, but not too far removed, something just as fucking death like.

Worse was the bag. The contents moved, and bounced and jiggled, as if someone had locked up a ferret in there. They knew what it was now, a crystal ball being formed and bouncing around with some sort of life blueprint, but until it was done, it seemed like it wanted to get out. Sam clutched the bag to her chest hard as it struggled, pinning it, like letting it go would mean the end of the world.

Eventually, the wind disappeared, the black mist disappeared with it, and the bag in Sam's arms calmed down. Still moved, still wiggled, half alive and looking for a body to complete and a soul to fill it, but calm. Sam nodded, her own body calming as she looked down at the bag, and then at Triss.

“Can I ... look?”

Triss smiled and nodded. “Yeah, but uh, maybe outside,” she said, pointing to the fridge door.

The three of them walked out of the fridge, Sam still shaking but smiling, and Jen smiling warily, like she was afraid she'd jinx the good luck. Smart girl.

Sándor looked their way as Triss closed the fridge door behind them. “Success?”

Sam nodded, and held up the bag. Slowly, with a trembling hand, she reached into it.

The tiny crystal ball glowed a gentle gold, lighting up the dingy basement, and their four faces, each of them wide-eyed as they stared at the small moving images on the perfect, smooth surface. Even Sándor widened his eyes as he realized what the crystal ball showed.

It was evening, sun setting. There was an alley. Samantha and Mary were walking beside each other, smiling, laughing. They didn't see the woman coming toward them. No, they saw her, they just didn't think it was a woman about to stab them both, dozens of times.

More than that, other images flickered over the ball. Scenes of Mary and Sam, standing over Jack's grave. Scenes of Mary, going shopping with her mom. Scenes of Mary and her mom watching a movie together, both of them wrapped in a big blanket on a couch, eating popcorn.

Mary's thoughts. The last thoughts she'd had, before she died. The things they wanted to do that day, or week.

"We were ... gonna watch one of the new Marvel movies, you know? She really likes Chris Evans."

Likes.

There wasn't any holding back anymore. Sam stared at the ball, clutched it tight in one hand, caressed it with the other, fell to her knees, and screamed once. One very deliberate, agonizing scream.

The three of them stared down at her for a bit, frozen. But before Triss or Jen could snap themselves out of being struck dumb by Sam's too powerful, too overwhelming display of enough raw emotion to break a mountain, Sándor squatted down beside her.

"May I see?"

"W-What?" Sam said between her choked sobs.

"I would like to see your daughter's final living moments."

Sam blinked at the man, as if he'd just asked something insane, or maybe offensive. But after a few seconds, she nodded, and held out the small orb to him.

He didn't take it. He looked, and leaned in so he could look better, but he didn't touch it, as if it'd be sacrilege. As if picking it up from her hand would break the poor woman. Like, maybe killing her daughter again.

"She's beautiful," he said, a small smile on his face. "And she looks really close to you."

"She ... She was. She wasn't at first, but when Jack disappeared, things changed. We relied on each other, you know? After James, and then Jack, we only had each other."

Sam went on. She held out the orb for everyone to see, and the small crystal ball gently teetered in her palm, half alive, as Sam described Mary and their time together. With one hand she clutched her necklace tight, the other the crystal ball, and her sniffles slowly passed as she described her daughter to them all. She'd told Triss stories about her before, but not these, peeks into the most private, tender moments between the two. It took a lot of effort to keep from crying with her.

But it wasn't Samantha Triss stared at. Yeah, she looked at her, and sometimes got lost admiring the memory she could see in the crystal ball, but damn it, it was Sándor she found herself looking at. Julias would have been super sad and empathetic with Sam, and would have done everything he could have to make her feel better. Yeah, it woulda been sappy and annoying, but it would have worked with some time. Julias could make anyone smile if given time.

But Sándor didn't do that. His eyes held something different. Understanding. Quiet, calm, understanding. And it was exactly what Sam needed. Who the fuck else was she gonna talk to about this? Athalia? Maybe, but Athalia wasn't the sort of person to just sit and listen. Maybe Triss judged the other Begotten too harshly, but she couldn't picture Athalia doing this, just sitting there and listening.

Sándor listened, steady face absorbing everything Sam said in a way no one else would be able to.

After a while, Sam stood up, and gently touched Sándor's chest once.

“Thank you. I know it's ... it's...” Sighing, she put the crystal ball back in the bag, and held it tight to her chest as the four of them made for the exit. “It's hard to find someone to talk to about Mary. I do with Jack sometimes, and I've talked to Athalia, but it's hard.” Despite herself, she smiled at the gargoyle. “It's easier to talk to you, for some reason. Thank you, for listening.”

Her eyes lingered on Sándor, and her shivering faded as the man returned her eyes with pure, solid evenness. To anyone watching from the outside, Sándor would probably have seemed the asshole, dispassionate and uncaring. Couldn't be further from the fucking truth.

Dude was a gargoyle. That didn't sound like anything crazy before, but now, Triss could see how the dude bagged a wife. He listened to people. Genuinely listened.

“So, we doing this tonight?” Triss asked, gesturing to the bag. “We can, if you want.”

“No. I need to talk to Mary again tonight first. Can we start tomorrow?”

“Yeah. Yeah sure, whatever you want, Sam.”

Samantha smiled at her, and started up the stairs out of the basement. “Um ... did you want to see her, Sándor?”

---

It was such a trip, seeing the place where Jack grew up. Sam had taken her here before once, so she and Jen could see Mary, and break the ice before they did any crazy shit involving putting the ghost daughter into a soulless husk body replacement. It'd become very obvious from the get go that Mary was unstable. She randomly yelled, or twitched in classic ghost fashion, and had trouble talking about some things.

But she loved her mom. Ghost or no, Mary loved her mom, and it was apparent in every word she said, the one time Triss had visited. Hopefully this visit would go as well.

First, the kitchen, where the side door of the house connected. The Prince kept the house on ice, so no one was gonna buy it, meaning Samantha got to keep it in the same condition it'd been the day she died, except for whatever changes Sam made on her visits.

Sándor kicked his shoes against the small steps outside before following them in, as if he'd walked into the house a million times before. Was the house he used to live in with his wife and kid like this one?

Triss watched him for a couple seconds, long enough for him to realize and meet her gaze with stoic curiosity. She looked away, and ran a finger along the counter tops of the kitchen.

“A lovely home,” Sándor said.

“Thank you.”

“It's ... easy, to imagine your children coming home from school, and entering through this door.” He slowly closed the kitchen door.

Sam looked back at Sándor with a big smile. Funny, she never smiled at Triss or Jen like that when the two of them had talked about her home. Homeowners sharing some sort of shared appreciation for home owning? Well fuck, all Triss knew was apartments and a crypt.

“On days I was home during the day, I used to give them snacks when they got home from school, right here.” Sam stepped around the counter to the other side of the kitchen, the dining room, stepped behind one of the wooden chairs, and set her hands on its back as she smiled down at the table.

“They had good lives growing up.”

“Musta,” Triss said, and sat down on a stool by the counter. “I don’t know Mary, but I know Jack pretty well. Kid is ... well, you know.”

Jen joined Triss at the counter, standing on the kitchen side and leaning down so she could set her elbows on it.

“Kindred are rarely as direct and honest as Jack. Those that are usually die young.”

“Jack was always a peculiar one growing up,” Samantha said. “He never did things ... gently. Everything had to be done with conviction, you know? Do it right and do it honestly, or don’t do it at all. Before James died, Jack was loud and proud about that sort of stuff. After, he got ... quieter. And then angrier.” Sighing, Samantha looked up and around at the empty kitchen, the wood corner cabinet, the stairs nearby, everything. “When I met Julias, I thought maybe Jack would find a father figure in him. And it seemed like that was happening, except, then he disappeared.”

Julias, a father figure. Definitely a cheesy dad who’d love shitty puns one day, and then have deep, meaningful conversations with his kids the next. Triss would be the loud, angry mom. They’d balance each other out.

Jennifer came up beside Sam and put a hand on her shoulder. “It’s always a problem with Kindred, how it affects the people they leave behind.”

“I know. My sire explained it, and I don’t blame vampires for keeping everything secret. But I ... I kinda wish I got to see Jack become the man he is, you know?” Slowly, she looked to Beatrice. “And I’d have loved to see how his relationship with Julias grew, too.”

Triss tried to hold her gentle, sad, eyes, but she couldn’t.

And then of course there was Sándor. For just a split second, the dude looked sad too, something in the subtle furrow of the brow, but then he went back to his usual steady self. Triss could only imagine the weird balance of thoughts running through his mind. Hopefully the guy could get it through his thick skull that no one blamed him for anything.

“Sorry about the cold,” Sam said. “The house is always cold now, and nothing I do heats it up. That’s because Mary’s here. Doesn’t bother vampires, but I’m guessing it bothers you?”

“No,” he said. Lying, telling the truth, no way to know. “Don’t worry about me.”

Easier said than done. Mary the ghost, the unstable and dangerous as all fuck ghost, couldn’t direct her hate toward Jeremiah or Angela anymore, but she could sure as hell point it at Sándor. Considering how often Sam visited her daughter, especially the past few months, she’d probably told Mary everything about Jeremiah, Angela, Sándor, all of it. Whether that had prepared Mary to be calm, or just given her time to get angrier at Sándor before their inevitable introduction, Triss had no idea. And unlike the vampires, Sándor wouldn’t survive getting a random kitchen knife in the skull from a murderous ghost.

They went upstairs. Sam paused on the stairway, looked down at it for a few seconds, smiled, and went on up to the small hallway. Bathroom on left, Jack’s room on right, then the parents’ bedroom on the back left, and Mary’s bedroom on the back right.

Triss paused in the door frame to Jack's room. "Dude never got into posters or anything?" She'd seen the room before, but only for a moment. Now she took a good look at the double bed in the corner, the perfect spot beside the desk where a computer probably used to be, and the bare walls.

"No," Sam said, peeking past Triss into the room. "He would get super passionate about things, extremely, sometimes for months, but he didn't have any interest in expressing it. He used to tell me, what's the point in hanging posters of his favorite bands or games on the walls. You can't listen to or play a poster."

Jen chuckled. "I thought all young boys embraced hobbies with enthusiasm?"

Triss shook her head. "Nah. I get it. Some people just prefer to experience things and don't care about expressing them or owning them. Not a fan of wearing their interests on their sleeves."

Sam nodded. "Unless you get him talking about something that interests him. Then you're in for hours of chatting, and ranting."

Chuckling turning into outright laughter, and Jen walked into the room and ran a finger along the desk.

"Boys and their toys."

"I'm not so sure," Sam said. "I do wonder if Jack is a little different than other people. Sometimes I'd find him listening to a song, headphones on, and it was like ... like he was in another world. Or he'd be watching a movie, and get so absorbed into it, it was like the movie became his world. Books, too. Sometimes, when something would catch his interest, it'd dominate his thoughts. He'd tell me sometimes he'd have dreams about whatever it was he couldn't stop thinking about, even if it was as random and silly a thing as trying to find a way to fit his desk against the wall at just the right angle so the sun wouldn't touch his screen for twenty minutes in the evening.” She laughed. “It turned into a project, and soon he had new light-blocking drapes set up with a string that he could pull on and tie to the side of the bed post, so they’d block the light at the specific time of day, but then he could untie it and let the loose after.”

Before Triss could laugh, and maybe make a friendly suggestion that Jack might be on the spectrum, fog began to fill in the cold room. It’d gotten chillier as they talked, but vampires being vampires, it didn’t mean much to them. Triss only noticed because Sándor’s breath had started turning into mist.

“Sometimes,” a whispering voice in the growing darkness said, “he’d get so caught up in whatever was on his mind, he’d forget to eat or sleep. It’s a wonder the kid made the few friends he did.” The group’s eyes eventually settled on the bed, and the misty white thing that formed there. Mary, looking sweet and innocent, legs hanging off the bed side and breaking apart into mist that mixed in with the rest of the rising fog. “But if I ever came to him with a problem, something that was bothering me, like my closet door not closing all the way, or my computer doing something weird, Jack wouldn’t rest until he’d fixed it, you know? He loved to fix things, even if he got super obsessive about it.”

Samantha smiled and nodded as she sat down beside the ghost, no fear, no hesitation, but no touching either. Her hand would probably go through her if she tried.

“Mary,” Sam said. “You know Beatrice and Jennifer, right?”

Mary didn’t get up, but did look up at the two vampires. Empty eye sockets. Yeesh. If only she could wear an eye bandage like Jacob did.

“Hi.”

“Hey,” they said.

“And, uh, Mary, this is Sándor.”

Sándor took a step closer until maybe five feet separated him from the ghost woman. He didn't say anything though. Instead, he did that thing he often did, and just stood there, waiting, and listening.

Mary frowned.

Chapter 161

~~Jack~~

Usually the dreams vampires had during their daily torpor weren't extreme, just small flights of imagination or memory, like any kine's. Torpor dreams only got super vivid and extreme when a vampire went into deep torpor for months, or even years, to settle their blood lust. Jack's dreams last day were unusually vivid, and they were all of the same thing: Elaine, betraying him in some fashion or another, usually with a damn evil grin plastered all over her face.

“What do you think? Should I trust her? Fuck me, it's so hard to trust her. She's smart and conniving and she plans ahead, same as Antoinette. Christ, it wouldn't surprise me if she had that ritual lined up to do on Viktor, and maybe even Julias, but couldn't get the situation for it. Maybe she needed cooperation for it to work? Maybe she waited all these years just so she could get one of her childer on her side. Or maybe she realized she couldn't get what she wanted with the curse bound by that Sanctified dude's binding ritual, and she knew it'd break with time?”

Jack paced back and forth in one of the rooms of his mansion, a large one with hanging red drapes on the walls, with several couches of red and gold. The typical, usual fancy room for entertaining guests and whatnot.

“Of course, I'm letting my dick get in the way of thinking straight. But I mean come on! Look at her!” He held up his phone, and flicked to one of the many, many images he had of Elaine; none had been taken by him. This particular one had Elaine full on posing for a closeup, hands squeezing her breasts, with his cum filling the space between her fingers and dripping down everything. Naturally it'd been Ashley who took the picture and sent it to him later.

“God damn her. Stupid ... fucking ... blonde...” He groaned again as he struggled for a good insult, failed, and sighed as he put the phone away. “And hey, I love Antoinette, and she’s so hot it’s unreal. But I’m not gonna lie. I’m a guy, and with a tall busty woman flirting with me twenty-four seven, fucking with my head as much as she fucks me and my lover, it’s damn hard to think straight whenever she’s the topic. And fuck me, now she’s got a vial of my blood! Or, the curse’s blood. Something. And she’s gonna do something with it.” Sighing, he flopped down on the couch next to his two friends, and yanked out the phone, and flipped to another file in the gallery. A video, Elaine indulging herself with him, this time filmed by Antoinette.

Scully cawed, hopped down from the back of the couch onto his shoulder, and pecked at the phone a couple times.

“Sorry. You ever get laid, Scully? Ever raise any chicks?”

“No,” she said, full on emulating a human voice.

“I’m sorry. Sensitive topic?”

“No.” She hopped across his shoulder a little closer to him, and nestled under his ear. “Familiar, master. Don’t want children, master.”

Yeah, there was that. His crows weren’t crows anymore, they were familiars. Undead familiars at that. Maybe they’d learn to Blush Life over the years, and go on to live fulfilling sex lives ... if birds actually cared about sex for sex’s sake. But they’d never have children, ever, and any biological desire for it was gone. His pet crows were zombies, sorta. The only thing they genuinely craved was vitae, and to serve their master.

Hopefully, with time, he could find ways to restore some of their old bird desires, or maybe help them discover new ones.

Mulder hopped down onto his shoulder too, and pecked at the phone a couple times. “Lei.”

“Lay?”

“Leilani. Veronica.” Damn, Mulder was getting good at enunciating.

Jack blinked at the crow on his shoulder, and flipped through more of the vids and images on his phone until he found one of the two thralls.

“Shinies,” Mulder said.

“Shinies? Wha—oh.” Laughing, Jack flipped to an image of the two girls playing with each other’s breasts, the two of them wearing some rather large and, indeed, shiny piercings in their nipples. Like full on fancy earrings, except on breasts.

“Shinies.” Mulder pecked at the phone. Jack couldn’t hold it anymore, and burst into laughter hard enough he dropped the phone.

“Ah, shit.” He picked it back up and showed Mulder the picture for a little while longer. Hopefully it was the piercings Mulder was attracted to, and not the fact they were piercings on breasts. It’d be pretty damn weird for a bird to be into tits, let alone an undead bird. Both had gotten eyefuls of his thralls, naked and whatnot, and Jack hadn’t really minded, because why would he? Not like ghoul crows would be embarrassed or care about human sex, or real crows for the matter.

He chuckled. It’d make things awkward real quick if Mulder tried to pluck at errant nipple piercings while the girls were in the middle of sex.

His phone rang, and the sound announced it was Antoinette. He answered, video call.

“Hello Antoinette,” he said.

“Jack, my love. How do you fare?”

“Alright. Just fed Mulder and Scully.” He pointed the phone at each shoulder.

“Master,” Scully said, and she pushed her head against his neck under his ear.

Antoinette smiled slightly at Scully. “Your servants adjust to their new lives well. Though I suspect I will become jealous if — I believe that is Scully? — continues to flirt with you.”

“She’s not flirting. She’s ... bonding.”

“She is undead, my love, and already bonded to you by the Vinculum. She is as obsessed with you as your thralls are.”

“But she’s an undead crow, not a person. I ... don’t imagine she has sexual feelings for me.” Raising a brow, he looked down at the bird beside him. Scully cawed a couple times, fluttered her wings, and sent him a couple images into his mind. Very flattering images of Scully basically being the center of attention of Jack, his thralls, and even Antoinette. Gifts were included, each of them shiny trinkets that could be carried by a bird’s claws or beak.

“Jack?” Antoinette said.

“Just get her a ring or necklace and she’ll love you, too.”

“Ah, a whore for jewelry.”

He shrugged. "Aren't we all?"

She laughed. "I wanted to ask about last night, my love. I know you and Elaine were doing something dangerous."

"Yeap. That's why I told you she was here." After a second to think about it, he scrunched up his nose and leaned in toward the phone. "You get jealous of Scully but not Elaine?"

"Elaine would never try and steal you away from me," she said. Jack froze. Yeah, she just might, physically. "At worst she would attempt to seduce you, and allow me to watch as I watch you now."

Ah, streaming sex. The future! A million new ways for people to indulge sex sex sex and more sex.

"Well, I promise you I won't let that happen."

Her smile turned evil. "Not with Elaine. But I would not mind watching you engage with your pets."

"Mulder and Scully?"

"Non! Silly boy. You know I meant Veronica, Leilani, and Rachel." Antoinette leaned back in her chair, having called him from her office, and she teased her lip with a finger as she smiled at the phone. "I think I would much enjoy watching you indulge your masculinity with your servants, be it in person or through video."

Jack rolled his eyes. His lover was a succubus, through and through. Whatever she could do to indulge him sexually, she'd do it, and love every second of it.

"I'd prefer to have you with me, you know."

"If, and when, I descend into torpor for some years to calm my blood lust, I do fully expect you to satisfy yourself and your thralls, my love.” She licked a fang. “Though do make sure to record what I miss, so that I may view your sessions at my leisure.”

He hadn't really thought about that, honestly. Kindred could enjoy the Kiss to a sexual degree without actually having any sex. Far as he knew a lot of vamps, especially Nosferatu like Maria, did just that. When Antoinette went for one of those multi-year torpors, he just expected he'd abstain from sex, and satisfy his Kindred urges with the Kiss alone.

“You know I don't need to do that.”

“Oui, I know. And I adore that you would gladly give up sex for such a time for me.” Again her smile turned serpentine. Really similar to Elaine's evil smiles. Those two had more in common than he realized. “But come now, we are both Kindred, not kine. As long as you recorded the event for me to view later, and did not indulge in the touch of another Kindred, I would be happy to let you fuck your thralls and ghouls as often as you wished.”

“Eh I dunno. I think I'd feel pretty awkward.”

She leaned in closer to the phone. “Then picture vice versa. Me, naked, in bed, with Ashley between my legs kissing my sex, while Julee caresses and suckles my breasts, the three of us anxiously awaiting your rise from torpor in several months. I grab the camera recording us, bring it close, and whisper how much I miss you, as I climax.”

That, was a strangely arousing image. Jack was sure he'd get jealous if Antoinette started fucking a guy thrall or ghoul while Jack was down and out with an extended torpor. But two girls Jack and Antoinette slept with often? Two ghouls at that, completely bound and addicted to Antoinette by the Vinculum? The psychology of sexuality was a strange thing, especially when mixed with Kindred shenanigans.

“Um, let’s cross that bridge when we get to it. I’m still not sold on the idea.”

Antoinette sighed and relaxed back into her big leather office chair. “Very well. Last night, you and Elaine did something relating to the curse.”

“We did.”

“But you will not tell me the details.”

“I uh, wasn’t entirely sure of the details honestly, when I agreed to it.”

She raised a brow. “You trust my friend that much?”

“There’s been some developments. So, I mean, I guess I trust her more than I used to.”

“With your life?”

“I ... think so.” And christ, after the shit Elaine told him, she was basically trusting him with hers.

“You play a dangerous game, my love. I trust Elaine in many regards, but in matters of our pursuits in the Ordo? Dangerous indeed.”

“That’s why I told you we were up to something. Insurance.”

“Make sure to keep me informed. Though I must say, I do wish you would tell me more about what you two are planning.”

“It’s ... It’s kinda private. I’ll leave it up to Elaine to tell you more, if she wants to.”

His lover frowned at the phone, but let it go with a sigh after a while.

“I trust you, but this curse that haunts you affects more than just you and her, my love. The next time either of you intend to do something involving the curse, I would like to be involved.”

“Yeah, ok, I agree to that. But you’ll need to convince Elaine more than me.” And that wouldn’t exactly be easy. Elaine wanted to make sure Antoinette never found out about what she did to get rid of her curse, and she’d probably jump through some hoops to keep every encounter Antoinette now had with the curse, or with rituals affecting it, to a minimum. The Ripper had a nasty habit of spilling secrets when he thought it’d create some chaos.

And she hadn’t even shared her worst secret yet. Who the fuck did Elaine commit diablerie on? She wouldn’t have brought it up if it wasn’t relevant. But what connection could whoever she committed diablerie on have to Jack’s situation? Someone she knew? Someone important to her, or important to someone else? If not a random vampire, then—

Then another vampire with the curse. That was the only relevant connection Jack could think of. And the only vampire Elaine had access to do that to back then, would have been Viktor, and she certainly hadn’t killed him. Then either she’d committed diablerie against a childe of Viktor’s no one knew about, or maybe one of Susanna’s, or ... she’d committed diablerie on one of her own childer none of them knew about.

The only person alive today with the curse, as far as they knew, was Jack. If he did the ritual Elaine did to remove the curse, that meant he’d have to sire someone first, and kill them. No fucking wonder she said she didn’t want him to suffer what she’d suffered.

“Jack?”

“Sorry. I ... gotta go. I’ll see you tomorrow night?”

Antoinette eyed him, making no effort to hide that she suspected him of something. “Very well. I trust Elaine to an extent, but please, if you believe my old friend is up to something devious, likely involving her role in the Ordo, bring it to my attention. If not me, then Daniel.”

“Will do.” If Daniel found out Elaine was a diablerist, or had been, it could end badly. In a straight fight, Ventrue were hard to kill, but Mekhet were fast as fuck, and one as old as Daniel could probably trick even elder eyes with Obfuscate. There was a reason people sometimes called Mekhet assassins. Damien and Daniel were perfect examples.

He hung up, and called Damien.

---

~~Damien~~

Hanging upside down was interesting. Even when Blushing Life, he didn't need to worry about blood flow or anything like that. He was perfectly free to watch and admire how strange everything seemed when upside down, even if it was a spooky, haunted hospital room.

Fiona's blood pulsed through him, strange, alien, forbidden blood that had him and his Beast hungering in a way it didn't really understand. Drunk and horny, was the best way he could interpret it, with hints of something else, something dark and monstrous. When Fiona's blood filled and fueled him, a part of him wanted to go on a hunt, but not for more blood. He wanted to get out there, and scare someone, hunt them and terrify them until his role as living nightmare was fulfilled.

But mostly it just got him drunk, horny, and aggressive. Probably because of how the blood interacted with the Kiss.

Fiona liked it when he got aggressive with her. She liked it when he pinned her down, or tied her up. Sometimes she even liked it when he picked her up and threw her down on the bed, or couch. Spanking, hard fucking, or even forcing her to give him a blowjob, hand on her head. It all tickled something in the tiny redhead that always had her delirious with arousal.

Vrall, on the other hand, liked it when he got aggressive, cause it meant she had stronger prey to trap. Even now, with Fiona's blood telling him to fight and hunt, he struggled against the webbing encasing him. No good. Vrall had cocooned him shoulder to feet an hour ago, and had loved every minute of spinning him in her web as he struggled. She'd loved it so much, she was dripping wet by the time they'd moved onto sex.

But now they were done, and the spider monster hung upside down beside him, several of her very sharp blade-like spider feet balancing on razor tips on spider silk. She was pressed up against his cocoon, and gravity made sure her huge breasts pulled up toward her shoulders, and his, since they were face to face.

Vrall was beautiful, in the exact opposite way Fiona was. His human girlfriend was a shining ray of light, with soft features that matched her unending giggles. A gorgeous ginger that was very huggable.

Vrall had skin the color dark steel, a sharp chin and tiny, sharp lips that were often curled in an evil grin. No eyes. Instead, she had black horns that curled back from where eyes should have been, giant ones that melded into her forehead before curling back over her head, along with several other horns, covering her bald head like hair would have, or a crown. Two claw fingers and a thumb, and instead of feet, her shins ended in sharp blade-like points, same as the eight enormous spider legs coming out of her back. She was tall, with a ridiculously tiny waist, but with a large ass and huge breasts like Fiona's. Inhuman, feminine features exaggerated, almost like her strange beauty was the drawing light of an anglerfish. It wasn't hard to imagine some human she'd drawn into one of her nightmare chambers stumbling onto her, getting hypnotized by her curves, and walking straight into a web.

She kissed him with her black lips, and smiled.

"You do not visit me enough."

"Fiona would get jealous," he said.

"I am Fiona."

"So you say."

"I am Vrall, and Fiona."

"She says she's Fiona, and Vrall."

"Then, I am afraid you are dating the both of us, vampire. And I demand my fair share." She hugged him with her human arms, hard enough her huge breasts, still hanging upside down with her, squashed against his web-covered chest and nearly hit his chin.

"Never took myself for a polygamist."

She laughed. "To Fiona's chagrin."

"You think?"

"Indeed. She is like the vampire Jessy, in a way, addicted to sex and seeking to experience it in greater thrills."

"Oh. You mean she wants to have a threesome." He rolled his eyes. It was a lot easier to think clearly now, now that Fiona's blood was finally beginning to settle within. "Those can get pretty awkward, I do believe."

“Less of a problem for vampires, I do believe.” Laughing again, she kissed him more, and rubbed the base of her two biggest horns into his forehead. “One bite of Fiona and you’d be hard as stone, even in front of an audience.”

“Maybe.”

“Imagine it. Sweet little Fiona, sitting atop you while another woman holds her from behind and plays her body like an instrument.”

He rolled his eyes again. “You watched that vid Ashley sent Jessy, didn’t you?”

Vrallar’trakla of the Eight Blade Arach grinned like a schoolgirl. “I did.”

“Is it just me, or are all the women in Dolareido out-of-their-mind horny? Figured that was usually male territory.”

“Dolareido encourages sexual freedom. I think the women here overcorrect.”

“Overcorrect?”

The beautiful spider monster nodded. “I have seen it in cultures before, over the ages. When something has been enforced or restricted for a long time, and is suddenly given the opportunity to not be, people will first dip their toes in water to test, and then almost immediately after, people jump into the deep end of the pool. Overcorrection.”

“Example?”

“I knew a tribe that feared the color blue, and—”

Damien raised a brow. “Blue?”

She chuckled. “In their past, they’d lost ancestors to it. Blue tree frogs, and certain blue plants, all poisonous. It became part of their culture to fear deep, powerful blues, including the ocean. They avoided it, considered it evil, and would paint their weapons with it, assuming it would kill their enemies. Of course, they painted their weapons in the blood of blue tree frogs, only perpetuating the falsehood, now that a single wound from their weapons caused severe illness.

“But, after some centuries, they realized it was not blue that was deadly, but the blue tree frogs, and the blue plants. This understanding came when they accidentally created a blue paint that caused no harm. Before long, the tribe had painted everything blue. Their clothes, their tattoos, all of it.”

Damien laughed. That was so strangely innocent. It’d probably been the cause of a lot of unfortunate misunderstandings, and likely got a lot of the tribe killed before they realized blue wasn’t evil, but the image of a remote culture suddenly deciding to paint everything they had in blue in some sort of celebration, was delightful. It was the sort of story that’d have Fiona laughing herself to stitches, and as she slipped ‘awwws!’ between her gasps.

“It is a common thing in culture,” she said. “In Dolareido, all women are actively invited to be as sex obsessed as the men, with no fear of judgment. Some women were bound to overcorrect. Female vampires are probably the perfect example.”

Ah yes, female vampires, coming into their power and realizing no other vampire gave two shits how many people they slept with. Just part of the hunt, or the politics, after all. He could see it, a female vampire realizing just how free they were now to fuck and fuck and fuck, and get a little trigger happy. Especially with Jessy going around telling every girl she met that they should.

“I think Jessy was a little nuts before she was embraced, honestly,” he said.

Vrall laughed again, and kissed him again.

---

Coming out of a nightmare chamber was an interesting thing. The Begotten had ways to get around that didn't involve opening and closing their lair's exits, burrowing through darkness and whatnot. But generally speaking, if a Begotten wanted to bring others into or out of their lair, they had to merge one of the chambers with a place in the real world. A hard thing to do, supposedly. They had to open up the chamber over top reality, and the more similar the place in the physical world was to the nightmare chamber, the easier it made the process. Which was why Begotten often used rooms that were utterly pitch black. Lot of places in their lairs were pitch black, too.

According to Vrall, that wasn't an option for some Begotten. Some of the monsters were aquatic, and all their lairs had to support an aquatic environment. Those kinda Begotten lived near rivers or coastlines, and had to trick prey into coming close to the water, often when it was dark.

But the Begotten in Dolareido all shared a chamber across their lairs, the Dolareido nightmare chamber, and that made getting around the city easier for them. Lucky that such a chamber existed. Vrall seemed convinced the chamber was a little weird compared to others, in how perfect it was for Begotten to travel Dolareido. Azamel told her the chamber was unusual because Dolareido was unusual, in a way they didn't understand yet. Almost as if there was something about the city that amplified things that affected the other realms.

Which of course made more sense than Damien liked. There were too many strange things about Dolareido, affecting way more than just the physical world. At this point, they had no choice but to accept that the city was special, for a reason none of them knew.

Which made figuring out what the fuck was going on particularly difficult.

Damien sat up in bed. He'd had sex with Fiona in bed, then she'd opened her lair overtop them and onto, or into, the nightmare hospital Sándor shared with her, in one of the empty patient rooms. Hard for her to do when someone was with her; she said normally you'd lure a person into crossing into the chamber, not open it on them. But considering they'd made the room pitch black for the process, it'd been doable.

Then Vrall had hung him up from the ceiling and cocooned him, and had enjoyed every minute of his struggles; her blood had him fighting like a drunkard. But now that they were done, she opened the haunted hospital chamber back into his bedroom, and closed it. She stayed behind to recover, leaving him alone in his bedroom, and his phone on the nightstand blinking a tiny blue light, the only light in the room.

He checked the phone. A message from Jack.

~I'm starting to trust Elaine more, and less.~

~Sounds like an oxymoron.~

~Just keep an eye on her for me, would you? I'm getting into some deep shit with her, and I don't trust myself to be smart about this.~

~Jack, she's one of the oldest vampires around. I doubt I can keep an eye on her without her realizing it.~

~Then keep an eye on me.~

Damien blinked at his phone. Keep an eye on Jack? He was already doing that, considering the kid was basically a walking bomb if he ever took off his necklace. But the text message was so straightforward, Damien sensed the urgency in it. Something new was happening.

~I will.~

---

~~Beatrice~~

Triss braced for flying projectiles, fueled by a ghost's wrath. But it didn't happen. Mary stared at Sándor with her empty ghost eyes for a few moments, everyone else watching and waiting, but she didn't attack. Eventually her frown faded, and she smiled. A creepy ghost smile, but at least she didn't smile from ear to ear, literally.

"Mom's told me about you."

"Has she?" he asked.

"She says you're trying to make up for all the things that happened."

Slowly, the man nodded. "I am."

"Why?" Say one thing for the ghost, she didn't pull punches with her questions.

The man took a breath, which in itself was a huge emotional expression for the gargoyle. "I—"

"You were brainwashed, right? Straight out of a movie. Brainwashed and forced to do bad things." The ghost's head twitched, one of those freaky twitches that were instantaneous.

"That doesn't mean—"

"Don't be dumb. Don't blame yourself because other people are evil." Mary nodded, like what she said was the most true thing in the world. She might have been dead, more dead than even a vampire, but Triss could see the Jack in her expressions. Conviction. “You want to help people, sure, do that. But don’t think bad things happened because of you. You didn’t stab me.” The words pulled another scary smile out of her, and she looked at Beatrice. “Thanks again, for killing Angela.”

“Don’t mention it,” Triss said, wincing slightly.

Killing Angela had not been satisfying. Vengeance wasn’t satisfying. Sure, it’d settled the part of Triss that’d been willing to burn the planet to cinders if it meant killing Angela and Jeremiah, but it did absolutely nothing to make her feel better. The pain, misery, all the cliché tropes she thought would never apply to her, applied to her in spades, and killing Angela didn’t do jack shit about them.

There was no way a ghost would get that. One thing Triss picked up on her last visit, and from her conversations with Sam about her, was that Mary the ghost was unstable as fuck. They had no idea if a single thought ran through the girl’s head, or if she was a bundle of memories given a ghostly body, ready to pop and snap at any stimulus that crossed a line.

Tonight was going to be terrifying for Sam.

“So don’t be dumb,” Mary said, looking back to Sándor said.

“I ... I’ll try not to,” he said. And god damn, he even looked down, and looked a little sad. Triss had only ever seen him look like that two other times: that night he got drunk, and when he was behind a guitar.

Shit, no wonder he hadn’t taken the opportunity to speak to Mary until now. If he blamed himself for her death, this would be the first time the guy got to talk to someone that died because of him. That was the really fucked up thing about ghosts. Not that they were crazy, unstable, couldn’t be touched, and could throw shit around with their ghost powers. It was the fact they were dead, truly dead, murdered and gone, and yet they got to stick around and have their say. Vampires weren't the same; well, usually.

But Sándor was a trooper. He looked up and stepped back, giving the vampires the floor, his face steady once again. Now Triss wanted to either get a glass in his hand, or a guitar, since those seemed to be the only ways the dude could express himself. Practically the opposite of her. Practically the opposite of Julias, for that matter.

Christ, stop comparing him to Julias. That is all manner of fucked up.

“Mary,” Samantha said. “I have the ... the crystal ball.” She held up the black bag, and only now did Mary notice it was moving slightly. Judging from her reaction, Sam had already described to her daughter everything about the ritual, or at least that it'd make a crystal ball that liked to jiggle.

How much did Mary know about the dark shit Sam was getting into? If there was one thing that'd make ghost Mary flip the fuck out and start attacking and destroying shit, it was learning her mother was a murderer of kine by accessory, and was engaging in dark witch magic. Considering the shit Mary was about to see, hopefully her mom had prepared her for at least some of it.

“Can I see?” Mary asked, staring at the bag.

Nodding, Sam reached into the bag, and pulled out the small, glowing crystal ball. Everyone froze as they waited for Mary to flip out over seeing something a living person would never be able to see: their final moments etched into a magical object.

Mary leaned in, empty eyes wider than humanly possible. “That's ... me?”

Sam smiled. “It’s a part of you. Can you see the things it’s showing?”

“I can. I can ... I can...”

Staring into the crystal ball was a hypnotic experience for all of them, considering how seamlessly it showed Mary and Sam in the alley before they were stabbed, and the thoughts going through Mary’s mind at the time. For Mary, the crystal ball must have been like staring into the heart of the universe. She didn’t move, didn’t say a thing, for entire minutes. Just sat there, the only thing letting everyone know time still moved being the ebbing mist around them, and Sándor’s slow breathing.

“That’s me.”

“Just a part of you,” Sam said. “Just a blueprint.”

“I don’t understand the blueprint part,” Mary said. So Sam had told her some stuff already.

Well, time to be the witch in all this, and take charge. Beatrice stepped forward, and the ghost looked at her.

“There’s three things we need to get someone up and walking around,” Triss said, doing her best to look the ghost in the eyes. There was a reason Jacob usually covered his empty eye sockets with a bandage: empty eye sockets were freaky as fuck. And Mary’s empty eye sockets were enormous and far too expressive. “A body and a soul, everyone knows. But the blueprint part, that part was a little more abstract, and we had to figure it out.” No reason to tell them about her visit from the Crone. “It’ll be the glue to keep everything together. Makes sure the body and soul fit together snug and in the right places.”

It took effort to not shudder. The fuck would have happened if they’d tried to jam a soul into a body without the blueprint, or glue, or whatever? A fucked up abomination probably, something snarling and drooling and stumbling around, all twisted and shit, except all the twisted parts would be inside where no one could see, until the abomination jumped someone and bit out their throat in some pointless attempt to devour their flesh and soul and fix their own body. Yeap, nightmare fuel.

Or maybe instead of being Mary, it'd be whoever's brain was in the skull of the body waiting for them back in the cave? Also a shitty outcome.

“I see,” the ghost said. “I ... I'm scared.”

Sam put the crystal back in the bag. “Don't be scared, baby. Even if this doesn't work, you're still my baby girl. Nothing is—”

“If it doesn't work, then ... then does that mean I'm not Mary?”

“Mary, don't talk like that. You know you're—”

“Mom!” Everyone froze like ice when the ghost shrieked, everyone except Sam. The sudden sound washed over her like a shrieking baby's routine crying washes over any mom's back, after a while. “Mom, you don't know that. I might not be her.”

“How can you say that?”

“We talked about this, mom! Jack told me I might not be me. He visits sometimes, and he said ... he said...”

Oh fucking shit Jack. Stop being so damn honest with people.

Triss gulped as she looked between everyone in the group. A glance Sam's way showed her looking at Triss, letting her handle the question. Well, she did decide to take charge. Time to follow through.

“We don’t know, Mary. None of us know a thing about ghosts. No one really does. And we’re not going to lie to you. If resurrection was a sure thing, something people had figured out before, then my boss would know about it. He’d know about it, and so would other people in the Circle. Someone, somewhere, would have written about it succeeding. They haven’t.” She squatted down in front of Mary, maybe a little closer than was safe, and looked up at the kid. “There’s a lot of ifs in all this. But your mom and I are in this shit deep. Me for Julias, her for you. She’s got an advantage though, cause the hardest part, the soul, it could be right here, in front of us.”

Mary looked between them, spending some time on each, before her empty eye sockets settled back on Triss. “I don’t want to be a ghost anymore. I don’t want to ... to be seen by that dark thing anymore.”

“Thing?” Jennifer asked.

“The dark thing. It goes to a dark place, and it’s watching the city, and waiting. It ... oozes. It draws lines everywhere, and it’s ... scary.”

Holy fucking shit. Black Blood, what the fuck are you up to?

“Not gonna lie,” Triss said, “this ritual needs the help of Elen.”

“I know.”

Triss looked Sam’s way, and Sam slowly shook her head with a wince. She hadn’t told Mary this part, yet.

“Yeah, but you don’t know we have a friend who helps us force Elen to do what we want. Black Blood, a spirit.”

Mary shrieked again, and jumped back. Jump turned into hover, and she pressed her back against the wall as she crawled up it until she was half against the wall, half pressed to the ceiling. Mouth open wide like her eyes, she stared down at Triss, head occasionally twitching in that freaky fast way ghosts apparently did. Whatever movie director or SFX dude who first thought those crunchy body motions for ghosts was a good idea, fucker had probably seen a real ghost sometime in their life.

“Black Blood! It’s out there! It’s ... it’s tearing at things, drawing lines and cutting them. It’s dark and death and—”

“Has he ever hurt you?” Triss asked.

“ ... n-no.” And like her panic was a balloon someone had popped, she deflated. “No.”

“But he can see you?”

“It ... he can! He can. He moves through the city, in that ... place between, where I hide, where we can’t touch things. He can see into that place. And everywhere he goes, it’s like ... like he leaves a trail of ... of...”

“Yeah, that sounds like Black Blood.” Triss shook her head as she stood up. “This is all dark magic shit, Mary. And Black Blood is willing to help us.”

“Why?”

Because Triss sold her soul to the spirit. Well, not really, but pledging to work with him for who knew how many decades or centuries, to be a student and partner, was pretty damn close.

“It’s complicated. But you don’t have to worry about Black Blood, he’s on our side. He’s also going to be the one controlling Elen. We’ll want her up and aware in case ... something happens.”

Slowly, the ghost hovered back down to the bed.

“I’ve taken a peek at Black Blood,” Mary said. “From inside the house, I mean. He’s scary.”

“He’s fucking terrifying,” Triss said, laughing. “But, same could be said about us, you, and the gargoyle over there, to a normal person.” A flick of the wrist to Sándor helped draw a small smile from the ghost. “He helped us build your body. He is a spirit of the dead, and deals with dead stuff.”

“Like me?”

“I ... don’t know. You said he can see you, even when you’re hiding in your, uh, ghost place?”

She nodded. Ghost place, or whatever the proper name for it was, was a place ghosts could apparently hide in the physical world. Far as Triss knew, spirits could do the same thing. But if that was true, then Mary would probably have something to say about spirits other than Black Blood, cause there was probably a few spirits roaming Dolareido, hiding out of view. Black Blood was no ordinary spirit.

Triss stood up. “He’ll be there, when you enter the body. Your body. Are you ok with that?”

“Mom?” Mary asked.

“I’ve seen Black Blood,” Sam said, “as much as anyone can see him. He’s very, very scary. But he’s only helped ... and made jokes. A lot of stupid jokes.”

Triss and Jen laughed, which soon had Mary smiling too. A creepy smile, ghost and all, but a happy smile.

“Ok,” Marry said, “let’s do it.”

Sam smiled bright, turned on the bed, and faced her child full on. “Ok. If you think something’s wrong and you want to stop, you can stop anytime you want.”

“I know.” Nodding, Mary turned to face her mom, and leaned in toward her, almost like she was going to hug her. And Sam held her arms open to her, like she was going to hug her back. When the two touched, Triss froze, for the umpteenth time that night, because it almost looked like the two were able to touch. But before any weight or impact could sink in, Mary’s body broke apart into mist, glowing a soft blue.

The glowing mist tightened, shrinking, and at the same time, floated into Sam’s necklace. It was a quiet, almost anticlimactic thing, how easily and smoothly Mary flowed into the necklace, almost like she’d done it dozens of times before. It quickly left the room empty of mist, and lifted the crushing cold. No more ghost. No more haunted.

Wait a minute.

“Uh, Sam,” Triss said, once Mary was completely gone, and the mist around their feet was gone, too. “You uh, you wear that necklace a lot, and—”

Sam scrunched up her nose at Triss as she stood up. “She’s never in it when I’m with Jacob.”

“Oh, good. Cause that’d be weird.” No kid, no matter who or what, should ever have to see their mom in the middle of an orgy.

---

“Sure you don’t want Jacob here?” Jennifer asked as they entered the cave, buried nice and far on the outskirts of the city in the desert rock.

“I thought about it,” Sam said, following behind her as they worked past the rocks and stone. “But you said it yourself, you and Triss, that Jacob thinks this can’t be done. I ... I don’t know. I sorta want him here, but another part of me thinks it'd be better if we do this without him. It's a part of his life he's abandoned, right? You said he tried to revive Minerva decades ago and couldn't."

"Yeap," Triss said.

"Then maybe we shouldn't involve him. Don't want to get his hopes up."

Triss chuckled. Jacob get his hopes up? She didn't even know if the dude was capable of hopes anymore, with how old he was, and all the crazy shit that'd happened to him over the centuries. If he managed to find some happiness with Sam, and it seemed like he had, that was likely the best the dude could hope for.

Did he tell Sam he was thinking about leaving Dolareido? Would she go with him? Would Antoinette even let her?

Sam paused in the entrance to the cave, and looked back past Triss. "Sándor, did you want to come?"

Slowly, the gargoyle shook his head. "I'll stay out here. I don't want—"

"Don't be like that. You heard what Mary said. And besides, no offense to Beatrice or Jennifer, but ... it'd be nice to have someone else nearby who's been a parent. You ... you might have some ... I don't know, insight, into whatever happens?"

Triss looked back at Sándor and watched. What would the dude do? Close off? Walk away? Shake his head, say nothing, turn around, and wait, like a gargoyle?

Sándor took a deep breath, and looked to Triss. Eye contact. Christ it was hard to look the dude in the eyes. Look at him anywhere else, sure, he was a stoic dude who didn't express much. But the blue eyes had hints of more, a lot more.

She'd hung out with him several times, since that night she saw him playing guitar. Talking to Sándor was easy, no awkwardness at all. Great listener, and was happy to do it, too. But looking him in the eyes was a whole other beast.

"Come on," Beatrice said, after a few seconds. "We don't know what's going to happen. It'll be nice, having a strong Begotten around in case shit hits the fan. And besides, you've met Black Blood." Nodding, she took out her phone and turned on the light.

"Met is a strong word. A couple of very short encounters in the dream." But he nodded, and walked in. "Alright."

The next part was going to be a little rough. She glanced back at him a couple times as they took him through the small passage, and she gulped on a dry throat as madness came into view.

Somehow, the man didn't say a word, as he entered the flesh cave, but the look in his eyes said a million things.

Elen hung from the hook over the giant metal bowl, but at least Triss had made her some cuffs to dangle from, instead of having the metal skewering her wrists. She dangled high and was bound with some extra rope, too, just in case she suddenly turned hulk strong and tried to fling herself off the huge hook. No chance, but still. And fuck, the woman looked awful, as emaciated as ever. The only reason her arms weren't popping out of their sockets was because of whatever strange magic that made her immortal. But considering she was in a deep sleep, she couldn't have been that uncomfortable.

Sándor stared at the walls covered in markings, most in blood, some fresh some old, some etched into the stone. He stared at the candles Jen lit, and then down beneath the bowl, and the carved — or maybe real and petrified — skeletons that held the bowl up. He stared at the pile of bodies in the back of the cave, covered in a tarp. He stared at the body of Julias and Mary, both sitting in a chair, and both covered in tarps of their own.

“A terrifying sight,” Jennifer said.

“It ... isn’t the first time I’ve seen something like this,” he said, after a few more look-arounds.

“Oh?” Jen raised a brow before leaning over and lighting another candle. Enough light for Triss to turn off her phone’s.

“Long life. Met a few witches in the past, other side of the ocean.”

“Like her?” Samantha asked, nodding to the dangling, sleeping Elen.

“Maybe. Dark hut deep in the woods, a book, a cauldron.”

Triss laughed. “A cauldron? No shit, really?”

Sándor nodded. “I’ve served witches before, as a guard.”

“Any interesting stories for me?”

He met her eyes again, and holy shit, she saw the faintest hint of a smile there. “Yes. I can share them ... later.”

“Yeah, later.” Nodding, Triss walked over to the two bodies sitting in chairs. One of them was breathing.

Slowly, like it ... he, might jump up and bite her, Triss lifted the tarp up and took a peek at Julias. She glanced back at Sándor, and sure enough, the dude took a peek at Julias as well, before he looked away. No need for words, that hurt him. But she did offer the guy a small nod and smile, before looking back at Julias, and gave the body a couple pokes and prods. Still living and breathing, still just sitting there, waiting for a soul. Black Blood was poking at that idea for her, and assured her Elen wasn’t an issue; even if she did lose her mind, the magic keeping the bodies alive would keep ticking, and Black Blood could possess her and make her do things, too. Which meant Beatrice had time to focus on the more immediate concern.

Triss set the tarp back down over Julias, and pulled the tarp off Mary. Nah, not Mary. The body was a corpse, not living or breathing yet, and didn't look like Mary when you looked closer. At least the body parts they'd sewn together to look like Mary didn't have seams, magic and all that.

Sam stared at the body, and clutched her necklace. "Should I ... ask Mary to come out now?"

"Not ye—actually, maybe you should."

Sam tilted her head to the side. "You hesitated."

Triss came up, and whispered into Sam's ear. "Mary hiding in your necklace is a secret, right? If Black Blood can't see or hear us right now — not sure about that — then let's keep it a secret as long as we can. If we summon him first, he'll see how Mary got here."

"You ... really don't trust him, do you?" Sam whispered back.

"Scorpion and the frog, you know? Let's be smart about this." Triss had no idea what sort of dark shit Black Blood was up to when he wasn't with them, but she knew he was definitely up to something. And had probably been up to somethings for a long time, centuries even. Plus, considering he was a spirit of death and the dead, she didn't like the idea of him knowing how to get his hands on Mary when she wasn't protected in her home.

Nodding, Sam stepped back, lifted her necklace, and whispered to it. Quiet, tiny whispers Triss strained to hear, and failed.

Sure enough, the presence of Mary the ghost was obvious. Cold, mist, the usual, it all built up in the small cave. With the half dozen candles Jen had lit, it really gave the creepy mist a whole new level of scary factor.

Mary rose from the mist, no color except for hints of white and blue and compressed fog, and she was see-through, same as always.

“Oh my god,” Mary said, and her head snapped left and right rapid fire as she took in the sights. “It’s a ... a witches cave.”

“Literally,” Jennifer said, smiling as she gestured around. The marks and lines, the ritual symbols, the candles, the big bowl, the hanging woman, the dead bodies, the two sitting bodies, all of it. An unsuspecting kine stumbling onto the cave would have said the same thing.

“Literally,” Triss said. “You can take a second to get used to it if you want, Mary. We don’t know what’s going to happen. Better you get comfortable with your surroundings, I guess.”

That might have been a mistake. Mary drifted over to the back of the cave, and shrieked when she realized the mound was a tarp over bodies. Everyone — save Sándor — threw up their hands and covered their ears as the ghost screamed. Uh oh.

“Baby! Baby, don’t worry!” Sam ran over to her, and got between her daughter and the dead. “It’s ok! It’s—”

“They’re dead! Dead dead dead dead de—”

“Baby! I told you about ... about what we did.” Wow, Sam had told her daughter more than Triss figured she would.

Triss, a lot slower than Sam, joined the two of them at the pile. “We were careful, Mary. Very careful. It’s why it took so long to get everything ready. The only people we killed were absolute shitholes who deserved it. Rapists, murderers, abusers.” She didn’t think they’d have to have this conversation, but the closer they got to this day, the more apparent it became it couldn't be avoided. They needed Elen for the ritual to put the crystal ball into the body, and no way in hell were they gonna take the flesh witch or the bodies out of here. Too dangerous, too risky. Acclimating the unstable ghost to a room full of bodies and body parts was their only option.

After seeing Mary now, body twitching hyper speed and shifting in place left and right, again at hyper speed, maybe it wasn't the better idea. Maybe take the dangerous flesh witch out into the world, maybe to Sam's home, set up a hundred different ritual symbols in her basement, summon Black Blood, give Elen the knife and book, surely that'd be perfectly fine. Compared to a ghost flipping the fuck out, maybe.

“Dead! Dead dead—”

“Mary!” Triss swung her arm and pointed at the bodies. “These were people like Angela and Jeremiah! Okay? You sad those two are dead?”

The ghost snapped her head and glared at Triss, panic and rage in her big empty eyes. But sure enough, saying Angela's name brought a spark of awareness to her, and she stopped doing that weird ghost-snap thing. Hovering there, mist pouring off where legs should have been, she slowly looked from Beatrice to Samantha, then back to the bodies.

“I'm not sad those two are dead.”

“Damn right,” Triss said. “Look, Mary, yeah, this shit is nasty. We're witches. But you trust your mom, right? She helped us prepare. She was there, when we killed the people we used to make this.” She gestured to the corpse woman sitting in the chair. “You don't need to trust me, or Jen or Sándor, but you trust Sam, right? She's been with us, every step of the way.” And that journey had been one fucked up mess of guilt and murder. Every person they killed, Triss had to make damn sure they deserved it, and convince Sam of it. The only reason Sam agreed to any of it, was because now she had Kindred instincts telling her killing kine was fine. She didn't agree with those instincts of course, but it was a shit load better than how she would have felt about it before she was a vampire.

“I ... I trust Mom.”

“Good. Now, you trust me about Black Blood, and Elen?”

“I ... do.”

Nodding, Triss gestured to an empty space by Sándor near the cave wall. Sam walked over there, every bit of her looking half ready to panic over what was about to happen, and what had just happened. Mary slowly mirrored the nod, and floated over to hover beside her mom. Jen stood beside Sándor.

Black Blood you fucking asshole, don't do anything to make this worse.

Triss faced the bowl, and gulped. “Black Blood, I summon you.”

Mary's presence was classic ghost creepy. The mist, the cold, the air of death, her instability, it was borderline cliché. Scary, but cliché. The spirit's presence, on the other hand, was like swimming in a graveyard, and having the graveyard sing to you at the same time. It was massive, ethereal, and beyond something as simple as people. To something like Black Blood, vampires were only just slightly deep enough into 'dead' territory to even warrant his notice. Like, a god, only barely noticing his worshipers. And she hated the idea of thinking of that asshole as a god.

Sure enough, when his black ooze began to fill the room, everyone froze and waited, except Mary. She hovered down closer to her mom, and then behind her. Triss made a quick glance at the ghost, trembling in obvious fear behind her mom. This was going to be rough.

Mary's presence, her mist and fog, it all disappeared into the black ooze that soaked them all. The black blood dripped down from the ceiling, and up from the floor into the ceiling. It leaked from the walls. It flowed from the eyes of the skulls underneath the giant bowl the flesh witch dangled over.

"Well I'll be," the darkness said, more of that deep booming voice with an alien rasp mixed in. "Is that Mary?"

Mary looked around randomly for the voice, head snapping, body shaking.

"D-Don't talk to my daughter," Sam said. "She's not comfortable with you."

Triss grinned. Say one thing for Sam, she was a mom, through and through.

"Begging your pardon, ma'am." A thick, Southern drawl, as always. "And is that Sándor? Dolareido's new Batman?"

Triss threw up her hands. "What the fuck? Batman? You've never seen any Batman shit."

"I have indeed."

"Bullshit."

"You think a spirit can't watch a movie? I'm fixing to clock you upside the head, girl."

"I think—" Triss grabbed her hair and shook her head. "Never mind. Yes, Sándor is here. Yes, he's invested in what happens to Dolareido. He lives here now." As if Black Blood didn't already know that.

Black Blood chuckled, deep voice almost shaking the walls. “Then I am glad to have helped the man.”

They all looked Sándor’s way.

The gargoyle stared on, face a rock, slowly looking at random objects as he searched for the source of the sound.

“Thank you.”

“You’re quite welcome. Now, three vampires, a monster of nightmares, and a poor lady outside her body. I imagine you’re all here ‘cause you’re ready to start this shindig?”

They all looked Sam’s way.

Sam gulped, pulled out the black bag, and removed the crystal ball inside. “I’m ready. Mary?”

“R ... Ready,” she whispered, still hiding behind her mom, empty eyes wider than ever.

“Ok baby. You just stay there for now. We gotta get the body ready.”

“Okay.” Mary, the deadly ghost who’d thoroughly trashed Jack in the past, now looked as meek and helpless as a little girl.

“Time to wake Elen, then.” Black Blood’s booming chuckle had them vibrating literally this time. He was like one of those jolly uncles a family might visit with their timid kids, and the uncle’s plan to get the kids more comfortable with him, was to laugh and be merry like fucking Santa Claus. It didn’t work in that scenario, and it didn’t work in this scenario. Mary stayed back and away, and drifted closer to Sándor, as Sam stepped up to the body.

“Elen,” Triss said. No response. “Elen!” She reached out and slapped the woman’s ankle.

Elen opened her eyes. No jolt or snap of life and the usual shit that’d come from getting woken up with a pinch of pain. Nope, just an old woman coming out of a long sleep with all the casualness of coming out of hibernation.

“Oh my,” she said, tired eyes drifting around the room. “Is that a ghost?”

“You,” Mary said, and she snarled very inhuman-like as she glared at the flesh witch. “You helped Jeremiah and Angela.”

“That I did, sweetie.”

“Why!?” A punch of sound, high pitched with far too much volume, and everyone winced and crouched like they’d just gotten shot. Except Sándor.

“Jeremiah wasn’t the only person who thinks monsters should die.” And again, with all the grace and rush of a slug, she looked to Sándor. “Enjoying freedom, Pavel?”

Sándor said nothing and showed nothing, but Triss did see a tiny twitch in one eye from the Begotten as he watched Elen. Dude could have yanked a shotgun out of his back pocket and shot the bitch right there, with that exact expression on, and no one would have been surprised.

“Hush you,” Black Blood said. “You’re just a tool now, Elen. See what your blood thirst gets you.”

Triss blinked around at the darkness. Was Black Blood being a hypocrite? She didn’t say it. Honestly, she didn’t even know if it was true. Had Black Blood ever killed anyone?

Before Triss could suggest it, Black Blood began the possession process. A grotesque sight, watching black ooze creep its way up Elen's legs and into her body through any orifice it could, tear ducts included. Mary and Sam stared, and poor Mary looked all sorts of disturbed. She looked at what Black Blood was doing the way a kine would look at a ghost.

Once Elen was possessed, Triss jumped up onto the bowl, got her down, put her in her wheelchair, and Jen armed her with the book and knife Sam stole from her sire.

“Alright,” Elen said, Black Blood's Southern accent gone, rasp mixed into her old woman's voice, “bring the body, and the mold.”

Right, Elen called the crystal ball the ‘mold’. Triss was sure blueprint fit it better, but whatever. She took the body's chair, and slid the corpse over to her, all while doing her best to not look at the ghost Mary. Sam stepped up too, crystal ball in hand, and the golden glow fought against the harsh black mist that clung over everything.

Elen smiled and nodded, flipped the pages of the book with her extremely scrawny, wrinkly fingers, found the page, and hummed to herself—himself as he cut a line across the naked body's side. That knife looked like it belonged in a museum, and was way too fucking sharp.

“Insert the mold, Samantha.”

Sam gulped, both hands clutching the crystal ball, but after a few seconds and a few seconds more, she pushed the ball into the flesh of the corpse.

Everyone watched the body expectantly. Even Mary the ghost wandered closer, eyes stuck on her potential body. At first, nothing, but a moment later Sam gasped, the first to notice the changes.

Triss glanced back and forth between the ghost and the body in the chair. Yeap, it was changing. Black Blood had used his command of death and the dead to craft them the body from corpses, and even do some magical surgery and shit to try and get it as close to Mary as they could. They'd gotten pretty close, Triss thought, but only now that the nose shifted a few millimeters, and the eyes adjusted outward a few millimeters more, did she realize just how fucking important the small details were. Things like height, hip, tits, all of that morphed with small adjustments too, but it was the head, especially the face, where the super tiny mistakes made a giant difference. The blueprint fixed them.

And then it was Mary.

“Oh my god,” Mary said, and she hovered over to the body, so close she was almost touching Elen. The corpse took a breath. “Oh my god!” She snapped back, almost teleporting as she put the big ritual bowl between her and the body.

Elen chuckled. “Calm down, deary. Empty body, empty mind.”

Sam motioned for her daughter to come back, and she did, staring at the awaiting naked body.

“It's me.”

“No, baby,” Samantha said, shaking her head. “It's just a vessel. You're you.”

Triss smiled slightly at Sam. Vessel. It wasn't the sort of word someone like Sam would use, but Jacob and Triss used that sorta language all the time. Dark magic, rituals, Sam was getting neck deep in it and was changing more and more every night because of it. Maybe she'd leave the Ordo and become be a witch? Or maybe she'd ride some kinda line between them, like Minerva had.

Hopefully Sam wouldn't follow in all of Minerva's footsteps.

“W-What do I do now?”

“Possess the body,” Black Blood said. “You saw how I did with this one. Though it should be easier for you.”

“Easier?”

“You’re not like me, sweetie. There’s a much smaller barrier between you and the humans. Ghosts possess people sometimes, and corpses. And considering this body has no mind or soul, and is eagerly awaiting its missing soul, you should snap into place like a puzzle piece.”

“I ... I still don’t know how.”

Elen shrugged. “You’ll figure it out. Touch the body, and move into her. It should come naturally.” Chuckling, Elen closed the book, and picked at her fingernails with the bloody knife. “I could force you into the body.”

Sam glared at the old witch. “What do you mean?”

“I am a spirit of the dead. I have ... some ability, to affect ghosts.” Black Blood returned Sam’s glare with a teasing grin. “But I don’t think it will be necessary.”

“Don’t touch me!” Mary glared at Black Blood, the crazy sort of ghost glare that usually announced incoming flying objects and murderous intent. From terrified of the god spirit of death one moment, to ready to brawl him the next.

Elen put up her hands, smile unwavering. “I wouldn’t dare, child.”

Jen stepped up behind Elen and rolled her a few feet away, earning a merry chuckle from the old woman. It was all a game to Black Blood, their lives, the rituals, the experiments, using Elen. To Black Blood, everything here was a side note, something he was experimenting with while he did his own shit elsewhere. Well, whatever, as long as he did what was asked of him. If he didn't, Triss would call off the deal, and the fucker could rot. But honestly, she got the impression Black Blood was the sorta fucker to follow through on his deals. An asshole, but a trustworthy one, like Jacob.

Sam stood beside the body, and motioned to her daughter. "Whenever you're ready, baby. Take your time. If things go bad, Elen can keep the body alive. Right?"

Elen nodded. "Julias's body waits in that chair, and has for months now, without food or drink. Elen's flesh magic is connected to her own life, and she's made herself immortal, albeit in a strange way. As long as she's alive, which should be indefinitely, we can keep our vessels alive and kicking. Unless someone comes along and damages them in a way that would kill them quickly; avoid cutting off heads or stabbing hearts, please."

His joke didn't earn a smile from anyone, but Triss did have to suppress hers. Bad time for a nasty joke with Mary and Sam here, but Triss did like dark humor.

Everyone went quiet as they waited. Nothing to say anymore. It was all on the ghost, now.

Mary floated in front of her double, and stared at the vessel, its eyes closed. Eye contact would probably have been a bit much, so Triss didn't open them. After a minute of hovering and staring, Mary turned around, and sat in the chair, on, and into her body.

The mist sucked up into the body like she had a mega vacuum in her mouth. A deep, heavy, unending breath they all heard, like the cave had transformed into a wind tunnel. All the mist, hidden beneath Black Blood's presence, swirled around them like a whirlpool before flying into Mary's new body through the mouth and nose. And as quickly as it started, it stopped. No bang, no explosion of light, nothing. The ghost, the ghost presence, it was all gone. Only one candle survived.

Well, that was pretty damn anticlimactic.

“Did it work?” Beatrice asked. “It—”

Mary opened her eyes.

“Mary!?” Sam squatted down in front of her child, and looked up at her, green eyes wide.

“M ... Mom?” Mary looked at her mom, eyes wide too. Green, with hints of blue, like Jack’s. Like Sam’s.

“Oh god, baby!?! Are you ok? Do you remember anything?” She threw herself at Mary and hugged her, almost knocking the chair over. Triss got there quick and stopped it, and Sam didn’t even notice. Just a bundle of tearless sobs as she hugged Mary.

“Mom!” Oh thank god, Mary hugged her back. Not a mindless zombie, then. “It worked! It worked, oh thank god!”

Triss sighed relief, and looked around for Jen. Her friend did the same, before she went around and re-lit the dead candles.

Sam stood up and brought Mary with her, hugged her and spun her a couple times and hugged her a few times more, and finally let her go.

“I ... I can’t believe it worked.” Sam managed a whole three seconds before she hugged her kid again. “Are you alright? Is everything working?”

“I’m ok mom. I’m ok. I ... I can think again.”

“Think?” She let her go again and stepped back. “You mean ... as a ghost...”

“I couldn’t think, not really. Any thoughts I had hit me so hard, like in a dream. Just ... images, sounds, scents, they came and went and every second I was just trying to hold on. I—” Mary finally looked down at herself, then at the room full of people. “Ah!”

Jennifer laughed and stood beside Sándor. “After what we’ve been through, Mary, I think you can stop worrying about the nudity.” But before Mary could say anything, Jennifer turned Sándor around anyway. That got a chuckle out of everyone, save the gargoyle.

Triss caught a peek of the man’s eyes before he finished turning around though. There was a hint of ... something there. Concern? Disbelief? Whatever it was, it wasn’t the unmatched joy she saw in Sam’s.

Triss also took a moment to take in Black Blood’s eyes. Elen’s eyes were old, lots of wrinkles and sagging skin, hard to read, but she did look interested in what was happening, like a scientist making mental notes.

“So you remember everything?” Triss asked.

Mary half turned and nodded to her, big smile in full bloom. She really was a pretty lady, a bit taller than her brother, decently lean, if a bit soft. Her face had a certain softness to it too, like her mom, and she had brown hair to her shoulders, also like her mom. It was a little hard to see the similarities between the two when looking at the ghost, but they were blatant when looking at the actual body, especially now that she was up and moving.

“I remember everything. I remember ... getting stabbed in that alley. I remember running home, not really knowing I was dead at first. I remember when Jack and Mom found me there. I remember —” She snapped her gaze to Elen. Thankfully, this time the head snap didn’t do that freaky instant snap thing it did when she was a ghost.

Elen chuckled, and balanced the knife on one finger over the book, teetering it so its blade tip and handle end tapped the book over and over.

“It appears the possession was a success.”

“I don’t feel like I’m possessing a body,” Mary said. She squirmed a little, covering her breasts and privates, so Triss wrapped the tarp around her they’d used to hide her body. “Thanks. It ... It feels like me. I don’t think I could, um, de-possess it? Or anything like that.”

“That’s good,” Elen said. “Then it appears this was a success. Body and soul, and the mold to fit them together.”

Mary took a deep, slow breath, and leaned into her mom, who happily hugged her again, with one arm this time so they could walk together, toward the wall. They leaned their heads into each other. It was so precious, Triss thought she might just puke, in a good way.

“I’m alive again,” Mary whispered. “I ... I can’t believe it.” It was inevitable. She sobbed. And unlike her already sobbing mom, Mary had plenty of tears to make.

Sam hugged her full on again, and the two of them cried for a little while.

“It worked,” Jen said, turning Sándor back toward the group. Triss made sure to watch his expression again, but relaxed as the man smiled, barely, and set his eyes on the two hugging women.

“It worked,” Triss said. “I don’t know if we’ll be able to get back Julias’s soul to do the same, but at least Mary’s alive.”

Mary let go of her mom, and with the biggest, happiest, tear-filled eyes Triss had ever seen, she waddled her way to her, tarp still wrapped around her with one arm, and hugged Triss as best she could with the other arm.

“Thank you.”

Well, shit. Triss smiled over the girl’s shoulder at Sam, and pet Mary on the back once. She was tempted to tell the girl it was all about Julias, and Mary was just a test run. But that shit wasn’t true. Seeing Sam smile like that was so god damn amazing, it made the fucking shitshow they’d pushed through seem worth it.

Slippery slope, thinking it was okay to go around murdering people so they could resurrect someone.

“You’re ... welcome.” She pat Mary on the shoulder, and gently pushed her away. Yeap, girl was still crying. “Fuck me, it actually worked.”

“It did!” She giggled, and for a moment there, she looked just like Sam. “Oh my god! Oh my ... god...” Slowly, Mary looked around at the room again, and this time her eyes lingered on the pile of bodies in the corner. The tarp covering them didn’t do a good job covering the limbs sticking out closer to the bottom of the pile.

It only got worse as Mary, now in the flesh and a living breathing person, took in the rest of the reality. An old woman, a flesh witch, possessed by a god-like spirit of death, with a knife and weird magic book in hand. Symbols carved into the floor and walls. A giant metal bowl, where the smell of blood would never fade. This wasn’t the scene you’d expect for a happy family reunion.

Sam came close and guided her daughter toward the exit. “Let’s go somewhere else.”

“I ... I’m ok, I am. I still remember everything. It’s just, when I was ... dead, all this stuff seemed ... I don’t know, reasonable? It...” She shivered and took another step toward the cave’s exit. “Ok yeah, I agree. Let’s go somewhere else.”

Jen came up and stood beside Mary, opposite of Sam. “My dear, you live and breathe once again! We must celebrate!”

“Jennifer, we are most definitely not celebrating in one of the ways you like to celebrate.”

Jen laughed and leaned in front of Mary to look at Sam. “We. The way we like to celebrate.”

Triss grinned after them as they made for the exit, but didn't follow. Neither did Sándor. Mister Gargoyle watched them go, his small smile turning into a small frown when they passed him, his eyes locked on Mary.

“I can't see her anymore,” Black Blood Elen said.

Triss looked down at her. “Say what?”

“I am a spirit of death and the dead. I can see others who touch that realm.” She grinned up at her. “Why do you think I like vampires so much?”

“Didn't think you liked all vampires. Just Jacob ... and me, I guess.”

“Ha. Perhaps. But it is also because I can connect with vampires in a very real way. A physical way, if necessary. You are partly dead, after all.” Slowly, he handed Triss back the knife and book, grin unfading. “With ghosts, I can see them, where they move, where they flow, even when they hide out of my reach. I can't see her anymore. As far as I can tell, she is alive.”

“I guess that's as good a confirmation I can hope to get.”

“Indeed. Who is truly alive, when any scientist ultimately considers everyone to be robots, and slaves to determinism.”

Triss rolled her eyes. “Oh fuck off, you’re not a scientist, or a philosopher.”

Elen laughed, in that quiet granny way. “True. She’s alive, and we will be hard pressed to prove otherwise.”

Sándor joined them, glancing back over his shoulder to the curve of the cave entrance, now that everyone else was gone.

“Can you tell?” Triss asked.

“No. I will be able to tell if she dreams, but vampires dream as well. Are they alive?”

She shrugged. “No fucking clue.”

“Then I consider this a success.” Elen chuckled again. Chuckled turned into a gargling mess, and black ooze poured out of her mouth. The black mist in the cave grew denser, and more of the ooze poured out of her from her other orifices. Eventually the black blood coated the floor, and oozed along the walls and ceiling again. Elen was no longer possessed.

“I...” Sighing, Triss kicked at the floor a few times, and paced around for a half minute. Fuck, she had say it. Really didn’t want to, but she knew she did. “Thank you, Black Blood. Sam’s lost so damn much. It’s nice to give her back a piece of it. A damn big piece.”

The blackness around them rumbled with a chuckle.

“That’s a mighty fine thank you, little pardner.”

Oh god. She rolled her eyes again and flipped her middle finger up at the whole cave. “Yeah yeah.”

“And I look forward to Samantha’s continued pursuits of the dark arts.”

“I—wait. You think Sam’s going to join the Circle?”

“I do indeed. She’s got the itch now, after seeing what it can do.”

“Did you fucking help us knowing that?”

The darkness chuckled again. “A little.”

Triss would punch the fucker in the face if she could.

“Please leave her alone.”

“I reckon she’ll come to me, Triss. Or Jacob. And besides, you don’t think Samantha fits in the Circle?”

“I think she does, maybe a little too well. And I think she’d probably live a happier second life if she stayed the fuck away from the Circle.”

Again the darkness laughed. “Maybe. Maybe. But witches don’t become witches easily, Beatrice. Something drives them. And you know Sam has the fuel for that fire.”

Before she could snap back and tell him to leave Sam the fuck alone again, the blackness disappeared. The mist seeped into the walls, the black ooze vanished into the cracks in the stone, and the heavy presence of death incarnate went with it. Elen slumped, exhausted, and probably asleep.

“Yeah you better run!” She threw up her hands, stomped once, paced a couple times more, and groaned. Okay, yeah, Black Blood taking an interest in Samantha was not good, but it wasn’t like Sam wasn’t neck deep in witch shit all the time. For three months she got to see the darkest, most horrible shit humanity had to offer, and then watch Triss and Jen kill that person. She watched them drag the body back to the cave, and with Elen’s flesh magic, dismantle the body like it was nothing more than a bunch of parts attached at the joints.

Much as it sucked, Black Blood was right.

Sándor took a step closer to her. His frown hadn't left.

“What's on your mind, Mister Stone?”

Even the hilarious and perfect nickname didn't change his expression in the slightest.

“Nothing.”

“Uh huh. This is about Mary, right? I mean, there's no way we could have done that without Mary's soul floating around.” She gestured to Julias. “I have no idea what to do with him. Yet.” She gestured to Sándor, too. “How about you? This shit works. We got proof. Maybe you want to revive the people closest to you.”

His frown remained, and instead of looking at her, he looked back to the cave exit.

“I ... don't know.”

“Ch'yeah, I get that. It's pretty fucked up,” she said, gesturing to the pile of bodies in the back.

The man looked behind him at the bodies, then Triss, then back to the exit.

“I guess I'm not convinced yet.”

“We really only killed people who deserved it, Sándor.”

“Not that. I mean that it worked.”

“Oh. I ... fuck, I don’t know. She’s walking and talking and smiling. Crying. She remembers everything that’s happened to her, and she’s acting a lot more like a normal person instead of a psycho ghost. What more could anyone ask for?”

He nodded, expression softening a little as he looked down, thinking.

“I agree.”

“Then what’s the problem?”

“I don’t know, but I don’t feel ... I don’t know.”

That was fucking unnerving. It’d be easy to chalk it up to the dude just being wary and shit, which made perfect sense, ‘cause she was, too. But Sándor was ancient, nearly as old as the Prince as far as he knew. His instincts meant something.

“Let’s keep an eye on her then.”

“Agreed.”

“And ... let’s be happy for Sam, ok? Christ, did you see the look on her face?”

“I did.” He met her eyes for a second time before looking away. A second was enough. If something happened to Mary now, it’d only make things a thousand times worse for Sam.

Triss scooped up Elen’s cuffs, and put them back on the old bitch. But before she could hang the immortal witch from the hook again, Elen opened her eyes.

“Resurrection,” she said.

Triss froze, and stared the old woman in the eyes. “What about it?”

“Long have witches such as I sought for a way to revive the dead. Hundreds, thousands of years. Perhaps you’ve finally done it. If you succeeded, please write it in the book.”

This fucking bitch. Triss didn’t know if it was her age and failing mind that had her focused on her book, or if Elen had been so obsessed in life that her magic was the only thing that mattered to her. Either way, it was pretty fucking annoying, having the old hag make a request like that, considering she was a prisoner and never getting out.

And yet, Triss nodded anyway.

“Okay.”

If she succeeded. The first witch to ever successfully complete a resurrection.

Fuck.

---

She really wished Sándor came, if only to see the look on Jack’s face.

“M ... Mary?” Jack took a step back, making both his crows flutter in surprise on his shoulders. But he didn’t fall, half because one of his thralls got behind him and caught his weight.

“Jack.” Mary grinned, and looked around at the big front door of his mansion. “This place is ... wow! Can I come in?”

Jack stared at her, green eyes wide in that way Sam sometimes did. Total shock. Triss couldn’t help but laugh.

“Um ... sure?” Jack, dressed in dark suit pants and a white shirt, suit jacket and tie nowhere to be seen, motioned for them to come in. They did. Each step had Triss and Jen laughing, Sam and Mary smiling, and the thrall — Veronica — staring. Jack took a couple steps back, still staring.

A second later, Veronica had her phone out. Three seconds later, the other two thralls came running from the second floor, and they gasped as they stared down from the top of the stairs, half behind the railings.

“Jack, you dumbass, stop running.” Giggling, Mary walked up to her brother and held out her arms.

It took a second for the reality to sink in, but once it did, Jack made a small finger gesture to the nearby railing at the bottom of the big stairs. His two crows flew over to the railings, each taking a post opposite each other, and both crows stared at Mary, too. Lot of staring.

Jack didn't recoil when Mary hugged him. Hell, if anything, the kid hugged her a little tighter than was probably normal for him, and Samantha let out a weak sob as she came up and hugged them both at the same time.

Jack snapped to attention, pulled back, and looked to Triss as his eyes shifted from shock, to confusion, to worry.

“Does this mean—”

“Julias is still out of my reach,” she said. “And ... and could be, for a long time. I put that on hold, cause your sister was around and your mom deserved help first.”

“God, I ... I—” The air got knocked out of him as Mary hugged him again, his mom too. But he managed to keep looking at Triss, and the shock in his eyes melted away to something Triss rarely got to see on the kid. Joy.

Chapter 162

~~Jack~~

He sat down on his stairs, close to the left side near Mulder. But once he was settled, Mulder hopped down on his shoulder, and Scully joined him on his other shoulder again. He almost told them to get back up on the railings, but based on their reactions, they wanted to be close to him while he had this conversation. They were picking up on how freaked he was.

“I can’t believe you’re alive.”

Mary smiled her usual, big smile, and sat down in the middle of the stairs, almost close enough to touch him.

“Only happened an hour ago. We snuck into a store to get me some clothes before coming here.” She gestured down at herself, and the jeans and t-shirt.

His mom sat down on the stairs too, beside Mary, and she made sure to sit close enough their hips were touching.

“She’s alive,” his mom said. “She has a pulse. She breathes! And she remembers everything.”

“You do?” Jack asked. No point in trying to hide his shock anymore, so he just stared at his sister, wide-eyed and frozen.

“Yeap. I remember all the times you guys visited me at home. I remember ... being a ghost. I remember how crazy it was, and how hard it was to control my thoughts and actions. I remember you,” she pointed at Jack, “being mean about who I was and what was going to happen to me.”

“I ... I ... was just trying to be realistic.”

Mary laughed and shrugged. “I know. You’re an asshole, Jack. I appreciate that.”

Damn, it really was her. Same mannerisms. Same cheeriness he saw in his mom before Mary died, and often found in Fiona. Bubbly. Excitable.

“Jack is an asshole,” Triss said. She grinned at him as she leaned back against the closed mansion doors, Jen beside her wearing the same proud grin.

“I am not...” He threw up his hands. “That doesn’t matter! What happened? How ... How!?”

Mary and his mom looked to Beatrice, and the Nosferatu shrugged and pushed off the doors to come closer.

“You probably know I’ve been up to some nasty shit for a while.”

Jack forced himself to tear his eyes off Mary and looked at Triss. “Yeah, but it’s not like you’ve been stepping on any toes or doing something horrible. Not horrible by Kindred standards, at least. Right?”

“Right.” Thank god she didn’t wince when she said it. “But things did get pretty bloody and gruesome. Took time, but we got a body ready with Black Blood’s help.”

Of course, Black Blood. Jack winced and sucked in a breath between his teeth.

“You really have to work with him?”

“Yeah. I know you got a thing against him, Jack, but he hasn’t done wrong by you. Last I checked, he saved you from Angela and Jeremiah. Twice.” She held up two fingers. “Besides. It’s not like we trust him completely. Fucker has his own agenda for sure, but for now, he’s willing to help us with this.” Before Jack could respond, her two fingers turned into an open palm, silencing him. “We finally got everything finished tonight, and Mary slipped into the body. Bam. Puzzle pieces, clicking together.”

Jack groaned as he processed the info bomb. “I ... guess that’s...” It took a second, but he wiped the bad thoughts away and flicked himself in the chin hard enough to jolt his brain out of negative spiral. “I shouldn’t judge what you did. Stupid of me.”

“We’ve been through Hell together, Jack. You don’t think I’m being careful about this?”

“She is, Jack,” his mom said. “And ... And look!” She squealed, causing both crows to flutter their wings in surprise, as she hugged Mary again, earning a squeak from her. “She’s alive!”

“Alive!” Mary hugged their mom back, and the two of them rested their heads against each other’s. “Oh my god I’m alive. And every thing’s so different, I—” She slowly turned her head and looked up the stairs. Oh shit, Veronica, Leilani, and Rachel were poking their heads out from the wall down the hall on the second floor, where the railing connected. “Jack?”

“They’re my thralls.”

“You built a harem.”

“It’s not a harem!”

“Jack my dear,” Jen said, grin turning absolutely evil. Just like Elaine. “Of course it’s a harem.”

“It’s ... none of your business. And—” A giggle from above. He snapped his head up and shot a glare at his three thralls, and they squeaked and disappeared. “Okay, Mary. I assume Mom has been filling you in on a lot more than she probably should, about the Masquerade?”

Mary nodded. “You mean the secret nightlife stuff? Yeap.”

“Ok, good. I mean, I want to be happy and hug you and take you out to celebrate, but—”

“But you want to make sure that a, uh, ‘kine’,” she air-quoted kine, “isn’t running around Dolareido breaking the Masquerade, and getting you in trouble, or worse, getting us all killed.”

Jack leaned forward and looked past Mary at his mom. She whistled and looked away, which was actually a little weird. Yeah sure, his mom was brimming with energy and joy to the point she looked like she’d explode, but the whistling and looking away was silly behavior made her seem younger. Much as the whole situation with Mary could be connected, he got the feeling her relationship with Jacob had something to do with the change in her behavior.

The idea of Jacob making his mom behave like a young woman felt really fucking weird. But, she was smiling.

“Mom. Did you tell her absolutely everything?”

“Not absolutely everything! But ... a lot.”

Jack groaned and ran his fingers over his buzzed scalp. “Ok, I guess that saves us the trouble of explaining the Masquerade and everything it contains.”

Mary’s grin was quickly mirroring Jen’s. “Yeap.”

“Okay okay. I ... I don’t know what to do, honestly. We don’t let kine go around knowing about paranormals unless they’re bound to someone by the Vinculum.”

“That won’t happen.” His mom stood up and looked down at him, balancing happy and stern on her face. “After everything that’s happened, Mary—”

“It’s not about Mary, Mom. It’s about the Masquerade and the hundreds of vampires it protects in this city alone.”

Triss waved her hands through the air a couple times, like steering a landing plane. “Dude, she knows what’ll happen if she opens her mouth. After all the shit that’s happened, I’m pretty sure we can trust her to not go talking about vamps.”

That was true. As dangerous as it was to have a kine going around free without a leash of some kind, Mary had been neck deep in the worst the paranormal world had to offer.

Sighing, Jack waved a placating hand. “You’re right, you’re right. But what about ... you know, life stuff? Mary was pronounced dead. Her body’s buried in a graveyard. The only way she can go back to living a normal life is if she gets a new identity.”

Mary frowned as she looked down and rubbed her palms on her knees. “A new identity probably wouldn’t be enough. People knew me. If I ran into someone who knew me, it’d be ... like that time I ran into Jack.”

Jack winced again. Wiping the memory of his encounter with his sister from her mind, only for her to find it again as a ghost, had sucked. He’d apologized to her, but she’d been a pretty damn angry ghost at the time, and had smashed him halfway through a wall.

“Then you have few options,” Jennifer said. “You can either leave Dolareido and start a new life elsewhere.”

“I don’t want to leave Mom.”

“Or you can stay here and become a Kindred. There will still be the threat of being found out by people you once knew, but you will be able to manage them.”

Jack, Mary, and their mom all exchanged glances.

“You’re ... not going to yell no, Jack?” their mom asked.

“I want to. But I’m a vampire, and you’re a vampire. Mary knows exactly what she’d be getting into if she agreed.” And try as he might to find a better way out of the situation, he couldn’t. His mom wouldn’t let Mary go, not now after she’d just gotten her back. But it wasn’t a good idea for a young vampire to leave the city, even with their mom; sunlight was a bitch. And if she got a new identity in the city, while still having to live a normal life, it drastically increased her chance of getting found out.

It wasn’t like vampires didn’t have this problem. Jack avoided the firm he used to intern at. He avoided the school he’d been going to before that. He avoided the neighborhood he used to live in. And thankfully, as a vampire, his skin was paler and tighter, making him look different than he used to in general. Plus, he didn’t exactly have a large ring of friends.

Mary didn’t have to become a vampire to live that life, but it’d be much easier as a vampire. Ventrue could wipe people’s memories. Mekhet and Nosferatu were natural at Obfuscate and its child Disciplines like Cloak of Night and Face in the Crowd. Gangrels and Daeva weren’t exactly good at hiding, but they could use Obfuscate too if they had to, and Daeva could turn people into doting slaves if the circumstance called for it. A human couldn’t do any of that. Plus, the superhuman strength and speed went a long way, when vamps needed to clean up a mess.

Mary raised a hand triumphantly. “I think—”

“I think,” Jack said, and he lowered her hand with his, “that you should think about it. If you wanted to stay human, we could make it work. If you wanted to become a vampire like Mom and me, we could make it work, if we can find you a sire.”

“I thought Mom—”

“Mom is about a year embraced. Siring isn’t easy, for a bunch of reasons. She shouldn’t be embracing anyone. And I can’t, not with this curse in me.”

“I would, if I had to,” his mom said, leaning forward and putting her elbows on her knees so she could look past Mary and back at him. “If no one else will, I will. I don’t care how hard it is.”

“You’ll care if Antoinette does. She’s Prince. Just because she’s your sire doesn’t mean she’ll give you a pass if you embrace someone without her permission.”

“She certainly didn’t for mine,” Triss said, shrugging.

With a purposefully loud sigh, Jack shook his head and dismissed everything with a wave of the hand. “Please, no one commit to anything yet. Let’s just ... just be happy for the moment. Mary’s alive.” He poked her shoulder for good measure. She poked him back. Instant smiles.”And she can keep it that way for a good long while. I’m sure Antoinette will let you stay in the Elysium Tower, and you’ll have access to anything you want.”

“Good idea,” their mom said. “We should go back to her place, and relax. It’s safe there.”

Relax. Jack smiled at her and nodded, and she returned it, her eyes giving him a tiny hint of the shit she’d been through lately, before she looked away. Hell. She’d gone through Hell, since Mary died, and had been stuck there this whole time, working with Triss and Jen, and Black Blood, to get her back.

And Jack was getting in the way of her happiness with unwanted doses of reality. Well, reality could wait, at least for a night.

Jack raised a finger. “So, uh, we going to Antoinette’s first? Or did you want to see Jacob, Mom?” That, was a question he thought he’d never ask. Felt gross in his mouth.

“I’ll send him a message.”

---

Sure enough, there he was. It was a strange thing, Jacob having a smartphone. It was easy to think of Antoinette and Elaine, and even Daniel, using smartphones, considering how much they relied on technology. The witches didn’t give two shits about technology, though.

But Jacob was, as always, a fucking weird guy. He sat there on one of the stone benches, dressed in a burgundy suit and a burgundy tie, complete with black sunglasses that hid his eyes. He looked really good in it, honestly, and filthy rich. Jack bet the dude was filthy rich, and probably never touched a dime of it, except on ridiculously expensive suits no one else would be able to pull off.

The man stood up as they approached, smile growing as he saw Jack’s mom, before vanishing as he saw Mary.

“Clarice! Long time no see. And Samantha! And who is...” He sucked in a breath as he came closer. “Is that ... Casper?”

Casper? What the fuck? Jack folded his arms over his chest and glared at Jacob, but before he could say anything, his mom ran past Jack, and threw herself at him, full on hard enough to knock him over if he hadn’t been expecting it. But Jacob stood his ground and caught her, and wrapped his arms around her as she buried her face in his neck.

“It’s Mary!” she said, voice muffled by the Nosferatu’s suit’s shoulder.

Jacob looked — pointed his head anyway — at Jack, and then at Beatrice and Jennifer as they rounded the corner.

The group of them were standing at the entrance of the hedge maze, one of them anyway, where it opened up to the front of the Elysium Tower. While the tower itself was Antoinette’s private home, the whole area was considered an Elysium zone: no violence of any kind allowed, to Kindred or kine. In the maze, maybe half a dozen young Kindred hung out, usually. Jack didn’t sense any right now, but they could have simply been suppressing their presence. Or they’d bailed when they realized one of the most powerful Kindred around for dozens, probably hundreds of miles, was only a couple hundred feet away. Which meant the group had some privacy.

Mary came forward, and she looked Jacob up and down a couple times. Yeah, that probably happened with everyone the first time they saw Jacob.

“Mary,” their mom said, once she let the man go, “this is Jacob. Jacob, this is Mary.”

Jacob again looked at the group of them, before he finally settled his hidden gaze on Mary, and held out his hand.

“Well holy shit. You look great, kid.”

Mary smiled and shook his hand, leaning back and forth slightly as she brimmed with energy.

“I feel great! It’s amazing, having a body again. You have no idea what it’s like to just ... float.”

“That I don’t.” Jacob walked around Mary, and looked her up and down a few times, too. Mary posed, no hesitation at all. “I can’t believe it.”

“Believe it,” Triss said. “We went through Hell to make it work, and it only worked cause Mary was still hanging around and—and stop looking at your girlfriend’s daughter like a piece of meat.”

“She is not meat!” Jacob threw up both hands. “She is a living wonder! And a precious gift.” Big smile returned, Jacob walked up to Triss, and hugged her, hard.

“Boss, don’t hu—urk!”

Well, dude was an ancient elder. If he wanted to squeeze Triss hard enough to pop her like a balloon, he could. He nearly did.

“Can’t believe you did it,” he said. He gave her a few more squeezes, the last one pulling a tiny very-not-Beatrice squeak from her, before he put her down. Then he aimed his sunglasses at Jen. “And you—”

“Observed. I don’t deserve hugs.” Jen put up her hands and stepped back. Twice.

Mary giggled, and so did her mom. Contagious laughter. If Fiona had been there, they’d probably have triggered an unending laughter train that’d kill anyone who needed oxygen.

“Sorry honey,” his mom said to Mary. “Jacob is a little eccentric.”

“Putting it mildly,” Jack said, rolling his eyes. “I’m surprised we’re meeting here.”

His mom nodded to the tower. “I didn’t tell Jacob why. I wanted to surprise him. But I also wanted to get Mary somewhere safe.”

Safe was a good idea. There weren't any hunters anymore, save for the three that were getting along with Dolareido's paranormal world. And the Carthians and Invictus were getting along again. The only dangers Jack was worried about, were Jacob and Black Blood, and they were big dangers. Black Blood was part of the reason Mary was alive again, and Jacob was standing right there in front of him. And Jack was the only person in the group who knew Jacob might be someone he'd have to confront in the future. It made it damn difficult to look at the man, and let him be so close to Mary.

"You came without knowing why?" Jack asked.

Laughing all the merrier, Jacob came over to him and clapped him on the shoulder.

"Samantha asked me to. What, Antoinette wouldn't go somewhere you asked her to go?"

It took effort to not wince at the comparison. A lot of effort. Jacob knew Jack didn't like thinking about him with his mom, and comparing their relationship to his with Antoinette really hit that nerve. Worse, the bastard winked at him. Hard to see considering he was wearing sunglasses, but the eyebrow and cheek muscles moved enough.

"If she wasn't busy."

"Well, I wasn't busy. And I'm glad I wasn't. Holy shit I never thought Triss would actually do it. I never thought ... well, fuck me. Shows you what I know. Figured an old man my age would learn to never assume." He came back over to Mary and Sam, and clapped once. "We need to celebrate!"

"We need," Jack said, "to give Mary a break."

His mom sighed, but nodded, and gently touched Jacob's chest once. That was an intimate touch, a knowing touch, and Jack ground his teeth into powder. Silently.

“Jack’s right, that’s why we came here. My sire needs to know, but we also want a quiet, safe place for Mary to recover.”

Triss stepped in beside her. “And because, as much as we’re all happy as shit, we’re not stupid. Keep expectations realistic, right?” She elbowed Jack’s mom in the side, gently, but enough to make her oof. “Something could still go wrong. Everything seems good, but the fuck do we know, right? Something could still go bad.”

“Way to jinx it!” Jacob shoved her in the shoulder. “Come on! She’s breathing. She has a pulse. Looks like she remembers things, right?” Mary nodded. “Then—”

“No,” Jack said. Maybe a little harder than he meant to, because everyone looked at him, faces serious. “Beatrice is right. Everything is great so far, and I’m damn happy Mary’s alive. But we can’t assume it’s a perfect, happy ending for all quite yet. Realistic expectations.”

His mom looked like she was about to say something, but sighed and nodded as she lowered her head. Before Jack could say something, Jacob came in beside her and hugged her with one arm.

“You are one cold knife to the gut, Jack,” Jacob said.

“I’m just—”

“I know, being realistic.” The elder smiled at him, even as he rubbed his mom’s arm. “The world needs realists. Keeps the rest of us from jumping off cliffs, thinking we can fly.”

“That’s my brother.” Mary laughed again as she gave Jack a gentle punch in the shoulder. “I don’t know anything about anything, but if this doesn’t last, well at least I got to hug my mom again. And you.”

And again, before Jack could say anything, Mary swooped in and hugged him.

---

“Young Miss Terry?” Antoinette asked.

Mary nodded, hands at her sides and plucking idly at her t-shirt hem. “Me.”

Antoinette sat upright at her desk, red eyes a fair bit wider than Jack was used to. Shock. He knew the feeling.

“My men were wondering why Jacob stood at the base of my tower, and yet did not come to see me.”

“That was me,” Jack’s mom said, and she raised a hand. “We wanted to get here fast, so we could put Mary somewhere safe, but I also wanted to see Jacob.”

“Understandable. I assume he was quite surprised to see your daughter alive.”

“He was!” Sam giggled and gestured to her daughter beside her. “It worked! Can you believe it?”

“I ... do find it difficult to believe. But I am beyond glad. Terrified, perhaps, but beyond glad. I am sure you must have had access to powerful tools to achieve such a feat.”

Powerful tools? Jack raised a brow and looked beside him at his mom and sis. They both squirmed.

“Beatrice and Jennifer did not join us, I see,” Antoinette continued.

“No, sire. They figured we’d want some quiet time, just the two of us. And ... I’m pretty sure they’re afraid of you.”

The Prince grinned. “As it should be.”

Slowly, Antoinette pushed herself up to her feet. Ghost Mary had seen Antoinette before, but she still quivered a little at the sight of her. No two ways about it, Antoinette was very tall, and the white hair and red eyes were intimidating as hell. Combined with the black suit and skirt that looked like they cost as much as a car, Mary seemed a bit overwhelmed.

“I have to admit,” Antoinette said, “this is unprecedented.”

“That’s part of the reason we’re here,” Jack said. “It’s safe here, in case things go ... wrong.”

“Wrong, my love?”

“Yeah. Like, this happened only a bit ago. We don’t know what might happen.”

“Your son is forever the pragmatist,” Antoinette said, grinning at his mom, before grinning at him. Cute, making him look like the cold voice of reason in all this, when Antoinette was the colder one when it came to it.

“Yeap,” his mom said, aiming her own grin at Jack. “Jacob said the same thing.”

Jack rolled his eyes. “We thought maybe you could check and see if Mary’s ok, too? Like, with your dragon tools and stuff.”

“You would like me to prove that Mary Terry is alive and well.”

“I mean yeah, if it’s possible.”

Antoinette set a hand on Mary’s shoulder, and looked down at her with a serious gaze.

“I am sorry, but I can do no such thing. At least, not in regards to whether Mary is truly alive in the sense of the soul and self.”

“You can’t?” their mom asked.

“Non. And while I cannot discuss the fine details of my work in front of Mary, or Jack for that matter, I feel comfortable enough explaining this. My machine cannot pierce into the inner chamber where the soul resides. I am afraid the best you could hope for, is to ask a Begotten to monitor her dreams, should she have any.”

“We thought of that,” Samantha said, “but Sándor says he can’t, uh, reach the soul.”

“But he will be able to tell if she dreams, non?”

“Yeah, I believe so.”

“Any entity with a brain can dream in some form or another, but the dreams of someone with a soul should be quite distinct versus those without, to a Begotten, I imagine. After the ball, we should arrange such a test. Though, I do think that with Mary’s current state, we can currently ask the most basic, and perhaps most powerful question, as a test.” She looked down at Mary, and his poor sister quaked. “Do you feel alive, Mary?”

They all looked at her.

“Do I feel alive?”

“Oui. Do you feel alive? A ... je ne sais quois. A feeling. A kernel of awareness and desire inside you, something hidden inside emotions.”

Jack raised a hand. Well, this did suddenly feel like class.

“Emotions aren’t enough?”

“Non. Emotions can be found in anything with a brain developed enough to respond to chemicals and stimulus, same as dreams. But a soul? We know it exists. We know it affects us. But to understand it, quantify it, and measure its effects? It is how we know we are more than robots simply responding to stimulus or following processes and routines, and yet, we cannot define how we know.” She nodded as she tapped a finger on her chin. “One of the many areas of study in the Ordo.”

Jack nodded as his eyes drifted away. That made sense. The debate about whether people were sentient, or self aware, or had souls, it was all still-running debate among philosophers and scientists alike. Determinism and the nature of a soul seemed to disagree with each other, but at the same time, it was hard to dismiss that Jack felt like he had a soul, some sort of hidden spark inside him that was impossible to define or quantify. And considering the crazy shit Jack got to see in his four years of being a vampire, crazy shit even by vampire standards, he was pretty confident souls were a thing.

“I ... think I do?” Mary said. “I’ve never really thought about it before.”

“I would like to say you would know instantly, but I have no way to know such a thing. Take your time, child of my childe.” Antoinette softened her smile, and gestured to the door. “Explore the tower as you wish. There are many rooms where the contents are sensitive, but they will be locked. You need not worry, so wander freely.”

“Thank you! I uh, was kinda worried you’d lock me in a box, to keep an eye on me.”

Jack grinned. “Or do experiments on her.”

Her own grin slowly turning sly, Antoinette walked over to him, leaned down, and kissed him. Deeply. Jack blinked at her when she pulled away, and then at Mary, who kept glancing his way with wide, surprised, sheepish eyes.

“I would never do experiments on someone so precious to my own childe.”

Jack chuckled and rubbed his head. Conveniently, Antoinette didn't say she wouldn't do it, just not to him and his family. And she said it knowing they'd pick up on it. Crafty.

His mom spoke next. “Mary and I are free for the rest of the night, then?”

“Indeed. Go, celebrate. This is truly a wondrous occasion. Perhaps in the future I will implore you let me examine Mary in detail, but nothing serious, and it can wait. If you decide to go out into the night, remember that she still looks exactly as she did as kine. Be careful and remember the Masquerade. I trust your discretion.”

The two girls cheered, literally, and made for the door. But before they got out of the office, their mom turned around.

“Jack, you want to come too?”

Jack took a moment thinking about it. The look in his mom's eyes was so full of joy, it was almost overwhelming. Mary met his eyes too, and unlike his mom, she knew Jack well enough to know he really wouldn't like getting dragged around playing tour guide, not with the two of them bubbling with excitement and chatting nonstop. No judgment, it just wasn't his thing. Well, maybe a little judgment between brother and sister, him judging her chatty ways and her judging his hermit ways.

Back to old habits between the two of them. That made him smile more than anything that'd happened tonight.

“No, you two hang out and have fun. I know you’re dying to.” He winced. Fuck, that was a poor choice of words. “I’ll catch up with you later, Mary.”

“You sure, Jack?”

“Yeah. Go crazy. Mom’s a millionaire now, or near it. She’ll buy you stuff.”

“Oh my god she is!” Mary hugged their mom around the shoulders and dragged her out with her excitement meter cranked to eleven. “I want ice cream! And then shoes!”

Jack and Antoinette looked at each other and waited until the door closed. A soundproof room meant they couldn’t hear the elevator ding, but they waited anyway until they were confident Mary and his mom were on the way down.

“Jack,” Antoinette said, and she motioned to the chair in front of her desk.

Jack sighed heavy as he sat in it, and Antoinette sat on the other side of her desk, waiting. She knew he’d want to have this conversation, and she was happy to wait for him to get to it. The Prince was too damn smart.

“I’m terrified,” he said after a bit.

Antoinette sighed, mimicking him as she leaned back in her chair. “Understandable.”

“Yeah?”

“Of course. Your dead sister is alive once again. The implications alone are massive. I will not be able to keep this secret, and can guarantee witches and dragons from other cities will come to see your sister. Her life will be in danger, as others will be tempted to wisp her away for their own experiments.”

Jack stared at her, until he knew his mouth was hanging open. “I meant because she seems to be alive, but might not be! She might just be a body walking around with a ghost possessing her.”

“Ah yes, that.”

He threw up his hands. “I hadn’t even considered all that other stuff!”

“I will handle that element of the problem. Dolareido is my city, and while I am embarrassed with the sheer chaos that it has suffered these past few years, be under no illusion. I control my city.” She tapped a finger against the table a couple times.

“Hey you don’t need to convince me. I know you let Garry and Michael bash heads. You could have stopped them.”

She grinned. As powerful and deadly and ancient as Antoinette was, even she wasn’t completely immune to an ego stroke.

“I could have. At great cost, but I could have. My point is not to boast, my love. What I meant, is that I have control of this city in ways not even the Invictus understand. Were it not for Jeremiah and Elen and the magical abilities they brought with them, I would have easily crushed their invasion. I can keep your sister safe from outside threats.”

Jack winced and looked down. “Right, Elen. You think ... she was involved in Mary’s resurrection.”

“Undoubtedly. Your mother stole Elen’s knife and book from my many artifacts.”

“What!?”

Antoinette put up a settling hand. “Beatrice is not stupid, Jack. She asked your mother to steal the items, so she could pursue resurrection to help your mother, and herself. I am sure that was partly because she was afraid I would say no, if she or Samantha asked me directly. But, perhaps even unknown to Beatrice herself, she wanted to know if your mother had the commitment to follow this dark road to its end.”

“Well, damn. I can’t believe ... Holy shit.”

“It is worse than that. Beatrice and your mother paved that road with corpses, though with your connections in the Invictus, I expect you suspected.”

Jack sucked in a breath through his teeth and looked to the side. “I mean, a little. Invictus get reports of kine deaths that are strange, or people who go missing that fit that ‘nobody will miss them’ bill. There’s been more of them than usual, the past few months.”

“Indeed.”

“And Mom, she ... she’s changing. A lot. Faster than I can even understand.”

“You suspect the witches are responsible?”

“A little. I mostly blame Angela.” And like someone cracked a whip along his back, pain shot up his spine and into his skull. “But, yeah, knowing Mom’s been involved with murdering kine — shit kine, but still — and getting involved in witch business, is terrifying. Mom isn’t hard enough to ... well, I guess I was wrong about that.”

Antoinette smiled at him. “I had thought that with everything that has happened, you would understand that your mother is resilient.”

“I do. She’s also sensitive.”

“And you are not?”

Jack squinted at her. Too damn smart.

“I am, too, but I’ve gotten pretty good at putting a wall between me and other people. She hasn’t.”

“Which makes her resilience all the more amazing. She marched through the valley of death, and felt every horrible thing she did, all so she could give her daughter a second chance at life.”

Another whip crack on Jack’s back.

“Fuck, I am so fucking terrified, Antoinette. Mom’s so deep in with this witch shit, and ... and she’s so fucking happy! So fucking happy, that all I can do is think about what’ll happen if she loses Mary again.”

“Then it is a good thing her mother’s sire is the Prince, and her brother is a powerful Invictus. Assuming Beatrice’s ritual is a true success, Mary will be safe from outside influence.”

There was that. He could see things from his mom’s perspective easily enough, that Mary was her daughter and their mom could protect her. It was as blind and stupid a belief as when a mom holds their arm out to stop their kid from going forward in their car seat when about to collide with another car. An instinct that wouldn’t do jack shit in the modern world. But, with a Prince’s resources and Jack’s resources helping her, it was a lot more doable.

Until it wouldn’t be.

“I know Mom is going to ask if someone can sire Mary.”

Antoinette nodded slowly as she let her eyes drift. “Indeed, and such a thing is not uncommon for family members who become vampires.”

“I wanted my family to grow old and live normal lives. Neither of them are cut out for the Masquerade. Or ... Or at least I didn't think they were.”

“Julias sired you because he knew your tenacity would ensure you would deal with your second life and carry its burdens no matter what. But not all Kindred who succeed do so because the skills they had in their first life translate well. Many rise to the occasion, a painful and horrible experience, but a defining one. Nosferatu are almost always embraced this way.”

“A lot of Nos are unstable, hateful, and suicidal.”

“That is true. I do not make these points to disagree with you, Jack. I make them, because I wish for you to understand that people change, and can adapt. Your mother has been a prime example.” Before he could say anything about his mom and her happy nature, she put up a hand. “Finding a sire for Mary is not something to be rushed. Spend time with her, and speak with her about it. There are ways she can continue her life as kine, if need be, but I suspect your sister will follow in your footsteps.”

“And be the first Terry to become a vampire willingly.”

Sighing, Antoinette shook her head. “I did not realize you hated your second life so much.”

“You know that's not true. I wouldn't have met you otherwise, and that makes all the Hell worth it.” He smiled at her, and she smiled back. “But, there has been Hell, and a part of me would be much happier knowing Mary wasn't involved in any of this. Maybe get her into another city with a new identity and a fat wallet. Away from me, away from the curse, away from the Masquerade and the Danse Macabre. Away from hunters and monsters and ghosts and —”

“Jack. Those elements exist in other cities. She may go through life without them finding her. She may not. But no matter what happens, she will be well aware of them now. Unless you know a Ventrue strong enough to completely remove months of her memories, memories forged as a being of ephemeral matter?”

“I ... don't.” Ripping out specific memories was one thing. Wiping out entire months? Not a chance. And he had no idea if he could even try, since she'd made the memories as a ghost.

“No matter what happens, your sister is now intimately familiar with the world of darkness. She will notice it, whether she wishes to or not. And vampires notice when others notice.”

Shit. Shit shit.

“It's just ... she's alive, you know? Alive, I think. And I want to keep that going, if only for Mom's sake. You saw the look on her face.”

“I did indeed. I have never seen her so happy. And while I am sure she carries some concerns over the ritual, and the nagging fear that her daughter's resurrection was not entirely successful, she is happy.”

Jack looked up as he ran a hand over his head. “I still can't believe it.”

“Neither can I, little Ventrue. Neither can I.”

---

~~Natasha~~

“Oh my g-g-g—”

“Everyone says that.” Samantha smiled so bright, Tash feared everyone in the room would burst into ashes. She stood beside her apparently very alive daughter, arm behind her and hugging her tight. And Mary smiled in the same way, so bright it was dangerous.

“I d-don’t understand. I ... I knew Beatrice was—”

“You knew.” Samantha nodded sternly. “I’m sure every vampire in the city with, um, an ear to the ground, knew Beatrice was up to stuff, right?”

“That’s ... true.”

“We’re all super shocked,” Mary said, holding on Tash’s gaze for as long as she could before looking up and around to drink in the sight of the tower. “Oh my god this place must have taken tens of millions of dollars to build!”

“It was the t-time to build,” Tash said, “that was the bigger problem for the Prince. It took decades.”

“I can imagine! It’s a giant underground palace!”

Well, maybe not the size of a giant palace, but it was a huge underground complex. Only someone who planned to live for hundreds of years would sink the time into building it.

“I ... I um, I d-don’t know how I should ... um ... Are you...”

The two women giggled. They had the gigglefits, as if they were drunk. Neither of them were.

“I’m alive!” Mary swung out both arms and came for her. Tash froze, not sure what was happening until Mary hugged her as tight as she could. They’d never met.

“I’m h-happy for you!”

Without missing a beat, Mary set her down and spun around a couple times like a ballerina. Unlike a ballerina, she tripped, but her mom caught her before the poor girl could smash open her head on the black marble. Vampire reflexes putting in quick work.

“Sorry Mom.” Mary bounced in place a couple times before tugging on her mom’s arm. “Show me all the clothes you bought!”

Samantha laughed and laughed, and directed Mary in a new direction, toward her room. Their conversation devolved into the typical stuff women — not Tash — talked about when they were so excited and joyful they fell into abject mindlessness: clothes. Whatever heavy conversation moments that would normally follow having your daughter get resurrected, it seemed the two had already had.

“Want to come, Natasha?” Mary asked, looking over her shoulder.

“Um, I don’t want to intrude. You two m-must have things you want to talk about.”

“Mom and I talked a lot when I was a ghost. And we’ll talk more tomorrow! And get ice cream. But I want to have fun right now, and meet Mom’s friends.”

Tash squirmed in place, but she knew she was smiling. “Okay.”

---

“You really think it’ll be a problem?” Mary asked. She was standing behind a changing screen, with both Samantha and Natasha sitting on a nearby couch. Samantha had her own room, and the Prince didn’t skimp on the extra bedrooms. It was huge, with a huge bed, walls and floors of Antoinette’s beloved black marble, and a giant walk-in closet where Mary perused her mom’s selection. Natasha and Samantha got to watch from nearby, with mother and daughter occasionally switching positions.

Under normal circumstances, Natasha would have found this clothes game silly and boring. But watching the two women overflow with happiness and practically bounce as they switched off and both tried on Samantha's clothes — they were similar size — was too heartwarming to not enjoy.

“I d-don't know about problem,” Natasha said, “but it will be something that needs to be done. The Masquerade is very important, and this situation is extremely ... extremely extremely unusual. W-When people learn about someone coming back from the dead, they'll come to investigate.”

Mary peeked around the screen. “But not when I was a ghost?”

“Ghosts are rare, b-but not so rare we haven't heard of them. There are people out there who d-dedicate themselves to dealing with ghosts, either because the ghost is hurting people, or ... b-because they want to help ghosts move on.” It only took a second to see the dismay cross Mary's face. Tash looked away. “But no one's ever heard of a resurrection.”

“Then they should read the bible.” The dismay vanished, and Mary giggled as she stepped out completely into view. “How about this?”

Samantha sat up straight with a jolt. “I don't think so! I won't have my daughter wearing that!”

“Mom, it's your dress!”

“I'm a vampire.”

“That doesn't mean you get special exceptions on how much skin you can show!”

“It's different when you're a vampire! It's normal.”

“Uh huh. I don't believe that.” Mary came closer, out of the giant closet, and did a little twirl in front of them.

It was a very revealing dress, black, with a skirt only just barely long enough to cover the ass and privates, and a single strap behind the neck to hold the flimsy chest somewhat in place. Mary had modest breasts like her mother, and that was good, because anything larger would be a liability in that dress.

“Samantha is p-partly right,” Tash said. “Vampires don’t worry about sex. Usually. It’s fun, a way to hunt, b-but it’s not as important to us as it used to be. Romantically, I mean.” Despite herself, Tash grinned. “B-But cuddly time is still as romantic as ever.”

“Tash gets two boys to cuddle with, at the same time,” Samantha said with a laugh. “She gets all the cuddles.”

Mary burst into even louder laughter as she disappeared behind the changing screen again. “You’re a lucky woman, Tash.”

So that was how Samantha wanted to play it? As Antoinette would say, en garde.

“W-Well, I mean, your mom has lots of people to cuddle with t-too. A lot lot.”

Mary, only halfway behind the screen, stepped back and blinked at Tash. “Um, what?”

“Natasha!” Samantha turned and gave Tash a begging look. “I haven’t told her everything.”

Uh oh.

“Um, f-f-forget I said anything.”

“Oh I don’t think so! I know Mom’s been having a healthy sex life with that Jacob man. And she’s right, he’s definitely got that terrifying but sexy, handsome older man thing going. But she hasn’t told me anything about other ... cuddles.” A second later, Mary came back out in her jeans and t-shirt again, yanked her mom off the couch with some effort, pushed her toward the closet, and sat beside Natasha. “Gimme the scoop!”

Tash gulped and looked to Samantha.

The Daeva shook her head. “Tash, don’t tell her a thing.”

Mary’s grin turned huge and evil. “Oh, so there is something to tell?”

“This is a classic case of do as I say, not as I do, advice from mother to daughter. So Tash, don’t tell her anything.”

“So Mom’s been having more fun than she’s told me about!” Giggling and half bouncing on the couch, Mary got back up, pushed her mom further toward the closet, and sat back down. “Mom, tell me! You told me Kindred have active sex lives. You were sparse about the details.” Oh thank god she was going to interrogate her mom, and not Tash. Tash would probably have cracked.

Samantha rolled her eyes and dug through the hanging dresses. The goal was to find something to wear when the two went out tomorrow night to find her daughter some clothes, but when Mary had found her mother’s rather revealing dresses among the others, the goal had naturally diverged. Despite Samantha’s efforts to keep it from doing so.

“Well excuse me for not wanting to talk about sex with my dead daughter!”

“So there is sex going on with these multi-person cuddles.”

Samantha groaned, and plucked a rather plain but elegant business suit with a skirt, and held it up against her body. “How about this?”

“Ugh, a suit?”

“You saw your brother. He wears half a suit even when he’s home alone.”

“I just figured that was ‘cause he has mansion, and has to keep up appearances or something.”

“Nope. He’s been seduced by the rich life now, and the life of titles and power. And I’m sure you will be too.” Nodding in that ‘mother knows best’ sort of way, Samantha disappeared behind the changing screen with the suit.

“Hey! Don’t change the topic! I want to know what my mother’s been up to!”

“Your mother is a responsible adult, who also can’t get pregnant or diseases.” Conveniently, she left out that if Mary slept with a vampire, neither of those things would apply in that scenario either.

“And Othello is r-ridiculously handsome,” Tash said. The words came out before she could stop them, and she snapped a hand up to her mouth, as if she could reverse time and stop the words from escaping.

“Natasha!” Samantha said, peeking out from behind the changing screen.

Mary looked at Tash like a hungry dog. “Othello!?”

Ah well, too late now. She’d find out who Othello was eventually.

“He’s a witch. W-Works for Jacob.”

“I know about him, but, what’s he look like?”

“Um, he’s average height, but really muscular. T-Tan skin. Long dark hair he’s had in dr-dreadlocks lately.”

“Sounds like a man you’d find on a romance novel cover. Milf finds romance in Hawaii!” Mary waved both hands high in the air, like she was dancing in the tropics.

Natasha burst into giggles. She couldn’t help it. As much as she felt for Samantha, who was probably dying of embarrassment over this, Mary was just too happy for Tash to not pick up on it. Was she always like this? Samantha had said her daughter was a happy girl, before she died, and Jack had confirmed. Jack had also said Samantha and Mary were similar. Fiona-lite, he’d called her. It was easy to see why.

“N-Not to ... ruin the fun,” Natasha said, “but have you thought about what you’re going to do? Not about p-people finding out about Mary, but that Mary’s ... alive. The ... personal stuff. What you w-want to do with your life now.”

Samantha came back out from behind the screen in her suit, smile only slightly damaged by Tash’s words. She posed, as if she was the woman in stock photos of the ‘woman in office’ category, and Mary golf clapped, subduing her bursting joy so she could tease her mother about her reserved choice of clothes. Tash had never been this comfortable with her family, way back when.

“We haven’t,” Samantha said. “She’s only been alive a few hours now. We thought we’d get here where it’s safe, and then we could talk about it.”

“But ... you’re n-not talking about it.”

Both women sighed, and Tash winced. Calling out the thing they were avoiding wasn’t very tactful of her. Jessy was rubbing off on her.

“It can’t wait a few hours?” Mary asked.

“Samantha and I will b-be asleep in a few hours, and won’t be up until sunset. And the P-Prince won’t let you leave until we know what your plans are.”

Samantha sat down on the couch beside Mary, opposite of Tash, and slipped an arm behind her daughter so she could rub her further arm.

“What do you want to do, Mary? I know Jack would want you to live a happy life as a human.”

Mary frowned and leaned into her mother. “Yeah. Asshole didn’t come get us when he got changed. Or, what’s the word? Embraced?”

“In his d-defense,” Tash said, “he wasn’t allowed. He didn’t have much power back then, politically. And the Prince hadn’t allowed siring back then either. When he finally got the power and p-position to do things like ask about siring, things were ... v-volatile.”

The hunters. The curse. Even the stupid azlu showing up. It hadn’t been an environment where Jack could sire, or get someone to sire his family. Convincing his family, or failing to convince them and siring them against their will, would have been problematic. Failing to convince them and then wiping their memories would have been horrible and traumatizing for him too, after what he’d done to Mary before.

Jack’s introduction into his second life hadn’t exactly been smooth, either. Stabbed. Killed a kine on his first night. Killed more Kindred. Fought a giant spider monster in the sewers. Only a moron would have wanted that for his family.

“She’s right,” Samantha said. “Dolareido’s calmed down a lot, but only recently. But that’s fine! You’re alive again, and now you can make a choice. And as much as Jack has a good point about how dangerous it is being a vampire, things are so much better now.

Antoinette does everything she can to keep the peace in Dolareido, and it's worked."

Mary leaned into her mom for a moment as she sighed, but it was a happy sigh.

"I don't know. But, a life as a vampire does sound like it could be a good life."

Samantha held her daughter's head and cradled it into her chest and shoulder, and looked to Natasha, waiting. Hoping.

Natasha gave her a smile. "I like b-being a vampire. Yes, there's a lot of dangers. Yes, you lose the sun, and food. F-Fire can kill you so easily." Mary, still half hiding in the nook of her mom's neck, turned enough to look at her with scared eyes. "But if you can handle it, it's a great second life! The Kiss is wonderful. It's great, being p-powerful. You live forever. You never grow old. Live long enough and you get to be rich; b-but with the Prince as your mom's sire, that's taken care of. And, um, as a lot of p-people in Dolareido already know, the sex is constant, and everywhere."

Mary perked up and sat up straight. "Constant, you say?"

Samantha pulled her daughter's head back down to her and pinned the girl's head against her shoulder, frowning at Natasha the whole while. But her frown vanished and she giggled as Mary tried to get away from her. Unfortunately for Mary, her mom was a vampire, and easily held her in place. That led to some wrestling, before they burst into giggles again and Samantha let her daughter go.

"I suppose," Samantha said, "that there's no avoiding it. You're alive, your mother and brother are vampires, and this is Dolareido." After a heavy groan, Samantha gestured to the closet. "Yes, it was a slutty dress. Because all vampires are sluts."

Tash frowned, which sent both women into giggles again.

“Don’t be like that, Tash!” Samantha said with a big smile. “I suppose I should just accept it. Now that Mary’s alive, she’s going to see that side of Dolareido’s night life. Aaaaaaand I’d feel more comfortable sharing some of your videos with her.”

Oh no.

“Videos?” Mary asked.

“Yes. Natasha is something of a movie director. And cameraman. And star.”

“A star! Of wh—oh.” Slowly, Mary’s smile turned utterly mischievous, and she leaned in closer to Tash. “Really?”

Time for some self defense.

“Your brother is no better! There’s half a dozen videos of him floating around.”

“Oh god!” Mary threw up her hands and covered her face. “Oh god, really?”

Samantha groaned in shared dismay, and pat her daughter on the shoulder. “You made a joke about Jack and his harem, sweetie, right? It, um, wasn’t inaccurate.”

“I mean, you told me about him and Antoinette, and that they have ghouls and thralls, and that they can be, uh, close. But I was a ghost! I didn’t really picture what that meant! And the implications!” She shivered and rubbed off her legs, like bugs had crawled on her. “Oh god, now I’m picturing it! Jack is ... is ... Oh god, Antoinette is so tall! And...!” She held out her hands in front of her, cupping imaginary breasts the size of beach balls.

Tash couldn't help but laugh, and trying to hold it back turned it into a snort. "She is. And she has a really ... r-really good friend that often joins her, Elaine."

Mary counted off on her fingers. "Holy shit that kid is getting pussy."

"Mary!" Sam gave her daughter a discouraging slap on the knee.

Tash nodded. "At the same time. On film."

"Oh god!" Mary tried to sound grossed out, but it broke into laughter soon after. "I don't want to see that."

"Me neither," Samantha said, trying to hold her frown.

A moment later, both women leaned forward slightly and grinned at Tash, until she groaned and waved a hand.

"You're both like Jack."

Mary raised a brow. "How so?"

"Horny p-perverts."

---

~~Antoinette~~

It did not take long for Jacob to come to her. Jack had left only moments before, and the man had likely been hiding in wait. With her sheriff on constant vigil, the Nosferatu could not sneak past him, and Daniel brought Jacob to her. A formality, and a game.

She did not rise from her desk, but she did gesture to the chair in front of her desk as she leaned back in hers.

"Daniel," she said, "if you would be so kind? I feel this conversation deserves privacy."

Daniel nodded, eyed Jacob for several moments until the Nosferatu chuckled, before leaving. But once the door was closed and Daniel could no longer hear, Jacob's laughter stopped, and he walked toward Antoinette in a direct line before sitting. Jacob did nothing directly, normally.

"Ann," he said.

"Jacob. I assume you are here to discuss one of the most extreme developments in either of our careers?"

"Ha! Yeap."

"Dare I ask how much of Mary's resurrection is your doing?"

The man, wearing a wondrous burgundy suit and black sunglasses, leaned back in his seat and shrugged. Why could he not wear such interesting clothes more often, instead of his usual dark robes that reeked of witch things.

"Not much. Beatrice did this all on her own. Jen helped her, but she doesn't really have the same bug."

"Bug?"

"You know, the spark, the part of you that really drives you."

"Obsession."

The man grinned. "Alright, obsession. I knew Triss would have it. Jen, not so much. But she sticks by Triss's side and helps keep her on her feet, which makes it worth it to keep her around."

"And Aaron and Othello?"

"They have their uses. Aaron's smart, and I talk with him about things sometimes. And Othello's a useful walking talking bag of muscle."

Despite the inevitable seriousness of the conversation, Antoinette could not help but enjoy the entertaining prelude. They always were with Jacob.

“My childe certainly enjoys him.”

“Oh my. She tell you more about our time together?”

“She refuses to share intimate details, but she has admitted to enjoying time with Othello and you on several occasions. Considering Othello’s tastes, it is easy to imagine your time together. I need only suggest a certain act, and she instantly devolves into a wriggling mess.”

They both chuckled. While Jack had become more comfortable with sexual indulgence, he had not always been. Once, the mere suggestion of a foursome would have had the young man squirming. Delightful. And now Jacob was enjoying a similar time with Samantha, relishing corrupting her with physical bliss, as Antoinette had Jack.

“But I didn’t come here to gossip about sex, Ann.”

“I would prefer to chat with an old friend about the physical joys he has found with my childe, than what you wish to speak of.”

Jacob’s smile faltered. “Why?”

“Because it terrifies me to know that my childe has swam in the blood of a dozen kine. It terrifies me that Beatrice has reached into a world not even you nor I have managed.”

Her old friend leaned in closer to her. “It is fucking terrifying, isn’t it?”

“Extremely.”

“And word is going to get out. People are going to come here to see if it’s true.”

“Indeed.”

Jacob sighed and leaned back once again. “She’s Sam’s kid. I’ll do everything I can to keep her safe.”

It was Antoinette’s turn to lean forward. “I knew you would, Jacob. But that is not why you have come tonight, is it?”

“No. I wanted to take a poke at the mighty Prince’s brain and see what she has to say about how Beatrice did it.”

“You do not know?”

“Hey hey, don’t go implying that a witch’s boss doesn’t know the details of what his subordinates are up to! Because I do, obviously. I know everything.” The sarcasm was palpable.

“Except about this.”

He laughed. “I know what she did. But have you ever heard of someone putting a ghost into something?”

With a heavy sigh, Antoinette stood up, walked away from the desk, and stood before the enormous window looking out over her city.

“I have.”

Still at her desk, Jacob tapped on its surface with his finger. “And what happened?”

“Violence.” Unfortunately, Antoinette was all too familiar with the history of ghosts possessing things. Beings of ephemera were not true beings, not in the way living creatures were, especially those with souls. Their desires almost always ended with violence, when they were given the form to enact then.

“That makes me wonder,” Jacob said. “I’ve never seen a ghost respond to someone so well as Mary. And I’ve never seen a ghost respond so well to possessing a body.”

Antoinette looked back over her shoulder at the man. He was not using his usual, playful voice and mischievous demeanor. His academic side was showing through. The man she had become friends with centuries ago was showing through.

“You think she is not a ghost, but Mary’s actual soul.”

“You ever prove ghosts weren’t souls, Misses Dragon? Any of your fancy experiments with ephemera and spirits give any hints?”

“You know they have not. And it has been ages since I have had the opportunity to experiment upon a ghost.”

Jacob chuckled, but it soon devolved into a groan. After a couple seconds of annoyed contemplation, he got up, and joined her at the window.

“Too late now. Can’t detect a ghost hiding inside a living body.”

“Correct.”

“And I suppose you didn’t experiment on Mary when you had the chance because she’s your childe’s daughter.”

“And my lover’s sister.”

The man grinned up at her. “Must have taken a lot of willpower, to not head over to her house and lock it all down for your experiments.”

“Do you think I am so heartless?”

“I think I know what it’s like to have answers in reach. Consuming. Really brings out the obsessiveness in people like you and me.”

She rolled her eyes, which only earned another chuckle from the man.

“Yes, I admit that I had to control myself. But it was never a possibility that I would experiment upon Mary, ghost or soul.”

“Even now, that she’s right under your nose?”

“As you said, even if she is a ghost, there is little I can do to unveil the truth, barring extreme measures.” An exorcism relied on the body and its soul fighting against the possessing ghost, or spirit. She had no idea if it would work on Mary since she did not fight against the body she possessed, and regardless, performing one was not easy, as Jacob well knew. “And I am inclined to believe she is not a ghost. The last I heard of a ghost possessing a living person, the result was disastrous.”

“Was that person brain dead?”

“No, they were not.”

“Was that person a perfect body for the ghost, right down to the genetics?”

“No ... they were not.”

Jacob shrugged, and ran a finger down her window. Shameless destruction, but at least a vampire’s fingers did not leave oil.

“Then we’re both in the dark.”

“Is that why you visit this night? To taunt us both?”

“No. I came to...” He turned and placed his back against the once perfectly clean window. “It really is ridiculous, isn’t it?”

“What is?” She blinked down at her old friend. She blinked again when he removed his sunglasses, exposing his empty eye sockets, forever cursed to look as if someone had removed them, and his eyelids, with a serrated spoon.

“All this running around and dancing, freaking out, because we resurrected someone. We’ve done centuries of work, of research, and you know as well as I a lot of us do it for two reasons: to become truly immortal, or to bring someone back from the dead.”

Despite her best efforts to keep a straight face, she knew fatigue broke through her visage, and she sighed as she looked back to the city.

“It has become an all-consuming pursuit of many dragons, and witches I assume.”

“And don’t think the Invictus and Carthians, or even the fucking churchies wouldn’t jump at the opportunity to do either.”

“Indeed.”

“Christ, I’m just so tired of it, you know? So fucking tired of digging through the mess, all because of this hilarious life and death bullshit. I mean christ, vampires are half dead, but what’s that even fucking mean? We still don’t know.” He shrugged as he looked down and sighed in the same manner she had. “It’s just so tiresome, you know? I’m happy for Sam, I really am, but something’s gonna happen to ruin it eventually. Someone’s gonna come along and kill Mary, or Jack, or maybe Sam will die, leaving her two kids fucking broken. Maybe someone sires Mary, and then she gets unlucky and catches a sunrise or a big spark from a fucking fireplace, and then Sam’s back to square one. It’s just all such bullshit. What fucking god thought this was a good system? This stupid fucking mess of life and death. It's like one big machine just churning out crap because the old crap breaks."

"Jacob..." What on Earth was the man speaking of? Sick of life and death?

"I'm just so fucking tired of it." Jacob pushed himself off her dirty window, and slowly walked for the door as he slipped on his sunglasses once again. "Whoever thought up this fucking game was a colossal asshole."

She stared after the man as he opened the door to her office, exposing Daniel waiting outside it beside the elevator door. A quick button press and the door opened, already waiting for Jacob. He stepped on it, and offered Antoinette one of his smiles, now heavy and crippled.

She did not have the heart to stop him.

---

Jack and Antoinette awoke to next night's sunset, and turned to find each other first, as they often did.

"Good morning," he said.

"Good night," she said, rolling her eyes before kissing her silly little lover. "You smile."

"Do I?"

"You do."

"I guess it's because, despite all the insane shit attached to the fact my sister's alive, she's alive."

"She is indeed. Though let us quickly check." With a nod, she slipped out of bed, and sat at her desk.

“Think she went freaky zombie on us during the day and ate someone’s brains?”

She smiled at her laptop as she looked over at her lover, still in the bed. But like her own smile, his lacked genuine joy. He truly was concerned.

A moment later, Antoinette brought up a video feed on her laptop. She found the young woman in the smaller entertainment room, asleep on the couch, wrapped in a blanket. The television was on, displaying news. She had fallen asleep trying to update her knowledge of current events.

“There, you see?” Antoinette pointed the laptop at the bed, before she rejoined her love and slipped under the sheets. “And if she had done something unusual, my thralls would have messages waiting for me.”

“Thank god.” He sighed relief as he slid closer to her, and snuggled into her body, acting the large spoon against her back. “Still trying to wrap my mind around this whole thing.”

“You are not the only one.” Alas, she could not share the conversation she had with Jacob last night with anyone. The words he spoke rang in her mind, and sent her thoughts spiraling into memories of Minerva, and how her death had affected the old Nosferatu. Jacob had never spoken with Antoinette so clearly about his misery, as the night following her death, and last night.

Jack chuckled as he kissed her neck, took a few more peeks at the laptop, and returned to kissing her. “I have a feeling she’s gonna asked to be embraced.”

“Oui, I imagine she will, after all she has seen. There are few who could ignore their own mother and brother being Kindred, and their own trials at that. I cannot imagine someone coming back from the dead after experiencing existence as a ghost, only to wish for a regular life.”

“Yeah. I mean, I hope she realizes it’s not all sunshine and rainbows.” He chuckled with his own silly joke. Two things vampires could never see again.

“I am sure whoever sires her will explain, in great detail, the hardships of our second lives. As I am sure you will on top of that.”

“I—oh, look.” He pointed to the laptop. Samantha, dressed in her pajamas — a habit she refused to break — had already found her daughter and was gently shaking her awake. Antoinette and Jack watched, and both relaxed as Mary stood up and hugged her mother. Their behavior looked normal, if terribly excited.

“All is well.”

“It ... it actually kinda looks like it is.”

Laughing, she turned in bed to face the boy, and nudged her nose into his.

“Our lives are difficult, but they are not always horrible.”

“No, I guess they’re not.”

Nodding, she gently pushed her lover onto his back, and slipped onto his body. He did not resist. It had become a common routine for them to spend some time come dusk to enjoy each other’s touch, even if it did not lead to sex, as it likely would not now. But Antoinette insisted on ‘cuddle time’, as Natasha would put it, and she nuzzled down onto her lover to rest upon him.

Which of course Jack loved, as it caused her breasts to overflow his chest and shoulders, before she could reach her head down far enough to kiss him.

“The ball is in several days.”

“Ah shit, I don’t have anything to wear.”

She laughed before kissing him once again, making sure to squash her bust into him as she did.

“I will find you something, my love.”

“Sexy suit?”

“No doubt.”

Soon, her little Ventrue was the one laughing, and he leaned up to return her kiss.

“You know we’re trying to stop Black Blood, and maybe Jacob, from causing an apocalypse, right?”

“That is the most cynical view possible, but oui, I understand that.” And it gave Jacob’s words last night an uncomfortable weight.

“But you still want to have a ball?”

“Oui, that I do, to maintain appearances.” Another quick kiss. “And I have information. Sándor believes the tear at the base of the ritual, deep in the realm of ghosts, has shown signs of activity.”

“A lead!”

“Indeed. Though both he and Natasha have been distracted by a new tear that does not fit into her chart. They investigate it, and will continue to investigate it, as well as follow Sándor’s lead on how to approach dealing with the original tears.”

“So some progress on Natasha and Avery’s side. What about ours?”

“Unfortunately, Black Blood eludes my attempts to summon it. It does not appear to follow the rules of other spirits, as you surmised.”

Groaning, Jack let his head fall back to his pillow. “Should I ask Triss to summon him? It?”

“Stopping Black Blood in its entirety is our future goal. Stopping its ritual is the immediate goal. Let Avery, Natasha, and the Begotten do their work. When they are ready to act, they will come to us for reinforcements.”

“Makes me worried for Sándor. The guy is obsessed with helping Dolareido.”

Antoinette nodded as she relaxed further, letting her head come down between her shoulders so her forehead could find her love’s.

“You are quite right, but he is not only a powerful creature, he is Begotten, one of the few capable of reaching into these strange realms. And from what Natasha has proven, such a skill will be required if we wish to stop Black Blood’s ritual.”

“I’m sensing a ‘but’ coming.”

“But, Avery and Natasha are convinced more azlu are hiding in the realm of ghosts. And perhaps, hiding in wait.”

Jack shivered. His fear was warranted. The infernal creatures had proven to be deadly, resilient, and unhealthy for her city. At worst, they could prove to be a massive Masquerade risk.

“So, what you’re telling me, is we’re coming up short on ways to stop Black Blood himself—itsself, but we might be ready to interfere when it starts the ritual? Assuming it’s going to start at the bottom tear.”

“Correct.”

“But there are azlu around. And the two times we’ve dealt with azlu, Avery lost one of her pack, and ... I went ballistic against the other one.” Again the young man shivered. “That reminds me. Sabrina make an appearance yet?”

“Non. And if she did, it would be an extremely unusual event. Ghosts linger in the world, but I have never heard of a ghost leaving another realm, this Great Below, to return and cause mayhem.”

“She did, somehow. No idea. Maybe she talked to Mary from across the realm? All I know is she talked to Mary, and that she can hurt other ghosts with that knife of hers.”

“Then it is a good thing your sister is no longer a ghost.”

“True.”

“And it is also a good thing that Avery and her pack can manage ghosts in much the same way as spirits. If she runs into Sabrina, she will manage.”

“True...”

Antoinette groaned and sat up, driving her weight through her hands into the boy’s chest to crush him into the bed. His wince told her she had succeeded. “Jack. Do not tell me you are thinking of helping them.”

“I uh, I think I am.”

Without any hesitation, she wrapped her hands around his throat and gave him a hard shake, hard enough to have the bed trembling.

“Do I have to stake you and lock you in a coffin to keep you from throwing yourself into harm’s way?” She shook him several more times, determined to sink her words into his mind. Though upon reflection, she realized shaking him in such a way that had her breasts bouncing about in front of his face was not the best way to get through to the boy.

“Come on. We don’t have any idea on how to lock Black Blood up, or kill it. If I can put the curse to good use and help Avery and Tash and Sándor, I should, right?”

“I would prefer you did not put yourself into direct confrontation with that abysmal spirit, Jack, or azlu monsters.” Her grip relaxed, and she rested her hands on his sternum.

Sighing, Jack reached out and set his hands on hers, and held them gently to his chest.

“Antoinette. If shit gets as bad as we think it might get, not stopping this ritual is not an option. And that means dealing with the azlu, too.”

Matching his sigh, Antoinette looked to the laptop. The two women were sitting on the couch now, cuddled into each other once again, and watching whatever was on the television.

“There are three women who will be especially upset if you die on another one of your heroic adventures of self sacrifice, my love.”

Jack looked to the laptop, but when he looked back to her, he smiled.

“No self sacrificing here. I fully plan on living through this.”

Ah yes. While Antoinette’s words did not seem to resonate with the boy, Azamel’s dying words had reached him. Hopefully her death would keep her love from a similar fate.

---

~~Eric~~

The sheriff was a creepy guy.

“No no no! Come on, Sam. You’re a Daeva, lean into it!” Jessy said. Eric winced as Jessy grabbed Samantha’s shoulders and pointed her to face the changing mirror. “Needs more cleavage.”

Sam looked to her daughter pleadingly, but Mary just laughed and gestured to the mirror.

“She’s right Mom. You have to lean into the sexy vamp milf thing. Don’t get all embarrassed just cause I’m here now.”

“Mary!”

Natasha groaned and rubbed her forehead with both hands. “Jessy, d-don’t corrupt everyone please.”

“I am not corrupting! Mary just said it, Sam is a total milf, with the witches under her thumb, and tits. And the city knows it too. She should lean into it and really build herself a reputation.”

“As a slut,” Samantha said, frowning softly at her reflection. Though even Eric could see the conflict in her eyes. She didn’t believe her own words.

Eric, a good ways back from the girls, glanced Daniel’s way, but the man stood in front of the window and stared out into the street. The clothing store was closed, and everyone who walked up to the store wanting in, took a quick glance at the lanky man with the trench coat and glasses, and left.

Jessy raised a triumphant hand. “Yes, as a slut. All Daeva go through that phase. Boss tells me it usually lasts a decade or three, before they ease up on the crazy sex. I say enjoy it. Now, you need something that tells everyone you are milf supreme, but you also need something that says you’ve got the special privileges of a Prince’s childe. So, lots of skin, but also maybe something really sparkly? Maybe super obvious, flashy jewelry? It'd be gaudy on someone else, but you can pull it off 'cause of your title."

"She's got a point, Mom. Maybe not sparkly exactly, but yeah, go fancy."

That got a chuckle out of Jessy, and Eric. He couldn't help it. Jessy's brazen attitude was rubbing off on him, but it also looked like it wouldn't take much to get Mary on board with the sexual lifestyle of Dolareido's vampires. There were definitely similarities between her and her mother, but some extreme differences too. Mary was definitely more outgoing.

Eric got up from the short backless bench. It wasn't very comfy anyway, just a bench meant for changing into absurdly expensive shoes. And much as it was fun to watch Jessy corrupt people, and see ladies try on particularly revealing expensive clothes, it was probably best he get out of there before someone said something so embarrassing, Samantha burst into flames on the spot.

So he came over to Daniel, and stood beside the man, looking out the window. Eric was in a casual suit, his work clothes. It was a nice suit, dark, no tie, but it looked like shit compared to the other clothes in the place. Who needed a two thousand dollar dress that was barely more than two straps connecting into a skirt half an inch long?

"Spot any azlu?" Eric asked. He knew the answer, but maybe a little small talk with the ancient vampire would make him seem a bit less creepy.

"No."

Ah, the natural straight man. Problem with that was Eric wasn't a funny guy. He couldn't rebound jokes off him. Which meant talking with the straight guy, especially one as scary as Daniel, would be an awkward, painful conversation.

“You’re here to keep an eye on Mary, I assume.”

“Mary and Samantha.”

“Right. When this gets out, Mary’s going to be the focus of attention for a lot of people.”

“Correct,” the sheriff said.

“And Black Blood? Any sign of it?” Eric lowered his voice. There were dozens of racks of clothing, and a couple of walls, between him and the girls, but they were also vampires. Good hearing.

“It hides, even from me.” Right, Jessy said Mekhet as strong as Daniel were capable of some extremely weird shit. Like, could find and spot shit hidden behind, between, or underneath anything. No one really knew how. “And you? What of the new tear?”

“Nothing. An azlu’s been there, and we think it came back when we were gone. There’s more webs. But it’s gone again when we show up.”

“It sounds like a distraction.”

“Yeah, our thoughts exactly. But we can’t find traces of it elsewhere.” Which was terrifying in its own right. Azlu killed and ate humans, and werewolves too. It’d come out sooner or later to feed, and as much as paranormals weren’t human, they did like to prevent innocent people from getting killed.

On top of that, Avery didn’t know how the azlu spread. They were hard to kill, but that didn’t explain how they’d survived for thousands of years. They reproduced somehow, and it was a good bet they had to eat to do it, both humans and essence. Dolareido becoming the breeding ground for azlu was a big no no, and Avery considered it an existential problem that had to be dealt with.

Which meant Avery was hyper focused on the azlu, even as she tried to help Natasha stop the ritual. Which meant keeping their attention on the ritual was getting difficult. Which Black Blood wanted.

“It’s vexing, isn’t it?”

Eric looked up at the man. “What?”

Daniel nodded back behind him, but otherwise stayed still and continued staring out the window.

“Black Blood has been a thorn in our sides for two centuries at least. At first, we didn’t know about it, who or what it was. But it’s shown up in our lives on several occasions, interfering in our experiments. It toys with us, using its grand power, and strange knowledge. It’s taunted us, broken our experiments multiple times. It’s laughed at us as we poked and prodded at things we didn’t understand back then.

“What relationship Jacob developed with it in that time, we still don’t understand. But we do know Black Blood has never actively harmed us. It’s been a menace to us dragons here in Dolareido, and we know it’s been involved in various rituals Jacob has cast over the years. Some of those rituals caused trouble, attracted attention, but all damage to the Masquerade was repairable. And the kine that died were kine the city was better off without.

“So now we’re all convinced Black Blood is trying to bring about ruin. Even assuming Black Blood is to blame for the short war between Carthians and Invictus, Azamel caused us more harm in her first visit here, decades ago. Simon and his pack caused us more harm in his visit here, decades ago. Viktor and Tony caused us more harm. And Lucas caused us the most harm of all.” Daniel had said all of this with a straight face and monotone voice, but when he mentioned Lucas, the man finally scowled, slightly. “Fucking religious zealot.”

Holy shit, the sheriff was capable of cursing. Holy shit, the sheriff was capable of actually talking. And apparently he was pretty good at it, lack of inflection aside.

“You think ... we shouldn’t be bothering with Black Blood?”

“I think assuming the spirit is trying to be our undoing is a mistake. There is something going on here, something we don’t understand, and getting in Black Blood’s way could end ... problematically.”

“You should have seen him fight Red Tide. It was like watching a giant monster movie.”

Daniel sighed. The man might as well have screamed in frustration, knowing what little Eric knew about the sheriff.

“We’re walking into a trap.”

Eric winced as he looked back out the window. “Yeah, probably. But our hands are tied. We have to stop the azlu, and knowing what we know about Minerva, we have to stop Black Blood too.”

“A spirit more powerful than any of us truly understand. A spirit that has never harmed us, directly at least. We are poking the bear.”

Eric laughed. Daniel didn’t. Ok, so much for sharing a chuckle.

“We probably are, but—”

“Eric! Dude, I got three girls back here half naked and you’re nowhere to be seen!” Jessy stomped out from around the corner wall of the huge, winding clothes store, came up to him, and grabbed his hand. “Come on. I need a man’s opinion, too. The sheriff will be as useful as a paperweight for this, so get over here.”

Daniel shared only a quick glance and the tiniest grin Eric had ever seen, before Eric was dragged back to watch Jessy corrupt Samantha and her kid. But honestly, it didn't seem like it'd take much. Horniness seemed to run in the Terry family.

Chapter 163

~~Beatrice~~

“I am amazing.”

Triss blinked at her boss. “Uh, what?”

Jacob stood in her alcove’s entrance, and leaned his shoulder against the stone as he grinned at her. Jeans and a black shirt, compared to her jeans and black t-shirt. Weren’t they quite the pair of witches.

“I’m amazing.”

“Because...?”

“Because I knew just who to pick to be my best witch.”

She rolled her eyes. “You gotta be shitting me.”

“Nope.”

She grumbled as she looked around for Jen. Nowhere to be seen. The Ventrue did still have two ghouls to take care of, and while she didn’t fuck them anymore, she did take them out for training and stuff. Probably doing that, then. Given a few years, or decades, ghouls could get pretty damn strong and do some impressive shit. Something to do with vampire vitae being in their blood.

“And I suppose you want me to explain how I did it?” she asked.

“Nah. Black Blood filled me in on the details. And while I would love to know how you learned that crúac ritual, the one to turn a body into a perfect vessel, I know you won’t tell me. Yet.” Wearing his usual grin, Jacob sat down in the small room of curved stone across from her, the typical bandage wrapped around his eyes. “Witches do love to keep their secrets. Just make sure to write it down before you die.”

“Die?”

He shrugged. “We all die eventually. You’ll do the Circle good to give us some hints about what you did. Make it cryptic, though. Only members of the Circle should be able to figure it out, and make it hard for even them, too.”

“Hard for other witches to figure out? Why?”

“Gotta make ‘em work for it! A good fifty years of deciphering some weird riddle or puzzle, maybe?”

She laughed and put her book down. It was some sort of encyclopedia about ghosts and stuff, the weird accounts seen through history, the different religions and what they thought about ghosts, and the different ways ghosts could supposedly interact with the physical world. It was the sort of shit Triss wouldn’t have cared about before, but now that she was a witch, every word was oddly interesting. Like, really oddly. Like, she was actually enjoying learning about shit nerd style. Oh how she had changed.

“Yeah, I guess I can do that. Write it in a book soon, lock it away in a bank safe and tell them not to open it for a hundred years. It comes out, goes into a museum, some witches steal it away, yada yada.”

“Exactly.”

“Though if Antoinette’s right, a hundred years from now we’ll be worrying about spaceships and trying to navigate an absurd amount of tech that’s bound to expose the whole vampire race.”

Jacob's smile went through a few phases. Defiance, disbelief, then acceptance. He had a lot of smiles.

"That is a possible future."

"You don't think it's guaranteed humans will eventually go all Star Trek on us and shit?"

"You mean the full cooperation between all nations? Fuck no. But sure, lots of technology. It'll be Hell for vampires. But there are other options too."

"Such as?"

Jacob held out his hands like he was preaching to his congregation. "So many possibilities! Which one would you consider? Maybe post apoc? Or maybe something weirder."

"Weirder?"

"Weirder. I—ah never mind. It doesn't matter." He shrugged and flicked a dismissing hand. "Antoinette is convinced vampires won't be able to weather the coming storm of technology. Instead of just cameras everywhere, it'll be infrared cameras. Instead of paying for shit with credit cards at the cashier, it'll be gates we walk through that auto-read the credit cards embedded in the back of our necks, and it'll scan for life signs, too."

"Think our Disciplines will let us get past them?"

"At first. Eventually the technology will get good enough it'll spot a vampire doing anything. And after that, the technology will be updated to actively find vampires, so they can wipe us out."

"That ... is a pretty fucking terrifying idea. Hard to imagine it happening any time soon though."

“Ah ben oui,” Jacob said, pulling a French accent out of his ass, “zat is why we must prepare for ze future!” It wasn’t a good accent.

“Ok, stop scaring me. Good thoughts, boss man. Talk to Sam since last night?”

“Just a quick message. She wants to hang with her daughter, ‘til the ball tomorrow, and I’m happy to let her have that chance.”

Beatrice smiled at the man. “You’re such a softy.”

“I am a cuddly teddy bear.”

“Something tells me Sam will wear something fit for a sexy mom like her.”

“Don’t think she’ll dress a little more reserved, with her daughter there?”

“She’s Daeva, dude. She’s happy and excited right now, and that means she’ll want to show off.” Because that’s what all Daeva did, pretty much no matter their mood, but especially when they were happy. “And honestly, I think we’ve successfully destroyed most sense Sam’s sense of shame. She’ll wear something slutty, and I bet Mary will too.”

“Oh my,” Jacob said in a very sleazy way.

“Dude. Gross. She’s your girlfriend’s daughter. You ... You haven’t actually slept with a mom and daughter at the same time before, have you?”

Raising a brow, the man looked up in an exaggerated attempt to remember. “Honestly? I couldn’t tell you.”

“Dude!”

“What!?” He laughed as he shrugged. “I told you, I used to have orgies with entire groups of people under the full moon. Entire villages!”

She frowned. “Villages. You sure you’re not exaggerating?”

“Couldn’t tell you.”

She threw up her hands. “Ok, well, in the modern era, it’s pretty gross to expect sexual activities to be shared among family members. Assuming Mary becomes a vampire, maybe in a thousand fucking years when Mary and Sam don’t see each other as mom and daughter anymore, maybe! And only maybe then!”

“Aw.”

“Christ I hope Sam knows how much of a pervert you are.”

“I’m pretty normal by Dolareido standards.”

“That’s not saying much.”

Laughing again, Jacob reached out, grabbed her book, and popped it open as he leaned back.

“What’re you gonna wear to the ball, young witch of mine?”

“Not sure yet. Jen’s got something lined up, and I’m sure it’ll be as revealing as she can get away with. And well, considering how much skin was on display at the last ball, ghouls getting sucked off or fingered where everyone could fucking see, I could probably go naked and no one would care.”

Her boss’s laugh was warm. She expected a snicker or some stupid, childish laugh, but nope, the man’s voice softened, and so did his expression.

“Sometimes I think my old friend wants to capture the feeling of her youth, discovering all the ways her body can enjoy sexuality without worry of disease or pregnancy, or having to recoup.”

“Well shit, I don’t know what the Prince’s motivations are, but being a vampire is pretty damn sexually freeing ... you know, for the other blood clans.” Nosferatu didn’t have it so easy. Triss and Jacob were lucky, compared to a lot of them.

Jacob sighed and nodded. “Poor Bob.”

“Bob? Oh, right, Nos in the tunnels. Dude looks like he walked out of an old vampire movie.”

“Don’t forget Liliana, with a dozen too many eyes.”

Triss shivered. “We got off easy in comparison. Especially compared to Maria.”

“Yeap.”

The two of them sighed, and their eyes slowly drifted down. Jacob was probably just doing it to empathize with her; not like he cared about his deformities anymore. But Triss still did. She was over them, mostly, but sometimes it still sucked that she had to make sure no kine ever saw her face. Vampires often socialized with their prey before enjoying the meal. She couldn’t. She wasn’t much of a socializer, but she wouldn’t mind taking a stab at it every now and then.

“Either way, we should be damn happy about how things are going,” Triss said. “So I’ll wear whatever Jen has lined up for me. Our second lives are good, and I just did something no one else has managed. I wanna celebrate and show off how fucking awesome my ass is.”

“Ha. I’m sure Sándor will like that.”

She blinked at her boss. “Uh, what?”

“Dude is clearly an ass man.”

The alcove echoed with the slap sound of Triss’s hand hitting her forehead.

“I—”

Jacob laughed and shook his head. “Don’t be an idiot. He likes you, Triss.”

Shit.

“You think?”

“Yeap. I’ve seen him looking at you. Dude is obviously tied down by all the nasty shit attached to him, and to you, but somehow you’ve managed to pierce the dude’s stone exterior.”

“I ... I mean, I have talked to him ... a few times.”

“More like a dozen times.”

“Dude, you following me?”

Jacob put up his hands in surrender. “Nah. You’re just very readable.”

“Fuck.”

“I gotta ask though, Triss. It’s clear you seem interested in Sándor, and—”

“I barely know the guy.”

“Is that right? Cause Jen tells me you got him drunk once, and the man talked about his dead family with you. Doesn’t get much more personal than that.”

“Fuck.” Damn you, Jen.

“And for the life of me, I don’t see what you see in the man. He’s basically just Daniel with a pulse.”

“He’s...” Much as she wanted to disagree with him, there was some truth in that. A little. “I like him. He listens. You can understand why a woman would like that in a man.”

He snickered. “I’ll listen to a woman when she has something smart to say.”

“You mother fu...” She rolled her eyes and laughed. This asshole. “How the fuck does Sam put up with you?”

“Not sure. I think she’s after my money.”

Damn it, she laughed again. “Well, I like Sándor. Daniel is a ruthless, cold monolith, you know? And maybe Athalia likes that, cause sure, Daniel is stable and direct and probably everything Athalia wants, or needs, in a man. Sándor is ... not that. He’s just quiet. And there’s a gentleness in him that pokes out sometimes.” Especially when the man had a guitar in his hand. Or a drink.

“Which brings me to my point. You like the guy, but you’re intent on bringing Julias back.”

Triss snapped her head to the side. “Don’t.”

“I think I will.” Jacob leaned forward and gestured to her before setting his hands on his knees. “Julias has been dead for what, almost a year now? And now you’ve put yourself in a weird spot. You’re trying to resurrect your dead boyfriend, the man you love, but you’re also moving on. That’s pretty fucked up.”

“My personal shit is—”

“Not fucked up for you, you fucking dumbass. Sándor. Dude is doing everything he can to make up for his contribution to what happened to Dolareido, to you. And for some reason, you’ve decided to flirt with the guy, while trying to undo the damage he caused.”

“I haven’t been—”

“So imagine things from his point of view. You’re doing everything you can to bring Julias back from the dead, a guy Sándor helped kill, but you’re flirting with him? How fucked up is that?”

“It’s not like that!” She slammed both hands against the furs underneath her. “It’s not like that. I’m...”

“You’re learning to play the piano.”

She stared at him and ground her teeth together, causing the large crocodile ones to shift and click.

“You have been spying on me!”

“I spy on everyone. Get over it. You’ve been learning to play the piano, ‘cause you want to connect with the dude.”

“I ... He ... He’s not Daniel, ok? Give him an instrument and suddenly I’m having a conversation with a normal guy. Normal-ish. I like that. He’s a friend.”

“Well, poor guy is probably ripping himself apart in that quiet, stoic way he seems to love, every time you smile at him a little longer than you should. So why don’t you back off and leave the man alone. Stop torturing the stupid fucker.” He leaned forward again, and stared straight at her with his covered eyes. “Or, and this is probably the much healthier option, let Julias go. Dude is dead, and his soul is gone to wherever souls go. You want to pluck it out of some realm we've never reached, not even the Begotten have reached, not even Black Blood? Might as well be chasing one very fast goose. So how about you do yourself a favor, and do that poor bastard a favor, too. Forget about Julias. Forget about this resurrection business. Enjoy a happy life with Sándor. Get married. Get a house on the prairie. Have two point five kids."

Triss flexed her hands, careful of her claws, and stared at Jacob so hard she felt her whole body shivering. Vitae pumped through her. Her Beast, which normally and rightfully cowered in the presence of Jacob, very much wanted her to take a swing at the fucker and see if she could at least hit him. But god damn it, the image of her living on the prairie with Sándor, and a few kids, was just too fucking hilarious. She laughed again, and Jacob let her, his smile returning as she laughed and laughed until the room eventually grew quiet again.

She looked down, and slumped. "Fuck me, Jacob. I don't know what to do. I want Julias back, but ... but you're right. I keep trying to convince myself I can do it, but I know a part of me doesn't believe that shit. The chances I can bring him back are slim to none. Fuck me, why didn't he stick around, like Mary?"

"You know why. He died happy, thinking of you, you dumbass."

Triss squeezed her claws into the fur she sat on, and sighed. "Fuck me. Fuck him. He left me."

Sighing, Jacob got up, and gave her shoulder a pat before he made for the exit.

"Things will change soon enough. I'll ask you again, when the time comes."

"What? Jacob, what?" She raised her head and watched Jacob, but he kept walking, and didn't look back.

---

“Like this,” Sándor said, and he played a simple tune.

Beatrice grumbled, and tried. But just like with Damien, her fingers refused to hit the keys the way she told them to.

“Fuck. Fuck!” She slammed her hands on the keys, before glaring at Sándor.

Sándor chuckled, a quiet sound, and he again played the simple tune.

“You treat the keys like enemies.”

“They are enemies!”

“The keys are your friend. You need to relax and treat them kindly.” He set both hands down on the keys, and played a nice harmony with his left while playing a melody with his right. “I don’t know what it’s like for a vampire, but for the living, we need to play it slowly at first to create the muscle memory.”

He talked so calmly and smoothly, he sounded like a music teacher, happy to teach an idiot kid like her. She loved and hated it.

“I mean, it’s a bit different for vamps,” she said, “but my teacher insists you still learn the same way. Just do it slow and often.”

Mary laughed, and Triss threw a glare at her over her shoulder. She was sitting on the couch with her mom, scrolling through websites on the laptop on the table, and giggling up a storm as they watched funny videos, or swooned over videos of cats. Jennifer sat nearby on another couch, scrolling through her phone, likely updating herself on whatever was happening in Dolareido. Parties, plays, new movies, any place that’d make for interesting hunts.

The group of them were in Sándor’s apartment, but it wasn’t much of one. Sándor had only moved in recently, and sure, the crazy expensive apartments in Dolareido were gorgeous and sleek and all black and metal and shiny, but he didn't have anything in it. A couple gray couches, and that was it. Except for one particular interest: music. He had several guitars on their stands, two acoustic, two electric, one of them a seven string. One bass guitar, too. There was a metronome on the table between the couches, and some sheet music for some Romanian piece none of them could read, staff or language. Plus, the electric piano Triss and Sándor sat at.

Apparently the man's interest in music was deeper than Triss originally thought when she first saw him play.

It wasn't the first time she'd been in the apartment, and she'd tried the piano on her last visit. Apparently the man could play a lot of instruments. It was why she was trying to learn — secretly — from Damien, because some stupid part of her thought it'd be cool to impress Sándor with something that was clearly one of his interests.

Jen came tonight because they were best friends and did everything together. Mary and Sam came because Sam had become their friend, somehow, and Mary followed Sam. And honestly, Mary was hilarious.

It wasn't a date. She would not think of it as a date.

"Triss, come on." Mary got up, and leaned over Triss's shoulder. With her right hand, she played the tune, Mary Had a Little Lamb, with a big jackass grin on the whole time.

"Oh fuck off." Triss shoved her away and glared at her with as much hate and rage as Hell could summon. "You don't get a pass just 'cause you have a pulse, now."

Giggling, Mary jumped back onto the couch beside her mom.

“Maybe it is a little easier,” Sándor said, “for people with pulses to learn to play instruments.”

“Tell that to Maria,” Triss said, groaning as she slumped. “Girl can play ... well, anything, far as Damien says.”

“Been hanging with Damien?” Jen asked, lips curled into the tiniest grin.

“He’s mentioned it before.” Triss rolled her eyes, but she knew Jen caught her. Thankfully her best friend wasn’t one of those jackass friends who liked to screw each other over for laughs, usually. Instead, she nodded and looked back to her phone, like Triss’s explanation had been fine. No need to explain Damien’s connection to the piano lessons.

“It could be because you’re undead,” Sándor said. “It might have something to do with your mind, and your Kindred body. If you never touched an instrument when you were young...”

“I didn’t.”

“Then maybe the stepping stones aren’t there. You’ll have to build them. It could take time.”

“Ugh. I’m only early twenties, in vamp years. I don’t think in terms of centuries yet.”

Sándor laughed. Actually laughed, too. It wasn’t nearly as happy as Mary’s, or as full as Julias’s would have been, but it was a laugh. It made her smile.

“That is, unfortunately, a painful truth about playing an instrument. It takes time.” He set his fingers to the keys again, and played something stupid complex. Like, really fucking fast complex. His fingers were a blur, and at several points his right hand actually moved over his left hand as his fingers danced over the white and black keys.

“I know that song...” She stared at the keys as she racked her brain. “That’s ... Symphony X!”

The man nodded as he came to a stop. “I never learned to use a pitch wheel, so it won’t sound the same.” He gestured to the electric piano. “And regardless, this doesn’t have one.”

“Dude, still, that’s thirty seconds of awesomeness. Fucking christ how long did it take you to learn that song?”

“I learned it after our conversation in the crypt. It took a week.”

“A week...” It’d take her a fucking lifetime to play like that. Which she had, assuming she dodged enough sunrises.

She blinked at him as the first part of his response sank in. He’d learned this months ago, after that time in the crypt when he got drunk? They’d talked about metal music, and how they both loved it, but he hadn’t mentioned his own skill back then. Any other guy would have happily mentioned they played an instrument. She would have, too.

“I’ve been playing for centuries,” he said. “Once we get you past this hurdle, you’ll be able to learn complicated songs in a short time too.”

“Pretty big hurdle.”

“Evidently.”

She frowned at the man, and again earned a small chuckle and smile from him. Always small, hesitant things, like it was a struggle for him to find the emotions. She was sure the man had the emotions, especially if he was capable of having a wife and kid, and feeling all the guilt he did, but he just didn't show them. His body language was stubborn. And for some stupid fucking reason, she really liked trying to draw emotions out of him.

"Let's try a different tactic," he said. "Instead of playing a song, play this." He set all five digits of his right hand on the keys, and pressed five white keys down, left to right, thumb to pinky.

"A dexterity exercise. Dude I'm not a kid."

"No, but you are undead. You said you've never played an instrument?"

"Yeah."

He nodded as he looked down at the keys, brow slightly furrowed. His thinking face.

"You need to learn the same way a child does."

"Well fuck me."

That earned another small smile from him, short lived though as he went back into thinking mode.

"Your vampire brain doesn't know how to work your fingers in the right way. I'm confident you understand music, and you can tap your finger to a rhythm." He gestured to her, and she demonstrated, easily pressing one of the keys in a moderately fast rhythm. She even hummed a bit of Megadeth with it. "So maybe the problem is lower down in your brain. Using individual fingers to press individual keys."

Slowly, Beatrice did as told. Thumb, then index, then middle, then ring, then pinky finger. It did not go well. The electric piano was set to sound like a real piano, volume sensitivity included, so it was blatantly apparent when she hit some keys too hard and some too soft.

“Ugh, I hate this.” She started over, thumb, then index, then—

“Go from left to right, then right to left. Only hit your thumb and pinky down once. Like this.” He played the pattern, pressing keys in order from thumb to pinky and then back to thumb, playing the three keys in the middle twice each.

Grumbling, she tried again. And like she’d run her head into a brick fucking wall, it did not happen. She couldn’t go backward, at all, not unless she reset her fingers first.

“I fucking hate you.”

Sándor froze for a moment. “I’m sorry I—”

“Not you. My hand! Listen to me you fucker!” She lifted the stupid thing and glared at her fingers and their claws, before slamming them down on the piano. At least she had enough control to ease up before she hit the keys. Hard enough the sound made everyone jerk a bit. Soft enough she didn’t shatter the piano.

“I think,” Mary said, raising a hand. But her mom pulled it back down before she could say anything. Not fast enough for Triss to not notice though, and throw a harsh glare back at the giggling woman. Maybe giving the ghost a body was a bad idea.

Sándor made one of those tiny smiles again, and set his hand on the keys, near hers.

“Slowly,” he said, voice doing that thing it did where it got quiet and deep.

She took a peek at him, and he took a peek at her. Any other guy would’ve just looked away and back down at the piano, but Sándor did this thing where he looked straight into your damn soul. Blue eyes. She wasn't sure if the man was going out of his way to make eye contact with her, or if he lacked the usual tick people had to avoid too much eye contact. Maybe it was because he was a gargoyle, and sitting there staring at shit was a part of who he was.

So she looked away first, ignored Jen's knowing glance, and got back to trying to make her fingers work. Mary and Sam didn't notice the shared gaze, thank god. They kept laughing as they brought up some website to check up on their living friends' life updates, and they commented rapid fire on it. Who was getting married, who got divorced, who got pregnant. It was enough to make Triss's eyes roll like it was their job.

But god damn, it was nice to hear Sam laugh like that.

Triss looked up from the piano to Sándor, but the man wasn't looking at her anymore. He was looking at Mary and Sam, listening to them. His face was doing that stoic gargoyle thing, no emotion there, pure neutrality, but his eyes were only a foot from Triss's, and she could see more. So much more, like looking into a fucking ocean.

His phone rang. He checked.

"A message from Jack. Business."

"Business with Jack?" Triss asked.

"Important. I'm sorry, I have to go." The man nodded as he got up and headed for the door. "Feel free to stay, everyone." He nodded to the girls on the couches, and then to Triss. He paused for a moment, just a tiny moment as he looked at her, and then he was gone.

Mary and Sam looked up from their laptop to the door, and then back to Triss.

“That was kinda cold of him,” Mary said.

Triss shook her head as she tried to play the pattern again. “Nah. Well, I mean, I guess, but it’s not cold for Sándor. That’s just who the dude is.”

“A lot of men like that in Dolareido,” Jen said, looking over her phone to everyone. “The sheriff, of course. And Eric and Damien are pretty reserved, too. That said, they’ve both had sex at Bloodlust.”

Mary perked up. “They have!?”

“Not with each other.”

“Oh.”

Triss turned around on the piano bench to face the gossiping bitches three. “Jessy’s to blame.” Might as well join them. “She corrupted Fiona. Fiona and Jessy corrupted Eric. Then Fiona moved on and corrupted Damien, carrying the disease from host to host.” Seeing the tiny redhead on his lap, riding him despite being utterly drained and exhausted, and thoroughly spanked, was pretty damn hot. Triss didn’t really care for spanking, but that didn’t mean it wasn’t insanely hot seeing a little, big-titted chick like Fiona cum her brains out from it. Or watching Sam enjoy it, either.

Jennifer chuckled as she nodded. “Daniel might as well be a stone, however.”

Samantha giggled and sat up a little straighter to look between everyone. “A little birdie told me Daniel was having sex at Bloodlust too, with Athalia.”

Jen blinked at Sam like she’d just shot her. “Public sex? The sheriff?”

“Yeah.”

“What else did Natasha say?”

“W-What? I didn’t ... say it was Natasha.”

Jennifer laughed and shrugged. “Come now, who else would tell you such a thing?”

“The Prince might!”

“Would you ever refer to your sire as a little birdie?”

Sam sighed and slumped, earning a sideways hug from her daughter.

“No.”

Jennifer leaned back in her sofa chair and gently tapped her chin with her phone as she looked up.

“The sheriff is a gorgeous man, in that tall serial killer sort of way.”

Mary choked on a laugh. “Serial killers are hot?”

“To women of an age, absolutely. I’m sure your mother has watched many movies where she’s found herself drawn to the killer.” Shrugging like it was the most obvious thing, Jen looked back down to her phone and got to scrolling.

Sam however, squirmed and inched away from her daughter, only for Mary to pull her back in the sideways hug.

“Mom! What’s wrong with you!?”

“Honey, it’s not true! Jen’s exaggerating.”

“I know that look, Mom! Liar.”

As the two women erupted into the most ridiculous argument Triss had ever heard, Jen grinned and winked at her. It wasn't a wink about Mary and Sam. It was about Triss, and Sándor.

Triss shook her head. If Sándor was interested in her romantically, he didn't show it. Friends, sure, but not romantically. And that was probably for the best. He was just a calm, quiet, reserved dude who talked to everyone like that.

So Jen sent her a message on her phone. Triss checked. A picture of a dress, the one Jen planned for her to wear to the ball tomorrow. The damn woman was going to play the game again, try and seduce Sándor like he was some sort of trophy to be earned. Damn hilarious, and impossible. Triss chuckled as she shrugged, put the phone away, and got back to trying to get her stupid mother fucking fingers to dance on the piano keys.

She wasn't flirting with Sándor. Jacob had made a good point, and she knew it was in her best interest to listen to the damn bastard. What kind of fucking idiot would she have to be, to flirt with another man while trying to resurrect her lover? What sort of stupid, useless, depraved sack of shit would she have to be?

She was just hanging out with her friends, that was all. If the man thought differently, he wouldn't have bailed the moment Jack called.

Right?

---

~~Damien~~

“I can't believe it.”

“Believe it,” Jack said. “She went out looking for dresses with Mom yesterday.”

“Alone?”

“Nah. The sheriff was with her. Plus I think Tash and Jessy went, and Jessy probably dragged Eric along.”

Damien nodded as he circled the tear. “I can understand the sheriff going with them. Mary being alive is insane, and he can keep an eye on things.”

“Not exactly the best use of his time, but...”

“But we’re stumped.”

Jack sighed, and circled the tear in the opposite direction of Damien. Deep in the factory basement, it was highly unlikely any kine would find it. But they would find it eventually, unlike the other tears that were extremely well hidden, the ones in the physical world at least. They had to close it somehow.

“I really have no idea,” Jack said. “This tear doesn’t match the other ones. I mean, I know Black Blood has some tears around the city not on Tash’s chart, but they’re super old, and as far as Avery and the Begotten know, they’re stable. No danger to the Gauntlet, and no unusual amounts of essence flowing through them and stuff. Am I right?”

Sándor nodded. “Yes.” And of course, the man stopped there.

“I told Antoinette I’m going to help you, Sándor. When you think shit is about to hit the fan, get me.”

Sándor let out the tiniest sigh as he looked back to Jack, but he nodded. “I expected as much.”

“Fuck. I’m damn predictable, aren’t I?”

“Yes.”

“If it’s as bad as we think,” Damien said, “Jack should probably be there. The sheriff too.”

Jack nodded. “And Avery, and Sándor. Damien?”

“You have to ask?”

After a quick laugh, Jack shook his head and shrugged. “Well, I mean, you are a Mekhet. Not exactly meant for straight confrontations.”

“No, but I work well when I have someone else to be a distraction.”

“I can do that,” Jack said.

“Better than anyone I know.”

“Dude, what about Jessy?”

Damien laughed. “I suppose she beats everyone for that. I have firsthand experience.”

They spent more time circling the tear, and then the area. Mason the Uratha was there, hanging by the door, keeping a lookout for eavesdroppers, and providing any extra information he could. Unfortunately, that was none. The Uratha didn’t know why Black Blood made this tear, and they didn’t know how it ... he, made any of the tears. The joys of being a colossally powerful entity, you got to break the rules the little people thought were immutable.

Damien and Jack parked in front of the tear, and stared at it, both folding their arms across their chests as they peered into it. You couldn’t get a good look at the other realm from this side, but anyone who saw it would pretty quickly catch on that it was a tear in the literal air, sitting there, something that could be entered. It also radiated with the strange coldness of death that the Great Below seemed to love.

The other tears, the stable ones that'd apparently been around for years, or centuries, were invisible. Only a Begotten could open one, and according to Fiona, they closed up after being passed through. So they weren't tears at all, but doors. These tears, on the other hand, were very much tears, and the Uratha were terrified of them doing exactly what tears had a nasty habit of doing in anything else. Getting bigger.

"That's objective number three, I suppose," Damien said.

"Eh?" Jack asked.

"Closing the tears."

"Ah, right. Yeah, we're pretty fucked if we can't figure that out. I mean, I suppose we could start an azlu farm, and make them work for us." He grinned at Damien and Sándor, and shifted his weight back and forth from the tips of his toes to their heels.

A distant snort announced Mason's disdain for the idea.

"We stop the ritual first," Sándor said. "Then we can worry about closing off the tears."

"I know," Jack said. "Just trying to lighten the mood." He grinned as he quickly checked his phone, weight still shifting back and forth on his feet.

The Begotten nodded. "You're a lot happier than ... than the young man I first met."

Damien opened his mouth, but said nothing. Where was the gargoyle going with this?

“The curse was driving me insane at the time, literally. Plus Angela was ... yeah.”

Sándor shook his head. “I meant, you seem even happier now.”

“You mea—oh, because of Mary. You have no idea how happy I am, man. And how happy Mom is.”

Sándor nodded, a tiny hint of a smile showing through. And then a frown. Damien raised a brow as he watched the man, but as soon as Sándor noticed, he seamlessly returned to his statue stance, standing some ten feet away and leaning back against the dirty factory wall. It was all old concrete down here, covered in dust and dirt, announcing how many decades it'd been since anyone had touched the decrepit building.

Such was Dolareido's history. The industry boom came and went, and the city evolved into a sort of Las Vegas clone. Or rather, half of it did. It was a big city, and lots of neighborhoods were far from the more sinful areas, quiet and calm neighborhoods like Jack's family's. The other half of the city built skyscrapers and embraced the advancements of technology, and sexuality along with it.

It still irked him sometimes. But even Maria found preaching against sexuality was a holdover from ancient ideas.

“I am glad your sister is alive again,” Sándor said eventually.

“But,” Jack said, “you're worried it won't last.”

The Begotten slowly looked down and away. “I don't know. I see no reason to think Mary's not fine. I haven't checked her dreams yet, though.”

“Let's ... save that, 'til after the ball?”

“The ball?” Damien asked. “Why?”

Jack shrugged. “If there is something wrong with her, it can wait until after the ball to find out.”

“Uh, if we can find out if your sister is—”

“No.” The kid dismissed him with a small wave of the hand. “It can wait, ok? She seems fine, and we always have someone watching her. On the off chance there is something wrong with her, it can wait. She deserves it, and Mom deserves it. Besides, we’re busy.”

After a few heavy seconds of silence, Damien and Sándor nodded, but it was clear what was happening. The kid was avoiding a potentially very painful dose of reality. It was probably clear to Jack, too.

“Very well,” Sándor said.

Time for a topic change.

“Daniel’s last attempt to break the spell on Amanda’s mind failed,” Damien said. “Though he’s pretty convinced it was Black Blood’s doing.”

Jack’s shoulders slumped. “Which ... fucking sucks.”

“More than we thought?”

“Black Blood and Jacob have done some fucked up shit, I’m sure. The Prince tells me as much. But neither have ever been direct enemies before, you know? If they’re the ones that tricked the Carthians and Invictus into fighting, that pushes them over the line.”

“Ah,” Damien said, looking down. “Yeah, I guess ... I hadn’t really thought of them as anything other than enemies for a while.”

“Well I haven’t.” Jack groaned as he looked up at the ceiling beams. “They saved our lives before, you know. Fuck me, am I the only one that doesn’t default to assuming everyone is an enemy?”

Damien shook his head. “At this point, I think you should change that stance, Jack. It’s going to get you killed. It’s going to get other people killed.”

Jack opened his mouth, and closed it. And the following few heavy seconds of silence were a hundred times worse than the ones before.

“Sorry,” Damien said. “That was mean.”

“Yeah, it was, but honest, and that’s why we’re friends, man.” After a slow breath, Jack looked back to the tear, watched it for a few moments, and looked back to Sándor. “How are we keeping an eye on that tear you think is going to be important?”

“Mark does quick visits, very quick. Athalia and Vrallar’trakla aren’t ... sneaky enough, to risk it.”

Damien smiled. He said Fiona’s Horror’s name smoothly, no stutter or hesitation. Damien still couldn’t do that.

“Aren’t sneaky enough?” Jack asked. “They’re both, like, super darkness nightmare types, right? Jesus, how dangerous is that place?”

“It’s below where you’ve seen of the Great Below. There are ghosts there that ... have been sculpted by the land, and their memories. Some are small, some are large, many are violent.”

Damien raised a finger. “Shaped by land and memories?”

“Deeper into that realm, I’ve found rivers of flowing black ice, and bridges made of bone. As always, it appears to be wrapped in a giant cave, but deeper in, the cave seems to be larger. Infinitely larger. Some ghosts, if that is what they are, fly through the darkness and fog, serpentine and dragon-like. Some crawl like spiders, and hide in the darker places. It's ... almost like the spirit realm, except instead of being shaped by its sister realm, it's shaped by the minds of its inhabitants, their memories and emotions." He frowned as he looked down. "Mind is probably the wrong word. You ... You saw what Mary was like, when she was a ghost."

Jack shuddered. "I did. And if the ghosts down there get warped and shaped by their memories, that is ... pretty fucked up. I imagine a lot of those ghosts are angry about dying."

"Yes. Very. I avoided them on my few visits, but it was close. Mark is much better at avoiding things than I."

"Smart," Damien said. "But that means we can't keep a vigil on the tear."

"Correct. Mark will continue risking a quick visit now and then, but it is a dangerous and draining journey. We've seen strange markings carved into the ground around the tear."

"Still don't know where the tear goes?" Damien asked.

"No. I believe it goes deeper, but ... I'm pretty sure if I go through, I would die. Or something like dying."

Damien and Jack both shivered, this time. All this realm stuff didn't sit well with vampires. Uratha were comfortable with the idea that every thing in the physical world had a reflection on the spirit world. Dream monsters were comfortable with that realm, and dream realms, and other realms too. Vampires very much preferred to keep their feet on the ground, the physical one, made of asphalt.

But apparently some of the tears were cutting into realms even the Begotten refused to visit, and that was a scary thought.

“Okay,” Jack said, “I guess you should keep checking it out. The moment you think something is about to happen, let us know. I doubt whatever ritual Black Blood starts there will be done instantly. There should be a window of time to catch him in the act. Hopefully.”

“And if we miss that window?” Damien asked.

“Then I guess we’re fucked.”

They all sighed, even Sándor.

“Okay,” Jack said, “we need a happier topic. The ball. Fiona going?”

“She is. And she’s very excited to show off her new dress. She didn’t have much money in Scotland, or much access to ... Dolareido-friendly attire.”

“Well, tell her I look forward to seeing her in it.”

Damien squinted his eyes at Jack. “I will. Should I heavily imply to her that you also want to see her breasts in said dress?”

Jack laughed and shrugged. “I mean, sure? I bet half the people at the ball will be thinking the same about Antoinette.”

“Antoinette is an ancient vampire. Fiona is a young, innocent flower.”

That was too much, and the two of them burst into laughter again.

They made for the door, nodding to Mason as they approached, but Jack stopped and looked behind him.

“Sándor, we’re heading out. Wanna come? I’m waiting on a call from Mom, then we’re gonna hang out at Antoinette’s tower. But until then, we're free agents."

Damien suppressed his smile. It wasn't long ago Jack would have preferred to not invite someone else to socialize; the kid was just naturally introverted. Maybe he was trying to expand his views, or maybe he was just trying to keep Sándor close, where he was valuable. Honestly, Damien would have preferred it'd just be the two of them hanging out, purely because he was just as introverted as Jack. But Sándor had more than earned a place beside them. Assuming he wanted it, of course. The man seemed to be the most introverted of them all.

The gargoyle looked down slightly, thinking, before slowly nodding. "Okay."

---

Mulder and Scully perched on Jack's shoulders, and cawed curiously at Sándor, and the thing he stood beside.

"You spied on the whole city with this?" Sándor asked.

"I did. Though I preferred weaker telescopes, things I could move easily. Now I don't need to do that, so I set up a proper telescope."

The gargoyle nodded slightly before leaning back into the eyepiece. It was an interesting building they stood on, tall but not as tall as others, which meant a telescope placed on the roof corner had access to multiple streets and many buildings worth of windows to peer into, up and down.

"It still surprises me a vampire hid in the city for half a century."

"You're telling me," Jack said. He sat on the edge of the building on the opposite side of the roof, looking down at the streets below. "The Prince and the sheriff didn't know what happened in the chaos of the Purge. Lucas got away, and took a long nap. Damien spent fifty years hiding in sewers and spying on us. Pretty damn impressive.”

“If the sheriff knew I was hanging around,” Damien said, “I’m sure it would have been a different story. I was basically anonymous. I walked the streets plenty of times.” Which was technically true, but he also spent most of his time hiding in the tunnels.

“It still blows my mind,” Jack said. “About the weird place Tony had underground, that Lucas took over. The wurm’s nest, according to Antoinette, whatever that means. Place had influence, bent people’s minds. Dolareido really is a weird city, isn’t it?”

Sándor aimed the telescope down to the street. Unlike Fiona, the man was naturally gentle and smooth with the motion, any excitement he might have felt over its extreme telescopic powers tempered by his age and wisdom. Or the man was just really chill, which was Fiona’s belief.

“Places affected by essence,” Sándor said, “most likely.”

Jack nodded. “Yeah, that’s what Avery said. Tony had been using it, not knowing it was giving his voice some power. Then Lucas found it and used it. A perfect storm of shit.”

“You’re telling me,” Damien said. “I still can’t believe how much things have changed. The Lancea et Sanctum is alive, again. Barely, but it is. I’m not hiding anymore. I have a nice apartment in the expensive center of South Side. I have a girlfriend.”

“I was still human four years ago. So uh, I think I got you beat.”

“True.”

“Sándor,” Jack said, “I wanted to ask you about Mom. You were helping her and Beatrice, right?”

The man stepped away from the telescope, a hint of sadness showing through.

“I did.”

“I’m not going to ask about what you did or how you did it. I’m guessing Triss would prefer to keep that information between her and Mom and the witches. And you.”

Slowly, the man nodded, face returning to its usual neutral state.

“Cool.” Jack stood up and walked over to the man. “I just wanted to ask about Mom and Triss. I mean, Jen was there too, but she’s ... Honestly I have no idea about Jen. She likes Triss, romantically even, and is willing to help her in her witch pursuits, far as I know. But...”

“But,” Sándor said, “Jennifer does not seem interested in a committed romantic relationship. At least for herself.”

“Friends with benefits,” Damien said.

Jack laughed. “A good a descriptor as any. But, my mom, how was she during all this? I ... I was pretty adamant she needed to let Mary go, that she was dead and gone and her ghost had to follow. Knowing she kept working at resurrecting her despite that, fucking stings. I feel like shit.”

Sándor looked down at the kid, before he sat back against the rooftop railing beside the telescope, and folded his arms across his chest.

“She was a mother. Beatrice tempered her expectations, but she was committed to helping her daughter. I think ... if Mary had moved on, Samantha would have accepted it. But as long as Mary remained, a ghost, your mother would do everything she could do revive her.”

“Ah fuck. Now I feel even worse.”

“Don’t.” Sándor shook his head, eyes falling again. “You did the right thing. It’s not good for people to hold onto the dead.”

No one said a thing for a few seconds after that. The night was just filled with heavy silences.

“Which brings me to my next question. Beatrice. She, uh ... she doing okay?” As if the question was a little too painful, Jack turned his attention to his birds, and scratched each of them behind the neck.

“You want to know about her progress with resurrecting Julias?”

“No. She told me that’s far off, and Julias’s ghost isn’t hanging around. Unless she can pull off some really, really freaking shit, I ... I don’t think she’ll ever revive him.”

The gargoyle slowly nodded. “Perhaps. She has proven remarkably talented at ... witch things.”

“Agreed. But Jacob’s a freaking master of that stuff, and even with Black Blood’s help, he hasn’t been able to bring back Minerva. Triss knows that. I think as the months have gone by, she’s accepted that, but a part of her refuses to move on ‘cause ... well...” Jack shrugged as he sat down beside Sándor, and held out a hand in front of him, sideways. Without hesitation, Mulder flew down and perched on his finger, before cawing once at Sándor. “She’s stubborn.”

Damen laughed, earning Jack’s glare and ire.

“Come on, Jack,” Damien said. “You’re one of the most stubborn people I know.”

“That’s ... only a little true, right?”

Damien laughed and shrugged, got up, and set his eye to his telescope. The roof wasn't only selected for its altitude relative to other buildings, but also for its darkness. It was forever in the shadow of a neighboring building, which blocked the lights of a nearby casino. Anyone who looked out their windows, or looked up from the streets, would be partially blinded by the casino and other extravagant lights that could never quite land on the specific corner of the building with the telescope.

Sure enough, some of the windows were open. Plenty, actually, as was common in Dolareido. Many of them showed kine dancing and drinking. Others showed kine sitting upon couches and watching the television, often with an arm raised in triumph or dismay. Several had men sitting while a woman stripped, usually while standing on a table. One had women — and one man — sitting around while a man stripped on a table.

And of course, several windows showed people having sex. Three of them showed a young couple having sex. Two showed a man with two women. One showed a woman with two men. And one of them showed a couple well into their seventies having sex, which didn't exactly match Dolareido's tone. Jessy would probably have said it was awesome, old people getting 'randy' and having sex so openly. Old people simply did not care what others thought.

Damien aimed the telescope down, and scanned through the streets. Populous a city as Dolareido was, the wide sidewalks were packed with kine, going about their business in the nightlife. At this time of night in this part of the city, that business was almost exclusively some form of revelry by rich people. Suits, dresses, and nightclub attire were everywhere.

Not a single one of them knew the whole city could collapse around them at any moment due to some mysterious ritual no one understood.

“I think,” Jack said, “Triss will eventually let this go, like Jacob did. But you’ve been hanging with her more than I have lately, Sándor. Am I right?”

“I ... do not know. I think a part of her wants to let it go. I think a part of her is determined to see this to the end. She is stubborn, and she is intelligent.”

Damien raised a brow as he took a peek at Sándor, before sticking his eye back into the telescope eyepiece. He said ‘intelligent’ with a little more inflection than the man usually used.

“She is,” Jack said. “And I really do think she’d be happier if she let this go. She’s gotten really close with Jen, and I know she’s ... uh ... been a little more intimate with my mom than I’d probably like.”

Damien coughed, causing the telescope to swing up. Thank the Lord it was very heavy and mounted on a tripod. Not easily knocked over. If it fell, it was more than large enough to punch a hole through a car’s roof, let alone a kine’s head.

Sándor nodded, as if what Jack said was the most normal thing. “All the witches I’ve known have been very free with their sexuality. And hundreds of years ago, that was empowering.”

“It’s not now?” Jack asked.

“I suppose it is. But back then, women were property. Most witches were women, and you can imagine how freeing it was for them when they broke free of their social chains.”

“He has a point,” Damien said. “Witches had a habit of being women. I can imagine it being very terrifying, and exhilarating, for women back then to break free and ... be powerful.” He had to admit, witches were an extremely popular and compelling image of female power. Then again, that was cultural, and inaccurate.

Witches had always been both male and female, at least as far as vampires and the Lancea et Sanctum were concerned.

“Well, either way,” Jack said, “I’m happy Triss is getting over losing Julias. Maybe not happy about her moving on by touching my mom, but still. And she’s been hanging out with you, how’s that going?”

“She ... She seems happy. Happier than she was before. She’s learning piano.”

Damien raised his head. “Is she?”

“Yes. But she ran into some barriers with the basics. I think I helped her find the problem.”

Damien almost asked what, but that’d give him away. And if Triss didn’t tell Sándor it was Damien teaching her, better to leave it a secret.

“What was that?”

“She tried to...” He stopped. “I think I’ll keep it secret unless she shares it.” The gargoyle nodded to himself as he looked off into space, brows furrowed slightly. He was a heavy thinker. Damien could relate. He was also thinking about Triss more than Damien expected.

“But she’s enjoying herself?” Jack asked.

“Yes. I think. She spends a lot of time thinking about what she’s still trying to do, with Julias. But, she often comes out of those thoughts, and enjoys the moment. Laughs. Smiles. Your mother has helped her a lot with that, in a strange way.”

Sighing, Jack held Mulder closer to his chest, and gently stroked the bird from head to tail feather.

“I know I was being an asshole, telling Mom she needs to let Mary go when Mary was still around, but ... I don’t think it’s the same with Julias. She needs to let the man go.”

“I don’t think you were wrong,” Damien said, “to tell your mom that. Resurrection is unheard of. No one could have seen Mary’s resurrection coming.”

Jack smiled at him, and raised the shoulder Scully sat on in his direction. Scully flew over to Damien, making him jerk back a bit, but she hovered there for a second before she eventually settled on his shoulder. How the bird managed to fly with a screwed up wing, he didn’t know, but she’d managed somehow, and she stretched the crooked thing before hooking it against her side. Other than her moment of flight, Scully’s movements were not very bird-like, and far more stone gargoyle-like, just sitting there perfectly still and occasionally twisting her head around to look at stuff. She didn’t breathe.

“Agreed,” Sándor said, eyes raising as he pulled himself out of whatever spiraling thought hole that’d caught him. “About Mary. As for Julias, I ... don’t know. Jacob and Beatrice have accomplished extreme things. And this time, they have both Black Blood, and Elen.”

They went silent for a moment with the mention of Elen. The witches’ prisoner. Someone who could perform haruspex, and flesh magic. Yeesh.

“It’s a pretty scary road,” Jack said.

Damien gestured up to the crow on his shoulder. “Two dead birds and two dead people sitting on a rooftop with a literal nightmare. Is the witch stuff really that scary?” Of course it was, but it was worth it to try looking at things from a different perspective.

“Heh. Figured you’d be the first one to say sacrificing people in dangerous witch rituals was a bad idea.”

“I would be, but I’m playing devil’s advocate for a moment. We really in a position to be judging witches for dipping their toes into stuff like that?”

The two vampires looked to Sándor.

The gargoyle spent some time looking down, thinking, arms still folded across his chest. It was strangely easy to talk to Sándor, about anything, probably because of how much he preferred to sit and listen. Which made him the perfect man to ask a question to, if you could find the right question.

“I witnessed some of what they did,” he said. “Beatrice is trying very hard to keep her hands clean. Relatively speaking. She’s well aware of the dangers of the road she walks.”

Jack nodded. “Beatrice always was smart, way smarter than any Carthian I’ve dealt with. Kinda surprises me Jacob took so long to recruit her.”

“She is special.” Again, the gargoyle nodded with his usual quiet stoicism. He’d said ‘special’ with a little more inflection than usual, like he had with ‘intelligent’ a moment ago.

The longer Jack and Damien hung out with the man, the more obvious it was becoming that he had a lot of thoughts, and just preferred to not say them. He’d mastered the art of saying less than he knew, which was a very dangerous skill.

“Yeah,” Jack said, smiling a little as he looked from Sándor to Damien. He saw it too, the way Sándor instantly went into think mode the moment they said Beatrice’s name.

It could have meant a lot of things. Maybe Sándor was still tearing himself up over Julias's death, and how many people it'd affected, especially Beatrice. Maybe Beatrice reminded him of his dead wife. Maybe the guy was trying to find a way to stop Jennifer — and by proxy, Beatrice — from her constant flirting with him. Or, maybe, the guy liked her.

Unfortunately, Damien couldn't navigate social dynamics to save his life, and Jack wasn't much better. So Damien gave Scully a few strokes of the back of her head, and shrugged at Jack.

"I'm not sure what Triss is going to do," Jack said after a while, "but with how close she is to Jacob and Black Blood, we need to keep an eye on her." Sándor furrowed his brows a little harder, going from slight to actually noticeable, as he looked at Jack. "Which means, since you're the only one of us that's been involved with her, uh, extracurricular activities..."

"I'll keep an eye on her," Sándor said. He opened his mouth again, but after a few seconds of silence, he got up and turned to face over the railing and toward the streets below. Silence. Jack and Damien said nothing.

After a slow breath, Sándor leaned forward and set his hands on the railing. At this point Jack and Damien had caught on it was best to just shut up and wait until the man was ready to speak. It took a while. Sándor squeezed the railing, and looked up at the night sky, all stars hidden in the constant night lighting of Dolareido.

"I won't let anyone else die," he said at last. "I don't care what I have to do. I won't let anyone else die."

Damien and Jack blinked at each other.

"I get that," Jack said. "But, I mean, we're all on that page. Right?"

It took a few more moments before Sándor eventually nodded.

“Right.”

---

~~Eric~~

“No Mary or Sam this time?” Eric asked.

Jessy laughed and shook her head. “Nope. I got a few dresses I wanna check out.”

“Ball is tomorrow.”

“Yeah but I know they got a few things here in my size. Come on.”

He nodded as he looked around, and took a deep breath.

The clothing store was basically the same as the last one. A large floor filled with racks of clothes, dresses and suits, and shoes, with a few winding paths separated by walls that didn't quite reach the ceiling. There weren't many people in the store, but ten people was plenty when you were dealing with the crazy prices of Dolareido's nightlife.

“Sometimes I wonder why Dad doesn't come visit Bloodlust,” he said, “or take advantage of the money I give him and go shopping for better clothes.” Eric lifted the sleeve of a suit he passed by, checked the price, groaned, and let it go. “And then sometimes I completely understand.”

“Wasting money is fun!”

“It's not so fun when you don't have a lot of it.”

“You have a lot of it now.” Jessy rolled her eyes as she scooped a black dress up from the racks, and held it against her body in front of him. She was in a casual suit, like he was, because coming to a place like this in jeans and a t-shirt would have been grounds for getting arrested.

“I didn’t always.” He checked the price tag, groaned like before, and put the dress back. Which of course just made the vampire laugh.

“Me neither, remember? Rough life and all that before Michael found me.”

“Then where’s your natural aversion to wasting money?”

She shrugged, grabbed another dress, and did the same thing. “Gone. I’d like to say it’s ‘cause I’ve got a lot more years under my belt and feel comfortable spending. But I’m pretty I’ve always spent every dime I got, even in my first year.” Her first year as a vampire, she meant. “I was a dumbass with money.”

“I’m guessing you also spent any money you got your hands on when you were alive.”

She laughed and shrugged, even as he pushed her ridiculously expensive dress down and helped her put it back.

“Yeah, I probably did.”

“My dad would have given you a whipping. With a belt.”

“Kinky.”

“Not so much when you’re eight and your dad’s giving you a whipping cause you bought some candy without his permission.”

“Oof, that sucks. Kinda surprised he was doing that in the ... what, nineties?”

“He was old school.” Eric made no attempt to hide the contempt in his voice when he said ‘old school’. “But I’m exaggerating how bad it was. He was an ass, but not that much of an ass.”

“Good. I’d stop sending him pictures if he turned out to be a shit dad.”

Eric groaned, again, which of course sent Jessy into fits of laughter as she pulled him along.

“About the ball tomorrow,” she said. “Any expectations?”

“A little. If you-know-who is going to make a move, it might be then.”

She nodded as she grabbed another dress, did a quick test for him, and slung it over her shoulder before he could check the tag.

“Well, if the person of the hour isn’t there, then we’ll know something’s up. They’re invited.”

It was annoying avoiding saying Jacob’s name, but with how everything was building up, it was probably for the best. It wasn’t like Jacob wasn’t smart enough, or powerful enough, to spy on them. He could literally be in the room, and Eric doubted either of them would be able to sense him until he got close. They had to be careful.

“Anything else?” she asked.

“I expect to see a lot of skin, I suppose.”

“Well that’s a given. It won’t be like our little parties at Bloodlust, though, everyone topless and shit.”

“To your dismay.”

“To my utter dismay.” She nodded and stood tall and proud, before slumping and grabbing another dress. “I look forward to Mary being there.”

“Poor kid. Been alive for a few days and now she’s going to be sideline to an orgy.”

“Ugh, I wish. Nah, no orgy.”

“But there will be a few thralls and ghouls, naked, and getting drained mid orgasm, right?”

“Of course. That’s not an orgy! That’s just a banquet.”

“Uh huh.” He rolled his eyes, but he couldn’t help but chuckle. Vampires were a strange bunch. “I seriously doubt Samantha will let anyone touch her daughter.”

“Yet. It’s not like Sam has a leg to stand on, with the way her sex drive has exploded since being sired.” And another dress went onto the shoulder.

They continued shopping for a bit. Jessy got ten dresses over her shoulder — so much for ‘few’ — before she was done looking around. She also checked her phone for a second, sent someone a text, nodded, grinned at her phone, put it away, and dragged Eric to a changing room. No one stopped them from sharing one.

“I got a surprise for you,” she said, smile somewhere between excited and malicious. She pushed him gently until he had to sit down on the bench in the small room of white walls, a tall mirror behind Jessy.

“You do?”

She winked at him and opened the door, just barely wide enough to reach through it, and as the smell of a new person hit Eric’s nose, Jessy pulled them in.

“Marge?” Eric asked.

“Hello! Jessy told me to come. Said she was going to buy me a dress.”

Jessy nodded, scooped the dress off the bench beside Eric, and handed it to her. “Here ya go.” Eric hadn’t gotten to see what the dressed looked like, but in Jessy’s palm, it didn’t look like much more than scarf.

Marge was a small woman, with light-dark skin and tiny facial features, very cute. Her hair had grown out, and she’d straightened it so it came down in waves to her shoulders. She wore a casual suit too, no jacket, white shirt. At the last ball, she’d worn a white dress that covered her a lot more than whatever Jessy had just handed her. Chalk one up for Jessy, she’d corrupted another one.

“Thanks! I’ll go—”

Jessy rolled her eyes, took Marge by the shoulders, and pushed her to the center of the changing room before sitting down beside Eric.

“Change,” Jessy said, with a little more aggression than Eric expected. He blinked at her, and she grinned at him before nodding to Marge.

“Um, what?” the hunter asked.

“Change. Take off current clothes. Put on new clothes.” Jessy laughed.

“You mean—oh. We’re doing that now?” The small hunter gulped as she looked between Jessy and Eric, blush hitting her cheeks.

“Um, what?” Eric asked.

Jessy slapped him on the knee. “Sit back and enjoy.”

Oh god. Eric groaned, but a quick glance between the two women settled his nerves. Yeah, it was pretty obvious Jessy was bullying Marge into this, probably like how Isabella had bullied her into staying with her troupe for a while. And it was obvious Marge didn't expect to suddenly have to put on a strip tease for Eric and the vampire. But at the same time, Marge looked intrigued. Dolareido had rubbed off on her, too.

“Jessy,” Eric said, turning his head to look at her, but keeping Marge in the corner of his eye. “Did you really ‘convince’ Marge to do this, by offering to buy her a dress?”

“Dude. It’s an expensive dress.”

He grumbled again and leaned back until his shoulders pressed to the wall of the changing room. Which earned a small chuckle from Marge. She looked embarrassed and caught off guard, but she also looked like she knew enough about Eric to expect his grumbling. Someone had been filling her in on his personality, and he knew who.

“Hey, you!” Jessy pointed at Marge. “Get naked.”

Eric shook his head. “Marge, you don’t—”

Marge undid the button of her skirt, and slid it down, exposing her naked legs. Small as she was, there was muscle there, giving her legs more shape than the skirt suggested. She quivered as she did, and Eric could almost hear her heart rate pick up.

“Marge is going to be our little slave girl for the next few weeks,” Jessy said. “It’s my turn.”

“Turn?” Eric raised a brow as he blinked at the Gangrel, but when he looked back to Marge, the hunter didn’t protest. Instead, she undid the buttons of her shirt, blush showing through her chestnut skin as she exposed her small white bra. That was a tiny stomach.

“Turn! Isabella had her for so long, and—”

“Jessy, she’s not a toy.”

Jessy grumbled as she folded her arms across her chest. “I know that, I’m just playing. Marge and I have been hanging out at Bloodlust, I told you that. And Marge is a—”

“A hunter,” Eric said, earning a short pause from Marge. But a hand wave from Jessy had her resuming her undressing, and she undid the bra, slowly. She let it fall, exposing her dark, tiny, but very hard nipples standing from her small breasts.

Shrugging, Jessy got up, came up behind Marge, and cupped her breasts from behind, instantly earning another quiver from her prey. The small woman met Eric’s eyes before she looked down as Jessy massaged her breasts, a tiny hint in her eyes giving it all away.

This woman, Marge, Eric had met girls like her before. She acted shy, and maybe a little part of her was, but a much bigger part of her liked being the center of attention. The whole thing with the conservative white dress at the ball was probably her not sure how to handle herself, considering she was going into a ball full of vampires for the first time. But that hadn’t been the kinda girl she really was. No wonder she’d found herself at Isabella’s mercy; the woman was a dominatrix and probably loved dominating someone like Marge.

Which honestly made Eric feel a little better about the girl getting bullied into this by his girlfriend. Much as she looked nervous and a bit scared, and was, she was also obviously aroused. And it wasn’t long before his werewolf nose could smell it, too.

“I am a hunter,” she said, managing another shy peek at Eric. “But, it’s not ... it’s not what people think. I didn’t get into it like most people. I was sort of dragged into it. And after seeing Dolareido, I can ... I guess I can see why a lot of people get seduced by this nightlife.”

“Exactly,” Jessy said, and she lowered her right hand down Marge’s slender stomach, and down under her white panties. Marge didn’t stop her. The little hunter managed a tiny gasp, and another peek at Eric, before she melted back into the vampire.

~♥♥♥~

“You make it sound like you want to be a vampire, too,” Eric said, eyes struggling to not watch Marge wriggle. His willpower didn’t last. Jessy knew exactly how to have Marge boiling, and the hunter pressed back against Jessy, silently begging for more, and Eric watched with growing hunger.

“I don’t know. M-Maybe?” she said between tiny mewls.

“Isabella was trying to convince her,” Jessy said. “I’m trying to convince her, too.”

Eric looked up from the working hand in Marge’s underwear, and up to Jessy who had her chin on Marge’s shoulder, evil grin pointed at him.

“Yeah?”

“Yeap. Marge is awesome, and we know she’s got skills. I wouldn’t mind having a childe like her.” Nodding, the Gangrel raised her other hand, and wrapped it around the small woman’s throat. Instant response. Marge squirmed more, and the crotch of her underwear darkened with wetness.

“I hadn’t even thought about that.” Slowly, Eric took another deep breath, and again tried to lift his eyes. Still no go. Seeing his girlfriend play Marge’s body like an instrument was too compelling, a lot more arousing than he figured it’d be honestly, and his eyes locked onto the prey in her grasp as Marge got closer and closer to orgasm. Either her time with the vampires had put her body on a hair trigger, or she naturally had one. Dolareido did seem to attract those types.

He was no different. He was already hard.

“And she can satisfy the boys for me.”

“Boys?” Marge asked, eyes snapping open wide and head turning to look up at the taller woman behind her.

“My four ghouls. They miss doing the four-on-one thing, you know? They get laid regularly, but that’s just with random kine at the club. They’d love to have a girl they can all pound on at the same time.” Jessy tightened her grip on the girl’s throat, pulling a meek little whimper from her. “Which I know you’d love.”

Marge squeaked again.

Laughing, Jessy let go of the woman, and gave her a small shove. Marge stumbled but didn’t fall, some of those hunter reflexes coming into play despite how her body was clearly two seconds away from orgasm. Poor woman. Jessy was a bitch, and left her boiling.

“Ok, now suck off my boyfriend while I try on some dresses.”

Eric stared at Jessy for a few moments before looking at Marge. The hunter met his eyes, blushed, and got on her knees. He hadn’t expected this.

Humming like she was working on a garden, Jessy walked over to the bench past Marge, scooped up a dress, stepped around her, put her back to Eric, faced the large mirror, and undressed. Eric wanted to watch that, and he did a bit, but Marge was between in his legs and on her knees in seconds, and slowly undoing the fly of his pants. He didn't stop her. He told Jessy he was willing to let other people join them, though he didn't expect it to happen at a clothing store, that was currently open, with kine walking by just ten or twenty feet away.

Marge grinned up at him, again giving him a peek of that quietly mischievous personality that loved being the center of attention. If, and when she got more comfortable with the nightlife, there was a good chance she might actually become a bit of a brat. He'd met a few of those types when he was famous, and they were very good at getting people to pay attention to them. No wonder Jessy had been drawn to her.

As Marge pulled his length out of his pants, and let out a quiet moan as she leaned in while looking up at him, he had to wonder how much of this relationship between her and Jessy was Marge scratching Jessy's itch to be dominant with someone, or Marge tricking her into doing just that. Women were crafty creatures.

Marge wrapped her hand around the base of his cock, pulled it toward her, and set it along her face so it pressed against her cheek and went past her eye and over her forehead. Before he could say anything, she kissed it and slid her lips up the length of it until she found the swollen tip. Gently, she wrapped her lips around it, and took her time bathing it with her tongue as she got comfortable, scooting in a little closer.

“How about this?”

“W-What?” Eric snapped his attention back up to Jessy.

“Dude. Pay attention.” Somewhere along the line, she'd already changed into a black leather dress. “How about this?” Grinning like a giddy idiot, she did an elbow-in-the-air dramatic magazine cover pose.

“Uh, looks a little plain.” And it was a little plain. Sexy as fuck, but it was just a black leather dress with a short skirt and a tight, slim top. No flair or anything.

“Ha. Better fashion advice than usual. We should do this more often.” Nodding, she stripped down to nothing but little black underwear, did a little dance for him meant to make her tits and ass bounce — they did — before she grabbed another dress, and slipped it on over her head.

“I didn’t think I’d ever be good at giving fashion advice.”

“You’re better than the boys. Probably ‘cause of your history.” Shrugging, she faced him and came a little closer, now wearing a white dress, just as short as the first, but also with a stomach window cross laced. “This?”

Eric squirmed as Marge slid more of him into her mouth. “Better.”

“Better, but...”

“Not really digging white on you.”

“I look good in white!”

“I mean, you do, but it doesn’t really fit your ... vibe.” A small groan sneaked in through his words, and he frowned down at Marge. She only grinned up at him as she slowly dragged her lips back over his glans until she placed a kiss on the tip, before enveloping it again.

“What? I can’t pull off fair maiden?”

He stared at her, and gestured down at the girl between his legs with one hand. Jessy laughed, but nodded after a second and picked up another dress, and stripped again.

“Alright, how about this?” She looked in the mirror and slid the olive dress down over her body. It didn’t have sleeves, or a back, and it hugged her whole body snug. Very snug. It was also partly see-through.

“That ... kinda ... works.” He breathed deep as a pulse of bliss worked its way from the head of his cock down underneath it and behind his testicles. Flexing muscles built up pressure, and he let the breath go as he felt pleasure building.

“You think? The fabric is really thin. I feel pretty naked in this. Which is awesome.” Nodding, she sat down beside him, and grinned down at Marge as she reached down, and slid her fingers into the girl’s hair. “Think Fiona will wear something similar? She likes green. It’s a redhead thing.”

“She—” He shivered as the first pulse of cum shot through its length, and the hard flex of his cock in Marge’s mouth announced it. If she was going to lift her head, she didn’t even try, not with Jessy’s hand in her hair. Instead, she slowed her hand on the base of his girth, and eased how much she licked and suckled, using her grip to milk his cum onto her tongue instead.

Jessy kept her hand where it was.

“She does like green,” he said, after a few more seconds of watching Marge. She didn’t stop, gently working her hand up and down his cock as he flooded her mouth with his cum. His girlfriend continued to keep the hunter’s head pinned where it was.

Oh. That’s why she was doing this, or at least this specific act. As insanely horny and kinky as Jessy was, she was a vampire. That meant the only thing that went down her throat she wasn’t willing to vomit up later, was blood.

So she hired — sort of — Marge to do the job for her. And she did just that, her eyes drifting between Jessy and Eric as she swallowed down his cum. Unfortunately for her, he was Uratha. The moment she swallowed him down, another gush of his cum poured over her tongue, and another. She blinked up at him as she continued to stroke him, earning another pulse of pleasure down through his length and into his core, and another wave of the hot, heavy fluid into her mouth. And another. She swallowed them down again, blinking up at him a few times in surprise. And then again, because he was still hard.

Jessy outright purred as she watched, before looking back up to him. “I know, right? Fiona looks so damn good in green. But she prefers the brighter shit, and it goes well with the skin and freckles and stuff.” Winking at him, she took Eric’s right hand, and slid it into Marge’s hair, until his palm was holding most of her head and gently pinning her on his cock. Marge shivered, and smiled up at him with her shy-but-not-so-shy eyes.

Satisfied, Jessy got back up, and slipped out of the dress, making sure to sway her ass left and right as she did. It was a damn tight dress, and it hugged her snug as it pulled up over her curves.

“I was thinking,” she went on, “we can’t let Marge in on the big secrets, but she wants to get a little more involved in other stuff. She is a hunter, you know?” She grabbed another dress. Blue, this time. Not see-through, but with how loose it was it might as well have been. It was nothing more than a couple of dangling straps over the chest that tied around behind the neck, very loose, and connected at the waist before splitting into four strips for a skirt that reached all the way down to her ankle. The four strips were thin, and barely covered anything, including her underwear.

“Need to wear a blue thong with this,” she said, “or, you know, nothing.”

“Marge wants to get into ... hunts?” he said. Before he realized he was even doing it, he nudged Marge’s head toward him, helping her take another inch of his cock. She didn't resist.

“Yeap. Her, Harcourt, and Dennis. Harcourt probably ‘cause he’s with Clara now, and getting interested in whatever she’s up to. But the dress, what do you think?” She spun around a bit, fast enough the leg strips swung out for a second, and the straps on her chest swung out enough to expose her breasts for second, too. At least they settled back over them when she stopped spinning, covering her nipples, barely.

“I think I like it. It’s very fancy.”

“Ha, right? This looks more Daeva than anything, but whatever, I’m cool dressing up like a pretty bitch for a night.” Nodding, she sat beside him again, and reached between his legs as she faced him. She winked at him, intertwined her fingers with Marge’s, and helped stroke his length faster. “Isn’t this fun?”

“I do like a lady in a dress.”

She laughed. “You know what I mean, jackass.”

Before he could respond, she leaned in and kissed him. She purred into him, even moaned a little, and stroked his length faster, squeezing it the way he liked, the way she learned after being with him for months.

He came again, and Jessy chuckled into his lips as she milked him into Marge’s mouth.

Ok, yeah, he could get used to this.

Chapter 164

~~Jack~~

“There’s going to be a lot of vampires there, Mary,” Jack said.

“I know.”

“They know you’re a resurrected person. They’re going to be watching you all night.”

“I know.”

“Some of them might even try and corner you, and, uh, ‘convince’ you to come with them.” He air-quoted convince.

She laughed and shrugged. “I know.”

Him, his sister, and his mom were in a limousine, currently on the way to the Black Hall, with a loyal thrall driving them. His thralls weren’t coming. Maybe next time, but he didn’t feel entirely secure with his three girls coming to the ball, not when Jacob was still an unknown factor. Antoinette wasn’t bringing her ghouls, either.

Mulder stayed back at the mansion, playing watch duty with the girls. They’d gotten used to the undead familiars, and were probably playing with Mulder right now, making puzzles for him to solve with their shiny jewelry and stuff. Find the ring under the cups, dig in the couch for a bracelet, things like that. The birds’ minds were never the same after being turned undead, but there was still a sliver of crow in there, and Jack was thankful his thralls were happy to play with them.

Scully, on the other hand, flew overhead, following the limousine, sending Jack updates about whatever she saw. She'd stay outside once they arrived, his scout. Maybe in the future he'd invite her into the ball, but for now he wanted her outside and doing recon, hopefully without anyone noticing.

"Not to mention the dress," he said, gesturing to Mary.

"Hey! I picked a nice dress."

It was a nice dress, white, with tiny straps that hooked around the neck and hugged a snug front to her chest, before ending in a skirt that went long, and split at the thigh. It could have even been a normal fancy dress, and not hyper sexual, if not for the fact the chest was really thin, width-wise. Her breasts were almost popping out the sides, held in only by the extra strap that pulled on the chest and went around the back, almost like a swimsuit. Topped with some fancy, but subtle jewelry, she looked great. Too great. Surrogate father instincts kicking in, maybe? Or just brother instincts.

"A little more revealing than I'd like," their mom said.

Mary gestured to their mom. "Pot calling kettle black, don't you think?"

Jack groaned as he glanced at his mom, and looked away. Yeap, Mary was right, their mom was dressed in an even more revealing dress, black, and pretty much the same as Mary's except the chest also split down the front to show off an absurd amount of cleavage, all the way down. Like, now he knew his mom shaved her privates smooth, all the way down.

At least they were wearing underwear, tiny thongs, but he wasn't happy being able to tell the color of them matched their dresses. That was information no man should ever have to know about his sister or mother, vampires or not.

“You know you could wear suits,” he said. “Lot of ladies wear suits.”

“To the ball?” Mary asked.

“I mean, a few ... jackets open and shirts undone to only the bottom button ... with no bra.” Still, slightly more conservative than the dresses they were wearing.

“That does sound pretty sexy, honestly.”

He groaned and shook his head. “Mom, please keep her out of trouble.”

“I will ... try.”

“Mom!”

Their mom giggled, reached out, and gave his knee a slap.

“Come on, Jack! Mary’s alive, and it wouldn’t be fair of me to tell her she’s not allowed to enjoy herself the way we have.”

Jack put up a hand. “She’s been alive for three nights. How about we ease her into things?”

“No!” Mary slapped his knee, much harder than their mom. “I’ve been a ghost for so long, I have a lot to make up for. I’m going to enjoy myself tonight, in whatever way I want. And unlike you two, I can get drunk.”

The idea of his sister getting drunk at a Black Hall ball sent his mind spiraling into some very disturbing imagery. Disturbing for him, at least. He didn’t want to stumble onto his sister getting fingered and Kissed by three vampires while lying on a table naked, like a meal. Which was exactly what a lot of vampires there would think the moment they saw her.

“Mary,” their mom said, “I know I don’t have to give you the sex talk. And I know it’s not an issue with vampires anyway, but at least be careful? You can drink, sure. You can... ‘socialize’, if you want.” She struggled hard with the word socialize. “But remember, it’s a room full of predators. All of them will be looking for a meal, and that can be a fun time for both parties, but not all the predators play nice.”

“Then it’s a good thing your sire is the Prince, and she’s going to make sure everyone gets along.” Grinning like an evil imp, Mary nodded and drummed her palms on her knee. She was excited. “Don’t worry. I won’t leave the Black Hall without at least one of you.”

Jack sighed, but nodded. That was a good compromise. Unfortunately, it meant she had the entire ball’s duration to get herself into trouble, and she was good at that. Very good.

The limousine pulled up to the building, and he watched Mary’s eyes light up as she looked out the car window. Their mom was right. He should lighten up and let her enjoy herself however she wanted.

Christ, she really was alive. This was his sister, a reckless, bubbly girl who never thought more than five minutes ahead. And she’d been happy back in the day. And she was happy now.

He smiled as he watched her, and for the first time in a long time, let himself imagine what it’d be like to have his mom and sister back together and in his life again. Terrifying, considering his mom was dating Jacob, and had become intimately familiar with Black Blood. Horrifying, because he knew it was likely Mary would want to become a vampire, and join the nightlife.

But maybe...

---

“Now presenting, Mister Jack Terry, Right Hand of the Invictus. Miss Samantha Terry, childe of the Prince, and young dragon. And ... Miss Mary Terry, biological child of Samantha Terry.” The presenter, dressed in a suit better suited for a penguin, actually did a double take at the card in his hand. Someone — probably another one of Antoinette’s thralls — must have given it to him at the last minute.

“Holy shit,” Mary whispered, leaning over to Jack. “That’s ... wow.”

The Black Hall was a ballroom, but Mary apparently hadn’t quite prepared herself for what that meant. It meant chandelier. It meant a huge floor filled with talking people, and tables with expensive and pristine white cloths over them. It meant lots of fancy clothes. It meant a second floor that you walked up to with either of two, giant, curving staircases that spread out and turned into a balcony that circled the ballroom. It meant a small orchestra playing live music up on the second floor, with the ceiling acoustics making sure everyone could hear it. It meant an entire building filled with black marble; it didn’t have the same white lightning veins the Elysium Tower did, but it wasn’t far off. It meant luxury.

Jack held out his elbow, and nudged Mary with it. She nudged him back.

“No, you idiot. Take my arm.”

“Oh, right!” Giggling, she hooked his arm, and walked with him, their mom right behind them and closer to Mary as they moved toward the crowd. They had a small staircase to go down, a circular one that opened up in the ballroom, and Jack made sure they took each step slowly so the people could get a good look. A show of confidence.

Bella was nearby. They spotted each other instantly, and Jack held her gaze for a few moments. Friend? Foe? She looked at him, his mom, his sister, and frowned as she disappeared into the churning crowd. Neither then. Well, that was good enough for him.

More than a few people stared at Mary, leaning over to whisper to each other as Jack came closer to the crowd. Some actually stopped what they were doing to look at her, trying to discern if she was a vampire or not. It didn't take long before everyone realized she was not. The only non-paranormal in the ball not bound by the Vinculum, save for the hunters, and thus a huge Masquerade threat. But also deeply connected to the Prince and Jack, two people no one wanted to cross.

Jack didn't know if Mary knew how weirdly, quietly tense the whole night had become because of that, but if she did she didn't let it show. She was all smiles, genuine, big smiles, as she looked at the tables near the walls of the giant building.

“No food?” she asked.

“No, dear,” their mom said. “I told you to eat something before you came.”

“I did, a little.”

“Good. The only food that'll get on those tables is other kine.”

“Ooooh.”

Jack bit down on his groan. Sex was everywhere in Dolareido, and he had to accept that his sister was going to get into it faster than his mom did. Like, maybe tonight fast. Hopefully she wouldn't end up getting involved with Jacob or witch orgies, but knowing Mary, she'd end up getting involved with some 'bad boys' or something.

Don't think about that, just focus on having a fun time at the ball.

Yeah right. He hated these things. Even with all his new found money, physical, social, and political power, he still hated these things. Too many people, too many shoulders to dodge, too many eyes to consider, too many everything.

But at least he was better at it. Socializing was a skill, and it was useful. So was wearing a good suit that made him look professional and sexy. He had both. The suit he wore now was silver, with a silver vest, black tie and white shirt, and all sorts of bits of flair, including a silver chain that connected from a vest button to a genuine handheld antique watch in his pocket. It was the sort of suit Viktor would have worn, fabulous and imposing.

“Jack!” Out of the crowd came a bouncing redhead in a green dress. A genuine ballroom dress at that, no cleavage or anything, with a big fluffy skirt made of a dozen layers. Her hair was straightened too, and bounced around her shoulders in waves.

“Fiona?”

“Aye! Ye like?” She spun around for him as he came down the last step.

Oh. The dress was plenty covering from the front, but it had no back. At all. The back cut so low he could tell she wasn't wearing any underwear.

“Nice ass,” Mary said with a wink.

Fiona burst into giggles. “Damien said I should wear a dress that was nae so focused on my tits. I went with ass.”

Jack looked past her to the crowd. A lot of people were still watching, but a lot had gone back to their conversing, too. One man stood there looking their way, and when he noticed Jack noticing, he nodded as he came over. Damien, wearing a far simpler black suit, but without a tie, and with many of the shirt buttons undone, exposing his lean body.

A few women were wearing the same sort of suit, but Damien had that pretty boy look to him that really sealed the deal, according to Antoinette. Romantic vampire mystique. Jack could see it.

“Hello,” Damien said, nodding to the group. “Antoinette didn’t come with you, Jack?”

“Nah. She’s gonna arrive fashionably late, probably with Elaine. Anyone from the Circle here yet?”

“No.”

“Uratha?”

“All here.” He gestured around. “Mingling.”

Jack had half expected them to group up. But apparently they’d gotten used to Dolareido enough to socialize with the vampires individually, many of them sipping alcohol while talking. Comfortable enough to get drunk, which meant comfortable enough to let their guard down, mostly. Not that werewolves would get drunk from just sipping wine, but it did look like a few of them were doing more than sipping. Hopefully they wouldn’t get loose tongues.

Eric he expected, of course. With Jessy on his arm, slipping him more glasses, the man was going to get at least a little drunk. She was wearing a fancy blue dress, but of course it had a lot of skin showing. Marge, for some reason, stood with them, smiling and laughing as she sipped her own drink. It wouldn’t take much alcohol to get a small kine like that drunk. And considering her history with Isabella, probably Kissed before the night was done.

Natasha was there with her boys. They were both wearing silk shirts, partly see-through, with most buttons undone. One in black, the other in white. Both in pants of the opposite color. Either they were playing off the fact they usually went everywhere together, or Natasha was.

The tiny Mekhet wore a black dress, something that hugged her body damn tight with laces along the sides, from thigh to armpit, no underwear. Latex? It was shiny, that was for sure, and it wasn't like vampires could sweat, so they didn't have a problem with the material. She turned to face Jack and waved to him from a distance, and he waved back, cocking an eyebrow. She smiled and shrugged. The latex also had a window between her small breasts, almost completely revealing them. God damn, she'd changed.

"You two look great, by the way," Damien said, nodding to Mary and Samantha. His socializing skills were getting better. Jack doubted his mom or sister could hear the likely dozen rehearsals in it.

Both women smiled bright.

"And you," Mary said, "look like the main character in a novel I read not long ago."

Jack shot his mom a glare, and she whistled innocently as she looked away. She'd heard that from Antoinette, and told Mary. And Mary naturally saw the opportunity for a joke.

"I know!" Fiona burst into giggles again as she hooked her man's arm. "But he's mine. Go find yer own."

"I think I just might." Nodding, smile growing larger, Mary looked around at the room. "This really is less a ball and more a night club with an orchestra.

"Vampires," their mom said. "It's, uh, a weird balance with vampires."

Her daughter nodded. “Pretentious but obsessed with sex. Sounds about right.” Before their mom could stop her, Mary scooped a glass of red wine off the tray of a nearby serving kine, and downed it.

“Mary!” Their mom took the glass and gave it back to the server. “That could have been blood!”

Jack snorted on a laugh as he imagined his sister downing a glass of blood. Vampire humor.

“Nah, I could tell from the consistency.”

Their mom gasped. “Don’t tell me my daughter is an alcoholic.”

“Wine connoisseur,” Mary lied as she rolled her eyes. “Come on, Mom. Introduce me to some people.”

“You don’t want Jack to—”

“Jack can do it later. But I don’t think he’ll be able to get away from the ... official capacity of his position.” Mary snickered and grinned at him. “Everyone knows him, apparently.”

“That’s ... true.” Jack groaned and waved her off. “Yeah, she’s right. Go have fun. But please don’t drink yourself into a really stupid decision.”

“I plan to do just that.”

Their mom elbowed Mary in the hip, hard enough to get a small yelp out of her.

“Don’t worry, Jack. I’ll keep an eye on her.”

Keep an eye on her until Jacob showed up, sure.

His mom and sister walked off and disappeared into the crowd, and were immediately swarmed by people asking questions, mostly about Mary. Mary managed to handle it with her typical social enthusiasm, and any worry she might have had about saying the wrong thing, or that she was talking to literal killers, didn't seem to affect her. How the hell could she be so good at socializing naturally, when Jack had to spend years training at it?

Jack looked up. On the balcony, behind the thick marble railing, stood Daniel. He wore a fancy suit, nothing sexy about it, and he kept his gaze on the crowd below, scanning left to right. Usually the man preferred to be completely unseen during these events, or in a less obvious position. But there was a woman standing beside him, this time.

Athalia. And her eyes were pointed at Mary.

“Oh shit,” he said.

Damien looked at him, and followed his eyes up to Athalia. “Oh shit.”

“I fucking forgot. Christ, with all the shit that's been happening, I fucking forgot.”

“Think she'll be angry?”

Jack winced as he stared at Athalia, but the Begotten's eyes were transfixed on Mary.

“I ... think she might be. Fiona, Athalia say anything about Mary since she got a body?”

Fiona shrugged as she moved to stand in front of them both. “No, but I have nae talked to her much the past few days. She's been hanging with her lad, Daniel.”

“Hopefully,” Jack said, “he's been helping her stay calm. She's probably furious that Mary's alive while Angela ... yeah.”

“Ye think?” Fiona frowned as she shook her head. “I dunno. I think Athalia’s a lot calmer these days, and she’ll be happy for Sam.”

“Or she’s still deciding,” Damien said, looking to Jack. “What do you want to do?”

“Let’s just leave her alone for now. Daniel’s with her. He’ll keep things cool.”

“Aye,” Fiona said. “Good idea. Come on then! I want to show off.” Smile unwavering, Fiona grabbed Damien’s arm, and pulled him back into the crowd.

Poor Damien. He hated this shit as much as Jack did, and he looked to him with begging eyes. If it’d been anyone else pulling Damien, Jack would have saved the man from the unwanted social situation. But his girlfriend? Jack just smiled and waved, and Damien managed to glare at him before disappearing behind bodies. He’d pay for that later, probably. Ah well.

Mary and Fiona, and probably the Uratha, were here to have fun, socialize, get drunk, etcetera, while every vampire in the place was looking for a way to uncover some information that’d give them a leg up in the Danse Macabre. Balls weren’t had for fun. They were had as a political arena free-for-all, where everyone got to engage and try and walk away from skirmishes with more information than the other person. Not coming wasn’t an option, because even if you gave away more information than you earned in the arena, it was usually worth it for the information gained, anyway.

Which meant every political player would be here. Sure, some of the tunnel dwellers, particularly the more deformed Nosferatu, would stay out, despite the open invite. But any vampire who gave a shit about the city and their place in it was here. Sure enough, Jack spotted Michael, chatting with Maria. He spotted Garry, chatting with Isabella; no idea what that was about. He spotted Bella and her Carthian buddies talking with Avery and a few Uratha. He spotted Garry's childe Jeremy Long talking with Parker and Vicky, probably about their brothels in the seedier corners of Dolareido. Business propositions. Even the younger vampires, Tash's childe Vivienne, Gloria's childe Amanda, Jordan, Garry's boyfriend Mike, and even the Carthian Cory, had gathered to talk, probably to play the politics game at a more ground level, where young vampires lived.

Cory glanced over his shoulder, spotted Jack, and inched himself away until a random body stood between them. The guy would probably never forget what it'd been like to have someone punch a hole in his guts, literally.

Jack sighed, and stepped aside as a few more people were announced at the door. He found a corner to stand in, and sure enough, the corner opened up with more space as nearby vampires drifted away. They didn't want to look scared of him, but they made sure he had at least eight feet of free space in any direction at all times.

At least until Garry came up to him. Jack raised a brow at the man, but Garry just laughed as he parked beside him, a wine glass full of blood in his hand. He wore a suit, but it wasn't especially fancy or anything, soft blue with a blood red shirt under the blazer. Interesting choice.

"You really hate these things, don't you?" Garry asked.

"You don't?"

"I can enjoy a party. Maybe not this one, with everyone looking to stab each other in the back."

"They're not looking to stab each other, just ... get an advantage over each other."

The Gangrel shrugged and sipped his drink. "Whatever, same idea. At a proper party, no one's looking to fuck each other over.

Just fuck each other.”

“I guess that’s better.”

Garry laughed. “Though, at the Prince’s parties, I guess it’s both. She coming or what?”

“You know her.”

“Right. Gotta be fashionably late and shit.” Chuckling again, more than Jack had ever heard the man laugh at a ball, Garry looked around them at the empty space that’d been created. “You really scare people.”

Jack reached under his shirt enough to pull out a sliver of his necklace for a moment. “I’m fine.”

“You’re not fine if a necklace is the only thing keeping you from going on a killing spree.”

“I wou—”

“You wouldn’t. The curse would. Sometimes I think I shouldn’t have listened to Azamel, and just killed you instead.”

Jack sneered at the man. “You would have anyway. She stopped you, remember? Unless you think you can kill me now.”

Garry grinned at him and took another sip. “Nah. And besides, you got work to do, right?”

“I do.” The ritual wouldn’t stop itself.

“Gonna let me help?”

“If a problem comes up where I think you can help, I’ll let you know. But it’ll probably be a too-many-hands situation.”

“If shit hits the fan, and I could have helped but you didn’t get me, then I’ll really kill you, you know.”

Wincing, Jack looked out to the rest of the crowd. “If that happens, I’ll probably already be dead.”

Sighing, Garry took another sip of his drink, and pat Jack on the shoulder. Jack froze. He didn’t expect physical touch. No one did. At least twenty vampires took notice, and stopped talking as they stared at Garry give Jack an almost buddy-buddy shoulder tap, before walking off.

Having Garry talk to him personally like that was weird, but it was weirder that he didn’t ask about Mary. He wanted to, that much was obvious. Everyone at the party was sneaking glances at her, walking a little closer than necessary so they could see past the other vampires and check out the girl who got resurrected. A glance up showed the sheriff still watching her, Athalia too, so it wasn’t like anyone was gonna try anything.

Thankfully, his mom was still with her, and entertaining people’s questions. More vampires were happy to watch from a distance and not give away that they didn’t understand how someone could ever get resurrected, but a few of the braver vamps were comfortable enough walking up to his sister and mother and actually asking. Jack couldn’t hear with the music and crowd drowning him out, but the peeks he managed between the moving shoulders showed his mom deflecting questions as best she could.

Go over and help them? Maybe when an ancilla or elder decided to question them. Until then he—

“Garry chatting with you and patting your shoulder?” a woman’s voice said. “That was odd.”

Jack turned, and nearly jaw dropped. He didn’t, because he’d gotten pretty good at controlling his expressions compared to who he was four years ago, but it was damn close.

Clara stood there in a white dress, her dark box-braid hair done up in some weird, top-heavy tower thing with a small metal rod stabbing through it to keep it up. The dress was very, very revealing, lots of lace straps that crisscrossed and held a couple white triangles over her breasts before connecting to a long skirt with two splits that went very high. White thong, very tiny, which according to the dress, she wanted everyone to know she was wearing. It all matched her tan skin perfectly.

“Jesus,” he whispered.

Her smile brightened. Oh shit, he said that out loud.

“It’s a nice dress,” she said. “Elaine helped me pick it out.”

“Of course she did. Did she, uh ... accomplish her mission?”

“Mission?”

He gestured to her. “With you and Harcourt.”

“She—oh. Christ, she’s still trying to get us into bed?”

“Yeap. I’ll take that as a no?”

“Nah, she hasn’t succeeded. Yet. She’s been flirting with me incessantly, and ... after that time she Kissed me, I gotta admit, it’s been harder to say no than I’d like.” She grinned and scrunched up her nose like a squirrel. “And Harcourt is a guy. If I showed him another woman’s tits, giant tits, in the palms of yours truly, I’m pretty sure he’d break instantly.”

Jack gulped and looked around desperately for a drink. A server walked by, ten feet away, and Jack scooped up a drink, almost startling the server, before he went back to Clara.

“Elaine’s pretty convincing.” The memory of Elaine holding Clara’s naked breasts and Kissing her in front of everyone was seared into Jack’s mind. The thought of her riding Clara while Harcourt fucked them had naturally come up in his mind, too. The thought of Jack fucking Clara and Elaine together, instead of Harcourt, had come up a lot more.

“I hear she managed to seduce Mason,” Clara said.

“Yeap.”

“And, uh, I hear she even managed to get him to transform for her, for sexy times.”

He choked on a laugh’. “She’s pretty adventurous, sexually speaking. Every werewolf trying transforming now, for sex?”

“Most. I haven’t.”

“But...”

“But Harcourt is open to the idea.” She laughed and shrugged, and sipped her own glass. “I have no idea how it’d go, you know? I mean, with a guy werewolf and a normal — or vampire — girl, I can kinda understand. But a girl werewolf?” She held up her hands, created a ring with a thumb and index, and then penetrated the ring with her other index finger. Then she increased the size of the hole using her whole hand, and again penetrated it with just a finger, now much smaller by comparison.

Jack laughed until he had to reel it in before he spilled his drink.

“Maybe. You’ll never know unless you try.”

“I suppose. We’re all pretty new to this whole sex thing. When transformed, I mean. There’s something damn weird about this city, that we can transform and not feel a need to go berserk, assuming we transform where there's no fighting or hunting."

"Sure it's the city doing it?"

"Double sure. You don't understand, Jack. Gauru form is all aggression and a need to hunt, claw, bite, shred, and kill. It takes over you and—"

"Vampires have Beasts, you know." Not to mention Jack's unusual circumstance.

"Yeah but that's only a problem when you're literally starving, right?"

"Yeah, and when you get a little too used to ... hunting, clawing, biting, shredding, and killing. Beast instincts get louder and louder until they take over. Then you're just a mindless draugr that needs putting down."

"Then I guess being draugr is kinda like Gauru form, mentally. It's not something you fuck around with." Clara nodded as she looked out to the crowd. "Never met a draugr."

"Pretty big Masquerade risk. No draugr in Dolareido while I've been a vampire, but they do sometimes pop up." And were taken down by vampires. Jack did not look forward to joining a hunt like that.

"Happier thoughts!" She sipped her drink and nudged him with her elbow. "Your sister's alive. No one saw that coming."

"No one tell you?"

"We knew. Matt and Art told us because Tash told them. But we were all a little ... scared."

“You’re telling me,” he said. “Mom is beside herself with joy, and Mary is right behind her. They’re both so happy, and all I can think is: this is too good to be true.”

“I don’t know about too good to be true. She was a ghost, right? And she has a body now, right? A ghost possessing a body isn’t unheard of.”

“I guess. It’s ... not really the same.”

“I guess not. She really seems alive. And, um, excited.”

Jack winced as he managed to get another peek at his damn sister. She was working on another glass, and was getting a little too close to a vampire that’d approached her. Zack, a Daeva in Isabella’s troupe. Behind him was, speak of the devil, Isabella Leuvion and her lover Hella Vendram. Hella wore a nice white dress, but Isabella wore black, tight black, with a long tight skirt. Hell, she had a black under bust corset on, tight enough it’d be a breathing hazard for a human. She wasn’t saying anything, just watching as Zack chatted up Jack’s mom and sis, probably on his boss’s orders.

And Mary was responding, giggling even as she smiled at Zack and nodded about something. She was flirting with him.

“You’re nothing like your sister,” Clara said.

“We’re ... similar in some ways, I guess. But no, we’re not.”

“Almost seems like Natasha would fit you better as a sister.”

Jack laughed. “She’s a lot more similar to me than Mary, yeah, but that’s not really what you find in family members, you know? You’re similar over ... less obvious stuff.”

“So where do you and Mary overlap?”

A deep need for honesty, even when it was dumb.

“I’d rather not say.”

It was Clara’s turn to laugh.

“Where’s your harem?”

“I—it’s not a harem! Veronica, Leilani, and Rachel are back at the mansion. I’ll bring them to a ball when I feel comfortable about it.”

With an evil grin, Clara nodded toward one of the nearby ghouls, a man, who was slowly getting herded toward the one of the tables by two women, looked blatantly nervous. Two Carthians having fun with one of their ghouls, and judging from the look on a man’s face who was watching nearby, it was his ghoul. He was having fun letting a couple other vampires prey on him.

“You don’t want your girls getting Kissed by other vampires?”

“No.” In fact, the idea of his thralls being rounded up and herded by other vampires grated on him, badly.

“Typical man. Doesn’t wanna share.”

Jack raised a brow at Clara, but she just grinned at him as she sipped her wine. It couldn’t have been her first drink, with the way she tilted a little when she sipped, and the way she was smiling at him.

A part of him was tempted to ask her about them, her and Jack, maybe say something about how much he wished it could have worked. But somewhere deep in his dumbass brain, a kernel of wisdom was growing. Let sleeping dogs lie, or something like that. She’d moved on, and judging from the way she waved at Harcourt when he peeked out from the crowd before striking up a conversation with Natasha, Clara seemed pretty happy with him.

Which confused him, cause the man was clearly empty in the head. But maybe that was the better fit for Clara. No accounting for taste.

She turned to ask him something, but before she could, the announcer spoke up.

“Presenting elder Jacob, leader of the Circle of the Crone, and his witches Beatrice Damor, Jennifer Denver, Aaron Jones, and Othello Manu.”

---

~~Beatrice~~

The crowd stared at them, more than a few of them dropping their jaws. Every single witch, coming together, after what had no doubt become the biggest point of gossip in the whole city, would attract a lot of attention.

Jacob wore a suit that looked more like some sort of hybrid between an expensive business suit, and an Indian man's dress; the suit's jacket buttons were off to the side and the jacket was snug around his neck before reaching past his hips. Purple, which he'd taken a liking to lately. Combined with the sunglasses, he looked like some sort of rich Indian billionaire fashionado. It was actually kinda annoying how well he pulled off eclectic shit.

Othello wore some simple dress pants and a black silk shirt that he didn't bother to button, and Madison stayed snug at his side, wearing a classic open back red dress. Simple, but effective, and Triss could already see a lot of eyes going Othello's way.

Aaron wore a gray casual suit, no tie. No tie, because Jen had yanked it off and threatened to garrote him with it if he insisted on wearing the most boring possible clothes combination in the history of ties. She'd also undone the first few buttons of his shirt and forced him to keep the jacket undone, also under threat of violence. Eventually, the man submitted.

Then there was Jen and Triss. Matching dresses, because Jen wanted to make a statement: they came as a pair. It was Jen's way of being romantic, Triss supposed. For whatever reason, Jen wasn't exactly interested in romance herself, but despite that, she was basically Triss's girlfriend. It was a weird friends-with-benefits-but-more situation, and Triss was happy for it. The matching dresses were almost heartwarming in that light. And sexy as fuck, when considering it basically announced to everyone at the party that they came together for sexy times, too.

They both wore black, loose dresses that hung, open back with a long skirt, split all the way up past the hip, with the waist of the dress held snug with a tight strap. Opposite of the split, the dress didn't cover the arm or shoulder or anything, saving that for the side with the split, where the dress had a shoulder and sleeve. So, left shoulder covered, right leg covered. Right shoulder naked, left leg naked. And considering how little fabric actually went into making the dresses, it basically meant everyone got to see Triss's entire left leg and left ass cheek, no underwear, and most of the right side of her torso. They got to see most of her tattoos. If the dress had been any looser, her right tit would have been out.

Jen wore the same dress. Jen and Triss did look similar, crocodile teeth and green snake eyes aside, so it actually kinda worked. It sealed the 'pair' motif. And it pulled a lot of eyes, just as Jen knew it would.

The five of them — er, six, with Madison — stepped down into the pit of doom. Christ, she hated balls, and not just because they reminded her of Julias.

"I know you're all wondering," Jacob said, voice loud enough for everyone to hear, not loud enough to ruin the music, "but if you want details, I'm afraid you won't get them. Now stop bothering my girlfriend and her daughter." And like he'd just told a bunch of children to stop being noisy, he walked straight through the crowd toward Sam, and pulled her to him.

Cue big fancy kiss, complete with Jacob dipping Sam. Cue swooning sigh from Mary.

Triss and Jen shared glances and rolled their eyes.

“Boys,” Jen said, looking behind her, “go have fun.” Her two ghouls followed in behind, dressed in some casual suits not unlike Aaron’s, and nodded with a couple of evil smiles before they moved into the crowd.

“You know some other vamp might try and poach them.”

“Maybe. But after learning that the great Beatrice managed resurrection, I think most people will be a little hesitant to cross us.”

“Heh. Fuck, people are going to bother me with questions, aren’t they?”

Jen grinned as she nodded to the crowd, who were slowly recovering from Jacob’s epic entrance. “If Samantha or Mary were stupid enough to reveal who was responsible, probably. Neither of them are exactly trained in controlling their tongue.”

“I think Sam will be fine. Mary, not so much, but she doesn’t know enough to be a problem. And I don’t think she’ll blabber ... assuming she doesn’t get too drunk.”

Both girls chuckled, a little nervously, when Mary downed her drink and moved onto another. But surprisingly, Jacob stopped her from shotting the next one. A short exchange between them and Sam led to some laughter, and Mary nodded as she sipped the drink instead.

Damn, Jacob. The dude had no business being as suave as he was, or looking as good as he did in the clothes he wore.

Triss spotted Jack, and she waved at him. He returned the wave. So did Clara. Holy shit she looked good in a pretty, slutty white dress. Like, more than good. Like, now Triss really pitied the kid being forced to pick between her and Antoinette.

Instead of going to talk to the kid, Triss did a little more recon at the base of the stairs where she was still considered 'not quite in the pit'. She wouldn't get swarmed by curious people as long as she stayed here, before she'd inevitably join the arena. Not yet.

She spotted the werewolves, mingling, getting drunk, getting horny. More than a few of them were either looking Mary's way, Jacob's way, or Triss's way. She spotted most of the vampires she knew, though Miss Tits and Miss Bigger Tits weren't here yet. Begotten? She spotted Fiona, showing off her ass instead of her tits tonight. Mark? No sign of him, thank god. Sándor? No, she didn't see him, but she knew he was either coming or already here. Fucker was probably hiding in the crowd, or maybe up on the balcony with — Athalia. Oh shit. Triss nudged Jen's side, and both of them looked up to see Athalia and the sheriff on the balcony, looking down at Mary.

"Oh shit," Jen said.

"Oh shit, I forgot," Triss said.

"Forgot what?" Aaron asked as he stepped in beside her. He looked up. "Oh."

"Don't worry about it," Othello said, voice smooth and undaunted as he walked toward the crowd, arm over Madison's shoulders. "Athalia will be fine, now that she's getting some dick."

Jen and Triss both groaned as they watched the gorgeous idiot wander off.

“He does make a point,” Aaron said. “Crude, but pointed. Athalia isn’t the same woman she was before.”

“Should we talk to her?” Triss asked.

“I ... wouldn’t. She’s still Athalia, after all. Changed, but still her, and probably struggling with what she’s seeing. Give her time.” Nodding, Aaron the Wise walked into the crowd after Othello; probably to keep an eye on the moron and keep him from stirring up trouble.

He made sense. Athalia and Beatrice avoided each other, for the obvious reason, and now Samantha was getting to have exactly what Athalia was denied: reconciliation and reunion with her daughter. It must have fucking sucked to see that.

It didn’t take long for Othello to find someone to talk to, with the obvious attempt of getting them in bed. Bella, the asshole. But she did seem a little receptive. Maybe it was because it was Othello, and the dumb bastard could disarm most people to get them naked. Maybe it was because Madison’s red dress left little to the imagination, and Bella was looking at a tasty meal. Maybe it was because Othello was smarter than anyone realized, and he was trying to defuse the tension Bella was carrying out.

Nah, probably the first option.

Jen took Triss’s hand, and the two walked into the crowd. Sure enough, people took interest in them. Plenty of them were a bit put off by Triss’s mouth, but plenty didn’t seem to mind, either. More than a few took a long time looking at her ass, and considering the dress left the whole left ass cheek completely exposed, they got to see a lot. No point in denying it, she liked the attention despite her words to the contrary, and Jen knew it. And, she had a fucking amazing ass.

So when she caught a peek at Sándor in the corner of her eye, and the man was clearly looking at her fucking amazing ass, she grinned. But before she could go and flaunt a little more directly, some vampires closed in on her. A lot of vampires, all Carthians.

“How’d you do it?”

She spun around, and grinned at the bald bastard. Garry. Soft blue suit with a red shirt. It looked surprisingly good on the old fucker with all his scars and shit, almost like a retired fighter enjoying his fortune or something.

“I don’t work for you anymore. I’m not telling you anything. Besides, you don’t know if I did shit.”

“Word is out. Beatrice the witch resurrected Mary the ghost.”

She groaned and looked at Jen, but Jen shrugged. Neither of them had said a thing.

“Who—”

Garry shook his head. “It wasn’t Sam or her kid.”

“Then...” Slowly, Beatrice looked through the crowd with a piercing gaze until she found the culprit responsible. Jacob, still with Sam, talking and flirting with her. People gave him space, but at the same time, the dude was weaving a tale for all nearby listeners, and getting people’s attention as Sam listened with awe. Probably about some witchy activity in a dark forgotten jungle or something. Probably preceded with a tale about how Beatrice resurrected Mary, the bastard.

Mary, standing beside her mom, listened with just as much awe. At least at first. After a while she drifted to the side a bit, and resumed her conversation with Zack and a few other vampires. She had a lot of people's attention, for multiple reasons, judging on where they were looking. And considering the girl looked tipsy already, she was already pretty damn receptive. If Sam didn't intervene, someone would have their fangs and dick in that girl before the night was over.

"Your boss is a scary man," Garry said, "and he seems hellbent on making sure you have a rough time of it."

"God damn it." She rolled her eyes, and gave her old boss a gentle shove of the shoulder. "How'd you ever become friends with that loser?"

"Not sure." Garry laughed as he looked to Jacob. But then his eyes changed. They settled, and the joy she saw fell away, replaced by an expression she'd never seen on the dude before. Regret? Nah, she'd seen that. Sadness? Seen that, too. Whatever it was, it was about Jacob.

"Well," Triss said, and she looked to the rest of the vampires who'd followed Garry, "I ain't telling y'all shit. And it's not like any of you have ghosts just hanging around asking for bodies, so don't even think about it."

The crowd frowned between each other. They'd been hoping for something. Fuck 'em. She grinned at the group, and pushed through them. Maybe it'd bite her in the ass later, dismissing them all like this, but she wasn't going to let town gossip bully her or make choices for her. Besides, none of them would do shit to her with Jacob as her boss, or Mary, considering her mother's sire was the Prince. It paid to have friends in high places.

Thankfully the crowd didn't follow her. They were getting more from Jacob anyway, and whatever ridiculous story he was telling. So Triss took Jen's hand, and the two of them went Sándor's way.

"Not even going to try and hide it now?" Jen asked, giving Triss a small tug so she stopped walking. They couldn't see Sándor anymore, with the crowd in the way, but good bet was he picked a spot and didn't move from it, like a gargoyle.

"What?"

Laughing, Jen came in closer and put her lips on Triss's ear. "The way you were chatting with him, at the piano?"

"I like him. He's a good friend."

"He doesn't talk to anyone else, you know. Not the way I saw him talking to you, then."

"That's just cause he had an instrument in his hands. He's like that when he can focus on music."

"Boys and their toys." Jen chuckled again, and gave her ear a kiss. "But it's more than that and you know it."

"I don't know shit." She turned her head enough to glare at her friend, but Jen stayed close to her, pressing against her back as she half hugged her and spoke into her ear. Thank god the crowd and the music drowned out the whispering.

"You're acting like a teenager in denial, Triss."

That, was frustratingly accurate. Much as Triss wanted to deny it, it wasn't hard to picture her doing exactly what that description implied. A dumb fucking girl, unable to stop herself from flirting with someone because she knew she liked him, no matter how much she told herself otherwise, or told herself it was a bad idea.

Christ, it was easier when she didn't have a shred of awareness, down in her crypt, thinking everyone thought she was hideous. Then along came Julias, gave her a chance to think otherwise, and somewhere along the way, she started using her fucking brain and thinking about life and shit, too. Fuck, unlfe really was so much fucking easier when she was just angry at everyone all the time and didn't have a single real thought in her stupid head.

"I ... still want to see him."

"Then let's go see him." Jen gave her a quick kiss on the neck, took her hand, and the two of them worked through the crowd to find the man.

Sure enough, there he was. He stood there against the wall that connected up to the stair railing above, arms folded across his chest, eyes scanning the crowd just like the sheriff's did.

He wasn't wearing a suit. He was wearing some dark black pants, very dark, and a black shirt, no buttons, with a deep neck cut. It was partly see-through. He also wore some subtle black string necklaces, that gave his nightclub-friendly getup a certain air of mystery. Combined with the dark buzzed hair, short facial gruff, defined chin and god damn deep blue eyes, he looked fucking handsome.

Also, holy shit the abs. See-through shirt doing work.

Triss looked at Jen with a big frown. Jen returned it with a big smile. The clothes had been her choice, no doubt. She'd done her best to give Sándor the 'dangerous man in the corner' look, the sexy quiet guy who probably trafficked millions of dollars worth of cocaine as a hobby, and had six sex slaves at home all waiting to hop on his dick, look. It didn't match his personality at all, but it did look really good.

"Hey," she said.

“Hello,” he said. He kept his eyes on hers, despite how much skin both she and Jen had showing. Dude had control, that was for sure.

“Jen’s idea?” She gestured to his clothes.

“Yes.” Totally neutral voice and expression. She’d have to break past it, and she didn’t have a guitar or piano to use.

“I am a fashion expert,” Jen said, “to a point. I’m no Daeva. Speaking of, I see sweet Samantha, but not her sire.”

“The Prince hasn’t arrived yet.” Sándor took a moment to look Samantha’s way, and the tiniest sliver of a smile appeared before quickly fading.

“Lazy bitch,” Triss said, and she stepped over to stand beside the Begotten. “Athalia’s here.”

“She is.”

“In all the commotion trying to bring Mary back, I never thought about Athalia, and what she might think about all this.”

Sándor nodded as he looked down for a moment, did that thinking thing he did, before looking back up to his fellow Begotten on the balcony.

“I did.”

Jennifer stood beside Triss, and peeked past her at the man. “We know you did. You never stop thinking about other people.”

Triss threw a frown at her friend, but Jen kept her gaze on Sándor, impervious to Triss’s judging eyes.

“You’re right,” he said after a few moments. “Athalia will be fine. She’s happier now, now that she has someone. She ... thinks more clearly, and is less prone to anger.”

Jen nodded as she leaned back and scooted in a little closer to Triss until they were touching hips. Triss didn't move. It'd become pretty normal at this point, and Triss often found herself getting close enough to Jen to touch her casually like this, anyway.

Sándor noticed, and he smiled slightly at them before nodding back out to the crowd. "Samantha and Mary are happy."

"Fucking right they are," Triss said. "After everything that's happened, and the work we put in? I am damn fucking happy they are happy."

The man nodded, and looked at her. And ho ho ho, he couldn't help but look down for a split second at her tattoos on her chest and shoulder, and how one of them was clearly a snake coiling around her tit to bite her nipple. The nipple was covered by the dress, barely, but anyone with eyes could deduce what the snake was doing.

And then Jennifer, watching like a hawk, and being an utterly evil bitch, gave Triss's dress a small tug, right on the hip. The damn dress didn't work with underwear, so both her and her stupid asshole best friend weren't wearing any. Which meant, for a brief moment, Jen pulled the loose half skirt aside far enough to expose Triss's pussy for the whole damn ball to see.

Thankfully, in the endless second it took to slide the dress back, no one had been looking at them anymore, not after Garry got his Carthians to leave her alone, and Jacob, Sam, and Mary were hogging all the attention. Sándor noticed though. Jen's motion caught his eye, and he looked down for just the briefest second before straightening up and looking away. He'd seen.

Yes, she had a perfectly smooth pussy. Yes, she was wearing one of her clit hood piercings. Yes, it was one of the fancier ones.

Triss snapped a deadly glare at her girlfriend. "Jen—"

“Hand slipped,” the lying evil Ventrue bitch said, putting up her hands in mock surrender.

Growling, Triss looked back to Sándor, but the look on his face destroyed any anger she had. He was blushing. Barely, just the tiniest bit of rose showing through his beige skin. But it was a shit load more expression than she’d ever seen the guy give, except when he was drunk.

But she and Sándor were just friends, and she wasn’t trying to bang the dude. Totally.

“Now presenting, Prince Antoinette of the Ordo Dracul, Voivode, and her fellow dragon Elaine, Architect of Terror.”

Everyone looked to the front door, and prepared for an assault of boobage.

The two ladies did not disappoint. Elaine wore a black dress that actually seemed a little tame at first glance, shoulders and sleeves and a long tight skirt with only a tiny split at the bottom. But a second look showed it had a boob window, a big one, revealing the entirety of the inside of her breasts without quite revealing the nipples, while also exposing all of her stomach. The top was damn tight, and squashed the two huge pillows together. That was a lot of underboob.

Antoinette wore a white dress with bits of gold trim that sparkled, and just like her boss Jacob, it was a dress only someone with a lot of clout could pull off without looking stupid. No sleeves, and no straps either. The top was actually more a corset, and it squashed her giant tits together until the two pillows looked like they were ready to spill out and over. The corset also had an open front, revealing almost the entirety of her boobs, and her stomach, before the corset met the long skirt with two slits that exposed both legs, completely.

Just a couple pairs of tits on stilts.

“Ladies and gentlemen,” Antoinette said, and the orchestra stopped instantly. “We are gathered tonight to enjoy peace between the covenants once again. While there have been deaths, on both sides, we must acknowledge that the nightlife of Kindred society is a dangerous game. Mistakes happen.” She said mistake with a little more emphasis than everything else, but she kept her gaze steady. Michael and Garry frowned. “Let us embrace peace where we can, when we can. So feast tonight, and enjoy respite.”

Nodding, satisfied with her speech, Antoinette and her friend descended into the crowd, and immediately got to mingling. Jack joined her, and so did her little student Tash and her boys.

That was a quick speech, and not exactly all that important or impactful. Apparently Antoinette was going for casual. Considering it was the first ball since a literal war, Triss figured she’d have gone for something big and bombastic.

“I’m sensing a theme,” Jennifer said, nodding toward the two tall ladies, her eyebrows wiggling. Obviously she meant about their enormous underboobs.

Triss nodded, held up her hands, and made a squishing gesture, as if squashing two large melons together

Laughing, Jennifer nudged her hip against Triss again. “Crude but accurate. Their breasts are definitely ... together. And with convenient entry points for penetration.”

“I didn’t say it out loud for a reason, you know.” Christ, this girl just couldn’t help but dial up the sexuality to eleven when Sándor was around. She did the same thing when Julias was around, too.

It was Jen’s way of trying to help Triss move on. She never really was convinced Julias could be resurrected, and even with Mary’s revival, she probably still wasn't. She wanted Triss to be happy and try dating Sándor. But Triss was a stupid dog with two bones.

“The women of Dolareido dress with...” Sándor frowned slightly as he looked down, searching for a word. “Purpose.”

Triss snorted on a laugh, and elbowed the man in his side. “Dude, don't be so PC about it. You ain't gonna offend anyone here.” She pointed at Isabella and her troupe. “Sex is just a hobby time for them, and part of their plays.” She pointed at the werewolves. “All of them have been seduced by vampires and whatnot.” She pointed at Elaine and Antoinette. “Those two have probably slept with more people than Jacob. So, thousands.” She pointed at Samantha and Jacob. “And it took a whole six months before Samantha, fresh off the press, got seduced into orgies.” She pointed at Jack. “Don't even get me started on him.” She pointed at Damien and Fiona. “Found him fucking his girl at Bloodlust, so he's exploring new ground.” She pointed at—

Sándor lifted a hand, and gently pushed hers down. “I see.”

Laughing, Triss smiled at Jen, and Jen returned it. Ok, yeah, Triss was in a good mood, now. Hell, a great mood. It'd been so fucking long since she'd been able to laugh and smile, and seeing Mary hang out with her bro and mom before wandering off to get drunk — and probably laid — was making her feel warm. A lot of vampires were still giving Mary room, afraid of her, or her mom's sire, but Zack was legitimately trying to get into her pants. And his courage, spurred by Isabella probably, was slowly making others more comfortable around Mary, too.

Things were good. Christ, that was a weird feeling. She still had Elen, and was still working on resurrecting Julias, but she didn't have to worry about that right now. Her boss had said some upsetting things, about leaving and things changing and shit, but that wasn't something she had to worry about right now, either.

Not stressing out, not being angry, not wanting to tear someone's head off, or being worried about something, she had no fucking clue how to handle it. Julias would. Julias would have swept her off her feet and made sure she delighted in every moment.

But not Sándor. The dude stood there and watched the crowd. It was what he did. Maybe a part of him wanted to do more. She bet a part of him wanted to go upstairs and sit down with the orchestra. But dance and socialize and shit? Not a chance.

And yet, for some damn stupid fucking reason, she wanted to see if she could pull him out of his shell. There was someone in there, someone that, yes, probably liked quiet and doing nothing but thinking or reading or shit, but also probably liked engaging with another person. The musical talent, his relationship with the late wife and kid, it all pointed to there being someone underneath the layers.

Was she attracted to him just because he was complicated? Gotta peel the onion? Christ, how fucking girly was that.

Jen elbowed her, softer than Triss had elbowed Sándor, and Triss turned to look at her. She looked worried. Fuck, Triss probably had her anxious face on.

Triss gave her stupid slut friend a pat on the leg, shrugged, and looked back out to the crowd. Some of the crowd had gone quiet, and when other people noticed the quiet, more of them grew quiet. Slowly, more and more people looked to the staircase on the opposite side of the ballroom, and the person walking up them.

Samantha. Alone. Jacob stayed behind, chatting away with Aaron and Othello and some nearby Carthians. Slick of him, keeping an eye on Mary; metaphorically. It gave Sam time to do something none of them had thought about. Talk to Athalia.

Sam had probably thought about it. She'd probably thought hard.

---

~~Antoinette~~

She watched after her childe, and sucked in a slow, useless breath. For all the fear Samantha likely felt, she marched toward something that would be terrible and painful, and did so without hesitation. Well, perhaps a little hesitation.

Why did the Terrys feel the need to approach their problems in life so directly? Others either avoided their problems, rationalized them away, or ignored them. Jack and Samantha felt some sort of innate need to face their problems, as if only through allowing painful realities to skewer their souls could they survive existence itself. An admirable quality, when tempered with wisdom, which seemed to vanish the moment either Terry found themselves in such situations.

“She going to be alright?” Jack asked.

“I believe so.” Nodding, Antoinette set a hand on her lover’s shoulder, and slowly guided him through the crowd. Naturally, everyone gave them space, half avoiding her, and half avoiding the dreaded Ripper. “Daniel assures me Athalia has calmed with time, and while I am sure seeing Mary alive again will be ... distressing, I expect both Samantha and Athalia will handle the situation well.” To be sure, Antoinette looked up and caught her sheriff’s eye, and he nodded in confirmation. “Regardless, Daniel is there, to keep the peace.”

“Sure you don’t wanna go up there and make sure? Or maybe I could—”

“Jack.” She gave her foolish man a loving stroke of his buzzed hair, forcing him to relax somewhat. “Trust others, if you please? Not all problems must be handled by you.”

He sighed, but shrugged as he nodded. “Okay okay.”

“We are here to socialize and enjoy ourselves.”

“Mutually exclusive ideas.”

She laughed, and looked behind her to Elaine. Her friend had drifted off already, and was flirting with a certain werewolf named Mason, and his terribly cute little girlfriend Tilly.

“If you make the effort to socialize and enjoy yourself tonight at my ball, I will reward you. Perhaps we shall take a journey to your mansion, after fetching my precious pets of course, and enjoy a rather long, relaxing bath, with you at the center. Elaine would come, of course. Hours spent simply resting in hot water, with seven women pressing their bodies against yours, slowly moving and massaging you with the softness of their skin.”

He grinned up at her, attempting to appear masculine and in control of his desire, but she could see how her vivid imagery had his imagination running wild.

“That does sound like a good time.”

“Indeed. And that is why we are here. To enjoy ourselves.” She nodded toward Jacob and Mary. “Have you spoken with Jacob?”

“No. Think I should?”

“I think it probably best if you wait to see if he engages you. No reason to rush an uncomfortable encounter.” And Jacob might find it odd if Jack actively sought him out. The ball was largely being held to make sure Jacob did not suspect her of suspecting him and Black Blood, thus, it was imperative they behave normally. Normally, Jack did not like her old friend, despite how Jacob managed to make friends of anyone he wished to. Even now, while many Kindred watched the old Nosferatu with trepidation, he spun a tale that had everyone nearby enamored, including Mary.

Was he keeping an eye on Mary? Feeling protective, perhaps?

“I did talk to Garry for a bit.”

“And how did that fair?”

“Pretty well, all things considered. I think most of the Carthians aren’t terrified of me anymore.” He nodded with emphasis, as if attempting to convince himself.

Antoinette looked back to Jacob, and watched him long enough for him to catch her gaze between the moving heads of the crowd. He looked her away, or at least his head pointed her way, and they looked at each other for a time. What are you thinking, old friend? A second later, Jacob smiled at her, and returned to his tale of orgies in a dark forest.

Antoinette looked up, and caught her sheriff’s eyes again. Her childe and her sheriff’s lover stood with each other, talking, calmly at that, while Daniel stood ten feet off. While he did not watch the two women directly, he would have no trouble watching them through the corner of his eye. Both women stayed at the railing as well, and everyone could see that, despite the obvious tension, they were both talking openly. And, perhaps, with a little emotion. Sympathy. Perhaps, empathy? Eventually Athalia nodded to Samantha, and Samantha returned it with the language she knew best: hugs.

Less concerned the Begotten would rip her childe’s head off, the Prince looked to the Kindred of the ball. As the minutes went by, and alcohol and blood lust coursed through the crowd, it was not long before the more sexual nature she had fostered in her city began to emerge. And to her delight, Mary’s eyes went wide as she took it in, almost forgetting the rather handsome vampire Zack attempting to woo her.

A male ghoul now lay upon a table, shirt open and pants nowhere to be seen. Three Kindred surrounded him, one with hand around his hard girth, stroking, while the others leaned in and set their fangs to his neck. A female ghoul, trapped in the corner by the stairs, whimpered as two men pinned her, and fingered her under her dress as they too sank their fangs into her neck, turning whimpers to mewls. Several other thralls and ghouls were similarly trapped, and often disrobed to complete nudity and forced to stand for others to admire, before predator descended upon prey. Mary looked around with growing eyes, and tipped another glass of wine into her mouth to vanish, before she again took in the sights.

To Antoinette's growing pleasure, it was not only her Kindred indulging in sexuality. The Uratha could no longer resist the call of the vampires of Dolareido. Mason and Tilly touched each other openly, while Elaine stood beside them, only for Tilly, brazen Carthian that she was, to reach out and touch Elaine. Elsewhere, other Uratha enjoyed the touch of vampires, especially Brianna, who found herself surrounded by several Kindred, most of them women. They watched, admired, cooed and swooned, and chuckled with envy as they sipped their glasses of blood, while Derick and Santos pressed their bodies against Brianna from both sides, and fucked her. Not humped her, as last time, because tonight both men had their pants open and Brianna had her tiny black dress pulled aside to allow both men to penetrate her. She'd come prepared to enjoy them, together, with an audience.

Despite all that had happened to Antoinette's little Ventrue, the young man still struggled with seeing others enjoy sex. He found himself trapped, wanting to both watch, and wanting to not watch. Thus, Antoinette could not help but tease him, and point to where Isabella Leauvion, infuriating Daeva and constant thorn in many sides, had taken her far more rough-and-tumble Gangrel lover Hella, and was openly massaging her breasts under her dress, while Hella, and Isabella's childe Danny, attempted to drink from one of their ghouls.

“Even those accursed actresses relax and enjoy tonight’s festivities,” Antoinette said. “I am elated.”

Jack laughed, a touch nervously but a laugh nonetheless. He did not enjoy Isabella’s presence anymore than Antoinette did, but the woman was an influential figure in Dolareido activities. Naturally, she would come to the ball, and engage in its political activities. To see her engage in sexuality, however, was a litmus test of a sort, to see if the city’s Kindred had calmed and were willing to let their guards down.

“Christ, this is a bit much, isn’t it?” Jack asked.

“Oh? I do not believe—”

“For Mary, I mean.” He nodded in her direction, though it was clear he was afraid to look, dare he witness his sister engaged in some of the activities on display.

“You said yourself that your sister was far more outgoing and socially adventurous than you.”

“Yeah, but not nightclub orgies adventurous.”

Antoinette raised a gentle brow before looking to his sister again, who had turned to flirt with Zack once more.

“I wonder.”

“No no,” he said, “don’t wonder. No wondering. I’m much happier thinking she just visited bars, got a little drunk, and maybe slept with a few guys. No drugged orgies in her past. Nope.”

Antoinette laughed, leaned down, and kissed her silly lover. “Very well. Ignorance is bliss.”

“Exactly.” Satisfied, he returned her kiss, and let her guide him around the crowd. They had work to do, after all.

First, a visit to Maria and Michael. Small pleasantries, nothing more, to ensure all was well, that Michael did not begin new conflicts with Garry, and that Maria was careful about her growing church. Next, they moved onto Garry, and Jack said nothing as Antoinette prodded the man to confirm he, too, chased no conflict with his nemesis. She made no mention of Roland; best to leave a painful past buried, in this circumstance.

The Kindred of the ball watched her with curious eyes, many seeking to overhear her conversations, as if she would say something sensitive in such a location. Careful words allowed them to dance around topics without anyone knowing what they meant without more context, of course. She chuckled as she noticed a few rather frustrated Kindred attempting, and failing, to decipher the cryptic messages she shared with her Primogen.

What Kindred not focused on the Danse Macabre, instead focused on the feast. Another thrall disappeared into a throng of Kindred, and her dress was ripped from her, literally, and thrown to the air. She squealed in shock, and then in bliss. And Mary, far more experienced in the ways of sexuality than her poor brother realized, watched on with wide, intrigued eyes. Every Kindred nearby would no doubt smell the rushing blood within, and notice her nipples pressing out against her dress.

So Antoinette did her best to steer Jack clear of her, but unfortunately, her final stop would take them close. A visit to Jacob, her final Primogen.

“Old friend,” she said, Kindred parting to let her come close to the Nosferatu.

“Prince,” Jacob said, smiling and nodding with his usual gusto. “Quite the night! And so many reasons to celebrate.”

“Indeed.” She returned his mischievous smile, as well as his nod, before she looked to where Mary stood ten feet away. Zack had ceased his flirtations, as had all nearby Kindred, and the group of them stared at both Antoinette and Jacob, undoubtedly expecting the two of them to engage in verbal jousting of a sort.

“Garry and Michael are getting along again,” he said, “which is great. Lot less barking, and explosions.”

“Quite so.”

“But, much as that’s great and all, I think it’s the little firecracker right here that has everyone talking.” Jacob slid — literally — over to Mary, and hooked an arm about her shoulders. To her credit, Mary did not seem to mind at all, and she beamed a big, if nervous smile. “No one could have seen this coming!”

“My childe did,” Antoinette said, and she smiled up at Samantha, who returned the smile with one of her own. A wave, as well. Her conversation with Athalia had not dampened her spirits, then.

“True, true. Triss did, too. Crazy when students outdo their masters.”

“The cycle of life.”

Jacob raised a brow, before he burst into laughter, and Antoinette herself could not help but offer a chuckle. The cycle of life, and especially the idea that students surpassed their masters, did not apply to Kindred.

“Mary, child of my childe, how fair you this night?” she asked.

Mary gulped before giving a small bow. “Very well! I’m, um, a little overwhelmed by...” She gestured to a nearby ghoul, a man, who had his shirt undone while a male Kindred placed playful, experimental bites upon his chest.

“I did warn you,” Jack said, smirking, but also groaning. He also offered Zack a rather harsh glare, and the man, quite elegantly, disappeared into the crowd. Which of course earned a frustrated sigh from Mary, and a laugh from Jacob.

“I’m surprised by one thing,” Mary said. “There’s no dancing!”

“We dance sometimes,” Antoinette said, “particularly if it is a ball with few kine. And while I do love to dance, I enjoy encouraging my city to embrace their desires more.”

“Mom said the same thing. But with this guy?” The young kine giggled as she gestured to Jacob, which of course sent the old Nosferatu into rolling laughter that was utterly delightful. Either a master actor, or he genuinely found his lover’s child, and her rather courageous personality, hilarious.

“What about this guy?” A voice from one of the stairways. Samantha, coming down to join them. Daniel and Athalia remained upon the balcony, and a glance up showed the woman held the smallest smile as she snuggled into the sheriff’s side.

Samantha and Jack, forever able to disarm people in ways Antoinette would never be able to.

“Your man,” Mary said with a giggling snark, “is a smooth bastard.”

With a giggle to match, Samantha almost ran down the last few stairs to join them. She likely would have jumped, if not wearing such a revealing dress.

“He’s a dangerous man,” Samantha said, and she slid in beside Jacob. The old Nosferatu let go of Mary, only to slip his other arm around his lover’s shoulders.

“I’m not dangerous. I haven’t done a thing.”

Antoinette did not react in the slightest, and to Jack's credit, neither did he.

"You're always up to something," the young Ventrue said.

"True enough. But tonight, I'm just here to party with my scorching hot girlfriend. You know, your mom?"

"Jacob!" Samantha gave the man a playful slap on the chest. "Don't tease him."

Antoinette grinned as she looked about. A few Kindred stepped back, perhaps expecting Jack the Ripper to make an appearance and assault the eyeless witch. But to his credit, Jack groaned in a pleasing, humorous way, and shook his head.

"I hate parties," he said. "Or, you know, 'fancy balls'." Naturally, he felt the need to air quote 'fancy balls', particularly emphasized as he looked about at the sexual acts blossoming around them. "But, I gotta admit, things are going pretty well." With a playful shrug, he stepped up to Jacob, and held out his hand. "You've been dating Mom for a while now. I suppose I should at least try and get along with you."

Samantha's smile threatened to scorch everyone around her, and Mary's drunk giggles were absolutely indecent. Thankfully Fiona was off elsewhere with her lover, likely forcing the poor Mekhet to watch someone enjoy a Kiss, while naked and penetrated. She—

"Mary?" Jack asked.

"What? I—oh." Mary lifted a hand, and touched her nose. A drop of blood above her lip, and now on her finger. "Um, nosebleed?"

Everyone nearby went quiet as they stared at her, waiting. Only Samantha mustered the will to break the sudden silence, and come close to stand with her daughter.

“You okay, sweetie?”

“Yeah, of course! I feel fine. I feel—” She swayed back, and Samantha instantly caught her hand to keep her upright.

“Mary! You sure you’re okay?” Samantha’s voice rose in pitch, and volume. Nearby Kindred took a step back.

“I said I’m fine. Just a little lightheaded.” She gestured around with her right hand. “Been drinking a lot, I’ll have you know. And...” Mary’s voice trailed off, and her eyes squinted on her right hand. Squint grew into wide-eyed surprise, and she began to shake. “Why ... why are my fingernails bleeding?”

Mary teetered once again, and her weight gave out completely. Strong as Samantha was, the angle was awkward, and she was forced to lower her daughter to the ground.

“Oh no. No no no.” Samantha took her child’s hand and held it. “Triss! What’s going on!?”

Antoinette snapped her gaze to Jacob, but the man stood there, mouth slightly parted, as surprised as everyone else. The crowd of Kindred spread and turned into a circle. The orchestra went silent. Daniel stood beside Antoinette a second later, staring down at Mary as she began to convulse.

Beatrice joined them, her running announced by the clack clack of her shoes in the now deadly silent ballroom.

“Holy shit. What the fuck is going on?”

“She just fell and started bleeding!” Samantha yelled. “From her nose, and her fingers, and—what’s going on!?”

“I don’t fucking know!” Beatrice grabbed Zack and shook the man by his shirt. “You were with her! The fuck happened?”

Zack shook in the strength of her grip, and with his own fright, as his eyes widened at the Nosferatu. “Nothing! Nothing happened!”

She snarled, threw the man aside, and slid onto her knees beside Samantha.

“Triss, oh god what’s happening to her?”

“I...”

Everyone stared on as poor Mary’s convulsions grew worse. Jack joined his mother on the floor, and clutched one of Mary’s hands close to him, smearing her blood over his suit as he tried to steady her.

“What the fuck. This a seizure?” he asked.

Triss shook her head. “That doesn’t make any sense! You don’t start bleeding from—oh fucking god.”

Mary, with her head propped up on Samantha’s lap, managed to open her eyes. She continued to tremble, and her limbs shook with harsh jerks similar to a seizure. But she was awake, and aware. She looked up at her brother, her friend Beatrice, and her mother.

Blood slowly trickled from her eyes, from her tear ducts, and flowed down her cheeks.

“I knew ... I knew it,” Mary said. Somehow, despite the spasms, she spoke, words broken and sharp. “I knew it.”

“Baby! Don’t talk. Don’t say anything. We’ll get you back to Elen and—”

“I knew it.” She jerked hard, head twisting to the side, and a heavy spout of crimson gushed from her mouth over the floor. “The dreams...”

Samantha clutched her daughter closer to her, pulling her up higher on her lap to bring Mary's head to her stomach. "Sweetie?"

"The dreams were ... were all wrong. They weren't ... right. They were just ... empty, and cold, and—" Again, she vomited over the floor, what little food and alcohol in her stomach dwarfed by the river of red. It coated her mother's bare leg and skirt.

Jack and Beatrice shared glances before the boy squeezed his sister's hand to him.

"Triss, mom, get her up," he said. Triss nodded and moved to grab Mary, but his mother did not move. "Mom!" Like a hammer smashing through glass, Jack was not gentle with his mother. He grabbed her shoulder, hard, and shook her harder. "Mom, get her up! If Elen's the only one that can fix this, then we take her to Elen."

"R-Right, right." Sweet Samantha, awareness coming back to her, managed to tear her eyes away from her daughter's gaze long enough to do as Jack commanded.

Antoinette looked to her sheriff. What to do? There was nothing they could do, except maybe rush Mary and Beatrice to the flesh witch. To save what, seconds? Magic was not something to be done in the moment, in the lightning strike of an emergency.

But it was better than nothing.

"Come," Antoinette said, and she gestured to the front door. Immediately every Kindred between her and the exit of her Hall stepped aside. "Daniel, help them."

"It's okay," Mary said, shaking her head. "It's okay. It's okay. It's okay."

“It’s not okay!” Samantha said. “Don’t talk like that, baby!” Even panicked, Antoinette’s sweet childe could not help but talk gentler with her daughter than the situation demanded. Samantha hooked Mary’s arm over her shoulders, while Beatrice did the same with the other, and the two of them sprinted for the door, Daniel and Jack behind them.

But Mary fought back. She shoved against Beatrice, jerking limbs finding enough control to send the Nosferatu into a half turn and falling to the floor. Samantha held onto her daughter, but the sudden shift in weight sent her to the floor as well, clutching Mary to her chest as she fell onto her back.

“Mary, what are you doing!?! Stop it! Stop! We need to—”

“It’s okay. I got to hug my mom. I got to see Jack again.” The bleeding woman let out a jerked, quiet wail, and turned her head enough to cough up another splatter of crimson. Slowly, as the seconds ticked by, she looked back up at her mother, and reached up for her. “I got to ... hug my mom ... again.”

“I said don’t talk like that! We can ... we can...”

Mary’s arm fell.

Where there was silence, now there was an eternity of oblivion. No one moved. The living did not breathe.

Beatrice scampered over to Samantha as Jack ripped himself out of his petrification, and again fell to his knees at his sister’s side. At the base of the stairs leading out of the pit of the ballroom, the three vampires sat around Mary, and waited. And Daniel, for the first time in centuries, looked back to Antoinette with panic in his eyes. He did not know what to do.

“Mary?” Jack asked.

His mother stared down at her bleeding body, and gently shook her several times. “Mary? Mary?”

Antoinette walked over to them, as slow as she could manage, and she looked down at her child and lover as the two of them continued to wait. No more spasms. No more sudden gushes of blood. And in the cold silence of her Black Hall, she could both see, and hear, that Mary’s body had gone entirely still, inside and out.

“Mary ... please don’t go. Please ... please ... please don’t ... leave me again...” Samantha lifted the bloody corpse of her daughter higher on her lap until she could hug her tight. No care for the blood soaking her dress. No care for the crowd staring in disbelief. No care but for the empty vessel in her arms.

“I ... I don’t understand,” Beatrice whispered. “She was fine just five minutes ago! What the fuck—”

Every soul in the room jumped back, and the three vampires around the body fell to the floor, as a loud scream erupted from Mary. Mary’s eyes and mouth were still open, but the noise had not come from her.

Antoinette tensed and readied herself, as the ghost of Mary shot up into the air overhead, and released another shriek that brought the ballroom to its knees as people clutched their ears. Glasses shattered, and soon, so did the windows, as the ephemeral being screeched and clawed at her face while flying in circles above.

“I’m not her! I’m not her! I’m not her!”

Chapter 165

~~Jack~~

Everything happened so fast. Too fast. If someone was sick, they didn't just spontaneously fall over and die, right? And they didn't start bleeding like that!

But Mary had done just that. Five minutes. In five minutes, she'd gone from laughing and chuckling and drinking, to puking up blood. More than puking, the blood had come from her eyes, and fingernails, and everywhere. Her body lay on his mom's lap, soaking her in more blood as she shook.

She managed one final smile for him before looking back up at their mom, who clutched her head on her lap snug to her waist.

"I got to ... hug my mom ... again."

Her limbs went limp. Her breathing stopped. Her heart stopped. Her empty eyes stared on, blood lining where tears should have been.

Jack stared at her body, identical to the one he'd said goodbye to a year ago. In the hospital, she'd been cold, pale as a vampire not Blushing Life, with cheeks sunken in. He hadn't dared look under the sheet to see her wounds. This time, she was a mess of crimson on her skin and revealing dress, blood that coated him, and utterly drenched his mom. Warm blood. It'd been so warm.

He looked at Beatrice, and she looked at him. A billion words in a single glance, but they all boiled down to three: what the fuck.

His mom burst into sobs, and clutched Mary's body close. "Mary ... please don't go. Please ... please ... please don't ... leave me again...”

Jack winced and looked away. Christ, not again.

“I ... I don’t understand,” Beatrice whispered. “She was fine just five minutes ago! What the fuck—”

A ear-piercing shriek erupted from Mary’s body, and everyone fell back on their elbows. He knew that shriek. He remembered the pain it put him through when it threw him through a wall like he was a paperweight.

Him, Triss, his mom, the whole fucking ball, everyone stared, frozen and unmoving as the ghost of Mary flowed out of the bloody corpse. Mary, but different. It was her ghost, the same creature he saw haunting his old home, but any semblance of calmness or sanity was gone. Worse than the time she tried to kill him. Her empty eyes were wide to an extreme, and her hair thrashed around like it was alive.

She circled above, screaming louder, until it broke the petrification of the crowd. Everyone covered their ears, and drinking glasses shattered as they hit the floor. A moment later, every glass that hadn’t been dropped shattered anyway, as the rising shriek of Jack’s sister buried the ball in fury and misery. It was beyond loud. People groaned and screamed too, some falling to their knees and clutching their heads, Jack included, but their groans and yells were completely buried under Mary’s.

The windows shattered, and while they were hidden behind enormous, thick black curtains, the explosion of glass was enough to stir them like sails in a hurricane. Bits of glass went everywhere, and the crowd dropped to their knees, either dodging the flying clear blades, or doing their best to keep their eardrums from popping.

“I’m not her! I’m not her! I’m not her!” She yelled and shrieked as she circled overhead, clutching her face and dragging her nails down through it, cutting through her see-through skin. The wounds healed instantly, but she tore at her cheeks again and again anyway, each time letting her jaw hang open further and further until her mouth was open almost an entire foot.

The ballroom filled with mist as it cooled, white fog pouring from ceiling corners like someone had set up a hundred industrial dry ice fog machines. In seconds, it flowed over the balcony down onto everyone below, before the ballroom pit was filled with mist up to the waist of anyone still standing. The cold came next, cold that bit into the bones, cold not even a vampire could ignore.

“Mary!” Jack yelled as he forced himself to his feet. “Mary! Enough!” He looked his mom’s way, but only her head was visible in the mist. She was staring up at her daughter’s ghost, eyes wide. Shock.

“I’m not her! I’m not her!”

“What do you mean you’re not her!?” He snapped his gaze left and right as he tried to get some sort of bearing on the situation. The drapes still covered the windows, thank god. No one could see in. But nearby kine would be able to hear what was going on. Hell, half of Dolareido probably heard the opening scream.

He looked Antoinette’s way. She was staring up at the ghost as well, but unlike everyone else, her mouth wasn’t agape. She was processing, and looked around to start damage control at nearly the same time Jack did. She caught his eye, nodded, and looked to Michael. Of course he was still standing, and being an obvious presence while doing it, posing in just the right way he could see everything going on around him, and let everyone know he wasn’t spooked by some ghost. Luckily Mary didn’t seem to notice him. He’d be more than spooked if Mary decided to ram glass shards through his eye sockets.

Michael met the Prince's eyes, nodded, and pulled out his phone. The expression on his face said it all: phones weren't working. Of course not, not with a raging ghost around. But Michael thought fast, and made a small signal with his hand to someone in the crowd. Another vampire, a Mekhet, quickly vanished and disappeared.

They'd get out of the Black Hall, and contact the Invictus thralls and ghouls in the city government. They'd make sure the police and fire department wouldn't arrive any time soon, and hopefully get the guards outside to stop anyone from getting close.

"I'm not her! I'm not her!"

"Mary, stop!" Beatrice jumped up and waved her arms in the air. "Fucking stop! What happened!? Tell us what happened!"

Jack winced as the inevitable shriek followed. Triss didn't know how hard it was to talk to Mary when she was angry, but she found out quick when Mary swooped down over them, close enough to nearly touch their heads, and screamed. They both fell.

"I knew it! It was the dreams! Empty dreams. Wandering in nothing. Nothing! Should have known. Should have known! But I wouldn't see the truth! Couldn't accept it. Couldn't ... couldn't..." Her screams faded, and her insane expression settled as she finally turned her empty eyes from Jack and Triss, to their mom.

His mom had one hand out, and was holding it open, palm up, toward Mary.

Jack looked at his mom, and stared through the mist as both he and her slowly got back to their feet. She took special care to lay down Mary's body before she did, and she stood up with no fear in her eyes. Only sadness.

“Baby,” she said, voice so quiet Jack doubted anyone else could hear it with their ears still ringing. “It ... didn’t work.”

“No! No ... no it didn’t.” Mary shook her head violently as she hovered in place. No legs, and instead of the fancy dress, she had back on the simple clothes she had when Jack first found her. “It didn’t. It didn’t. It didn’t.”

“I know, sweetie. I know.” Their mom steeled herself, and Jack stared on as she reached out, and gently ran a hand down the place where she should have been able to touch her daughter’s cheek. “But you remember, right?”

“Re ... member?”

“What you said, just ... just before you died. Just now.”

“I got to ... to hug my mom again.”

Samantha nodded, took a deep, useless breath, and lowered her hands. “And it was worth it, right?”

“It ... was.” Mary the ghost swam back up in the air. Thank god their mom was there, or she’d have been ripping the whole ballroom into a mess, with probably more than a few casualties. “It was. I was ... happy.”

“Then ... then it was worth it.” Nodding, Samantha gestured around them. “This isn’t your home, is it?”

“No! No it’s not.”

“Then you should go home. It’s safe there. I’ll come visit you again.”

Mary lowered herself down even closer to her mom, until they were face to face. While Mary’s face had returned to normal, ish, it was still a ghost's face, with empty eyes and hair that shifted and moved with a breeze that didn't exist.

“You're not angry at me? For not telling you?”

“About your dreams? Honey, you couldn't have known this would happen, not like this. No, I'm not angry. Now please go wait for me at home. I'll come visit you before the night is over.”

Jack stared at his mom. It was crazy how calm she was, how strong she looked. It was his mom, standing in front of a raging ghost, talking with her usual gentle mom voice, a voice he'd heard a million times before. She'd used that voice even when their dad died. Hearing it now, it was like someone hit Jack upside the head with a baseball bat, just how much strength it took her to use that voice.

He looked around at the crowd. Everyone had gone silent, and were staring, either at the mist that flowed around them, or at the ghost Samantha was soothing. No one moved, not even the people on their knees in the chilling fog. And despite how deadly silent it was, Mary didn't seem to notice, or care.

Because it wasn't Mary. It was something else.

“Okay. Okay, I'll...” Mary the ghost stared down at her flesh body through the mist, and her whole body shifted and twitched, like a bad signal on analog cable. Jack got ready to get thrown around like a baseball. But slowly, her image returned to normal, and she nodded as she smiled at their mom. “Okay.”

“Cya later, baby. Don't worry, everything will be fine.” She nodded, smiling, and blew her daughter's ghost a small kiss.

Mary smiled, a little wider than humanly possible, before she sank into the mist, into the floor, and was gone.

It only took moments for the ball to return to normal. The mist faded into the ground, and stopped seeping from the ceiling. The bone-chilling cold went with it, along with the heavy presence Jack had grown all too familiar with over the years.

Which left a ballroom full of confused and shocked people. They started talking again, but no one dared talk loudly, as if their voices would resummon the ghost who just thoroughly thrashed their good time. Jack threw a glare their way, and everyone shut the fuck up quick, before he walked over to his mom. She'd already gotten back on her knees, and was closing Mary's eyes.

No, not Mary. Just a vessel, a failed one.

"I'm ... sorry," he said. "I told Sándor and Damien to wait until after the ball, to check her dreams. I ... I didn't want to ... I was avoiding..."

His mom smiled up at him, nodding. "Thank you. I'm glad you did. It was ... It was good, while it lasted." Not sobbing anymore, not crying, not shaking. She'd turned to stone.

"Fuck me fuck me fuck me," Triss said, pacing in place. "I don't fucking understand. I—"

"She said it," Samantha said. "She said she wasn't her."

"Not her? I—oh fucking shit, you mean she isn't Mary?"

"Maybe ... maybe." Nodding, Jack's mom stood back up, and looked to Beatrice. "Can you take the body back to Elen? She might be able to do something with it, but ... but I ... but I don't think it'll ever work, if Mary's right."

If Mary was right. If Mary was right, Mary wasn't Mary.

"Mom, you—"

“I don’t care if she’s not Mary.” She looked Jack’s way, and her steady, steel gaze struck him still. “She’s my daughter, and she’s in pain, and I’m going to go make sure she’s okay.” After another slow nod, she clenched her hands into fists, and walked up to Daniel, who still stood between the crowd and the stairs to the front door. “I need to get clean, and change clothes. Can you take me back to the tower?”

Daniel blinked down at her, mild shock still in his eyes, only half hidden behind his glasses. He looked back to Antoinette and Athalia, got confirming nods, and took Samantha up the stairs leading outside. The moment the front doors opened, they vanished in his Cloak.

“Triss,” Jack whispered, “you—”

“I’ll be fine.” She managed a weak shrug for him as she knelt down and picked up the body. More clack clacks of high heels announced Jennifer’s approach, and Jack stepped aside to let the witch join her friend.

But before they left, Jack spoke up. “Jacob—”

“Had nothing to do with this,” Triss said, eyeing him with her green snake eyes. “Neither do Othello or Aaron. You got questions, you come to me. But this was—”

“I’m not judging. Really, I’m not. Just ... wanted to know if there was anything I could do.”

It took a few seconds for her to realize he was being serious, and her expression broke into the same sadness he knew was on his face.

“Nothing. There’s nothing. I’m ... fuck me, I’m so sorry, Jack. Your sister ... christ.”

“You heard her,” he said, sighing heavy and shoulders slumping. “She’s not her.”

“Fuck me.” Groaning, Triss looked past him, and scanned the crowd. Not for Jacob or the other witches, they were still there and she kept looking. Sándor? Jack looked back, and sure enough, the man was gone.

Oh shit, Sándor. Poor bastard was going to need a therapist after this. The one fucking thing that someone had managed to fix, something the hunters had broken, something he blamed himself for, and it went down in flames.

Triss sighed, probably coming to the same conclusion, and walked to the door with Mary in her arms. Weightless to a Nosferatu’s strength.

Jen paused at the base of the stairs for a moment, before leaning in to whisper to Jack.

“I appreciate your need to fix things, Jack. I appreciate your need to force people to accept truth and reality where you can, as well. But listen to me. Do not push your mother on this, not tonight. She’s worked toward this goal for months, and has bloodied her hands in ways you can’t imagine.”

“I can imagine a lot.”

A quick snarl from Jen gave him pause. She was serious.

“Give your mother space, and let her accept this reality on her own terms. Okay?”

“Okay, I get you. I won’t push her.”

“Good.” With a small nod that looked as heavy as an anchor, Jen left with her girlfriend.

“Ladies and gentleman,” Antoinette said, voice raised slightly, and she stepped up to stand beside Jack. “Tonight, we have seen ... something unfathomably horrible. Please forgive me, but I must dismiss you all. Expect another ball in the future, but for now, the pleasantries must end.”

---

Jack stuck around as people left. He wanted to go see his mom, but knowing she'd be with Mary, and Mary would be unstable as fuck, it was a bad idea. No one calmed Mary down like his mom, and his presence could send her into a proper destructive mood. Anyone's presence could right now, save for his mom's.

The Carthians and Invictus left, and so did Aaron and Othello. The Uratha stuck around, but even they eventually left, except for Eric. Him and Jessy remained, Fiona and Damien too, and they joined Jack as he pulled himself up to sit on one of the tables along the walls.

“That ... was fucking horrible,” Jessy said.

“Yes,” someone said. Everyone looked up when a voice they didn't normally hear in their friend conversations jumped in. Jacob. “It was horrible.”

Jack glared at the man. Everyone at the table knew Jacob was a threat, and possibly working with Black Blood to fuck up the whole city, and worse. He should have been trying to avoid letting Jacob know that Jack suspected him. But with how shitty the situation was, he had a good excuse to glare at the man.

“You...” Jack clenched his teeth and looked away. Don't blame him, this was on Triss. Her words. But holy fuck, it was so much easier to want to blame Jacob than it was his friend.

And Jacob knew it, too. Jacob shook his head as he sighed, and took off his sunglasses. Everyone at the table winced and looked away, but Jack lifted his eyes and stared the man straight in the empty eye sockets.

“I gave them the tools, Jack. And a fuckload of warnings, too. I told them this wasn’t going to work, but they deserved to try, right?”

“You warned them?”

“All the fucking time, kid. But I knew they’d try something. And I ... all I can do is make sure my witches’ mistakes don’t kill them, so they can learn from them.”

“You sound like a parent who thinks the best way to teach his kid to not get electrocuted, is to let them get electrocuted.”

The old Nosferatu shook his head again. “It’s not the same, and you know it.”

“I—”

“I’m going to go check on Samantha, and Mary.” He put the sunglasses back on, and walked away, leaving everyone at the table to stare after him. Only once the front doors closed behind him, did people relax.

Jack looked to Antoinette. She stood in the center of the ball, arms folded under her breasts, red eyes pointed down as she went into think-tank mode. She’d be there for a little while, processing how best to handle the situation, how to manage the response from the government and media, and how and when to set up the next ball. Forever planning. He loved her, and normally he’d be right next to her, obsessing over details and planning. But at the moment, the only thing he could think of, was Mary’s bleeding eyes, and the utter fucking despair on his mom’s face when Mary fell over.

He looked over at Eric and Jessy. The werewolf had an arm around her shoulders, stroking her, while she leaned into him. Both looked troubled. He looked over at Damien and Fiona. Same situation, though Fiona pressed her face into Damien's chest to cry. Natasha stood in the pit with Antoinette, nodding whenever Antoinette whispered something, and took notes in her smart phone. But she spared a glance for Jack, and the look in her eyes was heartbreaking. She'd been getting along with Mary, quite a bit.

Everyone got along with Mary.

Jack leaned down, picked up a piece of broken glass, and held it in front of him, high up, between him and the chandelier. What a shitty fucking night.

---

~~Beatrice~~

The trip out of the city was a quiet one. Jen stuck with her, but didn't say a thing. Better to stay quiet until they were out of the city, even with how good Triss was getting at her Cloak. But that wasn't the main reason neither of them were talking.

Thirty minutes later, thirty really fucking long minutes of carrying a corpse she never wanted to carry again, they were outside city limits, and out in the desert on the way toward their hidden little cave.

"Sándor left," Jen said. Thank god she said it first.

"Yeah. Kinda bailed on us, didn't he?" Which was kind of a dick move on his part, and very out of character for him. "Probably went somewhere to brood. Maybe cry. Maybe rage a bit."

"Did he?"

"Yeah. As a recovering brooder, I should know. If I had to guess, he's back in his lair, sitting on that big throne in his castle, and just ... being a statue, collecting dust, tearing himself up over this."

Because no matter what anyone said, the dude would never stop blaming himself for Sam's pain.

Jen sighed, but nodded as she touched Triss's shoulder.
"Probably."

"Once we get the body back in Elen's, uh, aura or whatever, we should go check on Sam. I ... I guess she'll be in Mary's room, with her ghost again, and ... crying, maybe." They couldn't get teary without Blushing Life, but she could sob and cry just fine. Funny enough, Sam hadn't sobbed or cried, back in the ballroom, once Mary's ghost appeared. If anything, it was like something had suddenly cast her out of iron.

She didn't want Mary to see her cry. She wanted to make sure Mary, or Mary's ghost, didn't freak out and make everything quickly go from bad to worse. Christ, what sort of fucking person did you have to be to be a ... a mom? It wasn't the same as being a sire, not at fucking all, and Triss's stupid vampire brain couldn't understand it.

They stepped into the cave, and set the body on the chair next to Julias's. Thankfully his body was still breathing, and hidden under a blanket. Made it easier to not picture him with blood gushing out of every orifice and then some.

"Oh dear," Elen said. Dangling from her hook, her emaciated body hadn't changed much in the past few months. Maybe she'd stay like this for the rest of time? Pretty shitty situation, but one she deserved.

Triss snarled. "Don't."

"The ghost and the body didn't agree with each other. What a shame."

“I said don’t.” Triss came up to the bowl and glared up at the flesh witch with enough venom to kill an ox. “I didn’t come here to talk to you. Just make sure the body doesn’t rot. We can still use it, fix it up, and do the ritual again.”

“All flesh in this cavern is safe from decay.” The old bitch offered a cracked, evil smile, and met Triss’s eyes with all the care and concern of a retired granny watching her favorite TV show, while high as a kite.

“Good.”

“But no matter what happens, no matter what magic you use, you cannot bind a ghost to a living body for forever.”

“That...” Growling, Triss kicked the metal bowl hard enough the room echoed with the impact, before she stormed off.

Getting out of the cave took a bit, but once she was back out with Jen behind her, she screamed. Full on roar screamed. Tore up the voice screamed. Screamed until it fucking hurt, screamed.

Jen said nothing. She stood beside Triss and waited, wearing a weak, patient smile.

“You could rub it in my face, you know,” Triss said. “Say ‘I told you so’ and shit.”

“I didn’t tell you so.”

“You basically did. All the times you tagged along, I could tell you never really thought this would work.”

“I ... was routinely surprised at how much you accomplished, Triss.” Jen came up behind her and hugged her, not caring about the blood she got on her hands. “I stuck it out because I knew you’d accomplish something amazing, the same way Jacob knew. And I stuck it out because I love you.”

Triss sighed, and leaned back into Jen. Jen eventually became turn and hug, and hug eventually turned into kiss.

“You love me?”

“Don’t be stupid. Of course I do.”

“But you don’t want me to yourself.”

“I...” Jen frowned a little as she looked up slightly, thinking. “We’ve had this conversation before. I’m just not interested in some sort of dove pairing. I don’t want a relationship with one person to be my significant other. The idea has never interested me. I love you, I know you love me, and I want you to find someone else to love, too.”

“You are so weird.”

“Yes, well, so are you.”

Triss chuckled, which of course was Jen’s goal. Christ, how much shit she did, just for Triss. How little Triss did for her.

“Alright, let’s go see Sam.”

Jen shook her head as she stepped back. “I got a text from Jacob. He’s visiting Sam.”

“Really? He’s comfortable being around Mary?”

“No idea. But he feels compelled to go to Sam, and you saw how quickly he got along with Mary when she was ... alive.”

“She got along with everybody,” Triss said. “But ... it’s weird. I guess I had trouble thinking of Jacob really loving someone else to that point. Always got the impression Sam was kinda like a fling for him. Some fun.” Even when earlier evidence suggested she was more.

“Apparently not.”

Triss looked down at the desert rocks as she weighed her options. Go see Jack? Nah, nothing to say to the kid, not really. Go see Othello and Aaron? Nah, they’d be back at the cave, Aaron reading, Othello ... doing whatever he did when he wasn’t fucking Madison.

“Sándor,” Jen said before Triss could. “You want to find out if Sándor’s okay.”

“I ... I guess I fucking do.” Before she could stop herself, Triss threw up her hands and paced back and forth. She’d taken off her heels at a certain point and tossed them; you can’t pace in heels. “What the fuck is wrong with me?”

“You like him.”

“I like Julias! I love Julias! I—”

“Triss, your chances of seeing Julias again are slim to none, and you know that.”

Triss cut into Jen with a harsh glare, but Jen stood her ground.

“Then why am I still hoping to bring him back?”

“Because you loved him, and you cherish those memories, and being teased by the possibility of having him back is a lure most people wouldn’t be able to ignore?”

A deadly lure Triss had read more than few stories about, a lure that’d destroyed plenty of people, like prey to an anglerfish.

“There’s more to it than that.”

“Because you’re self-destructively obsessive?”

Triss laughed. A weak, shitty laugh, but at least it was a laugh.
“Aren’t we all?”

“Because you’re afraid of letting go and moving on? Afraid you might find happiness again without him? Afraid of how horrible and guilty you’d feel if you actually managed to find happiness again, when Julias was the first taste of it you had in twenty years?”

“I ... Fuck.” Triss walked up to Jen, and hugged her again, tight this time. “I am so fucked up.”

“Yeap.”

“Why am I ... stuck in this stupid high school romance drama? Fuck me, after what happened tonight—”

With a tender chuckle and soft hug, Jen wrapped her arms around her again, and gave her neck a quick kiss.

“Worry about what we can affect in the moment. We can talk to Samantha tomorrow night, unless she contacts us before then. For now, let’s go see Sándor and see how he’s dealing with this.”

“Alright. You’re right.” Nodding, they both got underway. “You know, I just realized something. Mary was alive for exactly three days and three nights.”

“That ... is rather disturbing, isn’t it?”

---

Beatrice stepped into the big, empty room that once served as some sort of boarding room for a subway train, maybe for workers down in the tunnels. A prototype maybe or something, from a century ago, because it’d obviously never been finished. The train tracks went past a big concrete stage, but otherwise, all that was in the room, was the room.

At least until Azamel showed up. She put a bunch of shit on the boarding platform, crap furniture that looked far more homely than it had any right to. The old lazy recliner was still there. The ash tray was still there, too. The bed, the changing screen, the couch, a few other chairs, it was all still there, shit anyone could have lifted from a flea market. Not that there was a reason to shoplift from a flea market when everything cost less than dirt.

No Mark, thank god. No Fiona. Probably with Damien, crying her eyes out. They'd only seen each other like, once, but it was obvious they'd have probably become best friends if they'd gotten to spend some time together, considering how similar they were.

No Sándor. Shit. But there was someone there, sitting in a chair beside Azamel's, and reading a book. Athalia. Shit shit.

"Sorry," Triss said, glancing up at Athalia only long enough to see Athalia was looking at her. "I'll go."

"Don't," Athalia said, voice solid and steady. Well, that was a lot better than the shriek full of fury and agony Triss expected to hear from the Begotten. They'd had more than enough of that tonight.

Triss blinked at Jen, who blinked at her, before they both looked back at the deadly woman on the stage. She'd changed out of her ballroom dress. Triss and Jen still hadn't.

"You uh, don't want me to go?" Triss asked.

"No. You want to see Sándor, I assume."

"I ... do."

Nodding, Athalia set the book down on Azamel's chair arm, and leaned back in her own.

"I'm not going to attack you, Beatrice. Calm down."

“You’ll forgive me if I don’t quite believe you.”

Athalia rolled her eyes. “It’s been ... painful, these past months. For you, for me, for Samantha, for a lot of people. But the past is the past ... for most of us.”

Triss winced. The past was quite suddenly and painfully very much not the past for Sam.

“Yeah, I get that.”

“I’ve had a lot of time, and help, to come to some ... realizations. I don’t hate you, Beatrice, and I can’t blame you for what I did.” She shook her head as she looked to the side. “I can never forgive you, but I can’t blame you, either.”

Triss blinked at the Begotten, and again at Jen who returned the same, shocked expression.

“I—”

“Don’t. We’re done chatting. You want into Sándor’s lair?”

Okay, no chatting, but at least her relationship with Athalia had jumped a few rungs, up from ‘potential murder victim’.

“That where he is?”

“Yes.”

“Then yes, I’d like to see him.”

Sighing, Athalia stood up and jumped down from the platform. “I can get you into his lair. We’re connected, here in Dolareido. But Sándor made it clear he didn’t want to be disturbed.”

“He can’t lock the door to his lair?”

“He can, but won’t. He ... doesn’t like the idea of us not being able to come to him for help, if we need him.”

Triss winced and looked down. “Of course he doesn’t. Dude just ... really wants to be helpful, doesn’t he?”

“Yes, he does. He’s one of the few.” Athalia eyed her, and didn’t hide her sneer. “So if you hurt him, we won’t be on such good terms anymore, vampire.” And back down the ladder to potential murder victim again. “Alright, come with me. I’ll open up a path to his castle.”

“Thanks.”

Athalia snorted, less like a pig and more like a deadly giant skeleton nightmare titan, all raspy and shit. Beatrice and Jennifer both shivered a little as they followed her. For her age, Beatrice was a damn strong Nosferatu, and Jen was an impressive Ventrue too, but Athalia in her Horror form could probably rip her in half like a phone book if she got her hands on her. And despite what she said, she’d probably enjoy doing just that.

So naturally, Triss and Jen both brought their vitae up in their bodies and readied for a fight, as Athalia took them down the tunnel, around the corner, and into absolute darkness.

“We really need—”

“Yes,” Athalia said. “I need darkness. It makes it much easier to open a path.”

Darkness. Far more darkness than the tunnel should have had, considering they’d just come from a room with flickering, old, but still functioning lights. But this wasn’t the first time she’d gone into a lair with the help of a Begotten, from Athalia specifically, so she was used to it. A little.

Sure enough, after a minute, they weren't walking in darkness anymore. They were in some sort of old fashioned medieval room, complete with shitty old tables, shitty old chairs, plates with no utensils, and some some cracks of light coming through that what looked like some shitty old wood door made of planks.

"There," Athalia's Horror said. Beatrice suppressed the urge to squeak. "Goodbye."

"Wait, goodbye? What if we ... fucking hell." Triss spun around and looked for any hint of the giant black skeleton monster, but now that they had a few shreds of light to work with, her eyes adjusted enough to tell her that Athalia was already gone. Fucking freaky.

"I guess we're stuck here," Jen said. "We ... really should have changed clothes first."

"Running out of time before daylight. Besides, least you still got your heels."

Groaning, Jen took a couple steps on the hard stone, took her heels off, and set them on one of the tables.

"Uneven floor and stones filled with cracks and grooves? I'd break an ankle."

"You know that's always a concern with heels. Stop wearing them. They fucking suck. If you weren't a vampire, they'd be ruining your feet and fucking up your spine."

"A worthy sacrifice in the name of fashion."

God damn it. Triss laughed, and opened the shitty plank door. She recognized this place. It was the hallway she'd chased Jeremiah through, the one that led into some sort of big main chamber of the castle. She'd followed him through that too, out into some sort of big, haunted village, high up on a cliff edge. This time though, she guessed Sándor would be in the main chamber of the castle. His castle.

Careful to avoid the metal gargoyle braziers on the walls and the flames inside them, she and Jen made their way down the hall of what could only be described as a medieval castle. Like, not one of the fancier castles from the 1700s and shit, with lots of pretty marble. No, this castle was old as dirt, with walls made of stacked stone, and ceilings made of ridiculously thick, solid, ugly boards. Some walls were made with wood, too, and every room she bothered to peek into as they made their way for the big door at the end of the hall, had some kind of big wood pillar holding up the floor above. This was the sort of castle you'd find a thousand years ago, and a thousand years later.

The big fucking door at the end of the hall was a pain to budge, but with a little muscle, she and Jen slid it open.

The absolutely fucking massive main chamber looked like it'd taken a major earthquake up the ass. The giant pillars that used to hold up the ceiling, way way way up, were knocked over. Not one, not two. Dozens of them. They were big pillars too, ten foot wide pillars of stone. And around them were the destroyed statues of Sándor. She didn't really get a chance to explore this place, last time she was here, but she remembered the statues standing on top of some pillars, holding up the massive stone roof overhead that she could barely see in the darkness. Some of the statues stood between two pillars, vertically, so they held up a pillar to the ceiling.

Just a bunch of rubble, now. Some pillars still survived, which was a good thing because the castle — this ridiculously massive room in particular — would probably fall right on their heads otherwise.

“What the fuck happened here,” she said.

Jen walked over to one of the huge piles of rubble, and looked down at the stone and ruined statue.

“Claw marks.”

“Ah shit, really?” Triss joined her and stared down at the mess. The big fire braziers on the walls cast a lot of firelight, but the place was just so damn fucking huge that they didn’t do a good job lighting the room. Still, once she got close she could see claw marks. Big claw marks. Bigger than an Uratha could make, claw marks.

Slowly, Triss turned around and looked at the other pillars. Some of them had been pushed over, and some had been slashed down. No Uratha was strong enough to do this, and even fucking Jacob would struggle to break one of these big-ass pillars. But as Triss inched her way toward another pile of rubble, it was clear the big gargoyle had done this. Some of the claw marks were too high for anyone else to reach.

“You think...”

Shivering, Triss rubbed her one naked arm as she looked down the big room toward where she knew the throne was. Too far to see, too dark, but the giant door leaving the castle was behind her, and she knew from what Jack told her the throne was in the other direction.

Much as it was easy to think of Sándor as the stoic guy she’d really gotten to like, it was also true he didn’t talk about his Horror much, or even let them interact with him while merged with it. They knew he had some pretty nasty hungers that were hard to satisfy, relative to other Begotten, but otherwise he kept all that shit to himself. Whatever hunts he did, he did alone.

The memories of the time she’d seen him in that form came flooding back. It hadn’t been him. Jeremiah had somehow gotten control of the Horror without Sándor, and without him, the Horror was a monster in the classic sense. Mindless and hungry. And really fucking powerful. Challenged Jack the Ripper and survived powerful.

God fucking help her if she had to deal with that thing. Athalia said Sándor was in his lair though, which, far as she knew, guaranteed he was merged with his Horror. But then, what the fuck was with all the destruction?

“Jen ... I’m going to do something really stupid.”

“And you want me to leave in case something bad happens, so I don’t get hurt.”

Triss looked back at her girlfriend and blinked at her. “What? No. We’re way past that phase. You’re coming with. If I die, you die with me.”

Jen laughed, but shut herself up quick when the laugh echoed in the giant room.

“Alright.” Grinning at her, Jen came up beside her, and nodded toward where the throne was supposed to be. “Think he’s there?”

“Might as well check there first.”

“Cloak of Night?”

“Probably not a good idea. He’d see through it, and if he’s doing this,” she gestured around at the destruction, “then he might slash first and ask questions later.”

“Right.” Jen gulped and rubbed her arms a bit. “Right.”

And with that, the two women started the walk down the giant chamber toward the supposed throne. It was such a big room, shaped like some sort of titanic hallway. Jack told her it reminded him of the Mines of Moria. Naturally, she'd called him a nerd for saying it, but she'd seen the movies, and she admitted the imagery had been fitting. Not nearly as big, but still.

And now it'd looked like that big fire demon thing in the movie had run through the whole place and destroyed it.

It wasn't just the pillars. The floor had talon marks from where the huge gargoyle had gripped into it with his big raptor feet. It had some claw marks, too, like he'd sliced down at the floor, or maybe fell to his knees and tore at it. The walls in some places were covered in claw marks, as if Sándor had drifted around randomly looking for anything solid to take a chunk out of it. Literal chunks. Bits of stone half as big as her sat beneath some braziers with giant claw marks in the walls, before a few talon marks on the floor led to another pillar. This one was still standing, but four enormous claw marks ran halfway around it, from Triss's side toward the side in the direction of the throne. It was like he'd just casually dragged his claws on it while moving along.

Christ, she really wished she'd thought to change clothes. But the night was going by at breakneck speeds, and she just wanted to make sure people were okay. Mary was a ghost again, so there wasn't anything Triss could do about her. Sam was probably a wreck, but Jacob was with her. Fiona had Damien. Jack had Antoinette and other friends. Sándor had ... who? Fiona was with Damien, Mark seemed as personable as a trashcan, and Athalia made Isabella look warm and fuzzy.

But Triss had some blood on her dress, and was currently walking toward a potentially crazed twelve-foot gargoyle. Yeap, this was dumb.

Sure enough, the end of the room eventually came into view, just a blur in the darkness before they got close. A giant stone throne, big enough for even Sándor to sit on. Except it was on its side, and cracked in half.

The gargoyle sat in the now empty spot where the huge throne used to be, a sort of relaxed sit with one elbow on a knee, palm holding his chin. His two — no, four — gigantic wings were limp and hanging to the floor, and his tail was dead still where it lay between them. His head hung between his shoulders, with two giant fucking black horns sticking out of it. Each arm was a slab of muscle, almost as big as Triss's entire body. His torso was human shaped, save for the four arms and wings, and he had the muscle definition of a professional bodybuilder; on a giant gargoyle monster, that was a hundred times more intimidating.

He looked maybe as big as a car, until they got closer, the trick of perception faded, and they realized he was actually as big as a truck, literally. A dark blue truck, like some sort of steel color. The only clothes he had on was some sort of leather loincloth thing. Not even any shoes to hide his giant raptor feet and their talons.

He turned his head, looked at her, and stopped, going statue mode on her, expression locked in something blatantly morose. She wasn't sure if she was just fucked up in the head from looking at her own reflection so many years, but his gargoyle face was handsome, human-ish too, with a very hard, defined chin and eyebrows that crossed into hyper-masculine-demon-skull territory.

He didn't say anything. The gargoyle stared at them, down at them, despite the fact he was sitting. It was hard to get a read on his eyes in the dim firelight, but they were dark.

Triss gulped on a dry throat, and looked to Jen. Jen gulped, and looked from her to Sándor.

“Sándor,” Jen said, “you disappeared after the ... the...”

Sándor let out a deep, slow rumble, a growl in his chest so low it was more like a mini earthquake coming from directly in front of them. Triss shifted her weight onto the balls of her toes, ready to bolt. But the big monster didn't move, only slowly turned his head back to stare off to the side at nothing.

His breathing was super slow, maybe one every ten seconds, and each one made his chest and abs slowly increase in size before deflating. It was like that fucking scene in Jurassic Park where the paleontologist dude rested his head on the tranqed triceratops.

“Sándor,” Triss said, after a healthy amount of silence. “Come on, man. You just upped and vanished, and I ... I guess we were kinda worried about you.”

Another heavy rumble. The vibration went through the stone floor and into her feet, until her teeth nearly buzzed.

“We were worried,” she continued, “because of what Jen said tonight. You know, that you always think about other people? And hey, we get it, we're feeling pretty fucked up, too. Like, holy shit what happened tonight was fucking awful, and I feel awful, and Jen feels awful, and we'd be with Sam right now if Jacob wasn't running damage control with her.”

Jacob's name managed to get a small turn of his head, and a furrow of his very heavy brows, before he looked away again.

“And,” Jennifer said, “we thought, if we felt horrible, then Sándor is probably feeling miserable. We thought you'd go full statue mode, and collect dust.” She shivered as she glanced beside the gargoyle at the giant, cracked, stone throne.

Another rumble, but otherwise, Sándor did exactly what Jen said: pretended to be a statue.

Well, fuck that. Sándor was one of the damn few good things to happen to Dolareido, after Jeremiah and Angela fucked everything up. Triss wasn't going to let him turn into her, younger her, brooding in a crypt somewhere.

“Dude, come on, talk to us.” Triss stepped around in front of him. Christ, she really did have to look up at him, even though he was sitting. Must have been twelve feet tall when standing, at least, more with the horns. “If it were anyone else, I'd say sure, give the dude his space. But you've been doing the stoic, 'give me space' routine ever since I've known you. Time to come out of the box!” And for some stupid reason she didn't understand, she kicked the giant monster in the foot. Might as well have kicked the tires of the dark blue truck the gargoyle matched. Didn't budge at all.

“She's right,” Jen said. “This is an intervention. We're worried you're going to...” She looked behind her at the destroyed pillars. How the fuck had the gargoyle managed to destroy that much solid fucking stone, in such a small amount of time? “Going to close up even more. We don't want that. You may have noticed, we like you.”

No response.

Triss steeled herself, and stepped forward, between the monster's legs.

“So, why don't you come with us? Or we can stay here, whatever. But let's ... talk, I guess.” Christ all fucking mighty, how did Jack do this? Be all honest and direct and shit, but also reasonable and meaningful? She could do direct and honest, sure, if it involved yelling and breaking things. But being honest and open was a shitload harder when it was time to be quiet and gentle.

Samantha wouldn't have had trouble. She'd be all tender, stroke Sándor's shoulder, pet his head, and hold it to her chest.

Triss couldn't do that shit to save her life. What she could do, was yell at people until they listened.

“Sándor!” She took another step, now between his knees. “You wanted to make it up to Dolareido for what you did while the hunters controlled you. Well guess what, you asshole!” She gave his thigh a kick, for good measure. “People like you here, so that means when horrible shit happens, you can't just go running off to be alone and brood. You have friends now, and friends are supposed to do this thing where we talk to each other, and bond over horrible crap like this. We're supposed to go get Sam, and hang out and get drunk — that ship's sailed — and cry over how awful what happened to Mary tonight was! That's what people do! So fucking wake up! Wake up and—”

One of his giant arms snatched out for her. Fast. Damn fast. The titanic hand wrapped her waist, and lifted her. Holy fuck it was nearly big enough to completely wrap around her.

“Triss!” Jen managed a single step before one of Sándor's other hands snatched her up.

And then the juggernaut got up.

With a heavy rumble, the titan got to his feet, using his two free hands to help push his huge weight off the floor. Slowly, he walked forward, aimed toward the other end of the giant chamber, pace leisurely but at the same time, heavy as all fuck, like the dude was dragging a dozen iron balls and chains behind him.

He brought both Jen and Triss closer to his face, and growled down at them. The rumbles earlier were enough to make her body buzz, but a growl was like trying to swim in a wave pool with a huge bass speaker strapped on her back, blasting R&B. She froze, and stared at the monster as he took turns glaring at each of them.

“I wanted to be left alone,” he said, “because sometimes I can lose control, and the gargoyle’s hunger ... leaks out.” Holy fuck the voice was deep, and it reverberated through Triss and everything nearby. “I stay quiet, and keep my thoughts to myself, because I could kill someone if I let them out!” A heavy shake had Triss beyond disoriented, and she struggled to figure out where up and down were as the gargoyle stomped along. Each step made the floor vibrate, like a fucking scene from Jurassic Park, again. He could probably walk quietly or stalk if he wanted to. He didn’t want to.

“Sándor!” Jen screamed. “Stop! Please!”

The gargoyle didn’t listen. He roared. Triss and Jen both covered their ears — thank god their arms were free — as the booming sound pulsed through them and out against the giant chamber’s walls, only to echo and slam back into them.

“For hundreds of years, I have seen nothing but pain. When I finally taste joy once again, I lose it. Always I remain, watching. I thought this place would be different, but snakes in the shadows plot our doom, and every effort we make to find some peace, is destroyed!” He lifted them both, and stared up at them as he again roared. His hot breath poured over them. Triss had no idea if it smelled bad; she’d stopped breathing. “Centuries of...” He looked down and away before letting out another growl. “It doesn’t matter. It is my pain, and I will bear it. But you two poke and prod and absolutely persist on invading my world! You two are so determined to rip the wounds open and bleed me dry!”

Holy fucking shit, the first time the man really let out his feelings, and it turned out he wanted to destroy everything around him? Triss knew that feeling, and a part of her wanted to tell him to calm down. But she also knew her pain was probably just a penny in a jar compared to his, and if she said something like ‘I know how you feel’, she might just get deservedly smashed into pulp. A shred of wisdom showing through, a bit too late.

“We’re not!” Triss pushed down against the huge fingers wrapping her waist and ribs. No good. Trapped like a mouse. “We just want to help!”

With heavy steps, Sándor walked by one of the giant pillars still standing. He raked one of his free hands against it as he leaned into it, the muscles of the giant arm bulged, and his claws ripped through the stone. Giant chunks of pillar crashed into the floor, heavy enough they broke on impact.

He stomped along, picking up a little speed, and Jen and Triss yelped as they came to a sudden halt when Sándor again raked his claws against another pillar. With his huge body giving him inertia, the claws sank deep, and bits of rock flew everywhere. Triss and Jen covered their heads and faces with their forearms as stone chunks rained down.

Triss knew what he was doing. She’d done it a million times before, when she had something in her hands she didn’t want to break, usually her phone, but at the same time, really really wanted to break something because she was super angry. So she’d break something nearby instead. It did not feel good to be a smart phone right now.

“Vampires,” he said, voice quiet, half growl half rumble, “do not understand. I do not speak of this, because it isn’t your burden to bear. Your Beast is a quiet thing, whispering in your minds. A Horror is...” His voice trailed off as a heavy growl replaced it, and the giant beast lifted them high again as he bared his huge teeth and fangs. “Why can’t I simply be left alone!” His four wings flared out, stirring up air hard enough to have Triss’s hair blowing around violently, and his wings dwarfed everything in shadow, like he’d opened a ship’s sail big enough to block out the stars.

Jen and Triss managed some quick peeks at each other as they stared down at the gargoyle. Say something say something say something, and make it smart.

“Because we like you.” Apparently the best she could come up with was a Disney line. It’d only have been worse if she said they were family or ohana or something. Dead. They were so dead.

Slowly, he lowered them both back down until they were chest level with him, and he leaned over them. His dark eyes glared down at them with something a little more than just rage, and it sent a chill through Triss’s spine.

That was hunger.

He rumbled deep, very deep, a cross between growl and purr, and he held them both only a few feet from his chest and head as he brought in his two other hands. He wrapped their legs in two new sets of fingers, and stared down at them as he licked his giant fangs.

Triss had asked Damien a few questions about Begotten during their piano lessons, questions about horrors, because she knew Sándor would dodge answering them. Apparently, Horrors came in a bunch of varieties, and came with a specific hunger. Fiona’s Horror hungered to punish people. He wouldn’t tell her about the others, maybe out of respect, maybe because Fiona wouldn’t tell him, but he knew all Horrors hungered to make people afraid of them. It was, according to Fiona, literally how they fed. Vampires drank blood, and Begotten drank terror as long as it was directed at them or the things they did.

Sándor didn’t talk about his Horror much, almost never with Triss, and according to Fiona, almost never with her or her weird little family. But they did know a few things: he rarely ate; when he did it was something he did alone, away from the others; and it was brutal. How they knew it was brutal, Triss had no idea, but it was, according to Fiona, not exactly a common hunger for Horrors.

Triss's mouth dropped open, and ice shot up through her limbs, as the gargoyle tightened his grip on them. Not hard enough to hurt yet, but panic set in as Triss struggled against his grip, and couldn't move. She tapped into her vitae and put Nosferatu strength into her limbs, and managed to get his fingers to shift a little, but not nearly enough to get her free.

She was trapped, and from the look in the gargoyle's eyes, she felt pretty sure she was two seconds away from getting eaten.

Sándor rumbled again, much closer to purr than growl, and brought both vampires up closer to his face. Not in punching distance, but close. But of course Sándor saw that coming, and slid his hand around her torso up, forcing her arms up, where he clutched them together in the hand. With one hand holding her hands together over her head, and one hand holding her feet together underneath her, she felt like a shish kebab.

"Sándor!" She squirmed and wriggled, and got nowhere. "Sándor, you asshole, we were just trying to fucking help!"

He wasn't listening. His hungry eyes slowly slid down from Triss and Jen's eyes, to their chests.

Triss looked down. In the commotion, she'd completely forgotten she was wearing a loose dress, and not only had one breast come out, the shoulder on the other side had fallen enough for both breasts to come out. And a quick glance at Jen showed she was in the same circumstance, hands trapped over her head, feet trapped underneath her, breasts out. Two hands for each vampire.

The nightmare monster rumbled, eyes dilating, and he brought them both in closer. Now he was very much in punching distance, but Triss couldn't get her hands free, even as she pumped more vitae through her.

"Sándor, the fuck are you doing?"

He didn't respond. He didn't even look up to meet her gaze. He just brought her in closer, both of them, and again licked his big teeth. His breathing quickened, and as Jen and Triss both went dead silent, they could hear something going thump thump, and getting faster.

A peek down showed a very, very, very large bulge in his leather loincloth. Oh fucking shit.

Someone else's voice cut through the sudden silence.

"Sándor!" Jen screamed, and not a girly scream. That was rage. Triss snapped her eyes back up and looked at Jen, and found her friend glaring at the giant, hungry, and apparently horny gargoyle. The titan turned his head to look at her, eyes blasting one message: you're my prey. "Sándor, you will not touch us! How dare you cross that line! We are not your prey, in any way! Our bodies are not yours to do with as you please! Now put us down!"

Triss and Sándor both stared at her. Jen didn't normally yell or scream, and she never talked with that harsh 'I'm going to fucking kill you if you don't listen to me' voice. And the way she said 'in any way' spoke volumes, like she'd said it before.

Triss and Jen didn't talk about their sires all that much. Triss's was a stalker who died not long after siring her. Jen's was a bastard who was going to use her and her sex appeal as a tool in the Danse Macabre. Not much to say, really. They both had a shitty past on that topic.

Sándor froze. Both vampires stared at him, waiting. Triss gave up squirming, and found her gaze drifting between the giant gargoyle and her girlfriend, who was looking at Sándor like she'd rip — or bite — his dick off if he dare touch her with it.

Apparently, she got through to him, because Sándor's eyes closed for a few seconds. When he reopened them, something closer to human was in them again, and he took deep, heavy breaths as he forced himself to look away. He put them both down, let them go, and took several steps back, refusing to look at them as he did.

Triss and Jen fixed their dresses, came up beside each other, shared some quick affirming nods, and looked to Sándor. Of course the giant gargoyle closed in on himself, took several more steps back, and blocked their view of him with his wings, like a curtain.

“I am sorry,” he said, quiet, deep voice rumbling. “The Horror, it ... it’s ... hungers can get ... vile.” His voice died away, let out as a long, rumbling sigh.

Wincing, Triss looked to Jen. Her girlfriend was scowling, but when she noticed Triss looking, she shook her head and wiped the scowl away. Getting touched without permission set her off pretty hard.

“It’s ... alright,” Jennifer said eventually. “Or rather, it’s not alright, but I understand. Your Horror is a greater presence in your life than the Beast is in ours.”

Sándor sighed again, and took another step back, still blocking their view of him with his giant wings.

“Please, go.”

Triss and Jen shared a look again for a quick silent conversation. Leave? Don’t leave? Jen sighed as she looked down, then back to Sándor, and then gestured to him. Yeah, them showing up had probably just made things worse, but if they left now, there was a good chance the damn idiot would lock himself up in a cell somewhere out of some need to punish himself.

Things could have gone worse. A lot worse. Triss and Jen were stupid to just violate the dude’s personal space like this, and stupid to prod and poke him. Of course that didn’t justify him nearly eating them, or killing them, or doing something else, but still, he was a nightmare monster. You don't walk into a lion's den and complain when the lions attack you. Christ, Sándor would probably kill himself if he woke up from some rage-fueled rape and murder fest, only to realize he'd killed them.

"Okay," Triss said. "No harm no foul, okay? Your Horror is ... intense. And, uh, a little volatile." Apparently the image of the quiet gargoyle, perched and watching silently, didn't always apply. "But we weren't lying. Shit happened tonight, and you shouldn't be here by yourself, brooding about it." Though, looking around again at the destruction, maybe a little time brooding by himself to calm down was a good idea. "What happened to Mary tonight is not your fault. We know you think it is, because of what happened before, with Jeremiah. But it's not. It's not anyone's fault. Tomorrow night, we're going to go visit Sam. And then maybe we'll visit you again, if you'll let us."

The gargoyle squatted, lowering his height to maybe seven feet, and he lowered one of his wings enough to peek over it at her. Then at Jen. And then he disappeared behind it again as he let out another one of those pained, rumbling sighs.

"We want to see you again," Jen said, mirroring Triss's inflection.

Another sigh, but he did stand up again, and turned to face them.

"I ... didn't want you to see me like this."

"Well, we did," Jen said. "And we ... were stupid, to ... poke and prod you."

Triss took a step forward. Sándor took a step back.

"Okay, okay," she said. "Sorry. We'll ... we'll go. But I'm serious, Sándor. We're still good, okay?"

He nodded as he took another step, and then another, before he turned and walked away, back toward the destroyed throne. Each step made that thump sound, but they faded into a quiet echo as he disappeared into the long darkness of his chamber.

With anyone else, the incessant need to blame themselves for everything bad that happened would have gotten really fucking annoying. With Sándor, it wasn't annoying, but it made Triss's insides ache seeing it. He hated himself for helping Jeremiah, and hated himself for Mary's death. Seeing her die, again, and seeing Samantha's one bit of joy crushed, pushed him over the edge.

And they'd just gone and made things worse.

---

"We could have died," Triss said up at Athalia. Bitch was back in her chair, reading again, like nothing had happened.

"Oh?"

Jen snarled at her as she stood beside Triss, glare pointed at the Begotten. "He was ... not Sándor."

Athalia closed her book, leaned forward, and stared at the two of them like they were children. Took a lot of effort to not jump up there and punch her stupid face in.

"You two spend a lot of time trying to play nice with Sándor."

"Uh, yeah," Triss said. "He's a nice guy. A cool guy. And he seems to really care about Dolareido. Why the fuck wouldn't we want to be his friend?"

"You're both idiot children. He's Begotten."

"So are you. So's Fiona."

“Fiona and I are young. Think of Azamel. Think of her relationship with Jeremiah. She was old and powerful then, over a hundred years ago, and the mere act of existing meant she influenced her surroundings in extreme ways. She was a force of nature. If she had the physical youth of Sándor, and the power she had when she died? She’d have taken this whole city, because she wouldn’t have been able to help herself.”

Triss raised a brow. “Wouldn’t have been able to help herself?”

“Yes. In the...” Athalia gulped down something painful as she looked down. “In the same way I hurt Angela when she was young. I have to make people afraid, vampire. Have to. And me, specifically, I have to destroy. Azamel has ... had to conquer and dominate. She had no choice. Fiona must punish those who transgress. I expect you know a lot of this already. Fiona has a big mouth.”

Triss squirmed a little. “A bit.” No need to tell her she got the info from Damien.

“And I know Fiona doesn’t know much about Sándor, because he refuses to tell her. But he has told me some things. And I’m going to tell you because you’re ... closer to him than anyone else.” She sighed again as she looked down and shook her head. “He’s an ancient Begotten with hungers and urges that are absurd. Begotten don’t normally live for centuries, but his gargoyle Horror keeps him alive, like a statue. And thanks to that age, he’s become a ... a slave to his hunger, in ways most Begotten don’t know. And he’s Ugallu, an incarnation of the fear of exposure.”

“Exposure?”

“Imagine approaching a church, a cathedral, and a gargoyle over the door stares down at you. You feel it staring into you, and you know you can’t escape its gaze. That is who he is. It is existential for him. He watches. He waits.”

That, was a fucking eerie feeling, and a nightmare Triss knew she'd had before. She shivered.

Athalia nodded, noticing. "What he doesn't like to share is how deadly his hungers are. He hungers for prey."

"For ... prey? Isn't that—"

"It is not what all Begotten do. Listen to me, you—" She bit off her own insult and shook her head again. "Sándor hungers for prey in the most literal sense. I have ways to mitigate my hunger, my need to destroy and create ruin. Fiona and Mark can do the same. Sándor's Horror feeds off one very specific thing: the fear of being eaten. It's the deepest, truest fear any living thing knows, and his gargoyle is so old, that hunger is massive." She leaned forward. "You know Sándor. You know what sort of person he is. Now imagine what it's like to have a hunger that grows so large, it eats you alive from the inside, worse than any pathetic blood lust a vampire might have. Imagine what it's like for a man like Sándor, to be driven to hunt, and kill, and to indulge and feed on the fear the prey feels."

"Azamel tried to help him, and maybe she helped a little, but his Horror is too old and too strong. That little battle with the Ripper could have gone much, much worse. Sándor does everything he can to keep his Horror bottled away, but sometimes it gets out, and ... and he has to hunt someone down, and kill them. And he has to make them fear it. He has to make sure they know they're being chased, that something deadly is after them. He has to make sure they realize they're dying because they were hunted down, that they were prey and he is the predator that ends them. Imagine it! Imagine a creature of terror living in your fucking soul!" She slammed her palms against the chair as she stood up, and glared down at the two of them like they'd just smashed her car. "Imagine it haunting you, every moment you're awake and asleep, driving you to hurt everyone around you! Imagine—"

Triss threw up her hands in surrender. “Athalia! We ... we...” She blinked as she stared up at the woman. Her dark skin was starting to gleam with hints of sweat, like she was getting ready for a fight, and her eyes had hints of tears. “Athalia...”

Athalia clenched her fists as her eyes snapped between Jen and Triss, before she looked away again and sat down. Her arms were shaking.

“Sándor...” Her voice caught in her throat. “Sándor, he hates himself every time he has to feed.”

Oh. She wasn’t talking about Sándor anymore. She was talking about herself.

Triss and Jen slowly looked to each other again, until Jen came up to the base of the stage.

“Athalia...,” Jen said. The Begotten snapped another harsh glare at Jen, but Jen didn’t move. “Athalia, talk to us.”

“Talk to you!? You ki—” She bit her words off again, this time covering her hand with her mouth.

There it was. She cut through the bullshit, and buried them all in silence. Jen and Triss traded a somber look, for the millionth time that night, before Triss eventually came up beside Jen, and set her hands on the stage.

“You’re right. I did kill Angela.”

“You!” Athalia screamed through her fingers. “You ... You...” The moisture in her eyes built until a couple tears ran down her dark cheeks, and she closed her eyes again as she looked away. “Don’t. Just don’t.”

“Athalia, I—”

“You didn’t kill Angela! I killed Angela. I fucking killed her. I fucking killed her the moment I didn’t let her go when she was born. I wanted to keep her, and me and my Horror, we destroyed her.” Athalia fell back in her chair and covered her face with one hand, but it couldn’t hide the tears that dripped from her jaw. “I killed my baby girl.”

Triss and Jen stared at each other. Jesus fucking christ, Aaron was right. She had changed.

“Athalia,” Triss said, “you didn’t kill Angela. You know you didn’t.”

“I may as well have. I ... I just wanted a daughter.”

Oh fuck.

“This ... is about Mary, too, isn’t it?”

Athalia took a few seconds to force down her sobs, before exposing her face again. “Samantha didn’t deserve to see her daughter die. No one deserves that.”

Triss looked down as the memories hit her in the guts. The gun in her hand. Angela, glaring at her, asking Triss to kill her. Triss pulling the trigger, with Athalia not far behind her, begging for them to stop. Seeing Mary die in front of Samantha must have ripped those memories out of whatever deep, dark hole she’d buried her own daughter’s death in. Mary, blood coming out of everywhere, on her mother’s lap, saying her last words before she went cold, only for something angry and horrific to burst out of her.

Sighing, Triss pulled herself up onto the stage enough to sit on it, legs dangling off the edge, head facing away from the poor woman.

“I’m not sorry I killed Angela, Athalia. But I am so fucking sorry it went down the way it did. Everything, everything about it was ...

what a fucking shit show. And now I'm just trying to put some of the pieces back together, you know?"

"You ... must despise me, for what Angela did ... to Julias."

"No. I was angry at you at first, but that was then. Like I said, you didn't kill Angela, and you're not responsible for her choices. I don't care how much trauma she suffered as a kid, there's no excuse for what she did. Or what Jeremiah did." Triss kicked her bare feet out a few times and let her heels hit against the concrete stage. "I ... fuck, I don't know, Athalia. I was just trying to help. Trying to help Samantha get back something she lost, and trying to help Sándor, cause the dude seems like a classic case of a repressed, self-loathing nice guy. And I'd prefer he didn't blow his brains out." Repressed, self-loathing nice guys had a habit of doing that.

After a few quiet moments, Athalia's sobs came to a stop, and she sniffed as she sat up straight, and looked down at Triss, Triss looking back over her shoulder to watch her.

"What're you going to do about Samantha? I figured you'd be with her, tonight. So did Sándor."

"I'm gonna talk to her tomorrow. Jacob's with her now, and I know she wants some time with her daughter ... daughter's ghost."

Saying Jacob's name earned a small twitch from Athalia, and she looked away as she wiped the tears from her eyes. "You really trust him."

"Jacob? I didn't used to, and I still don't, but he has come through for me pretty often. He's surprised me a lot, especially with Sam." Triss smiled at Athalia, her best 'let's not hate each other' smile; hard to do with her mouth. "He's really helped her find some happiness, you know? And, uh, Aaron tells me you've found a little with the sheriff."

Athalia smiled slightly, probably calling up a pleasant memory of the most boring vampire in the world.

“He has.”

Nodding, Triss got up, and squatted down beside Athalia and her chair.

“Look. I don’t know what happened to Mary. I’m going to find out. But ... but it’s looking pretty bad. That sucks like fucking hell for Sam. And as much as Jen and I are her friends, we’re never gonna be able to connect with her the same way you could. Sándor, too. You think you can ... visit her a bit? Maybe talk about ... parent stuff?”

Athalia chuckled, weak and sad, but she did, and she nodded as she met Triss’s eyes.

“I didn’t know if she wanted to talk to me. We talked those couple times, but...”

“I—fuck, I guess if you only had Jack to go off, you wouldn’t know. They’re not much alike. Sam loves to talk and socialize, and I don’t think the woman is even capable of holding a grudge.”

“She did seem ... very huggy, the few times we talked.”

“Exactly. You two are basically opposites, and I’m sure you’ll hit it off.”

Athalia slowly found another smile. “Alright. It would be nice to talk to someone, about ... about what it’d been like, being a mother. Sándor listens, but he doesn’t talk much, and he’s a man.”

“Sándor. You got any advice on how to puncture his shell? I’ve managed to get something out of him a few times, when he’s got a guitar in hand, or some alcohol. But usually he’s a closed book.”

Except, uh, right now, where he nearly fucking ate us.” And other stuff.

“You ... like him, don’t you? Really like him.” Athalia asked. Triss groaned and rolled her eyes, which was apparently enough of an answer. “I’m not sure. He’s had a rough past, and I don’t mean like the rest of us. I mean ... he’s lost a lot of people in his life. The family Jeremiah killed wasn’t the first one.”

“Jesus.”

“The only thing that will work is time, I imagine. And music and alcohol. And, honestly, probably simply being around him without pestering him.”

“No pestering?”

“No. Sit around with him and enjoy some silence. Stop trying to get into his pants constantly”—she threw an annoyed, but playful glare at Jen, who looked away with a whistle—”and try spending some time with him, watching the world the way he does. Avoid the drama talk. He’s too old for it. It’s all stuff he’s heard a million times before. Just, hang around him and shut up.”

Triss scratched her head. Just, stand around, not saying anything? That was surprisingly difficult to do. If she was standing around, she was either listening to music, or bitching and ranting about something, or on a stakeout and not exactly just vibing, which seemed to be what Athalia suggested doing. But if she was right about it being existential to Sándor, and she probably was, then maybe it was a good idea.

“Will do.” Triss hopped down from the stage and looked back at Athalia. “I’m serious, Athalia. I’m ... I know I’m angry about losing Julias, and I doubt that’ll ever completely go away. But I ain’t got nothing against you, not anymore, and I’m hoping you don’t have anything against me.”

Athalia let out a slow sigh as she nodded. “I don’t hate you, Beatrice. I ... Like I said earlier, I don’t know if I’ll ever be able to forgive you, but I don’t hate you. You have nothing to fear from me.”

Triss smiled, nodded again, and left, Jen at her side.

Once they were a little ways down the tunnel, and hopefully out of Athalia’s hearing range, Triss nudged her friend.

“I fucking hope Sam doesn’t hate my guts. Two daughters dead ‘cause of me.”

“What?” Jen shook her head, slipped an arm around Triss, and half hugged her as they walked. “Beatrice, you know Samantha isn’t going to hold you responsible for this. Maybe tonight, while she’s still...”

“Angry as all fuck and refusing to show it?”

“You know it’ll just be for tonight. That’s why we’re letting Jacob talk to her and not us, right? Tomorrow night we’ll talk to her again, and we’ll figure out what to do.”

Triss threw up her hands. “The fuck do we do? You heard Mary. She’s not her.”

“She’s a ghost again. That means she’s psycho.”

“Doesn’t mean she’s wrong. She’s ... she’s not Mary, Jen. We knew that was a possibility. It’s not her. It’s the only explanation.”

“Unless—”

“I literally had a god show up in my fucking dreams and give me that ritual, Jen. It should have worked.” And hopefully she’d get to have another conversation with that Crone bitch, so she could scream at her for not telling her Mary's ghost wasn't Mary's soul at all.

"Then ... what do we do? Just accept that we can't help Sam?"

"I have no fucking idea. We're vampires. We got time. But if it's not Mary, and it's probably not, then there's nothing we can do, except doing what we're doing for Julias. Which..."

"Has come to a complete stop because no one anywhere has any idea of how to pluck a soul from the afterlife."

Groaning, Triss ground her jaw until her crocodile teeth clicked. "Not entirely true. Black Blood said they'd managed a peek to the other side."

"By killing mountains of people, Triss. You really want to do that?"

"No, no I don't. There is a billion other ideas out there."

"But they're all bullshit, according to Jacob. Pop-culture nonsense."

"Then we go full nerd mode, read a few thousand tomes, and see if we can dig up something."

"Something no one else ever managed to make work?"

"That we know of." Before Jen could say anything, Triss shook her head. "I know, I know. It's not gonna happen. But until I come to a decision, I might as well keep trying."

"Very well." Jen sighed as she leaned her head down against Triss's shoulder, and kept walking. But after a couple stumbles, she groaned and looked behind her.

"What?"

“I forgot my heels in Sándor’s place. Maybe we can—”

“Nope. Dude is going through some shit and apparently that includes a lot of destroying things. You saw the look in his eyes, and the, uh, bulge in his pants. He was ready to crack and do some pretty horrible shit.”

“I know.”

“And you were ready to kick him straight in his junk if he tried, weren’t you?”

“I was.” She nodded, with a little conviction and a dash of pride on her face. “No one gets to use me like that. Never.”

“Did—”

“No, my sire didn’t. But the idea...” She growled, but kept her temple on Triss’s shoulder. “I regret yelling at him, though.”

“Fuck me, why? He was going to use us like dolls and probably break us in the process.”

“Because he’s clearly hurting. And sure, I get what Athalia is saying. I should stop prodding him, and stop trying to coax him out of his shell. But ... now he’s hurting, even more. I made him feel guilty.”

Triss laughed and hugged her stupid girlfriend harder. “Better than how he’d feel if he actually, you know, ate us.”

“I know. But still...” After a long, heavy sigh, she let out a playful, quiet chuckle, and turned her head enough to lean in and give Triss a quick kiss on the cheek bone, above the crocodile teeth. “He was huge.”

“He was.”

“And muscular.”

“Very.”

“And handsome.”

“Yes, he was.” Apparently monster-fucker was a kink a lot of women in Dolareido had.

“And you saw the size of those bulges in his loincloth.”

“I ... did.”

“And that there were two.”

Triss blinked at her. “I did not notice that.”

“I mean, I think I saw two. You think? He does have four arms and four wings.”

“He doesn’t have two mouths or four eyes.”

Laughing, Jen shrugged as she stood up straight, and picked up their pace a bit. “Maybe it’s just wishful thinking.”

Leave it to this girl, to be a beacon of defiance when it came to defending her personal boundaries, but still be perfectly comfortable being the biggest slut Triss knew. It was strangely amazing, and Triss grinned at her girlfriend as Jen let out a yelp. She’d stepped on a pebble.

Chapter 166

~~Jack~~

“Mary?”

No answer.

“Mary, you there?”

No answer.

His mom sighed and shook her head as she pulled out a chair and sat down at their old kitchen table.

“I talked with her last night. She ... She’s pretty angry. Not at anyone, except maybe herself. She thinks she’s not Mary.”

No one thought she was Mary anymore. Everyone at the ball heard what she said, and considering her body had gone from perfectly fine, to dead, in five minutes flat, it was pretty obvious there was something wrong with whatever his mom and Triss had done. Or, if not wrong with the process, wrong with the target. And as much as it hurt to think about, it was probably the latter. She wasn’t Mary. She was an afterimage, an echo, some ephemera remnant, and the body had rejected it.

“You know what I’m thinking,” Jack said as he pulled out a chair and sat beside his mom.

“I know.”

“And I know what you’re thinking. That it doesn’t matter that she’s not Mary.”

His mom nodded, eyes hardened and pointed down at the table.
“It doesn’t matter.”

“I think it does.”

“You’re wrong.”

Jack opened his mouth, but closed it after a few silent seconds. There was no arguing with his mom when she was like this. Logic, out the window. Evidence, out the window. As much as he loved his mom, her absolute refusal to use her brain and break things down into cold hard math, ever, was infuriating. Antoinette did cold logic with everything, even the things Jack wouldn’t. The Prince and his mother were polar opposites.

“Alright, we’ll do this your way. What do we do now?”

“I don’t know.”

“Mom, you have to know your next step. You can’t just blindly drift through your second life reacting and never planning. You’re going to catch a sunrise like that. You have to figure out what you’re going to do.”

“I am going to make sure Mary ... Mary’s ghost, is given everything she needs to be happy.”

“She’ll never be happy, Mom. She’s a ghost, and an angry one.” No need to recount what happened yesterday. If his mom hadn’t been there to stop Mary’s ghost, she would have done some real damage to the people in the ball. Even a vampire would struggle to survive getting cut to bits in a tornado of broken glass, which he was pretty sure Ghost Mary could do.

“It’s better than being alone,” she said, “haunting an old house with no one in it, until she turns into some sort of ... local legend that turns out to be real, and hurts people.”

Jack raised a brow. That was a specific example. Probably some horror movie his mom saw at some point, with teenagers breaking into a haunted house at night on a dare, only for some of them to die. She never could handle horror movies. Horror anything.

“You said she talked to you yesterday?” he asked. After the incident, he knew his mom went to visit her. He also heard Jacob went with her, which made him nervous as all hell.

“She did. She was ... crying. She...” His mom took a slow breath and looked behind her, at the stairs up to the bedrooms. “You heard her, at the end. She was happy she got to ... to see us again.”

Lowering his head, Jack reached out across the table, and set a hand on his mom’s. She turned it enough to hold it, and the two of them looked down.

“Mom, I ... I don’t want you to tear yourself up over this. Mary’s gone, and her ghost ... Maybe she’s just like Mary, whole enough to even be considered Mary. She certainly seemed like her when she was in a body, and ... Fuck me, I should have told Sándor to check her dreams, or Fiona.”

“She got three days with us again. I spent every moment of those three days with her, and we had fun, and we talked and cried and laughed and...” Her voice caught in her throat, and she squeezed Jack’s hand as she shuddered for a moment. “I’m not going to lose her again.”

She was already lost if Triss’s ritual didn’t work. His mom knew it, too.

“I guess we’re back at square one again. It’s easy to keep this house locked down, so Mary’s ... Mary can stay as long as she wants.”

“Yeah...”

“But, what’re you going to do? Are you going to try again?”

She shook her head. “We had to do some ... bad stuff, to make that body, and to do the ritual. And we’re pretty sure we did it right. Doing it again will lead to the same result, and I ... I can’t do all that, just to spend three days with her again, and see ... see that again.”

Jack squeezed her hand back. “No one would expect you to, Mom, especially Mary.”

“Then I guess we go back to the way things were. I’ll talk to Mary again later, maybe tomorrow night. Me and her, we can ... figure something out.”

It was like watching a desperate rat try and figure its way out of a maze. No matter what path his mom took, she wouldn’t be able to get free. The shit reality that Mary was dead and gone was closing in around her, and watching her struggle against it made Jack want to puke like he was still kine. Everything sucked.

“Sounds like a plan.” Nodding, he got up, and pulled on her hand. She resisted for a bit, but he was determined, and eventually she got up. He didn’t let go of her hand until they were out of the house.

In the driveway, Beatrice and Jennifer waited. They must have shown up while Jack was inside with his mom. Beatrice in her usual white tank top and jeans, Jen in a casual suit, and both of them looking like they’d just put their dog down.

“Sam,” Triss said, taking a small step forward. “We ... We were ... We didn’t know if...”

His mom ran the fifteen feet between her and Triss and Jen, and hugged them both, squeezing them both in her arms.

“Why didn’t you come visit last night, after what happened!?”

Jen blinked at the woman between her and Triss, and then at Jack, who of course could only shrug. If they thought his mom would blame them for what happened, they didn't know her very well. But, they probably thought she'd be too upset to be reasonable at the time, which was actually a good bet.

"We just thought you'd want space," Triss said, and she hugged his mom snug and tight, before Jen did the same thing. "She in there?"

"She is, but she's hiding. She's thankful though."

"Not angry?"

"Not at you or anyone. Just ... mad at herself." Samantha sighed as she relaxed her hug, and let both ladies go. "But she's thankful, super thankful, for what she got to have."

"She react to Jacob well?" Triss asked.

"She still remembers everything that happened when ... when in the body. She reacted to him just fine." Jack's mom smiled and nodded, and took another step back. "I'm going to see my sire, and ... I don't know, talk about stuff I guess. You two, you um—"

Triss put up a hand. "Everything's on pause until we figure out what to do. But..."

"But it's not looking good," Jennifer said. "And, you already know that."

"I do." Nodding, Sam gave each girl another quick hug, before she pulled out her phone. Probably texting for a ride. "We should talk, later, in the future. What're you gonna do, Jack?"

"Not sure yet. I got some time."

Triss stepped up to him and managed a quick look in his eyes before she looked down and away slightly. Shame? Guilt?

“Let’s hang for a bit, then.”

“Yeah, we can do that.”

---

“So Jacob really had nothing to do with it,” Jack said.

Triss shook her head as she sipped her blood. Back at his mansion and in one of the smaller dining rooms, they had some privacy, and a nice table to sit at. Plus, he had blood in the fridge, so he got the bottle before they sat down. Jen insisted he get his ‘pets’ to pour their drinks, but he wasn’t that lazy. Jen also insisted getting ordered around would turn them on. He insisted that did not apply to orders a rude customer might give a waitress.

“Not really,” Triss said. “I mean, yeah, he’s a witch and he’s helped me become a witch. He’s taught me a lot. I’ve done some pretty intense shit, thanks to him. But resurrection? He’s pretty much told me to give it up, multiple times. And I’m pretty sure he knew it’d fail, even with Sam’s situation.”

Jack sneered, but Jen reached across the table corner and gave him a firm shoulder slap.

“Jacob has treated your mother well, and is one of the few joys in her life, Jack,” his fellow Ventrue said. “You may not like him, but he is very sweet, kind, loving, and tender with her.”

“Tender?”

“Indeed. After he and Othello have fucked her into a near coma, he often spends time hugging and cuddling her, and asks if she’s okay. It’s very sweet.”

Jack slowly pushed his glass aside, and let his head fall against the table, hard enough his forehead made the whole damn thing shake.

Triss laughed halfheartedly as she sipped her drink again. “Jen, that was mean.”

“Well, he was being mean.”

“No kid likes their stepdad. That shit takes time, you know?”

“Oh god kill me now,” he said into the table.

“Alright, I think we’re avoiding the serious shit,” Triss said. “I know the Invictus, and the Prince, track murders in Dolareido. I bet you know we’ve scooped up some assholes from Devil’s Corner, and killed them.”

Slowly he sat up, groaning as he rubbed his temples, trying to scrub away the image Jen put there. No such luck.

“You’re not the only vamps who do that. More than anyone else lately, sure, but ... but I know the Invictus, and the Ordo Dracul, occasionally kidnap kine, and either kill them, or lock them up for experiments or blood. People the world is better off without.” Though he said that with a little hesitation. It wasn’t a healthy habit to go around playing God.

“Your mom was ... involved in some of it,” Triss said. “I’m not happy about it, but she insisted. She’s seen ... and done, some pretty dark shit.”

“Fuck...”

“And you know we have Elen.”

“Yeah.” Which was pretty fucking terrifying.

“Well, she’s been helping us.”

“Not sure how you’re forcing her.”

“Black Blood. We got Elen at the center of a ritual room. Basically gives him the clear to, uh, half possess her. I don’t think he can full possess her, or anyone with a pulse. But close enough.”

He shivered. Okay, yeah, Black Blood being involved so directly was pretty fucking scary. Forcing Elen to work for them? Scarier.

“And Mom was okay with this?”

“Nope. But she was desperate. Very desperate.” Triss sighed as she looked down and sipped her drink again. “Seeing her daughter’s ghost all the time was getting to her.”

“Of course it fucking was.” Jack rubbed his temples harder. “I told her. I fucking told her she had to let Mary go.” Before the women could say anything, Jack put his hands down. “I said I wasn’t judging, and I meant it. I’d have done the same thing. I’m just ... fuck me, it’s just such a shitty situation.” The fact he had to dodge around saying he was basically plotting to undermine Jacob and Black Blood made it a hundred times worse. He couldn’t tell them. He wanted to, christ he wanted to, but he couldn’t.

“But after last night,” Triss said, “I think ... I think she’s going to let her go. You see the look on her face?”

Jack shook his head. “I think she’s going to give up on the idea of getting Mary back, but now she’s going to adopt her ghost like a homeless cat she found on the street who reminds her of her dead cat.”

“That a bad thing?”

“Considering what we know about ghosts? Yeah. It might take a year, or two, or a hundred, but Mary’s ghost is going to snap and start breaking the Masquerade eventually.”

“Proving ghosts exist doesn’t prove vampires exist,” she said.

“Pretty damn close.”

“He’s right,” Jen said. “As much as it’d be nice to let Samantha take care of Mary’s ghost, it’ll not only be a problem in the future, it’ll keep Samantha from ever truly recovering from Mary’s death.”

Triss winced, and downed the rest of her drink. “Yeah, you’re right. Fuck me, I know you’re right. And you heard Athalia, Jen. Accepting what happened has really helped her.”

Jack raised a brow as he looked between the two ladies. “You talked to Athalia?”

Jen nodded. “We did.”

“And ... it went well?”

“It did. Sort of.”

“Sort of?”

Triss cut in. “She’s never going to forgive us, or me especially. But at the same time, she doesn’t want to hate me, and she doesn’t want me to hate her. She ... She’s moving on. Painful as all fuck for her, but she’s moving on.”

“I’m sure Daniel played a part in that,” Jen said. “She’s a volcano, but he’s a sturdy mountain. They go well together.”

“Opposites attract,” Jack said, “and have a habit of destroying each other.”

Triss laughed as she poured another glass. “Dude, you are too fucking young to say smart shit like that. Be dumb like the rest of us.”

“Sorry. Having a 500-year-old girlfriend rubs off on ya. But honestly, yeah, I can see Daniel being good for Athalia. And maybe Athalia’s ... spicy attitude, will spice Daniel’s life up a bit.”

“Ha, maybe,” Triss said. “My point is, if Athalia can move on, Sam can, too. Just ... we need to be careful about it. Sam already knows what we’re all thinking, and she’s thinking it too. So convincing her will be problematic. And maybe unnecessary, if she eventually accepts it on her own.”

“My mom isn’t exactly good at confronting her own biases and changing her mind about stuff.”

“Then let’s give her time before we poke at her and see if we can get her to let Mary’s ghost go. Agreed?”

Jack let out a heavy sigh before taking a long drink of his glass. “Agreed. I’ll give her space.”

“Good.” Triss leaned back, and set her eyes on her drink on the table. “Fuck me, why can’t things just go smooth? First this shit with Mary, now with Sándor.”

“Something happened to Sándor?”

Triss and Jen traded a few looks, before Triss got back to drinking.

Jen took over. “Sándor’s powerful. Very powerful.”

“Yeah, tell me about it. Only thing the Ripper’s taken on who could manage it.”

“And, well ... his hunger is powerful, too. I don’t want to get into details, it’s very personal. But—”

The door knocked.

“Come in,” Jen said, as if she owned the place. Jack rolled his eyes, but couldn’t help but smile.

Veronica poked her head in. “The hunter Harcourt is at the door, master. Should I bring him in?”

That was strange. Jack looked to the other vampires, but they shrugged.

“Yes, bring him in.”

Veronica smiled, bowed slightly, and left.

“Veronica,” Triss said, once the thrall was gone, “is a very pretty young lady.”

“You’ve seen her before.”

“Yeap. Still. She legal?”

“She’s as old as I was when I was sired.”

“But you were five years old when you were embraced. I remember.”

Jack frowned at Triss, which of course only made her laugh.

“Veronica, Rachel, and Leilani were all old enough to drink when I bound them.” He didn’t like the word bound, but every time he used it around his thralls, they seemed to like it very much. In fact, Antoinette encouraged use of the word. Jen probably would, too.

“Uh huh. Well, she’s got the tits you like.”

Jennifer grinned as she nodded, and shook her chest from side to side a bit, just enough to make sure she created a little jiggle. “Indeed. I should know.”

Jack glared at the two of them, and an extra glare for Jen. “Don’t even start.”

“Imagine it.” Chuckling with the haughty air Ventrue did love, Jen leaned in and winked at Triss. “Those three lovely young ladies, struggling for a turn on Mister Terry, while Antoinette rests his head on her lap and strokes his hair, and Elaine hogs him all to herself.”

That, was entirely too accurate an image, and he almost asked her how she knew about the video. Unfortunately, he knew his expression changed enough to say it all anyway, and both girls erupted into laughter.

He smiled. Honestly, if teasing him let them laugh again, he was okay with that.

“Careful, Jack.” Triss said. “Sex like that will warp your mind, you know. Inflate the ego.”

“He’s Ventrue,” Jen said. “What fun would there be in his sex life, if he was not trying to inflate his ego at every moment.”

Jack threw up his hands. “Tell that to Antoinette. She’s the one—” A quiet knock on the door ended the conversation, thank god. “Come in.”

Rachel came in, then Brace Harcourt, followed by Veronica and Leilani peeking in through the door. Harcourt nodded, waved, in a predictably goofy way, and sat down without waiting to be asked. Any other Invictus would have been offended. At this point, Jack could only chuckle. It never even dawned on the man that it might be offensive to do that.

“That will be all,” Jack said, nodding to his thralls. “Thank you.”

The thralls all returned his nod with a deeper nod and bigger smiles, and left. Which of course gave everyone the opportunity to admire the way they walked when they left, because they made damn sure to sway their hips when they did.

Triss licked one of her crocodile teeth as she looked at Jack. “Dude—”

“No,” he said, and she grinned as she shut up. “Now, Harcourt, how can I help you?”

“Uh, hoping to be the one helping out, actually. Wanted to talk about your sister.”

“Mary’s ghost? We were just talking about her and my mother, and what to do. Or, basically, not do.”

“Not do?”

Jack nodded. “We were going to leave them alone for now.”

“Oh. Well, I mean, I can tell you later then.” And with the most honest ‘woops guess we’ll talk later’ expression on his face, Harcourt got up and headed for the door.

Jack gently slapped the man’s wrist as he walked by. “Sit down you moron. Tell us what’s on your mind.”

“Sure sure.” Harcourt shrugged and sat back down. “I was talking to some hunters out in the world. Told a few of them Dolareido is a pretty calm situation, the few vampires here are damn committed to not killing people, shit like that.”

“The Prince will be happy about that ... assuming a hunter doesn’t think you’ve become someone’s thrall and are just trying to dissuade hunters from coming here.”

“Ha, maybe. Could happen. But I think I convinced them. Anyway, I also called up an old gal I know who specializes in ghosts.”

Triss leaned in, and she did not look happy. “You told them about Mary?”

“No. I just wanted to know what Francene was up to, how she was doing, was she in the state, yada yada. She’s close enough we could get her here if we wanted. And she could help.”

“Help how?” Jennifer asked.

“With ... doing that thing we want ghosts to do? Move on, and stuff? Francene hunts ghosts, and has ways to, uh, kill them, however that works. But I heard she also has ways to help them pass on if she can get them to cooperate. Supposedly.”

The three vampires looked at each other, and all leaned back in their chairs. They hadn’t considered that possibility, at least, not for a while. Getting Mary to ‘pass on’ on her own had been an option, but if she wouldn’t, then making her pass on was also an option, but a shitty one. And they didn’t know how to do that. If a hunter could come along and force the situation, that could be the way to do it.

“No idea how it works?” Jack asked.

“No. Never been my bag. You have to do rituals and place candles and stuff. I can barely speak English, let alone read Latin.” He reached out for the bottle on the table, swished it once, blinked at it, gulped, put it back, and leaned back in his chair. “Francene owes me. I can get her here, and she can deal with Mary.”

“Deal with,” Jack said, with a specific, heavy tone.

“Yeah. I know, it sucks. But you want options, right? I mean, I know the werewolves might be able to do something, since they can hurt spirits and stuff, but that—”

“Probably involves biting and tearing.”

“Yeah. And, I mean, you witches,” he gestured to Triss and Jen, “probably have something, somewhere, that could help. But—”

“Not lying around,” Triss said. “I mean yeah, if I go digging, I’m sure Jacob can find something. But it’s not something he’s ever dealt with, or is an expert on. I bet other Crone witches are, but not here in Dolareido. So, like, gimme a year or ten to learn about it, and sure, I could maybe manage something.”

Jack sighed and shook his head. “I ... would prefer deal with this situation sooner rather than later.”

Jennifer stabbed a finger down at the table. “Don’t you dare do anything without telling your mother, Jack.”

“I won’t, I won’t. Just ... need to figure out how to tell her. She won’t like this.”

Triss raised a hand. “Then maybe we don’t do it? Maybe we just ... don’t ... do anything?”

They all sank in their chairs. Not doing anything was definitely an option, just a really painful one.

“I ... wonder,” Jack said. “Antoinette’s been dealing with ghost stuff, or spirit stuff anyway, for a long time. You think she knows how to do the stuff Harcourt’s talking about?”

“Maybe,” Triss said. “I’m sure she knows something. But ... maybe not the sort of shit Harcourt’s talking about. She’s probably got rituals to trap Mary’s ghost, lock her in a jar, bind her to an object, all sorts of crazy shit. But just ... help her move on? She'd probably have said something if she knew, right?"

"Probably." And maybe not. Antoinette could be damn ruthless when it came to her role in the Ordo Dracul. Whatever allowed her to further her knowledge about spirits, ghosts, and whatever else lurked in that weird world, she'd pursue. And he knew what it was like to have an obsession. It was like going through life wearing horse blinders, and it got very easy to get so focused on whatever was in front of you, you forgot anything else existed. Even other people.

---

~~Antoinette~~

"I am sorry, my childe, but there is little that can be done for Mary, not with the knowledge I possess, not in the manner you seek."

Samantha sighed as she sat at the table across from her, deep in the tower in Antoinette's primary experiments room.

"I know. You'd have brought it up months ago if you could have." The poor child. She groaned as she leaned forward, and buried her face in her hands. "And ... I suppose you know about what I did."

"Stealing Elen's book and knife? Of course, my childe."

She groaned louder. "Why didn't you stop me?"

Because it was in Antoinette's interest to let her childe get closer to the witches, and to Jacob.

"Because it was a valuable lesson to a dragon."

"Lesson?"

“Us in the Ordo Dracul can teach our students with many methods. A simple one is to let our students pursue a mystery to its end, and to document the path well. To understand the implications of each step upon the path. To understand the tree of causality, and how each event ripples out to create new events.” Antoinette reached out, set a hand upon her childe’s, and gently pulled it down from her face to rest it upon the table. “I am sorry. Truly. But I thought it best to let you chase this mystery, though I felt only pain waited for you in the end.”

Samantha nodded as she stared down at the table. “I ... I’d say that was harsh, too harsh, but all you did was let me do what I wanted to do. I’m not a little girl who needs to be protected by their mom.”

“Indeed. Though, believe me, young Daeva, I wish such lessons could be learned in a less painful way. And I also admit, I was quite surprised to see Mary alive and well. A small part of me was even convinced you had succeeded. Jacob, as well. But...”

“But it was a fool’s hope.”

“Most hopes are, young childe, but do not dismiss them so easily. Such hopes can often lead to great change. Regardless, you are now left with the same situation you were in months ago.”

“I know. Mary ... Mary’s ghost, she’s even more unstable now. I talked to her after what happened, and it ... it was obvious. She can talk to me, but anyone else, she’ll probably attack. She’s ... happy, about getting those three nights, but she’s also more...”

“Anyone would become erratic after going through such an experience, Samantha. I can only imagine how traumatizing it must have been for Mary’s ephemera mind, where every emotion and memory affects her body in very palpable ways.”

Samantha nodded as she leaned back, and looked behind her at the summoning circle where Antoinette performed her experiments.

“I don’t know what to do. She says she’s not Mary. And ... And I...”

“Even if she is not Mary’s soul, she is still an entity, with some form of strange awareness. And she has the memories of your daughter, does she not?”

“She does.”

“Then, I cannot fault you, for feeling for her as if she were your daughter, Samantha. And I cannot fault you for wishing to continue taking care of her. The house will remain off limits to kine and others, but...”

“But it can’t stay like that forever.” She looked to Antoinette, with a hardened gaze unbecoming her. “I ... I can’t do anything, not yet. But give me some time, and I’ll get there.”

Antoinette kept her face neutral, but seeing her sweet child struggle with something no one should ever have to deal with, was almost overwhelmingly painful. As with Jack, being with Samantha unearthed a sense of empathy she thought long lost. And that was dangerous.

“Samantha, you and Beatrice may keep Elen’s knife and book until you are satisfied, but I do ask that you return them once you are done. As for Elen, I suppose Jacob considers her his property.”

“I don’t know. I think so, but I think he just got her so he could use her to teach Beatrice stuff. He ... He seems invested in her, you know? Like, I can tell when we talk, that he’s proud of her. Maybe even has high hopes for her. But...”

“But?”

“But, Jacob, sometimes he ... he talks like ... like something’s about to change. Like, he’s excited for how much Beatrice has learned, and how quickly. He’s super proud of her. But then his expression changes, he talks about the future, and then he goes quiet. I wonder if he's thinking about leaving, but he's hesitating because of me."

Naturally, her childe would find the most guilt-inducing conclusion.

"Has he suggested when this may happen, my childe? As old a friend as Jacob is, he does not tell me as much as I wish he did."

"No idea. It's hard with him. Vampires as old as him, they..."

Antoinette smiled. "They do not think in the short term."

"Exactly." Slowly, Samantha looked down, and twiddled her fingers on the table. "God, I feel horrible for thinking this. But I don't want him to leave me. He's the first man I've known in a long time that can make me laugh, and makes me feel safe while also making me try new things, and ... and..."

"And who satisfies you sexually?"

Samantha squirmed a bit, but nodded. "Yes."

"Sexuality is a vital aspect of romantic connection, Samantha. Perhaps less so to vampires, but nonetheless, do not feel shame for it." Before her childe could respond, Antoinette gently squeezed her hand. "I do not know what Jacob will do, but you are the first person I have seen him bond with so deeply since Minerva. I trust he will not casually cast you aside."

That managed to pull a smile from her. "You think so?"

"Truly. Though, I am curious about this concern of yours, that you think he may be leaving."

“Well, lately, he talks about changing things, the sort of way someone might if they were going to move away, you know? He wants to make...” After struggling to find the words, she shrugged. “It’s more in how he talks about things, but yes, I do think something’s been on his mind a lot lately.”

Oh sweet childe, if only she knew.

---

“Black Blood, I summon thee.”

She looked down at yet another sacrifice, and sighed as all that met her words, was silence.

“It resists yet again,” her sheriff said.

“It does.”

“Then we have no choice.”

Antoinette nodded. “If Samantha’s inklings are correct, then I suppose we do not.”

“You trust your childe’s intuition that much?”

Antoinette offered her old friend a gentle smile. “Do you trust your childe’s?”

“Natasha has over fifty years of training.”

“Indeed, but we both know there is more to her success than simple training. Part of her skill is because of the blood, your blood, and I have faith in mine. I have high hopes for my childe, Daniel, and I would be a fool to dismiss her intuition. We begin tonight.”

Black Blood was a crafty entity. It had to be. Despite its immense power, something prevented it from directly intervening with Antoinette or the others when in the physical realm. According to Natasha, it also seemed blocked from directly interfering with the Uratha in the spirit realm. Whatever rules it was bound by, those rules seemed unbreakable.

Except, it did not seem to be bound by all the rules spirits were bound by. Many of them, but not all of them. Jack thought it was not a spirit at all, and Antoinette had been inclined to believe him. Quite inclined.

She reached down, and stabbed her fingers into the man's corpse. A stereotypical criminal, a business man, fat, unseemly, who had used his position and money to financially ruin innocent people. When his crimes crossed into darker territory, Antoinette decided to remove the ridiculous kine from the world. Not the most powerful sacrifice, but it should have worked.

Even so, she expected the ritual to not work, thus, a poor sacrifice was of little consequence. Furthermore, the kine's blood would work just as well for the next ritual.

"You sure this will work?" her sheriff asked.

Antoinette chuckled softly as she gazed into her book in her left hand, and drew lines onto the floor with her right hand's blood-soaked fingers.

"I am. It is not a true spirit. And considering what Black Blood has done in multiple realms, I am forced to assume it is something greater."

"Which means this ritual could get us killed, Ann."

"Then we finish the ritual when the time comes. When Black Blood is distracted."

Daniel sighed as he stepped up beside her, and watched her paint more symbols. Often she was forced to stab her fingers into the corpse, to renew the blood; the ritual would be weakened by transporting the blood in a container.

For months they prepared for this ritual. For months, they researched, books upon books, abandoned tomes, artifacts lost and forgotten and unearthed. For months, she dug into the archives of the order, and spoke to her fellow dragons for clues on this treasure hunt. She had been successful.

They were ready to begin.

But she would not spring the trap, not yet. What good would it be to confront a godly entity directly? They had to bide their time, and wait. And the longer they waited, the closer they came to ruin. Antoinette could be patient, and wait decades for a plan to come to fruition, but knowing Black Blood could very well destroy her city and beyond at any moment, left her forever anxious.

“Daniel,” she said, after having painted one section of the floor in several hundred symbols, in exact, specific locations. It had taken three hours. “Bring me three more sacrifices.”

“Alright.” Daniel took a second to look at her work, made for the door, but stopped as he reached for the latch. “We only have five more kine in storage, Ann.”

“Then we will need to find more.”

---

~~Beatrice~~

Three days later.

“A little birdie told me,” Jen said, “that the Prince has been plucking people off the street. Vanishing them.”

“Oh shit. Really?” Triss asked.

“Mhmm. And she’s not being subtle about it.”

“That’s ... kinda fucked up. How she doing it?”

“I heard she’s taken some inmates from a nearby prison.”

Triss winced. That was rough shit. Lots of the inmates in jail for nasty shit didn’t deserve the sentences they got. And sure Triss and Jen made sure sure the people they killed deserved it, half because they wanted to, half because Sam begged them too, but she wasn’t so sure Antoinette would be as nice.

Triss and Jen curled on their blankets and furs in Triss’s alcove. They hadn’t seen Sándor since the incident in his nightmare chamber, and they’d only chatted with Samantha a couple quick times since. Shit was still tense, everyone still felt guilty and horrible, so everyone went into passive mode until people started to feel better.

Thankfully, as fucking horrible as Mary’s death had been, it had basically been a reset back to the way things were just a week ago. People were recovering quickly. And after three days of people lying around feeling like shit, sex drives returned. Across the cave, Othello was doing what he usually did: fucking Madison’s poor ass. And of course he did it in the entrance to his alcove, so everyone could see Madison and her spread legs, since she was facing out. Long, slow, tender anal sex, with Othello sitting up and hugging her from behind with one hand, while his other caressed and massaged her clit. It was damn romantic.

So Triss lay on her side, cuddled into Jen’s back, the both of them watching Madison melt away.

Triss almost said something about Mary, but stopped herself. Finally, a night where they didn’t feel like total shit. Why fucking ruin that?

She leaned in, kissed Jen's neck, and slid a hand around her, undid a couple buttons, and slipped her palm around Jen's lower breast. This damn beautiful woman and her huge tits. Big pillows that were lovely to squeeze and fondle and caress. Girls like Triss and Sam had to get by on average breasts, while it seemed like every other woman in the city was packing giant badonkas.

"You should get some nipple piercings," Triss said.

"I suppose I could."

"Then you can know what it's like to wear a nipple chain and have people tugging on it."

"I'll have you know, I did not introduce you to nipple chains. You owned them before, no?" She turned her head enough to smile at her, before she looked back to Othello and Madison.

Laughing, Triss snuggled into her back a little harder, half holding her so she could keep playing with her huge tit, and half holding her because she still felt like shit. And thank god their relationship had long hit the point Triss didn't need to feel shy, or guilty for being clingy. She wanted cuddles.

"No word from Sándor," Triss said.

"No. How often do brooding sessions last?"

"I ... suppose I would know, wouldn't I?"

"Of course."

"They can last for a few days, sure. I was hoping we'd see him soon, so we could talk to Sam together." Triss sighed, undid another button so Jen's breasts were both free of the fabric, and continued to tease and massage. It wasn't all that sexual, at least not enough to trigger a bout of sex. If they kept watching Othello, sure, it might happen, but Triss just wanted to snuggle with her girlfriend, and fondling while doing so was an idea she picked up from Jack.

According to the kid, breasts were pretty amazing as a stress toy, as long as you were gentle. Super relaxing to squeeze softly and feel how the softness molded to the fingers and palm. And of course, having a busty girlfriend who loved being touched made it all the better.

“Maybe he went on a hunting trip,” Jen said.

“Yeah, maybe. I still wonder why he didn’t ask us to help him with that shit. I mean, we’ve been dipping our hands in some deep blood for months now. He couldn’t have asked for our help? Maybe we could have ... locked him in a box with one of our targets?”

“From the look in his eyes, Triss, I get the impression there wouldn’t be much left of the target once he was done.”

Triss shivered, and let go of her friend’s boob. Mood ruined, even with Othello only a hundred feet away.

“Still, I think we could have helped him.”

Jen shook her head, turned over onto her back, and gave Triss a kiss. “I don’t think he needs help finding prey. He’s really, really old, remember? The problem is just what Athalia said it was. He hates being what he is.”

Sighing, Triss returned the kiss, rolled over, got perpendicular with Jen, and put the back of her head on her girlfriend’s stomach as she lay down. Without missing a beat, Jen slipped her hands into Triss’s hair, and combed it with her fingers.

“Vampires go through the same problem.”

“Not like him,” Jen said. “To vamps who get over becoming what we are, who learn to accept that we have to drink blood to survive, someone like Sándor who refuses to embrace his hungers sounds ... almost juvenile. But then, he’s not a vampire, and his hungers are —”

“Massive and extreme, I know.” Sighing, Triss reached up and grabbed at the air overhead, as if grabbing butterflies. “I get it. He’s not the same as us. He has to feed and take it all the way. He has to go full ... monster.” She groaned as she let her hands drop. “Christ, no wonder Athalia calls us blood leeches. Compared to Begotten, we’re just ... mosquitoes.”

Jen mirrored her sigh and continued combing Triss’s hair. “I suppose they beat us in the drama, self-loathing department.”

“Tell that to Fiona. How that girl is so cheery, despite having, what, a dozen kills to her name, I have no idea.”

“No guilt, I suppose. She has to punish people who’ve done bad things.”

“I guess,” Triss said. “And Mark?”

“We know nothing about Mark.”

“And Azamel, she ... she tried to make it work, I guess. I still remember what Jeremiah’s ritual showed us. She tried to make it work for her, her hunger and shit, and it backfired in the end. Athalia basically tried to ignore it, and it backfired on her, too.”

“Yes,” Jen said. “As much as vampires think we have a monopoly on second life drama, I think the Begotten have us beat. And Sándor has everyone beat. It’s no wonder he’s sad all the time.”

“I wonder what sort of woman his wife was. Margaret.”

“He said she was determined, and a pain in his ass. That’s part of the reason I thought being so direct with him would help him open up. Apparently, it was the wrong call.”

“It probably would have been the right call, maybe twenty years ago. I’m guessing losing his wife and kid to Jeremiah, and then being a slave for a few years after that, broke him.” Triss sat up with a jolt. “Oh fucking christ.”

“What?”

“Is that why I like him so damn much? He’s broken, and I want to fix him?” She clutched her face as she stared down at Jen. “Oh my fucking god, I’m eighteen again.”

Chuckling, Jen sat up and hugged her. “I like him because I feel like ... he’s a kitten, who if I can coax him out of his box, he’d be a lion.” And of course, she licked her lips after saying lion. “But, after what Athalia said? Maybe we should ... wait a little bit on that.”

“Yeah, probably a good idea. Maybe we should—”

Jacob came by, dressed in his evil witch robes, with a weird smile on his face, one Triss didn’t think she’d ever seen before.

“Beatrice, come have a blather with me for a second.”

“What the fuck is a blather?”

He laughed, and held out a hand for her. “Conversation.”

“Uh huh.” She took his hand, and he yanked her up onto her feet like she weighed nothing.

“Jen, stay here, watch some porn.” Nodding, he took Triss out of the cave.

Once outside, he wrapped them in his Cloak. It was a crazy powerful Cloak, so no one would hear a thing.

“Shit’s about to go down,” he said.

“What?”

“Things are happening.”

“What things?”

“The drop has been made. Five by five.”

“Jacob!” She gave him a hard shove, but he brushed it off, chuckling as he did. “What’s going on? The fuck are you talking about?”

He smiled at her, but after a few seconds of weird silence, the smile faded.

“I wanted to know if you thought about what I asked.”

“Fuck me, now?”

“Yeah now.”

“About leaving? I didn’t even understand the question, Jacob.”

He leaned in and set a hand on her shoulder. “Things are going to change, Triss. Tonight.”

“So ... you’re leaving, now?”

“Sort of.”

“Sort of? Dude, you’re freaking me out. Just tell me what’s going on.”

He set his other hand on her other shoulder, and stared into her soul, straight through the eye bandage. Now, she was thoroughly freaked.

“I’m moving everyone, Triss. We’re all moving.”

“I, uh, what?”

“I’m changing the rules for this stupid game, Triss. Everything. And we’re all going. That shit I said before about leaving? I didn’t mean I’m leaving. I meant everything is. I’m changing the rules to this stupid fucking game, and I want to know if you’re okay with that.”

“Okay? Jesus Jacob, I still don’t even know what you fucking mean!”

“Oh. You don’t know.” He let her go and started walking in the direction of Dolareido. “I can’t explain everything. It’ll take too long. The Prince is up to something, and if I don’t get this stone rolling now, I might never. We’re out of time.”

No fucking way. She grabbed his hand and yanked on it, hard enough to half turn him to face her.

“The fuck did you bring me out here for then!?”

“I thought maybe you knew what was happening, at little a least, but you don’t. The Prince and her friends have been keeping secrets and keeping them well.”

“Secrets? Jacob, my head is spinning. Just tell me what’s happening.”

He let out of a heavy sigh. Whatever it was he’d planned to do, her not already knowing about it had slowed down his attempts to explain enough to the point he was just going to go without her. Well, fuck that.

“If I told you there’s another way to see Julias again, another way to have him in your life, would you take it?”

“Are you fucking serious? I—”

“Answer the question,” he said, voice cold and hard.

She froze. “I ... I mean ... I...”

He turned and faced her, eyebrows heavy, but it was like something had just carved his face out of steel.

“You were finally moving on, weren’t you? Finally ready to let him go.”

“Not ... Not ready. But, I was getting there. After what happened to Mary, and ... yeah...” She gave his shoulder another shove. “And you told me to! You told me to forget about him and move on!”

He nodded, every shred of joy gone from his body language. None of the usual chaos Triss was so familiar with, and liked. It was like she was looking at a monolith.

“I suppose I should have told you you didn’t have to move on. But, fuck me, I didn’t know if it’d work. We’re so close, and now Annie’s doing what she always does: tries to keep the status quo, keep the peace. But it doesn’t have to be like this! We can change the rules. We can tear it all down, and change everything.”

She gulped on a dry throat as she stared at him. “Jacob, you’re scaring me. What ... What are you doing? What’s going on?”

“There’s no time.”

“What the fuck!?! You pulled me out here and started talking about resurrecting Julias again, and—”

He came in, came in fast. One moment he was standing there a few feet from her. The next, directly in front of her, inches from her face, and the moving air he'd pushed aside came a second later.

“I didn't say resurrecting Julias, Beatrice. Think bigger. Think so much bigger.”

“I ... I still don't—”

“Don't worry about it. I thought you knew, thought maybe Jack told you the little he knows, maybe you'd pieced things together. It doesn't matter. I thought maybe we'd talk about it, maybe I'd show you, maybe ... It doesn't matter. We can talk later, after I've torn down the walls.”

Before she could say anything, he stepped back, and vanished.

“Jacob? Jacob!” Nothing. Silence.

She stood there, unmoving, staring, processing, and each time her slow-ass brain managed to absorb something he'd said, a shard of ice stabbed her in the back.

---

~~Damien~~

Fiona recovered from Mary's second death quickly. It wasn't because she'd only spent a little time with Mary in the time she was alive. Fiona got attached to people in a matter of minutes, especially someone like Mary. But she also bounced back, never forgetting what she lost, but at the same time, immune to being dragged down by a memory.

They'd go visit her ghost soon. It'd probably make Fiona cry again, but she insisted.

For now, they sat on Fiona's bed, surrounded by cute stuffed animals, with Fiona sitting on Damien's lap. Naked, with her hands tied behind her back, she rested her head on his shoulder, legs wrapped around his waist and hips. He'd fed on her, fed deep; it being the first time they'd made love since the incident at the ball, they both had some pent up desire to spend. An hour later, Fiona was absolutely exhausted. Still exhausted from the Kiss, and she would be for many hours yet, and exhausted from an hour of Damien ravaging her, driven to almost animal aggression from the strange, powerful kick of her blood.

He peeked down over her shoulder, and grinned. Her hands were cuffed, and resting against her lower back, and her ass was bright red.

"You okay?" he asked.

"Nnnmmmn."

He chuckled as he kissed her cheek, the rush of her blood finally settling. Mostly. He was still quite hard, so he set his hands on her ass again, and gently moved her back and forth against him.

Damien had never considered himself to be a breast man. He'd never considered himself a sexual man at all, but that likely had something to do with a healthy dose of brainwashing in his young life, and harboring resentment toward Slut City. Having a healthier second life and an amazing girlfriend certainly changed that. And the feel of her very, very, very large, soft breasts squashed against his chest, was euphoric. The werewolves were all extremely fit, and all the vampires were groomed before siring, often at a point of peak physique, always with some degree of abs and whatnot. Fiona's body, on the other hand, had a hint of softness to it that he adored. She liked chocolate.

He smiled down at her, and pushed forward a bit so she was forced to lean back, body arching as he kept his hands on her lower back. Her head dangled between her shoulders, and her chest jutted out, allowing her massive breasts to flow back and forth against her like water as he softly fucked her. Her freckles on her pale skin were utterly gorgeous, and he leaned down to kiss the ones he found along her sternum and top of her breasts.

He came inside her again, and gave her a few extra hard bounces, earning some tiny, weak squeaks from her. Fiona was borderline comatose, but he knew she was still awake, and from their conversations, he knew one of her favorite kinks was to be rendered borderline catatonic with exhaustion, and get used like a sex toy.

He slid her off, gently rolled her onto her side, and uncuffed her. She quivered like a leaf every moment, even as he slid her under the blankets, grabbed one of her favorite stuffed animals, and set it against her chest. Without thinking, she slowly slid her trembling arms around it, and hugged it against her as she melted into the bed and pillow. Why she wanted to snuggle with an octopus, he didn't know, but the stuffed animal was indeed a cute octopus, and she loved it.

It'd been a gift, him to her, but not his idea. Jessy had suggested it, because apparently despite her being ... Jessy, she knew how to shop for a bubbly girl like Fiona. The Gangrel was somehow simultaneously very dumb, and very smart, and he doubted he'd ever figure her out.

Chuckling, he curled up under the blankets with his girlfriend, snuggled in behind her, and hugged her.

“You okay?” he asked again.

“Mmn ... mnnn.”

He grinned down at her, kissed her neck, and slid his hugging arm higher. Big as her breasts were, with her on her side, the upper one squished the lower, and he slipped his hand between them. So soft, so heavy, he gently cupped and squeezed her higher breast, earning a couple more half-asleep groans from Fiona.

And then he squeezed and fondled it a few times, because it was apparently his right as boyfriend if the girlfriend was ever too tired to wake up in the morning, or was too tired to stop him after sex. He didn't necessarily agree, but Fiona — and Jessy — insisted it was true. And ultimately, he was a man, a weak man, and if his extremely busty girlfriend was comfortable with him playing with her breasts whenever he wanted, he had to take advantage of the offer.

A wise young man once said: breasts were pretty amazing as a stress toy, as long as you were gentle. Super relaxing to squeeze softly and feel how the softness molded to the fingers and palm. And of course, having a busty girlfriend who loved being touched made it all the better.

“Still a lot of hours in the night,” he said.

“Mmm.”

“I told you we should have waited ‘til later. What am I gonna do now until sunrise?”

“Mmm.”

“I could tie you up and leave you like that, all night.”

She managed a quiet, weak chuckle as she turned over onto her back. Naturally, he slid the blanket down to her stomach, so he could admire how her giant breasts squished and spread against her chest. She took the cute octopus with her, holding it on her chest.

“Mn ... mmmm.”

“Or I could lie here with you, and hold you all night long.”

“Mmmmm.” She turned into him, and snuggled into his chest. She couldn’t get too close, with the octopus now between their sternums, but she tried anyway.

He slipped his arm around her back, and kissed her forehead. “I love you.”

“Mm.”

He laughed again, and—

The phone rang. Jack’s ringtone.

Groaning, he let go of Fiona, and fetched the phone from the nightstand.

“Jack.”

“Damien. You ready to fight an azlu?”

---

Wearing a comfortable casual suit, and a trench coat with a very long sword between his shoulder blades, Damien joined Jack on the street, and they made their way to the tear.

“I could be back with Fiona, you know.”

Jack laughed as he glanced up, likely checking to see if his crows were following. They were.

“Did I interrupt something?”

“We were finished. But sometimes I do like to cuddle, you know?”

“Cuddling is nice.”

“And I Kissed her, so she’s very ... vulnerable, right now.” Damien didn’t really consider himself the ‘talk about sex with friends’ kind of man, but living in Dolareido with Fiona for a girlfriend was changing him. Plus, after everything Jack and Damien had seen of each other, and of their girlfriends, there really wasn't much to get shy about.

Jack grinned at him. "I have to admit, that sounds nice. I can't exactly do that with Antoinette. Can't Kiss her. And I wouldn't snuggle with my thralls or her ghouls. Bit too personal."

"There is ... something satisfying, about holding her when she's so weak she can barely lift a finger. Sometimes I ... never mind." There was such thing as too much information. Talk about sex, sure. Actively describe how Damien, on a couple occasions, snuggled with Fiona after sex, found himself playing with her breasts until he was hard again, climbed onto her, and fucked her breasts while she was too exhausted or weak to do anything but smile and mewl? Bit too much.

If Fiona had her way, there'd be a full video recording of one of their longer sessions like earlier tonight. She'd share it with everyone, and point and giggle and swoon over every single thing, particularly the cuddling. And knowing his girlfriend, it'd only be the beginning. Before long, he'd be joining Natasha, Jessy, and Jack as, apparently, porn stars.

Jack grinned at him again, but it faded as he sighed, the two of them turning an alley in North Side as they headed around the building to enter from the back.

"Talk to Mary?" Damien asked.

"I tried. She hides. I know she's talked to Mom, but I'm pretty sure she's talked to no one else ... except maybe Jacob."

Damien glanced Jack's way. That couldn't have felt good, knowing the man they all suspected of concocting an apocalyptic ritual, was able to talk to his ghost sister while he couldn't. He shouldn't have asked. Time for a topic change.

“Azlu. We know it's there, now?”

“Avery says she's seen signs of it,” Jack said, “a few times, and it seems to be following some kind of schedule. Pretty normal, animals do that.”

“Azlu are animals?”

“I mean, prehistoric half flesh half spirit animals, but still animals. Avery says it'll show up any time now. She thinks the spot's become some sort of hot spot for them and they come through every few days. They want to seal up the hole, but haven't, because we always have someone keeping guard.”

“We don't right now?”

“Caleb's been hanging out this time. He's Irraka, whatever that means, and can stay hidden and stuff.”

“Like the Cloak?” Damien asked.

“I guess. Supposedly he's pretty good at hiding, better than most Irraka according to her.”

“She does seem to know her stuff.”

Jack scoffed. “She tried to kill Fiona, thinking she was an azlu.”

Damien shrugged. “I mean, she is a human spider monster hybrid thing, just like azlu. A thousand times more attractive than an azlu, but still.”

“What, her sense of smell couldn't tell the difference?”

“Maybe she thought it was a unique breed or something?”

They both shrugged as they opened the door to the back of the old abandoned building, and into the basement. As he did, Scully and Mulder flew down and perched on his shoulders.

“Sorry buddies,” Jack said. “We’re getting into some potentially dangerous stuff tonight. I can’t take you.”

Both crows flapped their wings a few times, and cawed at Jack.

“Not happening. We’re gonna fight an azlu. That means spiderwebs, and ghosts, considering where we’re gonna be fighting. Way too many ways for you two to get hurt, or maybe even left behind if something horrible happens. You’re staying here, where it’s safe ... er.”

They squawked.

“No arguing! No, wait for us up on the building. I got Damien with me, and Sándor, and a bunch of werewolves. I’ll be fine.” He slid a hand along one shoulder, forcing one crow to hop onto his hand, and then the same for the other. “Now go.”

After a couple more loud caws, they obeyed.

“We could use them,” Damien said. “Where we’re going, scouts would be very useful.”

“Caleb, Monica, and Carter can be our scouts. I’m not risking my friends, not again.”

“Aren’t I your friend?”

Jack laughed and shook his head. “Hell no. You think that’s why we hang out all the time? I just need you for a shield.”

“Makes sense. Very Danse Macabre of you.”

They chuckled as they walked down the stairs into the basement of the building.

Avery and Clara were there, along with Caleb, Noah, Carter, David, Erica, Mason, and Monica. Which left Art, Matt, Brianna, and Eric missing from the Uratha of Dolareido. Sándor was with in the basement too, though it only took a small glance to realize the man was distracted by something, eyes pointed down, brows slightly furrowed. Furrowed was unique for him, a change from his usual neutral expression.

Everyone was dressed casually and ready for a fight. T-shirts, loose jeans, sneakers or army boots and whatnot. Damien expected to be the only one wielding weapons, save for Jack, but Carter had a flamethrower with him. Which made Damien and Jack extremely nervous.

“Hey,” Jack said, offering a small wave. Damien said nothing, no need.

Everyone looked up, and a few of them returned the wave. Sándor nodded, but otherwise, went back to whatever thoughts were probably torturing him.

“Where are the others?” Damien asked.

Avery spoke up first. “Black Blood’s in the spirit world. We spotted it up to something, making some kind of move near one of the tears. Brianna, Matt, Art, and Eric are investigating, along with Tash and Jessy I guess. And Flow.”

Flow, the giant water spirit that worked with Avery. It’d been forever since Damien had seen her ... it, and the sight had been damn impressive. How Avery had recruited its help, no vampire knew, and the spirit Flowing Sanctuary was definitely a force to be reckoned with.

“You think he’s going to create a new tear?” Jack asked.

“I think ‘it’”—she emphasized it—“is definitely up to something. The fact I don’t know is infuriating, and I have no choice but to play the recon game. But, it’s going to do something at the same time I think the azlu are going to check out this tear.” She gestured to the literal tear in the air behind her. “So something’s up. We’re gonna catch this azlu, kill it, torch it, and the other team is gonna report back what Black Blood’s up to asap. Sándor has that Mark fellow watching the other tear, deep in the Great Below, and he can report back to us, too.”

“You think tonight’s the night of the ritual?” Damien asked.

Sándor shrugged slightly. “Mark reports nothing unusual, but that could easily change.”

“He got a way to get to here from there?” Jack asked.

“Not to this specific place, no. There will be a delay information, if something happens. Athalia is waiting in the tunnels, in case Mark does report something. She may be able to help, and perhaps ask for Fiona’s help.”

Damien sucked in a breath between his teeth, loud enough everyone looked at him.

“Fiona...,” he said, “may not be available.”

Avery glared. “And why is that? This is kind of important.”

“I ... Kissed her, a couple hours ago. Thoroughly. She’s completely drained. So, I mean ... unless we fight in the dream realm, where she can merge with her Horror and help us...”

Every single werewolf groaned, and Damien shifted in place a couple times. Shit.

Clara raised a hand. “Why isn’t Daniel coming with us? He’s the sheriff, right? This seems like his kinda bag.”

“I texted him,” Jack said. “He said he was busy with the Prince.”

“Busy?”

“Busy, which is sheriff-speak for doing something extremely dangerous and relevant. Otherwise, I’m sure he’d be here.” Jack walked over to join the crowd, and Damien followed behind. “We going in?”

“Yeap. Caleb, stealth up and go in first. Carter, Monica, follow him in, scout out the area. Damien, cloak us up.”

Damien nodded, and tapped into his vitae. Deep into his vitae. He was great at the Cloak of Night, but Cloaking a whole group of people? Difficult. It was a good thing he had a belly full of Begotten blood.

“Anyone staying on this side?” Jack asked.

Avery shook her head. “Everyone joins the hunt. Besides, it’s not like we need someone on this side, holding a rope. Wouldn’t do anything.”

“True, I guess.”

Leave it to Jack to voice Damien’s concerns. The idea of all of them going through the portal and into the Great Below, was a scary idea, because it meant they were at the mercy of the tear. Sándor was coming with them though, and if for some reason they couldn’t use the tear, he could get them out. He was Begotten.

Damien walked around, and touched everyone on the shoulder. Some physical contact would make it easier. They couldn’t keep touching him, which would have made it even easier, but a quick touch would hopefully be enough. He didn't need to with Carter, Monica, or Caleb, thank the Lord. Still, that was half a dozen werewolves, and Jack, and Sándor, he had to cloak.

Going through the tear was a strange business. It looked like it was thin until you got close, and then you could see the tear had a thickness to it only visible from within. Avery had said it reminded her of the gold and white you saw when crossing the Gauntlet that separated the physical and spirit realms. And it did look similar, though instead of gold, there was black. Endless black, like looking into oblivion. He thought he saw stars, but the white dots in the distance moved noticeably when he did. If he wanted to, he could reach out and touch them.

He did not touch them. Crossing the Gauntlet had been scary enough, and according to the Uratha, there was a chance things lived inside the wall separating the spirit and physical world. And, according to them, it held secrets they had no way of discovering. So he kept his hands to himself as he crawled through the tear, and got back onto his feet on the other side.

The Great Below. One unfathomably giant cave, with walls of dark rock so tall they could fit a city, skyscrapers included. Fog drifted, ebbing and flowing like a slow, lazy ocean. Swarms of ghosts miles away moved, drifting over land and through the air overhead, holding green lanterns. From so far, the lanterns were only distinguishable as green dots, surrounded by blobs of haze.

Around Damien and the group, were spiderwebs. Big spiderwebs with heavy threads. Damien was all too familiar with spiderwebs and how constricting they could be, but the difference between these and Fiona's was obvious. Fiona's were precise and graceful. These were only barely subtle, meant to catch things that had to go through the area against their will. But, there weren't enough of them to keep Damien from walking around fairly easily. If the webs were actually meant to trap something, they were doing a poor job of it. Residue, then? Something the spiders left behind as they did ... whatever it was they did?

Caleb, Monica, and Carter were invisible, hidden in shadows cast by the enormous boulders or the giant rock wall. Everyone else came in after Damien, and he made sure to spread his cloak out to engulf them as they did. He wouldn't be able to hide a transformed werewolf, but as long as everyone stayed in human form and stayed close, it should be alright.

He gulped when Sándor went through. For a fleeting moment, the shadow of the gargoyle surrounded him, and the man's size dwarfed everyone. Jack and Avery, the two last, noticed as well, and they looked between each other before looking to Damien through the tear. Avery hadn't seen the gargoyle before, and its size shocked her.

Once they were through, they all turned to scan what they could see. Nothing but rocks, and webs.

"The azlu's gotten bigger," Avery said.

"How can you tell?" Jack asked.

"The webbing's spread. Used to just be in the ravine before." She walked over to the small canyon they'd found earlier. Sure enough, the webbing in the ravine was bigger, too, and a couple of cocoons lay between some larger rocks within. "We think it's been coming down from the other end of the ravine, before it comes here." She gestured to the ravine, and where it eventually ended as it collided with the colossal wall of stone near the tear, and went on for probably miles in the other direction.

Damien squatted down beside the ravine, and gestured to the two cocoons. "What are—"

"You know what those are," Avery said, growling.

It was not a Kindred's prerogative to worry about kine lives, but that didn't mean they didn't. Vampires had been human once, and if one was completely incapable of feeling any empathy for one murdered in such a way, they were likely well on their way to becoming a draugr. And as much as Damien had a troubled history full of manipulation from the Lancea et Sanctum, even the Sanctified felt they were serving a duty to both God, and kine, by helping them, and they often did so with compassion.

Damien and Jack were visibly bothered by the cocoons. Avery looked livid.

"It's a big city," Jack said after several moments of silence. "There's no way to track down how the spider got these bodies, not easily anyway. Is there another tear it's using? We've been watching this one."

"It's azlu," Avery said. "The Hosts do not follow the same rules as us. I'm sure it's found many places where it can cross over between realms. Like spiders, crawling through holes in a screen door. I doubt it killed those humans here, or ate them here."

"Pretty smart for an arachnid," Damien said, "going to multiple locations to do its business. Not exactly common behavior for a spider."

"Maybe they are evolving..." Sighing, Avery stood back up and gestured forward down the ravine. "I didn't want to believe it."

"Given enough time," Sándor said, "anything can evolve."

The three of them looked at him, eyebrows quirked. A strange thing for a gargoyle, who emulated statues, to say.

"Alright," Jack said. "So we sit here and wait?"

“Yeah,” Avery said. “We—” Her head snapped up, and she looked to the tear.

Jack and Damien did the same, and froze. Time stopped. Avery stopped breathing. Every nearby werewolf turned around, an eternally slow motion, too slow, and meaningless.

That was Jacob.

Standing on the other side of the tear, he held a book in his hand, and was dressed in robes that could have been made of dead skin dyed black. He lifted his head long enough to grin at them, before he resumed reading from his book. Whatever he was reading, it wasn't English.

“Damien,” Jack said, face still pointed at Jacob. Message clear. Stop the 500-year-old vampire who could easily kill Damien with a single punch if he got his hands on him.

Damien withdrew his sword, his pistol, and bolted forward, pouring every bit of vitae he had into his body and his speed. Get through the tear, stop Jacob from whatever he was doing, and don't die in the process. Fiona would kill him if he died here.

He pointed his pistol, and shot nine times in half a second. But he already knew what would happen. Just as looking through the tear betrayed what passing through it had been like, the bullets hit the tear, and didn't go straight through it into Jacob. They veered, and disappeared into whatever blackness awaited them in the endless oblivion the tear's sides exposed.

Something black came seeping out of Jacob's book, mist, and following it, a black, skeletal arm. A skeletal arm they all recognized, much smaller than the colossal one that could crush buildings, but they knew it. And as Jacob lifted his head to again smile at Damien, the hand of the skeleton slashed down across the tear.

And it started to close.

Damien went as fast as he could, and it only took him a few seconds to reach the tear from where he'd been. But a few seconds was enough to have the tear shrink a few inches from all sides. And Damien was forced to grind to a halt at the last moment. If it'd been a normal hole, he could have jumped through, but not this hole, not without veering off path just like the bullet.

“Damien,” Jacob said through the tear, “do me a favor, would you? Tell your buddies to stay put.”

Damien glared at the man through the tear. Shoot at him again? Wouldn't work. Stab him? Same problem. It'd be like spear fishing, except with the water warping the length of space itself. Make some pointless threats? No. Get as much information as possible.

“Stay put?”

Jacob nodded as he closed the book. The skeletal arm sank back into it, and once the pages hit each other, a small gush of black mist came out of it from all sides.

“Just stay where you are. Don't use Sándor to get out; he can't burrow from this spot anyway, the azlu made sure of that. And if you go roaming, you won't like what happens. I made sure of that.”

“So you knew we knew you were casting a ritual.”

“Of course.”

“And I suppose anything I say, asking you to stop, will be pointless.”

“Of course.”

“Then at least tell me something!”

Jacob chuckled, crazy smile continuous, and he leaned down a bit to peek at Damien through what was left of the shrinking crack. “Just stay where you are, and we’ll see each other again.”

Jack joined them, eyes blazing.

“Jacob you fucking—”

“Be careful you don’t lose that necklace, Jack. I’d hate to learn you killed everyone before we got to speak again. Though, if you killed Avery, I wouldn’t mind.” Jacob grinned at them through the ever shrinking hole, before it vanished completely.

Jack and Damien slowly looked at each other, before turning to face the werewolves and Sándor, and the endless cave of death and ghosts.

“Trap?” Avery asked.

“Trap,” Jack said, nodding. “What’d he say, Damien?”

“He told us to stay here. He said we’d speak to him again if we didn’t leave this spot.”

Jack and Avery both half growled, half groaned, and threw up their hands. Almost like a synchronized dance for a moment, there.

“Sán—” Jack stopped himself mid yell, and quieted his voice. “Sándor. Can you get us out of here? Or to wherever that tear Mark’s watching is?”

The Begotten shook his head. “Not from here. Opening my lair here is difficult, and I can’t burrow. These ... azlu webs, are blocking me. We’ll need to go.”

Jack clenched his fists until his whole body shook. “He tricked us. He fucking tricked us.”

Sándor came closer. “Let’s keep moving, and get away from the webbing. I can force my lair open there, and then take us to the tear deep beneath us.”

“Yeah ... Yeah, okay, let’s go. Avery, sorry about—”

“The azlu can wait. If Jacob’s going to start an apocalypse, I think that takes priority.” She threw up her hands again and ground her teeth. “Fuck me I knew it. I fucking knew it, but my hands were tied. We have to kill the fucking azlu. And it’s not like I could have left someone on the other side of the tear to stop him. It’s fucking Jacob! He’d have just instantly killed whoever I left to guard it! Fuck fuck fuck fuck!” She managed to not yell, but she did put enough venom into her voice Damien kept a good distance.

He smiled slightly, but hid it quickly. As much as Jack and Avery didn’t get along, they were similar in many ways. Perhaps that was why they didn’t get along.

“Caleb, Monica, Carter,” Avery said to the darkness. “Scout ahead. We need to get away from this area, without stumbling into any more fucking traps. We...” Her voice trailed off as she stared into the distance, head tilted up slightly.

Everyone looked up. One of those tiny, distant green dots, was moving closer.

---

~~Scully~~

~Master is through the door, ~ Scully sent to Mulder.

~Master is through the door.~

They both nodded as they looked down over the edge of the tall human house. Not a house, not really, but that’s what the other crows called them, and it was hard to break old habits. And with dozens of their old kin nearby, cawing and hunting, Scully couldn't help but think about things the way she used to, sometimes.

They knew their master was through the door to the other world, because they couldn't sense him anymore. Ever since he'd brought them back from the black place, they could always sense him, except the few times he wasn't in the world anymore.

~Master said wait. Wait?~ Scully asked.

~I don't know. Wait?~ Mulder asked.

~Wait?~

~Wait?~

She thought about it for a moment.

~Wait.~

~Wait.~ Mulder sent.

So they waited, looking down over the building edge of the human home-not-home.

After a long moment, a few winds, and the cooling of the night, Scully looked down. The door had opened, and was closing.

~Did you see?~

~See?~

She flapped her wings and nodded down at ground below them.

~See! Saw something ... something... ~

~I don't see.~

Mulder didn't see. Mulder often didn't pay attention. But she saw. She saw something move, something that didn't match the wind.

A few winds later, it happened again! The door opened, and then closed. But she saw no one! Just bits of dirt and rock moving with the wind. Or maybe, not the wind?

She flew down, and smelled the air. Someone had been through here! Someone she hadn't seen. But she recognized the smell.

Mulder flew down a few winds later and did the same thing, patrolling and pacing as he sniffed the air.

~Recognize smell?~ she asked.

~I do!~

~From where?~

~I don't know~

She squawked at Mulder a few times. He squawked back. They both looked at the door blocking the path into the human not-home. It was closed.

She pushed against it. Too heavy. Too big. It didn't move. Winds definitely wouldn't move it, either.

~Something's happened, ~ she sent.

~Because we smell something? We smell lots of things.~

~We smell something we know!~ And it was weird that she couldn't remember it. She smelled the wolf people. She smelled the monster who watched and waited. What was the other smell?

It smelled like ... like ... skin? Old skin? And ... blood?

~Wait! I know! I know! I know!~ She hopped left and right until Mulder cawed at her. ~I know!~

~What is the smell? What is it?~

~Do you remember the dangerous blood drinker? The one Master warned us about?~

~Jacob.~

~Yes, Jacob. Jacob's smell!~

Mulder hopped over and pecked at her a few times. ~Blood drinkers have no different smell. They all smell like dust.~

~Jacob smelled! I've been near him before, when he was... ~ Wearing the weird clothes. The dark clothes. The scary clothes. The clothes that smelled like death.

~You think dangerous blood drinker was here?~

She pecked at Mulder a few times. ~I do! Master is in danger!~

~What do we do? Master told us to stay out of danger.~

~Master didn't know!~ She flapped her wings, and joined the wind again. With the wind beneath her, freeing her from the ground, she could go wherever she wanted, safe from the humans below with the night sky behind her, hiding her.

Mulder joined her, and the two of them flew toward the center of the big place, with all the colors and lights and noise.

~We should tell the Prince blood drinker? Master's mate?~ Mulder asked.

~I don't know. Should we?~

~I don't know. Should we?~

~I think so.~ She cawed once, and the two of them turned in over the dark ground as some warmer wind helped them fly higher. ~She can help!~

---

The Prince woman blood drinker couldn't help. Both Mulder and Scully perched outside her nest, at the top of the not-home, but the see-through wall showed she wasn't there. They pecked at the see-through wall a bunch of times, and made a lot of noise, but she didn't come.

~What now?~ Scully asked.

~Door at ground?~

~Why? Fat man?~

~Fat man.~

They flew to the ground, and pecked at the multiple see-through doors that blocked them from getting into the not-home. But there was no fat man sitting behind the small wall he usually sat behind. Was someone else there tonight? Maybe, but they weren't there now.

As panic set in, Scully flew over to the tiny, flat, weird forest near the tall not-home, and perched on top of one of the square bushes. Mulder joined her, and perched close, close enough they leaned into each other.

~Girls?~ Mulder asked. ~Veronica, Leilani, and Rachel?~

~They can't understand us.~ Unless they tried to use their human voices. And that could take time. They had to act quickly!

~Then ... the other blood drinkers in master's family.~

---

Mulder and Scully perched on the see-through wall of someone the master called Jessy. No one was there. They flew to the see-through wall of Natasha. No one was there. Master had said they would be busy tonight, but what else could Scully and Mulder do?

They found the nest of the wolf humans. Not all of them went with the master, but Scully didn't know who went, or how many. Mulder squawked and pecked at the see-through wall of their nest, but no one waited inside, no one came, no one answered.

Scully and Mulder took to the air again.

~The Prince must be in her nest, ~ Scully sent. ~She's always in her nest, deep where she doesn't let us go.~

~Yes. But how to get to her?~

Why had they not made a plan for this!?

~I ... I ... don't know what to do, ~ she sent.

~We can trust master.~

~But the Jacob blood drinker is too dangerous.~

Mulder fluttered his wings. ~Do you think he's in his nest right now?~

~No. He's out in the world, doing dangerous stuff.~

~Then ... maybe we should go to his nest?~

Scully looked at Mulder. ~Dangerous!~

~Yes. But, if he's not there, maybe Beatrice is?~

~Beatrice... ~ The master had said they couldn't trust her, because she was Jacob's family. But, he also didn't think she was helping him with whatever he was doing, whatever it was that made everyone so scared.

~One of us should go find her, ~ Mulder sent. ~Other goes to Master's pets, and try and get them to reach Prince?~

Scully cawed once, nodding. ~I will go to dangerous blood drinker's nest. I will find Beatrice. She can help.~

~Are you sure?~

~Am I sure?~

~Are you sure?~

~I think I'm sure.~

Mulder cawed once as well. ~I will go to Master's home, then. Be careful, Scully.~

---

The dangerous man and his family of blood drinkers often nested in a cave, far outside the man world. Mulder and Scully explored much of the man world, and the outer edges of it. The blood drinkers didn't try to hide the cave other than it being deep in a crack in the world, and many blood drinkers knew where it was. Most were smart enough to stay away from it.

Scully flew down into the world crack, hopped over the rocks, ducked under sharp bushes, and walked into the cave. It had a small entrance, but plenty big for her, and she hopped and hopped as she stepped into the scary darkness. Something in the rocks told her it was dangerous here, that animals didn't come here. No six-legs or eight-legs, no biters or hunters. But she had a goal and she was going to chase it.

Scary! The cave was scary! There was one of those hard bowls in the center, humans called it metal, and it was old and dirty and smelled like blood. There was a man, a blood drinker, with his family woman that he liked so much. Sex. Blood drinkers had sex all the time. Neither of them cared about Scully, so she hopped along through the large cave, looking at the alcoves, small caves inside the cave, filled with soft things humans and blood drinkers liked to sleep on.

One of them had Beatrice and her family Jennifer in it. Scully took a deep smell of the air. She could smell the dangerous man, or at least his clothes, but it was faint. Was he gone? She could only hope he was gone.

She hopped over to Beatrice and Jennifer's alcove, and cawed.

Beatrice sat up, and looked at her, eyebrow raised. "Uh, the fuck?"

Chapter 167

~~Beatrice~~

Beatrice stared at the crow that'd wandered into the cave. That, was unusual. Rats, sure, sometimes they approached the cave entrance, but the people inside, the lack of food, and the overall air of 'don't come in here or you'll get eaten' the cave gave off dissuaded rodents and insects. The entrance was also full of sharp brush, and not friendly to birds.

The crow hopped over to her, and the motion announced who it was. It had a broken wing.

“Scully?”

Jennifer sat up. “What? I—oh! Um, that ... that does appear to be Scully.”

“Scully, what're you doing here?”

The crow hopped up to the alcove, and flapped her wings a few times, settling. The broken wing looked nasty when she did that, but it did work, fully flapping and everything. Triss couldn't help but smile at the thought of her flying, like a car with some drag on one side.

“My Animalism sucks. Jen, help me out?”

Jennifer rolled her eyes. “Learn to step outside your comfort zones of Disciplines.”

“You can talk when you can Cloak. At all.”

Chuckling, Jennifer leaned over to the bird, and clucked her tongue a few times.

Scully clucked back, crooned, cawed, and hopped left and right a bit. Pretty damn animated. Triss looked past her to Othello and Madison, who were still going at it, and deep into the heavy, grunty loud parts of sex. Madison was borderline comatose, Othello having Kissed her, but the big lug just kept pounding away, making the poor girl cum again and again and again. No wonder they didn't notice the bird.

Aaron would have noticed instantly, but the dude was out with his supposed girlfriend none of them had seen. Triss was starting to doubt she existed.

Jen snapped her hand out, and grabbed the bird.

“Jen, what the fuck!?”

Jen snarled as she held the shocked bird by the body, pinning her wings, while her other hand grabbed her feet.

“Scully, listen to me closely. If you're lying, I'm going to rip you in half. Say it again.”

Scully took a few seconds to recover, but eventually she clucked and cawed again.

“I ... I don't believe you.”

Scully cawed again.

“Shit. Shit shit.” Jennifer slowly let go of the crow's body, but not her legs. “She says Jack's in danger.”

“Jesus, I figured it'd be something like that if she came looking for help. But why are you—”

“She says Jacob’s the danger.”

Beatrice froze. “What?”

“Jacob’s the danger. Jacob’s been up to something, and everyone knows, everyone except us, and they’re all out dealing with stuff right now connected to it.”

Oh fucking shit. Triss groaned and buried her face in her hands. No no no. Jacob, what the fuck are you up to?

“She know details?”

Jen shook her head. “She’s a familiar, not a person. Probably not safe to give her too many details, cause, you know.” She gestured to how easily she’d caught the bird.

“Did Jack send her?”

“No, she came on her own, because she thinks Jack’s in trouble. She thinks Jacob might have done something, and apparently, he’s been up to something for a while?”

Triss leaned in close to Jen, and whispered. “When Jacob took me outside a bit ago, he ... he thought I knew about something, about ... something.”

“About ... something.” The word was quickly losing all meaning.

“He was up to something, and he thought I already knew about it. Apparently Jack and the others already know. And ... And whatever it was, it was big. He ran off to do ... whatever it was.”

“And you’re telling me now?”

“I had to fucking think about it, okay?” Triss sighed as she looked to the crow. “Why’d she come here, and not visit the others?”

“She says she can’t get to the Prince, but Mulder’s still trying. She tried everyone else, and they’re all gone.”

“All of them?”

“Everyone with a window.”

Groaning louder, Triss slid back and smacked herself in the face a few times. “Jacob Jacob, what the fuck are you up to?”

Jen and the bird clucked at each other a few times more.

“She says whatever it is, everyone’s been trying to stop it for a while. Something to do with Black Blood.”

Black Blood. Hearing the name in this context was like getting stabbed in the fucking spine with a fucking icicle.

“So, Natasha?” Triss asked. Jen shook her head. “Damien?”

“With Jack.”

“The werewolves?”

“Most of them are with Jack. The others aren’t at their home.”

“Eric?” Triss asked. “He’s probably with Jessy.”

“Not home.”

“Sándor?”

“Probably with Jack,” Jen said. “Scully says they’re all grouped up to fight a spider monster. I assume she means an azlu, not Fiona. And ... she thinks Jacob’s interfered.”

“Fuuuuuuck. Wait, what about Fiona? She around?”

“Scully doesn’t know where she lives.”

“Fuck. I don’t have her in my phone either. Fuuuuuck.” She snapped her gaze over to Othello, who was slowing down. For half a second, she thought about going over there and telling him, getting his opinion. But, no, that’d be stupid as fuck. Othello was her friend, but he’d been Jacob’s friend for fucking decades. Did he know what the fuck Jacob was up to, then? Probably not. Didn’t mean she could trust him.

“Triss?”

“Let’s go outside.”

Jen glanced over at Othello, nodded, and the two—three of them left, one of them still a hostage. Once they were outside, Triss wrapped them in her cloak, and they put a bit of distance between themselves and the cave.

“Okay,” Triss said, “we gotta figure this shit out. Jack’s in danger. A bunch of people are in danger. The bird thinks Jacob’s to blame. Everyone knew about this except us, and everyone also happens to not be home! Fuck. Fucking christ fuck fuck!” She threw up her hands and marched around, stomping on the ground and sand. “What the fuck is going on!?”

“She says she thinks the Prince is home, but she doesn’t have a way to get to her. Not easily, anyway.”

“Not like the Prince has a pigeon carrier service set up. It’s the twenty-first century for christ’s sake. Fucking fuck! Why doesn’t she go back to the thralls and ask them to contact the Prince?”

“Mulder’s already doing that, but it’s a complicated situation.”

“Complicated,” Scully said, earning a small jump from both vampires.

Triss threw up her hands again and pointed at the bird. “I fucking forgot she can talk. She can explain it to Jack’s thralls!”

Scully shook her head. “Can try. Complicated. Mulder will try.”

Jen couldn’t help but smile at the talking crow. “Mulder getting those girls involved is already going to piss Jack off, and you know it. And Mulder’s going to have to try and explain what’s happening with bird talk, at least enough so they can contact the Prince.”

“He can just fly in there and yell ‘call Prince! Call Prince!’?”

“Scully,” Jen said, “is Mulder under orders to not tell the girls about the dangerous stuff Jacob is up to?”

“Yes.”

“Which could make it difficult for a crow to figure out how to approach the situation. He’s a crow, Triss, not a human.” Nodding, Jen clucked and crooned at Scully a few times more, getting similar in return. “But, Scully thinks he’ll succeed anyway.”

Triss rolled her eyes. Damn slut was just being patronizing now, since she could talk to the bird a lot faster with Animalism.

“Okay,” Triss said. “I ... oh fuck.” She threw up her hands again and paced around some more. “Do I even want Mulder to get the girls to call the Prince? Is that something we want happening?” Scully flapped her wings a few times, trying to get away, but she wasn’t going anywhere. “Christ, we don’t know what Jacob’s up to! Do we even want to ... to ... I don’t fucking know!”

“True. We don’t know what Jacob’s up to, exactly. But ... do we ... trust him?”

“We should! We fucking should! He helped us when we were fighting Angela and Jeremiah! And he and Black Blood saved Jack’s ass before then, too! Remember? Black Blood saved him and all his friends from Sándor's nightmare that first time. And me, the second time! We should trust him!"

Jen frowned slightly as she looked between Scully and her.

"Triss, I know we ... we should trust him, but we also shouldn't trust him. Even he'd say something like that."

"I know! But..."

"And we know he's been up to something. And he's been talking to you about it, more than anyone. And apparently, everyone knows, and they're not happy. So, I guess ... you're the only one with any idea what Jacob's up to that we can talk to. Do you trust him?"

"Fuck me. I ... kinda trust him. Trust him enough to give him the benefit of a doubt! Trust him enough to get a little angry at the idea of the Prince, and apparently everyone on the fucking planet, trying to get in his way!" She stomped around a few more times for good measure. Maybe kicking rocks and sand would help summon answers. No such luck.

Jen watched, listened, and when Triss was done, they all looked down and tried to wrap their minds around the problem. It was like trying to find a path in fog thick enough to strangle them.

"We need more information," Jen said. "Scully, you're sure everyone's gone? Anyone we could talk to?"

"All gone! Checked all see-through walls!"

"Windows, Scully."

"I know. I said! See-through walls!"

Triss couldn't help but laugh. Bird brain was not human brain.

“You checked all the windows,” Triss said, “and it sure fucking sounds like people are all out there, doing only god knows what. You said Sándor was with Jack, too?”

“Master said so. Damien with, too. And wolf people.”

Triss pulled out her phone, and sent out a few texts. She tried to be as discrete as possible, in as short a time as possible. ‘Hey, what’s up?’ And waited. And waited. And waited.

No response from Jack.

No response from Natasha.

No response from anyone’s numbers she had, Sándor included, but he was probably in his lair, or in the tunnels. Or like the crow said, with Jack.

They waited ten minutes. A god damn fucking eternity. No answers.

“What about Athalia?” Jen asked the bird.

“Don’t know.” Scully pecked at Jen’s fingers a couple times, but Jen held on. “Don’t trust Jacob.”

“Yeah, well, I do,” Triss said. “I shouldn’t, but I do. But ... but I ... fuck me, we need more information! But who the fuck—”

“Athalia,” Jen said. “Let’s go see if Athalia’s home.”

“Athalia. You fucking serious? She—”

“Triss, come on, you talked to her not too long ago. She—”

“She won’t kill us. That doesn’t mean she’s our friend, Jen.”

Jen shrugged. “Do you have a better idea? We go to the tunnels, find what Begotten we can, and ask them what’s going on.”

“And ... the Prince?”

“There’s nothing we can do about that. She’s going to find out. She probably already knows, or Jack’s thralls are calling her right now. And that ... could be a good or bad thing. Fuck me, I don’t know. Let’s go.”

---

Scully perched on Jen’s shoulder, and the two occasionally clucked at each other. After a while, Jen didn’t bother holding Scully hostage. Mulder had obviously reached the girls by now, which meant the Prince knew, or knew whatever Mulder could communicate. No point in holding his partner captive anymore.

Triss tried to understand Jen and Scully, but it was pointless. She just didn’t have a knack for Animalism. It came naturally to Ventrue and Gangrels, and if Aaron had been around, she might have asked him for help. But she wasn’t sure she could trust him anymore than Jacob, and that fucking sucked. Thankfully, she had Jen. And even if she didn’t, Jack’s two crows were scary smart. Not smart enough to navigate complicated secrets and delicately communicate that with some uninformed thralls, but still, smart. Ish.

Christ, what was going on? She was in the tunnels, going on a trip to maybe, hopefully, find Fiona or Athalia, or maybe even that asshole Mark, and ... do what? Ask them what the fuck was going on? Not like they’d spill their secrets if they thought Jacob was an enemy, considering he was Triss and Jen’s boss. Fucking fuck, the whole trip could backfire so easily, and land Triss and Jen in a cage with some stakes in the heart for all they knew.

Was she overreacting? No she wasn’t overreacting! Jack’s familiar, on her own, decided to come find her and Jen. This wasn’t some fucking prank. Oh god, everything was going to fucking implode tonight, and she didn't even know what the fuck was going on.

Jen and Triss finally entered the room with the concrete stage. No Fiona or Mark, but Athalia was there, reading a book as usual. And when she looked down and spotted Triss, Triss expected to see her scowl, or at least stare at her with her usual icy glare. Instead, Athalia's expression softened a little, to something even passable for happy. Well, happy might have been too strong a word. Slightly glad.

"Beatrice. Jennifer. Visiting?" Literally the nicest greeting the woman had likely ever given in her life.

"Uh, kinda. Um..."

"You have a crow with you."

Jennifer nodded, shifting her shoulder with the bird slightly. "Yes. Jack's familiar Scully came to us."

"That's strange. Why would she do that?"

Triss squirmed as she came closer to the stage, until she was only a foot from it and looking up at Athalia.

"You ... you know about ... uh..." She scanned Athalia for something, but the Begotten waited, confused. "So, yeah. There's ... uh..."

"Out with it, Beatrice. Is this about Mary or Samantha?"

"No. No I don't think so. I mean ... maybe? It's..." Oh fucking christ, was she really about to do this? "Do you know if ... if Jacob's been up to something?"

Athalia's eyes shifted into her usual ice daggers, and her familiar scowl resurfaced.

“Up to something?”

“Yeah. Up to something. Up to something ... big ... And now Jack’s in danger, and probably so are a bunch of people.”

Groaning, Athalia closed her book and gently set it on Azamel’s old chair. She stood up, cracked her knuckles, and made fists as she glared down at the two of them.

“You remember you work for Jacob, right?”

Of course she fucking remembered.

“Yeah.”

“And you’re here, because Jack’s familiar came to you, because it thinks her master is in danger ... from Jacob?”

Triss groaned and rubbed her face with her palms. “I know! I know, okay. Dude is my boss, and sure, that might not mean much to most vampires, but it fucking means something to me. But ... but Jack—”

“Is the only vampire in the whole damn city you can completely trust.”

Sighing, Triss put her hands on the stage, and let her head dangle between her arms and shoulders.

“Yeah. If the kid’s in danger, yeah, I should help him. Fuck me, even if it’s to stop Jacob, I should help him.”

Athalia sat down beside Triss, legs dangling off the stage, eyes looking out at nothing, face stern.

“Sándor told me he, Jack, Damien, and a bunch of the werewolves are hunting azlu tonight.”

“The fuck does that have to do with Jacob?”

“I don’t know if I should tell you.”

“Girl, I’m trying to help Jack, okay? Jack, and Sándor. You just said he’s with Jack. I help the kid, I help him, too.”

Slowly, like she was weighing a thousand possibilities in her head, Athalia eventually turned her head and looked back down at Triss. That, was a scary face. Athalia sucked in a breath between clenched teeth, before nodding and looking ahead again.

“Jacob and Black Blood have been up to something for ... we don’t know how long. Years, probably, especially the past few years. They’ve been creating tears, strange tears that cut from one realm to another. Physical, spirit, even into the underworld. Even to places Begotten can’t go.”

“Tears...”

“Yes. Tears. Black Blood and Jacob have literally been tearing holes in the ... fabric of reality, if you want to get comic book movie about it. They’re pursuing Minerva’s legacy.”

Oh fucking shit. Minerva.

“Jesus fucking christ, what—”

“Minerva wanted to punch a hole between the physical and spirit realms. Maybe a permanent one. Black Blood and Jacob are taking it a step further. They’re going to tear down the walls between all realms.”

Triss threw up her hands. “Okay, you hear yourself, right? Tear down the walls between realms? The fuck? He’s one vampire—”

“With the help of an entity we’re all quite sure is no simple spirit.”

Fuck, she had a point. Triss knew something about spirits from everything she read, and from what the werewolves and Jack’s friends were willing to tell her. Black Blood didn’t seem to fit the bill, not completely, what with doing weird shit like penetrating Sándor’s dream realm, twice.

“I don’t know what this has to do with azlu.”

“I don’t either. Sándor said Avery was ready to ambush one, using a tear they found that didn’t fit the pattern.”

“Pattern?”

“Long story. But if you’re sure that Jack is in danger, because of Jacob—”

“I am.” You didn’t need Animalism to sense the panic in Scully. If Scully had been some regular crow, then sure, Triss wouldn’t have taken it too seriously. But the bird was literally undead, a familiar, and that meant quite a fucking lot. Combined with what Jacob had told Triss earlier, yeah, she had no choice but to take it seriously.

“Then I have to go.” Athalia hopped down from the stage, and started down the tunnel the way Triss came from. “Damn it, Fiona. Perfect night to get drained.”

“Um, I’m sorry, you have to go?” Jennifer stepped aside to let her walk past, but followed after her at a healthy distance. “Going to tell us where?”

“The tear Jack and the others went through didn’t fit the pattern. They’re through it right now, hunting azlu in the Great Below. If you’re telling me the bird says Jack is in danger, from Jacob, then I’m going to that tear.”

Triss jogged up beside her. “You know we’re coming, right?”

“You know I will kill you if you get in my way, right? The cat’s out of the bag. Jacob is doing something we want to stop. You work for Jacob.”

“Okay, then we—”

Oh fucking shit. Athalia’s glare was deadly. She didn’t mean just stop him. She meant stop Black Blood. And ‘stop’ probably meant kill, both of them if possible. You didn’t stop someone like Jacob without cutting his head off.

Jennifer jumped in front of Athalia, and held out a hand, like creating a barrier. “We want to come, but that doesn’t mean Jacob has to die.”

“Get out of my way, Jennifer. I didn’t have to tell you anything. I told you because I thought you deserved to know. But that doesn’t mean you get to stop me.” Athalia held out a hand, pointed it at Jennifer, and the tunnel went silent as darkness spread out from the Begotten, blocking out the flickering lights of the old tunnel. The shadow of the skeleton monster with no legs, and enormous bone wings, slowly moved inside.

Triss jumped between her girlfriend and the crazy monster lady.

“Whoa whoa whoa. How about we figure out what’s going on first? Okay? We get to Jack and Sándor and that Avery bitch, and we just stop Jacob from getting them killed, or whatever. Killing or not killing can be figured out later, okay?”

Athalia snarled as she shook her head. “You don’t fucking get it. I told you what he’s been up to. You tell him we know, and everything dominoes. We take care of this now, tonight, all of it, because Jacob sure as hell plans to. He’s done something to get rid of the others, get them out of the way, I don’t know, so he can do his ritual without interference, and start a fucking apocalypse!” She took another step forward, and the enormous shadow in the dark followed her. “So get out of my way, before I rip you in half. I need to contact the Prince.”

Triss gulped, and joined Jen’s side, but otherwise the two ladies were in Athalia’s way, in the kill zone.

“Mulder’s taking care of that.”

“Says you.”

Jen gestured to Scully, and Scully gave her wings a few flaps.

“Mulder at Master’s nest! Talk to Master’s pets. Pets talk to Prince blood drinker.”

Athalia snarled. It sounded nothing like normal Athalia, and far too much like the skeleton monster.

“I guess that’s a good thing. The bitch and I aren’t in each other’s phones.”

“Same,” Triss said. “And no one else is answering their phones. Like, no one. Which means you got no one to go to for help, except us.”

Athalia ground her teeth hard enough Triss could see the jaw muscles bulge, even in the weird darkness.

“Alright.”

---

“It’s gone.”

Triss stared at Athalia, and then at the empty basement. “Gone?”

“Gone. It’s fucking gone!” Athalia kicked a nearby wooden box, and Triss braced herself for exploding wood from the sheer strength of the impact. But it didn’t break, only rolled over with the strength she’d expect from a kine woman. Begotten were strange. Out in the physical world, they seemed basically human unless calling on their Horror, and the best they could do when not in their lair, was summon some kind of shadow of it. The shadow of her Horror was probably strong enough to kill Beatrice and Jen, at the same time, if they weren’t careful. Without it, she was weak.

“And, uh, Jack and Sándor were on the other side of it?” Triss asked.

“Yes, probably. The tear opened up to a place where at least one azlu was frequently visiting.”

“And this tear isn’t in the pattern? Whatever that is.”

“Yes,” Athalia said. “Ultimately, Avery figured Black Blood made it to direct her attention to the azlu.”

“Which means ... you expected a trap all along.”

“Maybe. She thought Black Blood just wanted to give her a distraction.”

Triss groaned as she paced around, digging her claws into her scalp.

“Christ, now I wish I had the Prince’s phone number.”

Jen raised a hand. “We can still go talk to her.”

Athalia shook her head. “We’re running out of time. If you want to run downtown and get her, go ahead. But Mulder can explain to her what’s going on. And as much as I don’t want to trust a bird...”

She gestured to Scully, still perched on Jen's shoulder. "He's a familiar, not a bird. So, I can assume he's done his job."

Jen and Triss squirmed. Trust Mulder? Don't trust Mulder? He was a familiar, true, but also a bird.

"I'll go," Jennifer said. "Alone."

"Jen, you don't know what she'll do! If she's been working against Jacob all this time, and she finds out we know about all this shit, she could stake out right there, or worse."

Sighing, Jennifer made for the stairs. "Scully's with me. And I can update her on what Athalia's doing. And ... if Jacob and Black Blood are going to ... to do what Athalia says they're going to do, we need her help and we need it now. You know damn fucking well we have to stop Jacob."

Athalia snorted and folded her arms across her chest, but a quick glance her way showed her rolling her eyes, and nodding. She agreed with Jen. She didn't want to agree, but she did.

Triss sprinted up to Jen, grabbed her, and turned her around. Before her best friend could say anything, Triss grabbed her shoulders, and kissed her; Scully had to move.

"Don't ... Don't get yourself killed, okay? The Prince plays nice but she'll kill you without a second thought if she thinks she has to, Jen."

Jen grinned at her, gave her a quick kiss back, and started up the stairs again. "I'll just seduce her, of course."

Triss stared after her as she disappeared through the door. Christ, the whole night was turning into one giant clusterfuck of insanity.

“Okay,” Athalia said. “I can’t open this tear. It’s gone, like it never existed. I’ll open up my lair, and from there, I can tunnel us into the Great Below.”

Great Below. Fucking scary name.

“You can get us to where Jack and Sándor are?”

“No. I can get us where we think Black Blood is going to perform the ritual, or I can get us to another place in the Great Below that’s ... not exactly close, to the others.”

“Not exactly close!? The fuck does that mean!?”

“It means I can’t just burrow into wherever I want! That’s not how it works!”

“What fucking good is it if you can’t—”

“We came here first for a reason! So we can use the tear and—”

“Well the tear is closed, and we don’t have a fucking clue what’s happening in this ‘Great Below’, so unless you have a better way to —”

“The fuck am I supposed to do!? I can’t burrow wherever I want! Opening up the lair is hard, and burrowing for myself can be just as hard! I need to know where I’m going, and—”

“Okay!” Triss threw up her hands for the millionth time that night, and paced around, stomping hard enough her army boots protested with loud clunks. “Okay, okay. You think we should help Jack, or try and stop Jacob and Black Blood on our own?”

She rolled her eyes. “You really think the two of us could stop Black Blood? Besides, that tear is deep in the Great Below. Very deep, on lower levels. I’ve never visited it, only Mark and Sándor.

Mark because he can hide even better than me or Fiona. Sándor, because he's strong enough to survive."

"So it's dangerous."

"Extremely, for more reasons than your boss or Black Blood."

"Then I guess our only option is for you to drop us off in, uh, normal Great Below or whatever, and we run over to Jack and Sándor."

Athalia sucked in a hard breath as she paced, same as Triss. "We can try. It's a dangerous place, too, and it's not like I have a map of the area. It's massive, hard to navigate, and ... and I don't know if I can get us to Sándor ... at all."

"Oh my fucking god this is bad. This is very bad. Why didn't they leave anyone on this side of the tear to ... to..."

"What? Stop Jacob or Black Blood from possibly closing the tear behind them? Fist fight a five hundred-year-old vampire and his god friend?"

"I get it," Triss said. "That'd backfire pretty badly." She'd seen Jacob easily beat Matt and Art in a fight, at the same time. One werewolf wouldn't do shit if Jacob was serious. Avery was smart, keeping everyone together as a group. She'd need them all anyway, if she was hunting azlu. "We need to get to them. We need some fucking way to get to them."

"I'll open my lair right now, and get us as close as we can. Just, be careful of all the ghosts. A lot of them are—"

"I have an idea."

Samantha, please don't hate me.

---

“This is stupid,” Athalia said.

The two of them ran down the street, wrapped in Triss’s Cloak. Every so often, Athalia ran out of breath, but then massive, shadowy, see-through, barely visible skeletal wings erupted from her back and carried her for a little while, hovering her an inch over the rooftops, before they jumped to another ceiling. Triss wasn’t sure if anyone would have been able to see it with how subtle they were at night, whether she had them wrapped in her Cloak or not.

“Yeah well, stupid is the theme of the night. My girlfriend is risking her neck talking to the Prince. She might not even need to, if Mulder already got Jack’s girls to do it. At least Jen can be specific with the details.” She checked her phone. Still nothing. “Where the fuck is everyone!? I texted half a dozen people!”

“There’s no signal in the Great Below, or in the spirit realm.”

“Fuck me, the others are in the spirit realm?”

“Probably, if Avery was concerned the azlu might escape to there, perhaps wounded. This way the others can ambush it. Or maybe Black Blood is up to something, and they’re investigating.”

“I thought you were in the know,” Triss said. “Figured you all told each other everything, and apparently decided to leave me out!”

“You know why we left you out. And we don’t tell each other everything. That’s a recipe for a leak.”

“You’ve watched too many spy movies.”

Athalia let out one of those weird, raspy snorts that sounded more like her Horror than her.

“I’ve texted them, same as you, and they aren’t responding. We can safely assume the others are also busy.”

Triss mirrored the snort as best she could. “And through all this cloak and daggers shit, it never occurred to you to get the Prince’s number on your phone!?”

“Sándor has it on his. Otherwise, we Begotten keep to ourselves. If I needed to contact the Prince, I would physically! Her or Jack or the others! We know where they live! And last I checked, it was Jack’s job to act as liason for us!”

Triss rolled her eyes. “Not like we all live in different places in this giant fucking city or anything, far away from each other! Put people in your phone!”

“Would you even tell the Prince if you could? If Jen hadn’t said she would go, would you even tell her? You know she’ll kill Jacob if she has to.”

That, was a fucking painful truth, and at the moment, Triss did not want to think about it. She snorted again, but a glance back showed Athalia smirking. Damn bitch.

“You can’t tunnel or burrow your way to the Prince, or something?”

“I could, but it’s not easy. And in case you haven’t noticed, I’m a little busy trying to get to Sándor! We’re already wasting enough time!”

This bitch. This fucking bitch. How the fuck could Daniel stand being around her?

Eventually they stopped at a lovely little house in the quiet neighborhood section of Dolareido. No expensive houses or anything, and a few small apartment buildings nearby, but otherwise it was a pretty comely place, with front lawns and shit. But holy fuck, even standing in the house’s driveway, she could feel the cold dread emanating from it.

“Alright, let’s go,” Triss said.

Athalia froze in the driveway. “You ... You go.”

“Athalia, if she’s coming with us, she’s going to have to be around you.”

“I ... I...”

“Come on! We don’t have time for this shit. You want to save Jack?”

“I want to save Sándor.” But the small twitch in her lip said it all. She wanted to save Jack, too.

“Right now that’s the same thing. You’ve never been to the Great Below, right? So we need a ghost to help us, right?”

“I could find them without her help.”

Triss threw up her hands. “Maybe! You could ‘maybe’ find them without her help! Jacob and Black Blood are apparently doing some apocalyptic shit according to you, and Jacob’s closed the tear they took to get into the fucking underworld. Guaranteed he’s sprung a trap, and that trap could be fucking deadly, correct?”

“Correct.”

“Then like you said, we don’t have time to fucking waste, and we need help.”

If they went to the Prince instead, she was as likely to just lock Triss up in a cell instead of actually help her. This was the better option. Hopefully.

“You know I don’t trust you about this, right? You like Jacob. Jacob is our enemy.”

“I get it! I get it I get it, we can worry about it later.”

Athalia rolled her eyes, took a single step up the driveway, and stopped.

“I...”

“Athalia, holy shit, Mary is—”

“Don’t you dare tell me Mary won’t mind, or will forgive me for what my daughter did. Mary is not Samantha.”

“She’s ... okay, she’s not Sam. She’s got a temper. But she didn’t throw a fist at Sándor when she met him, either.”

“Sándor—”

“Mary knows who he is, and what happened. She let it slide with him. She’ll let it slide with you.”

Athalia took one more step before stopping. “You didn’t tell her ... what I did, at the end? Jack didn’t tell her?”

“No. I didn’t. Don’t think Jack told her either.” If he was smart. No need for Mary to know Athalia had tried to save her daughter’s life, at the end.

Nodding, Athalia slowly took another step, and another. She was the sort of woman who tried to keep up appearances, put on a strong face, all that shit, but when it came to this, she looked nervous as fuck. So Triss did the best thing she could do: take point, and not look at her.

“Sorry Sam.” She bashed in the window to the side door with her elbow, and unlocked the door. “Sorry, Mary.” One step into the kitchen, and she sucked in a useless breath. That, was some bone-chilling cold.

Athalia followed her in, and rubbed her arms as she gulped hard enough Triss heard it. She shivered openly, and chewed the inside of her cheeks as she looked around. Much as Athalia was half nightmare monster, she was also half perfectly normal human, and the unnatural cold radiating from the whole damn house turned her breath into mist.

“Mary,” Triss yelled. “Mary, you home?” She smacked herself in the forehead. Of course she was home, if the place felt like a graveyard in the middle of winter in Greenland. “Mary! This is important. Big time fucking important, and we need your help.” No answer. Triss reached down, almost took off her shoes, smacked herself in the forehead again, and walked from the kitchen into the living room. “Mary!”

Athalia followed, slowly, peeking left and right as she did, rubbing her arms every step of the way. Adrenaline, anxiety, and freezing her balls off had her quivering like a leaf in a hurricane. Half from the cold, and likely half from adrenaline and nervousness. And fear.

Triss got halfway up the stairs to the bedrooms before she realized Athalia wasn't following her. Instead, the Begotten walked around the living room with slow, gentle steps, and looked around at the furniture, eyes wide and hypnotized.

“Sh ... Shouldn't we get Samantha?” she asked.

“She's the last person I want involved in this. Christ, I can see it now. Someone goes to take a stab at Jacob, and she jumps in the way. Dies for him. We all cry. Very tragic. No thanks. I'd rather her angry than dead.”

Athalia sighed but nodded, and finally joined Triss on the stairs. She didn't get far. The first door, Jack's old bedroom, instantly caught her eye, and she stared into it. A simple, small, nerd's bedroom, complete with an overused computer desk.

“I can’t believe that kid ... came from this.”

“Yeah, me neither. But then again, Samantha—”

“Has an unusually strong will, too. Just ... so different than her son.”

“Different, and kind of the same.” Shrugging, Triss continued down the hall. Samantha and her dead husband’s room on the left. Mary’s on the right. “You ready?”

“No.”

“Yeah, me neither.” Triss opened the door.

Sure enough, the biting mist flowed out of the room and over them like it had a mission. They both braced for inevitable chaos, but all that followed was silence and deadly cold. After a few more seconds of patiently waiting for an explosion that never came, Triss walked into the room.

“Mary?” she said. “Mary, it’s Beatrice ... and Athalia. We need to talk.” No answer. “Mary, it’s super important. Jack’s in trouble.” No answer. “I uh, don’t know if you remember Athalia. You might have seen her at the ball. You ... You know who she is.”

Still no answer. The room looked like any young girl’s bedroom, despite Mary being older than Jack, very colorful and bright, but the mist and dark lighting changed it into a twisted version of itself. Triss very much did not want to stay in.

Athalia stood in the center of the room, still rubbing her arms and shivering, and she looked like she’d jump through the ceiling if someone popped a balloon.

“I’m ... Athalia,” she said. “And ... I need your help.”

The bedroom door slammed closed. So much for popping a balloon. Both girls jumped and spun around, but no one was there. And the mist around them grew thicker, and colder.

But no Mary.

“Keep talking, I guess,” Triss said, sitting down on the corner of Mary’s bed.

“Y-Yeah, okay. Um, Mary, I ... I know what Angela did to you was ... horrible.”

“And Mom!” The mist twisted and swirled with a powerful gust, and Athalia covered her face as the wind had her long black hair scattering.

“And your mother. And ... I can apologize. I can say I’m sorry...” Athalia looked Triss’s way, before a tiny, nervous smile appeared on her lips. “But, I didn’t do those things, Mary. Angela did. I made a lot of mistakes raising her, but she made her own choices. And your mother knew that. That’s what we talked about, at the ball, remember? She came up to speak to me, and not for the first time. She—”

“I know!”

The bed spun, banging against the walls and desk, and Triss squeaked as she clung for dear unlife. Athalia jumped, and the homicidal furniture flew underneath her, catching her as it crashed into the walls. Dent, dent, dent, the drywall gave way to the bed smashing into it, over and over, and Triss and Athalia half rolled over each other as the mattress bounced and slid and tried to buck them off. The vanity desk took one good hit, and a couple dozen cute bracelets and necklaces scattered over the floor. The mirror shattered, and rained broken reflections into the mist below.

As quickly as it'd started spinning, the bed came to a stop in the center of the room. The floor disappeared in mist thick enough to bury someone alive, and the cold only grew worse, until Athalia's dark skin started changing color.

"Mary!" Triss said, sitting up, but not daring getting back on the floor, not when the bed was a kneecap risk. "Mary, you fu—"

Athalia touched her shoulder and shook her head, before she looked up and around at the bedroom ceiling.

"Mary, I know you're angry. What happened to you is horrible, all of it. And ... And even though I know it's not my fault, and Angela's decisions were her own, I still feel horrible. There's nothing I can say or do that will make this better. You're angry. You should be angry. You deserve to be angry. And ... And I know there's nothing Samantha can do to make it better, either. She wants to, I know. God, I know what it's like to have an angry daughter, and have every fiber of my being want to do nothing but help her. But your mother can't."

Triss stared at Athalia. That was a fucking heavy topic, and if Mary didn't take it well, she was liable to smash Athalia into mulch, and Triss into kindling.

The mist spoke. "She ... She doesn't understand. She thinks I can get over this. I can't! I can't I can't I can't!"

Athalia nodded as she took a deep breath, shoulders shaking. "I know. Your mom doesn't know what it's like to be angry, so angry that it's all you can feel. Nothing else but anger, right down to your insides. So angry, that it doesn't matter what anyone says. It doesn't matter what happens. Nothing will ever change it or take it away. Nothing."

The mist between the bed and the door parted, and Mary slowly floated up from the depths of the cold. Holy fuck, she looked worse than last time. Her clothes were ripped and torn, her face was covered in strange cuts as if she'd cut herself open with her fingernails, and her giant, black, empty eye sockets were massive and twisted. And sad.

“Mom doesn't understand.”

“Your mom is too nice.”

“She is!”

“She always been that nice?” Athalia asked.

“Yes! Even ... Even when Dad died. She was sad, but never angry.”

Nodding, Athalia crawled off the mess of a bed, and stood in front of the ghost. Still shaking like a leaf, still obviously so cold hypothermia was gonna be a real risk, not to mention her kneecaps, but she did it anyway.

“Mary, Beatrice and I came here because we need your help.”

“My help?”

“Jacob and Black Blood, they—”

Mary hissed and pushed away from Athalia, and into a wall, disappearing.

“Black Blood! Dark. Black. Scary.”

“Very scary!” Triss said. “But, he's up to something, Mary, and we think he's going to ... uh, break everything, I guess.”

“Break everything?” Mary asked, still hiding, voice gently filling the room.

“Yes,” Athalia said. “Black Blood has been sneaking around the city, in the spirit world, the physical world, and other worlds, leaving tears that go to other places. It’s a ritual. We think it’s going to tear them open more, and ... collapse all the walls between realms. It’ll merge everything, or destroy everything, we don’t know. But ... But it’s a very real possibility that Black Blood is going to get everyone in this city killed, or worse.”

“Mom!”

“Your mother, and everyone.”

“But Jacob—”

Triss shook her head. “Jacob is working with Black Blood, Mary.”

Slowly, the ghost stuck her head out from the ceiling. “Jacob? But ... But he was nice, and ... and fun and—”

Triss put up her hands. “I’m as in the dark as you, but ... but Athalia’s right. I know Jacob’s up to something, and Athalia knows Black Blood’s up to something. Pretty sure they’re doing this together, and ... and it’s bad. Very bad.”

“But, what can I do? Black Blood is ... he ... He’s not normal!”

It took a lot of effort to not laugh at that.

“You’re right. It’s not normal,” Athalia said. “But, it sprung a trap, and now a bunch of people are in danger, including your brother.”

Mary’s eyes opened even wider. “Jack?”

“He’s trapped in the Great Below, with Damien, a bunch of the werewolves, and Sándor. Jacob’s trapped them down there.”

Mary covered her face in her hands, but she was see-through, and her freaky black voids-for-eyes stared through them.

“Jack’s in danger?”

“Yes. We don’t know how bad, but considering Jacob locked him down there, and he knows Sándor could get them out ... I’m betting he has some sort of trap in wait to stop that.”

Beatrice nodded, and took the risk getting off the bed. What was that chittering sound? Oh shit, Athalia’s teeth were hitting each other with some extreme shivering.

“Mary,” Triss said, “can you stop freezing the place so much? You’re gonna kill her.”

After a few seconds, and a few pained stares from the ghost through her see-through fingers, Mary lowered her hands, and the mist faded a little. Less mist, less extreme cold. Athalia smiled at Triss, still shivering, but at least not likely to pass out anymore.

“Sorry! Sorry sorry sorry. I can’t help it. I can’t help it. I can’t—”

“It’s okay,” Athalia said. “We came here, because we’re going to go help Jack.”

“No one else can?”

“Everyone else is gone,” Triss said, “except for maybe the Prince, and Jennifer is already on the way to speak to her. Maybe she can come with us?” If the Prince and the sheriff didn’t come with them, the trip into the fucking underworld was going to be scary as all fuck. They didn’t have any time to spare, but it’d be nice to have two elders for back up.

“I still don’t know what I can do.”

“You’re a ghost,” Triss said. “The Great Below is full of ghosts. We need your help.”

“B-But ... I...”

“You’ve been there before,” Athalia said. “Haven’t you?”

“Only a peek! Only a little peek. It’s ... heavy there. Heavy. It pulls you down! I ... I...”

“We’re going down there,” Triss said. “One way or another, Athalia and I are going down there, and we could use your help.”

“But I ... it’s ... Black Blood is scary!”

“Damn fucking right he’s scary.”

“It,” Athalia said.

“He. H—nevermind. Yes, Mary, he’s fucking terrifying, but if we don’t do something, Jack could die. Sándor could die. Damien—”

“Damien?” Mary let out a tiny squeak. “Poor Fiona.”

“Yeah, exactly. So, we’re going to go, and we don’t have anymore time to waste. We have to go now. You in or you out?” Christ she felt like shit, pushing Mary like this. Mary’s ghost. Whatever. The girl was clearly distressed as fuck, and bullying her to get her help was one of the grossest things Triss had ever done.

“I’ll ... I’ll go. Mom—”

“I’ll text your mom before we go, whatever you want. And I’ll do everything I can to make sure you see each other again, and come back safe.” She had no idea how to do that, but she’d fucking try anyway.

Slowly, empty eyes flicking between Triss and Athalia, Mary nodded, and gestured to her desk.

“Take one of my things. I can hide inside.”

Nodding, Triss stepped over to the desk. Poor thing was a mess, but at least most of the jewelry was still on the desk. She scooped up a nice bracelet, and slipped it on. It wasn't silver, or a chain, or black rope, or any of the jewelry Triss would have worn. It was a candy bracelet, the kind kids wore and ate, but made with fake candy, meant to last. Very colorful. God damn it.

"I mean it," Triss said, holding out her wrist. "I'll make sure you get back and get to talk to your mom again, okay?"

"Okay..."

"Anything you want me to say to her before we go?"

"Just ... Just tell her that ... that whatever happens, it's okay. I love her, and I'm happy we got to have those three days together, and—"

Triss groaned and shook her head. "That is the most sad shit I have ever heard! Mary, come on, if I text her that, she's going to freak."

Mary smiled, nodding. "Tell Mom I'll talk to her later, then."

"Better," Athalia said, and she smiled as she stepped back, and motioned to the bracelet.

Seeing a ghost suck itself into an object was freaking weird. The mist, Mary, the cold, it all condensed and flowed into the bracelet like it'd become a black hole. Silent and surprisingly subtle, everything that was the ghost entity sank into the bracelet. Just, upped and flowed into it, until everything in the room went back to normal. Just a normal, not haunted girl's bedroom.

Triss stared at the necklace. Athalia stared at the necklace. Thinking about Samantha carrying around her daughter's ghost in a necklace on and off for months, was disturbing.

“No time to waste,” Athalia said.

“Right.”

Once they were outside, Triss and Athalia checked their phones. They were working again.

“Nothing from Sándor or Mark,” Athalia said.

“Nothing from anyone for me, except Jen. She tried to call me.” Triss dialed back. Jen answered instantly.

“Beatrice Damor.” That wasn’t Jen.

“Prince?”

“Indeed.”

“Uh ... can I speak with Jen?”

“No, you may not.”

Triss ground her teeth together, loud enough the Prince probably heard it. “If you—”

“Your dear Jennifer is alive, Beatrice. I am sure you understand that I cannot allow her to leave until this matter is settled.”

“Matter? You’re the one keeping secrets. I don’t even know what the fuck is going on.”

“You know enough. I cannot risk Jennifer giving Jacob any more information.”

“You ... fucking...”

“She will be fine,” Antoinette said, voice ice cold, “but she will remain here, for the time being. Surely you can understand why I am doing this.”

“Not a trusting bone in your whole body.”

“Perhaps. But regardless, Jennifer tells me you are actively seeking to save my love from a trap my old friend has sprung.”

“I’m ... trying to get there, yeah. Athalia and I are gonna try something.”

“Wonderful.”

“Um, I assume you’re going to come with me? Or at least Daniel? I—”

“Unfortunately, my sheriff and I are preoccupied with a non-trivial matter.”

“Non-trivial? Your boy wonder is locked up in the fucking underworld!”

Silence, for a few more seconds than was healthy for Triss’s sanity.

“I know, Beatrice. And I fear for him, and for what he may do.”

“What he might do?” Triss asked.

“Do what you must to save him and the others, Beatrice. Though I must ask, please, leave my childe out of this.”

Triss opened her mouth, but said nothing. Sam wasn’t at the Prince’s? Then where the fuck was she? Maybe with Jacob? Shit.

“Fine. I haven’t even talked to her yet.”

More silence. The Prince didn’t believe her. Why the fuck wouldn’t she? Unless ... Samantha wasn’t answering her phone.

“I am warning you, Miss Damor.”

“I’m leaving her out of this, Prince. You got Jen, right? I’m not gonna risk her life on a shitty lie.”

“Very well.” Definitely didn’t believe her. “Unfortunately, my student is busy in the spirit realm, or I would send her to join you. You must do this on your own.”

“I don’t even know what I’m doing! All I know is, Jacob’s locked Jack, Avery, and Sándor in the Great Below or whatever.”

“Athalia’s knowledge is more than enough to suit your needs.” A few muffled groans came in through the background. Didn’t sound like Jen, though. “I must go now, Beatrice. My task awaits. I must thank you, for sending Jennifer to me. Jack’s thralls were not exactly specific with details. I was ... not sure if I would be able to time this correctly, but now I have a time frame to work with.”

“Time frame?”

“Indeed. It all happens tonight, Beatrice. I pray we will speak again tomorrow.”

Beep.

“That fucking bitch!” Triss stared at her phone and squeezed. It took every drop of willpower she had left to not crush it into powder.

“What did she say?” Athalia asked.

“She’s busy, doing something. Something pretty fucking important. Any idea?”

“No. It likely has something to do with Jacob and Black Blood, but she keeps her secrets.”

“Everyone keeping fucking secrets.” Because she was Jacob’s friend and student, and apparently her boss was up to something so bad, literally everyone else was getting ready to stop it.

He’d said she could see Julias again. He’d said there was a way to do it, without resurrecting him. He was going to change everything, and bring them along. Christ, Jacob, you fucking idiot.

“We’re running out of time,” Athalia said.

“Yeah ... yeah, I know. Let’s go.”

---

~~Eric~~

“Come on girl, we all saw it,” Jessy said. “You know, before Mary, uh ... yeah. Gimme details.”

Groaning and tearing her hair out, almost literally, Brianna shoved Jessy away.

“You have a problem.”

“You’re the one getting DP’d at a ball. I ain’t never done that.”

“You ... shit, really?”

Jessy laughed and stuck out her tongue. “Never.”

“Fuck.”

Eric and Tash traded a knowing look, rolled their eyes, and followed after them along the sidewalk. Arturo walked up ahead on the sidewalk in his wolf form, and Matt did the same behind them. This deep in Devil’s Corner, the spirits were a lot more aggressive and deadly, and it paid to pay attention. Jessy, on the other hand, was far more curious about Brianna and her relationship with Santos and Derick.

“Don’t believe her,” Eric said. “I’m not sure there’s a kink out there Jessy hasn’t conquered.”

Jessy promptly gave Eric the middle finger without turning around.

“This is diplomacy. Jack’s not here to play nice guy or liaison with the Uratha or whatever, so I’m gonna step in and fill his small shoes.”

“By pestering them about their sex lives?” Eric asked.

“Yes. Best icebreaker.”

Time to put a stop to that. Eric came up behind her and gave her a good tug on the shoulder. Before she could shake him off, Natasha stepped around her, and took her spot beside Brianna.

“Asshole,” Jessy said.

“Sex addict,” he said.

“You love it.”

“I do, but some day someone’s going to get really upset with you.”

“I’m just trying to—”

“I know, I know.” He leaned in and put a kiss on her cheek. “You can sexually harass me later.”

Brianna snorted and looked back. “I mean, she wasn’t lying. I did get DP’d, in public. But Dolareido just seems to really have that vibe going for it, even in the spirit realm. We can sense it. I’m sure you can, too.”

Eric could. Dolareido was more than just a city, it was an epicenter of some seriously weird shit. Ancient deity talking to him in his dreams, and doing some weird mojo on the whole city, it was all par for the course in Dolareido. Giant sex spirits that could have been gods elsewhere, they almost seemed blasé here, and after being in the city for a while, Avery's Uratha were getting pretty comfortable with Slut City's vibe. Just, not quite Jessy level of comfortable, not yet.

"I blame Jessy," Tash said. "She infects people. Like a v-virus."

"An awesome virus," Jessy said.

Brianna chuckled, but let the conversation die. They were getting closer and closer to where Black Blood had been spotted, the tear they'd investigated weeks ago. Apparently he, it, whatever, had been doing something particularly ritual-ly. Caleb and Monica hadn't been especially clear on details, because they hadn't dared get close. Sneaking around in Dolareido wasn't like sneaking around in a forest. It was difficult, even for Irraka. Borderline impossible for Cahalith like Eric.

Cahalith. Storytellers, like Avery and Clara. Why Luna decided he should be a storyteller, he'd never understand.

Brianna was Rahu, like Matt, a bit tall and pretty muscular, more than Jessy. Black, short hair, and a really nice ass. Jessy was probably testing the waters to see if she could get Brianna to join them for a threesome ... or maybe a fivesome, with Derick and Santos. Which Eric would say no to of course, but now that they'd had a little fun with Marge, he'd opened the floodgates.

The group stepped into a dark alley, and Natasha wrapped them in her Cloak. Art didn't need it, fading into shadow, and he scouted ahead while the rest of them got closer together. They went through a few alleys, and a few more, now hidden from the watching eyes of the spirits in the shadows. And there were a lot of eyes. The strange black blobs the size of rats were everywhere this deep in Devil's Corner, probably under Street-Tail King's control. Some of the eel-like things flying around swam past on the way to South Side. And some spirits that looked like tires rolled on past, more than a few of them screeching like someone burning rubber. Any of them could have been spying for Black Blood, too, or Red Tide, if it'd somehow dominated their choir.

The buildings were old, older than they were in the physical world. The Hisil did that, emphasized key details until they were hilarious exaggerations. Hilarious if you were looking on from a distance, but terrifying if you were face to face with buildings that looked ready to collapse any second, with dingy brick walls falling apart, many with giant holes some of the rat spirits were using as doors. The windows had bars, and the bars were thicker than in the physical realm, Gurihal, thicker, rustier, and covered in spikes.

A few demons Eric had come to recognize as spirits of addiction scurried off. Addiction came in many forms, but drugs were a particular breed that refused to die, like cockroaches, and they looked like cockroaches, too. Some of them walked upright, and had needles for fingers like the fucker Eric had killed months ago. As long as they stayed small and stupid, the effect they could have on the real world would be minimal. It was when they got large, large enough to have unique names and complex motivations, that they started having real effects across the Gauntlet.

He hadn't been hunting in the Hisil in a while. It was probably time to pick it back up. Much as they had to worry about Black Blood and the potentially apocalyptic shit he was up to, that didn't mean he couldn't keep doing clean-up duty for the city.

They rounded a corner, and stopped.

That, was a lot of blood wraiths.

A dozen of the creatures looked down the dark street, facing away from Eric and the gang thank god, their long black arms hanging at their sides, and absurdly long claws hanging below them. Legless creatures with human-like torsos, they hovered a foot over the ground like evil genies, and their onyx, ink-like bodies were draped in red cloaks that looked like they were made of blood. Dripping, crimson blood. Eric couldn't see their eyes from behind them, but he remembered what they looked like. Slitted, glowing white eyes.

Natasha held up a hand, and slowly looked to Eric. Eric shrugged. The fuck were they supposed to do? They had to get to the tear to investigate, and this was the path they'd planned to take. It was a detour, a huge detour, ducking left and right through a dozen streets and alleys they didn't have to take to get to the city outskirts. No one knew they were going to take this path.

“You are too easy.”

The group spun and faced the alley's other direction, but Eric already knew who it was.

“Street-Tail King,” he said, growling.

The giant stupid rat stood in the shadows of one of the buildings. It was a dark night, an especially dark night, and now it was all too obvious why the shadows were especially thick. This fucker and the black wraiths were doing something.

Hisses behind him confirmed. The dozen blood wraiths turned and faced the group, and they chuckled as they tapped their claws together. Trap.

“You fucker,” Brianna said, fists clenched at her sides. “The fuck are you doing?”

“Stopping you from interfering with Black Blood.”

“You know if Black Blood succeeds, it's going to ruin everything for you. Get out of our way!”

“Black Blood is persuasive,” the spirit said. Its asphalt tail twitched twice, before it settled on the ground behind it. Several large rat-like dark blobs pulsed and moved on the hump on its back, before they flowed off its body and down into the shadows. “It insists we will survive the great change.”

“Survive, maybe.” Brianna took a step closer to the huge spirit and pointed a finger up at it. “But even if you do, so what? You want across the Gauntlet to the Gurihal, but it won’t be there anymore. It’s going to ruin everything!”

“You don’t know that.”

“The fuck do you mean—”

“Black Blood will tear down the walls. At first, I wanted to stop it, because it may bring everything crashing down, as you say. That’s why I told you.” The giant, two-legged rat twitched its whiskers, and plucked at one of them with long claws. “He insists otherwise.” He?

“It lies.”

The spirit shook its head. “I am bound, Uratha. I have no choice.”

“Bound?”

The rat slowly shook its head. “You don’t understand. Mictlantecuhtli will not stop until she is his once again. He has bound me, and I have no choice.”

“Mictawhatnow?” Jessy asked. “What the fuck are you talking about?”

Natasha snapped her hand out, and yanked on Jessy’s arm, silencing her. The little vampire’s eyes were wide, and staring at the rat.

“One of his many names. It does not matter.” Street-Tail King shook its head again. “Ignorance is bliss. Be happy he only wants you to remain here. Malachi is ... generous.”

Eric looked back at the dozen blood wraiths. Fight? Two vampires and four werewolves against the twelve of them, and Street-Tail King? Doable, maybe. But turning the current insanity into a fight was a bad idea, when none of them had the slightest fucking clue what was going on.

“Well, uh, thank you for your generosity, in sparing our lives,” Brianna said, gesturing around them, “but you know damn fucking well you can’t keep us here. You”—she pointed at the rat—“are bound by your bans! Think we don’t know? Think we don’t know you aren’t allowed to get caught in light, exposed? We spread your name and how you’re involved, and you break. Power, gone. Avery will—”

“Then it’s a good thing we do this in the darkness,” it said, smirking, and gesturing around them, too. Metaphorical darkness, and in the spirit realm, literal.

“And tomorrow? We left you alone because you’ve been useful, rat. Tomorrow Avery will—”

“There will be no tomorrow. It all changes tonight, Uratha. You cannot stop Mictlantecuhtli. He has bound me, and he will—”

“Fail.”

Everyone looked up at the new voice, and as the thundering roar vibrated through their bodies, Eric’s muscles tensed until his bones hurt. He reached down for Tash to throw her out of the way, but she already had her sword out, and was dashing for the blood wraiths. Fast, so damn fast she was just a blur.

Eric managed to follow the blur long enough to see Tash get past the spirits, and slice one of them through the neck. It took one whole second for her to get the sword out and dash thirty feet. The sword wouldn't do much damage to a spirit, except she got it in the neck so deep, it let out a screech that broke everyone's paralysis, like a popped balloon.

Then the water hit them. A raging river, heavy, overwhelming, and powerful. It crashed against the wall beside them first, and the bricks smashed in. The building groaned, and spirits within shrieked, as chaos erupted.

Art, Matt, Brianna, and Eric all transformed into the Gauru form, and readied for war, even as the water ripped the world apart. Eric didn't know how Flow got above them, or how it'd managed to stay out of sight as long as it had, but spirit took its shot, and buried everything below it in enough water to rip the buildings apart. Most of the water fell onto Street-Tail King and Black Blood's servants, but Flowing Sanctuary was not a precise, delicate spirit. It hit the whole damn area with a tsunami. The only reason Eric didn't crumble into a balled up piece of paper was his transforming, and in the chaos, he couldn't tell if Jessy was as lucky.

As the water ripped and tore everything apart, Eric sank his talons into the street and stood up while catching his claws on a building wall. The water had pushed them into one of the buildings, and it was falling apart around them. But as much as his friends were in a mess, the blood wraiths were worse. They didn't have much mass, and as the water broke down walls of what looked like the inside of a decrepit apartment building, the wraiths slammed into the chairs, couches, counters, and straight through walls of drywall and brick. One of the unlucky ones crashed through a wall, went through the apartment Eric was in, and into a window. The metal bars acted like a strainer, and the spirit broke apart as it was pushed through.

Flow didn't stop. More water crashed on them, and more. The only thing that kept the building from falling on their heads was the steel support beams, but the spirit realm didn't care about materials. Everything was ephemera. Everything did its own thing based on how it felt as a reflection of the physical world. And the steel beams didn't think too highly of the old, dingy apartment building it was mimicking.

The building collapsed.

Hundreds of floating black blobs, rat spirits with beady glowing eyes, flowed away in the flood as the water broke through more walls. Other spirits hidden in the building, tiny things with little claws in the cupboards, and larger ones that looked almost like doors, and old televisions, with rust and broken limbs, grabbed onto any surface they could as the water swirled. The ceiling fell on them, and Eric covered his head with his huge arms as wood and tile and carpet buried him.

Water again. Couldn't breathe. Couldn't figure out which way was up or down. He opened his eyes but found only darkness, and flashes of movement as layers of building crashed onto him. Enormous pieces of floor and wall bigger than him broke apart, and steel beams rolled through the water and broke his ribs.

Something grabbed his arm, and lifted. As the water cleared from Eric's eyes, he raised his claws and swiped down at the colossal creature lifting him. He stopped halfway. It wasn't Street-Tail King.

"Okay?" Matthew asked, voice a growling bark. The Rahu was titanic when transformed.

"Yes."

The huge werewolf nodded, turned, sank his claws into a pile of rubble, and lifted. Water continued to churn around them, and a glance up showed the night sky. It hadn't been a very tall building, four floors, but still, Eric didn't expect to survive having a building dropped on him.

Oh fuck, Jessy. He snapped his gaze around. More chaos. The water thrashed and tore at more walls of nearby buildings, creating whirlpools filled with chunks of brick and wood. Rubble was everywhere, and the water crashed into it like rapids, contained and angry.

Maybe fifty feet away, in the alley between a mountain of knocked over brick, concrete, and splashing waves, Street-Tail King stood. Two werewolves tore at him, roaring and howling, massive claws taking chunks out of the rat that splattered against the water. Brianna and Arturo. The ephemera chunks behaved like flesh, for a few seconds, before they disappeared into the blue and broke apart like ice melting.

Eric looked to Matthew. The titan pushed through the flowing water and headed for Street-Tail, but two black blurs jumped out of the depths and onto his back. The blood wraiths sank their huge claws into his muscles, and the blades passed through flesh with far too much ease.

Eric took two steps toward him before Matthew spun around and crashed into the water. Splashing rapids buried him, and Eric lost him in the darkness as the giant werewolf thrashed and crashed into whatever debris was too heavy to flow away.

Movement in the corner of Eric's eye whipped him around, and one of the spirits erupted from wet black, claws out. Eric snapped his arm out and sank his claws directly into the creature's face. It screeched, a sound far too similar to the sound Mary's ghost made, before it swiped at Eric's arm. But Eric swung his arm to the side and smashed the spirit toward one of the collapsed walls, and the creature's hands lost track of their momentum, missing his arm as he lifted the dead thing up, and then down onto the wall.

The sensation of spirit flesh breaking and ripping apart in his claws was euphoric. The sound of crashing water turned to thunder, and his heart beat became war drums in ears. Faster, and faster. The strange smell of ephemera filled his nostrils, a scent his human half couldn't understand, but the wolf spirit longed for. The smell of the hunt.

Somewhere, deep inside him, he knew the Cahalith part of him was happy for this. What meaning was there in negotiating with a spirit? What story could be told from such a boring event? But a battle, with such high stakes? Perfect. If only there was an audience, like there'd been in the old days when he'd fought for spectators. Like a gladiator.

A simple glance around satisfied him. Spirits were watching. Spirits of the air and the crow watched from a distance, paralyzed. Spirits of darkness, of disease, of addiction, small and weak, unformed and pathetic, barely more than motes of essence, stared on. Spirits of technology, of streets and cars, of surveillance and lethargy watched on, petrified. Flowing Sanctuary's reckless destruction had broken an entire building, and the ambush the stupid rat had set for them. It had also summoned an audience.

He stomped through the water, looking for his mate. The undead ones didn't need to breathe, but that didn't mean she couldn't die again if one of those bloody clawed ones found her. He sniffed the air, hunting for the scent of ash, but found none, only water and dying spirits. He looked down at the churning waves, but found only darkness and water. No mate, or her small friend.

Another one of the bloody spirits rose from the water, a broken, bleeding thing. An easy kill. Eric sank his claws into it, and ripped it in half. It tried to scream, but its ephemera body could no longer make sound, torn asunder.

Where was she?

Matthew burst from the water, one of the spirits clawing and stabbing, but its body was in his mouth as the Rahu devoured it. The other tried to escape his clutches, but the enormous Uratha ripped it in half easily.

So much for the ambush. The spirit of streets and rats underestimated them. Eric snarled as he turned to face the giant rat, and let the fire in his chest guide him toward the hunt. He wanted to find his mate, but she could fend for herself. The hunt was important.

They wouldn't stop until the streets overflowed with the broken, shattered bodies of Black Blood's servants.

---

~~Natasha~~

She stared down at the insanity from on top a nearby building. It was tilted, bent, warped, and looked kind of like a laundromat. Judging from how the spirit realm made the building look, it was a good bet the laundromat was a corrupt place in the real world, a front for some shady business. Typical for Dolareido.

The only reason it wasn't crumbling underneath her, was because Flowing Sanctuary had directed its power straight down at the alley, and the building across from where it'd started. How a water spirit worked, Tash didn't know, and still didn't know, despite asking Matt and Art. They always gave her vague answers, things like 'spirits, yo' or 'ephemera has the power to create mass from nothing' which seemed absurd to her. Though, in retrospect, Mary's ghost was an ephemera being, and she made things from nothing, mist and stuff.

One of the blood wraiths let out a screech as it sliced at the water. Could it hurt Flow? Was the river that smashed and sloshed in the alley and debris actually Flow's body? The Uratha could hurt spirits with their claws and teeth in ways Tash's sword couldn't, but then again, slicing one of them in the neck with her very normal metal sword had certainly hurt it.

Now, was not, the fucking time, to be taking, mental notes!

The new river ripped the apartment building apart, until it literally fell on her friends. She suppressed a squeak, and stared on as the werewolves, now transformed, turned what was once an ambush into a quick battle they were easily winning. Flow had attacked the way it did, because it knew the werewolves would be fine. But, where was Jessy?

In the water, she spotted Brianna and Art ripping into the giant rat, but it fought them off, lifting one by the throat with one hand, and landing a slash across Art's chest with the other. Tash snarled as she gripped her sword, and ran over the rooftop of the building opposite the one that collapsed into the churning waves. Eric and Matt were in there, between piles of rubble and floating boards, fighting off more of the wraith spirits. But the moment they made headway, a couple blood wraiths jumped from the water or shadows and threw themselves at their backs.

She almost jumped down to help them, but they could handle the wraiths. Eric was probably looking for Jessy, but she was probably buried under a pile of bricks and three feet under water. For the moment, a safe place to be. Brianna and Art needed her help now.

Tash stared down at the jump. She'd climbed up high to get away from the wraiths in the insanity, five floors. Maybe she could shoot Street-Tail King? Gun soaked, might not fire. And she was pretty high up. She could see in the darkness just fine compared to others, but there was just too much chaos.

She smiled as a memory came back to her, something Jack said he'd done, something Clara had confirmed.

She took a deep, useless breath, held her small sword in both hands, blade pointed down, and jumped.

Falling was a strangely freeing sensation. Weightlessness. She'd fallen from great heights before, even broke a leg once, and it'd left the idea of jumping off buildings deep in the 'don't do that' section of her subconscious. But she was a professional, damn it. Falling five floors would take about two seconds, an eternity, when trying to land on someone's head in a chaotic brawl.

The brawl moved to the side slightly. Natasha grit her teeth as she twisted in the air hard, and held out the blade with one hand instead. It was the only way to get it over Street-Tail King's skull. This was going to hurt.

It hit the stupid creature straight in the head, and she screamed as she squeezed the hilt tight as her weight and speed forced the blade through its skull. It felt like she'd just stabbed a giant tree stump, and the impact jolted her body hard enough her shoulder wrenched. But she didn't let go as the blade got halfway down before it got stuck, and Tash crashed against the spirit's back. She didn't let go.

Screaming louder as pain tore through her shoulder, she squeezed tight, reached out for the blade, and caught it with her other hand. She held on as the rat mirrored her scream, pitch included, and thrashed around hard, tossing both werewolves into the water, before it reached back and tried to grab her. It couldn't. It shrieked and roared and smashed its asphalt tail into the water again and again, sometimes swinging high and slamming into her back. But it was all sporadic, random thrashes, a dying creature not sure what was happening as a piece of metal sank deeper and deeper into its skull. A living creature would have been dead already.

Brianna and Art erupted from the water, and pounced the huge two-legged rat full on. It fell over, and everything turned to black so deep even Tash's eyes couldn't penetrate it. Water, crashing around her, thrashing, bodies, claws, and a hundred rat-like blob things falling into the water with her. She held on through it all, even as the grinding in her shoulder screamed in her skull to let go. No need to breathe, but that didn't stop panic from flooding her as bricks and concrete and flesh and fur smashed into her until she was trapped against the street.

But the chaos settled, and the enormous body pinning her moved. Oh god no, still alive? Enormous hands grabbed her, claws nearly puncturing her skin, and yanked her up through the water. Oh shit oh shi—

“Natasha,” Brianna said, half barking.

“Oh! Oh...” Natasha looked down at the giant body beside her in the water, her sword still trapped in its skull. It wasn't moving anymore. “It w-worked. I—ow!”

Brianna made a tiny yelp sound, and let go of her. Which of course led to Tash falling right back into the water. Groaning, she got back up and clutched her dislocated shoulder.

“Sorry,” Brianna said.

“It's fine. Just, give it a g-good yank. Downward, please.” She leaned forward, and gestured to her dangling arm with her good arm.

Brianna wrapped her giant wolf hand around her wrist, and forearm considering how big the werewolf's hand was, and yanked down. A sickening sensation, especially since her Kindred body fought to get the arm back into the socket on its own, but all it did was pull the bone closer, into the wrong spot. Brianna yanked hard enough to almost pull her back into the water, but Tash stayed up, and let out a blissful sigh as the humerus bone slipped back into the groove.

The raging river stopped thrashing and slamming into everything. The water calmed. The rat was dead, and so were the blood wraiths.

“Dangerous,” Art the huge werewolf said, looking at Tash while gesturing to Street-Tail King’s body.

“Yes, it was. B-But we don’t have time for this! We have to get back!” She grabbed her sword, put a foot on the giant rat’s head, and yanked. Street-Tail King’s body was covered in fresh bite and claw marks, and weird colors bled into the water. The same color gushed out of the hole Tash left in its skull.

She knew who Mictlantecuhтли was. Antoinette would too, and she needed to know.

Art half growled, half sighed down at the creature. “Sad.”

“Y-Yeah, I guess.” She never liked Street-Tail King, but at least it’d been direct about its nature. It’d even helped them before, for selfish reasons, but still. “I ... I w-wonder what happened? How’d Black Blood bind it?”

Brianna shrugged. “Don’t know. Spirits can bind each other, if very ... very powerful.” It was hard for her to talk in her werewolf form, but she managed. The water didn’t provide any resistance to her huge body, and she walked through it quickly, causing it to splash against her thighs as she made her way to the other two werewolves. “Okay?”

“Yes,” Eric said, visibly shaking. Soaked and torn up, bleeding from several holes, he looked ready to rip something open and eat it raw.

“Where’s Jessy?” Tash asked.

Eric snarled as he looked down at the water, and tread around, pushing over piles of rubble and digging through them as he looked for her.

“Flow,” Brianna said, “enough.”

The water rumbled, a deep, ocean-like sound of power and majesty. It listened and obeyed, and the water receded. Slowly at first, as if Flowing Sanctuary struggled to control itself, but it did, and the water formed together into a spiraling whirlpool that went up instead of down. Up and up, until a torso and arms that looked more like misty waterfalls formed, along with a blank face with glowing white-eye slits, a little too similar to the blood wraith’s eyes for Tash’s comfort.

The huge angel wings were less calming, and far more intimidating, than angel wings should have been. Safe, her spirit friend, made her feel safe. Flowing Sanctuary made Tash feel like she’d stumbled onto some sort of ancient underwater temple, and it’d protect her as long as she was in it, but it’d also crush and drown anyone it didn’t like.

Tash backed away from the huge spirit until at least one werewolf was between it and her.

“Reckless,” Art said with a growl.

“You were surrounded. I needed to create the opening. Appreciate my help, Uratha.”

Art dismissed her with another growl and a hand, er, claw wave, before he walked down the alley, the water now shallow enough it didn’t pass his ankle. But he was a werewolf, so, tall ankles.

“Jessy,” Eric barked.

“Looking,” Art said, and he pushed over a pile of rubble. Not there. He flipped over another pile. Not there.

Tash followed after him, but stopped as she looked down. Red. That was a lot of red. The blood wraiths dripped red from their weird bodies, as if they'd been draped in cloaks made of magical blood that dripped and dripped and never stopped. But that blood disappeared and didn't do anything. Now, as Tash stared down at the alley full of ankle-deep water, creeping ripples of red joined the river, until it looked a little too much like a certain scene in The Ten Commandments.

Everyone stared down, even Flow, before the rumbling started. Rumbling turned into a gentle earthquake, complete with vibrations heavy enough the water rippled and made micro splashes. It only grew worse as the rumbling grew louder, and the splashes of red pushed against Flow's river body.

"It comes..." Flow said, powerful, feminine, scary angel voice sounding way too small compared to the oncoming bass.

"W-What? I ... oh fuck." Tash tightened her grip on her sword, and backed up until her back hit the other wall in the alley.

"Uratha," a voice said, loud and heavy enough Tash felt it in her guts. "Uratha, come out, and die." It came closer, and closer, the destroyed building the only barrier between the giant red mountain of blood water, and Tash and her friends.

She gulped. "Red Tide."

Chapter 168

~~Jack~~

“Why would ghosts care about us?” Noah asked, gesturing to the approaching green lights. Thankfully, they were taking their sweet-ass time coming their way.

Jack ground his teeth as he looked around, checking for any ghosts that might come up out of the ground and do ... whatever it was ghosts did to living, breathing people. Or in his case, non-breathing people. His encounter with the ghosts of angry workers from the industrial boom had been violent enough he knew anyone with a pulse would struggle to survive dealing with them. At least, humans would. Werewolves would fair better. And this time it wasn't just him, Sándor, and Clara.

“They care,” Sándor said, “because they're angry. We're alive. They're not.”

Noah frowned as he stared out at the lights. “Kind of cliché.”

“Not so cliché,” Jack said, “if it's true. Clara told you what happened last time we ran into them, I assume?”

Nodding, the werewolf gestured back to Clara and Avery, who were inspecting nearby webs.

“So we've got three problems,” Noah said. “Ghosts, the azlu, and Jacob and Black Blood are probably tearing down the whole world right now.”

“Yeap.”

“Any idea why Jacob wants us to stay here?” Noah asked.

“He wants us to deal with the azlu,” Jack said, “and otherwise, not interfere with him, I guess.”

“Agreed,” Avery said, joining them. “But I ain’t waiting. Let’s go.”

Wincing, Jack nodded, and followed after Avery as she marched ahead. A glance Sándor’s way showed the man doing his usual stoic thing, but even he looked a little concerned. They were stuck, and the only way out of it, was to expose their flanks to ghosts and giant spider monsters. Fucking. Great.

Everyone went silent. Sándor took rear, and Jack and Damien took middle, with Damien doing his best to keep them wrapped in his Cloak. Brutally difficult for anyone except an elder, and every time Jack looked Damien’s way, it was obvious the man was struggling. The original plan was to sit and wait for the azlu to show up, not go marching forward through a giant, dark cave, filled with enormous rocks the size of hotel buildings, and ravines deep enough it’d take hours to climb back out of them; assuming falling into them didn’t splatter their bodies apart over the jagged rocks. It was going to be a tough time for the vampire Cloaking them.

Mist was everywhere. It came and went as they walked, sometimes peeking up between the uneven floor up to their ankles, sometimes reaching up to their waists and hiding everything below it, and sometimes disappearing entirely. More than a few times, Jack ducked down to see if he could see what the hell was happening around his feet when the mist reached high, but the mist was too thick. They had to go slow, but they had to go fast.

At least they had a path to follow. The ravine with the spiderwebs continued on, sometimes filled with mist, sometimes not, and every so often it stopped having webs, too. But after another five or ten minutes of walking, they found traces of another web. The spider was in here, somewhere, and much as the werewolves struggled to smell much in the Great Below, they could smell the azlu.

The green lights stopped coming closer, and many faded away. Everyone stared up at them, trying to figure out what was happening, why the ghosts stopped approaching, but no one had a clue. All they could see was, in the distance and way, way, way up, lights drifted by, going in the direction of ... something. All except one.

A pair of ears poked up from the mist, and Jack flung himself back as he yanked out one of his pistols. A wolf. He snarled at the damn werewolf as he put the pistol away, and the creature morphed back into human form with a few sickening crunches of bone. Caleb.

“It’s up ahead,” he whispered.

Avery and Clara looked between each other, wincing.

“Sándor,” Avery said. “Can you burrow yet? Open your lair, or whatever?”

“No. Still blocked.”

“Then we push on past it,” Clara said. “I hate this. We hate this. But the azlu has to wait.”

Caleb nodded, transformed back into a wolf, and disappeared under the mist that hung around their waists. How he managed to prowl around, while spending energy using the Uratha version of Cloaking on himself, Jack didn’t know. His own Beast instincts knew how to meld him with a crowd, and hunt among sheep, not literally hunt with nose to the ground and eyes peeled like a wolf.

He hated not being in control, but it was better to let Avery and her pack lead.

The shallow ravine the azlu used was on their right, so Avery, with a growl and snort, moved them more toward the left. Jack could see the frustration through the back of the short woman’s head, but it was the urgency and panic he was more worried about. Everyone was feeling it. They had to get away from the webs, from the azlu, as soon as fucking possible so Sándor could get them out of the damn underworld.

She froze. Everyone else promptly did, too. No need to explain. The visible werewolves leaned forward, weight on the balls of their feet, ready to transform. Noah had the flamethrower now, and since he wouldn't be transforming, he stayed in the center of the group, surrounded on all sides. Damien drew his longsword. Jack drew a shortsword and pistol. Sándor did the same as the Uratha, though he turned around to face behind them and slowly tightened and released fists at his side.

Something was nearby.

“Azlu?” Jack asked.

Avery shook her head, half turned and put a finger to her lips.

Nodding and biting his tongue to force himself to shut up, Jack raised his pistol and held it over his sword hand's wrist. Sword was a strong word. Big knife. But it did make it easier to handle the thing when working with a pistol. Not that he figured they'd be of much use, but still, it was better than—

He jumped back and unloaded six bullets down at the mist in front of him, but it was too late. The ghost giggled as she flew away, a glistening knife in her hand, and the most manic smile Jack had ever seen. Big, empty, black eyes, that didn't match her soft face at all, and a gray, see-through body whose pants — jeans, they looked like — combined with flowing waves of mist at the knee. She wore a t-shirt, something from the nineties, and her long hair went past her shoulders. He recognized her.

A tiny bit of string flew through the air, and disappeared into the mist.

“Oh fuck oh fuck.” With his knife hand, he scooped some fingers down his neck and chest. When his fingers found the knife wound, the pain followed, and he groaned as he took a few steps back, clutching at the skin as it struggled to heal. The burning sensation came a moment later, like the ghost had cut him open with dry ice. No normal knife wound felt like that.

She’d come up from the mist, and had sliced him across the sternum, deep enough to penetrate his shirt, skin, and a bit of bone. And his necklace.

Everyone looked his way before looking up at Sabrina. She laughed like a banshee as she circled overhead, fifty feet up and out of reach. Apparently the Cloak of Night didn’t do a good job of hiding from ghosts. Or maybe, it didn’t do a good job of hiding from her. Considering what she did to the other ghosts Jack ran into on his first trip into the Great Below, she was a scary, powerful creature. And judging from the crazy, evil smile she had on, she was happy to slice Jack’s chest open. She’d gone for the necklace on purpose.

“You were told to stay where you were!” she screamed, before cackling again.

Jack breathed deep and fast until he was hyperventilating, but it did nothing. Panic set in, and he clutched at his chest again and again, hoping the necklace was actually still there, and seeing it disappear in the mist had been a trick of the eye. It hadn’t.

“Sabrina!” Clara yelled. No point in staying quiet anymore. “What are you doing!? You did that to—”

“Viktor’s killer! Jack killed Viktor! Killed my master! Killed his own grandsire! Black Blood proved it to me!”

Everyone froze as they looked between Sabrina and Jack, and only then did they realize his necklace was gone.

It hit him like a wave. Overwhelming, overpowering, the Beast and its instincts rushed him and buried his thoughts in primal hunger. He winced as he looked away from them, closed his eyes, and summoned the flame in his mind Elaine taught him. Throw the thoughts, throw the feelings, throw it all into the fire and let it burn away. Empty your mind.

It didn't work. He couldn't do it, not now, not with everything falling apart around them and a gun to their heads.

"Sabrina," Damien said, aiming his longsword at her. "How dare you."

"Me? Me!? He killed Master! Vile, horrible vampire!" She cackled again as she hovered in circles. "Black Blood told me what to do. Jacob told me what to do. You should have stayed where you were, and killed the azlu. Now you all have to die."

They all looked to Jack again, and he gulped on a dry throat as he met their eyes. Avery's gaze was mostly steady, but he spotted some anger there, and fear.

"I'm fine," he lied. "I'll be fine. Let's just get this done. Don't drop a piano on my head again and we can all—"

A harsh, raspy growl cut him off, and every wolf looked in the direction of the inhuman sound. They all recognized that sound.

Without a word, all the werewolves — save for Noah — transformed. Clothes disappeared, fur emerged, and their bodies grew to massive sizes as the war form came out. Huge muscles and long claws, each werewolf hit at least eight feet tall, towering animals with crazed eyes and bared teeth. Noah transformed into something different, muscles getting bigger and body getting definitely hairier, but otherwise still a human dude. One of the other werewolf forms.

The werewolves spread out, and Noah backed up as he pointed the flamethrower in the direction of the noise, and turned on the small ignition flame at the tip. The flamethrower was basically a pressured jug of fuel in a metal container on his back, ready to spit a flammable liquid out as a stream, hitting the ignition flame on the way out. If Jack got hit and wasn't ready for it with his blood shield, it'd kill him instantly, and Damien had no such defense.

The two vampires steered clear, backing away, until they'd reached Sándor's position. Jack looked at him, Sándor looked back, and shared a very knowing glance. If shit went bad and the Ripper came out, there was a good chance it'd be up to Sándor to do something about it.

"Get what you deserve!" More cackling from the dead ghost above. "Get what you deserve! Tricked me. Tricked me!"

Her laughter was insane, and constant. And purposeful. Was she pulling the azlu to them? If so, that was a good thing, sorta. Deal with it now, and they could focus on the bigger issue. The delay was a problem, but if they could deal with it quickly, then that was better than nothing.

He thought the azlu was trying to avoid the werewolves. Maybe it had been. Except there were thirteen werewolves in Dolaredo including Eric, but only nine of them were present. Maybe it sensed an opportunity.

Damien jumped ahead. No, not jumped. Flew. Jack and Sándor spun around as several other ghosts appeared in the mist, and threw themselves at the two of them. Not blue collar workers from the fifties, like the ghosts Jack had run into before. These three looked like regular men and women, wearing modern clothing, or maybe a decade or two old.

"We'll be free!" One of them said.

“Soon, free!” The woman laughed and smiled, big, empty, black eyes staring into Jack’s soul.

“Free!” the third one said. “The god of the dead promised us. No more Great Below. No more wandering. No more weight pulling us deeper, and deeper. We’ll fly! To the heavens!”

Black Blood had, evidently, recruited some ghosts to help him, and had promised them quite a bit.

“Black Blood—” Sándor didn’t get to finish. The girl tackled him, and the two of them fell into the mist. Even five feet from Jack, he couldn’t see Sándor or the ghost wrestling him to the ground. At least the man hadn’t looked too surprised by the situation. Considering the sorts of journeys the Begotten had been going on to prepare for stopping Black Blood’s ritual, he was probably well acquainted with ghosts at this point.

Jack didn’t get time to make a judgment call. He went down as one of the other ghosts tackled him, and started punching him. Hard. Very hard. It was a strange feeling, getting punched by a ghost, because the weight felt off. It was like getting hit by a gust of wind so strong it could send you flying, somehow limited to a single fist.

Thankfully they weren’t using the crazy telekinetic shit Mary did to him, the first time he met her ghost. Maybe it was something ghosts could only do in areas important to them? Whatever the reason, getting punched by something clearly stronger than a human, was infinitely better than getting tossed around or squashed under a thrown boulder by a crazed super ghost haunting her home.

Problem was, he knew from last time defeating a ghost wasn’t easy without something that could really hurt them. Last time, that’d been Sabrina. He had werewolves this time, but they were a little busy, judging from the encroaching rumbling, screeching, and the howling wolves.

He stared up into the empty eyes of the ghost directly over him. There was nothing for Dominate to latch onto, nothing to conquer and enslave. The thing punching him, its great strength still incapable of hurting Jack with the curse coursing through him, had as much presence of mind as an amoeba. Just like Mary's ghost.

Jack winced as the memory cut him, before he glared up at the ghost, summoned vitae into his limbs, and punched him in the face. The ghost's face half collapsed in as Jack made sure to punch the fucker hard enough it'd have killed a kine instantly. It flew back in the air, ten feet up before it fell back into the mist, head snapped back far enough it nearly came off. As long as the ghosts were going to manifest physically, he could at least punch them.

Jack got up, snarling and spinning around. Burning, pulsing sensations rippled through him, and he ground his teeth as he looked for the nearest target. Damien was up, and already slicing through the ghost woman that came at him. But while the slice earned a shriek of pain from the ghost, and literally cut her in half, she reformed a second later, and fled into the mist.

"We can't kill them," Jack said.

"Yeah. Any ideas?" Damien asked.

"Sabrina saved us last time."

"Yes, well, old friends and all that."

Yeah, old friends that come back with a mind to kill. Karma was a bitch.

Jack spun around. "Sándor? You okay? Sándor!"

Another ghost flew into the air, before two enormous shadows reached up, grabbed it, and ripped the ephemeral thing in half.

Again, ghost shrieks echoed through the giant cave, but the ghost reformed a second later as it collapsed back into the mist below.

Sándor stood up, a tiny frown on his face and a bleeding lip, but otherwise he seemed fine. Jack looked at the blood on his chin a little longer than he'd have liked, before he looked back to the Uratha. Most of them had run off a few hundred feet away, and their howls and roars mixed with the cries of an animal that shouldn't have existed. Waves of mist pillowed and spread, like a giant shark swimming under water and pushing waves with its mass. Bodies flew left and right, massive, furry bodies, but they landed on their hands and feet before dashing back at the giant creature.

The azlu had arrived, and it was big.

Noah and Clara weren't with their pack. Noah, still in his larger, muscled human form, pointed the flamethrower at the spider far in the distance, but he looked around at himself, at the fog, and at the new nearby ghosts that poked up from the mist. More ghosts. Some of them looked modern, but Jack noticed a few that wore old fashioned clothes from the fifties or sixties. All of them had twisted faces, giant black empty eyes, and mouths that opened far too wide.

Clara stood with her pack mate, transformed into her enormous war form, teeth bared and claws at the ready. When one ghost poked up from the mist, she slashed down at it, but the ghost ducked away and disappeared into the thick fog. One unlucky ghost wasn't fast enough, and Clara raked her huge claws down the ghost woman's face and neck. The result was far more visceral than anything Jack, Damien, or Sándor managed, and the ghost wailed as it clutched the wounds the claws left, before she fell into the mist. She didn't come back up.

"Plan?" she half said, half barked. More ghosts poked up from the mist, and more.

“Plan, plan, right.” Jack ran over to her, sword in hand, and he parked a little ways from them so Clara could keep swiping at whatever got close to Noah. The further Jack stayed away from the dude with the flamethrower, the better, but it was becoming obvious they were surrounded by more than a few ghosts, and they had to get their backs together. “The ghosts know what Noah’s going to do. We protect him, get him to Avery, torch that azlu, and then we get the pack to deal with the ghosts.”

“Trying!” Clara said. “Too many!”

You won’t make it. Just look how far away Avery and the azlu are.

Shut up.

Jacob played you like a fiddle. He knew Avery would bring fire to deal with the azlu, so it can’t spread when it dies. Black Blood knew Sabrina would freak if she learned you killed her master. Now ghosts are everywhere, convinced Black Blood is going to free them from this prison. They’re not going to let Noah torch the bug. Black Blood gave them orders, and they’re going to follow them. You’re fucked.

Shut up!

Look, dumbass. Look how many ghosts are between you and the spider. Jacob set this up so Avery would get herself killed fighting the azlu. Can’t say I blame him. He hates her, with every fiber of his being.

Oh fucking shit, the Ripper was right. If Jacob had the opportunity to achieve some crazy, ridiculous dream, and kill Avery as some sort of icing on the cake, he would.

“Sándor, help Clara. Keep Noah safe. Damien, you’re with me. We deal with the azlu now. Noah, use the fire on the ghosts. I’m betting it'll do at least something. Let Damien and me get away before you accidentally kill us.”

Sándor and Damien both nodded, without hesitation. The instant trust was beautiful, and a problem. Without the necklace, they shouldn't have trusted him so quickly.

Noah threw him a harsh glare. “We brought the fire for—”

“We don't have time to kill the azlu the proper way! I know if we kill it and let it do the multi-spider thing, it'll escape and reform later. We have more important things to worry about! So just keep the ghosts preoccupied, and let me save your boss's stupid ass! The ghosts are trying to stop you, not me!”

Jack ran off in Avery's direction, and didn't look back. The ghosts looked at him, but the few that got in his way lost their heads as Damien ran past him as a blur, and sliced their skulls off in a single swinging motion. They reformed in moments, but it was enough of a delay for Jack to run past, unblocked.

The ghosts didn't pursue. He was right. The Ripper was right. Sabrina had orders to take Jack's necklace, but the other ghosts were told to keep whoever had the flamethrower away from the azlu, to force Avery to have to fight it the old fashioned way. And of course, without the necklace, there was always the chance the Ripper would replace the azlu as the threat.

Now he was kinda regretting not just listening to Jacob, and waiting where he'd left them. But it wasn't like he was going to let Jacob trigger fucking Armageddon, either.

He almost looked back when a loud roar erupted, and the cave floor vibrated with impact. He recognized the sound. A giant, angry, four-armed gargoyle made that sound. If Noah made a mistake and torched Sándor ... Jack didn't even want to think about it. But shitty as it was, better Sándor than Jack or Damien. He might survive.

The azlu was just as disgusting as the others they'd seen. A spider had gotten an old woman, crawled into her, and ate her from the inside out. Then, a giant monster body came out of the host's waist, almost like a centaur had a horse's body below the belt, except it was a disgusting, freaky, mutated, monstrous spider body. The host's body was also mutated, pulsing with muscle and equipped with giant scythe-like arms made of bone. And too many eyes.

David and Avery tore into its sides, and it spun around, shrieking and screeching and swinging its arms at Carter. But the old werewolf was fast, and ducked under the arms before jumping the monster straight on and landing on the human half of it. Jack couldn't tell who the others were in the chaos. They were covered in blood, and they stood up from the mist as broken bones snapped back into place. Erica, Caleb, Monica, and Mason, all four of them with huge gashes on their body, gushing blood that disappeared into the fog. It only slowed them down for moments before the wounds closed, and the blood-soaked beasts again threw themselves at the giant monster.

"Noah!" Avery yelled, feral eyes looking in Jack's direction. "Fire!"

"Can't get here! Ghosts are blocking him! Black Blood knows what you planned!"

"Fuck!" Evidently not happy about the news, she sank both her claws into the fat spider body, and got to tearing, until the monster's blood gushed over her.

"Damien," Jack said, "look for an opportunity to get in there and end this quickly. Stay hidden as best you can until then."

"On it." Damien slipped away, crouched into the mist, and vanished, his Cloak and the fog working together to make him almost invisible. His friend was tired. Cloaking all of them for so long had drained him. How well the Cloak worked on the spider monster, Jack didn't know; didn't seem to do much against ghosts.

But with seven werewolves trying to tear it into bits, it wouldn't notice a vampire hiding in the mist.

Jack, on the other hand, wanted it to notice him. He walked straight up to it, and fired every bullet in his magazine as fast as he could. Big as the werewolves were, the azlu was gigantic, and aiming for the lower half of its body, where spider body connected to human body, was enough to avoid accidentally shooting them. It shrieked as it noticed the new pain sensation, but when it tried to take a step toward Jack, one of the werewolves sliced at one of its many legs hard enough it stumbled. Jack slapped in a new magazine and unloaded it as fast as the gun allowed. And another magazine. And then another. The azlu shrieked and screamed, and hints of the human it possessed came through in its voice. Jack emptied his last magazine into it, before holstering the pistol. Dozens and dozens of bullets, and the damn thing just refused to die.

He pulled up his Beast, and sent vitae into his limbs. Mountains of it. Without the necklace, it was like riding rapids, a torrent of energy and instinct that hit him and threatened to drag him under the overpowering current. If he'd been back in his mansion, or maybe in the Elysium Tower, he'd find some peace and quiet, and throw his thoughts into a flame. Now, all he had was chaos, roars and shrieks, blood, and an enemy he had to kill and kill now.

He jumped straight at the giant spider monster, and sank his shortsword into its chest. With anything else, the short blade would have sunk straight through the chest and into the organs, and ended the fight in seconds. With the azlu, it was like trying to stab through a thick layer of wood, and his sword penetrated maybe three inches before it came to a stop, and Jack was left dangling from it like a fish on a hook. Jumping at it with his small body had not been the smartest plan.

The monster swung both its arms down for him, and while he managed to swing aside enough to avoid one, the other bone scythe arm collided with him and smashed him into the ground. Thick Kindred blood coursed over the wound, summoned under the skin and thick enough it stopped the monster from getting through the limb. The stone ground was not forgiving, but nothing broke, and Jack groaned as he forced himself back to his feet.

He had to be careful. He couldn't have a repeat of what happened with him and Avery, or Garry and Michael, and let the Ripper out by getting pulverized.

He managed a glance back to Sándor's group. Enormous shadows cut through the air over pillars of flame that shot out in random directions. With all the mist, the distance turned everything into a blur, and he couldn't tell what the fuck was happening over there. But he didn't hear any screams of pain, so, probably alright enough he could focus on the giant spider monster trying to kill him.

Avery and the others ripped and tore into the creature with more ferocity than Jack could manage. Claws, ripping through exoskeleton, drawing splatters of more monster blood, until the whole place smelled of it. The spider turned and slashed at one of the werewolves, and they dashed out of the way before disappearing into the mist. Shadows enveloped them, and they ceased to exist, only to pounce from the mist on the spider's other side, and get his mouth around one of the enormous spider legs. But the spider was too big, too strong, and a solid kick of the spindly leg sent the werewolf flying back into the mist.

It quickly got worse. As Jack looked for another opening to jump onto, or maybe get under the damn spider, or maybe get his sword back, the huge thing jumped. Apparently eight legs and monstrous strength allowed for some pretty big jumps, and the huge thing cleared twenty feet with half a dozen werewolves stuck on its body. It landed hard, nearly collapsing onto its side, but managing to stay standing, while three of the werewolves fell off.

As Carter got back up, a spider leg came down onto his chest, through him, and pinned him to the floor. Screams mixed with roars, but Jack couldn't see the man now that he was below the mist. His clawed hands stuck up through the surface of the fog, and swiped at the spider leg several times, before falling back down below.

Avery roared. Not a normal roar, something that'd hurt the ears but otherwise do nothing. It was a blast wave. It erupted from her like an explosion, and everyone not currently attached to the monster with a clawed grip flew away, and they didn't land nicely. Whatever it was Avery just did, it hit Jack hard enough he fell back and slid over maybe thirty feet of stone before stopping, and when he got back up, he was facing the wrong way.

He spun back around in time to see Avery's claws erupt with flames, and sink into the spider's large abdomen. The whole fight had been filled with screaming and shrieking monster sounds, and it only got worse as bits of the monster's flesh caught fire. It wasn't normal fire. It faded away quickly, thank god, but once Jack ran back in to join the fight, he could smell the burning hair of the spider's body.

Those claws hurt. He knew.

Six werewolves took the opportunity to jump back up from the mist, and tear into the spider's big fat abdomen where Avery had left a nasty gash. Blood rained, and Jack took a step back as the monster spun around at high speed, trying to dislodge the pack. They held on, sinking their claws in as deep as they could go, as if they were trying to burrow their way into the spider's insides. It bucked and roared, and sliced at them as it turned the human half, but couldn't get anything more than passing grazes on the wolves that cut but didn't kill.

Jack wanted to help, but any time he got close, the spider spun around again and swiped hard. With his blood shield protecting him, he'd survive a hit, but all it'd accomplish would be getting sent flying again.

The spider finally stopped bucking and spinning long enough to turn its human half again, and raise both arms, ready to take a big swing down at one of the wolves with both hands. Before it tried, a blur of motion cut through the mist, and slammed into the side of the spider's head. The spider's swings went wild, twitching randomly and slashing at nothing and everything around it.

Damien hung from his sword, both hands holding the handle tight, the long blade skewering the monster through the temple, all the way through. He'd put a lot more power into his jump than Jack had. But the monster wasn't dead. It swung its body in random directions, not swinging at anything in particular, but its death throes were still deadly as fuck, and Jack backed away again.

Okay, monster was dying, that was good. Carter was down and not getting up. Not good. He could still hear Clara and the others fighting ghosts off behind him. Not good. Help Carter, or help Clara and Sándor?

"Damien! Help them finish it off!" He spun around, and jogged toward Clara. The werewolves behind him continued to rip and tear into the spider monster, but it'd die eventually. It'd break apart into a bunch of smaller spiders, with the azlu's spirit half hidden inside one of them. Maybe they could catch it? No, not a chance in the mist. They'd have to find it and kill it again later, but for now, he had to save as many people as he could. And he knew he'd never forgive himself if something happened to Clara. And he hated that he knew he still felt that way about her.

He got maybe fifty feet before motion caught his eye. He spun around again, half expecting to find a giant spiderweb launched at him or something, but instead, he found the black, empty eyes of a ghost, and the glint of a knife.

“You killed the master!” Sabrina swung the knife down, and Jack sucked in a hard breath as the metal cut along his forehead. The only thing that stopped it from cutting deep into his skull, was reflexes and the blood shield. Whatever the fuck that ghost knife was made of, it cut through the blood with far more effectiveness than it had any right to. It was just like that time Avery had got him with her claws.

Sabrina had used the knife to kill ghosts. Apparently it could kill more than that.

“It was an accident!”

“Liar! Master Honors wouldn’t die to an accident!” She came at him again, swinging fast, and Jack backpedaled as best he could. Behind him, the sound of a flamethrower spewing fire in random directions only grew closer.

“He wanted to kill someone I loved, so I set the whole building on fire to stop him. I didn’t think—”

She half cackled, half snarled as she dove at him like she wanted to tackle him, and he rolled to the side. But the moment he was back on his feet, she dove again, forcing him to again duck. And again, she swung her knife at him, pushing him back toward Noah and the flames.

“You didn’t think fire would kill a vampire!? Well then this is going to be ironic!” Her manic laughter reached psycho levels as she pointed behind him, no doubt at the fire Noah was spewing everywhere. He didn’t dare look.

“That’s not irony!”

“What!?” She came in close and stabbed up for his guts. He sidestepped and risked a punch, and grinned as he felt knuckles smash into ghost flesh. As long as she was manifesting herself physically, a fight was a two-way street.

“Irony is when something extremely unlikely happens! A pilot dying in a plane crash isn’t ironic. A pilot having a random plane fall on his house and kill him while he’s sleeping would be ironic!” One perk about being a vampire he never truly appreciated, was getting to argue while fighting. No need to worry about breath management.

“Nerd!” She swung again, shoulder to hip, and he jumped back only far enough to keep the blade from piercing skin. His shirt and suit weren’t so lucky, getting a second cut through it. “How could you!? How could you kill the master!”

“Your master was a psychopath! A violent asshole!”

“The master was loving! He adored me!”

“Probably because you’re a fucking psychopath! And a violent asshole!”

She shrieked, mouth hanging open further than a human mouth could, and the noise forced him to squint as his ears struggled.

“You don’t deserve to live! Master’s grandchilde is a killer! A monster! Without the necklace, you’re just a monster!”

“What do you—”

“Black Blood told us! Told us everything! Master Honors had the curse, but he kept it controlled. Your sire had the curse, but he kept it controlled. You’re the first one to release it! You’re the monster!”

He'd told her everything, then. She went for the necklace first because it was his weakness. She didn't know what that meant.

It was his turn to snarl, and he stepped in closer to the ghost. She was freaky fast, almost as fast as Damien, and her body was hard to keep focus on with how it leaked the same mist they were fighting in. But he came in close enough to drive his fist into her face, and as she hovered back in some weird sort of ghost pain, complete with angry alien screams, he jumped toward her and again punched her, bringing a fist down and putting the power of the curse into it as hard as he could. He didn't have time for this.

As usual, the power and his bodyweight didn't get along, and he flew back from the impact. But so did she. Her ghost body broke apart from the punch, face literally breaking in half like a log to an ax, before she fell into the mist rolling, causing the mist to spread around her in waves.

"I'm not a monster."

He didn't wait to see her reaction. Hopefully having her face smashed apart would give him at least a few seconds of peace.

He managed another ten feet, before his body stopped working. A small glint between and above his eyes forced him to look up, and he groaned. That, was a knife.

"You killed the master!" Sabrina said, and she yanked the knife out of his skull as he fell into the mist. "You killed my love!" His face planted against the stone, and as torpor pulled him under, Sabrina stabbed him in the back again, and again, and again.

---

~~Beatrice~~

It wasn't the first time she'd been in Athalia's lair. By all accounts, it should have been awesome. An enormous cave that went straight down, with downward spiraling ramps of rock along the walls. At the bottom, a pile of bones. Lots, and lots, and lots of bones. The whole thing was super metal. And it was so dark, each step had to be carefully calculated. She'd survive falling. He'll, she could survive tripping and rolling down the whole damn spiral until she landed in the bones, vampire and all, but she'd break every bone in her body. No time to spend the next week in torpor healing.

Beside her floated the giant skeleton monster, Athalia. In some ways, she looked similar to Black Blood's supposed true body, a giant black skeleton. Similar roots in being super scary and shit, probably. Black Blood was some sort of spirit or god of death and the dead, and you didn't embody that much better than a black skeleton. And there were few things people feared more than death.

They didn't go far. Just as Triss was about to ask what the plan was, Athalia hovered over to a wide tunnel connected to the wall of the huge pit, and disappeared in blackness. Complete, utter, total fucking blackness. Triss followed as best she could, which wasn't very well.

"Uh, Athalia, I can't see shit."

"Just keep walking."

"Easy for you to say. Can you see?"

"Eshmaki like myself and Fiona can see in darkness, yes. We are darkness."

"Uh huh. Fiona's the biggest ray of sunshine I've ever met."

Athalia snorted on a quiet laugh. "Her Horror's body count is in the many thousands."

That was more than a little disturbing, actually.

“How’d someone like Fiona get a Horror so ... murderous?”

“The Horror comes to us in our dreams, and devours us. Becomes us. Fiona is not the sort to feel guilty for doing what comes naturally. Like a spider.”

“So ... Fiona’s dreams attracted a spider Horror, because they both lack guilt?”

The darkness chuckled quietly. “Or perhaps because spiders are happy creatures. Have you ever met an unhappy spider?”

Apparently Athalia found a bit of her shitty sense of humor when merged with her Horror.

“No,” Triss said.

“Do not judge things you do not understand.”

“Uh huh, thanks for the life advice. Now when are we—”

The darkness peeled away, and Triss stared on in awe, at the cave they stepped into.

It was huge. It was beyond huge. Endless mist covered the floor in a cave with walls so far and so big, she couldn’t contextualize how big they were. A thousand feet high? A mile? Titanic pillars of stone reached up from the ground to touch the ceiling, and once she dipped her head left and right to try and get a little sense of depth, she could only gawk. She might as well have been trying to see if she could move her head enough to make the moon move in the distance. It was too big and too far.

The whole place had a strange, eerie glow, subtle but there, something almost green, almost blue, despite the whole place having no real light source. The light was just ... there, quiet, and subdued, like it was afraid to grow brighter and reveal the secrets of the underworld.

In the distance, tiny green fireflies drifted around. She squinted and dipped her head left and right again. Nope, not fireflies. Bigger, and further.

“Holy shit,” she said.

Athalia sighed as she nodded. “Yeah.” She was back in her human form again, and looking just as overwhelmed by the sight before her as Triss.

“You know where the others are?”

“Yeah. That way.” She pointed to some place in the distance.

“Uh, you sure? Cause this all looks identical.”

“Sándor pointed it out to me before.”

“Uh huh. And you ... went there and visited it, physically, right?”

“ ... no.”

Triss groaned and buried her face in her hands. “We’re going to die.”

“No we’re not. Now sum—” She cut herself off as she took a step back, and looked directly ahead of them.

Triss almost asked what was the problem before her Beast announced the presence of another vampire. And their Beast was one she was intimately familiar with.

“Aaron?”

Maybe fifty feet in the distance, someone stood up from the mist, a normal looking white dude, average height, average build, and short blonde hair that was so predictable you almost didn't notice it. He wore the most typical blue jeans she'd ever seen, and a black t-shirt with absolutely nothing on it. The Gangrel gave the sheriff a run for 'most boring man on the planet'.

"Oh, it's you." He nodded slowly, face still deadpan as he slipped his hands into his jean pockets. "We weren't sure who'd come through."

Triss almost walked over to him, but halfway through her first step she noticed Athalia had taken a step back. The tunnel behind them was no longer a black, endless cave, but more of the same Great Below cave, and a rock face with some curvature to it that led nowhere. Athalia had closed her lair off, and looked like she was getting ready to open it again.

"Aaron, what're you doing here?" Triss asked.

The man frowned slightly before he looked up, turned to the side, and paced, as casual as ever. "What do you think?"

"I ... oh shit." She looked to Athalia, hoping to see something to prove her thoughts wrong. But of course not. Athalia looked at Aaron like he was a threat.

"You guessed it," he said. "So please, go back the way you came. We can talk when Jacob and Black Blood are done."

"Fucking shit, really? You? God damn it, Aaron! You're the one fucking person in the whole fucking city I expect to keep a level head!"

He winced and motioned for her to calm down. Which, of course, only made her fucking furious.

“I do have a level head. I’m not yelling or screaming in an underworld realm filled with angry ghosts. Notice the lights?”

She snarled at him, but she couldn’t help but look past him and up at the endless fog in the titanic, endless cave.

“The green lights?”

“The ghosts carry green lanterns when they’re out, drifting around. Not sure why. On some endless journey to find something, probably.”

She gulped. The green lights were blurry dots in the distance, but there were hundreds of them. Thousands. Okay, yeah, no yelling.

“So you know what Jacob’s up to.”

“Yeap,” he said.

“And you’re on board.”

“Of course.”

“Of course? He’s going to start a fucking ... I don’t know, a fucking apocalypse or something.”

The Gangrel sighed as he shook his head. “He’s going to fix it.”

“Fix it?”

“The world. It’s broken into pieces. He’s putting them back together.”

“Oh my fucking god, you sound like a cult member.”

Her fellow witch shrugged, and took a step closer. “Yeah, I guess I do. But is it really a cult, if they’re right? You know other realms exist.”

“Yeah, I do.”

“You know there are barriers separating them.”

“I guess.”

“And chasms, separating others. That’s step two of the plan.”

“Oh my fucking god, there’s a phase two?”

“Yes,” he said. “First step is tearing down the walls, and bringing the realms we can touch back together. The spiritual, the physical realm, the dream, and the ... remnants.” He gestured around them. “There are other realms too, attached to these that we don’t know about. The tears will spread and bring them together, too. And then, we bridge the chasm to reach the realms beyond, and combine everything.”

“The fuck is in the realms beyond?”

“You know what.”

She sucked in a breath through clenched teeth. That’s what Jacob meant, when he said there was a way she could see Julias again, without having to resurrect him.

“Why the fuck are you telling me this? This is some pretty typical villain monologuing dumb shit.”

He smiled, and even chuckled a little. Rare, for Aaron.

“Jacob thought you deserved to know. And besides, villain? Beatrice, just think about what Jacob and Black Blood are doing for two seconds, and tell me I’m playing the role of villain, here.”

She opened her mouth, and slowly shut it. Christ, right back to wondering if she was doing the right thing, trying to stop Jacob.

“So everything will just be ... merged?”

“Yeap.”

“No more death? No more life? Everyone just ... together, all the time?”

“We hope.”

“You hope!?”

He slowly nodded. “There’s no way to tell exactly how things will go, not for sure. But it has to be better than—”

“Than what?”

“Than everything.” He took another step toward her. “You look me in the eye and tell me losing Julias wasn’t like going through Hell on Earth.”

She frowned, but she looked away before she could stop herself.

“That’s ... not fucking fair.”

“Think about it. You get to see Julias again. Jacob gets to see Minerva again. Sándor gets to see his wife and kid again. Everyone’s lost someone.” He looked to Athalia. “You, get to see your daughter again, in a place where monsters and humans and life and death don’t even exist anymore. She’ll have no more reason to hate you.”

Athalia stared at Aaron, but even her icy expression broke.

“My daughter...”

“No more life, no more death, no more pain. We get to see the ones we lost, be with them, and this life and death cycle, this bullshit of nothing but misery will be over.”

“Jesus fucking christ, Aaron,” Triss said. “I ... I thought you...”

It was his turn to look away and wince.

“Like I said, everyone’s lost someone.”

“I thought you hated your family.”

“You don’t know anything about my relationship with my family.”

“I fucking asked! I asked, and you never told me a damn thing.”

He smiled. “I suppose you did. And I suppose I didn’t.”

Athalia let out a snarl as she finally took steps forward, or more like stomps, and tightened her fists at her sides. “We don’t have time for this. My daughter is dead, and nothing Jacob or Black Blood does will bring her back.”

The man sighed, and leaned forward slightly, putting his weight on the balls of his toes.

“I didn’t think you’d listen. Beatrice, maybe, but not you.”

Triss got between them and held out her hands. “Aaron, we just want to save Jack, and then talk to Jacob.”

“Says you,” Athalia said.

God damn it, not now. Triss threw the woman a glare, and Athalia returned it, not backing down. If she decided to fight Aaron, she was going to rip the poor guy into bits.

“Aaron,” Triss said, “for your own good, just step aside, okay? I mean, fuck me, what if it’d been the Prince or the sheriff who came through Athalia’s tunnel? The fuck can you do to stop them?”

He grinned. “I wonder.”

She blinked at the man, and the growing presence of the Beast inside him. Far as she knew, far as anyone knew, Aaron was a young vampire, maybe twenty-five years embraced. No one knew who his sire was, but that wasn't uncommon for vampires. Much as the Prince ran a tight ship, people had children they didn't tell people about, or young vampires came to the city and found sanctuary in a covenant.

But as Aaron smiled at her, the presence inside him grew larger, and larger. Oh shit.

"I doubt I could beat the sheriff or the Prince in a fight," he said. "It was never the goal. Just, slow them down, and let the boss finish what he needs to."

"Dude, you could fucking die."

He shrugged. "Won't matter, in the end. Dead, alive, it'll all be the same soon enough."

"Holy shit dude, you're..." She sighed as she looked down, and gently rubbed the fake candy bracelet with a thumb. "Tell me one thing."

"Sure." God damn it, the way he was so open with her about all this made everything about it even harder.

"Your girlfriend. She exist?"

He smiled at her with the most gentle, bittersweet smile she'd ever seen. "Yes."

She winced again, and ground her teeth until they clicked. All this time, all this fucking time, the dude had been playing sleeper agent. Well, not really, but he'd been hiding shit from them, hiding how close he actually was to Jacob, hiding a lot of shit. And he even had a girlfriend, someone he cared about! He was still going to go through with this, like, some sort of mindless devoted cultist working for a god of death and his right hand priest?

That was fucking twisted.

“Get out of my way, Aaron.”

“No.”

She took a step toward him, and that was enough. The Gangrel burst forward in speed, more speed than a Gangrel should have, and knocked her over. More than knocked her over, she screamed as something sharp cut along her body. Landing on her back on stone wasn't fun, and losing track of everything as she rolled under mist less so.

She got back to her feet in time to see Aaron, or what was once Aaron, getting thrown fifty feet by the shadow of a giant skeletal arm, a shadow that came out of Athalia's body. Athalia summoning shadows of her Horror, Triss had expected. Aaron being covered in spikes, standing taller and lankier than before, and having two huge bone spike hands coming out of his mutated wrists, she hadn't.

“What the fu—”

Aaron jumped out of the mist and came running, this time at Athalia again, and really fucking fast, like a sprinting cheetah. But he didn't run on four feet. He ran on two, leaning forward, with a fleshy tail covered in fucked up bone spikes swinging left and right behind him. His mouth was royally fucked up, filled with giant teeth that cut through his own lips. His clothes were in tatters, and chunks of his flesh were stretched and protruding in strange places. An extra arm came out of his side, small, with a normal hand armed with ridiculously long claws.

Gangrels as young as Aaron couldn't manage transformations like that. He'd transformed into something out of The Thing, like, possessed human alien zombie monster hybrid what-the-fuck shit. That was ... That was Garry-level shit.

Even Athalia stared in surprise, and almost didn't respond to the fucking weird monster's crazy speed as he rushed her. But Beatrice wasn't far, and she threw herself into his side hard enough the both of them tumbled over the stone. If he hit Athalia with one of those arms, he might cut the damn woman in half, and no way she'd survive that. Hell, he might cut Triss in half, no matter how much vitae she pumped through herself to harden her body. She wouldn't survive that, either.

"Aaron," she said through clenched teeth, "don't make me fucking kill you!"

Aaron the movie monster clicked his fucked up teeth together, and spread out some of the weird bone spikes coming out of his cheeks, like an insect working uneven, mutated mandibles. Whether the man could even talk anymore, she couldn't tell. He didn't try. His head twitched, snapping side to side with disgusting speed, almost like Mary's ghost did when she got twitchy.

He looked like the sort of monster you killed with a shotgun when it rushed you, and she didn't have a shotgun.

Aaron rushed her again, and again the speed was crazy. They were supposed to be of similar age, but her Beast told her otherwise. Beasts always sized each other up, a sort of silent judging of each other's hidden aura, auras that could be suppressed. Aaron, apparently, had been suppressing his, far too well. Crúac ritual, maybe? Or maybe a ritual to get this strong? Whatever he'd done, she wasn't going up against an equal. This fucker would kick her ass easily.

Except she had backup.

Before Aaron reached her, Athalia flew into the air, literally, and came down on him with two giant shadowy arms. Squash. Aaron disappeared under the mist as the two hands punched down on him hard enough Triss felt it through the stone. The arms disappeared a second later, and Athalia landed beside where Aaron was. But he wasn't. The mist was too damn thick and didn't behave like mist should, same as Mary's mist. It didn't move out of the way fast enough. And when Athalia kicked at where Aaron supposedly was, she found nothing.

He came up out of the mist behind her, and swiped at her back with his two claws. Triss ran for him, but they were too far. Athalia surprised her though. Without hesitation, she rolled forward and away from Aaron, and came back up away from the vampire facing him, snarling. He'd nicked her back enough to draw blood, but only just.

Aaron dove at her, but Beatrice was close enough this time, and she again collided with him. She held on, and the two of them rolled through the mist and over the stone, hitting a few rocks and getting more than a few scrapes.

Holding onto a Gangrel transformed and squirming and slashing, all covered in spikes and teeth and whatnot, was not easy. Random parts of Aaron stabbed into her arms and legs, cutting through skin and muscle. But she was a fucking Nosferatu, and strong as fuck. Even a Gangrel transformed into some weird horror movie monster couldn't get out of her grip. And she had claws, so she returned the favor, clutching Aaron's arms to his sides and sinking her claws into his stomach and chest. More screams. If there were any nearby ghosts, they were on the way.

When a bone spike somehow managed to stab her in the leg, she let go and rolled away, clenching her teeth through the pain. She tried to get up, but her leg didn't appreciate it, and she fell back on her ass as Aaron disappeared into the mist again.

A grunt and scream told her he'd found Athalia.

She forced herself to her feet, pumping vitae through her leg until it sealed itself well enough to work again. Athalia and Aaron were hidden, somewhere under the mist, but she could hear them, roaring and shrieking at each other. She dragged her damn leg and speed-walked toward them, but slowed as she looked up and around.

It was getting darker. A lot darker.

Another scream told her Aaron had hurt Athalia, badly. Sure enough, she spotted a few flicks of blood flying through the air, and she dragged herself over to where they came from. It got darker again. Another grunt, and a huge shadow came crashing down through the mist. Another alien shriek, before it got darker again, until Triss couldn't see anything.

"Triss," a raspy voice said, "hide."

For a second, she thought it might have been Mary going all banshee on her, but she was still in the bracelet. Maybe Aaron, talking with that crazy mouth?

Aaron stood up, looking left and right, bits of blood on his fucked up face and arms. He spotted Triss, but looked away quickly. Looking for Athalia, then. He hadn't killed her.

It wasn't his voice, then. It was Athalia's Horror's.

Triss wrapped herself in her Cloak, the best Cloak she could manage, and crouched until only the top of her head stuck out of the mist. Watching Aaron twist and turn, looking for the woman he'd just been stabbing, was freaky as fuck. He really embodied the scary alien monster vibe, a complete one-eighty compared to the Aaron she knew. The Aaron she thought she knew. Seeing the calm, calculating, logical man side with Jacob had her wondering a lot more than she wanted to, too.

Save Jack now. Worry about Jacob later. If the man made a good case, maybe Triss would agree with him, and maybe even Athalia would? But for the moment, it didn't matter.

Slash marks cut through a nearby boulder, and Triss almost screamed at the random explosion of sound. No Athalia, but then again, Triss couldn't see shit in darkness this thick, just a slight silhouette of the mist, the boulders, and Aaron maybe fifty feet away.

Aaron spun around, looking at the explosion of violence. Another slash hit stone, a boulder closer to Aaron. Triss held very still, statue mode, not turning her head or fake breathing or anything. Aaron spun around again. Mistake. His gross spiky tail and weird alien limbs went flying as another slash cut through the air, this time right on top of him, hitting him in the back.

All blurs. The only visible thing was shadow, and darker shadows. The green lights in the distance were gone. The mist and fog were just a slightly different shade of black and gray. How the fuck could Athalia see anything? And where the fuck was she? This wasn't in the dream world or whatever, so she still had her physical, human body around, probably lying under the mist.

If Athalia made a mistake, she'd slice herself into a chunky mess of limbs.

Jack had told her about this, about Athalia doing this in the dream, that time he'd gone on a rescue mission to save Clara, Eric, and Jessy. Athalia had vanished, the area went dark, and she'd started slicing up things randomly, with enough power and speed anyone she hit was probably dead. And apparently, she couldn't aim for shit when doing it.

Aaron got back up, a few enormous cut marks along his back, deep enough they exposed bone, or at least maybe, considering how dark everything was. With the weird shrieking sound he made, it was a wonder he managed to get back up at all. His tail snapped around behind him loud enough it made noise, almost like a whip crack, and he clicked his mouth mandible things together as he took a deep breath through his nose. Smelling the air. Oh shit, he was looking for her body, and unlike vampires, living bodies had scents and heartbeats.

He took a step in a random direction, slowly. Another slash came down, but missed Aaron, slicing the ground beside him hard and fast enough it left a huge wake in the mist. He held still, waited for the mist to settle, and took another slow step. Again, a slash down at the ground near him, but missing him. It'd been big enough, and fast enough, to cut a car into four pieces.

Aaron crouched low, and only the tips of his spikes poked up through the mist, as the Gangrel went into prowl mode. Shit shit shit, he figured it out.

The sound of rocks ripping apart filled Triss's ears. One of the random slashes hit a little too close to Triss, and she almost threw herself to the side. Hold, very, still. That was the plan. Except now Athalia couldn't see Aaron, and he was on the hunt for her real body.

Aaron stood up, with a woman held by the throat with his new, gross hand and arm coming out of his side. Shit fucking shit! He drew back his one of his spike-tipped arms, and—

And lost it. The arm came flying off, and Aaron let out a guttural shriek as he let go of Athalia and fell away. Before he could so much as turn around, the other arm came off, and Aaron fell back as his screams jumped an octave. Triss couldn't see what the fuck happened, but something blurry in the dark had got him from behind. Athalia's Horror?

The darkness around them shattered, exposing the distant green lights, the unending fog, and the overwhelming walls of the colossal cave.

Athalia stood up and backed away from Aaron, panting, bleeding, but alive. Okay, good to move then. Triss ran over to her, and the two of them looked down at the growling vampire as he knelt, staring up at them with his alien face, both shoulders missing arms. He still had the weird arm sticking out of his side, but he wouldn't be doing much with that.

Mary floated behind Aaron, looking like the Grim Reaper with how her black eyes were furious with rage, and her mouth was full of sharp teeth.

"Holy shit," Triss said. "When'd you ... How'd you—"

"I can touch things here. I can ... hurt ... kill..." Mary clenched her fists in front of her. Bits of Kindred blood dripped from them, before burning away to ash. With a raspy snarl, she hovered around until she was in front of Aaron, and she glared down at him all the more. "He almost killed Athalia. We should kill him."

Good thing Sam wasn't around to hear this.

"In his defense," Triss said, "Athalia was trying to kill him, too."

Slowly, Aaron transformed back into his normal body. The extra arm, the alien face and messed up spikes, the tail, it all disappeared. His clothes were full of holes, but in better condition than they should have been. He'd figured out how to not ruin his clothes doing crazy transformations. He was definitely older than he'd told her.

“I guess I lose,” he said. “Didn’t expect Mary.” Bastard didn’t even have the god damn courtesy to look upset.

“Damn fucking right, you asshole. Christ, you trick me for years, team up with Jacob and Black Blood to break the whole damn world —”

“Fix.”

“Whatever! And you were straight up going to kill whoever came through this, uh, burrow or tunnel or whatever.” She gestured behind her at the cave wall Athalia had tunneled them through.

He shook his head as he looked down. “Jacob didn’t expect you. And I wouldn’t want to hurt his favorite student.”

Favorite student. She hissed as she looked away, and paced around in the mist.

“You ... fucking asshole.”

“Sorry,” he said. “Boss’s orders. Slow people down.”

“God damn it, Aaron. I—”

“We kill him or leave him?” Athalia asked.

“I don’t want to kill him.”

“He’s a threat.”

“He’s not a threat anymore. He has no arms.” And if Mary could do that because they were in the Great Below, the fuck could the other, stronger ghosts do?

“He’s a Gangrel, right? Frustratingly good at regrowing limbs.” Athalia wasn’t wrong. Gangrels were good at that cause of all the body morphing shit, and Aaron was apparently older and stronger than Triss or anyone else knew. “So unless you have a stake on you, we should—”

Mary grabbed Aaron, earning a pained grunt from the man, and then a pained scream, as the ghost ripped off one of his legs. And then the other, each leg taking her a few moments of concentrated effort, like a human ripping apart a piece of cardboard. Holy sweet mother of fucking god, Mary was strong. Maybe they didn't have to fear the other ghosts. Maybe the other ghosts had to fear her?

At a certain point, Aaron stopped screaming, and his eyes rolled up as the man thankfully slipped away into torpor.

“Jesus fucking christ, Mary. You—”

“We're running out of time. My brother is out there, maybe dying, maybe dead.” She tossed the armless, legless body into the mist, near a big boulder. Triss had seen dogs treat sticks they'd found in gutters with more care. “Your friend is alive, right?”

“Kinda, yeah. I mean, if he'd been younger, you'd have probably just killed him.” Young neonates like Triss couldn't exactly survive losing all four limbs. Maybe a Ventrue or Gangrel could, but even then it'd be a close call. “He's older than I thought. He'll be stuck in torpor until someone feeds him some blood.”

“Lucky for him,” Mary said, more of that inhuman rasp coming through, almost like Athalia's Horror's voice. “Let's go.” And without so much as a glance back, the young woman drifted forward in the direction Athalia had suggested when they first arrived.

Triss and Athalia glanced at each other. Athalia looked tired, panting and sweating, some blood dripping down her side and leg, but even she noticed what Triss noticed. Mary wasn't scared or jittery or anything anymore. She was angry, and determined. And Triss wasn't sure if that was better or worse.

Athalia followed after her, but Triss took a moment, and squatted down beside Aaron's body. His limbs were already gone, disintegrating into tiny flames that turned his flesh into small piles of ash. Seeing the guy without any limbs was a new kind of sick and twisted, and she was thankful she didn't have a pulse or working stomach organ, or she'd have probably puked at the sight of him. But, he was alive, shriveled and drained, but still Aaron. All someone had to do, was give him a few pints of blood until he'd generated his limbs, and he'd wake up, in a week or five.

"Fucking ... fuck. Aaron, you ... fucking asshole. You could have talked to me ... God damn it, you fucking idiot, you could have fucking talked to me." She knew the dude hated his family from when he'd been alive, but was any of that true? Like he said, she didn't know shit about him, because he refused to tell her.

In the end, she didn't know the guy. But that wasn't quite true, either. She knew him ... a little. Quiet dude, read introspective books, thought about shit day-in day-out all the time without pause. That wasn't a lie, right?

She stood up and sighed. He wasn't dead, no need for drama. Hopefully a ghost wouldn't find him while they were gone.

"You better still be alive when I get back." She jogged after Athalia, and a very scary ghost lady.

---

~~The Ripper~~

He turned his head enough to get a peek at the bitch stabbing him. Her face hadn't reformed. She literally had a crater through the center of her head, so the damn thing was split in half, but even like that he could see the crazy expression in her eyes. She stabbed his back again and again, cackling and screaming, and once her mouth fully reformed, he could see the wide, psycho smile.

Damn. That ghost knife really fucking burned.

“Lady,” he said, grinning as he looked down, and pushed himself off the ground, “if you weren’t already dead, you’d soon wish you were.”

“You—” She shrieked again as he jumped up to his feet. “You—”

“Black Blood didn’t tell you why I wear the necklace, did he?”

“Weakness! Your weakness!” Her face finished reforming, and she came at him again.

He stepped into her, faster than that idiot Jack could, and drove his fist through her chest and out through her back. He expected it to feel like punching through mist. Instead, her body resisted, like jelly strong enough it could have been flesh. But his fist still went through her, and her screams became endless as she collapsed back into the mist again, a hole through her body. Eventually, they stopped.

He touched his forehead. Yep, she’d put a tiny slit clean through it. Fucking hilarious. The stab wounds burned like all fuck, more of that icy pain that told him they weren’t regular wounds. Hell, even moving his limbs felt weird, considering he had a small hole in his brain. But his Kindred body adapted quickly enough. If she’d been smart, she’d have stabbed him in the heart, where the weird ghost wound would have probably put him in torpor for days. Stupid bitch.

He laughed, and laughed, and looked around him at his options. What to do, what to do. Sabrina didn’t get back up this time; he’d hurt her a lot. Finally, a bit of peace and quiet from her god damn stupid screaming.

Don’t you fucking do anything!

Funny, isn't it, Jack? I kept expecting some big, emotional moment to be how you let me out again, like the first time. Like the time you killed Joe. Ripped his head clean off, remember? You did that, not me. Maybe you are a monster.

Shut. The fuck. Up.

But hey, if getting hit or stabbed in the head does it, then that works for me. You should probably watch your head more. Now, you have to watch all your friends die.

You fucking—

The Ripper laughed, and forced down the voice in his head. That's all Jack was anymore, just a voice, one he could crush and bury. Christ, how long had it been since he'd come out to play. Way too long. And all that time, he'd been waiting, preparing, building his strength, getting stronger. The body was his, this time. He wouldn't let go of it, not again. There wasn't some giant elephant bitch to crush him into a pancake to force it, this time.

He licked his lips, and looked to Clara. Still transformed, the huge wolf fought off half a dozen ghosts that swirled around her. They'd figured out werewolf claws hurt. Sándor was in there too, back to back with Noah and taking swings at any ghost that got too close.

Oh god, this was too perfect.

“David!” The Ripper turned and looked back to the pack. “David! Get over here. I need a distraction.”

David, surrounded by his pack, stood over the dying corpse of the spider monster. It hadn't broken apart yet. When it did, Avery and everyone would be very distracted.

David looked to him, then back to Avery. When she nodded, David ran over to Jack, temporarily getting on all fours before almost skidding to a stop beside him. Werewolves really were titanic creatures.

It was a simple plan: kill everyone. He was confident the Prince, the sheriff, maybe Elaine, someone would come looking for him, and he could explain only he'd survived. And then he could kill everyone back in the physical world when they let their guard down.

But in order to kill everyone, he had to get rid of the biggest threats first. The dude with the flamethrower, and then Sándor. The gargoyle fucker would probably be an easier fight than last time, since they weren't in his lair, or the dream world or whatever. But he also had a brain now, and fighting a super strong, giant gargoyle monster with a brain might actually be harder than his battle with the dumb, mindless brute had been. So, sneak attack him, or Noah? And what about Damien? He'd probably be able to tell The Ripper was in control if he used Auspex on him. And what if the sheriff did the same?

Whatever, he'd wing it. What fun was there in violence if you over-planned? It was so much better to go with the flow, and kill anything you could get your hands on. And in the Great Below, they had nowhere to go until rescue came.

“Let's go.”

David nodded, and the two of them ran toward Clara. Once they arrived, Clara wasted no time, and ran up to David, ghosts chasing after her. The two fell into a dance they both knew well, David slipping past her and crashing into the ghosts chasing her, and her dodging his pounce with ease.

Clara skidded and turned, and chased after David, only to pounce past him and get another ghost that'd been chasing her. And just like Sándor and Noah, she got back to back with him, and systematically fought off and shredded the ghosts.

“Noah!” The Ripper said, in his best Jack voice. One part pussy, one part entitled know-it-all nerd, one part superiority-complex Ventrue. “Stop with the fire!”

Noah nodded as he let go of the trigger. The igniter was still on, but he stopped spewing liquid flame everywhere. The way the flame interacted with the Great Below was interesting, burning beneath the mist and causing the unnatural stuff to avoid the flames. The ghosts themselves reacted even more oddly. A few of them were on fire, literally, but the liquid flame dripped off their bodies without making any sort of dent in their mass. Some of them dispersed to escape the flame. Some didn't bother.

It certainly hurt them, though. They screamed and roared, just not with the musical agony the Ripper would have hoped to hear. Burning alive was pretty much the most painful way to die, far as he knew, and whatever the ghosts were suffering didn't reach nearly the same level. Ah well, at least it was hurting them enough they avoided the fire.

Spirit magic bullshit was the only thing that'd really kill them. Spirit magic ghost knife. Spirit magic werewolf claws. If it wasn't fancy spirit magic crap, it wouldn't do much to a ghost, or a spirit. Which meant that Sabrina bitch would be coming for him again. He'd deal with her after he'd gotten rid of Noah and Sándor.

“Get lost!” The Ripper yelled at one ghost, thankfully one not on fire, and charged the bastard from behind. One solid punch to the back of the head was enough to have his skull collapse in, and the ghost fell into the mist and dispersed.

The nearby ghosts looked at the Ripper, apparently a little surprised he'd come back. They looked to the distance where the werewolves were ripping apart the dying azlu, and then around, as if looking for someone to tell them what to do. No one did. The ghosts roared with frustration, some even spat curses, and they all flew away.

Clara and David stayed with each other, still back to back, and moved closer to Noah and Sándor. Everyone was panting, exhausted, and the breathers were sweating. Everyone was an easy target.

“You guys okay?” Jack asked, carefully stepping around strips of fire on the stone. It was really fucking hard, finding the right balance of pussy bullshit to say, but he felt he did pretty good. He’d been listening to it for years.

“Yeah,” Noah said. “Fire didn’t do much but scare them off, even when I hit them directly.”

“Shame.”

Noah raised a brow. “And the others?”

“Carter took a big hit. Might be dead. Avery and the others are fine, though.” Nodding, the Ripper came in closer, and stood beside the man as Noah looked off to where the azlu had been. A little closer. A little closer. Slightly behind. Act like you’re checking their six. Perfect. He’d have preferred to kill Sándor first, but he had to work with what he got.

That sweet, sweet moment, when everything goes right. Sándor was looking toward the azlu, now that the ghosts weren’t swarming them. Noah was relaxing, and lowering the nozzle on the flamethrower. Clara and David were walking toward their pack. Everyone had their back to Jack the Ripper. It was all perfect.

The Ripper drew back a fist, aimed it for the back of Noah’s head, and—

Got punched in the face by Sándor. The Ripper rolled with a groan and came back up on his feet, snarling as he touched where the bastard had punched him. A pretty damn hard punch, too, something the gargoyle's Horror could have done, not him.

“Sándor!?” Clara said as she spun around, and looked between the bastard and the Ripper.

“Well, fuck me.” Sighing, the Ripper wiped off the shoulders of his suit, and rubbed his hands together as he looked between the three werewolves and the nightmare monster. “Dude, you ruined it. I was going to punch his head clean off. You were all gonna turn around, shocked, and just as you realized what was happening, I was going punch you in the guts and rip out your innards.” He pointed at Sándor, and twiddled his index finger toward his stomach. “How'd you know it was me?”

Sándor made the tiniest frown a face could make, but said nothing. Because of course he said nothing. Fucking asshole was ruining the game.

The Ripper could have tried to keep up the facade. Kept trying to be Jack, and convince Sándor he was wrong. He could have played the long game, looked for the perfect opportune moment to make as big, and dramatic a revelation as he could. Kill them all in the most poetic, perfect way. Alas, real life wasn't a story. Sometimes you had to make due, and roll with the punches. That was fine. He could take a punch.

The three werewolves spread out slightly, finally realizing what'd happened. With two of them transformed, they'd be a problem. Best deal with them, first.

The Ripper licked a fang, grinned, and offered Clara a tiny finger wave. “David, old friend. Would you kindly—”

David froze, the command ringing throughout his whole being. Poor guy. He never knew about the command the Ripper left in his mind, all those months ago when he'd Dominated him. So much for being the spirit guru of his pack.

He turned, and sank his fangs into Clara's neck. She roared as she fell back, but she couldn't dislodge the man, and the werewolves fell into the mist as David tore her open with his claws.

---

~~Antoinette~~

Jen glared at her, but the glare faded into nothingness, and her eyes closed, as paralysis and torpor took her.

"Necessary?" Daniel asked, as he gently set the woman on the bed in the cell, before joining Antoinette in the hall. Scully stayed with Jen, the bird having come to the conclusion that she was to protect Jen, as if Antoinette were not trustworthy. The strange ways a crow's mind, an already intelligent species, interacted with the gift of Kindred unlife, was quite interesting. Pets given unlife often became almost robotic with their newfound intelligence the taint gave. The crows, on the other hand, still held personalities of their own.

Something for her fellow dragons to research later, research likely already done. She had other worries.

"Prudent."

Her sheriff nodded as he followed her, and the two of them descended once again into the deepest layers of her Elysium Tower.

"You are concerned for Jack?"

"Of course I am concerned for my love. But ultimately, I am more concerned for the city, and the world at large."

“I know, but—”

“Enough, Daniel. Do not distract me.” This conversation was ridiculous, beyond cliché, and she would not entertain it. They had far larger worries.

It was Daniel’s attempt to console her, she knew. Alas, the man would forever have the social grace of an ox. She appreciated his desire to settle her nerves, but it was best she not think about Jack and the predicament he was in. The Prince and her sheriff had a ritual to complete, and until it was done, she would encase her heart in ice.

Deep down in her tower, in the chamber she had painted in thousands of symbols with blood, the Prince and her sheriff withdrew their blades, and began the second phase.

The kine dangling from chains screamed and shrieked. Antoinette did not enjoy the noise, and she tuned it out as best as possible. The fact these kine were little better than scum did not make such butchery enjoyable, and forever she would be unable to process how some Kindred could revel in such violence. But it had to be done, and to her chagrin, the sacrifices had to be awake for the act. Pain, and fear, were components in the ritual.

Intestines splattered over the floor, and the hanging sacrifices, mouths gagged and eyes covered, twisted and writhed in absolute agony. The Prince had not engaged in such carnage in many decades, but the ritual was clear. The symbols had been painted in the blood of the dead, and now, the fuel was to be life represented: more blood, and the organs. The ancient Egyptians knew far more than the modern era realized.

“Now,” Antoinette said, “if you would be so kind. I do not have your book or knife; Beatrice hid them well. But I believe I have conducted the ritual correctly according to my records of the book, for a task as large as this, and this knife will suffice.” She held out the blood soaked knife, an ancient thing, stashed away in her vaults. A knife baptized in the blood of an innocent child. “I had originally planned to perform this ritual myself. How fortuitous Beatrice left you where she had. And I believe you are the expert in this art?”

Elen managed a small grin up at the Prince from her wheelchair, reached out with a slow, unsteady hand, and took the knife.

Chapter 169

~~Natasha~~

“Um, w-what do we do?”

The werewolves looked between each other, before settling on Arturo. With them all still in their Gauru forms, the physical differences between Matthew and Arturo were even more pronounced, with Matthew towering over Brianna and Arturo by a nearly a foot. But it was Arturo they looked to for a decision.

And then Arturo looked down at her.

“Run?”

Welp, looked like she'd be making the decision after all.

She groaned, rubbed her eyes with her palms, and ran over to Eric. He was still digging through the rubble, looking for Jessy. But considering there was a giant mountain of red blood on the other side of the biggest pile of rubble trying to kill them, and they all knew a red kraken lurked underneath, Jessy could wait.

“Eric, we have to go.”

“No. Jessy.”

“Eric! She'll b-be fine! She'll be safe, hidden!” God, please, let her be safe. “We have to go!”

Eric snapped his head and stared down at her, rage in his wolf eyes. For a second, she got ready to dodge a claw swipe that could probably cut her into ribbons, but none came. The werewolf took a few, deep breaths, fought for control, and won. Eventually he nodded, and gestured down the alley toward South Side, opposite the direction they'd originally been moving in.

“This way? Closest tear. Casino.”

Right, a tear, one that led out of the spirit world and into the ghost place. It was in the basement of one of the casinos here in the spirit world, but the spirits didn't use it, as if they didn't want to end up in the Great Below.

Tash didn't want to go there, either. Damien and Jack told her plenty about the Great Below and how scary it'd been. The story about what Sabrina had done to those other ghosts also sealed the image of how deadly a place it was. But, it was less scary than dealing with Red Tide.

“Okay. Let's go.”

God, if Jessy died because of this, she was going to kill herself. Or Michael would do it for her.

The four werewolves dashed down the alley, Tash following behind Eric, and Flow behind them. Red Tide chased after them with all the subtlety of a monsoon, and Tash squeaked as the earth trembled underneath her. This wasn't like the time it'd followed them into a cathedral. This was like a scene from a movie, a giant river crashing through the streets and bulldozing over every car, pushing them over and dragging them along with the waves of red.

The only reason the red river didn't reach them, was they stuck to the alley. They ran past building after building as they headed back toward South Side, and Red Tide destroyed every building on the way, one after the other. It was a constant earthquake, bricks and concrete and whatever else the old buildings were made of crashing into the water Flow left behind it. But most of the sound and vibration came from the much, much larger spirit, its own body burying the area in destruction.

Nearby spirits ran for their lives. Spirits of rats, crows, flying things that glowed and probably represented electricity or handheld devices, things on wheels or made of asphalt, snake-like things that belonged in casinos, everything panicked and ran or flew, as Tash and her friends left Devil's Corner, and ran into South Side. There weren't any cars, nothing that'd have been a very temporary thing in the physical world, but benches, lampposts, power lines that Dolareido still hadn't bothered burying, all were there, twisted modern versions that were simultaneously slick, and warped to point toward the center of South Side, the economic center of Dolareido. All roads led to Rome, and they followed the path as the giant spirit followed after them.

"It's destroying everything!" Tash said. "I thought they w-weren't allowed to destroy the city!"

"It's bound," Flow yelled from behind, pouring over the street as it followed them, but keeping its human half formed and ahead of its watery body. "Black Blood is forcing it to take actions against its nature."

"Twisted," Matthew said. Even running at full speed, the huge werewolf managed to control his breath enough to speak. Easy for Flow and Tash, not so easy for the werewolves.

"Anyway we can use that against it?" she asked, weaving around a bench. "You were g-gonna use a ban against Street-Tail King, right!?"

"Street-Tail King was a weakling," Flow said, voice even steadier than Tash's. It didn't feel fear. "Compared to Red Tide. Red Tide's bans are likely connected to violence, and not something we could easily exploit. And we still don't know its banes."

Banes, right. Bans were rules spirits had to follow, defined by their nature. Banes were things that could hurt them. What could be used to hurt a giant incarnation of Dolareido's bloody, violent side?

Probably something like, the pistol of a kine who once worked for the mob, and then swore off violence when they met someone they wanted to marry, or have children with, or something else equally as dramatic and powerful. Which meant, Tash and her friends were fucked.

The alley shrank as the buildings grew taller and bigger. The deeper they got into South Side, the less room the structures provided, as everything was meant to direct pedestrian traffic into the buildings, the casinos, the bars, the clubs. Eventually they came to a solid wall, and had no choice but to steer toward the street, onto one of the wide sidewalks.

Now Red Tide was only fifty feet behind them, and the noise was overwhelming. Tash jumped over another bench and looked behind her, before snapping her head back and running faster. It was getting closer. Giant red tentacles stuck out of the pouring crimson waves, and smashed left and right against the buildings they ran past. Sign lights shattered, and huge glass windows, bigger and exaggerated versions of the ones in Dolareido, exploded into millions of pieces. The street was four lanes wide, the sidewalks massive so they could handle the busy city, and most of the buildings on the street had some distance between them and the sidewalk. Red Tide was large enough its flooding waves hit it all, while each tentacle smashed anything they could with reckless abandon.

A bit of its squid-like face poked up from the front wave, a wave of red water as high as a small building showing hints of the strange mouth and enormous teeth of the monster. Not good not good.

“There,” Brianna said, and she pointed to one of the casinos. “Can cross to other casino here.”

They all turned on a dime and ran through the front entrance spinning door.

Dolareido was a strange place in the spirit world. Tash knew that already, and had expected to see some weirdness in a place dedicated to pleasure and gambling.

Nothing could have prepared her for the sheer insanity of Devil's Blood. She'd had peeks into some strange buildings in the spirit world before, but the Devil's Blood casino was one of the larger, more important casinos in Dolareido. In retrospect, maybe its connection to the spirit world was why the owner changed the name, a century ago. There were lights everywhere, shining and powerful, burying areas in white and gold beams. The walls were lined with gold. The gambling machines and tables were made of gold. The chairs were made of gold. Cushions looked like they were made of expensive silk, the color of blood.

In the center of the gigantic room, was a fountain. Three gold statues of men held up a massive gold bowl over their heads, and red water flowed down over their perfect bodies, while three women statues on their knees gave the men some very deep blowjobs. The blood, or red water hopefully, continued down the men's bodies onto the women, over their hair, and down into another giant bowl filled with red where the ladies knelt. That was not the version of the fountain in the physical world.

It was such an extreme display, Tash paused to stare at it. But the sound of street and metal tearing apart behind her sparked her awake, and she ran up to the ticket booth. Gold bars blocked the way into the casino.

“Let us through!”

The spirit in the booth was, predictably, also made of gold. It was humanoid, androgynous, and wearing necklaces, bracelets, and all sorts of body jewelry also made of gold. A flat face, lacking defining features except for a very scary mouth full of teeth. And for some reason, a red see-through sun visor, the sort a ... a ... horse gambler might wear at the racetrack? Dolareido had no racetrack! But, it did succinctly paint the image of something that embodied gambling.

“Sorry, need a ticket,” it said, voice monotone and almost robotic.

“We d-d-don’t have a ticket! We—” She jumped aside as Matthew tore ahead, and ripped through the bars, metal breaking away to his claws with loud snaps. Gold wasn’t a durable metal, but you didn’t go tearing through it like paper either, especially not in the spirit world where it was probably a very durable metaphor, literally.

“S-Sorry!” She managed a small wave for the spirit, who’d gotten up and was baring its sharp teeth as it pointed at them.

“Hey, stop! The owner’s going to—”

Its voice disappeared under the rumbling bass. Tash took a quick peek back again, and almost froze as Red Tide crashed against the entrance of the building. Unlike the buildings of Devil’s Corner, Devil’s Blood was a modern casino that swam in money and was one of the primary income sources for the whole city. It was sturdy down to the foundation. It held, barely. Red Tide let out a roar that vibrated in Tash’s teeth as it bashed against the walls of the casino, its blood body unable to pass through the spiraling doors.

Flow managed. Its angel-like body came through the doors first, only for Red Tide’s colossal waves of red to smash against it and drive its clear body through the entrance. Flow let out a grunt of pain, or whatever it was spirit’s felt, but it recovered quickly, and followed the rest of them through the hole Matthew carved.

The casino was full of spirits, speaking in that werewolf language Tash didn’t know, chatting away like nothing was happening. A few of them looked closer to fairies than anything, wings glittering with gold dust, bodies humanoid but featureless, and glowing every color of the rainbow as they flitted between machines. A couple looked like giant piles of slime, with green tentacles and several fleshy eyes floating inside the semi-clear bodies. They were beyond gross, and left a trail behind them as they moved between the machines. The sex spirits were obvious, because they did look kind of human, or human genies, though the ones here looked like they were made of crystal.

So many spirits, Tash found herself trying to identify what sort of motivations, emotions, and elements of existence might make them. Greed, gluttony, sex, infatuation, addiction, sex, so many things, so many spirits coming here to indulge in ... in what? Essence, bleeding over from the physical world? That's what the Uratha said. And when the Gauntlet grew thin in areas, usually in areas highly populated by humans, essence bled over in abundance. Spirits hung around in droves, and sometimes managed to slip into the other side, hide in Twilight, or possess people, anything to keep eating the essence, and spread their influence.

Dolareido was the sort of city to really test the limits of the Gauntlet, then. Sin and indulgence and passion, and even history, big moments of history that sculpted the lives of millions of people, it had it all. No wonder Black Blood was here.

“Any r-rules the Casino will use to stop Red Tide?” Tash asked as she jogged after the werewolves.

“Not for forever,” Flow said, following in behind her. “The Casino serves the blood money. Red Tide is part of that blood flow in Dolareido. It has power here.”

“Then why isn't it—” She squeaked when another earthquake ripped through the place. Red Tide broke through the front wall of the casino, the whole wall, concrete and metal and gold and spiraling doors and everything. A flood of red water poured into the building, and buried the machines and tables in waves.

“It's supposed to ... deal with red tape, first,” Flow said. “It shouldn't be able to break into this casino without permission.”

“Black Blood?”

“Yes. Black Blood controls much of the city. It’s probably given Red Tide leeway it shouldn’t have.”

The spirits in the casino went nuts. Whatever they were saying, it turned into shrieks and yells, and they scattered like cockroaches. A few of them literally looked like cockroaches. All of them dashed into whatever hole they could find, back doors, under counters, up to the gold, rounded ceiling to find crevices along the walls, anywhere they could go to get out of the path of the werewolves, Tash, and Flow. But when Red Tide forced its way into the casino, the spirits redoubled their panic, and ran in random directions, colliding with each other and gambling machines alike.

Most of them disappeared under the flood of blood. Where the blood of the fountain ended, and Red Tide began, Tash couldn’t tell, but it quickly didn’t matter as the giant spirit overtook the entire first floor of the casino with all the subtlety of a Hollywood apocalypse.

Tash and the others jumped, and grabbed onto the railings of the floor overhead. There was a second floor, and third and fourth, the upper floors circling the main floor so the center was open for the big fountain and the hanging pretty lights. It was all very expensive looking, very Dolareido. And it was a godsend as it allowed Tash and the others to scale the outside railing of each floor until they’d thrown themselves up to the fourth floor. Even Flow managed to climb, turning into a spiraling mini tornado of water that jumped from floor to floor.

The group stared down at the red insanity below, until Red Tide revealed some of its squid-like body through the red liquid, the giant tendrils, and a massive mouth so scary it’d make a lamprey envious.

“W-What now?” Tash asked.

Arturo looked up and around as he sniffed the air. “No exit up here.”

“Not a real casino,” Eric said. “No fire escape.” Tash didn’t bother adding how it was a perfect metaphor for gambling addiction.

Brianna let out a rumble from her furry throat as she glared over the railing, down at Red Tide. “The tear is in other casino.” She made a vague gesture to one of the walls. A solid wall of gold that looked very, very thick. “That way.”

Well, shit.

---

~~The Ripper~~

He expected Noah to turn and try to help Clara. And it was obvious the guy wanted to do exactly that. But Noah was a smart man, the critical thinker type, really fucking annoying. He pointed the flamethrower straight at the Ripper, and let loose. Well, so much for taking advantage of their desire to not kill Jack. The others, sure, they might, but this asshole? Not so much.

The Ripper ducked into the mist and dashed to the side. Vitae pumped through his limbs, and with the power of the curse, he easily created more. Mountains of it, until he felt ready to burst. Sure, he was no pussy Mekhet or dumbass pretty Daeva, they were always speedy, but that didn’t mean he couldn’t pump fuel into Celerity until he was damn fast. Dodging the flames was easy enough.

He was stronger now. So much stronger.

Sándor, bless his stupid dumbass heart, was with Clara a second later, and already throwing David away. Blood went with the huge werewolf as he flew through the air, but it wasn’t his. It all came from his claws and his mouth. Maybe Clara was dead already? He honestly would have preferred to kill her himself directly, and indulge in torturing her, and Jack, but alas, beggars couldn't be choosers.

For now, the asshole with the fire.

The Ripper dashed in, but he knew what would happen. No matter how fast he was, all Noah had to do was turn. And sure enough once the Ripper closed the distance to almost nothing, Noah got the nozzle pointed at him once again, and fired.

The Ripper engulfed his body in Kindred blood, the power of the Juggernaut's Gait overflowing and empowering him. As liquid flame smashed against the blood shield, it instantly burned the shield away, and the Ripper screamed as the fire reached skin. But it lasted only a moment before the Ripper pushed through it and crashed into Noah.

They both came tumbling down, but the Ripper jumped back up, grabbed the damn gun by the front nozzle, put a foot against the man's chest, and yanked it off him, hard. Noah let out a groan as something dislodged in his shoulder, and the straps holding the tank to his back tore free. The Ripper threw the stupid contraption aside before he leaned down, and punched the fucker straight in the throat. He didn't have time to put a lot of strength into it, not with Sándor standing up just twenty feet away, but it was enough that the asshole's throat made a very satisfying crunch, and half collapsed to Jack's fist.

Noah fell back, gasping and clutching his fucked up neck, and disappeared under the mist. Lots of choking noises followed, along with some gargling. Beautiful.

"Finally." Sighing, the Ripper looked at his body.

The suit was partly ruined, with bits of cinders dying away as they tried and failed to burn the clothes. Flame retardant. His blood pulsed around him, but it struggled with the parts of him that were burned. And there were a lot of parts. Animal snarls bubbled in his throat as he looked at his forearms, and how much of the muscle had burned away. He could see his tendons when he flexed his fingers.

He concentrated, and pulled up more of his vitae. The curse turned the smallest drop of human blood into a reservoir of energy, and he used it to tell his flesh to recover. It didn't, at least, not as quickly as it normally could. As much as he knew he was borderline invincible with the power of the Strix at his command, borderline was a nasty contract with deadly caveats. Fire, sunlight, werewolf claws, and apparently ghost knives, would be a problem.

Whatever. If he had to walk around as nothing more than a skeleton with tendons and pulsing, snake-like tendrils of Kindred blood, than he would. For now, he was mostly intact.

Sándor popped up out of the mist, body drenched in blood, Clara's blood, and a hint of a frown on his lips.

“Ah, Sándor. She alive?”

He said nothing.

“Christ, you're worse than the sheriff. No banter at all.”

Still nothing.

“Guess I'll talk for the both of us, then.” The Ripper licked his lips as he walked closer, and tore off the remains of his burnt suit jacket. “Imagine my surprise when that fucking ghost went for the necklace, all at Black Blood's order. He knew once it was off, it'd only be a matter of time before I came out, and fucked you all up. Maybe I'll thank him, after I stop Jacob.”

“You want to stop Jacob?”

“Uh, yeah?” And an inkling of an idea of how to do that, was startling to formulate. “I mean, it’s not hard to understand why Jacob’s doing this. Love of his life spends decades researching how to remove the barrier between worlds, then dies. The old fuck naturally becomes obsessed with her research, and in his manic depression, sees an option. Take her idea to the next level, and fucking change everything. No more death, no more life. Turn everything into a big soup of existence.” The Ripper shook his head and shrugged. “Can’t say I blame him for coming to that conclusion. But, fuck that, I happen to like life and death, pleasure and pain, up and down, left and right.”

“I doubt Black Blood would go along with Jacob’s plan without his own motivations.”

“True. I’m sure the fucker’s up to something. Whatever. I’ve faced him once, I’ll do it again.”

Sándor actually looked surprised at that. Barely. Just another idiot that didn’t understand who the Ripper was, and what he could do.

“Now,” the Ripper said, “time for a rematch.”

“We’ve never fought.”

“Technically correct. The best kind of correct.” The Ripper came closer, flexing his fingers into fists, and wearing his favorite evil grin.

And the best, most awesome thing ever happened. Sándor took a step back. Either the man was trying to trick him, or Sándor really was weaker when not in his lair. Which meant the Ripper had free rein to beat the ever living shit out of this fucker, and—

A blur came at him, from the side, but the Ripper was waiting for him. He turned just in time, brushed the sword aside with the back of his left hand, and drove his right fist into Damien's face as the stupid Mekhet's momentum carried him forward. He couldn't have landed the punch better if Damien had stood still and asked him to hit him, and the dude's face collapsed inward like a watermelon to a sledgehammer. His fellow vampire, clotheslined by the punch, flipped once before smashing his knees and skull into the stone, and skidded for a while before rolling like a broken dog toy. Still alive though, damn.

The chink chink ding of the sword disappearing in the fog, matched the following silence fucking perfectly.

"Fool me once, and all that shit." The Ripper licked a fang as he took another step toward Sándor. The werewolves that'd fought the azlu were coming, but judging from the speed, they were exhausted, battered, and a few of them looked a little more than broken. And only five came. Either the Carter fucker was dead, or too hurt to move.

"Jack," Sándor said, "you must—"

"Oh this oughta be good. You wanna give a speech? Try and call the kid out? I've locked him up six feet under cement, in a coffin wrapped in chains. Insert metaphor about the chains here. Like, maybe, chains about guilt or misery or something, whatever."

The Begotten frowned slightly yet again as he took another step back. No response, though. Damn. He really was no fun.

"I don't know why Beatrice likes you."

Finally, something he said earned a proper reaction from the gargoyle. He blinked.

"She—"

“She likes you, dude. I guess it’s the whole stoic, mysterious, dangerous guy shtick. I guess maybe it’s because you’re one of the few dudes around who’s genuinely nice, like that idiot Julias was. Of course, like Julias, you’ve got a dark side, right? I bet that hits a deep itch inside her she wants to get scratched. Wouldn’t surprise me in the slightest if she — and her slut girlfriend — fantasized about getting railed by a giant, twelve-foot gargoyle. And then, because Beatrice really is nothing more than a stupid young girl who wants to be a princess, she’d shift into Belle mode and try and care for you, tend to your wounds, pet your head, teach you how to fucking waltz.” He gagged. “Which is probably exactly what a pathetic worm like you needs in his life. Ah well, too late. Now you die, and I’ll make sure to show her your head before I rip her in half, and have some fun with her useless girlfriend. Maybe—”

Sándor spread his wings. Apparently if you managed to get the dude angry, he grew wings, big shadowy wings, four of them. They didn’t have the texture the Ripper had seen when he’d fought the Horror, way back when. Whatever Begotten did to summon the power of their Horror when in non-dream places, it made them come through as shadowy silhouettes, temporary. And yet, the wings stuck around. The four wings flapped in slow, heavy motions, creating winds casually, like they were accidental. The mist spread out, revealing a lot of the floor between Sándor and the Ripper, and the Begotten stepped into the open space.

“You are chaos incarnate.”

“Nah, just a guy who knows what he likes.”

“You are no man.”

The Ripper rolled his eyes. Ugh, semantics.

“Alright, let’s go, tough guy.”

“Last chance, creature. If I have to kill you to save everyone, then I will.”

It was like trying to banter with a cliché paladin from some shit fantasy story, pointless and futile. So, the Ripper did the only reasonable thing possible. He punched each of his palms, and ran at Sándor.

For now, a fight. And then, control.

Sándor pulled back one of his own arms, and threw a punch at the Ripper, from about five feet too far. It was the warning sign the Ripper needed to know a shadowy arm was about to form out of nothing and come straight for him, and he dodged to the side at the last second. The asshole shouldn't have been allowed to be so fast with such a huge extra body, but he was.

“Dude,” the Ripper said, getting up and dusting off his already ruined white shirt before gesturing to the huge shadowy creature overlaying Sándor. “Is this a JoJo reference?” No response, not even a grin. “Christ you suck at this.”

“This isn't a joke.”

“It's all a joke! Every fucking minute of all this is a joke!” Laughing until his guts hurt, he closed the distance with the bastard, and readied for a fight.

But of course, that was when the other werewolves finally arrived, healed enough they could run. Still only five of them, Monica, Avery, Erica, Mason, and Caleb. No Carter. What a shame.

Avery jumped for him first, but the Ripper sidestepped easily. He was faster than last time they'd fought. And stronger.

“Too slow!” As she turned to face him, he slipped in close and uppercut. “Shoryuken!” Fist, against werewolf flesh, nice and solid, and infinitely more satisfying to hit than the weird ghost shit. Avery flew back with the impact, and landed thirty feet away with a nice, satisfying thud. Damn werewolf bodies were fucking tough. He'd been hoping to put a hole in her guts.

The other werewolves came in without hesitation, full on sprints meant to tackle something much larger and heavier, and slower than the Ripper. They were desperate, and exhausted. Perfect.

One of the werewolves went to the side before turning hard and diving at him, while another werewolf jumped for him straight on. Hard to dodge two angles at once, so he jumped into the werewolf that went for the side pounce instead. But he wasn't so stupid to try and tackle them head on, so he slipped under them, and let them land on him instead. One solid punch to the chest sent the dumbass dog flying, complete with the crunching bones of a ruined sternum.

The other werewolf came in low and tried to bite him. The Ripper kicked them in the face hard enough they yelped and backed off, giving him the time to get back up, only for another werewolf to grab him from behind, huge hands wrapping his biceps. And of course, another werewolf came for his exposed chest.

He leaned forward, brought his feet up behind him, and drove them both into the guts of the werewolf holding him. The stupid mutt let go as they fell back, yelping from having their guts caved in. To top it all off, the Ripper managed to land on his feet, like a mother fucking acrobat. All those backflips and squats he'd been doing in Jack's mind over the months, paying off.

"You fuckers don't understand," the Ripper said, licking his teeth as he marched toward the werewolf that had planned to get him while he was held. "I don't have my army. That's a shame. But that means I get to put every single drop of vitae I have into—" He snapped forward, fast, spread his legs wide while facing to the side, and smashed his fist into the unprepared werewolf. A big, wide stance for a stable punch, rooted to the ground. The punch couldn't reach very high, and the stupid wolf was too damn tall, so he punched the fucker in the knee. It went crack, and the werewolf fell over with a roar. "Into my body. Admittedly, it's not as epic as I'd have liked. There's something magical about a swarm of rats eating someone alive, you know? But hey, if I have to rip every one of you in half with my bare hands, that'll do."

The remaining werewolves stepped back, and looked between each other as they spread out. They knew they couldn't take him in a direct fight.

"Jack," one of them said, gray fur, and older looking than her pack. Much as she tried to hide it, she was hurting, and not just from what the Ripper had done to her.

"Don't insult me, Avery."

She snarled and bared her teeth. "Ripper. Stop. No time."

"I'll deal with Jacob and his pet buddy soon enough. But you and your pack? I'm going to kill every last one of you."

"Stupid. Jacob will ruin everything. You need our help."

"I don't need anyone's help." Well, except maybe Sándor's. He laughed and shrugged. "Y'all are so convinced he can really pull this off, but no one else ever has."

"Father Wolf—"

"Oh fucking god, you actually think I give two shits about your fucking religion. That's cute. Listen, the only fucking religion that matters, is—" He dashed forward hard, fast enough Avery could only half respond and try and dodge. But he'd planned to do something he'd never done before anyway, something she wouldn't predict. He side kicked, full Mortal Kombat side kick straight into her big fucking ass. Okay, not actually the ass, but his kick hit her in the side below the hip, and she yelped as she fell down from the impact, rolling a good thirty feet.

He bounced off her from the kick, and landed with a stomp, before he turned around and faced the rest of the werewolves still standing. And as he did, Sándor marched toward him, hands bloody, eyes glaring, shadowy wings still out. He looked angry.

“You never did tell me if she was alive,” The Ripper said. “Clara, I mean.”

Sándor still said nothing. Typical.

“Cause, I mean, it’d be a shame if David killed her. Imagine how guilty he’d feel, killing someone he loved.” Oh this was too good. “Being responsible for the death of someone he cares about? Yeesh, that must suck.”

Sándor said nothing, but one of his eyebrows did twitch. Progress. A nice precursor to the goal.

Before the Begotten could reach him, one of the werewolves stood up from the mist, mouth covered in blood.

“Ah, David. Would you kindly kill your friends?” The key phrase had already been said, but saying it again felt poetic and fitting.

David dashed for the nearest werewolves, the ones still standing, and they turned to face him. They were considerably more prepared for it this time, almost like they’d learned from their last encounter with the Ripper and his jedi mind trick ways. But even prepared, werewolves were huge beasts, and David had gone full psycho rage mode. What was it Eric called it? Kuruth? The Uratha roared, drooling everywhere as he barked and charged, and three of the other werewolves tackled him as best they could. One wrong move and David would bite their throats out, same as he did Clara. One wrong move and they'd accidentally kill him.

That was how you played a good game of chess. You made sure no matter which move the enemy made, they lost something.

Sándor didn't look. Instead, he came at Jack, pulled back one of his hands, and punched at him from about a foot too far for it to hit him. As he did, the silhouette of the gargoyle encompassed him, the entire gargoyle, overlaying his own body, giving Jack a peek into what lay behind the curtain for a fucked up creature like a Begotten. Sharing his body with a monster, right down to the soul. Sounded annoying.

The Ripper ducked under the fist, which was no easy feat considering how big it'd become. He came up close in Sándor's face, and struck upward for the man's jaw, but Sándor stepped back. More than stepped back, he used some big fucking half invisible wings to hit Jack with a blast of air hard enough it nearly knocked him over. The mist around them pushed away, though it resisted as best it could, almost like a weightless sludge, and it quickly reformed around the Ripper.

"Hold still!" The Ripper came at him again, pumping more vitae into his limbs.

Apparently Sándor didn't like that. He flew up, wings again blasting the area with wind as he pushed himself up into the air, and then came down for Jack like a swooping bird. The Ripper hadn't expected a literal swoop. A diving punch or something, sure, but a swoop, no. Sándor came in low, and used some fucking aerodynamics to turn the fall into pure speed he shifted forward with his wings, so his shoulder collided with the Ripper's gut. It was like getting hit by a train.

The Ripper skidded and rolled, and hopped back up to his feet in seconds.

“You hit hard,” he said. “As hard as you hit me in the dream place.” He gestured to his chest, and where a tear in the clothes showed a visible dent in the flesh. It reformed quickly, and vines of blood leaked through some tears in the skin to slither around him.

Sándor frowned slightly as he flexed his fingers and tightened them into fists, before walking toward him. Each step, the Ripper could see the silhouette of the huge gargoyle, as if the mist made it more obvious that the dude wasn't human, and that he had the shadow of a nightmare monster following him everywhere. But unfortunately for Sándor, it was only a shadow, and that had to be a weakness. The dude's human body was flesh and blood, and if the Ripper could get a good hit in, the dude would pop like stepping on a cockroach. Of course, he didn't want to kill him, not yet. He needed him, for now. Killing would come much later.

The Ripper came in again, but Sándor took a step back instead, and spun around. It looked pretty fucking weird, until the shadow of the huge tail came through the mist like Jaws under the water, pushing a wave of the mist as it moved until it crashed into the Ripper's side. He grabbed onto the tail, but the silhouette fell apart, just like the mist, so he had no choice but to roll over the stone ground again. Well, that was fucking annoying.

“You're a Ventrue,” Sándor said, slowly walking toward him. “A general. A dictator. What are you without an army?”

“I—”

“You cannot Dominate me, and you know it.” Now the bastard was talking, except he was still just as boring and dry as ever.

He grinned. Dominating him was the plan. Dominate him, and turn him into a fucking taxi. Finding the right opportunity was the issue.

All those months, sitting in Jack's mind, they weren't wasted. Time spent growing, spreading, infecting, expanding through the kid's body and brain, and through the Beast. Strength, power, all that jazz, he had more of it, more than they could wrap their tiny, useless brains around.

Damien was down with a broken face, he wouldn't be getting up anytime soon, and the werewolves were distracted with David. Maybe now was the time to gamble, to see if he could get a new tool?

"Yeah, well, we'll see about that." He got up, and looked the gargoyle in the eyes. Sándor stared back, maybe forty feet away. That was all that was needed for the connection: Sándor, being able to see the Ventrue's eyes; and the Ventrue, pouring vitae and will into the act of Domination.

The connection was formed. Time came to a near standstill. The Beast formed inside Sándor's mind, and looked at the fortress he now sieged.

It was the same as that one time Jack took a peek at the dude's mind, when they captured him when he was still a slave to Elen's magic. An enormous, gothic gate, surrounded by endless darkness in all directions, with a gothic — naturally — castle behind it. Between the gate and the castle, a set of red eyes, glowing and hungry, stared out from the black.

The Ripper could only maintain a vague awareness of what was happening outside the connection, back in the cave of the Great Below. Noises, growls, werewolves still fighting to get David under control, and David practically foaming at the mouth with rabies. Somewhere out there, Sabrina and the other ghosts were recovering and looking for an opportunity to strike, and while Black Blood probably gave them instructions only to slow them down, or maybe get the werewolves killed, Sabrina wanted Jack dead. He had to work fast before she tried to stab him again. Thankfully, a few minutes here in the mind was only a single second in the real world.

“You can’t get in,” Jack said.

Mother fuck. The stupid kid climbed out of the black ground, and dusted off the metaphorical rocks and metaphorical chains the Ripper had locked him up with. Either the Ripper didn’t do the best job burying him, or the kid was stronger. Obviously it was the former. Hard to do things thoroughly when fighting a half dozen people.

The Ripper, the Beast, combined, one entity of pure power and desire, looked down at the small man beside him. They were in the boy’s head, here, where the curse’s power let them see the inner workings. Which meant the kid was going to get to see him break Sándor’s mind. If he had time, the Ripper would bury him properly, but he didn’t, and they both knew it.

The Ripper rumbled displeasure, and flowed over to the gate, body of smoke and claws and fangs hovering over the obsidian not-ground.

“I said you can’t get in.”

“Watch me,” the Ripper said, voice a booming echo of bass and rasp that permeated the fucking universe.

All those months waiting, were not wasted.

The Ripper summoned his strength, the curse’s strength, the Beast’s strength, and poured it into his will. Here in the mind, will was all that mattered, and he had mountains of it. Fucking. Mountains.

The first crash against the gate was euphoric. Loud. Powerful. Heavy enough the entirety of Sándor’s mind vibrated with the intensity of it. This wasn't like last time, with Garry's mind. This would be different. Either the Ripper would break Sándor's mind and turn him into a slave, or he would kill the Begotten in the process.

Again, he smashed the gates. Again, it resisted. Again, the huge creature behind the gate rumbled, its glowing red eyes waiting. The Ripper could feel its power, this Horror creature, and how it existed differently here than the one he'd fought in the dream. Similar, but different, as if the one in the dream had been the physical body of the weird nightmare entity, while this thing here, in Sándor's mind, was closer to the true entity. Similar then, to the Beast the curse infected, and to Jack himself, who stood beside the curse, and winced with each impact.

"You're a fucking plague," Jack said, "ruining everything you touch."

"You're a weak, useless ant. You can't take any of the things you want."

"I have all the things I want."

The Ripper glared down at Jack with a few dozen of his eyes. "Bullshit. I see your desires."

"Correction, then. I have all the things I want that I know would actually bring me happiness. The other wants are just impulses, things to feel and then let go. You probably think I genuinely want to fuck anything with tits, or to actually rule the world."

"You do." Of course he did. He was Ventrue. And regardless, the Ripper saw into Jack's mind, saw his deepest, truest desires.

"Buullllshit." And of course, while the curse could hear Jack's thoughts, Jack could hear his thoughts, here in the mind. "You really can't separate compulsions from genuine, conscious desires, can you? Fuck me, you really are, like, some twisted sort of incarnation of Freud's Id."

"I ain't the one fucking your mother."

Jack threw up his hands, groaned, and paced around, shutting up. Good. Useless kid.

The Ripper dug deep, until the ancient hate and rage of the Strix were all that remained. Until all he felt was fury, hunger, and the perfect balance of the two that led into something humans could not understand. Gangrels understood it, because more than the other blood clans, they rode close to the Beast, and risked having it overtake them regularly. They felt it, and grew addicted to it, to the feeling that embodied everything the curse knew he was. That delicious combination of animosity and craving, a need to rip and tear so existential it was almost sexual.

The Uratha understood it, even if they refused to admit it. He knew if he asked them if they felt alive, full of energy and zest, and lust, after finishing a satisfying hunt, they'd all say yes. Gangrels, too. It was only insufferable little fucks like Jack, the ones that denied the nature of the vampire, that looked at him with disgust.

"You're full of it," Jack said.

"Coming from you. That. Is. Rich!" The words were a great climax to the building of his power, and he smashed waves of black smoke, and a myriad of limbs into the gate. Feather and fur, claw and talon, fang and mandible, it all crashed into the great barrier, and smashed the gateway open.

The darkness beyond lit up, at least enough that it wasn't impenetrable to the eyes anymore, and the courtyard to the gigantic castle within awaited. It wasn't the castle from Sándor's lair, but it looked similar, more modern, less ancient stones and shit. A big, beautiful, gothic castle, but with no lights on; or fires or candles or whatever. The courtyard had plants, but they were all dead. Trees, a garden, bushes, all of it nothing but broken branches, twigs, and brown dirt without a hint of grass anywhere.

The castle's front wall had huge windows, old, and so dirty he couldn't see through them. In the center awaited a massive double door, twice the height of the one in Jack's mansion, made of old metal that'd lost its shine at least a century ago. It was, as far as the Ripper could see, what a castle from the 1600s would have looked like, if left to rot and die.

One difference. This castle had gargoyle statues on the walls. Over the windows, over the doors, on the roof, there were gargoyle statues, and each one of them looked kinda like Sándor. A big gargoyle with a human-ish face, four giant wings, four arms, raptor feet, long tail, muscular, and big fucking horns.

Jack and the Ripper looked up at the building, then left and right down its lengths. Much as the gargoyles on the building were big, and looked like the gargoyle, none of them were the real gargoyle. The monster with the red eyes was gone. All show, no strength? Unlikely. But wherever the Horror was, it wasn't here anymore. And neither was Sándor himself.

"He's old," Jack said, voice quiet as he scanned the building and surroundings. "And ... not in the best mental health."

"Of course. He let his family die."

"He didn't let his family die, fucking asshole. I—christ, nothing I say can make you understand, can I? You don't have an ounce of empathy in you."

The Ripper grumbled, and pushed forward toward the castle. "Empathy? Empathy gets you killed. The fuck good is empathy if you're dead. Gobble up all the power you can, fuck empathy, and fuck life. Literally."

“You really are nothing more than the Beast given a voice, aren’t you?”

Grumble turned to roar as the Ripper turned, and slammed four enormous wolf-like hands down on the black floor around Jack. The little fucker didn’t so much as twitch.

“I am the voice of one of the greatest reasons life even fucking exists, you useless little fuck. Where the fuck would humankind be if not for greed, aggression, and lust?”

“Yeah, you got us out of the primordial muck, and let us beat competitors and evolution, I’ll give you that. Congratulations. But now? Antoinette’s got the right idea. Cooperation is how we get above—”

“Above what? Biology? The need to eat, fight, and fuck? Why would we want to?” The Ripper rolled a few dozen of his eyes, faced the castle door, and threw his will against it.

It opened without fighting him. Unusual. Open invite? Whatever, he moved inside, if only so he wouldn’t have to keep listening to Jack’s useless prattle.

The inside of the castle was not a castle, not really, not matching either what he’d expect a castle’s insides to look like, or even what the outside suggested. It was a giant room with hanging chandeliers above, each decorated with thousands of candles, but only a few candles on each chandelier were lit, providing a small amount of light. Dust was everywhere, covering the smooth white walls, and the smooth stone of the castle floor. A room that’d once been cared for, and was no longer.

It was a long room, rectangle, more than wide enough for the Ripper and the incarnation of his will and the Beast to enter, and long enough it’d take a few minutes of walking to reach the other side. At the end of the long room, was a stone throne, rather fancy and carved with intricate gargoyle faces, and almost large enough for the gargoyle itself if he wanted to sit. Instead, the huge gargoyle perched on top of it, red eyes staring, and Sándor the man sat in the throne, looking far too small for seat.

Much as the Ripper wanted to charge at the man and the reflection of the Horror guarding his mind, he couldn't ignore the giant paintings on the walls. Half of them were bordered in gold, and the other half were bordered in black, all of the metal borders carved with the same gargoyle face indentations that were on the dude's throne. And there were dozens of paintings.

"Holy shit," Jack said, following in behind the Ripper and now staring at the paintings.

It didn't take a genius to figure out what the paintings were of, so detailed they almost looked like photographs. The one closest to the door was of a woman and a young boy, both wearing modern clothes, both smiling and cheering as they laughed about something over dinner. The painting was a picture, taken from Sándor's perspective, him sitting and eating something on a dinner plate.

A genuine, happy memory, from the sorry fool's life.

Next to it was another painting, the black-bordered one, again taken from the perspective of Sándor. The same home as the one before, with a couple corpses on the floor in pools of blood, and Angela and Jeremiah in the background.

On the other side of the room in another gold-bordered painting, was a woman, dressed in some rags, and judging from the room they were in, it was a memory from a couple hundreds years ago. A wood cottage somewhere, maybe? Whoever she was, she was smiling up at Sándor, the sort of smile someone used when they were in love.

And next to it was another painting, again of the woman, this time dead in the woods and ripped to shreds by wolves.

Jack and the Ripper walked toward Sándor, but stopped when they eventually came across four more paintings, two on the left, two on the right. On the left, another woman, this time with three kids, having fun in the grass, probably three hundred years ago. Beside that painting, one that showed a couple dozen men and women coming up over the grassy hill, armed with pitchforks, one pointing a butcher's knife at Sándor while another ran his pitchfork through the wife, while the kids were cut down by swords. Looked like a village figured out Sándor wasn't human, and decided to wipe him and his family out. Fucking humans.

On the other side of the great hall, something far more tame. Again, a pretty lady, very young, dressed in clothes so old it was likely that Sándor was older than he thought he was. Beside that, an old woman, sitting in front of a fire in a stone house. A picture so pristine and wholesome it was revolting. She wasn't moving. None of them were moving, since they were paintings, but the picture somehow conveyed the message perfectly.

"Sándor stayed with her until she died of old age," Jack said. "Jesus."

"Pathetic."

"Why? Because he actually formed a connection with someone so strong, he stayed with them for decades?"

"Because he—"

"You know some animals in the wild mate for life? Or at least try to. You telling me they—"

"Are one spike of bad weather away from going extinct for being that fucking stupid." The idiot kid would never understand. Jacob was right. Evolution was right. Survival of the fittest. Adapt.

“Jacob is done with that idea, last I checked,” Jack said.

“Then I’ll rip his damn head off and put everything back to status quo.”

“Yeah, good luck with that. You really think you can beat Jacob, and Black Blood, just you?”

The Ripper laughed. “It’s a good thing Sándor will be joining me as my driver, and bodyguard.”

Jack winced, and the two of them continued on, small man walking next to the enormous, tainted Beast, as they approached the man on the throne. Much as the Ripper wanted to ignore the paintings, Jack looked at them, and in this place their thoughts were apparent to each other. More memories of Sándor’s greatest moments of happiness, more times he’d found love, and more times it ended horribly.

One painting in particular was particularly graphic. It was a point-of-view painting again, except this time from a good ten feet in the air, looking down. A woman’s corpse was on the floor, and a gargoyle’s four hands were covered in blood. Oof, dude killed his own woman at some point. Or rather, his Horror had.

“Solution seems simple to me,” the Ripper said, gesturing around with a few hands at the paintings. “Every tragedy here happened because he keeps falling in love. Harden up, fucker.”

“You’re fucking heartless. But ... he does seem to get the short end of the stick. A lot.”

The Ripper laughed again, loud enough it echoed through the walls of Sándor’s mind. If the gargoyle had just accepted his fate, and instead indulged in his hungers and strength, there'd be no paintings.

“The paintings...” Sándor’s voice. “Are they worth it?” They looked to him and his throne, and from so close, it was obvious the throne was a dusty, dirty thing, with more than a few cobwebs on it.

“They’re not,” the Ripper said. “Not that it matters. I’m here to break you, and make you my tool, just like Elen did. I’m not your fucking therapist.”

“They are worth it,” Jack said. “The fuck is the point in life if it was just some static, endless spree of carnal indulgence?”

“Sounds pretty fucking pointed to me,” the Ripper said. “Kill, fight, fuck, rape, eat, all at the same time. And don’t tell me I’m the only one who feels that way.” One of his smoky arms gestured to the painting where Sándor’s Horror had obviously ripped his woman into literal bits. “Susanna had it right. The Strix have it right. Give into the desire to dominate and destroy, and swim in the spoils. Kill anyone that gets in your way.”

Sándor sighed, a heavy sigh that stirred the air in the place, like a sad wind. Ugh, there were too many similarities between this shit, and that pussy Julias’s fucked up personality. No wonder the sharkmouth bitch liked the two of them.

Jack stared up at the Ripper, before gesturing back to Sándor. “The Ripper is wrong, and Jacob is wrong. And you know it. Otherwise why are you here in Dolareido, trying to make up for the shit Jeremiah did, and trying to make everyone’s lives better. Why are you protecting us?”

Slowly, Sándor looked down. “Sometimes I wonder.”

Jack walked up to the throne, and looked up at the man. “I’m the last person that can talk about this. I’m young as fuck compared to you. But holy fucking shit, there's one thing, one thing I fucking know, and that's that ... that ... Fuck I don't know how to say it without sound so cliché it hurts. But you know, right? You know the only thing that makes things good, is when things can get bad, too. The only thing that makes up, up, is down.

“The Ripper is just a shortsighted compulsion, a fucking child, like an idiot college student who finally gets to eat all the ice cream they want, until they're begging their mom to cook them a real meal because they're sick of it, and they've gained thirty pounds. And Jacob, the guy is fucked up, depressed and broken, and thinks this”—Jack gestured to the paintings—“is a bad system, that it sucks so bad that he's going to tear it all down, for everyone. He's selfish, and even I'm smart enough to understand you can't just melt everything into a big soup of existence, and call it better than life! Even if it's fucked up, even if it's short for some people, and unfair as all hell, it's still a fucking amazing thing, and it's...” He choked for a second. “It's worth fighting for.”

The Ripper growled down at the stupid, tiny vampire beside him. “Did you just quote Lord of the Rings?”

“Just one part of one fucking sentence. Fuck off.”

Sándor lifted his head enough to look at Jack, and managed the smallest smile, before standing up.

“You're right, of course. I knew. It's a hard lesson a love of mine taught me a long, long time ago.”

Well, fuck. Much as the Ripper wanted to speed this along, it was all a metaphor for breaking into and eventually Dominating the man's mind. It was taking time, because Sándor's mind was taking time to break into. Only a few seconds had passed back in the real world, and that was a few more seconds than the Ripper wanted.

Sándor got off the throne, and the Horror followed. It landed, hard, heavy, and growled up at the Ripper as it glared red eyes at him.

A battle of wills, then. Sándor stood beside Jack, and the two of them looked on, as the Ripper and the Beast faced off against the Horror. It wouldn't be a literal fight, with dodging or uppercuts. Everything in here was just a metaphor for the curse, crashing against Sándor and his Horror.

A hundred limbs came out of the Ripper's body, shadowy things armed with claws, feathers, fur, gigantic muscles, talons, and everything in between. The titanic gargoyle, only half as tall as the Ripper and the Beast he controlled, held out his four hands, and the two of them engaged, grips locked.

Dominating the Uratha had been easy. The wolf spirits within were nothing compared to the curse and the tainted Beast. And now, the Ripper was confident he could defeat Garry's Beast in a battle. And he was confident he could beat the gargoyle Horror as well.

But it wouldn't be easy.

The castle shook violently as the two behemoths began, squeezing on each other's grip. They pushed into each other and roared at each other, until the floor tore apart under their claws. The paintings fell off the walls. The chandeliers trembled, and candles fell around them, like raindrops of fire.

The Ripper pushed forward, and the gargoyle roared with frustration as it failed to match his might. It dug its talons into the floor, and pushed against him harder, but the Ripper didn't budge. He would not lose this battle. He would win, break this worthless fool's Horror, and then break the small man hiding behind it. He would use him as a tool, and together they'd kill Jacob, stop Black Blood, kill the bitch Prince and her dog sheriff, and turn Dolareido into their fucking playground.

Sándor, a gnat compared to the curse, stepped up to the Ripper, and beside his Horror. And just like his Horror, he held out two of his hands, and triggered the confrontation. The Ripper was forced to meet his two hands with two of his own, and somehow, he slid a foot back.

The Ripper snarled down at the human. The fuck was this? A stupid fucking little worm, a fucking useless human, working with the Horror he despised?

“Fucking ... hypocrite,” the Ripper said, booming voice wavering.

“No.” Sándor glared up at him, small hints of anger showing through his stoic face, and he took a step forward. “A warrior might hate his sword, but he’d be a fool to never use it.” Oh good fucking god, he really was just as stupidly poetic and brain damaged as Julias. “I’m not going to let you kill anyone, parasite.”

This was fucking insufferable. With the Uratha, he’d expected it. With Garry, he’d expected it, the active cooperation between human mind and paranormal creature. But Sándor and his Horror? He’d fully expected the worthless, broken man to watch while the Ripper and the gargoyle duked it out.

The Ripper snarled down at the stupid little man loud enough the paintings that’d fallen vibrated and slid across the floor.

“You don’t get a say in the matter. I’m going to—”

Jack, the fucking little twerp, stood beside Sándor, and reached out his hands. A battle of wills, again, enforced and triggered, and the Ripper locked two of his many hands with the damn brat. It was like some shit scene in a shit movie, where the power of fucking friendship would overcome their troubles.

“Jack!”

Jack grinned up at him. “Did you really think I’d just sit by and let you do this?”

“I will lock you away in a cell of pain beyond your reckoning, you fucking insect! I will make an iron maiden seem like a vacation. I will find the darkest, most fucked up corner in your mind, and make you relive it over and over until you wish for a death that will never come! I will show you Ann’s face as I rip her head off, and force you to see it for the next hundred years!”

“Go fuck yourself.”

The Ripper let out a thousand roars, and a thousand tendrils of shadow snapped outward against the walls of the room of memories. Their claws ripped and tore against the white surfaces, and shredded through them and the memories alike as the curse sank his grip into Sándor’s mind. If he had to damage the bastard’s mind to take him over, then so be it.

“This isn’t in the world of real, Jack,” the Ripper said, and both Jack and Sándor winced as the Ripper’s voice boomed over them. “In here, I am king. In here, I am god. Every day I grow. Every night, my infection spreads and empowers the Beast within. I will not be expelled by a child, a broken man, and some manifestation of human fears; nothing more than a shadow.” A dozen more of his dark limbs shot out and sank themselves into the smooth stone floor, and another dozen. The building shuddered again, and cracks formed on the walls.

The look of surprise on Jack’s face made everything worth it.

“You and I are going to kill Jacob, Sándor. Then we’re going to kill the Prince and her dog. Then we’re going to—”

The building vanished in a shower of exploding white shards. The paintings, walls, the stone, the throne, the fucking ingrates that refused to simply bow down and serve him, it all shattered, as if he'd been looking at a painting on a jar that'd been smashed with a hammer. Or a fist.

The Ripper stumbled back and clutched his jaw. Back in the real world, with mist and fog and stones and werewolves and fucking ghosts. Slowly, he turned, and looked at the mother fucker who'd punched him, the mother fucker about to get his guts ripped out.

Damien. The useless Mekhet stood there, or rather slouched there, struggling to stand. His neck was crooked, half broken, but that was nothing compared to his face. His jaw was shattered, nose too, and the cheek and eye socket of his right eye was smashed into his skull.

“How much vitae did you use to Cloak yourself so I couldn't sense you coming?” the Ripper asked, voice quiet and coming through clenched teeth.

Damien coughed, one hand at his side struggling to make a fist. A broken finger or two. The hand he'd used to punch the Ripper, then. He didn't say anything though. Probably couldn't with one side of his jaw almost hanging off his face.

“All of it, then. All you had, just so you could get in one good hit on me. Ha.” The Ripper rubbed his jaw. A bit of a sting, but otherwise, Damien hadn't hurt him in the slightest. “Surprised you didn't look for your sword instead, but I guess you noticed what I was doing, and realized you didn't have time, right?”

Damien said nothing. Christ, another fucker who just refused to banter with him. Well, at least the Mekhet had an excuse, jaw and all.

The Ripper snarled with the power of the curse, ensuring the dead Mekhet heard the strength of it as the rumbling bass pulsed out until the stones vibrated. A quick glance Sándor's way showed the man had stumbled back, and was clutching his head as he groaned in pain. Good. The Ripper had been fully willing to leave the man a husk, empty and broken, as long as he was still capable of using that unique Begotten talent to get around between realms.

Unfortunately, Damien had ended the connection before the Ripper had been able to Dominate Sándor. He'd certainly hurt the fucker's mind though, deeply.

“Whatever, I'll just try again. But I think I'll wait until I've killed everyone else, this time.” Grinning and exposing a fang, he took a step toward Damien. Damien took a step back. The fear in his one open eye was subtle, and glorious. “I'm going to—”

Again, another interruption came his way, but he was ready for it. He twisted at the last moment, same as he'd done to Damien before, and drove his fist straight into the chest of the werewolf that leapt at him from the mist. One of those fucking Irraka assholes, sneaky as shit. And judging from the furry tits, it was probably Monica. She went down with a yelp.

Another wolf came at him, and another. Avery, and ... David! The Ripper glared at his slave, but David's eyes were filled with pesky free will. They came at him side by side, and made no effort to hide. They should have.

The Ripper stepped into them, expecting them to pounce, but they didn't, almost like they were learning it was better to stay on the ground. Smart doggies. Both skidded to a stop and stood up straight, and both swung down at him with their claws. David, the Ripper wasn't too concerned about, and he let the shaman wannabe rake him on the side while he faced off against Avery. Werewolf claws hurt, a lot, and punctured through the snaking vines of blood that coated the Ripper's body.

But not enough to stop him. Avery's claws, on the other hand, were glowing with more of that red flame, and no way was he going to make that mistake twice. He ducked in closer to the old werewolf, close enough punching wasn't very viable. But a hard spin was enough to drive his elbow sideways into her ribs, and she fell over as several of her bones went snap crackle pop. It gave him time to face David, sidestep another down slash of claws, and when the mutt tried to bite him, the Ripper drove his fist up into the bottom of his jaw. There was a very satisfying crack, and yelp.

“Not sure how you broke free of my command,” the Ripper said as he walked after the stumbling werewolf. “Whatever. Guess you die.”

Before he could sink another punch into David, with full intent to put a hole straight through his chest, more claws on stone announced dogs running at his back. He waited for half a second before turning around, and driving a fist into the first wolf that came at him. Clara. God damn it, she'd healed from the shit David had done to her, though the Ripper could see she was still bleeding horribly from her throat and her sides. David might not have been Avery, but those claws were still unusually deadly.

Dumb bitch came at him first, with the two other wolves as her backup. With those injuries? Typical leader bullshit.

She yelped as his fist hit her shoulder, and shattered the bones inside. He wanted to follow up and curb stomp her face into mulch, but the other two wolves were on him in a second. The moment he faced them, they grappled him, both getting their hands around his arms as they both reached down and bit into his shoulders.

Unless his math was wrong, one of them had to be Mason, and the other had to be Noah, considering the way his throat had a weird bulge and dent in it. God damn it, he'd gotten up from having his jugular smashed in. And he recognized Mason from when he'd been fighting the Azlu. Smart fuckers, biting his throat and shoulders at the trapezoid, trying to disable him. Would have been smarter to pretend to be dead.

The werewolf claws and teeth punctured his blood barrier, and managed to reach skin, flesh, and bone, but still not deeply enough to stop him. He drove his fist up into Noah's face, haymaker into his cheek, and the wolf fell back as bone shattered and teeth fell away. Mason twisted and threw the Ripper into the floor, but he held onto the furry fucker's big arm, forcing Mason to pick him back up when he tried to stand up straight. He wrapped one arm around the fucker around the elbow, got his fingers around the giant wrist, and yanked. Mason shrieked as he clutched the half-arm stump, a sound the Ripper didn't think wolves made, but was ecstatic to hear. The dumb bastard fell into the mist, howling.

The Ripper stomped over toward Mason, but again only got a few feet before another wolf came at him. That Monica bitch again, popping up out of the shadow and mist. He hadn't punched her hard enough. But the moment he lifted a fist, another one of the sneaky fuckers came at him. Carter? No, the old wolf was nowhere to be seen. Had to be that fucker Caleb.

Another wolf with tits was coming his way, too. Erica, probably. But for the moment, Monica and Caleb were half a second away from getting their claws and teeth into him. The Ripper turned and faced them, and when they closed the distance, he let them. Only when their claws started to penetrate his shoulders and sides, did he lash out, and drive one of his fists into Monica's throat. And this time, he poured his rage and vitae into it, until his arm was coated from fist to shoulder in vines of swirling crimson.

The wolf's eyes went wide, staring at him, before she fell into the mist, her blood coating the length of his forearm, huge hole in her throat.

Caleb roared the moment he realized what happened, of course, and sank his teeth into Jack's throat, with full intent to kill him. And maybe he could have, with how hard he bit, and how angry the wolf was. But the Ripper shoved the wolf hard enough to rip his throat out of the wolf's mouth, leaving behind chunks of his vampire flesh. That surprised Caleb. The Ripper double downed on that surprise, and returned the favor, raking his own fingers in a scooping motion along Caleb's throat. And unlike Caleb's teeth, he got a lot deeper than half a fucking inch.

Caleb stumbled back, clutching his throat, or where his throat used to be. Yeah, fuck the werewolf. Blood poured over his chest, gallons of it, soaking his fur and the floor. Some of it had splashed onto the Ripper too, and he dragged a finger along where it soaked his shoulder before giving it a taste. That, was some fucking tasty blood.

He turned and faced Erica as she roared something fierce, full psycho anger mode on her face. More of that Kuruth shit or whatever. But a mindlessly aggressive animal was an easily tricked animal, and he stood his ground as he waited for her to come at him.

Claws grabbed his shoulders from behind, and something warm and wet fell on his head. What the fuck? He turned around long enough to look up, and see the huge werewolf holding him, and the blood pouring out from where his neck used to be. Caleb, glaring down at him with the same psycho rage in Erica's eyes. He was dying, hell, he was dead, and he didn't care.

“Let go of me you fucking—”

Erica raked her right hand's claws down his body, from his face to his hip, and with all the weight and rage she put into it, the claws pushed through his blood and skin, and hit muscle and bone. Pain hit him, blinded him, scorching fire all he could feel or think. He tried to open his eyes, but only one of them listened. He tried to twist out of Caleb's grip, but for just a split second, all he could think or feel, was pain.

He summoned his vitae and poured the Beast's ancient rage through his limbs, until the agony became white noise. Finally, his body responded. He drove his elbow back into Caleb's gut hard enough he felt something pop, and the enormous wolf fell over. He didn't get back up this time. Erica, on the other hand, took another slash at the Ripper, and while he dodged at the last second, her claws managed to shred one of his shoulders.

He was supposed to be stronger than them, faster than them! What the fuck was going on? Jack, and Sándor, those mother fuckers. They'd ... weakened him.

He snarled at Erica as he looked down at his body with his one remaining eye. Bits of his insides were visible, dark Kindred bleeding coiling around underneath and around his bones to keep everything inside. His shirt was nothing more than a few strips of fabric, and he could see some ribs where Erica had caught him. Jesus fucking christ, getting hurt so bad by some young bitch because Caleb decided to get all heroic and shit? It was enough to make him puke. Part of his shoulder joint was visible too, a sliver of bone under the binding muscles and slithering snakes of blood.

He returned Erica's favor, and punched her back. She was close enough, and that psycho mode didn't exactly have her in the state of mind to retreat or dodge incoming punches. His fist collided with her chest, right below the neck and shoulder. Her collarbone shattered as she half spun with the punch, and the bitch stumbled away before falling into the mist, her left arm a dead, hanging, useless limb. If he'd punched her two inches closer to the middle, her weight would have let him punch straight into her organs.

Mother. Fucking. God. He stared down at himself again, at the myriad of wounds, before looking around at whoever was still standing. Just Damien, who looked like he could barely lift a finger, and Sándor, who looked like he was having a midlife crisis, clutching and squeezing his head with his eyes shut as he groaned between his teeth. The werewolves were, finally, down.

They really had no business being as resilient as they were. It took vampires a century or more to get that tough. These fuckers were only a decade or three old in werewolf years, and they'd fought a giant spider monster, taken a few dozen wounds from its giant scythe hands, and now fought him? Fuck them.

The Ripper snarled down at where Caleb fell, but when he walked over to him, he found a human's body instead, throat still missing. Dead, thank god. He stumbled over to Monica, or who he'd assumed had been Monica. Yeap, it was, now a dead woman. Two down, seven to go? Except Carter wasn't making an appearance, and considering the azlu had skewered his chest with one of those giant spider feet, he was probably dead, too. That left six.

He spotted Avery, trying to get up, and failing. He spotted Noah, in the same boat. Mason and David were with each other, and they'd managed to stand up, but the only way they could was by leaning on each other. Erica's head poked up enough from the mist, but her psycho rage was broken, and every time she tried to get up, something gave out, causing her to fall over. And Clara was below the mist, hidden, but her wolf whimpers were obvious.

Six fish in a barrel.

"Don't move," the Ripper said, gesturing to Damien with a little twirl of a finger as he slowly walked his way over to where he'd left Clara. Sure enough, she was there, alive, and clutching her ruined shoulder. The wounds David gave her had ripped open, and were bleeding everywhere. Werewolf on werewolf violence was, apparently, very effective.

He grinned down at her, and ran a single finger down his face. Bits of his skull were visible through the gashes Erica had left, he could feel it, and the look on Clara's wolf face confirmed. Yeap, he looked like a walking, talking corpse, something that should have died of its wounds but refused to. The snake vines of Kindred blood continued to flow around him, often coiling in through wounds and over visible bone, but those fucking werewolf claws were something special. His body felt like it was on fire, waves of agony that rippled through him. But he'd heal, eventually.

And he knew just who to kill to make himself feel better in the meantime.

Growling loud enough the vibration pulsed through him, he glared down at Clara with his remaining eye.

"I'll kill Erica later," he said, and he glanced her way before blowing her a kiss. "After I have some fun with her, of course. Payback, for the eye." Grinning at Erica until he saw the fear in her wolf eyes as he gestured to his wounds, he licked a fang, and looked back down at Clara. "I don't suppose you'll transform back into a human, so I can see the normal Clara's expression? I want to make sure Jack sees it, so I can bury him with the memory for the next thousand years."

Of course she didn't transform back, and the words only got more glares from her. But that was fine. Just part of the fun. And besides, her wolf eyes showed plenty of anger and fear, and would work just as well.

He kicked her in the leg hard enough something snapped, and the howl that followed was beautiful.

"Avery, gonna do something? I'm about to kill your second-in-command bitch." Never in his life did he figure he'd get as much double use out of the word bitch. "No?"

Avery tried to get up again, but something in her leg wasn't working right. Probably a wound the azlu gave her she'd been ignoring that the Ripper had reopened.

“Don’t,” Avery said, wolf voice wavering.

“Don’t? That’s it? That’s all you got?”

“Please...”

Oh good god. Laughing, he used his foot to roll Clara off her side onto her back.

“You know, I thought I’d have a speech lined up for you, Avery. Something to really seal in the deal that I’m going to kill you and your pack. Something snarky, fun, with some great imagery. But ... fuck it. I got shit to do, places to be.”

He stepped over Clara’s neck, feet on either side of her temples, and squatted down over her. She tried to swipe at him, but he backhanded the wrist of the one good arm she had left, and she yelped and whimpered as the arm fell away. Whimper turned into high pitched whine when he smashed his fist down against her face hard enough something cracked.

“Now this is the life,” he said, chuckling, and he punched her again, causing her stupid dog tongue to hang sideways out of her big snout. “Christ, you have no idea how much of a pain it’s been, having to wait months and months inside this pussy kid’s head, waiting for a chance to come out. Finally.” He punched her again, and a bunch of her teeth flew out, a splatter of blood following them onto the stone. Her eyes stared at him, tears running down her fur, and he laughed. “You nearly had him, you know? Jack. If it wasn’t for Antoinette, the two of you would have been fucking like bunnies, and even getting romantic and shit with each other. But hey, this is close, right? Instead of fucking you, he kills you.” The dread in her eyes was perfect, and he shivered with bliss as he drew back a fist.

It didn’t move.

He snarled and pushed the fist toward Clara. It didn't move. He tried harder, grinding his teeth until his vitae had to jump in to stop them from cracking. The fist didn't move.

You're not killing her.

The Ripper snarled, and as he stood back up and clutched his head, the snarl turned into a roar. He summoned the curse, the taint, the infected Beast, and poured the strength of them onto Jack. Bury him. Lock him away. Tie him up. Leave him dangling from a hook over a pit of spikes. Lock him up in a coffin and throw him into a pool of wet concrete.

But try as he might to lock the fucking kid away, he couldn't. The Ripper screamed and roared, and clutched his head as he stumbled back, single eye glaring death at Clara before snapping around. Avery was staring at him. Damien was staring at him.

“I. Will. Not. Go. Back!”

This is my body! My life! And these are my friends! My family!

“They're nothing! They're worm food! Tools to be used, or bags of meat to be fucked, drained, and butchered! You do not get to control me! You do not—”

Ripper, this is not a negotiation.

“The fuck are you ta—” The Ripper's hands lifted in front of him, and opened. He tried to close them, but they refused. He tried harder, until the blood coils slithered around his fingers to keep the bones from snapping.

Slowly, his body bent over. He poured every bit of rage he could summon, until the Beast howled and shrieked and tore his throat. But his body wouldn't listen. Muscles clenched until his joints creaked, and something inside him forced him to reach down through the mist around his feet. They found something solid.

He picked up Damien's sword.

Ever seen Fight Club?

Chapter 170

~~Eric~~

He walked over to the wall of gold, and tore at it with his claws. His claws left a scratch, but nothing more. He tried again, snarling, growling, and eventually roaring with each swing of his claws against the wall. The gate Matthew destroyed to get them into the casino, was apparently nothing compared to the strength of the walls they'd need to break through to get out.

“Quite the m-metaphor,” Natasha said. “You can get in, b-but you can't get out.”

He snapped her a harsh glare and a quick growl, which earned a growl in return from Arturo. They squared off against each other, baring their teeth and leaning in close enough to pose a threat. One wrong move and they'd rip the other's throat out.

“Stop,” Brianna said, and she snapped a bark at the both of them. “We—”

“You sent us in here,” Matthew said, throwing his own snarl at Brianna.

“There is tunnel! Connects to other casino!”

“Below us!”

Eric stamped his foot hard, and his talons dug at the crimson carpet as he glared at the others.

“Now we're trapped! What can—”

A gunshot forced the four werewolves to spin and face the source of the noise. Little Natasha, gun pointed up and away, glaring at them.

“Enough! W-We don’t have t-time for this! This casino connects to the neighbor casino, yes. But now Red T-Tide is guarding the exit, and the connecting path. We have to get back down there, and past Red Tide. How!?”

The four werewolves stared at her, each of them breathing heavy. They knew they were riding the coattails of Kuruth, and each moment they stayed in their war forms, the more likely they’d freak out, rage, and kill anything that was alive, including each other. Natasha knew it, too, from the look on her face, and she glared at each of them like a teacher royally pissed with her students.

Slowly, the four of them nodded, each of them taking deep breaths as they forced their hearts to calm. Breathe, Luna had told him. Breathe.

“Can we fight it?” she asked.

Arturo shook his head. “Maybe with whole pack. Maybe.”

That was a big maybe. As strong as Uratha were, and built from the ground up to deal with threats like spirits, they couldn’t fight spirits strong enough to control entire cities, not without exploiting its bans or using its banes. If they fought it without them, it’d take Avery’s whole pack, Flowing Sanctuary, and Eric, and a lot of luck to bring down something that big. Which made their situation really fucking problematic.

Eric looked down over the railing, and rumbled in his throat. One of the huge spirit’s red tentacles reached up, all the way up, and its tip brushed against the floor near Eric’s talons. He suppressed the urge to slash it open. No point, yet.

Tash came up beside him, careful of the tendril, and peeked down over the railing. “Can we d-distract it?”

“Easily,” Arturo said. “Red Tide is angry. Stupid. Always hungry for blood.”

“Like a vampire?” the little vampire asked. “Oh. You m-mean, it always wants to fight.”

“Yes.”

“So we b-bait it with a promise of a fight?”

“Perhaps,” Flow said. “Black Blood is forcing it to attack us, so there is uncertainty.”

As if someone tied an anchor to Natasha’s neck and threw it over the railing, her head slumped and her body tightened. Eric knew what she was going to say before she said it.

“We have to get out of here, and b-back to the physical world, to tell people what’s happening. If we can’t kill Red Tide, then someone will have to d-distract it.” She pulled her head up against the weight, and looked to Arturo.

Arturo nodded, leaned in, gave Natasha a lick on her cheek, and before she could say anything more, he jumped over the railing.

Everyone stared down over the edge of the balcony as Arturo landed on the floor below them, the third floor, and sliced at the huge red tendril still reaching up for the rest of them. Red Tide let out a bellowing roar, as if a whale had decided to bring down the walls of Jerusalem with only its voice. Everyone covered their ears except Flow, as the vibration ripped through the whole building and churned the blood lake until it boiled.

Arturo leaned over the railing long enough for Red Tide to realize who'd hurt it, before ducking away as a dozen enormous tendrils lashed out for him. The railing of gold and glass shattered, and the entire floor bent under the weight of the spirit as it pulled some of its kraken mass up out of the blood lake. The squid, octopus, monstrous entity, was deeper than the depth of the lake itself. Only maybe eight feet of blood waited below, but something far, far bigger came up and out of it, showing its giant, circular mouth, hundreds of its teeth, and two of its dark, squid-like eyes.

"I know you, Uratha," it said. "How. Dare. You. Come out and die."

However strong Red Tide was, it couldn't lift its own mass, not completely. But it wouldn't need to. With some of its tendrils pulling on the second floor and already pulling the entire balcony down, cracking and breaking the gold until it slanted down toward the bottom, once it got a good grip on the third floor balcony, the same thing would happen.

But it was distracted.

Tash reached out, and tapped each of her friends on the arm. The wolf in Eric told her she'd just used a Discipline, something invisible, something that warped and twisted air and light and perception, and told everyone and everything watching that there was nothing there to see. It was like a smell, something his human nose would never find. And hopefully since it wrapped him, Brianna, Tash, and Matthew, it'd hide them from Red Tide well enough they could slip past it.

"Go," she said.

Eric and Flow went first. There was no time to climb down the individual floors, so they did the only reasonable thing: they jumped to the bottom floor. Some of the larger machines poked up from the red waves, and with everything made of solid gold, they were strong enough to withstand his weight. Flow had a harder time, but it managed to come down as a solid, thick stream of water, spinning like a compressed tornado. If Red Tide noticed, Arturo quickly rectified that. They didn't have a chance to look back and check, but the noises Red Tide made were deafening.

Brianna and Matthew came next, both landing on the fountain bowl held up by the now drowned gold men. Only the bowl remained visible.

Eric breathed deep the smell of blood. The Hisil realm was all ephemera, nothing was made of flesh or metal, but the spirits and the realm itself did their best to emulate reality. They failed in a lot of ways, but Red Tide captured the smell of blood almost perfectly, and Eric had to force down the rising urge in his guts that told him to rip and tear. It only grew worse as he watched the colossal monster smash tendrils against the floor Arturo jumped around on.

Arturo would be fine. He was fast, and all Irraka were sneaky. Once the coast was clear, he'd run, and live to hunt another day. The rest of them, on the other hand, were dead if Red Tide turned around.

Tash jumped down last, and Flow softened her impact with an arm of water. The little vampire landed, wetter now, but otherwise without a sound, and the five of them scanned the area for a path. The flood of blood wasn't uniform. Certain areas were higher, especially all the areas around Red Tide itself, like when Flow managed its body when moving over floors and ground. There were patches of floor visible with no blood, but too far to reach. And whatever tunnel door existed between the two casinos, it was probably nearby, and buried in red. The casino exit they'd come in from was their only option.

Eric pointed to another gambling machine, some exaggerated, ridiculous gold box. They all nodded, and everyone took turns jumping to the machine. Flow first, again turning into a spiraling tornado of water that bounced on the machine, and shot off into the distance closer to the exit, where no blood waited. They all looked Red Tide's way, but it didn't notice. Natasha next, following Flow's example. Then Brianna, and Eric. It was a hard jump, and Eric didn't like how the huge gold box teetered slightly when he jumped off it.

Finally came Matthew. When the huge werewolf landed on the gold machine, it teetered over, and crashed into the lake of blood. They'd managed to put a decent distance between themselves and the kraken, so the blood around the machine was only a foot deep. But it was more than enough to launch a huge wave of blood in all directions as the giant gold machine crashed into it.

Red Tide ceased its constant roaring, and spun around, sending glass shards everywhere as its dozen tendrils ripped the railings of the third floor aside before they slammed into the blood with the creature. It glared at them with one of its giant eyes, and again slammed its tendrils, causing waves of crimson to spike up around it.

“Uratha should die. Meddlers. Forsaken.”

That word. Forsaken. It shot fire up Eric's veins, and he took a step toward the creature. But a small hand on his elbow stopped him.

“Let's go!” the little vampire said.

He growled as he turned, and the group ran for the exit, now a giant hole from when Red Tide had smashed through it to get in. But they already knew what would happen. A wave of red crashed against them, hard, and threw them all into the chaos of crimson rapids. Flow let out an inhuman shriek before Red Tide's body overtook it, and its blue waters disappeared beneath the waves.

“Flow!” Matthew said, and jumped back to his feet. Eric managed to stay on his feet long enough to look to the goliath werewolf, but the waves flipped Eric over a second later. Matthew, on the other hand, had enough weight that he rushed through the waves fast enough to reach them, and intercept a giant, red log.

Not a log. One of the kraken's tendrils came slamming down from above, but Matthew stood in its way, and caught the oncoming behemoth limb before it hit the back of Natasha. The little vampire spun around long enough to realize it, and stared. Matthew had managed to stay standing. The titan slashed his arms to the side, and his claws ripped through the tendril, sending a splatter of blood the same color as the crimson that surrounded them into the drink.

But another tendril came sideways, crashed into Matthew's side, and smashed him into the ticket booth. More glass shattered, and rained down on them and the blood like sand.

"Kill," Red Tide said. "Kill Uratha. I can. Permission. Kill."

Eric found something to get his claws on, one of the giant oversized slot machines, buried in six feet of crimson. He pulled himself up over the surface of the rapids, only to find one of the tendrils pushing under the crimson, creating an enormous wave as it smashed through the slot machines and sent them flying. Eric climbed on top of his machine, and launched himself upward as the tendril swept the machines aside. He landed on the second floor balcony, but it was uneven flooring, damaged and ripped into chunks from when Red Tide was trying to catch Arturo. He had to climb, and before he could find a good foothold, another tendril smashed against the second floor, directly beside him.

The floor shattered. The world turned upside down as he fell down into the crimson water, and went under.

---

~~Natasha~~

"Matthew!"

Her words were cut short. Crimson buried her, and she closed her eyes as the heavy liquid smashed her back against the gold gate Matthew tore threw earlier, now pushed even further aside by Red Tide's earlier entrance. She was light enough she held onto the gate, and when the waves passed by, she climbed up the metal until she was near the ceiling of the first floor, blood churning around her legs.

Matthew. Where was Matthew? The wolf stood there, glaring at Red Tide, somehow having blocked the absurd attack, but Red Tide's next attack sent the werewolf flying, and poor Matthew's huge body smashed into several of the slot machines hard enough they bent. Glowing coins spewed out of the machine and into the red liquid, and Matthew groaned as he eventually managed to stand up from the red lake. His left arm was backward.

Natasha pulled out her pistol, and shot every bullet in the magazine as fast as she could, straight at Red Tide's face. Whether the ephemera blood of the spirit's body didn't technically wet the pistol, or she got lucky, she didn't know, but the pistol worked fine. Unfortunately it was just a 9mm, and the bullets couldn't penetrate the monster's hide. They hurt it, enough it pointed one of its eyes at her, and charged.

It was like watching a tsunami of blood, coming straight at her.

Before Red Tide could smash her into the gate and through it, turning her into spaghetti cinders, Arturo leapt down from the third floor balcony, and landed on Red Tide's body. The creature bellowed and twisted, turning around with surprising speed, tendrils slapping the red lake even as they smashed pillars and gold machines hard enough to shatter them. The floors above collapsed, and fell into the lake around Red Tide, and all the while Art ripped and tore at its body. Tash's bullets couldn't penetrate it, but werewolf claws could.

Brianna erupted from the blood, next to Natasha.

“Brianna! We n-need to—”

The werewolf let out her own challenging roar, and charged Red Tide. Oh no.

“Matthew! We—”

The huge werewolf’s limbs snapped into place, and once he could stand up again, Matthew followed Brianna’s example. Oh no no no.

Another werewolf came up from under the blood. Eric! Before she could even call his name, the werewolf ran at Red Tide as best he could, red liquid parting against his waist. Every single wolf roared, like a chorus, and the three werewolves in the crimson jumped at Red Tide. Matthew managed to jump over one of the tendrils, but Eric and Brianna were thrown aside harder than if a bus had hit them going fifty.

Okay, everything was going from bad to worse. The werewolves were going berserk, and without them, she wasn’t getting out of the shadow realm; wasn’t like she was going to leave her boyfriends behind anyway. Where was Flow?

“Flow! Flow!” She jumped down in the red water. With Red Tide distracted, it only reached her knees, most of its mass pulled toward the center of the huge casino, in the empty space between all the balconies above. “Flow! Come on, I n-need you.”

A patch of water floated in the crimson, close to the torn open gate. Like oil on water.

“Flow!” Tash managed to get to it, and she reached down for it, but her fingers passed through it, unable to grab it. “Flowing Sanctuary!”

Some weird groaning noises came out of the water, and two glowing white eyes appeared. But that was all. No body, no giant mist arms or mystical wings, or any of the swirling tornado water Flow normally used as a body. Still alive, but couldn't form. Did it need time? Did it need Red Tide to leave, so it wasn't surrounded by its blood body again?

“What do I do what do I do.” She pulled out her sword and clutched it tight as she looked back at Red Tide. Arturo wasn't on its head any longer, now wrapped in one of its tendrils. But Red Tide's grip didn't last long, as Brianna came up from the blood underneath the tendril and got her teeth into the limb. Blood squirted out of the red leathery tentacle, and it only got bloodier as Brianna got her claws into it and tore through it.

Red Tide didn't expect that. It didn't expect Uratha to give it so much trouble, judging from how it slammed its tendrils, like an upset toddler. It shrieked and roared, like some sort of angry whale, again loud enough that the blood lake churned and vibrated. It swung the tendril as it let go of Art, and the werewolf crashed into the sloped floor of the broken, collapsing second floor balcony. A second later, he was up, and jumping down at the kraken yet again.

Red Tide saw it coming this time, and slapped Arturo out of the air, sending him soaring until he landed near Natasha. She covered her eyes with her forearm as the wave of crimson hit her and knocked her on her ass. When she lowered it, Arturo was half standing, half leaning against a wall, arm broken, and one of his legs too.

“Art! Stop!”

Arturo glared at her, and she froze. She recognized that look. Matthew had given her that look once, when they'd been trapped in the tunnels beneath Dolareido. Arturo had managed to calm him down while Matt tried to rip their way free through mountains of rubble, but it'd been clear the larger man had been a hair's breadth away from going berserk. It was easy to forget how volatile Uratha were when the violence started.

Art growled through clenched teeth before he looked back to Red Tide. His ears stood up, and he stumbled to the side, like a wolf trying to get into a better position before the prey charged into it. Red Tide was coming.

Tash stared up at the huge monster as it came for them. Matthew and Brianna were stuck between being wrapped in, or currently fighting, a giant tendril each, their claws tearing into the huge limbs that were crushing them. Eric bit and ripped another, but Red Tide managed to ignore him long enough to look straight at Tash and Arturo. And it charged.

Arturo scrambled, not in fear, but with frustration. His limbs weren't working, and every inch of him wanted to attack Red Tide. Red Tide knew it. It rushed them hard and fast, and Tash covered her face with her arm as she prepared to get thrown around like a ragdoll. If the huge kraken broke the limbs of Uratha like it was nothing, there was a good chance it was going to turn her into kindling.

Blinding white light buried her instead.

She let out a squeak as the light snuck around her forearms and punched through her eyelids, and she braced for inevitable death. Sunlight? Fire? What happened?

Her eyes adjusted eventually, and she lowered her arm. Not dead? Nope, still alive. A quick peek left and right showed she was still in the same place, despite the white light that now covered everything. She looked down, and gulped. Something was underneath her, glowing gold slightly. It was behind her. It was beside her, and above her.

She looked up.

“F-Flow?”

“No.” The angel face smiled at her, glowing white eyes similar to Flowing Sanctuary, but on a face that looked more like a ball of white light, now gentle enough to not burn her eyes.

“S ... Safe? Of Grey Street?”

The angel smiled. Its face and its body looked like they were made of solid gold light, human shaped but without any defining features. Two white eyes and a white, tiny smile, were the only facial features against a blank canvas of glowing gold. Behind it, two angel wings spread out, the same gold as its body, and they were massive.

Its stomach was open, sorta, gold body having encompassed around Natasha in a bubble. Safe almost looked like a pregnant woman, holding a sphere that connected to her stomach, with Tash safely inside.

“B-But, you’re...”

This was not the Safe of Grey Street she remembered. Safe looked like an egg, with wings! She, er, it had been an egg with wings, both the first time Tash ever saw it, and the last time, though it’d been a much bigger the second time. And, the last time, Tash did see the hints of something ... human-ish inside the egg.

“I have a new name,” Safe said, hints of femininity in its otherwise powerful, multi-layered voice. It almost sounded like a choir. “Sanctuary, of Dolareido.”

“Sanctuary?” Tash gulped as she stared up at the angel, and then peeked down behind her at the pool of water also named Sanctuary.

Nodding, Sanctuary released its protective bubble. Its arms spread out, letting it go, and the light of the sphere fell away, like a flower opening up to bloom. The rolls of gold gently flowed back into the angel's stomach, and once again, the angel had the slim figure of a tall, muscular woman.

It turned around, leaving Natasha standing behind it, and it faced Red Tide.

“Cease, Red Tide. These Uratha and Kindred are under my protection, as is Flowing Sanctuary.”

Red Tide had already ceased, stunned by the interference. It stared at Sanctuary, weird mouth half under the blood and churning it like a slow motor.

“Black Blood and I. Arrangement. I kill.”

“Black Blood does not own Dolareido, and you know it.”

“We have a pact!”

Sanctuary spread its wings, and tiny bits of gold dust fell from them onto the floor around it. Red Tide hissed and pulled back, and the red lake it brought with it pulled back as well. Flow, now a puddle, came to a stop on the casino floor.

The werewolves stared at Sanctuary with dropped jaws. Its radiance must have broke through their berserking, because each of them stopped biting and tearing at Red Tide. But Red Tide still had two of them in its grip.

“Then we are at an impass,” Sanctuary said. “I will defend Dolareido, and give sanctuary to those who need, and deserve it. Black Blood will destroy this city, and you are helping ... him.”

Him? Everyone had trouble figuring how to call spirits' gender, because sometimes they did look masculine or feminine. But the Uratha insisted they were all 'its', and that included Black Blood. Didn't it?

If Black Blood really was Mictlantecuhtli, then, that made sense. A very weird sense, but, sense.

Red Tide roared again, and slashed out with two of its tendrils, straight for Sanctuary. Sanctuary did not move. It held out its hands, and more gold light erupted from them, a wall of light, curved, like the one that'd encompassed Tash earlier. The tsunami of blood crashed against it, and Sanctuary did not falter. Waves of red shot out to the sides, blocked by the huge barrier, and Tash stared through the gold wall at the endless flood that could not reach her.

Arturo could, though. His body passed through the barrier, as if it were a sift blocking anything not alive.

“Art!” Tash let out another squeak as she ran over to him. “Art, you—”

“Alive,” he said, voice a guttural growl. He forced himself to his feet, and stared through the gold barrier at the waves of blood that continued to crash against it. His eyes were wide. “Must save others.” Alive, but barely out of Kuruth, if he couldn't formulate a sentence.

The others! Eric had managed to get out of Red Tide's way, and was standing on the fountain, beside the Kraken. Matthew and Brianna were still in its grip, though, and while Red Tide was distracted, it was still tightening its grip on the two wolves.

“Jessy, now,” Sanctuary said.

“Jessy!? W-What—”

Tash and Arturo both fell back as a blast of wind and light crashed against them. Sanctuary pushed its barrier forward, and it erupted, an explosion that cut through the blood and parted it, all too similar to another scene from The Ten Commandments. Whatever Sanctuary did, it was big, and it sent the blood to the sides of the casino hard enough it pushed over hundreds of gold machines, and launched thousands of glowing coins through the air.

The blast wave hit Red Tide hard, and the creature roared as it stumbled back. It was so big, stumble wasn't the right word, more like a giant slab of concrete getting pushed along the ground by a hurricane. Whatever Sanctuary threw at Red Tide, its giant squid-octopus-kraken body smashed against the back wall of the casino.

Something on four legs ran past Tash, and she almost slashed at it out of reflex. But it went past her, straight up to Red Tide, and up its face. It wasn't very big, not as big as a werewolf, but it was big enough that the spikes on its body tore through Red Tide's squid face, and pulled another giant roar of pain from the monster. It got the kraken in one of its eyes!

Red Tide's roar turned into an alien shriek, and its tendrils went wild, slashing at everything nearby, and letting go of its two hostages. The werewolves flew in random directions, both crashing against walls before falling into the blood. They didn't stay there long. Sanctuary darted over to them, wings carrying it far faster than it should have been able to fly, and it wrapped Matthew and Brianna in gold bubbles, before taking them back over to Tash and Art.

Before Tash could say anything, Sanctuary did it again, and grabbed Eric and ... Jessy! And brought them to Tash.

"Let's go," Sanctuary said, and again, it smiled at Tash. "Quickly."

"R-Right." She got up and made for the exit. It really wasn't much of an exit anymore. The gold gate was mostly gone, and Red Tide had smashed through the revolving doors, and put a hole maybe thirty feet wide in the gold wall. Like an octopus, it'd fit its body through a hole far smaller than it, to get into the casino.

Everyone went into automatic mode. Eric helped with Brianna, Arturo helped with Matthew, and Jessy ran beside Natasha, still on all fours. It was her strangest form, an animal form she'd developed years ago, something like a giant wolf, but covered in spikes. She still had a human-ish face though, with a snout and teeth way too big, making the whole form terrifying.

“How!?” Tash yelled as they got outside into the blood soaked streets.

“Safe came and found me,” Jessy said. “I was trapped under some rubble, and one of those blood wraiths found me when I finally got out. It saved me.”

“Saf—Sanctuary came?”

“It's been trying to stop Black Blood for a little while now, I guess. It came 'cause it knew something was up, what with Red Tide wrecking everything.”

Tash looked behind her at the angel. And it was an angel. Sanctuary followed behind them, with Flow at its side, a little tornado of water, barely more than five feet tall, half its usual size. It looked drained.

“Quickly,” Sanctuary said. “The tear, right? In here.” It ushered them to the right, and they dashed in.

They came in through the revolving doors of another casino, and went through the same process as before. A shocked spirit told them they needed a ticket, they ignored it, and tore through the gold fence blocking off the rest of the casino.

“Where's the basement?” Tash asked.

Arturo pointed to the staircase, on the other side of the casino.

They got five feet before the wall between the casino they were in, and the casino they'd just escaped from, cracked, like an earthquake ripping a canyon through the Earth.

---

~~The Ripper~~

“You can’t.”

I can.

“Bullshit. I am in control. I am in control!” He tried to let go of the sword. Every drop of will and vitae he could find, he poured into the hand. Let go of the sword. Let go of the sword.

When I realized what I had to do, I found a way, you fucking asshole. There’s no way I’m letting this continue.

The hand holding the sword slowly pointed the long blade toward him. It was too long to point the blade at his chest, not with his hand on the handle, but that wasn’t Jack’s goal anyway. Apparently, the kid was thinking nuclear.

“You’re just a fucking kid. A child! A stupid, useless, worthless, weak maggot!”

Julias knew differently.

Slowly, the longsword found its way to his neck. The Ripper pushed, twisted, writhed and fought, but all it accomplished was the sharp blade sawing gently against the blood barrier along his neck. The blood barrier was fading. Somehow, despite all the energy and rage the Ripper poured into the coiling dark crimson snakes that made him a god, the fucking kid was weakening it.

“You won’t, you fucking little shit. You won’t leave your precious Miss Big Tits behind. You won’t leave your—”

They’re all dead if I let you live. Antoinette will understand.

“You ... won’t ... have ... me!”

Shit shit shit shit shit. He squeezed the handle harder, until his arm trembled, bones threatening to break, but the fucking kid kept the blade where it was.

The Ripper looked around, panic surging through him. Someone had to stop him, save the kid from killing him and himself. Sándor? Dude was still clutching his head like something had popped inside it. Damien? That dude was one step away from collapsing into torpor. The werewolves? The ones that managed to get their heads above the mist were either coughing up blood and falling right back down, or were staring at him, shocked, and looked about as ready to move as Damien. Fucking useless and weak, every last one of them. What fucking good were they now, if they couldn’t stop Jack!? Useless!

He managed to get his second hand on the sword, but it didn’t help, dooming the second hand to squeeze and shake violently, but accomplish nothing.

“Someone fucking stop me! Stop me before this fucking kid kills himself!” Again he stared around at the group of useless fucking shits he’d annihilated, but every last one of them stared on. One of the wrecked werewolves managed to get their ruined head above the mist, and they stared at him too, as dumbfounded as the rest of them. Clara.

Looking up didn’t help. Some of the ghosts were back, including Sabrina, and she stared down at him even more confused than the fucking mouth breathers. Fucking useless!

He forced his legs to move, until he managed to get himself over to one of the giant pillars of stone, and smacked his head against it. Jack refused to let him summon enough strength to so much as rattle his brain, let alone knock him into torpor. He tried again, and again, but it wasn’t long before Jack forced him to walk away from the pillar, all while forcing the blade against his neck harder, and harder. The only thing that kept it from cutting straight through, was every fucking ounce of will the Ripper had.

I'm sure Antoinette is doing something to save the others, and to stop Jacob. Maybe she'll succeed, maybe she won't. But none of it will matter if an evil like you is around to ruin it. I don't know what Elaine's done with my blood, but I know it didn't have a copy of the curse in it. And as far as she's aware, the only one left of Susanna's bloodline with the curse, is me. So, it dies with me.

“You ... can't! You fucking can't! I will not ... end ... like ... this! I will go down fighting! Swinging! I will die with my fingers around the throat of God! I will not die to a shit ... like ... you!”

Yeah. Go fuck yourself.

The blade sank deeper.

“Jack?”

The blade stopped.

The Ripper and Jack looked to the sound. A voice they recognized, raspy and twisted, but familiar all the same.

“Mary?”

Mary the ghost hovered on the mist maybe fifty feet away, her black empty eyes wide, staring, confused. Beside her stood Beatrice and Athalia, also staring, confused. Everyone so damn fucking useless.

“Jack, what the fu—” Beatrice, halfway to taking a step forward, took a step back. “Ripper.”

The Ripper snarled at her. Mistake. Jack slid the blade a little deeper against the side of his throat.

“I ... can’t ... stop him!”

“Stop him? The fuck are you talking about? You—” With a snarl of her own, Beatrice jogged over to him, but came to a stop ten feet away, afraid to get closer. “Jack ... Ripper, what the fuck?”

“Stupid kid. Stupid fucking kid. He ... he ... won’t ... get his way! It’s mine!”

“It’s my body! My life!” Jack’s voice, cutting through. “I won’t let you use it to hurt anyone else.”

“You don’t deserve it. Weak, stupid, worthless kid. Just a dumb fucking pussy, pathetic. You let everyone walk all over you. You let stupid people run things. You’re a fucking bitch.”

“You’re a monster.” Again the stupid little maggot’s voice cut through. “A movie monster of the week. Just a kid’s impulses on steroids. No substance, no real motivation, just a pile of desires! Fuck you, you don’t get to do what you want.”

The blade slid a little further.

“Jack!” Mary hovered in close, close enough to touch him, and she did. She took the sword, and yanked it from his hands with enough force she nearly broke his fingers. Holy shit she was strong.

“Mary—” His head snapped. “Fucking don’t—” His head snapped again. “You don’t get to—” Another snap. “It’s mine!”

Beatrice came a little closer. “What do we do? Jack, tell us—”

The Ripper let out a roar, causing Mary to squeak and drop the sword, and for Triss to jump back. But she was way too slow, and he got his fingers around her neck. The look in her eyes as she realized what he was about to do was euphoric.

“You die.”

---

~~Beatrice~~

But his fingers didn't squeeze. He tried, tried until his body made weird little cracking sounds, but his fingers didn't squeeze, thank fuck. Once Triss calmed down, she slowly pulled his fingers away from her neck. It was like trying to bend the fingers of a corpse with rigor mortis, but she managed to get him off and backed away.

“Jesus fucking christ.” She held her neck with both hands as she looked to Athalia. “Jesus ... fucking christ.”

Athalia came closer, looking around, eyes locked on Sándor for a moment before looking back to Jack.

“The fuck did you do to Sándor?” Athalia asked before Triss could. Oh god, Sándor. The poor guy stood there holding his head like it was about to explode.

The Ripper grinned at Athalia, but when he tried to reach out for her, his arms refused to move, twitching oddly.

“Kill—don't kill—fucking do—fucking die—I'll—” He snapped his gaze back to Sándor, then Athalia and Mary, then Triss. Yeah, this was a Gollum situation. Sorta. Kid was straight up fighting the Ripper like split personalities fighting over the body.

Where the fuck was his necklace? Hell, where the fuck was his skin? He looked burnt, cut open, clawed open, bit open by teeth, and she did not like that she could see bits of his skull. The fact he only had one eye made it a thousand times worse.

“Sándor?” Athalia asked. “What’s going on? You ... Are you alright?”

He didn’t respond. Just, groaned. That dude never made a sound unless he really fucking meant it.

“Athalia, Mary,” Triss said, “can you hold Ja—er, the Ripper still?”

The two looked between each other for a few painful seconds before nodding.

The Ripper snarled with enough venom it probably tore up his voice. “Fuck you, you can’t—” Giant, skeleton shadow hands encircled him, and at the same time, Mary came up to him and set her hands on his shoulders.

“Jack,” the ghost said, voice somewhere between a gentle whisper and a fucked up, raspy, scary thing. “Jack.” Her grip was solid, here in the Great Below, considering what she did to Aaron. She could hold him. Maybe.

Triss wanted to watch, to see what would happen, but for now she had another concern. Sándor. She came up to him and touched his shoulder, but he didn’t so much as flinch. His eyes were closed, and he was shivering.

“W-What happened?” Triss asked. “I—” She looked around, and gulped. Now that the Ripper wasn’t the center of her attention, everything else clicked. There were ghosts hovering above, and one of them, a girl, was holding a knife, and she looked very angry. There were werewolves standing around, but it looked like it took everything they had left just to do that. Damien’s face was a crater. “Who did all this?”

“I did,” the Ripper said, chuckling. “I never got the chance to finish Dominating the gargyle. Alas, I tore his brain up on the way out.” He had one of those super sick, twisted laughs, the kind that let you know the guy probably jerked off to videos of people getting run over by trains.

“Sándor, dude.” Triss took his shoulders and turned him to face her. Still no response, still closed eyes. “Sándor ... come on, man. It’s me, Triss. Got Athalia with me. We came to ... rescue you.” She gulped as she looked around again. Damien and the werewolves were trying to move closer, but only the vampire managed to cross ground, and she’d seen snails move faster. She gave Sándor a gentle shake. “Dude, come on. You’re scaring me. The fuck did that fucker do to you?”

The Ripper’s sick laugh cut through the silence. “He’s—He’s hurt, and—I fucked him up and—” Jack’s head thrashed around hard, and he clenched his teeth as he snarled. A human would have been foaming at the mouth. “I am me. I am mine. You won’t have me. You won’t hurt anyone else. You are nothing but a parasite. You are nothing.”

Holy shit, the kid looked like he was exorcising a demon, eye glaring around at everyone. More head snapping. More grunts and groans. Everyone froze, even more than they already had, as the kid writhed and squirmed in the ghost and Begotten’s grip. From the way Athalia and Mary were shaking, they were having trouble holding him. Oh shit oh shit.

A few yells. One scream, the sort you heard on a battlefield a thousand years ago, when people with shield and spear charged the front line. And then silence.

“Bring him over here,” the kid said, slowly lifting his head and looking to Triss with his one eye. “I’ll see if I can fix him.”

Triss blinked at Jack, or the Ripper or whoever it was, before looking back to Sándor. She might as well have been talking to a wall, trying to penetrate whatever was happening inside his head.

“I uh, not sure I want you in his head again. He—”

“He’ll recover,” the Ripper, or Jack said, “with time. But we don’t have time. Bring him over here and I’ll do some quick clean up. The Ripper damaged the place where we make conscious connections.”

“The white place?” She’d met her Beast there, sorta. She went there sometimes when learning Crúac rituals.

“Basically, yeah. I have to Dominate him, and try and fix him. Fix what the Ripper did. I won’t let the Ripper touch him. I won’t. I won’t. I won’t. I won’t.” He growled deep in his throat. “Enough! Enough! I won’t!”

Oh sweet Jesus fuck. Whatever battle Jack was having inside his head, it looked like he was winning, but it could have been a trick. But, the fuck were they supposed to do? Athalia and Mary wouldn’t be able to hold him, and if they did nothing, they were fucked anyway.

“What do you think, Athalia?” Triss asked.

“I can get us to the portal, to where Black Blood is performing its ritual. But...” She looked up at where the ghosts were. Were. They were gone. “We need Sándor’s help.”

“Agreed.” Nodding, Triss grabbed the man’s arm, and pulled him toward Jack. He didn’t resist, but didn’t help either, completely unaware of what was happening outside his head.

Damien stared on, still too exhausted to do shit. He’d gotten closer, and when she looked his way, all he gave her was a small nod. He agreed with the plan, then, or didn’t have the energy to argue with it. Good enough for her.

The walk from Sándor to Jack wasn’t long, but it felt like an eternity. Her foot hit something, and she gulped as she leaned down enough to see through the mist directly at her feet. She shouldn't have. The smell had been warning enough, but she was a dumb fuck who wanted to see. That, was Monica, human Monica, with a hole straight through her throat.

Triss glared at the Ripper, but it didn't last. His face switched between maniacal villain to distraught kid every second, completely ruining any anger she could summon. Seeing Sándor fucked up had pulled her rage right up to the skin, but again, watching Jack struggle with the curse blew it all away. Poor kid.

Once she got Sándor close, Athalia tightened her grip on him with her big skeleton arms, but they all knew it was superfluous. She and Mary might be able to hold the Ripper for maybe a whole five seconds if shit went bad. Might. Worst of all, they all had to avoid making eye contact. It was fine if the Ripper looked at them, but if they looked him in the eye, he could make the connection, and then they'd have to deal with the fucker in a willpower battle. Which was exactly what he was looking to do with Sándor.

She came in close, and closer, until she was only five feet away from the kid, outside of possible kicking distance.

“How do I—”

“Open his eyes.”

Fucking christ. She took a deep, useless breath, reached up over Sándor's forehead, and pulled up on his eyes. They were bloodshot.

The dude stopped struggling. No moving, no squirming, nothing. He didn't lower his hands from his head, but he did come to a complete freeze, eyes pointed straight at Jack. And Jack, or the Ripper or whoever, didn't move a muscle either. They both came to a complete standstill.

Which was naturally when the fucking ghosts made an appearance again. One of them popped up from the mist, and tackled Damien to the floor, earning a gargled holler from him. Another tackled Avery, and the old wolf went down with a yelp. The other werewolves went down a second later, hidden in the mist, but the noises of ghost fists punching flesh, earning roars and harsh groans, were everywhere.

“Shit! Shit shit shit.” She let go of Sándor, and thank god the man stayed where he was. “The fuck do we do? The fu—Mary!? Mary, where are you?” She was gone, vanished, like a fucking ... ghost. “Athalia, the fuck do we do!?”

“I don’t know! I’m a bit busy!”

Shit. Shit fucking shit. Whatever Jack was doing, Dominating Sándor to somehow play repairman, she had no idea how long it’d take. Mental stuff usually took seconds, maybe thirty, but the fuck did she know? It was pretty fucking unique circumstances.

So, she did the only thing she could think of. She ran over to Damien, and—jumped back when Mary came up out of the mist.

The ghost that’d been punching Damien came up out of the mist with her, and Mary had her fingers around the ghost’s throat. Not like ghosts needed to breathe, but whatever it was Mary was doing, it wasn’t choking. The ghost screamed and cried in her grip, but Mary stared into the empty eyes of her fellow dead with her own, and squeezed harder.

The ghost, just some random dude, probably from the nineties, withered away in her grip. Bits of white came off the ghost’s body, especially the ghost’s face, and as Mary unleashed a banshee shriek, the mist exploded outward and away from them ten feet in all directions. The ghost in her grip cried out, but it was a dying sound, getting weaker by the moment. Whoever Mary was killing, she was actually killing them, a ghost. You didn’t need to be a fucking exorcist to recognize one ghost absorbing the other, complete with skin and body and clothes and everything getting sucked into Mary's open mouth like she was a literal black hole.

One minute, there was a man struggling in her grip. The next, everything that ghost had been, became a puff of white fog that went down Mary's gullet. The mist around Mary, burying the stone again, and Mary floated a few feet up as she looked around at the other ghosts. Somehow, her giant, empty, black eye sockets, and scary big mouth filled with increasingly numerous, increasingly sharp teeth, looked ... happy? Excited?

No, Triss recognized the look. She'd seen it a few times, on more normal faces. The excited hunger vampires got when they were about to feed.

The other ghosts came up out of the mist, and came at Mary, showing the same fucked up expressions.

"Free!" one of them said.

"Free! Black Blood will free us!"

"No more weight!"

"No more darkness!"

Oh fuck, they'd made a deal with Black Blood. Now it made a lot more sense why a bunch of ghosts were suddenly jumping into the mix.

"Mary," Triss said, "we should—"

Mary dove at the ghosts, and ripped into them, literally. Claws came out of her fingers, just like Beatrice's, and she ripped the ghosts into puffs of cloud and fog. They screamed with each slice and each chunk that came off them, as if Mary's claws were made of acid, and the screaming only grew worse when she gobbled up the chunks. Down the hatch, like a fucking eagle snatching another bird straight out of the sky.

It was a slaughter. The other ghosts had their fists, but Mary's features were growing scarier and scarier by the second. Her teeth grew longer, and now she had more of them. Her eyes had always been large, black voids, partly see-through like the rest of her, but one glance into them now had Triss frozen. Now they looked more like ... endless space, like oblivion.

“Die!”

Triss blinked at Mary, but Mary's mouth hadn't moved. That wasn't her voice.

Everyone spun around. Another ghost came out of the mist, a woman, and she lunged straight for Jack. She had a knife in her hand.

“Mary!” Athalia said. “Do—”

Mary swooped down like a fucking jet, straight down at Jack, and collided with the girl hard enough the whole area exploded outward with mist. It felt like a hard gust of wind, and Triss took a step back as the fog washed over her.

Mary had stopped the ghost, hands holding her wrists, and was matching death glare with death glare.

“Sabrina,” Mary said, voice a raspy hiss.

“Mary! Let go! Jack should die for killing the master. Him, and his family, and that includes you!” Sabrina struggled against Mary, and while neither hovering girl had legs below the knee, it looked like they were both bracing against the ground as they pushed against each other.

Her argument wasn't very compelling.

“Black Blood sent you.”

“Of course! Freedom is—”

“Before! I meant before! When I was just ... just new, and hiding in my home, and you came up from the ground and spoke to me! You wanted to be my friend, but it was a lie! You were trying to get close to Jack!”

“Yes! The stupid boy should die! He killed the master! He killed my love!”

Their voices grew louder and harsher, until everyone was wincing with the nails-on-chalkboard shrieks, everyone except Sándor and Jack. They were still off in Lala Land. Everyone else covered their ears as the two ghosts screamed at each other loud enough the mist that reformed around them rippled. But as much as Triss wanted to get away before she lost her eardrums, she stared on as Mary changed more, and more. Her mouth grew bigger, lips peeling away slightly, just enough to show off a few more of her crazy teeth. It made her mouth look scarier than Triss's.

Triss expected Sabrina to freak out, but the other ghost only returned the shrieking and screaming, and a few of her features changed as well. Her hair raised and grew longer, and turned into tendrils that hovered in the air behind her. She grew claws of her own, and the clothes on her body grew looser, and weirder, until they looked less like clothes and more like dirty rags that grew out of her skin.

Mary was right behind her. Her mouth only got more monstrous, lips splitting back further until her cheeks were gone, and all that was left was sharp teeth. Her eyes raised at the outer corners, turning into slanted, big slits. Her clothes, already a torn mess, ripped even more, until the strips dangled from her and hovered in the air like Sabrina's hair. More and more of the clothes shifted, breaking and molding together, until they'd changed into strange rags that hung off her arms and chest, hiding her legs entirely.

Neither of them looked human anymore.

Athalia moved away from Sabrina, but she had to keep Jack where he was, next to Sándor. Her options on where she could go were limited. She did manage to cover her ears at least, even while her Horror's silhouette arms stayed outstretched and held Jack firmly in two giant hands.

"Mary," Triss said, but she couldn't bring her voice above a whisper, and it disappeared under the screaming.

Sabrina spun the knife in her hand into a reverse grip, and yanked hard on her arm, pulling it down enough to stab Mary's wrist. Mary's scream increased in pitch, but otherwise kept going, endless. She didn't need to breathe. She didn't even need air to make noise at all. It was an unending string of screams that crossed the line from noise, into an actual attack that hurt everyone nearby, including the two ghosts.

"You won't touch him!" Mary screamed, and she raked her left hand down, the one Sabrina had stabbed. Apparently the knife hadn't hurt her enough to stop her from using the arm. Or, she was a ghost, and the actual location of the damage didn't matter. Either way, Mary sliced her claws down Sabrina's chest, and Sabrina twisted as she tried to escape, her right hand now free.

But Mary kept her right hand's grip tight on Sabrina's left hand, and yanked the woman close again. Sabrina didn't see that coming, and got whipped around hard, right into Mary's left hand. Again, Mary raked her claws down Sabrina's torso, and this time they went deep enough they left scars several inches deep in the ghosts see-through body.

“He killed Master! He—”

Mary drove her hand into Sabrina’s gut, and ripped her claws up through it until they came out of Sabrina’s face. Triss braced for gore, but all that happened was a bunch of weird ghost stuff splitting apart like snow. That, and Sabrina’s shrieking coming to a sudden stop.

Mary wasted no time, and opened her big, horrifying mouth, and sucked Sabrina in, or her body, or whatever it was. The white see-through misty ghost stuff went into her mouth, like a vacuum cleaner sucking up dirt from the floor. And just like that, she was gone.

Everyone stared at Mary as the horrifying creature quickly turned to face Jack, and hovered over to him.

“No one will touch you or Mom,” she said, whispering, but her voice still a shrill mess of rasps and weird nails-on-chalkboard scratches. “No one. No one. No one.” Her claws found his head, and she stroked his short hair. “No one.”

Slowly, Mary turned her head, and set her giant, slitted black eyes on Athalia.

Athalia gulped, let Jack go, and the silhouette of the Horror faded away. Slowly, she backed up, wincing as she did. She was still hurt from her tussle with Aaron.

Triss came a little closer, and when Mary didn’t throw her the same evil glare she’d thrown Athalia, she came closer again.

“Jack’s currently on a trip in Sándor’s mind, Mary,” Triss said.

“How long?”

“Not sure. Should be done by now.” And thank fucking god it took longer than expected. If Jack saw what Mary had done, how the fuck would he react? Thankful? Terrified?

Jack, or maybe the Ripper, slowly turned his head and looked her way. She looked right back at him.

---

~~Jack~~

It wasn't easy. Finding the will and determination to put a sword to his own throat, was not easy. But buried in his own mind, watching the Ripper ruin everything? He fucking found it, found the spark in him, the drive, whatever it was people found when the bullets started flying, and they needed to run up that beach.

Julias was right about him.

“Fuck you! You're just an ant! You'll never—”

“Shut up.”

Jack slammed the cellar door on the giant creature. The curse, whatever magical Strix powers it gave him, it turned all the crap happening in his mind into metaphors he could see, at least whenever the Beast and mental Disciplines were involved. Conscious awareness of all the stupid crap that was supposed to be done by the Beast's power, subconsciously. It fucking sucked.

Supposedly, Triss had seen the same place before, the white room, some place in the mind where the consciousness and the Beast interacted, and could even do some weird magical shit. She'd remembered it, probably because of some Crúac weirdness. Maybe this weird conscious awareness of what was happening in the mind was what gurus talked about, when they talked about enlightenment? Or maybe he just had a super active imagination.

Case in point, his imagination summoned a really creepy looking cabin in the woods, with white wood boards for walls, a shitty wooden floor, boarded up windows with dusty old white curtains, and furniture and decor that came straight out of the Great Depression. A mounted buck head on the wall, a fireplace with a chimney, and a rug that had all the shades of white and brown that only someone who'd bought a car when they came with built-in ashtrays would own.

And in the corner of the room, was a big cellar door on the floor, with a big chain over it, keeping it closed. Mostly closed. The curse smashed up against the cellar door, opening it a few inches, and shaking the chain hard. The curse snarled and shrieked, and clawed at the wood floor it was trapped under. Several of its shadowy arms crept out from under the cellar door, and pushed up against it or yanked on the chain harder, but it held, for now. And it would for as long as Jack could hold him down there. He didn't know how long it'd be, but for now, he was in control again.

"You can't trap me in this ridiculous memory forever," the Ripper said, hissing and snarling.

Jack frowned back at the Ripper, gave him the finger, and opened the front door of the cabin. He was tempted to quote some lines from the movie, but while the asshole trapped in the basement of his mind might have been able to pull quotes and laugh about shit, all Jack could think about, was the feel of Damien's face against his fist. Clara's. Monica and Caleb's throats.

At least the violence was over, and he could start fixing things. He had to fix things. Just one fucking thing, anything, before he did what had to be done. Mary, Triss, and Athalia were waiting for him back in the real world, and from the sounds managing to pierce his ears during Dominate, violence was picking back up again. He had to work fast.

Sighing, he stepped through the gates of Sándor's mind, and into the mansion. Sándor did not resist him. Unlike Jack, Sándor wouldn't be consciously aware of what was happening in his head. He'd probably know Jack got to see a peek of his memories, but not the literal representation of them, paintings on the walls of a decrypt castle hallway.

That was fine. He didn't need Sándor to be consciously aware of what was going on. The representation of his consciousness was plenty helpful.

"Here," Jack said, and he motioned to one of the paintings. "Help me."

Sándor sighed as he looked at the picture. The gargoyle Horror waited, perched on the throne, but Sándor the man stood with Jack, and the two of them helped put back up the picture of the wife and child he'd lost to Jeremiah and Angela.

Dominate was a powerful Discipline. Elder Kindred used it to literally tamper with the memories of people. If Jack could use it to help undo some of the damage the Ripper had done, that was at least one thing he could fix.

"Sometimes I wonder," Sándor said, or the representation of him did anyway, with the same tone he'd said it with before.

"Stop wondering. This is who you are. And you know, just like you already said you knew, that it's worth it." They moved onto another painting. Another painful memory, put back on the wall.

"Yes. But I have lived a long life. I ... I'm tired."

"Yeah, I can see that." They moved onto the next picture. The old woman, sitting in her chair by the fire. "She passed away in her sleep?"

Once the painting was back up, Sándor stood in front of it, eyes locked onto the old woman wrapped in a blanket on the chair, and nodded.

“Rozalia. She’s the one that insisted I live on, and ... find reasons to keep living.”

“Sounds like a smart woman.”

“She was.”

Jack gave the man a small pat on the shoulder. “I could give you the speech again, but you already knew it before I even said it the first time. And she probably said it better than I could have.” Sighing, they moved onto another painting. “Though I am gonna pull the guilt card here, and say you do owe us a bit, for all the shit that Jeremiah did when he used you.”

“Shameless.”

Laughing, Jack helped hang up the final picture. “Yeah well, I’m a vampire.”

“True.” Sándor nodded, the tiniest hint of a smile showing through as he helped the painting settle, before returning to his throne.

“And speaking of vampires. How do you feel about Triss?” Maybe this was a little wrong, using Dominate to get a peek into Sándor’s head, but if this was the one thing he could fix before he died, along with stopping Jacob, then it’d be a good life. Right?

“I ... like her. But she scares me.”

Jack laughed. “She scares you? I’m guessing it’s not the mouth.” Sometimes it still caught him off guard. Triss was gorgeous if you looked at her from the front, mouth included, but the moment you got a profile shot with her hair pulled out of the way, the crocodile cheeks were disturbing.

“No. She ... She...”

Jack shook his head. “Don’t worry about it, I get it. She’s a bundle of aggression and very direct about what she wants. Might not actually know what she wants, but once she thinks she knows, she’s pretty ... I don’t know the word, courageous? About pursuing it. Her first date with Julias, she basically forced the guy to take her out to Bloodlust.”

“Forced her?”

“Yeah. Big step for her. And if I’m guessing right, and I think I am, she’s tried to be direct with you?”

Sándor sank slightly in his throne, and gestured to the wall. One of the paintings changed, colors flowing over each other until a new image formed. Sándor the gargoyle, holding Triss and Jen in his giant hands, both girls looking pretty scared.

“Well, shit,” Jack said.

“Yes. I...” Sándor groaned, but gestured to the painting again. Again it changed, this time showing Triss and Jen, fixing their dresses, and then giving Sándor some very ‘it’s okay don’t worry about it we’re fine’ looks. Everyone hated those looks, Jack included. Sándor included.

“At least you didn’t ruin it. If they said it’s okay, believe them. They’re vampires, right? Twisted, kinda fucked up vampires. They’ll brush it off.” Very much a pot calling kettle situation. “Seriously Sándor, Triss likes you. Jen likes you. The Ripper wasn’t lying. I can’t even begin to give life advice to someone who’s been through all this,” he gestured around at the paintings, “but Triss — and Jen, surprisingly — are great people. Just talk to them and give them a chance, and I think you'll be surprised at the happiness you can find." And to wrap his shitty little bite of wisdom in a pretty bow, he gestured to the painting of the old woman sitting by the fire. "Right?"

Might have been shitty, juvenile advice, but Sándor thought about it for a while, blank face looking down for a short eternity before nodding.

"You are right."

"Okay, I think everything is back together enough. I can't fix everything, but your subconscious should clean up what I can't after a few night's sleep. I think. Hopefully." Shrugging, Jack gestured to the man on the throne, and gave him a small salute before walking out the colossal door. One glance back showed Sándor leaning forward, putting an elbow on his knee, and putting his chin on his fist. Classic thinking pose. And hilariously, the four-armed gargoyle perched overhead mimicked him, two hands holding onto the huge stone throne, the other two adopting the classic thinking pose.

Jack had been tempted to talk to Sándor about Julias, and the weird situation Triss was in trying to resurrect him despite her growing interest in Sándor. But at a certain point, he'd be abusing Dominate, and how Sándor had opened his mind to him. It was time to get back to the real world.

Reality snapped back into existence. Fog. Mist. A giant, empty cave, with green fireflies in the distance. And Sándor standing a few feet in front of him, slowly lowering his hands from his skull.

The two looked at each other for a few moments, awareness coming to Sándor, until eventually the man nodded, Jack returned it, and the two looked to the crowd.

First, Jack looked at Triss. Eye contact. She braced for a mental fucking, but he gave her a gentle smile instead, and looked to Athalia. A small nod for her, before his eyes moved to his sister's ghost, directly in front of him. Holy fuck.

“M-Mary?”

The ghost nodded, and lowered her hand down from his face.

“Jack.”

Mary the ghost looked a thousand times worse than she had the last time he'd seen her, and she'd looked like hell on wheels then, destroying the ball. Now, she had a mouth that made Beatrice look tame, and her eyes were straight up demon eyes. Her clothes had changed. They'd gotten more and more torn and tattered the last few times he'd seen her, but now they were dangling strips of wrinkly sheets that were half merged, like some sort of cloak or robe that hid her legs and turned into mist. And she had claws.

“What happened to you?”

“I was scared before, but not anymore. I'm going to protect you. Okay?”

He blinked a few times, before looking down at himself. The pain hit him like a wave, and he sucked in a useless breath between clenched teeth. He dug deep, and poured vitae into his limbs as best he could. Now that he had a second, the wounds managed to seal enough that his insides weren't visible anymore, bones and muscles hidden. If Avery had hit him with her claws when they had the weird red glowy thing going on, it'd have taken multiple nights to heal from, and that was with the power of the curse. But the other wolves and their magic-but-not-super-magic claws, plus the fire, he could heal that in a single night with the curse's power.

He didn't have a night. Some scar tissue thin enough he could still see the dents in his body was good enough for now.

He reached up and touched Mary's hand. One of her hands was on his shoulder, and she smiled at him with her crazy mouth.

"Protect me?"

"Those other ghosts, and that horrible Sabrina! I got them. Killed them. Ate them." She floated away a few feet, and held out her claws in front of her. "I ... ate ... them."

Sabrina was dead? And the other ghosts? He gulped on a dry throat as he stared at his sister, or, some thing, some monster, that looked like a twisted version of his sister.

"You can do that?"

"I ... I didn't know. I just ... I just did it."

Sándor let out a quiet sigh, and everyone looked to the man as he lowered his hands.

"I've seen other ghosts do this," he said, "deeper in the Great Below. Old ghosts. Angry ghosts."

Mary snorted and shook her head. "I'm not old."

"True. But your circumstances are special." The poor guy winced and clutched his skull again, but managed to recover before Triss could touch him.

Which was when people finally realized Beatrice was here, as in, Jacob's student, the enemy. They all slowly looked at her, even the werewolves and Damien, who managed to stumble their way over.

Jack forced himself to look at them. And they forced themselves to look at him. The Ripper getting out when it did was the worst possible thing that could have happened, they all knew it, and they all knew they couldn't let it stop them.

“I’m not letting him out again,” Jack said, “even if that means...” He half expected someone to say something, maybe something like ‘no way, you can’t kill yourself’. But the looks on their faces, even their werewolf faces, said it all. They were terrified of him, and they didn’t disagree with his plan.

Sándor gave him one hard look, but he turned and faced Athalia. “What’s going on? I thought you were going to stay in the physical world, in case something happened.”

“Something did happen,” Athalia said. “You idiots let your guard down and got locked down here, and it looks like one of those azlu things’s webs was blocking you from tunneling out.”

“How’d you find out?” Jack asked.

“Your birds,” Triss said, offering a tiny smile and tinier wave. “They realized you were trapped down here. They went looking for help. Couldn’t find any. Eventually Scully came to me.”

Scully and Mulder, taking the initiative? He’d given them specific instructions to stay out of harm’s way, especially where Jacob and Black Blood were concerned. But, he had encouraged them to think for themselves. Good thing he did.

“Okay,” he said, “let’s take a few minutes here to recoup. I ... The Ripper did a lot of horrible shit, after the ghosts and azlu showed up. Let’s ... figure out ... who’s still alive.”

Beatrice and Athalia stared at him, only now the reality of what happened sinking in.

Damien managed to join them on his own, but his face wasn’t doing any better. It was taking everything he had to not fall into torpor on the spot. The werewolves transformed back into human form, and all of them managed to get back up on their feet, too.

Barely. They joined the group, and every one of them kept Jack in the corner their eyes.

“Carter?” Jack asked. Avery shook her head. “Fuck.” Nodding, head sagging like the old anchor was back, Jack found a big rock to sit on, and winced every second it took to get on it. His insides were on fire, and he kept flexing his right hand, feeling the tendons fight against wounds.

Sándor moved from person to person, and helped them all sit on a nearby rock. They needed it. The werewolves were stubborn, but even they accepted the man’s help, and sat or leaned against the big rock a little ways from Jack. They refused to have their backs to Jack, even as they tried to hide it.

Damien sat down on Jack’s rock.

Jack couldn’t help but laugh, and it sounded a little choked. “Damien you fucking idiot.”

The man shrugged, and of course regretted it immediately. Everyone was fucked up, beaten and broken, but Damien couldn’t heal as well as Jack or the wolves. His jaw was still fucked, and every motion he made, he took care to not put any momentum into it that might make his jaw move. Give him another twenty or thirty minutes and he might be able to heal the bone enough to get the jaw working, but that was it.

“Okay, elephant in the room,” Jack said. “The curse is under control again, and will be for the rest of the night. Even if something happens, I’ll take back control immediately. You saw me do it, and I’ll do it again.”

The wolves, Sándor, and Damien all looked at him, eyes heavy. They knew what he meant. For now, he’d found the will he needed to bring the curse under control, by trying to kill himself. And it fucking sucked.

Cry later. Fix the problem now.

“Second elephant. Uh, Athalia and Beatrice and Mary are here.”

Triss threw up her hands. “If you’re worried I’m some sort of sleeper agent, don’t be! I had no fucking clue what was going on, that Jacob and Black Blood were up to anything, and fuck you guys, I resent being kept in the dark.”

Jack smiled at her. “Yeah, we figured. But if you knew, you really think you’d be able to keep the secret from Jacob? That he wouldn’t sus it out?”

Flailing hands turned into limp arms, and she grumbled as she slipped them into her jean pockets.

“Well fuck me.”

He almost apologized, but they had no time.

“You here to stop us?”

“You fucking kidding me? I’m here to save your ass! You and Sándor and everyone else.”

You and Sándor. The gargoyle glanced her way, and she glanced his. Just quick glances that didn’t mean anything to anyone else, but Jack knew Triss pretty well, and after the shit he’d seen in Sándor’s mind, he knew him well enough, too.

“Once we’re past the azlu webs,” Jack said, “Sándor can take us through a tunnel down deeper, where Black Blood is performing the ritual. We expect resistance, especially if Black Blood’s convinced a bunch of ghosts to help him.”

“Sabrina was unstable,” Sándor said. “Easily manipulated.” Mary snarled at the man, but Sándor didn’t react. Probably for the best. “I don't think Black Blood will so easily manipulate the ghosts deeper in the Great Below."

Jack raised a finger. "Before we get going, I need some details. What happened with Scully and Mulder?"

"After Scully came to me, bitching and whining," Triss said, "we realized everyone was gone. Everyone except maybe the Prince, or the Begotten. Since everyone's convinced Jacob's behind all this, I figured, hey, Prince might not exactly trust me, you know? So Jen and I went to see Athalia. She told us what was up."

Everyone looked at Athalia, but she just shrugged.

"Jennifer and Beatrice were in the dark, and if not for her, I wouldn't have come, or have Mary for backup. And those ghosts and that Sabrina girl would have killed Jack, and probably the rest of you, too."

"Yeah, so don't you fucking judge us." Triss pointed a finger at Jack, and twisted it around a few times. "Shit is going down, and I want to talk to Jacob before everything explodes. You all think he's going to start an apocalypse. I think the man deserves a chance to talk."

Everyone looked to Beatrice, listening, before looking to Athalia again.

"Hey, I told her the plan was to stop Jacob and Black Blood, no matter what."

"And that's bullshit. Jacob may be a lot of things, but my boss is not some fucking psychotic murderer out to kill everyone." Triss pointed at Jack again. "And I've seen him with your mom. You might not like to think it, asshole, but Jacob's been great with her. Fuck me, he might even love her."

It was like someone stabbed him in the ass with a red hot poker, and he ground his teeth as he forced down the reflex to cringe.

“I know.”

“Well then, what the fuck? Y’all just gonna hunt him down and kill him? I want to hear what he has to say! And you fucking owe me.”

He let out a slow sigh before nodding. “Jen—”

“Went to go see Bitch McBig Tits. And now your asshole girlfriend is holding her hostage.”

“And Jen—”

“Told her what was up, about all this.” Triss gestured around her. “I asked the Prince for her help, but she said she was too busy.”

Too busy meant she was doing something directly connected to the situation. Rescue? Maybe. But more likely something to do with stopping Jacob and Black Blood. She didn’t tell Jack what sort of stuff she was up to, explaining that it was better they didn’t all share with each other every secret, in case Jacob managed to figure out what someone was up to, he wouldn’t figure out everything. Not putting all the eggs in one basket, and shit like that. It made Jack feel like he was working for the government, and vomit inducing as that feeling was, it did make sense.

Nodding, Jack rubbed his head a few times. Pain. Still not enough new skin to protect all the bits. He looked back to Sándor, and watched as the man checked in with everyone.

Athalia, Mary, and Triss had come down to save their asses. And they’d succeeded, mostly. He did owe Triss for that. The idea of bringing his sister along terrified him, but Mary wasn’t Mary. It was her ghost, a remnant, something not her. And at the moment, she was the scariest one out of all of them.

Which pretty much sealed the deal on whether or not they were coming.

“I know Sándor and Athalia are coming. And I can’t stop you two.” He gestured to Triss and Mary, but all that got him was a couple frowns in return. Triss’s frown was scary, and Mary’s was utterly horrific. He moved on. “Damien, Avery, Clara, David, Mason, Erica, Noah. I ... don’t think you should come. You’re injured, and—”

“It doesn’t matter,” Avery said. “Even if we were missing our fucking arms—”

“Hey,” Mason said, and he gestured to his half arm. The werewolves laughed, though they regretted it immediately, each of them groaning and clutching their ribs.

Every single werewolf looked like they’d been through hell. Bleeding, faces smashed in, visible dents in their bodies, broken limbs they’d managed to get together enough to function, barely. It was a mess. And every time Jack forced himself to look Clara’s way, she looked back at him, and for some reason neither of them looked away, until it started to sting.

Jack only had one eye, and while he’d managed to heal some of his face, he knew it still looked pretty fucked up. The fact a werewolf had raked him straight across it was probably still blatant. And she looked like someone had smashed her face in with a hammer. If she had any teeth left, he couldn’t see, since she could barely open her mouth and her lips were swollen. One of her eyes refused to open, even more swollen. Her cheek bone looked broken, and from how her arm dangled, he knew that was worse than broken.

But that wasn’t the worst of it. The Ripper, never satisfied with just a physical beat down, taunted her, found what he thought were the best words to hurt her, and used them. It was a good thing Harcourt wasn't here, or the Ripper would have ripped his guts out and worn them like a hat, all for Clara's sake. Anything to hurt her. Anything to hurt Jack.

So they stared at each other for a little while, just long enough it made things worse, before they finally looked away.

"Then, I guess we get moving," Jack said. "We continue on, get out of the range of these spiderwebs, and Sándor pops us open a tunnel to the center tear, a few levels down." And to seal in the imagery of how fucking scary that was, he pointed down, at the endless mist beneath their feet.

Mary hovered over to him. He almost recoiled, but forced himself to meet her empty black gaze as she gently poked one of his wounds. Gently enough to not hurt him, thank god.

"I'll protect you. And Mom."

"Mary, I—"

"I'll protect you. And Mom! I won't let anything happen to you. Mom won't be alone! It won't happen! Won't! Won't! W—"

"Mary," Sándor said, "the ghosts deeper in the Great Below are extremely violent, and their age has made them inhuman. They won't be..." His voice trailed away as Mary slowly turned her head, a full one eighty degrees, and glared at him. It was enough to have everyone squirming.

"We believe you," Triss said, hands raised placatingly at Mary. "Just, everyone's a bit beat up, and maybe a little crazy right now. We need to be smart, right?"

Mary drifted away from Jack and joined Triss's side. The two of them continued talking, but Triss managed to sneak a glance Jack's way, and a nod. She was on Mary duty, then. Thank god someone was. If Jack had to play chauffeur to his unstable, and apparently crazy psycho strong, and mutated sister's ghost, it wouldn't end well.

“Jack, a word? In private?” Sándor asked.

“Uh, sure, yeah.” He looked to Damien, but before his dumbass friend could get off the rock to give them privacy, Jack hopped off instead. After giving Damien a small pat on the knee, and an eye roll, he walked off with Sándor maybe fifty feet. Everyone watched them, except Mary. No doubt he wanted to talk about her, and she was the only one who didn't have the presence of mind to realize that.

“Your sister's ghost has changed.”

“Yeah, you said that.”

“I've seen ghosts like her before. Ghosts evolve as they age, especially those in the Great Below. It only gets worse the deeper you go.”

“But she's never been in the Great Below.”

Sándor nodded slightly as he looked down, before taking a quick peek at Mary through the corner of his eye.

“She's ... on an accelerated path. Likely because—”

“Of all the shit she's been through. Getting resurrected, dying again, all the other shit, I can't even fucking imagine.”

“Indeed. I've seen ghosts like her before. Some places called them the moroi, or moroai. They were devourers, and that included living things.”

“Jesus...”

“Other places called them banshees. They are ... violent ghosts, Jack, and hungry.”

A banshee. That’d certainly explain the constant screaming and wailing she did when fighting or breaking things.

Jack rubbed his buzzed hair. There were a slices through it where skin had grown over but hair hadn’t, and he frowned down at the mist as he rubbed it some more.

“We’ll run into more ghosts like that, when we go deeper?”

“Maybe. The ghosts down there evolve into many strange things, often abandoning human shapes. We’ll avoid them, as best we can. But...”

“But we might need Mary’s help to deal with them, right?”

He looked Jack in the eyes, face solid steel.

“Yes, and it could get her killed.”

They looked at each other for a few uncomfortable seconds before Jack looked down and rubbed his head more. Her dying wouldn’t necessarily be the worst thing, and they both knew it. And holy fuck, Jack felt like fucking dogshit for thinking it.

“It’s a good thing she’s here. We need her help.”

“I know, and I don’t disagree. But I thought you should know ... I’ve never seen a ghost as ... degraded as her, not get worse.”

Chapter 171

~~Damien~~

It'd been a long time since he'd been in this much pain. Maybe that time he'd helped Jack and the others bring down Jeremiah and Angela? Fighting Sándor's Horror had certainly been painful. Maybe that time the azlu had stabbed him through the stomach, straight through him, and left a large hole in his guts and spine? That hadn't been too painful, considering how quickly he'd gone into torpor, only to be awoken by Beatrice's blood.

Beatrice. The Nos took a peek his way, long enough for them to share that uncomfortable memory, before she looked back to Sándor. She'd been doing that a lot. He'd thought maybe she'd been taking piano lessons from him to impress the gargoyle, but seeing her watch Sándor as he and Jack talked, sealed the deal. She liked him. It was understandable. Sándor was a great guy. But Triss was not only Jacob's protege, she was also trying to resurrect her dead lover. It was a love triangle even a soap opera couldn't match. Love square, with Jennifer involved.

He watched her as best he could, but he knew even if she tried something, he was in no condition to stop her. There wasn't a drop of vitae left in him. He'd managed to heal his jaw enough it worked again, but that was the best he could do. If someone so much as looked at him too strongly, his face would probably crack like an egg and spill his brains. He had his sword back, but swinging it would be near impossible. He was tempted to give it back to Jack, but considering what the kid had tried to do with it, maybe he could wait on that.

The kid was willing to kill himself to stop the Ripper. He'd legitimately tried. And the moment Jacob and Black Blood were dealt with, he'd try again. Maybe someone could stake him before he did, but that'd only delay the inevitable. The necklace had ultimately backfired, given them all a false sense of security, and now Monica and Caleb were dead because of it. The kid would never forgive himself for that.

Lord, please, the kid didn't deserve this.

"You guys absolutely sure you want to come?" Jack asked.

"Enough already," Avery said. "We're going."

He winced as he looked between the six remaining werewolves, before nodding, and looking to Beatrice.

"Triss, I—"

"I'm going. I need to talk to him. You'll either have to stake me or kill me, because I'm going."

Jack sighed and looked to Athalia.

"Don't look at me. I'm not dragging her back. Besides, I'm here now, and we know for sure Jacob's going to try something tonight. I'm going, too."

He looked to Mary.

"I'm going! I don't want to hurt Jacob, but if he's going to let that ... that ... black thing, tear everything down, then what happens? What happens to you, and Mom? No! Black Blood is—"

"The reason you got to try a body again," Triss said. She regretted it the moment she said it, eyes widening, and she took a step back as she put up her hands. "Sorry. Fuck me, I'm sorry. But you're all so convinced Jacob and Black Blood are out to kill everyone, but—"

"Not kill everyone," Jack said. "But they are going to—"

“What, start an apocalypse, that then that kills everyone? Bullshit. Fuck, I had to kick Aaron’s ass to get here, because that dude is so convinced what Jacob wants to do is good for everyone, that he was willing to die for it. You get that? Jesus christ, Black Blood is the reason Jeremiah didn’t kill all of you!”

Silence heavy enough a graveyard would be envious. Everyone looked between each other, with more than a few wincing. Only Sándor managed to keep his eyes on her.

“Beatrice,” Sándor said eventually, “we don’t want to kill them. We want to stop them. That’s all.” Unfortunately for the man, the tone in his voice, monotone as it was, said it all. Stopping them most likely meant killing them, or at least killing Jacob. Whether Black Blood could even be killed or destroyed was still a question mark.

Jack let out a snort. “My necklace is gone. We could get everyone to comb this place for it, but you know damn well we’ll never find it in time. Hell, a ghost probably had orders to run off with it. It’s gone. That was Black Blood’s fault.”

Slowly, Damien put up a finger.

“He did tell us to stay put. This fight wouldn’t have happened if we—”

“If we what?” Jack said. “Just let Jacob destroy the—”

Triss threw up her hands. “He’s not destroying the world! We don’t know if—”

“He’s going to break the whole fucking universe,” Avery said, and she dragged herself toward Triss, rage boiling in her eyes. “He lost his girl, and now he’s pissed and wants to merge it all, get rid of the whole life and death cycle. He’s a bastard who’s throwing a hissy fit, and he’s bringing us all down with him.”

“Oh fuck you.” The Nos walked up to Avery, and met her glare with her own. “Jacob has done more for me than anyone. He deserves the benefit of a doubt.”

Jack shook his head. “We’re pretty sure he and Black Blood triggered the war between the Invictus and Carthians, probably for the distraction.”

“Did he kill anyone?” Triss asked, eyes snapping to Jack.

Jack hesitated. “No.”

“Then what the fuck? Everyone running in with guns out ready to kill him, but—”

“He’s going to get everyone killed!” Jack threw up his own hands, and got in Triss’s face, even closer than Avery. “Killed, or turned into soup, I don’t fucking know! We have to do something.”

“That doesn’t mean—”

“Enough!” Everyone snapped their heads to Sándor, and the man let out a slow breath. For a split moment, there was something more in his expression than his usual stoic calmness. He looked angry. “Enough. We have no time. We will go, and figure out how to handle the situation when we arrive. I am not willing to let Black Blood alter the fabric of the entire world, but Beatrice is correct, as well. Jacob and Black Blood deserve the benefit of a doubt.”

Everyone listens when a quiet man speaks.

Slowly, they all nodded, and looked to Jack. Jack shrugged and motioned to Sándor. And again, a hint of emotion came through the man’s face. Surprise? Awkwardness? He didn’t expect to suddenly have everyone looking to him on what to do.

It took him a second to find the words. “Let’s go.”

---

The werewolves struggled to keep up, for a little while. After five minutes, their wounds healed well enough they managed to follow, though it was also because Sándor slowed down to a fast walk. No point in tiring them, or himself out, before he opened a tunnel into what was going to be utter chaos. They didn't know what they were walking into, how could they? All they could do was go through Sándor's tunnel, and come out near the deepest tear, where Jacob and Black Blood were working to destroy the world.

Damien and Clara took up the rear. His legs mostly worked, and so did hers, though one of her arms was borderline useless. Sándor glanced back frequently, scanning for ghosts that might dive them, but it looked clear. And Mary hovered above, circling, also looking for ghosts to scare off. Or more likely, devour.

"You trust her?" Clara whispered, and she nodded toward Beatrice.

"Mostly."

"Mostly." After a quiet growl, not nearly as intimidating in her human form, Clara clutched her ruined shoulder.

"She's smarter than she seems," Damien said.

"You sure? 'Cause so far, all I know is she's been trying to bring back her dead lover, and in the process, caused Samantha a shit load of pain."

Damien shook his head. "That's not a fair statement."

"You know the details?"

"No..."

"Then," she nodded again in Beatrice's direction, "don't be so quick to assume you can trust her. She was willing to get her fingers into some very fucked up pies, Damien.”

“Why are you telling me?”

“I ... fuck, I don’t know. Gotta tell someone.”

“Jack?” he asked.

“Nah. His head’s not ... it’s not on right.”

That was putting it lightly.

“Sándor?”

“I thought about that, but ... you seen the way they look at each other?” She leaned in closer. “Triss was genuinely concerned about the dude. Almost like she came down here just to save him, you know? And I think Sándor is ... well, he’s hard to read, but I think he’s not oblivious to it.”

Damn. If Clara could put it together, there was a chance other people would, too. It wasn’t exactly a bad thing, if Beatrice was interested in Sándor, or vice versa, but it did make things complicated.

“Jesus,” Clara said, “I’m glad Brace isn’t here.”

“Oh?”

“He’d be dead.”

“Maybe.”

“Ha, I guess. He is a hunter. Dude’s got some tricks up his sleeve. But ... after what happened, with the Ripper?” She shivered. “You just know that fucking psychopath would have killed him in the most horrible way, just to hurt me.”

“That ... is true.”

“And fuck me, I...” Wincing, she looked to Jack, then back to Damien. She opened her mouth again, but no words came out, and she sighed as she slowly looked down.

“It won’t happen again,” he said.

“You know that for sure?”

“I do.” Damien gestured to the sword on his back. “He tried to kill himself, Clara, to make sure it didn’t happen again. The resolve it’d take to come to that conclusion, is immense. And I can guarantee that’s still his plan.”

She slouched, and that invisible anchor he’d grown quite familiar with hung off her neck in front of her.

“Carter’s dead. And Ja ... the Ripper killed Monica and Caleb. Fuck ... fuuuuck. Avery won’t even talk about, it. She’s—”

“Focusing on the mission so Jacob doesn’t trigger Armageddon. Your boss has the right idea.” The fact Clara had almost said Jack killed her pack mates didn’t escape him. She was cracking.

“I know. I know, alright?” She put a hand to her jaw. Like Damien, her mouth was a royal mess, split lips and missing half a dozen teeth, lopsided, and he was pretty sure her left cheek bone was cratered. “And—”

“Clara, we’re going to see this through. Either we save the day or we all die trying. Lord willing, we stop Black Blood and Jacob from destroying everything, and we live to see another night.”

Lord, what sort of insanity led him to being the voice of will and courage? That was not the territory of Mekhets. And yet, it was land his sire had walked, frequently. Perhaps a little of him was showing through. He prayed it was only a little.

---

Getting clear of the spiderwebs took longer than they expected. A fifteen minute journey. Not exactly an eternity, but it felt like one, with everyone forced to walk as their injuries continued to heal. No one managed to recover fully, though Jack's injuries seemed to become an afterthought for him. He still looked like hell, but whatever strange power the curse gave him, it allowed him to continue pushing and fighting until he was well past what most vampires could handle. Even if he lost both arms and legs, and had his guts ripped out, he'd keep fighting. The only way to legitimately kill him, would be to cut off his head.

Damien hated that he was thinking about it. He hated that Jack had been thinking it, too, and likely still was.

There were many spiderwebs, far more than anyone expected, giant things that reached high and connected colossal stones to colossal pillars. The azlu had been busy, probably doing its best to do what it did, weave webs, while also only eating when absolutely necessary to avoid gathering attention. Smart.

Why it had an instinctual need to weave webs that separated the realms, strengthening the walls between them, the Uratha didn't seem to know. But it was what they did. And considering Black Blood and Jacob were trying to tear down the barriers between realms, they wanted the azlu gone as much as the Uratha did. Which carried some scary implications. How much of their fights with the azlu over the years had been orchestrated by the spirit of death?

Sándor held up a hand, looked around, and a hint of a grimace showed on his face.

“Give me a moment. Burrowing from here isn't easy.”

“Why?” Noah asked.

“No true darkness. No similarities with my lair. No pathway to reuse, no portal, nothing. This will be ... draining.”

Sándor held out his hands at his side, and squeezed them, as if grabbing the air. As he did, the silhouette of the gargoyle emerged. Four enormous wings and four enormous arms reached out, and did the same, the four hands grabbing the air and pulling it in toward Sándor like invisible curtains. As he did, darkness fell on them. The green lanterns in the distance disappeared, and eventually so did the giant boulders and pillars, the distant, almost infinitely high walls, and the mist. Soon, all any of them could see, was blackness.

Damien wasn't too far from Athalia when Sándor started, and so close, he could hear her breath quickening. Whatever it was Sándor was doing, it was enough to have Athalia in literal awe. Truthfully, Damien had never seen anything from Sándor to make him think the gargoyle was some monolith of strength like Azamel had been, but then again, he hadn't ever witnessed Sándor engage his strength outside of a simple fist brawl with the Ripper. And back then, it'd only been his Horror, separated from Sándor himself.

Now, Damien couldn't help but stare up at the disappearing cave, and how the gargoyle in front of them somehow managed to bury it all in darkness. He didn't just wrap them in a pocket of black. He brought darkness down on the whole area. A hundred yards? Two hundred? Three? It all vanished behind the veil.

Athalia's breathing changed, and vanished. Damien looked at her, but the darkness was too thick. Pitch black. He could hear her though, and it wasn't her anymore. Athalia's Horror didn't breathe, but he could hear the giant bone hands on stone.

“We in the dream?” Jack asked ahead.

“No,” Sándor said, deep voice a rumbling bass. “We are burrowing. It cuts near the dream.”

Burrowing, indeed. They were moving. Damien sucked in a useless breath as he looked around. Still too dark to see anything, but there was movement in the black, as if the darkness itself was a river they were swimming through. His feet didn't move, and the ground he stood on remained solid, but his Kindred eyes caught enough hints of something to tell him they were moving. A kine would have gotten motion sickness, if they'd somehow noticed.

One minute of silence. One minute of no one saying anything, waiting with baited breath — the breathers, anyway — as Sándor brought them deeper into the Great Below. Sándor had already described to them what they'd find, but they all knew there was no way they'd be able to appreciate it until they actually saw it.

They were right.

Sándor pulled the darkness open, like someone pulling apart an onyx curtain of Saran wrap, and the light spilled over them. Light was a strong word. More like, hints of reflection, as if light had managed to sneak its way into Hell, and they were getting glimpses of it shining against the endless walls of the endless depths.

“Holy shit,” Triss said, looking up and around.

The Great Below from before looked cozy compared to the world that welcomed them now. The ceiling was just as high, miles high, as if they hadn't gone deeper at all, but the pressure on Damien's skin told him otherwise. Everything felt heavier, and everything looked darker. Stone, endless stone, with stalactites big enough to destroy city blocks if they fell, and stalagmites as tall as skyscrapers.

The differences were immediate. There was no mist. Everything looked wet, was wet, with lines of water dripping down the rock faces that surrounded them. Or at least, it looked like water, slowly trickling down the stone, until it fell into the black around around their feet. Damien almost jumped up when the water soaked through his shoes, but the silence told him to stay put and don't move.

Black water, shallow, but everywhere. Oh good Lord.

"It's not Black Blood," Clara whispered. "It's ... from the same place, I guess? It's not the spirit. I'd smell it if it was."

Everyone relaxed, slightly, and looked back out to the cave. This one had more cave tunnels to it, colossal winding paths that led into each other, creating less a maze of tunnels, and more an endless array of warped, twisting and turning pillars of stone so massive they were beyond reasoning. From wide births in the stone above, bits of light fell on them, giant beams that were soft, afraid to light up the blackness with anything more than subtle, passive illumination.

There was no color. No green lanterns of ghosts searching for whatever it was they searched for. All they could see, no matter the direction they looked, was a giant cave that looked like the evil twin of the cave they'd just come from. The fact they now had to walk in cold black water several inches deep, made it a thousand times worse.

"Watch where you step," Sándor said. "The Great Below isn't ... stable."

"Earthquakes?" Triss asked.

"No. It's not solid matter. It will change if something decides to attack us."

"What the fuck? How?"

“I don’t know. The few times it happened to me, it was very strange. The ghosts here have evolved into little more than monsters, and the Great Below alters with them wherever they go.”

Triss groaned as she clutched her arms and hugged herself. “Fucking lovely.”

Sándor faced ahead, took a small sideways step closer to Triss, and walked forward.

---

~~Beatrice~~

Well, she was in the shit, now. Deep shit. The deepest shit shat by a god of shitting. Every second that passed, the familiar air of the Great Below sank deeper into her. Her combat boots wouldn’t let water this shallow in, but that didn’t stop the atmosphere from punching her in the guts over and over. She knew this feeling. She’d felt it every time she’d summoned Black Blood for his help.

Death. Not rotting corpse death. Not violent death. Not even the blood or guts or anything death often came with. Just, death, the sort of death you found in a graveyard, but only at night. A heavy, cold blanket, something that pushed you down and sucked the heat and energy out of you.

She’d gotten used to the feeling. She’d had to. Every time Black Blood answered her, she’d had to stand in the presence of the huge bastard, and drink in the essence of him, whether she wanted to or not. It wasn’t the sort of a thing a human could do. Hell, she doubted anyone who wasn’t already half dead could be around Black Blood too long. No wonder he and Jacob worked together.

Sándor took a step closer to her, or more like, slid a little closer to her, and started ahead. She smiled at the back of his head, but something else punched her in the gut. A memory. Julias, slipping in a little closer to her, back on their first date, and she’d been like an angry cat, hissing at him. Christ, she was stupid. She was so fucking stupid.

The water splashed around them as they walked, but it was thicker than water, and didn't make much sound. They walked slow, and scanned left and right with each step. Mary stayed close to Jack, and Athalia stayed close to Sándor, pretty much directly beside him, a little ways back, close to Triss too. And every so often, she gave Triss a worried glance. Worried about them all dying, worried about Sándor, or worried about Triss's weird relationship with Sándor, she didn't know.

Triss glanced back. The werewolves were so beat up, they were nothing but a liability at this point, and that included Damien. They should have listened to Jack and just stayed put. But then again, she couldn't blame them. If the world really was about to end, then it was all or nothing, even if 'all' included six werewolves and one vampire who wouldn't be able to do shit. They knew it, and they'd rather die as sacrifices in a battle, than do nothing. Badass, but probably futile. They didn't know Black Blood like she did. They didn't understand just how fucking powerful he was.

Gravity yanked down on Triss's right leg, and she yelped as she half plunged into a fucking hole in the water.

"The fuck!?"

Sándor had a hand on her in an instant, and he pulled her up and away. Actually, he fucking threw her, and she yelped again as she fell back on her elbows with a splash.

Before she could say anything, a huge arm shot out of the black where she'd sunk, and lashed out for Sándor. A big, black arm, just as black as the dark water, it had too many segments, three elbows that bent and twisted, and let the arm snap out at Sándor.

Sándor jumped, the silhouette of four titanic wings pushing him back with a hard gust. Athalia and Jack came up to the hole, but the arm pulled back into the black like a whip, splashing them as it vanished.

“The fuck was that?” Jack asked.

Sándor could only sigh as he let the silhouette of his Horror fade away. “A ghost.”

Mary hovered over to the hole, and stared down into it with her black gaze. For a second, Triss wasn't sure which was the deeper and scarier, the hole into death she'd almost fallen into, or the girl's eyes.

“It's gone now,” Mary said. “Whatever it was, gone. Gone gone.”

“Gone, as in gone away?” Triss asked. “Or, gone, as in ... not human anymore?”

“Both.” Mary slowly ran her long claws over the water, as if tempting the other ghost to attack her. “I can ... smell it. Smell what it was. Something angry. Something that killed. Something that was stopped.”

Jack risked coming a little closer. “Stopped?”

Mary came closer to the water until her nose almost touched it, and she hovered there for a few seconds. Gravity pulled her hair and rags down, but far too slowly, as if the girl was borderline immune to ... existence.

“Executed, for drowning people.”

Triss snarled as she got up off her butt. “Well ain't that just fucking fitting.” Groaning, she slapped her ass. Yeap, soaked. But at least she didn't get any water in her boots yet. "Okay, so holes in the ground. Any other surprises?"

Sándor offered her a small smile, and a smaller shrug. "I'm sure there will be. Ghosts pass through, and the place changes."

"Almost like the spirit world?" Jack asked.

Sándor shook his head. "More immediate. Be on your guard. We still have another half hour of walking."

"Why drop us off so far from where we're going?" Triss asked.

"If we came out too close, Jacob or Black Blood might notice."

That was true. Their entrance wasn't exactly subtle, and Black Blood and Jacob would probably intercept, or squash them the moment they stepped out of Sándor's tunnel, or something. Which meant, the only reasonable course of action, was to drop them off far enough they could approach sneaky style.

Which meant there was a good chance she'd walk into another hole that'd try to kill her. Except she couldn't drown. How the fuck would that work?

"Let's keep going," Jack said. "We're running out of time."

On they went. Jack, Sándor, Mary, and Athalia took lead, scanning the floor and sky for potential doom. Everyone else stayed directly behind them, with enough distance that if a ghost explosion suddenly blew them up, it wouldn't take out the whole group. Probably. Triss stayed in the middle of the group, able to help someone if some ghosts came at them from behind. Probably.

Sándor glanced back over his shoulder. For a second, Triss thought he was looking past her at the werewolves, or maybe Damien; they were still all royally fucked up. But they met eyes, and looked at each other for a few seconds. It wasn't as if Sándor normally avoided eye contact, it wasn't his style. But something in his eyes caught Triss off guard, and she stared into his gaze, unable to look away.

Something had changed. He gave another barest hint of a smile, and looked ahead again.

Ten minutes later, Sándor held out a hand, and everyone stopped and crouched. A deep, rumbling sound filled the air, followed by a heavy crash.

Triss crept up and joined the front line. She almost asked what was up, but the shadows ahead moved, and she shut up quick as she watched.

That, was big. Black Blood? No, and whatever it was, it moved ahead with the same colossally slow movement she'd expect from a giant dinosaur. Big, heavy steps, each that crunched the stone underneath it. No talons, but big, flat, almost circular feet. It moved on all fours, but it was in a squat, like a gorilla or something. It didn't have a head. Instead, the chest had a single, big fucking eye, and it glowed white as the giant thing moved along.

Wherever it walked, the ground and shallow water spread apart. Crunching stone, earthquakes, massive vibrations pulsed out with each step, before its weird giant feet even hit the ground. It let out a bellow, without a mouth, and looked in their direction.

Thankfully they'd been smart enough to get behind some big rocks when Sándor had put up his hand. A giant white beam of light shot out from the creature's weird eye, and passed over them like a searchlight. No one moved. Even the werewolves, wincing in pain as they crouched in awkward positions, didn't so much as groan, as the blinding light moved over their cover.

It moved on. The strange searchlight pointed ahead of the towering creature, and it walked away, each step it took still splitting the ground apart and leaving behind craters.

“Mary,” Triss whispered, shaking her bracelet, “maybe you should hide in here? Other ghosts might, uh, sense you, I guess?” It might sense living things too for all she knew, but ghosts did seem able to interact with each other in a way they couldn’t with living things.

Mary frowned at her, and looked to Jack, but Jack gestured to Triss. Finally, a bit of trust. Mary hovered over to her, and slipped into the bracelet, like a puff of smoke coming out of someone’s mouth, in reverse. One second there, the next, gone.

“Thought I recognized that bracelet,” Jack said.

Triss grinned at him, and plucked it a couple times. The elastic band snapped the cute bracelet back in place, earning a smile from the kid.

They moved on. Endless, giant pathways surrounded them, and they all looked the same, but Sándor seemed to know where he was going. And whenever a strange noise came up, everyone ducked into cover.

The ghosts down here weren’t fucking human. Sándor had said that, but this was insane. The gorilla ghost twice the size of a T-Rex was just the beginning. One ghost went by that looked like a centipede, made of human torsos, and wherever its hands touched the shallow black water, the water recoiled and refused to flow back, as if the ground the centipede touched was tainted. Another ghost flew by, on an actual wings, with human arms dangling from its underbelly. The pillars moved aside rather than let it touch them, and considering how titanic the pillars were, the whole Great Below groaned with the sound of shifting stone.

Another flew by, hovering a few feet over the water. It looked like a giant eel, except massive, maybe fifty feet long, with wriggly, moving skin. It didn't get close, and Triss had to squint, but unless she was wrong, its skin was made out of human fingers. No eyes, and a giant mouth that looked all too similar to Mary's, or what Mary's might become. As it hovered along, the cave let out quiet, but very deep moans, and the stalactites above pulled down, lengthening. The eel was like, some sort of zipper or something, and the cave followed its path by dragging the giant stalactites closer to the ground.

One ghost left Triss hypnotized. Whatever it was, it stayed mostly under the water, with only some bumps from a likely very warped spine sticking out of the water's surface. The bumps were skulls. And as it passed, stone pillars grew up from the ground in its wake. They came up slowly, and reached about ten feet high, maybe four feet wide. And on each one was a crucified skeleton. Stranger, was the pillars didn't disappear or anything. They stayed there, permanent, dozens of small pillars in a scattered pattern behind the borderline invisible spirit, marking the path it had swam, as if some sort of horrible crusade crucifying sinners had come by.

That, was a scary fucking thought. The ghost of a crusader, maybe? That was one very old, very powerful ghost. Jesus fuck, what if they came across the ghost of someone who burned witches? Or the ghost of a witch that'd been burned?

She glanced down at the bracelet. Mary was on the road to becoming a twisted, fucked up ghost like that, something that embodied an aspect to a ridiculous degree. A entity of murder, or rage, or hate. Sabrina had been on that road, too, before Mary ate her.

Christ, poor Sam. There was no stopping it now. She had to say goodbye to her daughter's ghost, because if they brought Mary back to the surface in her current condition, there was a good chance she'd kill people. And that'd probably include innocent people. Heartless as Kindred could be, they did try to keep innocent people alive. Save for a few assholes like Honors, vampires in Dolareido didn't like seeing nice people die, and that was exactly what would happen with a hungry, angry, volatile monster ghost like Mary. Though, truthfully, the elders would be more concerned about a ghost attracting unwanted attention and breaking the Masquerade, more than anything.

How much of Mary's change was Triss's fault, she didn't know. She had a sneaking suspicion it was mostly hers, and another sneaking suspicion Sam might hate her for it. She knew she wouldn't. Sam just didn't have that in her. But, still.

They continued on, and even though no one had to ask for it, they went slower. No one touched the ground where the centipede left dry craters in the water. No one touched the skeletons on the stone pillars. You didn't need magical powers to tell this place was fucking deadly to all life, and the only things that'd survive down here were either already dead, or half dead. They couldn't stay long.

They stopped at a river. A deep canyon with thick shadows cut through the stone, and the apparently endless water around their feet flowed into it, slower than water should have. They could hear the water below, but from high up, it was borderline impossible to see, more black moving inside blackness.

“Uh, can we get a lift across?” she asked Sándor.

He shook his head as he gestured down the river.

“It's grown since I was last here. But there was a bridge. Hopefully it's grown, as well.”

Shrugging, she followed after him.

Bridge was not the word she would have used. More like, path of the damned. It was a bridge, but made of bones stained black. They were arranged in an ancient, brutal pile, as if someone with no understanding of art or architecture took a bunch of corpses, stuck them together, and let them rot until the bones fused. And somehow, it worked. The bones worked together to create a massive arch that crossed the wide canyon.

You couldn't build a bridge out of bodies, she knew that. But this place didn't give a shit about things like physics. She stared down at the bones, piled on each other, a mountain of dead, thousands of corpses, now broken apart into nothing more than rib cages and limbs and skulls. The bridge had no railing, no overhead arches or suspension beams or anything. It was just one long, thick stretch of bones, and they creaked and rattled as the group stepped on them. Sometimes they broke, old bones turning to shards, but the bridge held strong.

Triss, like any metal head, normally really loved that sort of aesthetic. Except down here, it didn't look pretty or artful. There wasn't anything awesome about a pile of dead bodies, even if they were down to nothing but bone, and that's exactly what they were walking on. A big pile of the dead that somehow shaped itself into a bridge. It looked ugly, and vile.

What crazy-ass ghost created it? What sort of monstrosity could go around creating structures out of thousands of corpses? Had to be someone from history, someone important, who built their world on the backs of the dead. Someone who thought they were above death or something. Maybe after a thousand years of being trapped down here, they evolved into something fucked up that went around, crafting shit out of bones?

She gulped as she peeked over the edge of the ugly bridge, and down into the river below. Something was moving down there. She glanced over at Sándor, and he nodded, knowing, but didn't react otherwise. So everyone just kept walking along, or sneaking along, as best they could.

Everyone came to a stop after they got off the bridge and rounded a curved wall, and stared out into a new area of what the fuck.

Now, it looked like actual, real, artful architecture. Unlike the pile of death they'd just come from, now everyone was forced to look up, up and up, at a giant archway, made of bones big enough for gods. Multiple of them, towering overhead as they circled an area miles across. So damn big the giant boulders the crew had been using for cover looked like pebbles. Each archway had to be at least half a mile tall, the tops nothing but blurs no matter how hard she squinted. They didn't reach the top of the cave, not in this part of it, not even close, but they tried.

In the center of the area were standing stones, dozens of them. Not like the super famous ones. These were each as tall as a sky scraper, half as tall as the pillars of the archways, but only maybe ten feet wide, and they stood in circles, each circle a bigger circle around the smaller one, with some space between each stone. Compared to the pillars of the archways, they looked like toothpicks with how thin they were. Someone had carved etchings on their sides facing the center, and they glowed red with enough light to light up ground zero.

Above, were the ghosts. No green lanterns, as if whatever brought ghosts this deep into the Great Below destroyed whatever ghosts used to find their way. These ghosts looked like blobs of black ink or ooze, but they flowed through the air overhead, circling the archways and touching along their tops. Hundreds of them. Thousands, with shapes like centipedes and dragons and everything in between. They howled, but so far up, it didn't sound much louder than the whispers of thousands of children.

From the look on Sándor's face, the standing stones, and ghosts above, were new.

Black Blood stood in the center, between the standing stones. Actually fucking stood, a giant black skeleton sixty stories high at least. Black ooze dripped from his body, some of it so thick it looked almost like a robe made of black slime hanging from his shoulders and hips. His eye sockets each held a small white, glowing dot, and his fingers ended in claws. The endless ooze mixed with the black water at the base of the stones, causing it to boil around Black Blood's giant skeleton feet before it settled and flowed away.

Black Blood was rarely seen in his actual true body, if that's what this even was. Triss had dealt with him a dozen times, but always either as some shadow of his presence, or while he was possessing a body, often a corpse, and more often, Elen. To be here, in what was basically Hell's evil goth twin, in the presence of a fucking towering god, was paralyzing. Triss and the crew managed to get behind some rocks, but otherwise, every one of them was borderline petrified as they gazed up at Death.

"The fuck do we do now?" she asked.

"We stop the ritual," Jack said. "I see some pretty important-looking stones, judging from all the glowing writing on them. Let's just smash them."

"Direct," Sándor said.

"Uh huh. You think you can smash things that big?" she asked. Jack and Sándor shared a quick look before nodding. "Well, damn."

"What about her?" Athalia asked the boys, gesturing to Triss. "She'll give away our position."

Triss glared at her. "I am literally right next to you."

“You’ll wait until I’m not close enough to rip your head off.”

“For fuck’s sake, Athalia. Trust me a little, okay?”

Athalia glared at her. “Tell us then, Beatrice. You wanted to talk to Jacob, to figure out what was going on. When we go down there, if he tries to stop us from breaking the ritual, we’re going to kill him. What’re you going to do?”

“I ... I don’t fucking know. I want to stop him too, okay? But we don’t have to kill him.” If they even could.

The boys looked at each other again, shared a few small frowns, before Jack nodded.

“She comes. If she tries to stop us, we politely, gently, stop her instead.” And as if he hadn’t just given her a threat, Jack gave her his best friendly smile. Normally it’d have been cute. With the four big, deep scars across his face, and the single eye, it was a lot more intimidating than he probably realized.

Triss scrunched up her nose before gesturing to the others behind them, around another big ass rock. “And them?”

Jack looked to Damien, and made a few gestures with his fingers. Damien made a few back. It was like some shitty military flick, but sure enough, the two idiots nodded after a few seconds, made a few more gestures, and nodded again.

“They’ll follow as best they can when Black Blood is distracted,” Jack said. “We figure maybe they can ... do something?”

“You figure they ca—nevermind. Okay, so, we go in, and ... what? Break down those giant fucking stones, while Black Blood just stands there and watches? Look at him!” She pointed at the giant. They were still probably half a mile away, and the titan looked enormous. Like, Godzilla’s little skeleton brother enormous.

“Black Blood isn’t allowed to interfere with us directly, right?” Jack said. “The Uratha said as much, and it does seem like he can’t just ... kill us.”

“It ... he, affected us directly, twice,” Sándor said, “in my lair.”

“Yeah but he didn’t kill anyone, hurt anyone, or anything, really. First time, he mostly just yanked us clear with Jacob’s help. Second time, he broke Jeremiah’s ritual, at least long enough for Sándor to get in there. Both those times, he was in the dream world, so maybe he has more power there? And Eric and Tash say he’s stomped around in the spirit world, but doesn’t get to directly interfere with them unless they step on his toes, whatever that means. And in the physical world, he doesn’t get to do shit, right?” He looked to Triss, and waited.

She didn’t want to spill secrets. Jacob was still her boss, and she didn’t want to fuck him over. Then again, she didn’t want him to go causing apocalypses in his free time, either.

“Black Blood can’t do shit without possessing a body, and that pretty much has to be a corpse if he wants to do anything hands on, usually ... Otherwise, he’s stuck to wherever his summoning rituals are drawn, and even then, seems limited to talking. Maybe some, like, super light interaction. At least that’s how it works in this physical world anyway, which this ain’t.” She gestured to the giant stone pillars. “I can’t tell what the fuck those things are, but if I had to guess, they let Black Blood get a shit load more hands on while between them.”

“Then we don’t get between them,” Jack said.

“You know Jacob’s going to have some way of stopping you.”

The kid grinned. “Most definitely. Sándor, can you get up high somewhere, and swoop in when Black Blood is distracted? Hit one of those standing stones from behind hard enough to knock it over?” Considering how skinny the stones were, relative to their ridiculous height, yeah, easy to imagine them falling over like dominoes with a small breeze, if hit from up high.

Sándor nodded.

“I’m going to distract Jacob,” Jack said, “pretend I hurt everyone so much that I had to come alone. Triss, uncloak me. Sándor, fly up high. Athalia, go with Triss and follow me in after, as a second distraction if necessary, or whatever you think will work. Triss, summon Mary—”

“She can hear you.”

He blinked his one eye at her, sighed, and leaned in toward the bracelet. “Mary, stay hidden until you see an opportunity to really fuck up the ritual. Sound good?” The bracelet vibrated slightly. “I’m guessing that’s a yes.” Another vibration. “Alright then. Sándor, you go.”

Sándor nodded, scanned the sky, and spread his wings. In any other place, he’d be giving himself away, but here everything was so dark, his Horror’s silhouette was almost invisible against the black. But to be careful, he flew behind one of the titanic pillars of stone first, and climbed.

Triss stared at him as he did. It was so weird, seeing his human body move as if it could fly, or climb vertical slabs of rock, but it did. Something about how his Horror interacted with his human body. However it worked, it looked really fucking cool, with a giant badass gargoyle overlaying his body as he found grooves for his huge claws to fit into.

A minute later, he was so high he looked like a dot against a giant black canvas.

Nodding, Jack dusted himself off. He didn't have a suit jacket or shirt anymore, but at least his pants were in decent condition, save for the knees. Burned off.

“Alright, I'm going,” he said, and he looked to the rest of the group. “We know what's up, guys. With me, I mean. If there's an opportunity to end this, and I get killed in the process ... just let it happen, okay?”

Oh sweet Jesus fucking Christ. Triss snapped her hand out and grabbed the dumbass by the shoulder. The bracelet vibrated.

“The fuck are you talking about?”

He grabbed her wrist and pulled it down. She tried to keep her grip on his shoulder, but he softly smiled at her as he easily forced her to let go. She might as well have been trying to fight Jacob's strength.

“Triss, come on, you saw the aftermath.”

“Yeah, and that ain't your fault.”

“I know it's not my fault, not really. But it's still my burden.”

“The fuck?”

He rolled his eyes — eye — and put a hand on her shoulder. He pushed her down until she was sitting, and she couldn't even so much as struggle in his grip. Holy fuck.

“The Ripper killed two people tonight, Triss. It nearly killed a whole bunch more.”

“That was the Ripper, not you.”

“I know. But I'm not letting it happen again.” Slowly, Jack looked to the rest of the crowd. Damien, and Avery and her werewolves were close enough to hear everything. “I’m not. Letting it. Happen again.”

She stared at him, and he stared at her, single eye cutting through her like a knife. There was a bit of Julias in that eye, that level-headed, hard determination, the sort some people had when they found the mindset to do whatever had to be done, like cut off their own hands to escape handcuffs.

Well, fuck him and his stupid bullshit.

“We can just stake you when this is over, and figure out what to do.”

“Maybe. Maybe. And I’m not even saying don’t do that. But I am saying that so far, no one knows how to get rid of this curse.” He looked down when he said it. He was lying. “So, sure, once we’ve stopped Jacob and we know the city, and the fucking world, is safe, maybe we can try that. But no matter what happens, I’m not going to let the Ripper hurt anyone, ever again. No matter what.”

She didn’t get to say anything. The asshole got up after his stupid speech, and walked toward the standing stones.

The bracelet vibrated again. Snarling after Jack’s shadow, Triss leaned into her wrist, and whispered.

“We’re not letting anything happen to Jack, don’t you worry. I didn’t lose Julias just so I could lose his childe, too. And there ain’t no way I’m leaving your mom alone.”

She winced the moment she said it. Mary may have become a crazy psycho ghost, but she wasn’t so stupid she wouldn’t get the implication in what Triss just said. If Jack was gone, Sam would be alone. That meant Mary was already written off.

The bracelet vibrated slightly, once, and went still.

---

~~Jack~~

He took a deep, useless breath, and walked forward. It was the sloppiest, shittiest plan he'd ever come up with. Plan A: knock over the big stones. Plan B: be a distraction so his friends could knock over the big stones. End of plan. If he knew what Antoinette was up to, maybe he'd be able to do something smarter or more nuanced. But he was flying blind, and those big pillars with the bazillion etchings on them looked important.

When in doubt, break stuff.

He didn't have his gun; no ammo for it anyway. He didn't have Damien's sword; wouldn't really help him much anyway. He didn't have his own sword; left behind with the azlu, and then lost in the fog, with no time to find it. It was just him, in torn up suit pants, and some soaked shoes; at least they weren't dress shoes. Presentation was important, so the Invictus had a nice cross between dress shoe and combat shoe he'd grown fond of.

He chuckled quietly at himself. Much as his imagination and thoughts tried to distract him from what he was looking at, reality came back with a vengeance as he got closer, and closer. The archways were beyond massive, supported on bone pillars thick enough it'd take minutes to walk around a single one. The standing stones in the center of the strange area looked like toothpicks because of how skinny and short they were in comparison. They were all colossal structures, and he gulped on a dry throat as he found himself staring up.

Black Blood looked like a small action figure, standing beside those things.

The huge skeleton was leaning over, and talking to someone. It was just bass-filled rasps from a distance, but as Jack grew closer and closer, the rest of the sound spectrum filled in, and he could make out words.

“—will be alright,” Black Blood said. “Don’t you worry yer pretty little head none.”

Pretty little head? What the fuck?

Ice shot up through Jack’s limbs, and he ground his teeth as he glared up at the huge skeleton. He wouldn’t talk to Jacob like that. Who would he talk to like that? A girl. What girl? Not Triss, not Jen, they weren’t here. And there weren’t any other girls that’d be here that he’d talk to like that.

Except his mom.

He tightened his fists until his fingers trembled, and he walked faster. The pain vanished. His muscles and tendons boiled with vitae, and hints of the crimson snakes he used bubbled in his wounds, ready to emerge and protect him. If they were holding his mom hostage, he was going to rip Jacob into fucking bits.

Except, Jacob wouldn’t do that. Much as it fucking hurt to think it, Triss said the man might actually love his mother, and from what he’d seen, he had to agree with her. Then, why the fuck was she here? Maybe it wasn’t her. Maybe it was some other person, or a girl ghost, or—

It was her. Once he got close, he squinted hard enough he could see Jacob beside her, and the two stood beside a table. A wooden table by the looks of it, and definitely not a normal part of the decor. There were things on it, but he was too far to see. But he’d recognize his mother’s silhouette and posture from a mile away.

If Jack died, what would happen to her?

If Jack didn’t die, what would the Ripper do to her?

As he grew closer, but still a frustrating distance from the closest of the standing stones, Black Blood turned and faced him. The giant creature, with a skull taller than Jack's body, chuckled as he squatted down, causing his knees to poke out between the center circle of standing stones.

"I do believe I spy, with my little eyes, a little Ventrue," Black Blood said. Jack snarled up at the spirit god, and came closer. "Hold up, kid. You got that look in your eyes — eye — that tells me you're itching to stir trouble."

Beneath the giant skeleton was the tear, a mostly vertical slit cut through the air filled with strange, shifting colors, a few feet over the shallow black water. Looking at it now, it was as thick as one of Black Blood's claws, or thicker, like the skeleton had run the claw through tight fabric to tear it.

Jack took another step forward, enough that he could see past the standing stones on his left, to the table where Jacob and his mom stood. Both of them peeked their heads around their closest stone to see him. The Nosferatu wore his usual black eye bandage, and the scary dark robes that everyone pretty much assumed were made of human skin, dyed dark. His mom wore a suit, nothing special. He'd probably asked her to join him, without explaining the significance of it before she arrived. Fucking asshole.

His mom stared at him before she darted in his direction.

"Jack! What are—"

Jacob dashed out and caught her shoulder. "Wait, Samantha."

"Wait? Jack's—"

"Here to stop us, Sam."

“Us?” Jack said, glaring across the way to his mom and the fucker holding her shoulder.

His mom’s mouth fell open as she looked him up and down.
“Jack! What happened to you?”

“What happened to me!?! Jacob knows!” Jack glared at them, fists shaking, and he took another step toward the nearest standing stone.

Mistake. Black Blood slammed a hand down in front of him, close enough he could have squashed Jack into mulch. But he didn’t. The ground shook and the water splashed, soaking Jack’s legs, but Jack didn’t budge. He flinched, but he didn’t take a step back. And with Black Blood’s hand flat against the ground, he could see over it to stare at his mom and Jacob. Close enough they could talk, far enough they had to yell at each other to be heard.

Black Blood could have scooped him up. He wasn’t. Either playing nice, or he literally couldn’t touch Jack.

“Black Blood!” his mom said. “Don’t hurt him!”

“I won’t,” the titan said. Hopefully he was lying, and literally couldn’t hurt him. “As long as he stays back. He’s here to disrupt the ritual.”

“J-Jack? What happened? Why’re you—”

“I assume,” Jacob said, “he didn’t listen to me. Right, Jack? You pushed on, Sabrina interfered, and—”

“You let the Ripper out,” Jack said, and he pointed at Jacob, glaring. “Sabrina cut off the necklace. It’s gone! The Ripper got out and killed two people! Caleb and Monica are dead! The others are half dead, dying. I had to leave them behind! That’s how I got these injuries, Mom. A ghost gave me a couple. Avery and her pack, Damien, and Sándor gave me the others. Anything to stop the Ripper from killing them!”

His mom stared at him, a mix of fear and understanding on her face. So, she knew, or at least knew Jacob had left a trap for him that he'd have to get through to get here. That must have taken a lot of trust, for Jacob to straight up tell her that he'd left a trap to stop her son from stopping them.

Jacob sighed and shook his head, before turning and walking back toward his table of ritual shit. There were plenty of strange things on it, multiple books and artifacts, and even a small cauldron. A witch's toolkit.

“I refuse to feel sorry for any of Avery's pack, Jack. And you know why.”

“You fucking—” He took a step toward Jacob, but Black Blood let out a rumbling, raspy growl. “The fuck were we supposed to do, just let you up and end the world!”

“I'm not ending it! I—” He laughed as he threw up his hands. “I knew you'd see it like that. I knew you'd all see it like that. What would a kid like you know? Sam, maybe you can convince him?”

Jack stared at the back of the bastard's head, before setting his one eye on his mom.

“Jack, I ... I um...”

“You seriously going along with this? You know what he plans to do? What they plan to do!?” He gestured up at the giant skeleton.

“I know! Jacob told me. He told me about the barriers between realms. He's going to tear them all down.”

“You realize that means changing the entire fucking world, right? Everything’s going to smash together and change! Everything!”

“Yes! Everything! Everything will change!” The fear and worry vanished, and she stared at him as something rose up he almost never saw in his mother. Rage. “Everything should change! Do you have any idea what it’s like to lose everyone you love, Jack? Because I do! I know what it’s like to lose a husband. I know what it’s like to lose my only daughter. I know what it’s like to lose my only son!”

“I wasn’t dead! I—”

“You were! You were gone, and for all Mary and I knew, you were dead! It took years for us to accept that! You were gone, and James was gone, and we only had each other. And then I lost her! I lost her twice!”

“But—”

“Do you have any idea what it’s like to lose a child, Jack? To lose a part of you like that? Of course you don’t, and you never will. And don’t even tell me losing a vampire childe or a ghoul is the same. It’s not!”

He looked away. Of all the crazy shit he expected to run into down here, his mom defending Jacob was not one of them.

“Mom. Everyone could die.”

She scrunched up her nose like a chipmunk, but it didn’t last. The rage faded away, and she looked back to Jacob.

“It won’t matter if that happens,” she said, “because when Jacob and Black Blood are done, all those realms will combine. We’ll all be together, in the same place, and stuff like life and death won’t even be a thing! Right, Jacob?”

“That’s the plan,” Jacob said, and he picked a book off the table. “There was a time when that’s the way it was, the way it already worked. Then everything broke apart, got split off, separated into smaller chunks, and became one giant mess.” With bandaged eyes pointed down at the book, he stepped around one of the closer standing stones, and got to writing. Jack half expected the man to write with Kindred blood and his fingertip, seemed witchy enough, but instead the man used a knife. He was too far for Jack to see any details, but it was a large knife, and somehow it cut through the stone as easily as butter. The blade was dark red. Kindred blood? Probably his.

Whatever symbols he drew, each one glowed red when he was done drawing it, casting him in increasingly bright crimson light. Against the reflection of the black water beneath and around him, it looked all too much like a scene out of a horror movie.

“You really think you can just ... fix everything?” Jack asked. “Cast a ritual, against everyone else’s will, and change the whole world? You really think it’ll fix—”

Jacob snapped him a glare, and even with the bandage covering his empty eye sockets, Jack could feel the harshness in it.

“You really asking me that? You? I have never seen a kid so obsessed with trying to fix things, as if every problem you ran into was a personal challenge to your ability to fix them. Well here’s some advice from the grown ups, Jack. Life is unfair. You don’t get to fix everything.” He closed the book hard enough it made a slap sound, before he walked over to him. “And you know it. You know the world is fucked two ways from Sunday, and yet you still try and work with it. It’s a rigged game, and for some reason, you keep betting against the house.”

“You—”

“I’m not playing this stupid game anymore. Not me. Not your mother. We’re going to bring it all back together. Life won’t be unfair anymore.”

“Because there won’t be life anymore! This is suicide!”

Black Blood growled, loud, and Jack took a step back as he covered his ears.

“It ain’t suicide, little man,” Black Blood said. “You have any idea how long I’ve been down here? How many cycles I’ve suffered?” As the monster talked, his voice changed. The Southern accent faded away, and something else replaced it, something Jack didn’t recognize. Something old, with harsh syllables, and no care for how guttural and abrasive it was. He wasn’t playing anymore. “Do you have any idea, little vampire, how many times I have watched the rise and fall of civilizations? Do you have any clue, how many times I have seen the world of souls rip itself asunder. The rise and fall of kingdoms, burying themselves in corpses.” The colossus gestured around them. “There is nothing about this great machine worth sparing, little vampire. It is a broken system, its cogs and gears spinning endlessly, even as they rust and tear themselves to bits.”

Black Blood leaned in closer and closer, until the giant skull was five feet away from Jack. Jack could have sat in one of his eye sockets.

“Souls, ripping each other’s vessels into chunks, and sending each other across the chasm. I have watched it for thousands and thousands of years. I have risen and fallen with the tides of civilization, and each time I rise again to witness the slaughter that binds and feeds me. But before this endless slog of murder, when I was nothing more than a tiny mote of existence, I saw witness to the great divide. Everything, torn apart, existence so whole and complete rendered into limp, useless little realms that do nothing but churn. But I remember. Before the rivers of this broken existence grabbed me and tainted me, I remember. I will bring it together again, little vampire. I will have her back.”

Each word was a growling rasp, but Jack understood every one. He stared up at the huge skull, and the glowing white dots in his eyes. From so close, he could see that they were white fire, burning inside empty voids.

“Her?”

“My Lady of the Dead.”

“Wait. You’re serious? You—”

Before Jack could go on a lovely rant intent on ripping into Black Blood for being a colossal asshole, willing to destroy the world for the sake of a girl, Black Blood slammed his other palm down beside him. The black water exploded outward, and Jack flew back from the impact of the dark waves against his chest.

“Do not presume to understand me, vampire! You know nothing, understand nothing. Malachi has been my companion for over two centuries, and he is not foolish enough to presume to understand my reality. You do not know what it means to live in the currents of existence, to be controlled by its ebb and flow. You do not know what it means to be bound and chained by the realms! You know nothing of an existence measured in millennia.” After another heavy growl, Black Blood pulled back his second hand, and gestured to Jacob and Jack’s mom. “Malachi realized how broken and futile this existence was, as did I. And together, we have the power to change it.”

Groaning, Jack pushed himself back up to his feet. His mom almost ran over to him, but stopped when Black Blood glanced her way. She had instructions to not touch Jack, maybe? Or maybe to not leave the standing stones area? Figure out why later, stop Black Blood now.

If he did, his mom was going to hate him. Well, as long as she was alive, she could hate him all she wanted. And for Jacob, Jack was tempted to try the ‘would Minerva really want this’ angle, but considering the sort of research Minerva did that got her killed, it was probably something she was interested in. Maybe only academically, but regardless, not a good angle.

And fuck him, he didn’t entirely disagree with them, either. Mostly, but not completely.

“How long have you been trying to do this?” Jack asked.

Jacob chuckled as he moved over to another standing stone. It took him a bit to reach it, with how far apart they were, and he walked between Black Blood’s feet to do it. Still close enough he could stop Jack, if Jack tried to dash for one of the stones.

“You want me to explain my master plan? I think we already did that.”

Snarling, Jack looked to his mom. The look she gave him almost broke him, but he glared at her with as much anger as he could pour. Finding real anger to throw at his mom was almost impossible, but tonight, he stared at her with his one eye hard enough he was afraid she’d die on the spot with how she squirmed under his gaze.

She looked away, walked after Jacob, and whispered in his ear. Jacob stopped carving his etchings long enough to hear her out, before he nodded, and gave her a quick kiss on the cheek. Probably just a bit of familiar action to calm her down. The idea he’d kiss her on the cheek, in this circumstance, just because he wanted to, was too difficult to stomach right now.

“Black Blood was experimenting with tearing holes through realms since before Avery killed Minerva.” Jacob didn’t stop writing his symbols as he talked. Much as the dude liked to talk, he was also smart enough to not let it stop him. Too smart to let a villain monologue be his undoing. “You probably found some of those old tears, right? Stable, not actually tears.”

“Yes,” Jack said.

“Him and Minerva, testing things. Black Blood had even tried making portals before Minerva, to mixed success.” He nodded as he glanced down at his book, and drew another symbol in the stone. “After she was murdered, it took a while to figure out just how far she’d gotten in her research, notes in her books I had to decipher. The few books Simon didn’t find. She’d found a way to destroy the Gauntlet, and Simon and Avery killed her for it.” He sighed as he lowered his head, earning a kiss on the cheek from Jack’s mother. He smiled at her, before returning to etching his ritual symbols. “That’s when Black Blood and I decided to make it happen, on a grand scale. Step one, tear down the walls.”

“And step two?”

“Trickier, but more than doable once spirits and gods have full freedom to act. You may have noticed entities like Black Blood can’t just go around doing whatever they want.”

“I have.” And the idea of things like Black Blood being able to just walk around, doing whatever they wanted, was terrifying.

“Like he said, chains of the realms. We tear down the walls and merge the realms, and most of those chains are gone.”

“Let me guess. You ran into problems.”

Jacob nodded, smiling to himself as he approached another standing stone, this one closer to Jack.

“We ran into a lot of problems, of course. Those azlu spiders kept showing up and undoing our work. So, with some Crúac and some collected hair to point me in the right direction, Black Blood manipulated some spirits to leave a trail of bread crumbs for a certain pack of werewolves. They could do the dirty work of killing azlu, while Black Blood and I focused on this.”

“And the fact Avery and her pack could die doing this? Just icing on the cake, right?”

Again, Jacob glared at him, but another touch from his mom on the shoulder settled him.

“I didn’t know Simon was dead, at the time. But Avery is just as deserving of death as that mongrel was. Besides, Avery’s pack is Meninna. They live to kill hosts like the azlu. I could have sent her a card showing a picture of an azlu and she’d have come.”

“Uh huh.” Jack glared at his mom again, but spoke to Jacob. “And the wild goose chase Avery went on, looking for something Maria was up to?”

“A few years ago, I intercepted one of Ann’s item orders and replaced it. I knew she’d use it in her resonance machine, so I made sure it’d summon a spirit that’d tell her Maria was up to something. Plus, getting the blood wraiths who love Black Blood so much to repeat the same lie.” He shrugged. “A small bread crumb, with no evidence to back it up, and Avery and her crew went to Maria looking to kill. If Avery had any sense in her head, you never would have had to interfere. Am I wrong?”

No, he wasn’t wrong. Avery jumped the gun, and judging from what Jack knew about Uratha, that seemed to be a common problem. And considering Maria was looking to die at the time, it turned that whole situation into dynamite. But none of that was directly Jacob’s fault, not really.

Jack clenched his fists, but kept his gaze on his mom. She tried to match his glare, but she looked down, her momentary burst of rage already burned away. His wasn't, and wouldn't be any time soon.

“And Amanda?”

“I slipped a ring on her finger. Black Blood and I did a lot of work on it, so it'd alter her memories and get her to behave as it did. Of course, do you really think an elder like Michael would throw an entire covenant into war over one young vampire's dead human friend? Michael grabbed the opportunity, faked her death, and had the Invictus and Carthians killing each other because that's exactly what he wanted. I just gave him an excuse. A very weak excuse, that he exploited, because he's a dog who wants his bone. Am I wrong?”

Jack's fists ached.

“Why do those things?”

“Going around and ripping tears between realms was bound to attract attention. I needed people distracted. This ain't exactly easy.” He gestured at the stones, newly formulated, according to Sándor, and also to the tear between them. “Distracting you and the Prince, though, that was beyond hard. Impossible, actually. Julias picked well. Everyone else, I can have running after their vices, or willing to killing each other over the most meaninglessly shit, with the drop a hat. Hollow, pathetic. Not you, though. Can't seem to get you off the trail.”

“And the curse? Azamel. Jeremiah and Angela and—”

Jacob sighed, shook his head, and moved onto another stone. “Sorry. That wasn't me. And trust me kid, I wouldn't wish a Strix curse on anyone. After seeing what it did to Elaine?”

Jack froze, and finally tore his eye away from his mom to stare at the elder vampire.

“What do you know about Elaine?”

“Lot more than Annie does.”

“You ... you know about—”

“Yeah, I knew her, and I know about what she did to get rid of the curse. Poor woman went through hell you can’t imagine to overcome that. Worse than anything, and I mean anything, you could ever know.”

“You knew her before Antoinette did?” Jack asked.

“Barely. I met her, when she was recovering from her addiction, and from ... curse withdrawal, if you can believe it, on top of her other issue. I helped her, on a few occasions, from giving in and killing some random young vampire in the region. Not exactly an easy feat, stopping a vampire my age, practically foaming at the mouth like they had rabies. But yes, I knew her, and helped her, at least enough she didn’t make her condition worse.”

God damn it, Elaine.

“And,” Jacob said, “you’ll be delighted to know we’re not going to let you keep that curse. It’s not fair to you, and damn it, kid, I like you. Black Blood and I helped you out a few times already, for good reason. You’re good people. Plus, the curse could be a valuable tool.”

Jack took a step back. Okay, if they tried something, it’d be the perfect opportunity for Sándor and the others to swoop in and break stuff.

“I’m not—”

The water in front of Jack erupted. He bolted back a dozen steps, but it wasn’t fast enough. Someone with dark skin and wearing a hoodie came out of the water, sending it in all directions, and from under them, a blonde woman sprinted at Jack.

---

~~Eric~~

Never had he expected Safe to get so powerful, so quickly. Sure, Eric had run into the spirit on a few occasions, ever since it'd grown past its simple beginnings and actually adopted a more complex existence. Safe became Safe of Grey Street, and Grey Street was one of the friendliest places in Dolareido. And naturally, it did what all spirits did, especially as they grew stronger: tried to spread its influence.

For spirits, spreading influence usually meant literally spreading what they represented. For a spirit of fear, that meant making more things afraid, and affecting the physical world in those same areas. For a spirit of safety, becoming a spirit of sanctuary was an ultimate expression of that safety. And if Sanctuary of Dolareido got out of control, it'd turn the whole city into one nest of pure safety, where nothing even remotely dangerous happened, ever. A dangerous possibility.

But for now, Sanctuary was the only reason Red Tide hadn't killed every one of them. It was the only reason Jessy was alive.

"Quickly," it said, and it flew forward through the casino. The spirits of addiction, greed, lust, money, lights, and a few spirits of violence and shadows, scattered. Halfly because of the Uratha that most spirits hated or feared, and halfly because a spirit that'd been slowly earning a name for itself busted into their den of sin with a flare for the dramatic, apparently. The giant glowing wings were enough to send them running like their ephemera lives depended on it.

The pack followed after Sanctuary, but it wasn't easy. Each step was pain as Eric's body fought against the wounds Red Tide had dealt him. Getting a broken bone was nothing for the spirit wolf to heal. Healing a few dozen, often of the same limb, was not so easy. Red Tide hit like a semi, and it was a wonder Eric's brain hadn't come out through the back of his skull each time he'd gotten hit. The other werewolves weren't any better off, the three of them struggling to keep up, and almost tripping over their talons.

Once they got to the center of the casino, thankfully not blocked off by a giant fountain this time, the cracked wall again boomed with impact, and the crack grew longer. Again, another boom of impact, and the seam through the gold wall reached from floor to ceiling, cutting through the floors above. Blood already poured out of the crack. No balconies this time, but the ceiling was high, twenty feet up, and when Red Tide came through, it was going to flood the first floor instantly.

Eric fell in beside Jessy. Alive. His mate was alive. The rage melted away enough he could think clearly, and he watched her back and her weird, alien form as they ran. She didn't use it often, strangely terrifying as it was, but the fact she'd managed to seriously wound Red Tide was beyond impressive.

"Where?" the smaller vampire asked.

"Here," Brianna said, and she tore ahead of the pack as they approached the bar.

Before she could hop over it, another boom shook the casino, and they all turned long enough to see the massive crack split open. Blood poured through it like an avalanche of liquid, ripping and tearing everything apart as it came straight for them.

"What—" Natasha didn't get to finish. Sanctuary wrapped her up in its arms, and flew past the bar and to the door downstairs behind it.

The rest of them followed, throwing themselves through the door hard enough it nearly came off its hinges. Eric glanced back long enough to see Matthew make sure everyone else was in before he came in, following behind Flow. Mistake, looking back like that.

Eric's shoulder slammed into the concrete wall — not gold — of the staircase, and he snarled as he pushed off it and continued down the stairway as it weaved down and down.

The basement of a casino was a strange place. Above, it was all glamour and indulgence. Below, it was security, steel, things harder than steel, electronics, and even more greed. One of the more slimy spirits, some combination of greed and gluttony, slithered down the hall of cold blue, and put up a hand.

“No access! You need—”

Sanctuary blasted past it, and the spirit threw itself against the wall, flattening its green, slime, slug body. They ran past it down the hall of concrete, and when they came to another gate, this one of steel, Brianna crashed into it first, and tore it open. Apparently, it'd been resealed since the last time they'd visited with Sándor weeks ago.

With a heavy roar, Brianna ripped the bars apart, muscles bulging through her fur as the ephemera metal gave her resistance. Once open wide enough, they ran through, and took a right into one of the doors. Again, a giant slab of metal. Brianna went at it with her claws, but something went crack in her shoulder, and she yelped as she stepped back. She'd broken her arm, or re-broke it, after Red Tide had broken it only minutes before.

Matthew pushed past them, slammed both hands directly into the metal, sank his claws into it, and pulled his arms apart. The metal gave him trouble, but there was little that the goliath werewolf could not rip through, with leverage. He didn't have leverage to tear it apart, but once he put his feet against the wall, and pulled on the door, it came off with an ear-piercing shrieking tear.

As they scrambled in, the ceiling above cracked. A roar shook the casino, a hundred times louder than Brianna's, and the vibration pulsed through their bodies. Blood dripped from the seam overhead.

“Quickly,” Sanctuary said, and it dove through the room, wings carrying it while it carried a squirming Natasha.

The large room held nothing of real value to a spirit. Spirits wanted essence, and the only way to get that was to collect it from the physical world, at loci where it bled from the physical world into the spirit world, or from literally devouring or absorbing other spirits. The room in the real world would have been where a casino held tangible, real world cash, once upon a time. It was there in the spirit world, too, massive mountains of cash bills, utterly useless to anyone and everyone.

It did glow an unusual green though, similar to the slime spirit outside. And if they touched it, it'd probably summon some nasty spirits who'd defend it as if their lives depended on it. Not trouble they wanted.

In the center of the dark, metal room, there was the tear, a cut in the air that looked all too similar to a tear in fabric made by a knife. However Black Blood had made it, he'd cut it diagonally about seven feet wide, three feet thick at the center. Not at an easy fit.

“It looks different,” Brianna said. “Smells different.”

Eric took a deep whiff. It was true. Something about the tear was different.

“It still goes to Great Below,” he said. “But ... there is...”

“No time,” Sanctuary said. “Go, quickly.”

Tash stared up at the angel, eyes wide. “B-B-But what about—”

“Once you are through, I will leave. Red Tide cannot pursue me beyond its realm.” The angel spirit smiled down at Tash, and gave her a tender pat on the head.

“Flow!” Brianna said, and she transformed back into human form with far more speed than Eric could manage.

The water spirit nodded and jumped toward her. Its blue body condensed, its features vanished, limbs and wings gone, and its eyes and mouth melted away into a tunnel of water that leapt straight into Brianna’s chest. Avery’s necklace. The spirit disappeared into it, leaving Tash staring at what just happened with jaw dropped.

“Can you—”

“I cannot,” Sanctuary said. “Flowing Sanctuary has a pact with Avery. We do not have time to discuss this, Natasha. Quickly, through the tear.”

“B-But, you—”

Sanctuary picked Natasha up, and threw her through the tear. Everyone froze.

“Well shit!” Jessy let out an upset snarl, but jumped through the tear after her friend.

Brianna let out the same snarl and followed in after her.

Matthew and Arturo looked between each other, at the spirit who just threw their girlfriend to her possible demise, and jumped in after her as well.

“Sanctuary,” Eric said.

“Eric.” It smiled at him, and pointed him toward the tear. “Thank you for your help, in my growth. Take care of her for me, would you?”

He stared at the angel, and almost said something. But another crashing thud from Red Tide splintered the ceiling, and blood rained on them. No time to talk this through. No time to figure out what happened to the tear, and where it'd take them. No time to tell Sanctuary it had no chance against Red Tide, and it probably wouldn't be able to escape, either; it probably already knew.

He jumped through.

The tear was both physical and not physical. He could touch it, and once inside it, it had some sort of ground or floor to touch. Almost like passing through the Gauntlet. And whatever the tear cut through, it did cut through the Gauntlet, but it didn't take him through it. The darkness of whatever the tear cut through resembled the gold eternity of the Gauntlet, with something like stars in the distance, white dots that didn't quite hold still.

He didn't have time to stop and admire the obsidian endlessness around him. The tear opened up to another realm, and he fell through it, stuck somewhere between crawling and walking, and then falling on his face on ... more water? At least this wasn't red water. It was black.

He got back to his claws and knees, and looked up. And up. And up, at the giant skeleton god that squatted down in front of them.

"Welcome," Black Blood said, in a harsh accent Eric had never heard before, "to the apocalypse."

Chapter 172

~~Beatrice~~

Holy mother of fuck.

Athalia and Triss stared out from behind a rock, now much closer to the standing stones, close enough to hear what everyone near them said. Triss had her Cloak dialed up as high as she could take it, to the point she was going to be ravenous and depleted soon. Athalia had some tricks of her own, and she managed to help bury them in shadows that blended into the black water nicely. Whether Black Blood was just pretending to not notice them or not, Triss couldn't tell, but a sneaking suspicion told her he had, him or Jacob. No way they didn't have precautions set up to let them know when people approached.

But the gang had no choice. So Athalia and Beatrice got closer, staying low and keeping some of the giant boulders between them and the standing stones. Once close enough they could hear and see, they peeked out, listened, and jaw dropped. They looked at each other, eyes wide, before looking back to stare out at the titan, and Jacob, and apparently, Sam.

Jacob, god damn it. How much chaos had he stirred, just so he could have distractions? Hearing that he'd had nothing to do with Azamel's arrival, or Jeremiah's, settled a huge pit in her stomach, but still, a lot of shit had gone down that was his fault. Kinda. Sorta. In typical witch fashion, typical Jacob fashion, he'd found a nice moral gray area to ride and fuck people with. Give a man enough rope and he'll hang himself, and Jacob was handing out miles of rope for free.

Samantha. Seeing her tearing herself apart as she stood there beside the man, listening to him, her eyes peeking at Jack every few seconds as Jacob explained his master plan like a villain — which he probably loved — was painful. Poor Sam. If anyone on the fucking planet would understand the desire to hit a big reset button on the whole fucking universe, and put everything back together so that even life and death didn't exist anymore, everyone together forever, it'd be Sam.

Then of course, there was fucking Black Blood. No wonder every time Triss was around him, she felt like she was in the presence of something so much fucking bigger than he let on. But in no fucking universe did she'd think he'd have a lady he was trying to get to.

Things went from bad to worse before she could blink. Mark jumped out of the fucking water like the Bogeyman, and Elaine came up with him. The water around Jack was only a few inches deep, but that didn't mean shit to Mark. Jack dodged back instantly, reflexes no Ventrue of any age would normally have, leaving Elaine grabbing air. She jumped to the left, and Jack jumped back and to the right.

And then he came to a standstill. He squirmed and wriggled, but something had locked his feet down. Not Black Blood, he hadn't moved. Eventually the kid looked down with his one eye, and stared.

“What's going on?” he asked. “I—Elaine!”

Elaine smiled at the kid, before she walked over to him and put a hand on his shoulder. Much as the kid evidently wanted to punch her, fists shaking at his sides, he couldn't.

The water at his feet spread away, pushed by something, and glowing red lines, like the ones Jacob had carved on the standing stones, lit up the ground around Jack's feet. He was standing on a ritual circle. Elaine had baited him into it.

“Elaine!?” Samantha ran over to her, and eyes wide. “What’re you doing? Jack, what’s—”

“We knew your son wouldn’t cooperate. He doesn’t trust Black Blood, even though Black Blood is the only way ... the only reasonable way, to remove his curse.” Sighing, Elaine took Samantha by the shoulder, and gently pulled her away from her son. “His heart’s in the right place, but you know your son.”

“I ... I do, but—”

“He will do everything he can to stop Jacob, and Black Blood, even if it means getting himself killed, Samantha. Is that not right, childe oh mine?” Elaine, dressed in a business suit and skirt that looked horribly out of place, guided Samantha back to Jacob’s side. “Black Blood will need tools, once the realms are converged. If he can convert the curse into such a tool, then it will be valuable. If not, then it will be destroyed. Either way, your son will be free of it.”

“Mom! Don’t—”

“Don’t what?” Elaine said, snapping her gaze back to Jack. “Save you from yourself and your stubbornness?”

“You can’t trust Black Blood to—”

“Are you so blinded by your distrust that you cannot see what Mictlantecuhtli has done for you? The times he has saved you?”

Mictawhatnow? Triss and Athalia looked at each other, expecting the other to know, shrugged, and looked back to the insanity.

“You’re the one that told me to trust less, Elaine,” Jack said.

“We are not speaking of the Danse Macabre, Jack. Black Blood is beyond ancient, and his goals are amiable.”

“Amiable? He’s going to...” Jack looked up at Black Blood before slowly turning his single eye to Elaine, anger gone. He’d thought of something. “Elaine, who did you kill? Who did you ... you know...”

It was like someone hit the elder in the gut with a sledgehammer. She looked away and took a step back, before setting a hand against one of the standing stones.

“It does not concern you.”

“If you’re siding with Jacob and willing to break the whole fucking world, I think it kinda does.”

Elaine shook her head desperately, the practiced motions of an elder vampire thrown out the window, hair bouncing against her shoulders.

“This world is a cruel place, little Ventrue. Jacob understands that. Your mother understands that. Mark understands that.” She gestured to the man in the hoodie, standing a ways off, arms folded across his chest and head pointed up at the ghosts circling above. “This broken machine grinds its gears, and we are caught in its eternal cycle of misery. Enough, I say. Enough.”

Well, fucking shit. Stopping Black Blood and Jacob was already going to be insanely tough. But Elaine and Mark, too? Fucked. Triss and the gang were absolutely fucked.

“Now, bear witness,” Black Blood said, “to a miracle.”

Nodding, the god of the dead reached down for the tear, and slipped a claw into it. The ghosts above howled, and the water rippled as everything shook. The standing stones didn’t budge, immune to whatever the fuck Black Blood was doing, but everyone else felt it. Energy. Triss looked Athalia’s way, half expecting her hair to stand up like lightning was about to strike, but it didn’t. The water around her rippled, instead.

Movement above forced them all to look up, and everyone's jaws dropped. The ghosts overhead swirled over themselves, bodies half merging and overlaying with each other, and came down. Like a funnel or tornado, hundreds of the ghosts, maybe thousands, slowly crept down from on high and reached down for Black Blood. And like he was controlling the fucking weather, Black Blood reached up with his other hand, and a black glow — however the fuck that worked — shot out of his bone palm. The ghosts came down to it as if Black Blood's palm was the sole point of ground the tornado could land on. The tunnel's tip twisted on the way down, until it finally reached him.

Black Blood let out a groan, like a fucking dinosaur exerting itself to lift something big. Kinda applicable. He pulled up, and up, and tore the fucking universe apart. Triss's jaw dropped, again, as the giant skeleton lengthened the tear, pulling it up with him as the skeleton lifted. The ghosts above helped him. Almost like someone holding a rope, the tornado of dead straightened, and Black Blood squeezed on it harder with every foot he managed to tear the portal's opening. The swarm of ghosts went from howling, to screaming, and Triss covered her ears as the banshee shrieks hit hard enough she felt it in her withered guts.

Again, the god of death groaned, whatever he was doing obviously taking a massive amount of effort, and he squatted down in front of the tear. Higher, and higher, his claw ripped the tear further up, until he was standing again. Then higher, until the tear reached his chest. Higher, until the giant tear reached his head. Only then did the giant god stop ripping a hole through the world, and let go of his tornado of ghosts. Released from whatever Black Blood was doing to them, their shrieks faded into gentler-but-still-horrible howls, and the tornado lifted until it again became the swirling hurricane above.

Colors danced inside the tear. Blues, reds, greens, golds, violets, and strange colors that didn't make a lick of sense.

“Stop!” Jack pulled and pulled against whatever was holding him, but invisible chains bound his arms and legs. Considering how strong the kid was with the curse to help him, there was no way the ritual binding him was using strength to do it. Magic.

Black Blood let out a sigh, and even with his strange, new alien dialect and anatomy, he sounded exhausted.

“You okay?” Jacob asked.

Black Blood nodded as he stood there, arms hanging at his sides. Not like a skeleton needed to breathe, or a giant death god or whatever, but he looked drained. Ripping tears through the dimensions took a lot out of him. That was good for Jack and the gang then, hopefully.

Jacob nodded, and gestured to Jack, head still pointed up at Black Blood. “Gonna be able to do the ritual for Jack?”

“Yes. In a moment.”

Nodding, Jacob opened his book, and resumed carving symbols.

And then a bunch of people fell out of the bottom of the new-and-improved tear, a few feet over the black water. They landed with quiet splashes, but ended up dogpiling on each other, and they scrambled as they tried to get to their feet. Oh god, Natasha, three werewolves, one fucked up weird looking spiky wolf vampire, and Brianna.

“Welcome,” Black Blood said, looking down at the newcomers, “to the apocalypse.” If a skull could smile, it’d look like that.

Before the werewolves could so much as howl, Jacob tossed his book and knife back onto the nearby table, and launched himself toward the invaders. Holy fuck he was fast. It didn’t even take one second to get up to there face, and drive a fist into the closest werewolf's snout. They didn't get a chance to respond. Jacob punched hard, and the werewolf went down. The biggest one managed to come to their senses enough to try and take a swing at him, but Jacob ducked and drove his fist up under their jaw. Like a fucking Hollywood movie, they flew up and back, and landed on their back in the water. And the final werewolf, Jacob got in close and slammed his elbow against their chest. They went down, clutching their broken sternum, gasping. It was like watching an adult martial artist dismantle a bunch of children.

The four-legged little spiky monster, a Gangrel, probably Jessy, got up long enough for Jacob to get a hand on the back of her neck, and he lifted her up. And as deadly as the girl's weird monster form was, it couldn't do shit to someone directly behind her. He held her out, and she roared and clawed at the air around her, doing her best to turn around, but unable. And of course, Jacob grinned as he looked at Natasha and Brianna.

“Don't make me.”

“Okay!” Tash said, and she put up her hands. “Okay, okay. Stop, please. We ... we d-didn't mean to...” Slowly, her eyes turned to the giant skeleton feet beside her, and then up, to Black Blood. “Oh ... god...”

Triss and Athalia shared looks again. If they were ever gonna get a distraction, it didn't get much better than this. Where the fuck was Sándor?

Movement, a hint of something in the water's reflection. They looked up.

That, was a flying man. For a moment Triss expected to see him with legs pointed straight behind him, and one hand pointed straight ahead. Superman. But before the memory of the word could rip her guts out, a hard squint managed to bring the man into focus. Sándor wasn't flying like a superhero. He was flying like a fucking monster, arms at his chest and legs behind him with knees bent. A gargoyle, looking to land on something, or perch, or rip it to shreds.

The silhouette of the gargoyle surrounded him, so thick it almost blocked out any sign of the man. With four ludicrously massive wings outstretched, he was coming in hard and fast, aimed straight for the closest standing stone. No wonder it'd taken him so long to get involved. He'd climbed super high so he could dive bomb like a fucking falcon.

Black Blood looked up toward the oncoming shadow, and raised a hand. His arm was long enough to reach the furthest standing stone on the outside of the circle, the one Sándor was aimed for.

Again, energy permeated the air, and the black water churned as the invisible force worked through everything nearby. Triss and Athalia both froze as they watched, knowing full well Sándor was going to fail, and knowing full well they couldn't stop him. Black Blood saw him coming, and from how calm and direct the titan's movements looked, he'd been prepared. And the gargoyle was too high up, and going way too fast, for anything the girls said to matter.

Before Sándor could reach the standing stone, a giant red circle erupted from the black water. It circled the entirety of the standing stones, along with Jack, Mark, and Elaine, close to its edge. The light cut upward, reaching high enough it disappeared from view, higher than the standing stones, the archways, and probably all the way up to the gigantic cave's roof.

Sándor was going fast enough to punch through a concrete wall, but when he collided with the light, he came to a complete standstill. The barrier erupted with more light, almost blinding red, and a strange red circle drew in the air where Sándor hit it, filled with shit loads of symbols Triss had never seen before. It was like a bird crashing into a window. The silhouette of the gargoyle, and the man, squished against the light like it were some solid barrier, before he plummeted.

“Shit!” Triss jumped up, and ran past Athalia. The woman tried to grab her, but Triss saw it coming and dodged it. Sándor was falling like a fucking stone, and if someone didn’t catch him, the man was going to die. If he wasn’t already dead.

Too far. Too far! She ran fast, knowing full well Jacob and Sam and Natasha and fucking everyone was staring at her. She didn’t care. Athalia wasn’t fast enough, and the werewolves and Damien were way too fucked up to do anything. Someone had to catch him, and she was going to fucking—

Sándor opened his wings. Like a parachute opening, his fall came to a harsh stop, before he resumed falling, much more slowly. Oh thank fucking god. She slowed to a jog as she got closer, staring up at the guy as he came down, and down, circling in spot like a leaf falling from a tree.

He landed beside her, and collapsed to his knees. He tried to put his weight on his hands on the cave floor, and fell over with a grunt. He’d aimed his left shoulder for the standing stone, like he’d been trying to break down a door, and hit the barrier instead. No more left shoulder. Somehow, the only noise he made was another quiet grunt as he used his working arm to push himself back up to his knees, and looked at his ruined arm.

“Jesus fucking christ.” Triss got down on a knee in front of him and put a hand on his good shoulder. “You hit that thing hard, man.”

He nodded as he looked down, and regretted it immediately. His collar bone was fucked, the shoulder, the upper arm, everything. The collision had crunched the arm against his own body, and probably snapped a bunch of his ribs, too. And of course, the only noise the gargoyle made, despite the excruciating pain, was a grunt.

“Can you stand?” she asked. It’d probably be better to lie down, but it wasn’t an option.

He didn’t nod this time, but he did try to stand. And of course, failed, and almost fell over again. She grabbed his good arm, and pulled him up with her. Once on his feet, he slouched bit so his busted arm hung in front of him, but otherwise the man didn’t move or go anywhere.

“I think,” he whispered, looking to the red light barrier, and past it to Jacob, “that we’re blocked off.”

She laughed. It wasn’t funny, but she’d entered gallows humor mode.

“Well well well,” Jacob said, yelling a bit so his voice carried. “I knew there’d be more of you. Hi, Triss. How was your trip?”

She rolled her eyes, and walked toward the red light barrier. “Hi, boss. It sucked.”

Jacob gave her a big wave with his free arm, the other still holding Jessy by her neck.

“Aaron alive?”

“Yeah, barely.”

“Good. And hey, you set this up?” he asked, gesturing to Natasha and the others who’d fallen out of the tear.

“Dude, I didn’t even know what the fuck was going on until a few hours ago. Fuck you.”

Laughing, he shrugged and nodded, and threw Jessy with all the grace of a kid throwing a big stick. The girl spun through the air, went through the red light barrier as if it didn’t exist, and crashed into the black water not too far from Triss. Gangrels were usually pretty good about landing on their feet, but Jessy crashed and rolled before sliding to a stop, drenched.

The red light barrier was a one-way barrier.

Jacob marched over to two of the werewolves, and before they could so much as roar or snap a bite at him, he grabbed one by the foot and repeated the process, and then the other, launching them like frisbees. It was almost comical, but the werewolves landed much harder, and Triss winced as she heard a few crunches.

“Stop!” Tash yelled. “Stop! P-Please. We’ll ... we’ll go, okay? Right, Brianna?”

Brianna glared at Jacob, but the girl wasn’t an idiot. One look at the Nosferatu, and then Elaine and Mark, Jack, Samantha, and then up at the giant skeleton, was enough to break her resolve. She slowly nodded, and walked toward Triss and Sándor.

“Come on, Eric,” Brianna said.

The final werewolf got back up, glared down at Jacob, but followed after Brianna and Natasha. His tail hung between his legs slightly.

“Y’all were already pretty beat up, huh?” Jacob asked. He walked after them, dusting his hands off, and ushered the newcomers out like an annoyed mom getting her kids out of the kitchen. One after the other, they walked through the red light barrier, and each of them grimaced as they glanced back. Well, that’d been unexpected, for everyone, including them. If they’d been more aware of what was happening, they might have been able to actually do something, and they knew it.

“What happened?” Triss asked Natasha as she walked past, and checked on her boyfriends. It was her boyfriends, as the two werewolves transformed back into human form once they managed to get to their feet. The last one was Eric. They all looked beat to fuck, like they'd gone ten rounds with hands tied behind their back.

“We were in the spirit w-world,” she said, “when Street-Tail King tried to, um, capture us.”

“It slipped what Black Blood was up to,” Brianna said, gesturing around. “But, I guess everyone already knows. The fuck happened to the tear? It shouldn't have brought us here.”

“Black Blood has connected them,” Jacob said, walking back to his table and fetching his knife and book again. “They all lead here, now, even the ones he managed to open across the chasm.”

Sándor coughed, eyes widening. “He managed to reach across the abyss?”

Jacob grinned, and resumed drawing his symbols on the standing stones.

“I have,” Black Blood said, filling in. “Tiny tears that will not to rip apart. That is a bridge to build, not a barrier to destroy. But I have peeked into the realm beyond, and touched it. It will be my beacon, for the bridge I will build once the realms are combined.” The massive skeleton gestured to enormous tear beside him. “Look upon my works, ye mighty, and despair.”

Everyone stared.

“He's joking,” Jacob said, laughing with a hearty, full laugh, while somehow continuing his work. “The Ozymandias quote, I mean. Ugh, I told you, Mict. No one gets your sense of humor without the Southern accent.”

Black Blood shrugged, and squatted down over Jacob while looking out to the rest of the crowd now standing around the red barrier. Sándor and Triss, Tash and her boys, Brianna, Jessy, and Eric. On the other side of the barrier, Jack in a binding ritual, Elaine, Mark, Jacob, Black Blood, and poor Sam, who struggled to look anyone in the eye. She hadn't expected any of this, and every moment, it was obvious she was drowning. She'd jumped in the deep end and didn't know how to swim. The rest of them weren't much better off.

“Who else hides in the shadows?” Black Blood asked.

“I—”

Black Blood snapped his glare at Jack, and the poor kid shut up instantly.

“It does not matter. Watch from the dark, or from the sidelines. You cannot cross the barrier.”

He wasn't lying. They all felt it, some sort of rippling energy that told the air to bow down and listen, the same way a fortress wall would if you put your ear up to it. A fortress wall bigger than the fucking Great Wall of China.

Athalia stayed hidden. Maybe she'd get to do something, use shadows, or maybe tunnel in, so that made sense. The rest of them though, Avery and Clara and what was left of their pack, they dragged themselves over to Brianna and the wolves. Everyone back in human form, they all took a moment to check in with each other. Even Damien joined them. With all the Cloaking he'd done, and the punch to the face, dude was running on empty.

“Where's Monica?” Matthew asked, clutching his side. “Where's Carter? And Caleb?”

Avery glared past them at Jacob, but before they could all give him the same glare, Clara came in closer. She whispered something, and Brianna, Matt, and Art all froze, before peeking over their shoulders at the kid in the ritual.

Jack looked away.

“Street-Tail King had specific instructions,” Jacob said, “as did Red Tide. As did Sabrina and the other ghosts. If you’d listened, no one would have been harmed.”

“Fuck you,” Art said.

“He’s not lying!” Samantha came up to the barrier, eyes pleading. “Jacob told me about the stuff he did. If people had just listened, no one would have been hurt. If people weren’t so ready to kill each other, no one would have been fighting!”

“He’s going to get everyone killed,” Avery said, and she marched up to the barrier as if she didn’t basically have to drag herself to do it. “Your boyfriend is going to get everyone fucking killed.”

“That’s not what’s going to happen!”

“Says you. Uratha have been guarding the barrier between the Hisil and Gurihal for thousands of years.”

“And I,” Black Blood said, still squatting down, skull face pointed at Avery, “have witnessed it for thousands more. Do not confuse what you recognize as normal, as the same as correct in the large scheme of things, wolf. You do not get to decree this broken world as the way things should be done.”

“And who gives you the right to change it for everyone?”

Black Blood gestured to Jacob and Samantha with a hand. “Those of us who have enough awareness to recognize a broken system.”

“Sounds like a load of bullshit to me.”

Jacob sighed and shook his head. “Don’t bother, Black Blood. She’s a stubborn breed. Part husky, probably.”

Triss fought to keep the grin off her face. Even now, the mother fucker could not help but make jokes, and god damn it sometimes they were funny.

Triss gave Sándor a small pat on his good shoulder, and walked up close enough to the red barrier she almost touched it. From this close, it was easy to look everyone in the eyes, if they had them. Jack looked miserable. Samantha looked like she was about to tear in half. Mark and Elaine watched, expressions neutral, except Elaine looked a bit ... wounded.

She’d done something, something really nasty, something Jack didn’t even want to say. Jack said she’d killed someone, but that didn’t really seem enough to warrant all this madness. Despite her efforts to hide it, she looked wounded, and guilty. Not guilt about causing Armageddon, ‘cause that probably seemed perfectly reasonable to an elder. Guilt about something else.

“You really couldn’t have told me about any of this?” Triss asked, gesturing.

Jacob looked her way, and paused etching his symbols long enough for his eyeless gaze to sink in, before he sighed and got back to it.

“I was tempted, I was. But in the end, I couldn’t risk it. Sorry.”

Sándor joined Triss’s side. “And you, Mark?”

Mark folded his arms across his chest, and stared at Sándor from under the shadow of his hoodie’s hood.

“You’re not the only one who’s lost people.”

“Azamel?”

Mark shrugged and spit to the side. Gross. Everything about the man radiated gross. It made sense, considering what Triss had seen of him so long ago, when she and Jacob took a trip to visit Azamel. Dude’s Horror was a pile of maggots, insects, bones, rotting flesh, and slime.

It was hard to imagine someone doing something as insane as all this, so they could see someone like Azamel again. But the fuck she did she know? Somehow, the old bitch had Athalia’s complete trust and devotion, and Mark’s, and Fiona’s. Hell, she’d convinced Sándor to take her place.

She almost asked Jacob if he didn’t think she’d want this, too. She’d lost someone, and all of this was a way for her to see him again. But she already knew what his answer would be. She wouldn’t be willing to remake the whole fucking universe to do it. He was right, not telling her. Maybe right after Julias died, maybe she would have, maybe, but now? Fuck her, changing everything for everyone like this was just way too much.

She couldn’t get any closer than this, and they didn’t have any more available distractions. Now or never.

“Now, Mary.”

Jacob lowered his knife and looked her away, eyebrow raised. For the first time in Triss’s second life, the man’s expression switched to full on shock, as Mary’s ghost shot out of the bracelet. The ghost wasted no time, and bolted forward toward the closest standing stone, near Jack. The wall of red light didn’t stop her in the slightest, like wind pushing through a screen door, and she threw herself at the standing stone, claws out, and enough wind followed behind her Triss fell forward and hit her head on the barrier, and fell back on her ass. Again.

“Mary!?” Sam said. “What—”

Black Blood snapped his hand out, and the whole Great Below noticed, an explosion of movement that was beyond fast. Nothing that big could move that fast. The arm snap cut through the air, and made a weird boom sound before a ripple pulsed outward. The pulse picked up the water and turned into a tsunami that smashed into everyone, throwing them all to the ground. Triss was already on her ass, and the wave slapped her to the ground hard. The stones of the whole fucking cave groaned, the ground vibrated underneath her hard enough it inched her across the stone, and her teeth rattled in her head.

She sat up, wiped the black water from her face, and stared up at Black Blood. His hand was still out to the side, in Mary’s path, and Mary was in his grip. Literally. He held her in his palm, and let out a booming growl as he brought her in closer to his skull face.

“Do not. Touch that.”

Mary shrieked and screamed, twisted and squirmed, but Black Blood held her as easily as a kid would a worm they dug out of the mud. Well, shit. Whatever limitations bound Black Blood, they didn’t apply to ghosts.

“Black Blood, don’t hurt her!” Sam yelled, looking up at the giant and waving her arms.

“I will not hurt her.” He brought in his other hand, and held it over Mary’s ghost, palm facing down at her. “I will bind her.”

Before Sam could ask, a sparkling chain fell out of Black Blood’s grip, slithered down out of his palm, and slipped around Mary’s shoulders. Around and around, until it’d snaked her four times, and Black Blood set the bound ghost on the ground beside her mother.

It was weird, seeing a ghost that could go in and out of a bracelet, and otherwise be made of mist whenever she wanted, be bound by chains. Flashbacks to The Muppet Christmas Carol movie with the two old farts as ghosts in chains hit Triss. Creepy scene in the movie, creepy scene here. Mary still didn't have legs, but otherwise she was stuck to the ground and shallow black water, like any person would be if their arms were bound at their sides and they were put on their ass. Worse, she tried to get up, and she couldn't. She tried to scream and shriek, and she couldn't.

“Baby?” Sam said.

“Mom!” Mary frowned up at her, gave Black Blood a death glare, and frowned up at her mom some more. “What are you doing! Stop them! Stop them! Stop them!” No crazy banshee shrieks, but she could still talk.

Samantha stared down at her daughter's ghost before kneeling down beside her.

“Mary, what ... what happened to you?”

Mary shook her head. “Doesn't matter. Stop them! You can't—”

“Stop them? They're going to fix it all, baby. We can be together! You and me, and the other Mary. Jack, and your dad, too! You don't miss your dad?”

Dad. The word hit the poor ghost harder than anything any of them could have said. Mary's evil black eyes softened, and her psycho monster mouth softened, too.

“Daddy?”

Well, shit. Another one bites the dust. Mary stopped squirming, and instead sat there, somehow looking pitiful and sad despite the banshee face. And Sam, good ole Sam, didn't hesitate to run her hand over her daughter's ghost's head. Bittersweet, to be able to touch her ghost here and nowhere else.

“Jacob,” Elaine said, “how much longer?”

“Not sure. Half an hour? Maybe more.”

“Then I suggest Black Blood performs the removal now, before the Prince and her sheriff interfere. She might come through the tear, same as the others.” And as if to seal that point, she and Mark both stepped closer to the tear, ready to punch whoever came through it.

Jack tried to yank himself free of his invisible chains again. No good. Kid could punch through a bank vault, but the ritual didn't give a damn.

“You can't—”

“Cannot what, oh childe oh mine?” Sighing, Elaine shook her head and gestured around them. “Please stop fighting us. Jacob has outsmarted and outwitted every one of you, all for your own good. You deserve better than this fallen world has given you. And I will not let the curse exist for one second longer than it must.”

“Not let it? What do you mean? I thought—” The kid blinked, several times, as his expression changed to realization. “You ... You resent it.”

“Of course I resent it!” Holy shit, another first time for Triss. Elaine got angry, and yelled. “Do you think I did not suffer under its influence? Do you think I remember my past with its power at my beck and call with fondness?”

Jack looked down. “I thought—”

“You thought I was nothing more than a power-hungry Ventrue, willing to throw your life away so I can acquire that dreaded curse’s power for myself.” She came up to him, and gave the man a rather harsh poke in the chest. “I am trying to help you. I also want this vile thing destroyed. Or, if Black Blood can use its power as a tool for his whim, that will satisfy as well. A fitting fate, for such a horrible thing to be reduced to a tool, I think.”

After a few moments of painful silence, Jack eventually lifted his head, and glared at Elaine with his one eye, and then at Jacob.

“You’re all so convinced this is the right thing to do, merging the realms or whatever, that everyone will be happier this way. And I get it. You’ve all experienced the worst this shitty existence has to offer. I fucking get it. But don’t get it twisted. You’re not trying to change things because you think everyone will be happier. You’re trying to change things because you want things to be better for yourself, because you want to be with the people you’ve lost.” He let out a snarl, glared at his mom hard enough she shrank, and glared back at the elders. “Instead of letting go of the people you’ve lost, you’re going to change the whole world. You’re all selfish.”

Triss stared at the kid, long enough for Jack to glance her way, before he looked back to Elaine and then to Jacob. Powerful words. The kid had a gift for them, Ventrue or not, and everyone paused to absorb them. Even Jacob stopped carving symbols, for a few seconds at least, before he got back to it.

“I think we’ve earned the right to be selfish,” he said. “Everyone who’s seen the worst life has to offer would agree.” With his book-holding hand, he pointed at finger at the rest of them, eyeless gaze still aimed at his work. “Clara, lost a brother. Am I right?”

Everyone looked at Clara. She opened her mouth, ready to say something, but nothing came out, like someone had come along and yanked out her voice. Eventually she looked down.

“Avery. Lost a bunch of your old pack, right? Mates you knew for decades? Closer than family?”

Avery snarled, but even she eventually looked down.

Jacob continued. “We know what Triss has lost, and Sándor, no need to bring that up. But it keeps going! I bet everyone here has someone they wish they could talk to again, right?” He gave them a moment to respond, but all he got was grunts, growls, and eyes looking down. He was right. “Damien! You can talk to Lucas again, and you can bet your ass it’ll be a different conversation, now that the dude won’t have his head jammed up his ass with some religious delusion. You’ll actually be able to talk to him, and maybe convince him a thing or two.” They all looked to Damien, and through his battered and broken face, there was surprise.

Jacob went on. “Athalia! Come on out, you bitch. I know you’re out there. How else could Beatrice have gotten here?”

With a quiet snarl, Athalia stepped out from behind her rock, and joined the rest of them at the red barrier.

“It could have been Fiona.”

“As if Fiona would have the sense to stay hidden, looking for the right moment to strike.” He gestured at the red barrier. “Too late for that, regardless. So answer my question. You really don’t want a chance to talk to your daughter again?”

“My daughter hates me.” Athalia did her best to say it straight, but there was a hint of a waver in there, and Triss looked away. She’d said hates, not hated. She still hadn’t moved on.

“It won’t matter,” Jacob said, with enough confidence to have everyone listening, whether they wanted to or not. “None of it will matter when everything and everyone is together. What could she hate you for, when there’s nothing to hate you for?”

“Or to love her for,” Sándor said. The words cut through the silence like a knife, and just as quickly as everyone had been listening to Jacob, now they were listening to the gargoyle. Except he didn’t follow it up with anything, of course. He didn’t need to, everyone knew what he meant. Without context, everything was meaningless.

Jacob shook his head. “Love will still be a thing, you losers. Existence! You make it sound like—”

A sword stabbed up through the water, near Black Blood’s foot, and close enough to Jacob that the man jumped back. He set the book and knife on the table, turned, and ran back toward the random sword, but jumped back again when a geyser of blood shot out from around the weapon.

What in the ever living fuck.

---

~~Antoinette~~

She pushed through the blood and flesh until it consumed her. Walls of undulating muscle and meat. A sea of crimson, warm, and full of life.

She dared not open her eyes. Forward she pushed, Daniel ahead of her, one hand behind for her to grasp. He could see not see either. But their instructions were simple and direct, and it was apparent their exact direction was less important than simply pushing forward. Such was the way of magic; such an archaic, idiotic word, but nevertheless, magic. Intent and sacrifice mattered more than specifics to witches. Dragons followed different rules, but within the tunnel of flesh, it was no dragon experiment that guided her.

With her free hand, she risked dragging a finger along the wall of flesh they pushed through. It had a heartbeat. Elen insisted flesh was no mere amalgamation of chemicals, arranged in such a way as to convert fuel into ATP, or self-replicate DNA. Life and flesh were connected, and deeply bound to existence in the physical world. The physical world was, according to the deranged old woman, alive.

Such ignorance could only be found in a witch, of course. Defining life itself was no easy feat, and yet practitioners of mysticism and stupidity tossed the word about as if they understood the universe. And yet, as Daniel and Antoinette pushed forward, she could not help but feel life, in something as undeniable and primal as a beating heart. Whatever tunnel this was, whatever it passed through, it did not appreciate them turning its flesh and veins into a passageway. Anything alive would have drowned or suffocated.

Kindred were, of course, an exception to that rule, as they were to many.

Daniel stopped, and squeezed her hand. She squeezed it in return. They were there. They were ready.

She could not see, but she felt the vibrations through the blood and flesh that pressed on them. Daniel cut through the flesh barrier before him, the same as he had to get them onto the abhorrent path. And once he did, gravity turned on them. Forward became up, backward became down, and she squeezed Daniel's hand before she could fall back into the tunnel of endless flesh. Something cold poured over her, a harsh contrast against the pulsating, warm blood, and when gaps of air fell with them, she dared to open her eyes.

Daniel jumped through the hole, and took her with him. He jumped into the darkness, and the two of them landed on their feet in ankle-deep black water.

“Antoinette!?” Jack's voice.

A spark of joy and relief ran through her, only to be crushed by the sights before her. The tear, now colossal and filled with every color she knew, and more. Jack, stood and seemingly paralyzed over a ritual circle whose lines of red pushed the black water from its circumference. Black Blood, a black skeleton of absurd size, looming over them. Standing stones taller than the entity, covered in thousands of red symbols. A dark cave of nigh infinite measure. And a barrier of red light that circled the standing stones, and Black Blood alike.

Jack. Poor Jack. Her lover looked terrible, shirtless and with several claw marks across his flesh with only scar tissue covering them. Similar claw marks cut across his face, leaving him with one eye. In truth, she doubted her lover would, or perhaps even could, die in battle, not with the power of the curse to protect his vessel, but the blade was two-sided. His necklace was gone, and the claw marks were thick. Werewolves.

The Ripper had fought the Uratha.

Beyond the red circle waited a host of faces. Beatrice stood closest, eyes wide, mouth agape, staring at the Prince. Athalia and Sándor, the werewolves, Damien, and even her student Natasha. How she had come to be here would, no doubt, be an interesting story. And sure enough, most of the werewolves looked debilitated with extreme injury, as did Damien. And she counted ten werewolves. Three were missing. A glance Jack's way confirmed her suspicions.

She took a second to wipe the infinite blood from her face and eyes before glancing down at herself. Soaked to the core in blood, crimson wet drenched her business suit, as it did for Daniel and his trench coat. He spared a moment to remove his glasses and shake them off, before donning them once again and scanning the area.

“Jacob,” Antoinette said, and she clenched her fists at her sides. When her eyes fell to her childe, who huddled behind her lover, fire burned through Antoinette's spine. “Samantha. How long—”

“I wisped her away tonight,” Jacob said, one arm out and blocking off Samantha. Or, protecting her. “She didn’t know what I was up to, if that’s what you’re wondering. Wanna tell me how you got past Black Blood’s barrier? We worked pretty hard on that, you know. It goes under us, too.”

She glared at the man, and took a moment to push her now red hair over her shoulders and behind her, before her eyes finally settled on Elaine. Fire became an inferno, and her fists trembled all the more.

“You side with Jacob, Elaine? Why?” she asked. Jacob deserved no answers.

Elaine did her best to keep guilt from her face, or any emotion at all. But Antoinette knew her friend well, and a trace of shame cut through her, followed by her own rage.

“I have made mistakes in my life, Ann. I would see them undone.” Her words wavered, even as her old friend forced herself to meet Antoinette’s gaze. What trials had Elaine suffered, to come to such a ridiculous conclusion?

“Undone?”

“The realms will be merged,” Black Blood said, in a voice she had never heard before, in an accent so beyond ancient she could not hope to identify it. “This broken world will be fixed. First, the fallen world, and then across the chasm to the realm beyond. All, back to the way it once was.” In the most cliché fashion, the god of corpses felt the need to explain himself. Good. Elen’s haruspex had attempted to draw out Black Blood’s plan, but had failed. It was too grand an idea for paper and pencil to convey.

Antoinette slowly set her glare upon the giant, and he stared down at her. She would not show fear, not before this relic.

“All this time,” she said, slowly turning her gaze from Black Blood to Jacob. “All this time, you two have conspired to ... undo the world?”

“You may have hope for this world,” Jacob said, “but we don’t.”

For the first time in the hundreds of years she had known the man, his smile was gone, not even a whisper of it, and his face had become deadly serious. Black Blood was beyond terrifying, but it was not the god of corpses and death that petrified her. It was Jacob, her old friend, and the way he stood. This was not the man who embodied chaos, and the joy chaos brought. This was a man who would die for his beliefs.

“Jack,” Antoinette said. “Has Jacob’s ritual been completed?”

“No. He’s still got some more shit to do. But, uh, Black Blood is—”

“Unable to interfere.” She looked up at the nearest standing stone, and then at Black Blood, who leaned in closer to her as he guessed her intentions. “I had suspected as much, for a long time. Elen’s haruspex proved it. Without another to act as his intermediary, what he can do and not do is quite limited. His reach is different, in different realms. And down here, in the depths of the forgotten, his power is vast, where ghosts are concerned.” To prove her point, she aimed a finger up, at the swirling ghosts above. “Drawn here, I assume? To help power this ... insanity?”

Black Blood let out a deep growl that vibrated the ground and churned the water about them.

“I am a shepherd, and—”

“You,” she yelled, moving her finger to point at the skeleton instead, “are a fossil from a bygone era! Your power has waned, and despite Jacob’s best efforts, you are still but a shell of your former self. You have been all but forgotten by the surface world, and have lost almost all power to affect it. It takes a colossal amount of effort for you to touch the physical world, and correct me if I am wrong, but you are currently spending that effort, on this.” She gestured around at the standing stones, and the hurricane of ghosts above.

Technically true. Black Blood, or as Elen discovered, Mictlantecuhtli, could not touch her directly, not without absurd effort and sacrifice of energy. But that did not mean he could not wield forces that could. Curses, rituals, voodoo dolls or their ancient equivalent, tainted items, a host of methods to enact his weakened influence. She had to be careful. But in the moment, face to face with her, he could not touch her.

She had chosen the right moment to strike, had waited for it, and now she had to act.

“Sire, please,” Samantha said, “Jacob’s not trying to hurt anyone. I —”

“Childe,” Antoinette said, and she glared at Samantha until the ignorant pup looked down. “I can understand how you have come to side with Jacob on this. I can understand how others have come to side with him.” She gestured to Elaine, and then to the many standing beyond the wall of red light. “I can understand how those forced to watch this madness could, perhaps, side with Jacob if they were given the opportunity. But...” Sighing, she shook her head and looked to Jacob once more. “I would have loved to discuss this with you, Jacob. I would have loved to sit, and philosophize with you. But instead, you have decided to ignore our friendship.”

Jacob shook his head as well, and gestured to her. “We can still be friends, Ann. Just step aside, and in the new world, we can still—”

“Daniel. Deal with Elaine. Kill her if you must. I will deal with Jacob.”

Her sheriff, forever her weapon, did not hesitate. Whatever strange relationship he shared with Elaine, considering her many years of attempting to seduce the man, did not stay or slow his hand. Sword in grip, body and coat drenched in blood, he dashed for Elaine with speed so great, a splatter of crimson followed in his wake.

Elders did not battle like this. It was simply not done, and for good reason. Their was no way to prepare for such conflicts, where each Kindred was capable of feats grand and godly. Battles of power and wit, where the smallest mistake meant death. Perhaps Gangrels did, forever chasing the rush of the Beast, but even then, it was beyond rare in elders.

In any other circumstance, Antoinette would have used Majesty, enamored an army to do her bidding, and have them fight for her. In any other circumstance, Jacob would have stuck to the shadows and avoided combat entirely, or bury a victim in a most heinous Nightmare that would leave them paralyzed for hours, if not days. A Nightmare so strong, suicide would be the only outcome once it was over. They were above settling battles with their own, literal hands. Usually.

Elders were smarter than this.

“Prince!” Jack said. “There’s—”

A shadow erupted from the water between Elaine and Daniel, and grabbed Daniel’s foot. Mark, the Begotten, and one of the stealthiest creatures she had ever encountered. Antoinette snapped her glare to the disgusting man as he yanked the foot out from under her sheriff, but she knew the mistake the moment she made it. Jacob leapt for her, and she was forced to duck and roll.

Jacob would never be as fast as her, but he was fast nonetheless. Daeva and Nosferatu were both the primary embodiments of pure Kindred strength, but neither were terribly resilient, and if the man managed to hit her, there was a good chance it would prove immediately fatal. And while she could dodge his attacks, and he would struggle to dodge hers, his next maneuver rendered such an advantage moot.

Jacob vanished.

Antoinette jumped to her feet, and flexed her toes against the stones underneath her; she was barefoot, having already abandoned her heels. She ground her teeth as she looked left and right, and poured vitae into her senses as she scanned for the man, but reality was not kind. No vampire, not even an elder Nosferatu, could vanish before her eyes from a mere thirty feet away, not without preparation.

She looked down and searched for the blood, but it was pointless. Jacob had no doubt already soaked the area with his vitae, and now both she and Daniel were trapped within his grasp.

“Oubliette,” she whispered. They were trapped within the maze of his Oubliette. She looked for Daniel, but her eyes betrayed her. The colors of the great tear portal twisted and danced, and angles of surfaces turned on their sides. Up became left, left became right, and she doubted the very stone she felt beneath her feet as she took small steps away from where she last saw her old Nosferatu friend.

“Prince!” Sándor’s voice. “Break the standing stones!”

Jacob’s maze of distorted vision may have compromised her eyes, but it did not affect her ears. She had assumed the standing stones were important, but with no time to process the information, Sándor did well to guide her. The nearest stone was thirty feet away, and in any other situation, she could have reached it with a single leap. She dared not attempt it. The maze was lying to her vision, and such a leap could easily launch her straight into the barrier, or through it if it were one way. She could have trusted her memory, but in the scant few moments she had had to memorize the area upon arrival, it was not a risk she was willing to take.

So she walked. With eyes scanning for patterns in the warping and winding invisible path, she tested directions for whichever brought her closer to the stone covered in glowing symbols. Black Blood and the tear waited within the maze as well, and as imposing as both colossal entities were, neither moved. Elen's divinations had been correct. Black Blood did not have the power to touch her, not even here, not with him drained by performing this ritual, and with how weak the entity was compared to who he used to be, 600 years ago. But that did not mean it was safe for her to touch him, or the tear. Yet another reason to tread carefully.

One step toward the nearest stone took her further from it. Another to the left took her closer to it. She built a map in her mind as she tested each direction, as she scanned for Jacob's invisible approach, as she looked to the red barrier beyond and the onlookers watching, as she looked to Jack and his concentrated, worried expression, as she looked to Samantha who now knelt beside her bound and captured ghost's daughter, whispering with her, and as she looked to Daniel.

Trying to understand what Daniel, Elaine, and evidently, Mark were up to, was as difficult as tracking bullets in a maze of mirrors. Daniel was fast, faster than Antoinette, and certainly faster than any Ventrue, but it was clear he had become trapped in the maze of invisible, warping paths as well. Thankfully, it also seemed so too had Elaine and Mark. And from the few, short lived glimpses Antoinette managed of Elaine's face, her old friend was forced to create a mental map, same as Antoinette. She had not anticipated her partner-in-crime to trigger an Oubliette directly on top of them.

Elaine. How could she do this? What could Jacob have said to her to convince her this madness was the best possible course of action? What mistakes had she made that she refused to share with her?

With the nature of the curse known to them all, as well as Elaine's history with it, Antoinette had had no choice but to assume Elaine had performed a rather heinous experiment to rid herself of it, so long ago. But for Elaine to feel so guilty, so broken over what she had done, or perhaps feel guilty over other secrets in her past she had not shared, that she would aid Jacob in this madness, Antoinette struggled to accept.

She wished Daniel would spar with Elaine verbally, in an attempt to learn more. But it was not his way, and while he was clearly superior to Elaine in melee combat, he had two opponents to deal with. He needed to focus. And, while Daniel was as skilled at Obfuscate as Jacob, and quite capable of hiding himself if given the correct situation, trapped inside Jacob's Oubliette was not such a situation. And if he used Auspex to search for the truth in the maze, it would be a moment's hesitation that could get him killed.

But that did not mean he could not give Elaine and Mark trouble. Once Elaine was close enough the warping vision of the Oubliette was not enough to stop her, she took a swing at the man, and Daniel responded with masterful use of Obfuscate. His body became a blur, a distortion of light, not a product of speed but of his ability to twist the shadows. Elaine missed, and Daniel sliced along her side as he stepped around her. The sword cut through her suit and skin, but could not penetrate deeper, as the Ventrue undoubtedly poured vitae into her flesh.

Neither Mekhet or Ventrue were particularly well equipped for melee combat. That was the purview of Daeva, Nosferatu, and Gangrels. Elders compensated for such limitations, and compensated well. Mekhets frequently learned to use swords. And Ventrue never fought alone.

Mark burst from the black water yet again, and for a sliver of a moment, the silhouette of something grotesque gushed from the onyx fluid, a mound of maggots and other insects that swam out in all directions. Again, Mark reached up for Daniel's leg, but the sheriff stepped clear, only for Elaine to drive her fist into his chest. He recovered quickly and adopted a defensive stance. Elaine did not have the strength to kill him instantly, but unlike Daniel, she had the Resilience to outlast him. A battle of attrition.

A blur, identical to Daniel's own, came for Antoinette's face, and she sidestepped it, only to return Jacob's punch with a fast jab. But unlike her, Jacob could tell where the walls of lies of his Oubliette were. He stepped away and disappeared as quickly as a fly in a dark room. Normally her senses would have been able to track him, with him so close, but not within this maze of twisting vision.

"I really wish you'd just stay out of this," Jacob said. There was no point in turning to find the source of the voice. All a deception.

"You are trying to destroy the world, old friend."

"I'm trying to save it. To fix it. You know what that's like. You spend every day trying to fix this broken system, but you just don't think big enough."

"Is that what you told my childe?" Antoinette set her harsh glare on Samantha, who knelt with her daughter's ghost and stroked her hair. How unfortunate that, for the first time, Samantha could physically touch the ghost, and yet Mary had apparently degraded into something horrible, something Antoinette had only seen glimpses of in her long, long life. She had become the sort of ghost that folklore tales were written of, to frighten young children and keep them away from old, abandoned homes, or dark forests.

"I told her the truth," the old Nosferatu said.

Samantha looked to Antoinette, eyes beyond distraught. The poor thing did not understand, overwhelmed by circumstance and the potential joy of Jacob's promise. And now every moment the young woman struggled against the insanity before her. Wisped away into the depths of the Great Below, to watch her lover and his god-of-the-dead companion attempt to collapse the realms into one ball of existence, all things she could not have even considered twelve hours ago. No wonder she looked paralyzed.

“You told her what you believe. That is no truth.”

“You telling me you think life is fine the way it is?”

“I did not say that.”

A chuckle. “It’s a broken system, Ann. We all know it.”

“It is not a broken system!” She risked peeking behind her, only to catch a blur of Jacob’s movement. He was nearby, looking for an opportunity to hit her. Elaine and Daniel would be forced to land multiple hits against each other, but for Antoinette and Jacob, one good blow could be cataclysmic.

She had to be especially careful.

“You can’t be serious,” Jacob said.

“I am. There is beauty in this unfair world, old fool. You know as well as I the power of context. All that you love and hate, you owe to the power of context, of comparison and limitation and definition. And it is that power you wish to strip of everyone.”

“You sound like the beaten wife who says her husband is good some of the time, and those good times are why she stays with him.”

“It is not the same!”

“It is!”

She did not need to spin about this time. Her old friend manifested in front of her, a mirage of shifting dark colors, and his fist came directly for her face. She ducked underneath, only to jump away from the man's knee as he drove it up toward her skull. Too far. Her own strength betrayed her, and she launched twenty feet back from the man, through multiple walls of the bending, winding Oubliette. They had no texture, they were no barrier, but each wall she passed through twisted and warped her vision.

She closed her eyes and let gravity guide her before vertigo could betray her. Water and stone met her feet, and she landed gracefully as she opened her eyes again. The red barrier was directly behind her, where moments before it had been much further away. Another trick of the Oubliette. If she was not careful, her old friend would simply force her through it, assuming it could be passed through from this side, and she would be doomed to watch the world end on the sidelines with everyone else.

“It is not,” she said. “There is much to be had in this unfair world, and much to defend. You seek to undo life.”

“I don't. Life will still exist, just not as a shitty cycle of dying and living.”

“Then it is not life! It is existence as stale and meaningless as that of a stone.”

Jacob came at her again. Black Blood moved above, but he was nothing more than a distraction to be ignored. Invisible splashes in the black water around her came closer and closer, first from her front, then her right, then her left, then behind. She did not turn.

The final splash came directly beside her, and she spun to meet Jacob as again the man swung for her head, only for his fist to pass beside her as she dodged. She was faster than any Nosferatu, but there was also a moment of hesitation in Jacob's punch. Was he toying with her? No, his frown remained deadly serious, and the strength of his attack was blatant. If he had hit her, fist to skull, it could have very well been enough to kill her.

“I think,” he said as he blurred into shadow, “we should agree to disagree.”

“How quaint.” She swung a fist for where the man’s shadow and where it seemed to be heading, but the moment she took several steps forward, the orientation of everything changed, and again she could no longer tell her left from up. Attempts to use the standing stones, or even the giant above as a land mark, proved futile. Again, she was forced to build a mental map as quickly as she could.

“You don’t wish you could talk to Tony again? You know, François? Maybe apologize to him for dragging him into the Danse Macabre, and letting it slowly turn him into an asshole?”

She snarled as she tested another step, again moving toward one of the standing stones. Black Blood put his hand in the way, but she knew very well he would not be able to use it against her. Once she reached the bony appendage, it would be a simple matter to jump over it, or perhaps simply push forward, and force the colossal creature to move his hand for her. She did not want to touch it, but if she had to, then so be it.

“Tony’s mistakes were his own.”

“Right right, because everyone lives in a vacuum, and no one affects each other at all.” The sarcasm was palpable. “Tell that to everyone else on the fucking planet, who knows just how much that isn’t true. Tell it to everyone who knows how full of shit you are!”

Again, the shadows blurred, and Jacob appeared. He came at her from the other side this time, and again she was forced to dodge first, stepped back so his fist slipped past her waist’s side. She spun, and brought up the heel of the opposite leg behind her and around, hoping to drive her bare foot directly up into his stomach with enough power to shatter his insides. But her old friend rolled with the kick, a dodge sideways that required him to land on his hands and roll.

By the time she caught up with him, he was again a shadow. She was tempted to spare another peek for Daniel, as the man continued his battle on the other side of Black Blood, but she could not so much as glance his way again lest Jacob put a hole through her skull. And she knew, if she witnessed her sheriff cutting off Elaine's head, the image would scar her. She did not wish to lose another friend, lost to the damnable cycle of life and death.

Do not think about Jacob's madness. Do not entertain the thought. Do not consider it. He is wrong.

"I understand your motivations, old friend," she said, "and I sympathize. But surely you must recognize this insanity for what it is!"

Another punch, this one directly from her front. She ducked underneath it, and stepped back to avoid the inevitable attempt to knee her face again. Unfortunately, she did not expect Jacob to dive at her once he slammed the leg back down. A second fist came for her chest, and she backed away again, only barely avoiding the punch with her greater speed. But again, doing so pushed her far back enough she stepped through one of the invisible walls of warping perception. Again, she lost all sense of direction. Again, she would have to rebuild her mental map.

Jacob was testing her reflexes, and he was slowly getting closer and closer to landing a blow. She was losing this jousting match.

"I'm not insane. It's the world that's insane."

"Is that what you told my childe? Did you convince her that this apocalypse you are orchestrating is the only to escape from this so called 'madness'?"

"Samantha's been through some of the worst hell this world can manage. No one deserves what she's been through."

Jacob was not wrong, in that regard. There were few pains greater than that of a parent losing their child, and while Antoinette did her best to help Samantha overcome such hardship, Antoinette and Jacob both, they were ultimately incapable of truly understanding. But for all the pain she had suffered, Samantha had proved durable in a way most could never, in the way her son had proved several times. The idea that she would agree to Jacob's absurd plan to reduce life and death and the realms, and all the stars and gods and things betwixt, into a mere ... soup, with all context, all pains and pleasures, and separation and distance, removed? Antoinette could not see it.

"I do not disagree," she said. "I cannot imagine my childe's pain, but she was recovering. Time heals—"

"Oh shut the fuck up you sanctimonious bitch."

Jacob came from behind her, and only her great Celerity gave her the time she needed to spin and knock his punch aside with the back of her hand. She struck again, fist aimed for his chest, and he stepped back with it. But not fast enough. Her knuckles met his shoulder, and the man flew back, spinning through the air and creating a mess of his robes, before he fell to the water. The graze was enough to tear the robe at the shoulder, and she had felt flesh give. He was wounded.

He managed to look up at her, hidden eyes holding more than rage. Disdain. Not for her, though. The last glimmer of his face she caught before he again disappeared into the blurring darkness about them, ripped her rage out from under her. He was full of sorrow.

"Jacob, please. You have yet to do anything irrecoverable or unforgivable."

"Says you," Avery said from beyond the red veil.

A glance her way showed, through the twisting invisible barriers, the onlookers watching her and Daniel with eyes wide. The Prince and the sheriff were the only ones who could stop the madness, now that Jack and Mary were bound. Beatrice looked utterly torn, eyes snapping between her mentor when he emerged from the shadows, and the Prince. And Samantha, she continued to hold her ghost daughter's head on her lap, her gaze snapping between everyone, eyes so wide Antoinette feared she would see her childe's confused and broken soul.

"Ignore Avery," Antoinette said as she shook her head and gestured about them. "Jacob, this is not over. You need not commit to this lunacy! Please, stop the ritual and come back to my tower, with Samantha. We can—"

"Malachi has spent decades committed to this plan, vampire." Black Blood rumbled above her, his arms doing their best to block Daniel or Antoinette from reaching the standing stones, futile as it may be. "Because he can see past the immediate. This broken machine will continue to turn and grind everyone and everything until all that is left is misery. Enough, we say."

She almost threw the creature an insult for daring to imply she thought only in the immediate. But she could not deny that while she planned in centuries, Black Blood likely planned in millennia.

"It is not broken, Jacob!" she yelled. "I am sorry that you have struggled. I am sorry that life is unfair. But life is beautiful because death comes for us all, even Kindred." Again, she set her eyes on her childe, and the two of them stared at each other through the warping, invisible maze. "And you would undo that?"

A question for her childe, answered by her lover.

"I would." Again the man appeared, the haze of his robe burying her in a layer of shadow she did not expect. He came from above.

She rolled to the side as the man punched the ground. The black water erupted outward from his punch, the ground cracked, but Jacob was plenty agile, and he rolled with the force that pushed back up into him; the other arm dangled at his side, injured by her punch earlier.

The water exploded about her in much the same fashion, as she drove her bare foot into it and launched herself toward the man with every ounce of speed she could muster. He tried to fade into the madness of his maze once again, and no doubt would have, even if she had managed to land her punch. She did not punch him. She grabbed him.

Just as the man nearly jumped away, her hand found the wrist of his bad arm, and she yanked him toward her. A grimace of pain lined his lips, only to disappear as she drove her forehead against his nose. She did not spare her power, but the angle did not allow for something deadly. His head snapped back hard, nose obliterated, but he recovered quickly and swung his fist for her. If she caught it directly, it would have shattered her hand and arm.

She pushed it aside with her free hand as best she could, forearm hitting against the inside of his wrist, only for Jacob to throw his own head in as she was distracted. His forehead collided with her cheek, and her head snapped back as something cracked in her face. Pain flooded her, and her vision went white as her brain bounced in her skull. But she knew if she let go of the man, all could be lost, so she squeezed on his wrist hard. A weaker Kindred's wrist would have broken, but Jacob no doubt pumped vitae through his body and kept it from crumbling under her strength.

She returned the punch, but despite her greater speed, she was disoriented, and Jacob snatched her wrist before she could drive it into his throat. He pulled on it, attempting to throw her, but she stepped with it as she pulled on his wrist as well, forcing him to step around with her. She raised a leg, only for Jacob to bring up his and force it back down.

“Please, Jacob. Do not make me do this.” Locked in melee combat like this, it was the Nosferatu at a disadvantage. They were both strong, but she was faster, and he could no longer hide from her.

“You might think this world is good the way it is. I don’t.”

“And Samantha?”

“She—”

“You would not know Samantha at all, if not for this broken world. You would not know what it felt like to care for again, perhaps even loved again. Are such joys not worth this life?”

A groan of pain forced them to both look nearby through the distorting walls. Not Daniel, or Elaine. Mark coughed and puked blood as Daniel lifted the man up high, sword sticking up through the man’s back and out through his stomach. It was a strange thing, seeing the man in the hoodie bleed red; everything about his aura suggested he would bleed rotten, putrid ooze. Stranger, to see the silhouette of the disgusting Begotten appear around, over, and within him, a mountain of maggots and bones that fell apart over Daniel before disappearing into the black water.

Elaine was no fool. She did not stand there to gawk at her dying partner, but threw herself at Daniel instead. The sheriff yanked his sword out and to the side, cutting it out the side of Mark’s body, only to bring it down toward Elaine, but she saw it coming. Her hand flowed with red, Kindred blood that seeped out through her skin and around her fingers, and Daniel’s sword crashed against it, earning a harsh wince from the Ventrue. The blade was now lodged in her hand, and Daniel could not remove it.

Elaine closed the distance further, and got her hands on Daniel. The two went down, all grace abandoned as they rolled over each other, closer and closer to the red barrier.

Elaine whispered something, so quiet only Daniel would hear it.

Jacob yanked on Antoinette's wrist again, ripping her attention back to her old witch friend.

"I don't want to lose Samantha! I won't lose her. No one will lose anything anymore. Everyone will be together! Why do you think that is so horrible!?"

"Because what joy is there in such a life, when there is no loss!? No death, no pain, nothing?"

"You make it sound like it'll be Hell. It won't. We'll have our memories. We'll know what life was like, what the pain was like. A shitty nightmare we finally get to wake up from!"

He yanked on her hard enough she fell to the ground, the same as Elaine and Daniel. They rolled over the stone floor, and the shallow black water soaked through Antoinette's suit as much as the blood of Elen's flesh tunnel. Cold, and chilling, even to her Kindred body.

She tried to punch the man, but he yanked on her wrist as they rolled. She did the same. Each attempt to drive their fists through the other was usurped by each pulling on the other's wrist. For a moment she thought they neared the red barrier, and a surge of panic and vitae shot through her limbs. But the next invisible wall of warping, twisting deception showed they had rolled closer to Jack, the wooden table covered in Jacob's artifacts, Samantha, and the ghost bound in chains.

Samantha met their eyes. She was beyond terrified.

Jacob hesitated. Antoinette did not. She brought one of her legs up, and got her knee against Jacob's gut, and pushed forward. The man roared in sudden agony as she ground her knee into his side, where the hip met torso, and his grip on her wrist tightened until it was her turn to let out a pained groan. But she had the advantage now, and she pushed her knee against him, forcing him further away, wrists locked in each other's grips.

"Samantha!" she said. "Please, it does have to end like this. Jacob has been—"

Jacob roared, a guttural and inhuman sound, and twisted his whole body hard. What distance she had managed to create vanished, and the two of them were shoulder to shoulder, chests half together, arms prying and tearing at each other.

"We'll be together in the next world," he yelled. "Everyone will be! Sam and her kids, and even you! I'm trying to help us, help everyone, and—"

The only thing that kept them from throwing the other with the sheer strength of an elder, was their grip on each other. She let hers go. Jacob froze for a hundredth of a second, confused, and instead slipped the hand under Jacob's shoulder, and around the back of his torso. No more a battle of punches and avoiding them, she rolled the man over her, and slammed his body into the water with the grappling technique. Again, the black currents exploded outward with the force of two elders combating, and Jacob went limp as his spine and side hit the stone beneath almost hard enough to crack it. Something inside him, on the other hand, had.

Before control returned to him, she got a hand about his throat, and tore it open. Fingernails ripped through Kindred skin, and with her great strength behind them, an inch of flesh tore from him. Dark Kindred blood splattered over their bodies before disappearing in a harmless puff of ash. And again, before her old friend could compensate for losing a sizable portion of his neck, she got behind him, knelt, wrapped her arm around his throat entirely, and put him in a headlock.

The only thing that kept his head from coming off immediately, guillotined by her forearm, was the panicked grip he managed to place on her wrist with both hands.

Antoinette did not look to Samantha. She could not. No doubt her childe stared with dropped jaw at the display before her, of Antoinette and Jacob rolling and fighting and tearing into each other like savages. If Antoinette had to kill her childe's lover in front of her eyes, then so be it, but she did not want the memory of Samantha's eyes burned into her when she did.

"I am sorry, Jacob. But you have made your choice. I cannot let you live. Even if I simply stopped this ritual, you would attempt it again in the future." She pulled on her arm harder, tightening it on Jacob's ruined throat even more. "Goodbye."

"S-Sire." Samantha's voice, trembling. Antoinette ignored her.

"Prince!" Jack's voice. Antoinette managed to turn her head enough to look to the man, and his single eye was wide with surprise.

She turned her head long enough to see Mary's ghost lunge for her. The chains that bound her were now merged into Mary's body, and the horrifying creature's eyes were wide not with rage, but panic.

Antoinette let go of Jacob and jumped to the side, but it was no use. The awkward angle, Jacob holding her wrists, she could not get to her feet fast enough before Mary sank her claws into Antoinette's back. All of them. Slowly, with ghost claws sticking through her back and out through her chest, Antoinette stood up, and looked down at the strange blades that jutted from her body.

Then the pain hit her. Like fire, vampire's bane, the scorching agony ran up through her body, exploding outward from the ten huge claws inside her. Not even when Damien had cut off one of her arms and legs had she felt such pain. The world ceased to exist, the stone under her, the water around her ankles, the many onlookers, it all faded as her brain struggled to process what burning alive from the inside out would feel like to a vampire.

She tried to move, but her limbs refused to respond. Only her neck listened, enough for her to turn her head slightly, enough to watch Jacob slowly lift himself to his feet.

"Thanks, Black Blood." Gargling, hand against his ruined throat, Jacob gestured to Antoinette, and then up at the titan. The god of the dead's right index finger was pointed directly at Antoinette. No, not at her, at Mary, who still hovered behind her, with claws still skewered through her.

"Mary?" Samantha asked, and she ran up to join them.

"Under my control," Black Blood said. "My apologies, young vampire, and young ghost. But I could not risk Malachi dying. I cannot finish this ritual without him."

Mary the ghost hissed and snarled, and set her empty black eyes on Black Blood.

"Let me go! Let me go! Let me go!"

Black Blood unleashed his own hiss and snarl, considerably more terrifying than Mary's own horrific sounds. The ghost went silent.

"In a moment. What should we do with her, Malachi?"

She wanted to scream, but she refused. She would not give the horrid god the satisfaction. All she could do, was glare at him, hoping the venom in her eyes would be enough to kill him. It was not. The titan twirled his finger, and Mary lifted Antoinette into the air, over her, so Antoinette's body spread out limp, limbs and head hanging uselessly.

“Just toss her out,” Jacob said, offering Antoinette one final, sad glance, before looking away. “She's got no other way in here, and it won't be much longer. She can watch.” He took a step toward the table again, and Samantha took a step to him. But before she could slip under his arm to help steady the wounded man, she stopped herself, instead looking to Antoinette, and her daughter's ghost.

“You are not going to kill her?” Elaine's voice.

“Nah. She's Samantha's sire. She might be the most annoying pain in the ass I've ever had to deal with, but she at least deserves to see the change.”

Antoinette, still dangling over Mary's claws with head upside down, set her eyes on Elaine. Where was Daniel? Oh no.

“Do not worry for your sheriff. He lives.” With a playful smirk, Elaine gestured to the red wall. “I managed to toss him through the barrier. Jacob, you did not tell me you set up an Oubliette in the area.”

Jacob gargled on a tired laugh. His throat was healing quickly, at least enough he could speak.

“Of course I didn't. You think I trust you?”

Elaine smirked, tattered and torn, suit ripped, hair a soaked mess, and body covered in what was likely Mark's blood. She came in closer, close enough for her and Antoinette to meet eyes once again.

And winked.

Chapter 173

~~Jack~~

Oh fucking shit.

He stared up at Antoinette, and how she dangled over Mary's claws, bent backward like a corpse stuck on a pike, skewered up the back. Sabrina's knife had been unbelievably painful, like fire, somehow made of ice, slicing through flesh like a fucking lightsaber. But Mary's claws looked a thousand times worse, and they held Antoinette up over Mary's head, ready to pull her in half. Or cut her in half.

But Jacob wasn't that much of an asshole. Anyone else would have been, considering Antoinette had been about to kill him. But for some reason, the fucker about to destroy the world, wanted them alive to see it. To rub it in their faces when it worked? If it did, life and death wouldn't be a thing anymore, and everyone, alive or dead, would be together anyway. Maybe it'd take a while for it to happen? Maybe Jacob wasn't entirely convinced it'd be that simple?

Or maybe, he just didn't want them to have to die first. Dying sucked. Jack could attest to that. And Jacob had saved them on a couple occasions, for absolutely no other reason, than what he'd said. He liked Jack, and the rest of them.

"Please," Jack said, "don't ... don't hurt her."

Mary looked at him, eyes twisting down on the outer corners with almost cartoony exaggeration. She was tormented by what she was being forced to do.

"I'm trying not to! B-But Black Blood, he's ... controlling ... me..."
The ghost looked down, body shivering. And Antoinette, still hanging over her, body limp and paralyzed, managed to turn her head enough to look to Jack. A tiny hint of shame showed through, and Jack returned the same. They'd failed.

Jacob waved a hand, and the distorting invisible walls disappeared, allowing everyone to see what was what again. Elders didn't like showing their strongest powers. They were better off as secrets, to be used on people that wouldn't live to talk about them. People knew masters of Obfuscate could do some really weird shit with distorting reality, if they had the chance to soak an area with their blood, but Jack had never considered something as extreme as invisible walls that warped perception, like some really fucked up mirror maze. That, was a scary thing to get trapped in, and Antoinette had still managed to beat him.

With a hissing whimper, Mary's ghost hovered over to the edge of the circle of standing stones, by the red barrier. With a little more force than was necessary, no doubt at Black Blood's silent command, she threw Antoinette through the barrier, and Sándor, eyes as stoic as ever, caught her with his one good arm, and bit down his need to grunt in pain. His body was still fucked up, too.

Slowly, Jack set his one eye on Elaine, and stared at her as hard as he could. She met his gaze for a moment before looking away, and rubbing her arm where Daniel had managed to nearly cut it off.

Sure enough, Daniel emerged, on the outside of the barrier. Soaked head to toe in not only the blood of the crazy flesh tunnel they'd come through, but also Mark's blood, the Mekhet limped around the barrier until he came to stand beside Sándor and Beatrice. He helped the gargoyle with the Prince, and they set her down on her feet. She tried to stand, but fumbled, and Daniel slipped under her arm to help her.

Jack looked to the crowd, and they all looked to him. No one had to say it. It was plastered on their faces. They'd failed, and now

Jacob was going to start the apocalypse.

Snarling, Jack pulled against the invisible chains holding him. He pulled harder, and harder. He pulled until he felt his vitae pulse in his body and his bones threaten to break. But the ritual circle was made with his own blood, and he didn't need to be an ancient dragon of the Ordo Dracul to guess that meant it was unbreakable to him.

"Shame Mark died," Jacob said, one hand clutched to the side of his fucked up throat. "I suppose the lot of you thought he was gross? Which, I mean, he kinda was, but that was his Horror's fault, not him. The guy was loyal to Azamel, and has lost other people, too." Before Jack or anyone else could call him out, Jacob threw up a hand and shook his head. "Never mind. I'm wasting my breath."

"You okay?" Jack's mom came up to Jacob and peeked at his neck. Exposed flesh showed some Kindred blood pulsing within.

"I'll be fine. I have to finish this ritual, and it's going to take a bit."

"And ... and Mary?"

"I am truly sorry," Black Blood said, and he weaved a finger over Mary's ghost. The chains that bound her reappeared, coiled around her, and the ghost settled back on the wet stone floor. "My options were limited."

"I gotta admit," the old Nosferatu said as he clucked his tongue once as he looked through the red barrier at the watching crowd, "you almost had me, old friend."

Antoinette sneered, but she didn't have the energy to put the ice cold glare in it Jack would have expected. Mary's claws had really, really fucked her up.

Sam leaned in and nudged her cheek against Jacob's shoulder.

“You—”

“Go. I’ll be fine.” He returned the lean to give her a quick kiss on the cheek again before nodding toward Mary’s ghost.

Jack’s mom watched Jacob for a few seconds longer than she needed too. He recognized that look. It was the look she gave his dad when she was worried about him, when he tried to do the manly thing and not talk about how much he was hurting about whatever. But Mary’s sniffles called her, and her mom settled down in the shallow water beside her.

She got on her knees and set Mary’s head on her legs, before peeking back up to Jacob’s back as the man worked, and then to Jack. Something had changed. Her expression, her body language, the way she looked at Jacob’s back as she ran her fingers through Mary’s hair. Mary had whispered something to her earlier, but in all the chaos, Jack didn’t have a fucking clue what. Their mom had mentioned their dad to Mary’s ghost, so maybe something to do with him?

To everyone watching, it probably looked like his mom had betrayed them, had become Jacob’s partner in crime, and doomed them all to Armageddon. Jack knew better. His mom was a lot of things, willful and determined, and soft and loving, but she was not a quick thinker. She didn’t understand what was happening, the scale of things, what Jacob and Black Blood were actually about to do, what it meant for everyone and everything. She just wanted everyone to be together, and Jacob, a man she loved, was giving her a way to make that happen. She’d had maybe five hours to wrap her mind around the fucking insanity of it all, and he knew his mom, it’d take her a lot longer than that to process what was happening.

He couldn’t hate her for that. He could be super pissed at her, like he’d been a thousand times before for her god damn fucking stupidity and utter inability to use her god damn head. But not hate her.

Jack took a deep, useless breath, hardened his gaze on his mother, and channeled that frustration until he could stomach the shittiness of what he was about to do. No point in trying to Dominate Jacob, or Elaine. It'd take way too long to Dominate one, and the other would intervene, and that was assuming it was even possible, tired as was. He couldn't even try it on Black Blood or Mary's ghost, and Mark was dead. He had one option.

She looked at him. A moment of eye contact was all he needed. He reached out for his mom's mind, and ... got absolutely nowhere. He frowned down at the ritual circle, and tried again. But got nowhere. The ritual circle was blocking him.

He reached down for the cellar in his mind, the chains he'd summoned to hold down the curse, and tried to undo them. It didn't work. It was like he was wearing the necklace again. His Beast was out of his reach.

He snapped his glare to Elaine, and she nodded slowly, reading his thoughts and confirming. She was an Architect of Terror, a dragon who'd studied the Beast and how to manipulate it for literal centuries. It was her ritual circle, and he knew just how she'd made it.

"Black Blood," Jacob said. "Do the ritual now. I still need time, and I don't want that Strix curse to be a problem in the new world. Who knows what sort of shit it'll be able to do when the barriers are all gone."

As Elaine approached Jack, her hint of a grin faded, replaced with something heavy and somber as she looked at him.

"So this is what you wanted my blood for?" Jack asked. "You put me through that other ritual to get some curse-infused blood or whatever, so you can get this ritual to work?”

“Indeed. Like this, you are bound, and the ritual can force the curse to respond. It would not be necessary if you cooperated.” She frowned at him as she looked down, and checked the dozens of red symbols drawn into the floor, still pushing the black water away. Daniel had done a number on her, more than Jack had noticed before. Several stab wounds and gashes were on her back, and a few more in her stomach and legs. Her suit was a mess, and several of the gashes were deep enough to expose hints of bone. Ventrue were hard to damage without fire or crazy shit like werewolf claws, but Daniel had thoroughly hurt her with nothing more than a regular sword. She was in worse condition than Jacob.

“You’ll excuse me if I don’t exactly trust a god of the dead,” Jack said.

“Then you understand little,” Black Blood said, and chuckled as he set his white, burning gaze on him.

The giant loomed in closer, and reached out with one of his hands. The towering limb covered the air over Jack, huge palm of bone bigger than Jack’s whole body, and it blocked out what little light came from the ceiling above. The maelstrom of ghosts overhead continued to howl and groan, but as the giant god summoned whatever magic he was going to use, the other ghost weren’t needed, or maybe he couldn’t use them for this. They stayed where they were.

“Just relax,” Elaine said, and she came in closer until she was standing only a foot in front of him, “and let Black Blood remove the curse.”

“I...”

Elaine winked at him.

He eyed her, and did his best to run through the thousand possibilities of what that wink meant. And there was most definitely a thousand things. The fuck was she scheming?

He didn't get much longer to think about it. Black Blood's hand glowed with the same dark he'd used to summon his ghosts before, and while no ghosts came down to join him, the red lines of the ritual circle underneath Jack lit up like fire. A rush of invisible energy hit him, more crackling nothingness down deep in the bones that defied the senses. Beast instincts told him it was supernatural, but he doubted he'd need a Beast to pick up on that. It was the same sort of chill you felt when walking past a graveyard at night, and you just knew it was the sort of night to walk on the other side of the street. Times a million.

Everything faded away. The red barrier, his worried lover, Jacob etching more symbols into the standing stones, his mom and his sister's ghost, and Elaine staring him in the eye with an expression he couldn't quite place. All gone, replaced with the white brain zone he'd grown to loathe.

Jack looked at himself. Surprisingly not naked, and wearing a suit. Both eyes again, too. Not that stereoscopic vision meant much in an endless plane of mental metaphors his brain concocted to understand the weird, mystical, magical strangeness of what-the-fuck-ever.

The white plane didn't last. Black clouds cut in from everywhere, rumbling and heavy, until Jack had to cover his ears. More and more of them appeared, carried on winds that thankfully cut well above his head, but left him staring up at a hurricane.

For a second, Jack figured the fucker would descend from them like some angel of death. But, nope, Black Blood came up from the ground, and as he did, the white endless turned into black oblivion instead. Black water inched its way up Jack's feet until it stopped at his ankles, before it opened up into an enormous whirlpool in front of him. Naturally, the giant asshole came up out of it, a colossal black skeleton with a skull big enough to eat Jack in one bite. Up and up until his entire torso stuck out of the whirlpool, and his two hands rested on the black water around Jack.

This time, no great canyon separated them. And that was terrifying.

“Where is the curse?” Black Blood asked.

Jack snarled.

Sighing, Black Blood shook his head. “I am not your enemy.”

“Says you.”

The god of the dead chuckled and gestured around at nothing.

“You are so utterly convinced, after everything that’s happened?” In a one-on-one, the weird, alien, harsh and guttural accent was even more scary. Jack kind of missed the Southern accent.

“I’m convinced you’re willing to do whatever it takes to achieve your dream.”

“And the times I saved your life?”

Jack ground his teeth. “Just because you’re not as bad as you seem, doesn’t mean you’re in the clear to break the world.”

Unfortunately, time passed slowly in the weird brain space. If Black Blood wanted to spend the next twenty minutes giving a speech, he could.

“Where is the curse?” he asked again. Apparently he didn’t intend to give another rant about his godly, unknowable intentions.

“Locked up.”

Black Blood tilted his skull to the side. “Without your necklace to help you?”

“Yeah. Imagine that.”

“Impressive. Now, bring us to it.”

“No.”

The god of corpses laughed. “Elaine’s ritual gives me the power to force the situation, little vampire.” And with a wave of his hand, Black Blood made that blatant. The endless black that penetrated and permeated Jack’s brain shot away, except it wasn’t the environment that moved away from them a hundred miles an hour, it was Jack and Black Blood. No momentum or inertia, but Jack still fell over as his eyes told him he damn well should have, with how fast everything ripped aside.

A forest replaced his surroundings, dark and creepy, with the quiet chirping of insects in the background. A moon overhead lit the forest, but it was weak, just like the lighting in the Great Below. A harsh breeze cut along every so often, and each time it brought a howl with it, no doubt finding some trees to funnel through to create the eerie noise.

Behind Jack, was the abandoned cabin, the one he’d locked the curse under.

“I believe I have seen this movie,” Black Blood said. His giant skeleton torso still stuck out from a big black whirlpool, except now it was in the middle of Jack’s memory, in front of him and not too far from the old cabin. Somehow, the black ooze didn’t so much as touch or interact with the forest as it overlaid it, kind of like how the Begotten and their Horrors looked when doing their monster stuff outside the dream world.

“You’ve seen—Jacob.”

“He adores this movie.” Black Blood laughed, and gestured to the cabin. “You used the memory to lock up the curse. Most impressive.”

Ah shit. It was so much easier to think of Jacob as some sort of big, soulless enemy to beat, than as a dude who watched movies. Good movies, evidently.

“Yeah well, the Ripper killed two people and he was going to kill more. I wouldn’t let him.”

“Then be happy I am removing it.” Sighing, Black Blood shook his head and gestured to Jack with a hand, snaking it between the large forest trees to do it. “If you had let me take the curse from you, all those months ago, no one—”

“Would have died? Yeah, and you’d have another tool to bring about your utopia. Gonna use it to rule?”

“There will be nothing to rule, when all are together in all ways.”

“You sound like a brainwashed cult member.”

“And you are an ignorant insect. What use is there in convincing you.” Black Blood leaned in closer, until his black teeth were within punching distance. “Go, release the curse from its prison. I will extract it, and you will be eternally grateful.”

“Fuck you.”

“I. Said. Go.”

“F—”

Black Blood’s hand snapped out, and grabbed Jack. Cold and brutal, the bones of the god of the dead squeezed on him, and Jack froze; not that he could move if he wanted to. Black Blood, or Mictawhatever, stared at him with dots of white flame in his eye sockets, and he squeezed harder, forcing Jack to groan as the bastard compressed his ribcage and lungs.

“Elaine’s ritual was drawn with your vitae, and vitae infused with the curse’s vitae. It allows me full access to your mind, vampire. You could fight me, and resist me, but all it would do is force me to rip your conscious mind into ribbons to reach my goal.” He came in closer, until his teeth were almost hitting Jack’s face. “I do not know how such damage to your mind will affect you in the new world. There are many unknowns. Your mother would prefer you intact to see it, as would Jacob.”

Jack tried to say something, but Black Blood didn’t ease up. The giant skeleton squeezed harder again, and Jack gargled on the few drops of air left in his metaphorical lungs. Metaphors could, apparently, be very painful.

“Now, go, and bring me my new prisoner.” Black Blood tossed him back, and Jack crashed into the front door behind him.

The door swung open, and Jack rolled through the dirty old cabin, before hitting the rug and sliding it across the shitty wooden floor. Eventually he came to a stop, lying on his back, and he stared up at the ceiling as his groaned. He was screwed.

Sighing, he looked over to the cellar door, where the curse still was. The door pushed up from the floor half a dozen inches so the Ripper bulged underneath it, trying to break the chains that held the old wooden door down. Jack had to let him out. He didn’t want to, but he had to.

Christ, they really had failed.

Jack got up, and stood in the doorway of the cabin. “Gimme a minute,” he said to Black Blood.

Black Blood rumbled, but said nothing as he nodded. Okay, Jack had a minute.

He closed the door to the cabin, and squatted down in front of the cellar door.

“I imagine you’ve seen everything that’s happened?” Since the real world was moving at a fraction of speed as the craziness going on in his head, now was a decent time for a little chat, before the end.

The Ripper let out a rumble of his own, all too similar to Black Blood’s. Some of his shadowy tentacles reached out from under the cellar door, and they could have grabbed Jack, but it was all a metaphor. Jack was safe until the door’s chains were broken, or undone.

“You failed,” the Ripper said.

“Yeah, apparently. Didn’t expect the red barrier.” Jack threw up his hands. “We didn’t expect any of this! The trap. Sabrina. The fucking red barrier, or Black Blood being able to touch ghosts, or this fucking ritual circle I’m trapped in.”

“Pathetic.”

“Oh shut the fuck up. Don’t act like you could have done better. This fucking ritual”—he gestured to the cabin’s front door and the giant death god waiting on the other side of it—“is locking you down just as much as it is me.”

A heavy rumble from the cellar door was all the confirmation Jack needed.

“You screwed up,” the Ripper said, “trusting Elaine and letting her draw your blood. Our blood.”

“Yeah, I’m starting to think that. Except...”

“Except what?”

“She winked at me.”

The giant creature trapped in the cellar laughed. “She winks at you all the time, dumbass.”

“This was different. She was trying to tell me something.”

“Something like ‘ha, I win!’?”

Jack threw the giant creature of smoke a glare. “What the fuck is your problem?”

“What sort of useless, idiotic question is that?”

“I want to know, what your problem is! Why, in the ever living fuck, do you want everyone to suffer? I don’t care who are you, what you are, where you came from, any of it. No one, nothing, wants other people to suffer, just for suffering’s sake.”

The creature laughed. “You have no idea how satisfying it is, how much it completes me, to—”

“I don’t buy it. No one just, gets off, on being a fucking psycho killer. Except, you know, psycho killers. But I’m not a psycho killer, I know that, and whatever you are, you might be some sort of manifestation of my inner desires. And for some fucking reason, that also includes visceral murder? No. That’s not right. I’m not like that.”

The Ripper let out a slow, deep rumble.

“No, I guess you’re not.”

Holy shit, that almost sounded contemplative.

“I can’t even begin to imagine what sort of person Susanna was, to want something like you inside her,” Jack said.

“A tortured soul.”

“Aren’t we all?”

The Ripper laughed. “You don’t know torture. You think what Jeremiah and Angela did to you was bad? Or all the times the Uratha have hurt you? Or fire? You don’t know pain, stupid kid, until you’ve been betrayed by the people you love most. And when that happens, every bit of empathy you have is burned away. All that’s left is resentment, for everything and everyone.” Another chuckle. “A perfect fit for the Strix, who have nothing left but hate and resentment for life, and for the Kindred who tried to rejoin it.”

Jack groaned, and sat down beside the cellar door. “I thought you didn’t know anything about them?”

“I don’t. Just ... faint traces of hate. Susanna thrived on it, and quickly found life was more enjoyable as a monster. No guilt, no shame, no empathy, just pure indulgence in power in all its manifestations. Murder and rape and everything between.”

“And that’s what you wanted of me? I’m not Susanna.”

“No,” the Ripper said, voice again soft, and contemplative, “I suppose you’re not.”

“I still have empathy.”

“I suppose you do.”

“And I’m never letting go of it,” Jack said. “I don’t care what you do. I don’t care what happens to me. I don’t care what happened to Susanna. I’m never going to become a heartless monster, Ripper. I’ll die before I do. I’ll kill myself before I do.”

Another rumble from the cellar.

“I thought, with time, I could take over your body. I ... never thought you’d actually be so stupid as to kill yourself than just let me have my way.” Some of the curse’s animal eyes looked at him from under the cellar door. “I’m not so stupid to realize I can’t suppress you forever. If you’re willing to kill yourself to stop me, that’s ... that’s will I can’t break, not completely.”

Jack smiled. “That a compliment?”

The Ripper laughed, a twisted and disturbing sound. “I am bound to a host so utterly pathetic, he can’t let go of his humanity. Viktor is a thousand times the vampire you were.”

“Yeah, well, he also went borderline insane and made stupid decisions that got him killed. We all thought it was because of his last torpor fucking with his mind, but I’m betting the curse in him was getting closer to breaking free, and it was turning him into a psycho.”

“Maybe,” the Ripper said. “But I cannot stop until I have it, Jack. I can’t stop until I get to experience that ... that rush. You’d understand if you just gave in. The feel of power, utter power so complete and whole, you realize everyone around you is nothing more than a sack of meat to murder, fuck, feast on, and toss aside. Total freedom.”

Jack did not like the order he described those actions.

“I thought you were some sort of amplification of my Id, but I guess not. More like, you’re...”

“A manifestation of Strix desires.”

“Whatever that means.”

“Whatever that means,” the Ripper said, mirroring his tone. Some of the beaks and snouts inside the shadows nodded. “It doesn’t matter. All I know is, I can’t stop. I won’t stop. I tried to work with you at first, Jack, to get you to ride with me, like Susanna did with her curse. But you refuse.”

“Yeap,” Jack said. “Sorry.”

“There is no reconciling this disagreement between us.”

“Probably not. Sounds like it’s pretty existential for you to abandon all humanity and become a murdering monster.”

“Sounds like you’re a vampire that refuses to embrace what a vampire could be. What I ... what the curse, wants my host to be.”

Jack coughed on a laugh as he looked down between his legs. “We’re never going to get along. This dance is going to keep going until we’re dead.” It was more than true. It was inevitable. If they somehow managed to stop Jacob and Black Blood — not happening — then he was going to kill himself, unless someone pulled a miracle cure out of their ass. He wasn’t going to let anyone else die because of the curse.

The Ripper groaned annoyance. They could hear each other’s thoughts, of course.

“I have no intention of bowing down,” the Ripper said, “not to you, and especially not to some death god relic no one cares about anymore.”

Jack laughed again. He couldn’t help it. Everything just gets kind of funny when you’re staring down the barrel of an apocalypse.

“So I gathered,” Jack said. “We’re at an impasse. The only option left is mutually assured destruction, I guess.”

“You’re the one that doesn’t want to die. You’re the one afraid of death.”

Jack blinked, and looked at the creature trapped in the basement.

“You’re not?”

“It doesn’t matter. We are bound in this ritual, and because you were stupid enough to trust Elaine, the ritual is strong enough to bind me.”

“Well, we got a bit before Black Blood rips this cabin open and makes me open the cellar. So tell me, Mister Big Bad Curse, you’re not afraid of death?”

“I’m not afraid of death.”

“Uh huh,” Jack said, making sure the sarcasm was absolutely dripping. “You were panicking when I had a sword against our throat.”

“It’s not the same. I’m afraid of spending a thousand years forced to be bound to a useless piss ant like you. And I’m afraid of my existence ending, to a useless piss ant like you.”

Jack raised a brow. “That, specifically?”

“This is just another way that you, a weak vampire that will never amount to what Susanna was, is an unworthy vessel. Being afraid of death? Pathetic. The only death worth fearing is one in a bed, weak and old and frail, with no story told, no mark left, nothing but nothing.”

“We can’t grow old.”

“Dying to passivity is the same. Dying because a worm like you refuses to embrace the power and desires of a true monster, it sickens me, and terrifies me. I can't stomach it."

"I ... I mean, I guess I'm kind of impressed. I expected you'd be a sniveling snake who'd do anything they could to avoid dying." Jack laughed again and gestured to the monster. "The fuck are you? You're like, a viking or spartan or something, except evil as hell."

The Ripper snorted. "I would be the greatest force of destruction this world had ever known. And I would die happy, if I burned this whole world to the ground, and the flames took me with it."

"Surprised you're not on board with Black Blood then."

Another snort. "The old god wants the opposite. He wants everything together, with everyone holding hands and singing Kumbaya for all eternity."

"I uh, don't think that's exactly what he's going for."

"Close enough."

Again, Jack laughed. He couldn't help himself.

"This is the first time we've ever talked like this."

"Yeah well, I hate you," the Ripper said. "Talking with you is pointless."

"And I hate you. There's no way we can keep existing together."

"Agreed."

"Then ... we have nothing to lose." After a few seconds to think about it, a few seconds more to let out a long, annoyed groan, Jack got up, and squatted beside the cellar door again. "I really hate you, Ripper. People who didn't deserve to die, are dead, because of you. But at the same time, I'm thankful you helped when you did. I gotta admit, having the power to get revenge for Julias was great. Even beating Avery up when she deserved it, that was great. Even beating up Garry and Michael, that was great. So, as much as you've been a huge thorn in my side, and have caused a lot of people a lot of pain, you've also helped a lot."

He expected the Ripper to laugh at him, but instead, he got an acknowledging grunt.

"You're weak, pussy bitch, Jack, and it infuriates me so much because you're strong, too. Killing Viktor and Tony? Stopping Damien and killing Lucas? Cutting off your hands to escape Angela? You did that yourself, you stupid fucking little shit. You have will. If you'd just let me in, we could have fucked this world into submission."

Jack laughed again and rubbed his head. "Yeah, I guess we could have. Ah well."

The Ripper eyed him with a half dozen eyes. "Why does it sound like you're about to suggest a plan?"

"Because I can't stop thinking about that wink Elaine gave me. She was trying to tell me something."

"If it was Viktor or Tony, they'd have just winked at you to make you angry. She's won. She and Jacob and—"

Jack slammed his hand down against the cellar door. "We're not having this conversation. I'm not going to sit here and try to convince you not everyone is the sick monster you are. It doesn't matter. We either submit, and Black Blood turns you into his bitch toy before Jacob merges all the realms into soup. Or ... we do the only thing we can do. Resist. Fight."

The Ripper chuckled, louder this time, enough the vibration pulsed through the floor. "You say that like I wouldn't have done that in the first place."

“Yeah but you’d fight like a mad dog, and I need something better. Smarter. Something’s going to happen, or has already happened, or —fuck me I don’t know. I’m saying, keep your eyes and ears open as Black Blood starts to, uh, remove you. Don’t waste your energy until you see a good opportunity to strike.”

“You really trust Elaine? She’s committed diablerie. Amaranth. On her own childe. She’s more a monster than you rea—”

“And she’s had hundreds of years of guilt ripping her up over it. In fact, I’m pretty sure she’s half willing to help Jacob and Black Blood, just to alleviate her guilt.”

“Then—”

“But she’s more willing to ... to help me. She wants to help me, more than she wants to undo whatever horrible shit she’s done in the past.”

“And you believe this, why?”

“Because I’ve talked with her, hung out with her, saw into her eyes. You might not think an elder can have humanity, but I know different. Antoinette wouldn’t be close friends with her, otherwise. And you damn well know Antoinette is smart. You can hate her all you want, but you know it’s true.”

The Ripper let out a rumbling sigh that sounded a little too close to Jack’s.

“So the plan is ... to let Black Blood do what he wants, but look for an opportunity to fight back?”

“I guess. Got a better one?”

“No, I don’t.” Another grumble.

“Like I said, you got two choices. Either—”

“Submit or fight. If those are my choices, then it is no choice at all. At least if we stop Black Blood’s ritual, you and I can have one last fight for control. And ... And I suppose, that is a fight worth having.”

“That’s probably the best compliment you’re capable of giving, isn’t it?”

“Fuck you. Release me.”

Grinning, Jack reached out, and the key appeared in his hand. The joys of metaphors. He slipped the key in the lock, and let the curse out.

The memory disappeared. The old cabin in the woods, the woods, it all vanished into mist that faded away, until all that was left was Jack and the Ripper, standing before Black Blood, still inside Jack’s mind. Back in the murky, shallow black water, and back underneath the rolling dark clouds, endless and in all directions.

Now or never.

“You took your time,” Black Blood said. “Be happy I am in a good mood.”

Jack smirked up at the fucker. “Figured you’d be upset. Antoinette and Daniel almost ruined everything for you.”

“They used the flesh witch to bypass my barrier. Impressive. But I could have summoned Mary’s ghost to aid me sooner, if necessary.”

“Oh?” Jack asked. He didn’t believe it. Black Blood looked drained as fuck after opening the tear. Using Mary when he did had been an act of desperation, and now the old god was trying to make it seem like it was casual and easy. Hopefully.

“Indeed. And the other remnants I have summoned, I could have bound and sent them to fight in my stead. I have been prepared to do so, in case Elaine decided to attack Jacob.”

“Wait, what?”

“Only a fool trusts another blindly. But, Elaine has proven committed. This ritual is successful, and I will rip this Strix curse from your mind and bind it. Another tool in my repertoire.”

Jack ground his teeth as he glared. Elaine, please, don't be the villain the Ripper thinks you are.

“Now,” Black Blood said, turning his skull to face the curse, “you will bow and submit.”

The curse and the Beast it possessed let out a heavy snarl. “Fuck you.”

Black Blood laughed, harsh accent vanishing under the sound of merriment. But then he ruined it. He snapped out his hand and straightened out his torso, all with enough speed both Jack and the Ripper were struck silent. The god of corpses may have been a limited, weakened thing in the real world, but in Jack's head, he was very much a god.

Black Blood's outstretched hand hovered over the curse. The Ripper, or the curse, or the Beast, or however their strange entanglement worked, was a huge creature, a giant ball of smoke and tendrils, claws and talons, feathers and fur, beaks and snouts, and lots of animal eyes. A perfect metaphor for the darkness in all Kindred, that prided itself on its ability to adapt to its environment. From living in a forest and hunting villagers at night, to living in the middle of a populated city and becoming a political figurehead, vampires were the kings and queens of living as wolves among sheep.

Jack stared on, unable to do anything, not even able to reach out and engage Black Blood in a battle of wills. Something was blocking him. The ritual? Or maybe the fact Black Blood was a literal god — whatever the hell that meant — and not an individual with a human mind? All Jack could do was watch, as black ooze dripped from his palm down onto the Ripper. The strange liquid twisted and turned, like living snakes, all too similar to how the Ripper protected Jack's body with Kindred blood when fighting. Except now, the Ripper was helpless to do anything but snarl and roar as the black snakes coiled around him.

Please, Elaine.

The snakes tightened around the giant cloud of black mist, and the Ripper choked on a snarl as they constricted.

“Striges,” Black Blood said, eyes focused on the Ripper as more and more black snakes dripped out of his palm, “are nothing more than shadows of history. Vermin, that slipped through the cracks of the realms, forever doomed to loathe the vampire for abandoning them and their cause. You are even more forgotten than I, and useless in all regards. We have no use for the Strix in the new world. You would be nothing more than thorns in the sides of those of us who try and embrace unity.”

“Fuck ... you...” More snarls and hisses, but with each second, the giant, curse-tainted Beast became more and more bound in the black coils.

Black Blood chuckled again, and reached out his other hand, palm facing down. This one emitted a black glow, and buried the Ripper in black light; how black light worked, Jack didn't know, but his brain understood the metaphor just fine.

“You have power, though. Great power. But you are a curse of the Beast, and bound to it. You will be nothing but a slave once bound to something less autonomous. A necklace, perhaps? Or a knife?”

The Ripper pulsed inside the black coils. “Fuck. You.”

“Whatever Jacob and I choose, you will be discarded, once the abyss chasm has been crossed, and the final realms merged.” Nodding, Black Blood stood up straighter, legs still hidden inside his whirlpool, but more of his torso came out so he could loom higher and higher over the curse. His skull reached the swirling black clouds above, and he chuckled as the endless black ocean around them rippled. “Now, release your hold on the boy’s Beast.”

The Ripper tried to make a sound, probably more curses, but nothing came out, not even a hiss or snarl.

“I said, release the boy!”

At first it’d looked like Black Blood was binding the curse, the same as he had Mary’s ghost. But now, his other hand pulled something out of the Beast, up into the aura of his downward palm. Black smoke? Jack stared on, unable to look away as he felt the drain, straight down into his guts. Something was coming out of him. His eyes told him something was coming out of his Beast, but it felt like something was coming out of his insides, like someone was pulling a string out of his intestines. A memory flashed of a TV show he’d seen once, where surgeons removed a giant tapeworm out of someone’s guts. It’d looked super satisfying, but probably also super painful if not for the drugs the patient was on.

He didn’t have drugs. There was pain, enough to make him stumble back a bit and clutch his guts and heart. In the past, he’d have ranked the pain pretty high, but after the past few years, it wasn’t all that bad. It was the weird sensation that had him reeling, the draining, as if someone had put a convenient hole in his side that let all the vitae pour out of him.

“Do not worry, Jack,” Black Blood said. “You will live. You have taken many wounds, and you are not capable of sustaining your vigor with such injuries on your own.”

“So I’m noticing.” He tried to stay standing, but it wasn’t long before he fell on his ass. Energy, gone, like he’d just gotten hit by a super flu. Not a concern for a vampire, and he was damn happy for that, but all those memories of lying on his mom and dad’s couch, puking into a bucket while watching Saturday morning cartoons came rushing back. He felt like shit.

It took time. People on the outside would probably only see a few minutes go by, but for Jack and everyone else in his skull, it was a lot longer. Black Blood weaved his fingers like a puppeteer, and every second more black smoke came out of the creature Jack knew as his Beast. With each passing moment, the Beast grew smaller, and smaller. It usually hovered around as a giant ball, almost touching the ground and reaching four or five times Jack’s height. Now it kept shrinking down and down, until it was half of what it was. Less.

The black smoke beneath Black Blood’s other palm, on the other hand, only grew larger. As Black Blood drew it out, his coil-weaving changed targets, and instead wrapped chains around the growing black smoke, chains similar to the ones he’d wrapped Mary in. He’d captured his target.

Jack’s Beast, beneath Black Blood’s left palm, was now a measly eight feet tall. The new creature, under Black Blood’s right palm, was gigantic, as big as Jack’s Beast used to be. An owl, made of shadow and smoke, and two glowing yellow eyes.

It squawked as it tried to escape the chains, and the smoky body showed hints of feathers, straining against the strange, ghostly bindings. Jack stared at it, before flicking his eyes between it and the Beast. The Beast, his Beast, didn’t have a voice anymore. And it didn’t have power, at least not the power of an elder snorting a mountain of cocaine like it did when the curse possessed it.

The shadowy owl and his Beast did share a lot of similarities. Both were made of black smoke and had feathers, but the curse's form was specific, and gargantuan, an owl big enough to pick up a car. Strix, and Kindred, were connected somehow. Black Blood said connected by history, so maybe a common ancestor? Did paranormal creatures evolve? Maybe there'd been some cataclysmic event involving magic and Crúac and stuff?

Jack looked beside him at his Beast again. It was the first time he'd ever gotten to see it without the curse; not that Kindred normally ever got to actually see it. It didn't say anything, didn't insult or quip or bullshit him, didn't do anything but hover there beside him, a bundle of Kindred aspects and hungers, with none of the intelligence. It was the creature that Jack would become if he ever became a draugr, mindless, concerned only with its next meal.

The huge owl, chained up and bound, looked to Jack, and they met eyes. Whatever the curse was, however it work, how it managed to get a personality and intelligence, how it managed to become the Ripper, Jack doubted he'd ever figure out. He doubted the Ripper really understood, either. But as they met eyes, it was obvious the shadowy owl still had that intelligence and personality. And, fucked up as it was, Jack knew that intelligence and personality was partly his own.

The Ripper hadn't been created in a vacuum. It was some sort of twisted, fucked up version of Jack. Jekyll meets Hyde. And, for some even more twisted, fucked up reason, he felt ... parental.

"There are few differences between ghosts and striges, and many similarities," Black Blood said. "Reflections, beings of ephemera, undead, and more. It is no accident that Kindred are half dead, after all. Such interesting parallels."

Jack forced himself back up to his feet, fighting against shaky legs and a body that weighed a thousand pounds. Slowly, he walked toward the giant owl, dragging his feet every step.

“Sit down, vampire,” Black Blood said. “Your role in this story is over.”

Those words, it was like someone had just stabbed him in the back with fire. Heat and frustration pulsed through him, and he clenched his fists hard as he came closer and closer. If Black Blood wanted to stop him, he couldn't with one hand working on binding the Strix curse while the other continued to draw it out of his trapped Beast. Two hands, both in use, a metaphor his mind spun up to show that Black Blood was too occupied to stop him.

Maybe if Jack had been a Gangrel, or more importantly, if Black Blood hadn't bound his Beast up in black coils, Jack could have summoned its strength to help him. But, nope, all Jack had was just Jack. A young guy with a stubborn streak a mile wide. He took another step and another, earning some annoyed snarls from Black Blood.

“You will do nothing but hurt yourself if you attempt to stop me, Jack Terry.”

Jack ignored the god of death, and came closer, close enough he could reach out and touch the giant shadowy owl. The chains that bound it meant touching the owl would do nothing. But that didn't mean he couldn't touch the chains.

And one of the links in the chain looked different than the others. It was subtle, super tiny, but one of the links of the silvery ghost chain had a red mark on it. Jack squinted at it, bringing it into focus as best he could. He recognized the symbol. It was one of the symbols in the ritual his physical body was standing on. The ritual that currently had Jack trapped, the ritual made out of Jack's blood, drawn from him when the curse's vitae infused it, was affecting one of Black Blood's chains. Something about the ritual was affecting Black Blood then, and he didn't seem to notice. Maybe he couldn't.

“Black Blood,” Jack said. “You’re a god of the dead, right? Of corpses or death or whatever.”

“My influence is far reaching, but yes.” Well, at least the big bastard was willing to answer questions. Typical villain behavior, convinced he’d won so he was willing to spill some secrets. Jack couldn’t blame him. Everyone that was a threat to him was accounted for, and currently sitting outside the red barrier. The only people who were even remotely a threat, were: Jack, bound in a ritual; Sam, far too weak to do anything; Mary’s ghost, bound in a ghost chain; and Elaine, who Jacob was probably ready to squash into pulp the moment she so much as looked at him funny.

“You bound my sister’s ghost like it was nothing. You grabbed her, like she was just a fly.”

Black Blood snorted a chuckle. “I am a god of death and the dead, little vampire. She is a ghost.”

Right, and he’d said the Strix were strangely connected to vampires, half-dead creatures, and were similar to ghosts. The fact there was some crossover was probably how Black Blood was able to extract the curse at all.

Jack had assumed that one time the curse had actually hit Black Blood, the last time they’d had a mind meld, it’d been because they were in Jack’s mind. But, maybe there was more to it than that. Maybe Black Blood was genuinely worried about the curse. Maybe, the curse was a genuine threat to him. And if Elaine knew that ... Well, it wasn’t like Jack had anything to lose.

“You almost let Jacob die. Antoinette almost got him.”

“I was toying with the Prince, nothing more.”

Jack smirked. “No, you weren’t. You were tired. You would have forced Mary’s ghost to help sooner, if you could have. You’re exhausted. You're weak. You're not some limitless god of power. So ... fuck you."

Before Black Blood could say anything, Jack reached out, and grabbed the chain. No pain. He'd expected pain, like grabbing an electric fence or something, but whatever Black Blood was doing, it had one purpose: binding the curse. It didn't care that Jack touched it.

"What are you doing?"

Jack smirked up at the big bastard again, before looking back into the eyes of the Ripper. No need for them to communicate, Jack knew what it wanted. It wanted to kick Black Blood's ass.

The symbol on the chain glowed. It reacted to him. Elaine, you sneaky bitch.

Jack took a deep, useless breath, and pulled apart with every ounce of effort he could find. All or nothing, everything came down to this.

He figured he'd have a pretty huge epic moment. Maybe some roaring and screaming as the chain resisted him. Maybe he'd have a Samson moment, resummon his lost strength and push down some big pillars, hopefully without the dying part. Maybe something out of an anime, where Jack would find the spark inside him to overcome any barrier, any obstacle, any resistance!

Nope. The moment Jack pulled the chain, the symbol on the one link flared, the link disappeared, and Jack was flung back by a big, invisible, explosive force. He landed on his ass hard, and tried to get up fast. Didn't work. He was fucking exhausted already, so he sat up instead, hands pushing down against the black shallow water, and watched the insanity unfold.

“What!?” Black Blood snapped his head back, but it was too late. The chains changed. Instead of the ghostly, silvery, dark chains Black Blood had spun to coil and trap the curse, they changed into dark red chains. An intimately familiar shade of red. Those, were chains made of Kindred blood.

The chains snapped out, still wrapping around the Strix curse, but also wrapping around Black Blood. One chain wrapped around the back of his skull. Another chain got the hand that’d been chaining the curse, and yanked it back behind Black Blood’s shoulder. His hand sucking black smoke out of the bound Beast got a chain, too, forcing the hand against Black Blood’s chest, stopping his ritual.

The chains did more than that. They pulled the giant shadow owl straight toward him.

The curse, with chains behind it but no longer wrapping it, stuck out its giant black wings, and let out a paralyzing screech. Jack clutched his ears, but it didn’t help. It was the sort of sound Mary made, a shriek you couldn’t make with vocal cords. The sort of sound only something ephemeral could make, and only something that embodied death itself could make.

The giant owl slammed into Black Blood’s face, and everything exploded. The world, Jack’s bound Beast and the black ropes that bound it, the endless mindscape and its black water and clouds Black Blood filled it with, Black Blood himself, the curse, it all shattered and fell apart. He couldn’t see. Everything was gone.

Jack fell on his ass. Again. In black water, again. The world crept back into view as he forced open his eyes. Eye. He groaned as pain ravaged him, pain the Ripper had been suppressing. The scar tissue, the barely formed layers of skin and muscle, all screamed at him to get blood in him and take a long torpor. The curse—

The curse was gone. The anger and rage, the extra personality whispering in his mind. The sickening desires. Gone. Jack clutched his chest and looked down at the ritual circle around him. It was gone, too, and no longer pushed out the black water. Deactivated, or completed? Either way, he was back in the real world.

He looked to his mom. She sat beside Mary's ghost, holding her, now that Mary was back in chains. Both of them were looking up. Elaine and Jacob were both looking up, too. Jack looked to the red barrier. Same thing. Everyone beyond it was looking up.

The screeching noise yanked Jack's eye up as well. And just like everyone else, he froze, and stared.

A giant black owl was fighting Black Blood. No, fighting was the wrong word. The curse, the Ripper, whatever it was now, its black wings erupted out of Black Blood's right arm, followed by black smoke that exploded outward like someone had just opened a door or window to a house fire. And Black Blood slammed a hand down on the wings and smoke hard enough they again exploded, and disappeared. But before the skeleton could recover, black wings erupted from another piece of his bone, this time from his left shoulder. Again, the god of corpses slammed a hand against the invading parasite, and ripped and tore at his own bones and black ooze, until the owl shrieked in agony and disappeared, only to reemerge somewhere else on Black Blood's body.

"Get out! Get out!" Black Blood roared, and the sound hit like a blast wave. If Jack hadn't already been on his ass, he would have fallen over as the black water around the giant god shot outward from him. Again and again, invisible pulses erupted from Black Blood, each followed by a grand boom.

"Black Blood, what the hell!?" Jacob jumped back to his feet, and put his book and knife on the table. Unfortunately for Jacob, the pulsing eruptions of Black Blood fighting off the curse parasite sent his table over, and a dozen artifacts fell. He paused long enough to glance to them, before looking down at Jack's mom, at Mary, still bound, then to Jack, and then finally, to Elaine.

“What. Did. You. Do?”

Elaine shrugged and gestured up to Black Blood.

“Why ask me? Your god of corpses is the one who failed.”

The giant god raged and tore at his own body, but the curse refused to die. Its shadowy body emerged from the god's forehead, and it screamed until everyone was forced to cover their ears. Black Blood again raked at his own body, and dragged his claws across his bone face, shredding the shadow owl that fought to exist. Wings erupted from behind his shoulder, and he spun as he reached for it, sending giant splatters of the black ooze on his body outward, thick as sludge and heavy enough it caused the black water everywhere to splash violently from impact.

Jacob came closer to Black Blood and waved a hand up at him. “Destroy it, before you lose control of the ghosts!”

Lose control? Jack looked up, and gulped. The hurricane of ghosts were dispersing. The mutated, horrific creatures, with see-through bodies made of limbs in all sorts of strange combinations and permutations, spread out from their tightly wound circle. Slowly, as Black Blood fought against the parasite, more and more of the ghosts dispersed, some disappearing into the endless black, and others swirling around the gigantic pillars of bone before flowing away. No green lanterns. Ghosts down here didn't have them. Like blind animals, living in pure darkness and only capable of mindlessly roaming as they searched for a new meal, the ghosts floated away.

“Mom?” Mary said. She squirmed against her chains, but they held true for now. She hadn't been able to squirm at all seconds before. They were getting weaker.

“I don’t know, baby. I don’t know what’s going on. I—”

“Malachi! Behind you!”

The old Nosferatu spun around, just as Elaine swung a knife at the back of his neck.

Jacob was ready for it. Somehow, even as the man stared up at Black Blood, obviously confused as all fuck, he spun around and smashed the back of his hand against Elaine’s face. He didn’t hold back. Ventrue were hard to hurt, and an elder like Elaine was very hard to hurt, but Jacob put enough fury and malice into the backhand that Jack felt it. A hard enough punch that Jacob screamed with it. Elaine fell, and the knife flew into the black water.

“After everything I’ve done for you!” Jacob stomped after her, and Elaine struggled to get back to her feet. “After everything I’ve sacrificed! After everything you’ve sacrificed! This is how you repay me!?” By the time she managed to get back to one foot and one knee, he drove a foot into her chest, and she flew back. Her body smashed into one of the standing stones, hard enough her head cracked against it. Her cheek and jaw already looked damaged from the backhand, and now Kindred blood splattered over the stone where her skull hit it. The standing stones were, apparently, a lot harder to knock over than anyone figured they’d be.

Jacob marched after her. The jokes, gone. The chaotic, random funny remarks, gone. This wasn’t the Jacob any of them knew. There was that one time Jack and Jacob were hanging out, when Avery and Clara had approached, and Avery had tried to make peace. Jacob had backhanded Clara so hard, a human would have been in the hospital for weeks. This was a hundreds time worse than that.

“Mom!” Mary said, not screaming, not even yelling. Just, talking, in the most Mary-like voice Jack had ever heard her use. “Stop him, please. Stop him. I don’t want this! I don’t want this!”

Their mom looked down at Mary, and clutched her tight as she looked into her empty black eyes.

“Baby, we can be—”

“No! No, it’s not right! Mom, it’s not right! He’s going to change everything for everyone, and ... and ... ruin things, for everyone.”

“But—”

“No! You’re wrong! You’re wrong! You’re wrong!”

“Mary...”

“I’m dead, Mom. You’re alive! You’re alive, and Jack’s alive! Be alive!”

Mary’s ghost, a bundle of ephemera and memories and a mountain of hate and destruction, said the words Jack struggled with. Just like old times, Mary didn’t have any problem saying the emotional bits. The ghost wasn’t Mary, but she was damn close, and Jack had been adamant about making her cross over. When Mary’s ghost looked his way, he tried to hold eye contact, lasted half a second, and looked away. Fuck, he felt like shit.

If Jacob heard Mary, he didn’t react. He couldn’t have, not with how close he was to Black Blood now, and how loud the giant skeleton was as he ripped and tore at the curse fighting his body. The vampire continued his walk toward Elaine, and he yanked off his eye bandage as he did. Snarling loud enough everyone could hear it even over Black Blood, he tossed the bandage aside, and closed the distance to Elaine.

“I can tolerate a lot, Elaine. But a traitor? Fuck you. You can die here, and you better thank God itself that in the new world, when I find you again, I won’t be able to kill you a second time.”

Elaine wobbled as she pushed herself back up to her feet, back sliding up the stone pillar, the smallest grin on her face.

“I regret many of my decisions, Jacob. This is not one of them.”

The only reason Jack heard her, over the insane roars of Black Blood, was how close he was now. He'd ignored his wounds, ignored how drained he was, ignored how fucked up it felt to have an ancient deadly curse pulled out of him, and had walked toward Jacob's back. After everything that'd happened, knowing Elaine had actually set shit up to fuck Black Blood over, to give them a chance? No way, no fucking way, he was going to let her die.

Elaine didn't even so much as glance Jack's way, knowing it'd give him up.

“It's pointless!” Jacob yelled. “It doesn't matter! Why—why am I wasting my time explaining this? It won't matter, once everything is together.” He came up to her, and put a hand around her throat as he pulled back his other. Elaine grabbed his wrist, but she didn't have the strength to break his grip, not anymore. “No more speeches. I'm done playing games. Goodbye.”

Before his other fist could turn her head into plaster, Jack grabbed the arm from behind and kicked the back of Jacob's right knee. Somehow, Jack found a sliver of strength he didn't think he had, some remnant of vitae, some tiny little bit that screamed out and told him to attack. Something angry.

It was enough. Jacob got halfway through the punch before his body collapsed, knee giving out. You didn't need to hit a knee very hard if you got it from behind. The punch went wide, his grip on Elaine's throat went wide too, and slid her to the side enough that Elaine managed to get out of the fist's path. It cracked the stone.

She threw herself at Jacob, eyes wide with the mania of a hungry vampire ready for a fight to the death. Unfortunately for Jack, he was still directly behind Jacob, and Elaine tackled him with far more strength than Jack could have guessed. The three of them hit the ground tumbling and rolling, and Jacob and Elaine locked hands like he had with Antoinette. They rolled closer and closer to the red barrier, and the overturned table near Mary and Jack's mom, making loud growling and hissing sounds every foot of the way.

Jack scrambled to his knees as fast as he could, only to find Jacob in a full mount over Elaine, straddling her waist and slowly pushing his fists down toward her. She had her hands up, each open and blocking Jacob's oncoming fists, but the man had given up trying to punch. He was trying to get his fists down to her face, so he could rip her head off.

"Jacob!" Antoinette's voice. The Prince slammed both hands against the barrier once, but it was enough to make a harsh impact sound, and force Jacob to look her way.

"Mom." Mary squirmed harder in her chains, and stared up at her mom with enough panic in her ghost eyes Jack felt his insides ache. Their mom was watching the violence, paralyzed, and it was breaking Mary. "Mom, please!"

"I ... I don't—"

"None of you understand!" Jacob yelled. "And I'm sick of trying to explain it. I understand it. Black Blood understands it. And Samantha understands it. The rest of you can—"

His hand snapped out, out of Elaine's palm, and straight into Jack's face. So much for sneaking up beside him. The world went white as Jack flew back, and something in his face cracked. Pain followed, joining the merriment faster than he expected, and Jack rolled and bounced, and bounced, until a red glow hit him.

He was one foot away from crossing the red barrier.

Groaning, he touched his jaw. Mistake. Burning pain shot through the bone and into his skull, and he choked on a scream of agony. No time for pain, no time for misery. He got back up, and dragged himself toward Jacob again. A glance back showed Antoinette directly across the red barrier from him, looking at him, eyes wide. She wasn't even looking at Jacob or Elaine, or the raging Black Blood anymore. She was looking at him.

For a single moment, he thought about walking through the red barrier, to spend a few final moments with her. But some really big, stupid part of him told him to drag his ass back toward Jacob, and do whatever he could to stop the inevitable. He didn't know what Elaine hoped to accomplish by fucking over Black Blood like this. Maybe her plan had backfired, or failed somewhere along the line. It didn't matter. He wasn't going to let his great grandsire get her head ripped off by Jacob, not after this. No way in Hell.

“All of you!” Jacob threw a glare at everyone beyond the barrier with his empty eye sockets, before getting back to the elder between his legs, and resumed violence. “I'll bring you all into the new world, alive or dead, even if I have to drag you as you kick and scream like idiot children.” He raised a hand, and punched straight down. Elaine tried to block it, but Jacob had raised his fist high enough it was basically a haymaker. It crushed her hand into her own face.

He didn't stop. He pounded into her, again and again, and she managed to block them, but each block was pitiful and weak. Elaine didn't cry out, didn't scream, didn't beg for mercy as Jacob broke bones, driving her blocking hands into her face. And when her eyes refused to open anymore, eye sockets crushed, she held up her forearms, and blocked as best she could as Jacob broke those as well.

“Stop,” Jack said through a broken jaw. “Stop, please. Stop it.” He was too far, way too far. Even if he'd been close enough to fight him, what could do he? The curse was gone, its power gone. He wouldn't be able to do a thing to the elder witch. Slow him down? For what? At best he'd stop Jacob long enough to get thrown through the red barrier and be forced to watch the world end on the sidelines.

It didn't matter. He had to stop this. He had to fix this. He kept going.

“Into the new world! No more life! No more death! No more pain, no more misery, no more—”

Jacob's head fell off.

Jack stopped and stared. If his jaw had worked, it would have dropped open. His one eye slowly slid from Jacob's headless body, to Jacob's head, as the eyeless thing fell harmlessly on Elaine's broken and battered forearms and head, and into the black water. His body fell over, half sideways and half forward onto Elaine, before it ignited into a puff of cinders.

Elaine managed a small squeak of surprise, and pushed the corpse off before it could burn her. A second later, the corpse was gone, nothing but ash, and the scary robe sizzled and burned before the black water doused the small flame that'd managed to spread.

Jack stared down at the robe, at where the eyeless man used to be. All the man was, all the ... everything, just up and gone in a small puff of ash. All that was left of him was a soaked, creepy robe, half burned.

His mom stood over Elaine, by her legs, with Elaine's knife in her hands. Kindred blood soaked the blade, but with no vitae powering it, the blood ignited and burned away, tiny flames and cinders that left behind nothing more than a faint trace of soot.

“Mom?” Jack asked, voice quiet, words mumbled and agonizing to say with the broken mouth.

“I ... I couldn't ... couldn't let him do it. I ... I couldn't...” She dropped the knife, and stared down at Elaine as she took a few steps back. “I had to stop him. I had ... to stop him, right?” Her eyes opened wide and wider, until her horrified gaze looked to Jack again.

He wanted to look away. No one could look into eyes like that and not get scarred for the rest of their life. But he couldn't look away, as his mom stared at him, desperate for him to say something, anything.

“You had to stop him, Mom.” He dragged himself closer to her, and set a hand on her shoulder. She was trembling. “You had to. It —”

“Malachi!”

Oh fuck. The whole time, Black Blood had been roaring and screaming and fighting off the curse, stomping his feet and twisting and turning between the standing stones only a couple hundred feet away. But now, the giant skeleton looked their way, and the white flames in his eyes exploded in size until they were too big for the eye sockets.

He took one step toward Jack and the others, and let out a shriek that silenced every single ghost above. The vibration pulsed through the floor and stones, and while Jack and probably everyone wanted to cover their ears, they couldn't. He tried to lift his arms, but his body didn't respond. Ice spread through his limbs, and the ghostly nails-on-chalkboard sound he'd become way too familiar with shot up his spine until every tendon in his body seized hard.

Black Blood couldn't touch them. Couldn't hurt them. Right?

“Damn the rules! I'll see you burn! I'll spend a thousand years tearing your skin from your flesh, and force-feed you blood to keep you alive until I am satisfied! I'll tear out your eyes and rip out your tongue. I will drive metal and stone through your intestines, and every dead remnant in my domain will taste of your pain! Pain! You will know pain!”

Rules?

The skeleton took another step forward, and leaned down, arms outstretched. He was going to grab them.

Before his giant hands could wrap their bodies, huge shadowy wings erupted from Black Blood’s face, and again the titan roared as he stood up straight, and tore at the Ripper. It was like some freaky cancerous disease, trying to break out of Black Blood’s body, or take it over like an alien parasite. They ripped and tore at each other, splattering black ooze and black shadowy feathers alike.

But Black Blood was winning. As the titan stepped back and clawed at his face, some of his bone claws snagged the curse’s chest, and Black Blood ripped the shadow owl free from his body. Only a slither of shadow connected it to his bones, like an umbilical cord.

“How dare you! I am not some Kindred for you to infect, vile leech!”

The giant owl in the god’s hands let out a screech, and flared its wings as best it could as it pecked at the titan’s fingers hard enough bits of black bone fell into the water below. And somewhere in the alien screech sounds the owl made, two words came out.

“Fuck you!” The bird let out a final harsh flap of its wings, hard enough it freed itself from Black Blood’s grip, and flew directly into the titan’s chest.

Black Blood stumbled back. The white in his eyes erupted until two giant pillars of white flame shot out from them, and he let out an alien shriek of his own, before he sank his claws into the giant shadowy bird, and ripped it nearly in half.

Another shriek. The curse fell to the shallow water, two chunks barely bound together by black strands at the bottom of its body, each half of its head still holding a glowing yellow eye. They both looked to Jack, before the dying creature let out another weird sound. Laughter.

Run, you moron.

Jack's head snapped up. The whisper was in his mind, quiet, raspy, and dying. The destroyed black creature laughed again and tried to flap its wings, but Black Blood took one step forward, and crushed it underneath his foot.

The curse died, and it hit Jack like whiplash. He stumbled back, and his mom caught his wrists before he fell back on his ass again.

“Damn you all!” Black Blood took a step closer. “Malachi was my friend! And you, Samantha, betrayed him! I cannot complete the merge without him! Damn the rules, I no longer care! I will see you suffer a thousand agonies for a hundred thousand years! Death is too good for you!”

“Go,” Elaine said. She pushed herself to her feet, one of her forearms a broken mess, the other barely holding together, but she managed, and she pushed against them with her shoulders. How she managed to see at all with her destroyed face, Jack didn't know. “Go!”

Jack and his mom managed to turn around long enough for it to become painfully clear they weren't getting anywhere in time. They were too beat up, Jack dragging his feet and Elaine barely able to stand. Everyone on the other side of the barrier stared, and most of them took steps back as they realized what was happening.

Whatever rules bound the god of corpses, he didn't give a shit anymore. He was going to catch them, and kill them.

“Jack!” Antoinette’s voice. She pounded against the red barrier again and again, each crash of her hands against the red light loud enough it sounded like a gunshot. “Run!”

“No!” Jack’s mom broke off to the side, and Elaine and Jack almost fell over as she ran past them. “Mary!”

“Shit!” Jack stared after his mom, but all he could do was watch. She used Daeva speed to throw herself back toward Mary’s ghost, and collapsed on her hands and knees beside her.

“Mom! Run!” the ghost said, struggling and squirming in the ghost chains that still bound her. “Leave me! Run!”

“I can’t! I won’t!” She grabbed the chains and pulled on them hard. Jack half expected it to be too heavy for her, but their mom had no trouble lifting her daughter and the chains.

It didn’t matter. Black Blood was on her in a second, and he scooped her up off the stone, watery floor without issue. Sam screamed as Mary’s ghost fell back to the ground, and Black Blood lifted their mom up into the air until he was standing again.

“They will not arrive soon enough to save you,” Black Blood said. “I will not be cast back into the depths alone. You will come with me, Samantha Terry, and you will suffer Hell unimaginable.”

He lifted her up to his skull face, and growled over her as he began to squeeze. Jack’s mom’s scream cut off, turning into a hoarse gargle that died a second later. This wasn’t supposed to happen. Couldn’t happen. Black Blood wasn’t supposed to be able to hurt them!

Jack ground his teeth, and dragged himself back toward the giant god of corpses.

“Black Blood! Stop it!”

“A thousand curses upon you, Samantha Terry. A thousand lifetimes of misery. A thousand swords in your belly and a thousand maggots in your eyes. A plague upon your undead flesh for ten thousand years. You will know death in all its forms, and—”

A scream cut him off, harsh enough Jack almost fell over as he clutched his ears again. He knew that scream. He'd heard it shatter glass.

Mary erupted from her chains, broke them, and dove at Black Blood. The banshee ghost screamed without end, and pulsing waves shot out from her that pushed the water away as the sound threatened to pop Jack's eardrums. She shot up for Black Blood's hand, and as she closed the distance, she changed. The hanging threads and strips of fabric of her new, tattered and torn cloak grew longer and longer. Her claws grew longer, until her hands were dwarfed. The mist that poured from where her legs should have been converged into something more solid, with weird hanging bits underneath her elongating body.

Hands. Holding knives. Her body grew longer and longer, her tattered cloak becoming some sort of giant cape full of tears and holes, but somehow creating a perfect shadow beneath it. And within, sticking out from under the strange shadow of her elongated body cape, were hundreds of hands, holding knives.

She'd been stabbed to death, and Angela hadn't stabbed her once. She'd stabbed her a bunch of times.

The horrific creature slammed into Black Blood's wrist, and slashed down with her claws. The god of the dead roared in rage, and pain, and let go of their mom as he took a step back, only for the strange creature to dive at his chest. Mary's ghost must have grown five times in size, all the extra length coming out of her human torso like some sort of human centipede hybrid, and she used it, slamming it into Black Blood's sternum. She was still tiny compared to him, but big enough, and strong enough, to force him back another step. And as she did, the hundreds of hands underneath her body stabbed at the giant god's bones. Bits of black bone fell like rain.

If those knives hurt half as much as Sabrina's knife, Black Blood was in the worst agony Jack could imagine.

Black Blood roared again, and chains shot out of his palms, aimed for Mary's ghost. But she was fast, and she flew underneath them before rising up to attack the god's face, again dragging her many knives across his dark body.

Jack held out his arms, and caught his mother. Unfortunately, physics in reality didn't do the whole 'catching some who's falling' as cleanly as it did in the movies. All the strength in the world couldn't have stopped him from collapsing forward when she hit his arms, but it was better than letting her crack her head on the stone. Unfortunately, he was barely holding together in general, and he collapsed with her straight into the shallow water.

"Mom, we have to go!" He'd found enough vitae to get his jaw bone aligned. It'd only take a gentle tap to break it again, but it was enough for now.

"No, not without Mary!"

"Look at her!" He threw a hand up and pointed at Mary's ghost. The monstrous thing slashed at Black Blood, a frenzy of screams and shrieks that forced Jack to yell into his mom's ear from half a foot away. "That's not Mary anymore!"

"That's my daughter! I don't care what you say, I won't leave her!"

"That—"

Just as quickly as Mary's assault began, it ended. The god of the dead managed to get a hard slash of his claws through her, and Mary's shrieks came to a harsh stop. She tried to fly away, to get some distance between her and the giant skeleton, but Black Blood slashed out again, and again his claws met her ghostly body. Giant gash marks cut deep, and didn't fill in like mist should have. She looked like a centipede someone had cut halfway through a dozen times, never quite managing to cut off a piece of her, but it didn't matter.

The giant ghost fell, and landed only a short distance from Jack and their mom. She tried to get up, her mutated form pushing against the stone, including the hundreds of hands still holding ghostly knives. But she couldn't. She fell over, and writhed and twisted on her side, her upper human half pushing against the stone floor and staring uselessly at Jack and their mom.

"Run," Mary said. "Mom, Jack, ru—"

"I am a god of the dead, remnant. How dare you think to strike me." Black Blood walked toward them, three whole steps all he required to cover massive ground, and reach down for them. "You broke free of my chains. A powerful remnant, you have become, Mary Terry. But all you have earned is a place at your mother's side." He snarled and laughed as both his hands covered them in shadow. "All three Terrys will spend an eternity, prostrated upon torments you cannot comprehend, with only pain to be your—"

A blinding flash of gold erupted from the center of the site. It almost looked like it came from the giant tear, but it came from ... everywhere, a wave of gold and white that buried everyone and everything. It seared the eyes, but Jack looked anyway, eye half locked on the giant skeleton hands about to scoop him and his mom up, and the other about to scoop Mary up.

Black Blood couldn't. A dozen chips and tears and half broken bones on his colossal frame didn't mean shit to him, but the giant gold chains that now bound his wrist, connected to them by enormous handcuffs, did.

The blinding light faded away, and Jack's eyes stopped burning, still locked onto the giant hands above only a few feet away from grabbing him and his mother. The fingers wriggled, desperate to capture him, but the strange gold chains that came out of nothingness pulled back on the god's wrists, and Black Blood thundered as he fought against them. It was like watching a desperate psychopath fight against the chains that bound him to his cell.

“I. Will. Not. Be. Denied!”

The chains came out of glowing orbs in the air, glowing the same gold as one of the colors in the giant tear. The tear stood there, unchanged, still surrounded by the standing stones and their glowing red symbols, as more giant gold portals opened up around it. Two high above had the chains binding the giant god's wrists, and two more appeared, also high in the cave sky. Two gold chains shot out of them, and snapped gold metal bindings around Black Blood's body, his throat, and around the base of his spine. Two more portals opened up, close to the ground, and again shot out gold chains that snapped around Black Blood's ankles.

The titan fell. With another one of his ghostly roars, a searing sound that stabbed the ears, Black Blood fell backward. For a moment it looked like he'd fall through the giant tear, but he fell beside it, and the cave trembled as the colossal creature smashed into the ground on his back.

“Vas reln korta,” someone said.

What the fuck? Jack forced himself to his feet, his mom helping him, and the two looked around for the source of the new voice. It wasn't raspy, had no ghostly shrieks or screams, and it wasn't a primal roar.

It sounded lovely, like ... ocean waves on the beach.

“Reln difera! Forv ku—” The chains around Black Blood's body yanked hard, and Black Blood's head snapped back into the ground with a crack. An explosion of black water outward announced he'd broken the stone underneath his skull.

Jack didn't know what language they were speaking. There were other words layered into it, like multiple languages being spoken at once.

“Nu ramrelu. Ziar, thaisrah,” the ocean said. Not grating, not heavy or powerful or aggressive. Calm, and deep. Immutable. And just like Black Blood, the words were layered, other words blending in that Jack's brain swore it could find English in, but couldn't.

Black Blood and the invisible voice shared a few more sentences, and while Jack couldn't understand a word of it, he didn't need to. The god of corpses was being reprimanded, punished, or whatever the godly equivalent was.

Black Blood snapped his head up enough to look at Jack and his mom, and again, his eyes erupted with white flame.

“I will return, and have my revenge, Samantha Terry. I will rise again. I will—” Instead of letting the god of corpses have his epic final villain monologue, the gold chains tightened harder, and dragged Black Blood down. He was already on his back, arms and legs spread out between the standing stones, but somehow, the chains pulled him down anyway. The gold hovering orbs that held his chains lowered until they touched the ground, and seeped lower until they disappeared into the rock. They brought their chains with them, and Black Blood twisted and writhed fruitlessly as he sank into the black water.

Whatever the chains were doing, it wasn't easy. Black Blood resisted, and the chains were dragging him straight through solid stone; if that mattered at all to a god. Slowly but surely, the giant skeleton sank and sank, as if the water around him were quicksand with no bottom. Or, thick black sludge. His feet went first, then his hands, then his waist. His skull went last, and his burning eyes stared directly at Jack's mom as the silenced god of corpses was pulled deeper, and deeper into the Great Below.

The moment the black skeleton was completely gone, the red barrier of light surrounding them vanished. No fanfare, no special effects or loud noises, just gone, like someone flicking a light switch. The ghosts above that still remained grew silent, and went on their way, fading into blackness as they flew off. The glowing red symbols on the standing stones remained, but their glow didn't, the red light fading away slowly until all that was left was quiet darkness.

"Jack! Samantha!" Antoinette dashed for them, and Daniel followed beside her. She stumbled several times on the way. Whether that was because she was overwhelmed with emotion, or because Mary's claws had thoroughly wrecked her body, Jack couldn't tell. But once she reached them and hugged them both hard enough Sam and Jack winced, he had a feeling it was the former.

Daniel helped Elaine, picking her up before sliding her hair out of her face.

"It was a stupid plan," he said to her. "A lot of problems."

Elaine, face a broken mess and arms even worse, managed a weak shrug as she walked toward Antoinette. Daniel stayed with her, and helped her from falling over a couple times.

"It was stupid," Elaine said. "But I needed to be sure. I—"

An explanation Jack was dying to hear was cut short, as blinding gold light flooded the giant cave again. Thankfully not so blinding he couldn't tell there were a half dozen orbs coming up out of the black water, each burying the onlookers in their presence, each four times as tall as a person. The black water pushed away from them as they hovered up from the ground, and once they were a couple feet above it, the six orbs drifted toward the tear.

“W-What’s going on?” Samantha asked. “I—Mary! Mary. I have to see Mary!” She wriggled free of Antoinette and Jack’s arms, and ran over to her daughter’s ghost. With no hesitation at all, she got on her knees beside the giant, grotesque creature, and pulled its head onto her lap. “Mary. Oh god, Mary.”

Jack winced as he looked to Antoinette, to Elaine, to the rest of the crowd who’d all dragged themselves closer, before his eye fell on his mom again. If his body didn’t feel like it was about to break into bits and pieces, he’d have run after her and pulled her away.

Mary’s ghost squirmed. The upper body, the human half, looked mostly the same as it had before, but the giant cape, or millipede half, was disgusting to look at. Hands and fingers and knives, clawing uselessly at the ground, with several giant gashes cutting through the enormous body.

“Mom.” Mary’s voice was soft, a whisper, some of the ghost harshness still there but mostly a faded thing. “You’re safe, Mom.”

“I am, baby. I am. We ... I ... oh god, baby, I’m so sorry. I didn’t want this to happen!”

“I know, Mommy.”

Fuck. Jack winced again and looked away, hiding his face in Antoinette’s shoulder.

“I didn’t ... I didn’t want this to happen.” Their mom broke down into sobs, and clutched the ghost’s head close to her chest. “I would have done anything, baby. I would have done anything.” She didn’t care about the god of the dead who’d threatened revenge on her. She didn’t care about the giant glowing orbs nearby that were drifting toward the massive tear. Stakes so high they defied reason, and in that moment, she didn’t care. She cared about her daughter.

“I know. But you did the right thing, Mommy.”

“We could have been together again.”

“It wouldn’t have been right. Not right. Not right. Not right. Better this way, Mommy. Better this way.”

No one else said anything, or even moved. The only noise in the entire massive cave, was Samantha’s sobs.

A new light grabbed Jack’s eye, and he looked up to see a seventh giant glowing orb hover down from somewhere up high. The same as the others, it came down and down until it hovered a couple feet over the black water, but instead of going toward the tear, it came toward them.

“It will be,” the orb said, voice flowing out of it gently in deep, bass-filled pulses, “another cycle before Mictlantecuhtli will be able to interfere with the Fallen World again. Punishment. He has violated the decree.” It was way too soothing a voice, almost like a brown noise machine.

Jack blinked his one eye, and stepped away from Antoinette. It only made sense for the Prince to do the talking, but for some damn reason, Jack opened his stupid mouth first.

“What the fuck happened? How the fuck did any of this happen? I’m gonna assume you’re like Black Blood, or Mictwhatever. And apparently, there’s rules he had to obey? How the fuck does that fucker get to do what he did, and nearly destroy everything, without breaking your fucking rules!? Where the fuck were you!? You only finally interfered because, what, because he actually touched my mom!?” His jaw felt like it was about to fall off, shouting like that, but rage blocked out the pain.

If there was one way Jack was going to die, it'd be pissing off a divine being with his big fat mouth. But the glowing sphere hovered there, unmoving, gently pulsing, unphased.

“We will undo the damage,” it said. “The ... tears, as you call them.” And with that, it slowly hovered toward the other glowing orbs, and the giant tear that stood over them, as tall as Black Blood had been.

Jack looked to everyone, and everyone looked to him. His mom stayed with Mary and refused to look anywhere else, and Mary's ghost didn't move either. He half expected the ghost to start fading away, but it didn't. Maybe it wasn't going to die from Black Blood's wounds. Better if it did, and fucking christ that hurt like hell to even think about. But Mary now looked almost completely like one of the other ghosts they'd seen before, down here deeper in the Great Below. And it'd kill their mom, if she ended up like that.

Sighing, Jack looked up at Antoinette, but all she had for him was a confused shrug. He looked back at Avery, but she did the same. None of them had a clue what these glowing gold spheres were.

Well, they owed the glowing orbs their lives, since Black Blood was going to break the rules or whatever that fucking meant. So, Jack followed, and Antoinette helped him, holding him up as they walked.

The orbs waited, some hovering higher than others, and from a distance, it looked like they were arranged in a pattern, a seven-point shape. Jack conveniently ignored the prime number, and came closer.

“Hello?” a voice said. It wasn’t one of the orbs. It came from the tear.

He recognized that voice.

Chapter 174

~~Jack~~

Thick, dripping gold leaked from the tear, near the bottom, like someone had sliced a gash through a bag full of barely molten gold metal. Gold mist joined it, and gently flowed out over the black water until it nudged up against the crowd of people watching. It was warm.

The glow increased, but it didn't burn his eye anymore. For just a split, wishful second, he thought maybe the soothing warmth would heal his injuries. Nope. It felt nice though, calming, and a glance back showed everyone relaxing. Danger over. Whatever these flying orbs were, it certainly didn't seem like they were gonna hurt Jack and the gang. They were the reason Black Blood was now locked up below, or something. And whatever this gold water leaking out of the tear was, it was good.

Everyone came a little closer, except his mom. She stayed with Mary's ghost, stroking the monster's hair. A couple times she glanced toward the singed robe Jacob had worn, still half floating in the shallow water where he'd died, where she'd killed him, before she looked back down at the ghost and whispered soothing things to her. Jack wanted to go to his mom, to calm her, help her, something. But the gold light called to him, literally, with a voice.

"Jack," the gold aura said. "Jack."

"Antoinette," Jack whispered, "am I—"

"I hear it, as well. It beckons you," she said. Not a voice in his head, then, thank god.

“Jack.” Avery came up beside him and gave his shoulder a small tug. “I recognized some of the words those things spoke before. First Tongue.” She gestured to the glowing orbs. “Those things are old, Jack. Very old. They were talking about ... something about a great game. Or, machine. No clue what they meant.”

Black Blood had mentioned something about a machine. Jack had assumed the giant god was being metaphorical. Maybe not.

“Think we should, uh, run away or something?”

Avery snorted and shrugged. “None of us are in any condition to run.”

Jack gulped on a dry throat, and looked back up to Antoinette. Antoinette shrugged as she set her eyes back on the gold tear ahead, and the gentle flow of gold it released. The gold continued to spread out, pushing the black water aside. It was so beautiful, glittering and hypnotizing, Jack drifted closer toward it anyway. And so did the others, though they had the good sense to stay behind him. Like penguins waiting for one to fall off the cliff first, to know if it was safe to swim. He couldn't blame them.

The flowing gold water came up to his feet, and Jack dipped his toe in it. No reaction. He put his foot down on it, until it sank up to his ankle. No reaction. It felt more than soothing though, it felt wonderful, like someone was caressing him. Like, drinking hot chocolate and sitting by the fire; not that he'd ever done that, but it'd certainly looked comfy in the movies and videos he'd seen.

He came closer. The tear's crazy rainbow colors were gone, replaced with an endless gold that glowed in gentle waves. He came closer. The aura shifted and altered slightly, not changing in any major way, but responding to his presence. Well, he wasn't on fire. It wasn't vampire bane. So, he came closer.

A hand, a very human hand, reached out from the tear. And Jack took it. It was solid, and as warm as the gold water around him. He half expected the hand to pull on him, but they didn't. Jack pulled on them.

Mary stepped out of the tear.

"I ... I..." Jack stepped back as he let go of her hand, and looked her up and down. Mary, looking very much alive, and very much naked. The gold glow didn't just come from the tear, it came from her body as well, conveniently hiding her private parts, somehow without hiding any of her features. It was Mary, with her shoulder-length brown hair, soft face, and bright eyes, all gold tinted.

"Jack," she said, smiling. "Wow, right?"

"Um, yeah ... wow. I, I uh ... I don't understand, what's—"

Mary pat him on the shoulder, her beautiful smile paralyzing, and she walked past him. He managed to force his head to turn enough to watch her, and see how everyone else was as frozen as he was, as Mary approached her mother.

Mary's ghost and her mom stared at the oncoming figure of gold. If they noticed the audience of hypnotized onlookers, they didn't show it. No one noticed anything or anyone else anymore, except for the gold figure walking toward her mom, and her own ghost. Even the giant seven glowing orbs had become an afterthought.

Where she walked, the gold water followed, staying just ahead of each step.

"Mom," Mary said, once she got close, smile slowly changing from its usual playful shape, to something more serious. But still a smile.

"Mary?"

Mary giggled as she sat down, with absolutely zero grace. If she'd had grace, it wouldn't have been Mary. She sat just across from her mom, with her ghost between them.

"She doesn't have much time, I don't think," Mary said. "Let me talk to her."

"She's ... dying?" her mom asked.

Mary shook her head. "No, but she'll keep changing. There won't be much left of her soon. I can't believe she's lasted this long, after everything that's happened to her."

Jack dragged himself closer. No one else so much as moved a single finger, every one of them staring at Mary.

"It's okay," the ghost said. "It's okay. Mom's safe. Safe! That's all that matters."

"That's not all that matters," Mary said.

The ghost let out a little whimper, raspy high-pitched shrieks underneath it, loud enough to be heard but quiet enough they sounded more like distant screams in a forest. Echoes on the wind.

"Mom should go," the ghost said. "Go. Don't stay. I don't want her to see me like this."

"Mary," Mary said, and she leaned in close to the ghost and her panicked, wide, empty black eyes, "it doesn't have to be that way."

"It ... It doesn't?"

"No." Mary smiled warmly down at her ghost, the same smile Jack had seen their mother use so many times, when she wanted to be soothing. The mom smile.

"I don't understand."

Mary set a hand on her ghost's shoulder. "You can stay here, and change into something ... big, and scary. Or, you can come with me."

Mary's ghost tried to sit up. It didn't work. She collapsed again on her mom's lap, and her long centipede body splashed a few times as she tried again. She gave up, and relaxed on her mom's lap, head tilted to keep looking up at her original.

"Go with you?"

"With me. Truly with me." Mary put a hand on her chest.

The ghost looked up at her mom, but she was speechless, eyes slowly sliding between her two daughters.

"I ... I can feel ... weight, pulling me down. I don't know how I can —"

"Ghosts can crossover, and join us, in there." She pointed to the gold tear. "But, they ... they almost never do, when they come to the Great Below. And they never, ever do, when they get this deep, lose their lantern, and ... do this." She gestured to the long, hideous body coming out of the ghost's waist.

Mary's ghost sniffed, as if she was crying. "What will happen to me?"

"You'll join me. Together, here." Again, Mary pat her own chest. "Together as one. I've seen it happen to others in the great river, when ghosts manage to cross over. It's always so beautiful! It's just, never happened like this." She gestured to the tear. "But that just means it'll be even more special."

"I won't disappear?"

"Nope! Your memories will join mine, and we'll become one. And believe me, Mary, the great river is a much better place than this dirty, cold cave, filled with angry ghosts who'll try and eat you."

"But ... Mom..."

"Mom will be fine. I..." Mary sighed as she looked over at Jacob's robe, then back to her mom, resummoning her smile. It was a sad smile. "You and I, we can talk with Mom after. But right now, you need to make a choice before things get any worse."

Jack came closer. He knew what'd happen, once he got close enough. Much as Mary, and Mary's ghost, looked to their mom for everyday, normal advice, Mary knew to ask Jack when it came to the heavy hitter problems. Sure enough, the ghost looked up at him as Jack got close enough to almost touch her.

"What should I do?"

Jack smiled down at her. "It's not even a question, Mary. Go with her." The craziness of the situation could wait. For now, logic mode. "You saw what those other ghosts were like. You saw the one in the hole."

The real Mary nodded. "You lost your lantern, right? You'll never get out of the Great Below without it."

So that's what the lanterns were for. Something ghosts needed if they wanted to get out of the Great Below. Something they lost, if they went deeper, and changed.

"Lantern?" the ghost asked. "I ... I never even ... tried to use it. It's gone."

Mary sighed. "You lost it, because of the resurrection, and ... Never mind, it doesn't matter. All that matters, is I'm here, getting to make a special exception."

“Go with her,” Jack said. “Special exception.” And he dug up the best smile he could find. This was really happening. Mary’s ghost was getting a chance at happiness. Finding a smile wasn’t all that hard.

Mary’s ghost looked up at him again, giant black eyes heavy with a sorrow and uncertainty only a ghost could show, before they looked back up, this time to their mom.

“Go with her,” their mom said, stroking her daughter’s ghost’s hair, and she sniffed. She couldn’t cry without Blushing, not really, but she sniffed like she was anyway. “Please, go with her. You deserve it.”

Mary’s ghost looked down, her long, slashed and broken centipede-like body wriggling a little, before she looked back up at the real Mary.

“Okay.”

Jack, their mom, and the real Mary, all sighed relief.

“Okay,” Mary said, and she set her other hand on her ghost’s shoulder. “Okay.”

Mary, already a gently glowing body of gold, glowed brighter. Jack’s vampire instincts told him to back off, or at least cover his eye, but he didn’t. He needed to see this. His mom did the same.

The giant, horrific creature that was Mary’s ghost, melted away. Her shark mouth settled into a soft smile, and her giant freaky eyes closed, as the white mist of her body changed color. More gold. It flowed slowly and gently up toward Mary, the ghost’s features disappearing, like an ancient statue getting worn down by a desert storm, but far more softly. Despite the almost blinding light, Mary’s ghost didn’t flinch or twitch or anything. She wasn’t in pain. She was calm. She was at peace.

It wasn't long before her giant body was completely gone, now a cloud of gold dust that flowed onto Mary's chest. It siphoned into her, slowly disappearing into her, every grain of sand following suit. No rush to it, no tornado or harsh siphon. The whole process was as gentle as someone tenderly pouring sand out of one palm into another.

And then there was one Mary. The bright light settled until it was only a soft glow again, and Mary opened her eyes with a small squeak, and set her eyes on her mom.

"Mom?"

Their mom blinked at her. "M-Mary?"

"Mom!" She threw herself at her, and almost knocked her over as she embraced her.

Their mom blinked down at her daughter, then up at Jack again. Jack could only shrug. Don't ask him, he was just as confused. But with a few seconds to accept what just happened, their mom hugged Mary back, and let out a quiet whimper as her arms found something solid. And warm.

"It worked," Mary said. "I ... oh god, I ... I didn't know."

"I don't understand," their mom said. "I thought—"

"It worked! Her memories are mine. Mine are hers. I ... oh my god." She giggled, a lot, and squeezed her mom so hard she earned a squeak out of her, too. More than that, she helped her stand up, and resumed hugging her. A solid body, but not flesh or skin. Something their mom could hug, but Jack knew it was only going to make things sting even more, when Mary went back to wherever she came from.

It didn't matter. This was perfect.

He came in a little closer, and Mary giggled and jumped and yanked him in for a hug, too. Which may have been a mistake, considering how much it hurt to get squeezed, fucked up as he was, but it didn't matter. He got to hug his sister again.

“Jack, you asshole.” Mary eventually let him go, and punched him in the chest. She had no more strength than a regular human, but that was more than enough to make him grunt and stumble back. Only their mom holding Jack with an arm behind his back stopped him from falling over.

“Hey! What'd I do?”

“Don't tell me you weren't hoping to leave me—er, Mary's ghost, behind here! I saw the looks you gave me.”

He winced as he looked down. Shit. Ghost Mary was unstable and not right in the head. This Mary very much was.

“I mean—”

“It's okay it's okay.” She groaned as she let go of their mom, and hugged him full on, putting her face in the crook of his neck. “I was ... I'd lost my lantern. There was no saving me.” She kissed his cheek, giggled some more, and before their mom could say anything, she hugged her again. “I was so jealous.”

“Jealous?” their mom asked.

“Yeah, of me, the um, the ghost Mary. She got to see you again!”

“You could see?”

“Yeap. You can watch the realms below, from the great river. Everything.” She giggled as she grinned at her mom, but the giggling died away as she glanced back to look over at Jacob's singed robe. “I

... I'm sorry, Mom. I think you did the right thing, I do! But I can't imagine—”

“It had to be done,” their mom said, and she hardened her expression a little before looking to Jack. “Right?”

“It did,” Antoinette said, filling in for Jack as she came closer. “He had to be stopped, permanently. I would not trust myself to stab his heart perfectly in such a circumstance, either. The only option was what you did, my childe. And we are all thankful.”

Mary nodded and hugged her mom again, before turning enough to look at the rest of the crowd. Everyone had drifted a bit closer, and we're all looking at the gold figure, and her mother. Everyone took a quiet minute to just stand there, and stare at what was happening. It was a minute too long, and Samantha's expression started to crumble.

“I killed—”

“Don't!” Mary hugged her again, as if she could protect her mom from her own thoughts. “Don't. Don't think like that. You heard the Prince, it had to be done. Okay? Okay? I told you I didn't want what Black Blood was trying to do, and you listened. You made the right choice.”

Their mom sighed as she hugged her daughter back, and stroked her hair as she kissed her forehead.

“Okay.”

“Agreed,” another voice said. “It had to be done. You can always trust a Terry to do what needs doing.”

Jack spun so fast he almost fell over, only his mom's arm keeping him up.

A tall man stepped out of the tear, as naked as Mary, but again with a gold, glowing body conveniently hiding private parts with the gold glow. He had broad shoulders, a decent amount of muscle, and short-ish hair combed back. If everything hadn't been tinted gold, his hair would have been blonde.

“Julias?”

The man winked at him as he walked up to join Jack, and set a hand on his shoulder.

“Kid, I have to admit, it looked pretty bad from where I was looking. Can't believe it worked out. I—”

Jack threw his arms around him, and squeezed.

“You fucking ... you fucking asshole.” He squeezed harder. His body didn't want to, muscles crying, and his jaw screamed at him for risking breaking it again, but he didn't care. He pressed his forehead against Julias's sternum, and held him.

“Not exactly Ventrue behavior, Jack.”

“I don't fucking care.”

Julias laughed and pat him on the back. Of all the things Jack had expected, he hadn't expected this. And even in his fantasies of getting to meet his sire again, he never expected to hug the man like this. The two of them were a lot of things, had been a lot of things, but the hugging bros type? Never.

But he was here, and no way in fucking hell was Jack not going to hug him.

“Fuck me, I'm sorry kid. I'm so, so sorry. I didn't know.”

“No one knew what Jacob was doi—”

“Not that. The curse. The infection. I knew Viktor and I had something dark in our blood, but I didn’t know about the curse.”

Jack sighed as he stepped back. “Only one person knew.”

Slowly, with a little more malice than a gold being from the afterlife should probably have been able to muster, Julias set his gaze on Elaine.

“So I’ve gathered.”

Elaine winced as she came closer. Her face had managed to regenerate enough she could see again, but she was still a broken mess, worse than Jack. The only reason she was still standing, was all the damage was above the waist.

“I am sorry, grandchilde.” She looked down, before her eyes looked to the glowing tear. “Is ... is Maurice...”

Julias shook his head. “No, I’m sorry. His shadow is there, but the rest of him isn’t, not until...”

Elaine sucked in a quick breath, nodding. “Do you know if—”

“There’s no rush, grandsire. No rush.” Nodding, Julias stepped past Jack, up to Elaine, and pat her on the shoulder, too. “And after what you’ve done tonight, I think he’ll be okay with waiting. You’re not the woman you used to be, if the other souls I’ve talked to are any indication.”

It was like someone had lifted a ten-tonne weight off the elder’s shoulders.

“Other souls...”

Nodding, Julias pat her on the shoulder a second time, before he turned, and looked through the watching crowd, until his eyes settled on someone specific.

---

~~Beatrice~~

Oh god oh shit oh god.

She didn't know what was happening. None of them had any fucking clue what was happening. Black Blood crossed a line, so now some giant glowy orbs showed up to do damage control? Sure, whatever. But then Mary, the real Mary, her soul walked out of the tear and saved her ghost from what would probably have been millennia of torture, down here as some sort of fucked up monster.

So, sure, Triss could accept that. Mary's ghost deserved help. But Julias, her Julias, glowing all gold and naked and shit walked out of the tear, and was now walking toward her. Her Julias. The dude whose body she had ready in a cave!

She froze.

Superman smiled at her as he came in close, and closer, until he set his hands on her shoulders. Warm, warmer than vampires ever were unless they were Blushing Life.

"Triss," he said. She forced herself to look up, and meet his eyes. "It won't work."

She sighed, finally finding the ability to move, at least a little, and she set her hands on his wrists.

"It won't?"

"No." He gestured beneath them, at the glowing gold water. She'd barely noticed it. "This is just a piece of the river, and I can't leave it."

"River? I don't—"

“It’s all metaphorical crap for the afterlife and stuff. This, the gold body, all of it. I can’t leave the river. If you wanted your plan to work, you’d have to be a god, and bring the realm with you, maybe ruining everything for everyone, like Jacob and Black Blood nearly did.”

Shivers worked up through her body, and she lowered her head. She was crying. You didn’t need tears to cry.

“I ... I missed you, so much. I—”

He leaned down, and kissed her. Her eyes went wide, and she stared into his, but they were closed, doing one of those classic, big time romantic kisses that were always so over the top, they made her feel like she was on a stage. And god damn it, the memories grabbed her and grabbed her hard. She wrapped her arms around him, and kissed him back.

“Sorry,” he said eventually, pulling his head away a bit. “That was dumb. Couldn’t help myself.”

“Dumb? I—”

“You know why.” He nodded his head toward Sándor slightly.

“But, I ... you...”

“Triss, I spent every moment in that river, hoping to God you’d let me go and move on. It was fucking killing me — no pun intended — seeing you trying so hard to not let go. I want you to move on.”

“But we—”

“Triss.” He sighed as he hugged her, and kissed her forehead. “I’m dead, alright? I’m dead. And that’s okay.”

Fire shot up through her hands, and she punched the man in the chest. He stumbled back.

“It’s not okay! You shouldn’t be dead! That wasn’t fair! You got yourself killed trying to help Jack! You think that’s okay? You fucking shit! You asshole! You fucking—”

He hugged her again. She squirmed and fought against him, but he held her close, and god damn it, she gave in.

“I couldn’t let Jack die. And I couldn’t Samantha die, either.”

“I know,” she whispered.

“But you’re right to be angry with me.”

“I know.”

He laughed and stroked her hair. She relaxed against him, and sobbed a little longer.

Noises grabbed her attention, and she turned her head enough to see back to the tear. More gold shapes emerged from the glow, more and more, a whole bunch of people she didn’t recognize. And a few she did.

The gold souls stepped up to the group, each of them never leaving the gold water that leaked out of the tear. Each of them, sometimes a man, sometimes a woman, sometimes more than one, found someone in the crowd. And the crowd was, predictably, frozen with shock. None of them expected to this. How could they?

Laughter grew from the gold souls when they realized they had to be the ones to break the silence, and they ran up and joined whoever it was they came to see. Some dude ran up to Clara and hugged her. A woman Triss recognized ran up to the werewolves and hugged each of them: Stephanie, the one who’d died to an azlu a few years ago. The other werewolves came, too. Carter, Monica, and Caleb. Others Triss didn't know, came up to Avery, and the old woman broke into tears. Old pack mates?

A woman came up to Eric, and hugged the stunned man.

"Mom?" Eric said, so quiet Triss had to read his lips to hear it over the growing sound of dozens of people talking.

The woman squeezed her son, and kissed his cheek, before hugging him some more. She gestured to Jessy, too, and gave the woman a quick hug before starting a conversation, which had Jessy squirming. Apparently, she was scolding the Gangrel, and she gestured to Jessy's ... breasts, on a couple occasions, and mentioned Eric's dad. Weird.

Two people came up to Natasha, a man and woman. The little vampire was reduced to sobs instantly, and she hugged them like they'd vanish any moment. Probably not far from the truth.

"Julias," Antoinette said, "I ... I do not understand. Please, tell me what is happening?"

Julias shrugged as he stepped away from Triss. She was tempted, so damn tempted to hold on, but some piece of her, the wise part maybe, told her it'd be a mistake.

"Black Blood's tear managed to reach across the chasm. Just a little, a tiny sliver. And the guardians"—he gestured up to the glowing orbs—"figured, after what you guys managed to do, you'd earned a quick visit from us."

"The chasm?"

Julias put up his hands. "Sorry, can't talk about it. But the guardians there gave us what we needed to cross it, and visit for a bit. Those of us that haven't sailed on past the horizon yet."

Sailed on? Past the horizon? Was the afterlife a pirate adventure?

“How long is a bit?” Triss asked.

Julias smiled down at her, but it was one of those somber smiles he used when he was about to give bad news.

“Enough time to say hello, goodbye, and maybe a few things in between.”

“Right.” She gulped down her guts that were trying to jump out through her throat, and forced herself to nod. “I—”

A squeal forced her to spin around, ready for whatever suddenly made someone scream. But, it wasn't that kind of scream. It was a kid's scream, the excited kind.

A woman stepped out of the tear, and a small kid ran ahead of her, a boy. Whoever the little boy was, he didn't give a shit about anything else, except one thing: Sándor. And the poor guy was struck dumb, eyes wide, and mouth dropped. He did manage to at least get down on a knee, and catch his kid, before the little guy could tackle him.

“Theo?”

“Dad!” The kid squeezed, and Sándor's eyes, still open wide and staring past the little guy, looked to the approaching woman. Tears were in his eyes. Sure, part of that was probably because his kid was crushing his fucked up arm and shoulder, but from the way he was looking at his wife, Triss knew the reason for most of them.

“Sándor,” the gold woman said, and she got down on a knee with him. Slowly, she leaned in, and set a kiss on his forehead, before running her fingers over his short hair, and giving him a proper kiss.

“Margaret, I—”

“Shhh.” She kissed him again, and shook her head.

The two adults went quiet, and rested their foreheads against each other, while their kid squealed with joy. It was so damn beautiful, Triss had to look away. Sándor was crying, same as her, same as everyone.

Damien wandered over, eyes drifting between everyone and the tear, before coming to Julias.

“I don’t suppose—”

“Sorry, Damien,” Julias said. “The older people are, the harder it is for them to get around, in the river. And elders vampires are very old.” He pointed at his own neck. “Carrying anchors, you know? Takes them a long time to let them go.”

“I see.”

“But, I did speak to him. He’s ... open to the idea, that he might have been wrong. And an asshole.”

Damien laughed. “Music to my ears.”

Julias laughed with him, and motioned for Damien to come in closer. Damien raised a brow, but came in anyway, and Julias leaned in to whisper a few things to him. Each word had Damien’s eyes widening, and eventually, a smile, the same sort of heavy, overwhelmed smile everyone else was wearing.

“Thanks,” the Mekhet said. “I will.”

Julias nodded as he winked at him.

Elaine and Antoinette chuckled as they looked at each other, before they both nodded, and stepped back. No one was coming to visit them. Why? Triss looked up at Julias and nodded toward the two elders.

He grinned, and nodded toward the tear.

Sure enough, a couple of new squeals joined the chorus of happy voices. Two women ran out of the tear, and went straight for Antoinette.

“Lana? Darlene?” the Prince said, staring.

Triss was seeing lots of firsts tonight. First time seeing Jacob get emotional, and now first time seeing Sándor get emotional, and Antoinette too. The Prince hadn't seen it coming. They'd all been blindsided by the dead coming out to say hi, but Antoinette looked utterly confused, like there was no way a dead person would actually want to see her again. Vampire guilt, probably, over how the Vinculum bound ghouls. But considering how devoted Sabrina had been to Viktor, post death, it was nice to see a couple of more normal girls doing the same for the Prince. They hugged her, and she hugged them.

Triss glanced Athalia's way. Daniel was with her, talking with a man Triss didn't know, some ghost from Daniel's past. Athalia was the third wheel in the conversation, and she inched away a bit to let the two talk as she glanced toward the tear a few times. Jesus christ, it hurt to watch. Go talk to her? Nah, not a good idea. Much as Triss and Athalia could actually talk to each other now, that was a far cry from—

“Mom!”

Another voice came out of the tear, and everyone shut up instantly, as a woman emerged. Even without the glass eye anymore, it was a face Beatrice would never forget. A face that shot heat up through her body until her Beast roared.

Her skin didn't shine quite as bright as everyone else's. No, that wasn't it. It was glowing, but it wasn't glowing the same color. Some different shade. Bronze? Whatever the strange color was, it also pulsed out of the thing hanging from her neck.

A stone, the size of her head, hanging from her neck by a black chain. A quick glance to Julias got the nod she was looking for. That was one of the anchors he'd been talking about.

With the rage in the woman's eyes, Triss half expected the soul's feet to taint or burn the gold water underneath her into the same black water the rest of the cave was covered in. But no, no change at all. She came closer, coughing a few times, and struggling with each step. She looked exhausted.

"Angela?" Athalia took a couple steps toward her daughter, but the look in Angela's eyes stopped her.

"Mom." Angela managed a few more steps before she fell to her knees. The anchor hit the gold water, and the splash that followed made it clear just how heavy the thing was.

Athalia didn't hesitate. She was down on her knees beside her dead daughter in a second.

"Angela, I—"

"Jeremiah," Angela said, grinding her teeth, "was ... an asshole."

"What?"

"Jeremiah was an asshole!" She snapped her hands out, and grabbed her mother by the shoulders. "He took a little girl and twisted her. Made everything worse. Lied and used her. I didn't deserve that! I didn't ... deserve that..."

Athalia tried to keep back her tears, but there was no point. Everyone was already in full emotional breakdown mode, and even with the craziness happening, this was still a surprise.

“No, you didn’t,” she said eventually, voice wavering. “And you didn’t deserve what I did to you, either. What ... What my Horror did to you.”

“No, I didn’t! You ruined my life, my childhood! The nightmares your stupid Horror put on me! I didn’t deserve that! But...” She clutched her mother’s shoulders tight, the both of them on their knees in the gold water, and the daughter visibly trembled. “It wasn’t fair of me, to blame you for everything. It wasn’t ... it wasn’t all your fault. I know that. I know that, and ... and I came here, dragged myself here, with this stupid thing around my neck! Because ... I had to ... I fucking had to ... I had to say I’m sorry.”

Athalia blinked down at her daughter, before looking around until she spotted Beatrice, and without her usual look of anger or frustration, or even icy daggers. She looked at her like she was looking for help on what to say. And Triss didn’t have a god damn clue, so, she shrugged, and gestured back to her daughter. Talk to her, you dumbass.

“You’re sorry? But I—”

“I know you’re sorry! You said you were sorry a hundred times. And ... And I...” Angela broke down, and hugged her mother. Everyone went from silent, to stone silent. Whatever bug was going around and getting everyone sick with the sobs, they hit Angela hard. A murdering psychopath. A broken child, who never really got to have a mother.

The stone hanging from Angela’s neck shrank. Hard to see, considering she was hugging Athalia, but the stone lost half its size, and the weird glow it gave off half died with it. All these dead people, dead souls, came here to say something to everyone alive, and it seemed pretty obvious now they were doing it because they wanted to help those unlucky enough to still be alive. Angela came for a different reason.

Triss looked away. From the way Julias and Mary were looking at Angela, nodding knowingly, they weren't surprised. Hell, from the little smile Triss noticed on their faces, they'd saw this coming, maybe even talked to Angela and convinced her to do this.

Triss spoke up. "Should I—"

"No," Julias whispered. "Angela's made a lot of progress, but she's got a long ways to go before she can sail."

Sail. Considering all the talk of a river, she had to wonder if that was a metaphor at all.

"I suppose y'all don't hate each other up there, do you?" Triss asked.

Superman shook his head. "No, we don't. But I can't talk about it. Literally. Part of the deal for getting to talk."

"Oh. I guess it'd be bad for business if Heaven gave up its secrets."

Laughing, Julias gave her another hug, before stepping back. "I'm gonna go talk to someone."

"But—"

"I'll talk to you again before we go. Don't worry." He winked at her, gave her his usual suave, confident jackass grin, and walked toward Sándor. Sándor!? Oh shit. She walked after him, but managed three steps before one of the gold ghosts came her way.

Sándor's wife. Tall, slim, long dark hair, and a couple of hard eyes pointed right at Triss with the sort of direct confidence only women who chewed up business proposals for breakfast had. Sándor did say she was a hardass, the sort of woman who demanded things when she wanted them. Which was pretty awesome, honestly, but right now those determined eyes were pointed at Triss, and they were more than a little scary.

Margaret came in close, put a hand on Triss's shoulder, and pulled her away from the group, leaving Sándor behind with his kid, and Julias. Julias laughed and joked with the obviously paralyzed gargoyle, no doubt doing his best to help Sándor get over the fact he was a big part of the reason Julias was dead. It was painful to watch Sándor squirm, but Triss couldn't help but smile seeing it. It'd taken a long time to get over the fact Sándor had been involved in Julias's death, and seeing Superman laughing and clapping the man on the shoulder was strangely ... easing.

"You're interested in my husband?" Margaret asked.

"I uh, um..."

"Beatrice, I'm dead. Have been for years. He's not. It's okay if you're interested in him."

She winced. "Is it? I mean, after what I was doing, and—"

"You learned your lesson. Right?" Damn, her voice was hard.

"I ... I did." Triss gestured around her at everything. "I—"

"I don't mean because it turned out you can't resurrect Julias. I mean because you've realized how fucked up it is, to do something so selfish. You don't get to break the rules because you think life is unfair. Right? Or did you agree with Jacob?"

It was like getting slapped in the face. Double damn, this woman could be cruel.

“No, I guess I didn’t agree with him. I thought, maybe, I did, but ... no, I didn’t. I don’t.”

“Good.” Margaret smirked as she leaned in, and put her arm over Triss’s shoulders so they were inches from each other. “Now, I don’t know if you’re a good fit for Sándor. Maybe you are. I’m no match maker. But ... you know about his Horror. You know about the worst of it.”

“Yeah, I guess.”

Sándor had to kill people to satisfy his Horror’s hunger, absolutely had to, and probably in very brutal, terrifying ways. It was territory vampires were familiar with, but that was like comparing swimming in the shallow end of a pool to deep sea cave diving.

“Azamel’s helped him with controlling his hunger, but it’s still a problem. He dealt with it on his own when he was with me, despite my shitty attempts to help him, but I was just a human. You’re not. I expect you to try and help him out, okay? Even if he pushes you away, push back.”

“But what if—”

“I don’t mean right now. I mean, if you two hit it off, see if you can help him find a good way to feed, okay? You’re a vampire. Figure something out.”

This woman’s personality could smash through a brick wall. Maybe instead of her and Sándor falling in love, she’d basically bullied the man into romance? Judging from his reaction to seeing her, he did love her, though. But aggressive as Triss knew she could be, she couldn’t see herself hopping a semi and driving through Sándor’s boundaries and into his personal life like this woman probably had.

Then again, after the shit that'd happened, she kinda already got to see his personal life, up close. Maybe she wouldn't need the semi.

"I'll try."

"Good. Now, sex."

"What!?"

"Shh! Jesus." Margaret snapped her eyes around before leaning in closer so their foreheads touched slightly. "My husband deserves to be happy. I don't know how much of a fit you two will be, if at all, but just in case, I figure I should give you a tip."

This conversation was not happening.

"I—"

"Sándor is at odds with his Horror all the time. He hates being aggressive, because of how much it reminds him of his Horror. So, you and your 'girlfriend'", she air-quoted girlfriend, "will have to take control, when he's not with his Horror. He'll be pretty passive, usually. Take charge, and it'll go smooth."

"Wait, when he's not with his Horror?"

Margaret smiled. "And when he is, it'll be the opposite. He's a giant monster, Triss. Be prey. Run away, hide, squeal and have fun, and he'll chase you and fuck you into oblivion. It'll be great. Just, don't do it if he hasn't fed in a while, for reasons you already know."

Triss gulped. Sándor's dead wife was giving her sex tips on how to fuck the man, and on how to fuck the giant gargoyle, too. Damn, the woman would have fit in Dolareido perfectly.

"Jen, she uh, she wanted to know if—"

"Yes, he does."

“Holy shit.”

“Just, be careful, okay?” Margaret said. “You know what the deal with his Horror is, how dangerous it is.”

“Definitely.” And if Margaret was watching her husband from Heaven, or whatever it was, she knew about the time Sándor had nearly eaten her and Jen.

Margaret grinned at her, and looked her up and down a couple times.

“I think you’ll be good for him. Sándor and I loved each other, but like I said, I was human. I could only help him in so many ways. Maybe you and Jen will do a better job.” Cue oddly evil grin from the woman. She knew she was making whatever she was talking about ambiguous. Jen would have loved this woman.

“You know Sándor and I aren’t actually dating, right? This advice sounds a bit premature.”

“Well, now you’re getting his dead wife’s blessing, and ... and I want him to be happy. The man deserves to be happy. He’s got a thousand anchors on his neck, and it’s not fair. And I’ve seen enough. You and Jen can make him happy, in a lot of different ways.” She leaned in closer again. “And I know my husband. He likes you a lot, but you’ve probably noticed he has a hard time showing his feelings. So, this is cheating, but that’s fine. You’ve earned it. Get him alone — well, not alone if you’re bringing Jen — and bully him a little to get in his pants. A little! He’ll be happy you did.”

“But—”

She gestured back to her husband. “Dude has trouble hurting a fly. He needs help.”

Beatrice couldn't help but smile. "He really is a nice guy."

"To a fault."

"Apparently I seem to like that quality in men."

Margaret laughed. "Julias is a pretty great guy."

They both turned to watch Julias. He'd moved on from Sándor, and was chatting with Natasha and Jessy, his oldest friends. Tash was pretty much sobbing nonstop, and even Jessy was struggling to stay strong. But once Julias gave them both a hug, the Gangrel broke into sobs, too.

Triss smiled and looked back to Margaret. "You—"

The dead woman winked at her, and walked off to rejoin her husband. As she walked past Julias, the two gave each other some quick, knowing grins, before Julias came back and joined Triss again.

"Do I even want to know what you said to Sándor?" Triss asked.

Julias shook his head. "Nope. I told him all your worst secrets."

"Asshole."

He smiled at her, and she tried to return it, but it didn't last. Before she could stop it, tiny sobs worked their way through her throat, like hiccups, and she ground her teeth as she looked down.

Julias hugged her again, and stroked her hair.

"Tell Jen I love her, too, in that strange way only she seems to understand. You got a weird friend in her, but she's great, and I hope you too stay together for a long, long time."

"I will."

“And ... I’ve got to go.”

“I know.” She buried her face in his chest again, and squeezed him again. Part of her thought she should be freaking out, screaming at him to not go, to stay with her. She would have, if this had happened not long after Julias died. But, much as it sickened her, she had to admit, time helped heal the wound.

Look at her, getting wiser every night.

“And—” A quick gasp from someone else cut him off.

A new person came out of the tear, someone Triss didn’t recognize. But from the way Jack and Sam got up and dragged themselves over to the man, and hugs were had, it was probably James, Jack’s dad. Handsome guy. He chatted with his family, and the look on Sam’s face was amazing. She looked happy. The Terrys, all together again.

“She’s going to hate herself,” Triss said, nodding toward Sam. “The moment you ... you guys leave, and all she has left is Jack, she’s going to hate herself.”

“Maybe,” Julias said. “But Jacob had to be stopped. Black Blood can’t do the ritual without someone else’s help.”

“Yeah?”

“Yeah. And maybe he’ll find someone, next cycle. But for now, Sam saved the world. She’ll need a friend to remind her of that.”

“I’m not sure she’ll think of it as saving the world.”

Julias sighed, and stepped back from her. “She will. Once she’s thinking clearly, she’ll understand. In the mean time, be her friend.”

“You know I will.”

Nodding again, Julias half turned, ready to walk away. But he stepped back in toward her, and kissed her. Good, because if he hadn't, she'd have made him do it anyway.

“No regrets, Triss. The time we had was wonderful, and I hope you cherish the memories. But it's important that—”

“That I move on. I get it already, okay? You sound like a fucking therapist.”

He grinned at her, and hugged her tight one last time, before letting her go, and slowly stepping back.

“I love you.”

God damn it. She choked down another sob, but it still came out as a trembling squeak.

“I love you, too.”

He smiled, winked, and walked back toward the tear. Right on cue, as if Julias was leading the pack, all the souls gave their loved ones some final hugs and kisses and tearful goodbyes. Caleb and Monica gave Jack a drive-by pat on the shoulder. Antoinette's ghouls, the other dead werewolves, Sándor's wife and kid, Eric's mom, whoever that was with Daniel, Tash's parents, everyone eventually moved on.

Mary and James gave Samantha extra hugs, Mary in particular, before she took her dad's hand and made for the tear. She didn't get far, of course, before she turned around and gave her mom one last hug. They both cried and squeezed each other until James had to interfere, and gently pry them apart. Sam got one last quick forehead kiss from James, before the two souls moved on, and James gave Jack a knowing pat on the shoulder, and a quick hug, too.

Before he left, Julias walked over to Athalia, and squatted down beside Angela. The two women were still locked in a hug, not talking anymore. After the sort of tense life they had, and then the tense confession Angela just gave, talking probably wasn't the best idea. Just, better to share some 'I love yous' and hug it out.

"It's smaller," Julias said, gesturing to the rock hanging off Angela's neck.

"Yeah."

"Glad I convinced you to come?"

Angela, trembling and crying, managed to nod as she smiled up at him. "Yeah."

Nodding, he held out a hand, and helped her stand up, while also giving Athalia one of his perfect, infuriating winks. Athalia came up with them, and before Julias could react, she hugged him.

"Thank you, Julias."

Julias returned the hug, before slowly guiding Athalia off him, and into Daniel's arms instead. The two men nodded to each other in typical manly fashion, before Julias put his arm around the back of Angela's shoulders, and guided her toward the tear. The woman who'd killed him, and he was helping her.

Triss dragged herself over to Sam and Jack. For a second she'd been tempted to go to Athalia, but Daniel was doing cleanup duty for her, and from the way she was snugged up under his shoulder as she watched after Angela, tears streaming down her cheeks but a smile there too, she was fine. Sam, on the other hand, was having a rougher time than anyone. She wasn't sobbing anymore, but it was damn clear from the look in her eyes that her face would have been soaked in tears if she'd been Blushing.

“Bye! I love you!” Mary waved, pausing by the giant tear as other souls stepped through it. “I love you Mom! I love you Jack!”

“I love you baby!” Sam said, waving in the exact same, exaggerated way.

“I love you,” Jack said, with only a pinch of the stand-offish behavior Triss expected of an introverted guy like him. “And I love you too, Dad.”

James nodded in that firm, proud father kinda way as he gave them a final wave, and disappeared through the tear with his daughter.

Julias paused at the tear, and waited for Angela to step in. She gave her mom one final look, and a small wave that said a million words, before she followed the others in. Only Julias was left.

He looked to his childe, and Jack returned his gaze. And, because Julias’s cheese knew no bounds, he gave the kid a thumbs up. Poor Jack. Everyone in the crowd laughed quietly as Jack returned it, but Julias maintained the most dramatic, intense, cinematic and proud gaze, before locking eyes with Triss. He smiled at her, one last time, before disappearing into the tear.

The glowing orbs got to work. They hovered around the tear, and shot what looked like gold lasers at it. It was almost like one of those scifi shows where machines used lasers to cauterize wounds. Maybe that’s what they were doing, burning the wound closed. Not much noise, either. All in all, a very anticlimactic end to all the work Jacob and Black Blood had accomplished.

Then they left, without a word, probably to deal with the other tears. No explanations about who or what they were, their relationship to Black Blood, or how they managed to use the tear to let dead souls come for a visit. Assholes.

Triss looked around. Everyone was stunned, not by what had happened, but by what wasn't happening. The world wasn't ending anymore. And, they weren't talking to the people they'd lost anymore. All they had anymore, was silence. And memories.

---

~~Antoinette~~

"I believe," Antoinette said, "that we may ... return home."

Everyone sighed, tension melting away, replaced with melancholy. It was only natural, after being given such a gift, only to lose it so soon. While it was a beautiful, and cathartic moment to speak with her ghouls Lana and Darlene again, it was also true that she was an old creature, and used to moving on when those she cared for died. And Daniel, who got to speak with his dead child from so long ago, was also not as emotionally exhausted as everyone else. Elders were used to death.

Beatrice, Samantha, Jack, Athalia, and Sándor, were the ones most obviously drained by the experience, but also fulfilled. Goodbyes that were not said before were said, and final moments exchanged. Perhaps the most powerful, was Athalia's conversation, an interaction Antoinette could not help but watch, overwhelmed with interest, and perhaps empathy, as the woman reconciled with her daughter. Or rather, partially reconciled. The weight around the troubled daughter's neck had diminished, and with Julias as a strange friend in the afterlife, it was likely the girl would eventually be free of her burdens.

The idea that a psychopath, filled with hate and cruelty, could go to some great 'river', and slowly release themselves of their sins to become free to roam it, left her with a strange feeling. Did someone like that deserve such forgiveness?

She frowned as she looked down. How pathetic had she become, to suddenly subscribe to the idea that the compassionate enjoyed their afterlife, while the cruel were doomed to suffer? A religious view, and not her view. Julias had said Lucas could not visit, as he was still weighed down by his burdens. She had to admit, the idea of that lunatic trapped by his sins as anchors around his neck, unable to sail some mystical river, was pleasing, and her frown shifted into a smile.

“Prince,” Natasha said, joining her side after a quick conversation with her sire. “What do we d-do now?”

Antoinette touched her chin as she considered. Ask her student about her conversation with her dead parents? No, too soon. Little Vola would speak of it when she was ready.

“Jacob is ... dead.” She scooped her old friend’s robe from the shallow water. “And Black Blood has been indisposed. What those strange entities did with him, I do not know, and they did not have the decency to explain what a cycle was to give me a time frame for his next appearance. But, I believe it is safe to say, we may return home, and worry about destroying this another time.” She gestured to the standing stones.

“Agreed,” Daniel said. “We’re too injured to do it by hand tonight. If a Begotten provides me passage, I’ll destroy the standing stones with explosives tomorrow night.” One of his arms held Athalia to his side. Such a display of affection was not normal for her sheriff, but it was clear Athalia needed it. And, perhaps Daniel’s conversation with his young childe Torrence, had softened him a touch. Perhaps he would even speak of him to his living childe some night.

“Elaine my dear, if you would join me for a moment?” She looked to her old friend, one of her few remaining, and offered her a cold, neutral expression.

Elaine tried to return her gaze, but her face was still a broken mess. It had healed enough to function, but only just. With a few moments to consider it, Elaine joined her, and the two elders stepped aside from the rest of the crowd, who had begun to isolate themselves to absorb what had just happened.

“Elaine,” she whispered. “You ... made quite the gamble.”

“I did.”

“I do expect you to tell me the details of your plan.”

Elaine managed a grin with her split and ruined lips. “After you lock me in a cell, and turn me into a prisoner, I assume?”

Antoinette returned the grin. “No. I trust you to not disappear. And besides, you ... did try and stop Jacob.”

“I suppose I did.”

“And if Jack had not arrived at all to trigger your trap, and your trap against Black Blood?”

Elaine looked away. “Then ... maybe Maurice...” Sighing, she shook her head. “I grow sick of this place. Let us go.”

“Daniel,” Antoinette said, loud enough to summon him. “Help Elaine, would you? She is gravely injured. And ... do keep an eye on her.”

Elaine choked on a small laugh. “By all means.”

Nodding, Antoinette walked past the others, on her way back to her lover and her child. The mix of sadness and joy in the crowd was palpable, and no doubt poor Jack wanted nothing more than to separate himself from the powerful aura the group radiated. Such was the way of any introvert, when emotionally overwhelmed.

“Antoinette,” he said. “I uh ... I’m not sure—”

She held up a hand. “Let us go, drink, and sleep. It would not do to speak of these events so soon, and as injured and exhausted as we are.” Slipping an arm about her injured lover’s body was easy enough, as he sought her touch.

Samantha was not so easy. Her childe appeared more torn now, than she had been when Antoinette first arrived through the flesh tunnel.

Poor, dear Samantha. She spoke at last.

“I ... I was ... going to let Jacob—”

“Samantha, my childe, you were thrown into chaos you could not have even begun to appreciate, and told by a ... by a wonderful man, that you could be with your loved ones again. Anyone would have been seduced by his words in such a circumstance.”

Jacob had been, for all his chaos and strange, primal views, truly a wonderful man, and she did not regret calling him such. But in that moment, the words hit Samantha with more weight than Antoinette could have anticipated, and her childe broke into sobs once again. Jack, battered and barely standing, slipped an arm about his mother, and hugged her as best he could.

Antoinette looked back, and found Beatrice nearby, close enough to hear what she had said. After a heavy moment, Antoinette offered her old friend’s student a solemn nod.

Beatrice stood strong, and nodded in return.

---

Antoinette had been tempted to speak to the others, but she knew her own advice was true. There would be time to speak of the realities in the future. For now, they needed rest.

“Sleep well,” she said to her childe, and pet her shoulder as she gently ushered Samantha into her room, deep within the Elysium Tower.

“You too,” Samantha said, and she sat on her bed in the grand room of black marble. While her room and bed were not as massive as Antoinette’s, it was still quite vast, and her blankets a beautiful shade of sky blue. Antoinette had half expected her childe to acquire stuffed animals for her bed, but Samantha was not Natasha.

Antoinette nodded, and turned to leave, but stopped and set a hand against the door frame as she looked to her childe.

“Samantha. I ... I cannot even begin to imagine the agony you must be suffering. But—”

Her sweet childe looked up from her netted hands, and smiled up at her.

“Mary told me to live, sire. That’s what I’m going to do. You don’t have to worry about me.”

“That ... That she did.” Antoinette nodded to her, and left.

The Prince went to bed, where her love waited.

Jack sat upon the edge of the bed, wearing only his boxers, his hands between his knees and his head hanging. His body had not healed, despite a quick trip to find food. His crows rested at the mansion, and Antoinette did not need to be a master of Animalism to know the crow Scully was not happy with her. The memory of the small bird cawing at her with frustration as she released Jennifer, was strangely amusing.

She sat beside her love, and set a hand behind him along his lower back, where his injuries were few.

“You are in pain,” she said. “The injuries, I mean.”

“Yeap.”

“The curse would have healed them by now.”

“Nah, not completely. Those werewolf claws hurt.”

She nodded, and rubbed the man’s spine. “Still, they would have mostly healed by now. I believe this is proof enough that the curse has truly been removed.”

He nodded as well. “Yeap.”

“Are you ... content? Not about the other insanities that befell us this night. But about what Elaine did, for you.”

“Not sure. The curse is gone...” He raised a fist, and squeezed it experimentally. “My body feels like it’s on fire.”

“And yet you sit there, as if under no pain at all.”

“I’m getting used to pain.”

With a heavy sigh, she reached out, and slowly turned her love to look to her. He still had but one eye.

“Without the curse, it will take you weeks to fully heal from these wounds, my love.”

He managed a small grin. A stomach full of fresh blood had, at least, mostly healed his broken jaw.

“You won’t mind if I just, relax here, all that time? Sleep a bunch? Maybe you could tell Michael to fuck off and leave me alone? Business reports can wait?”

She returned his grin, and gently slid her fingers back over his hair, against the grain. It would likely be a gesture that soothed him for the rest of time. He melted back into her touch, and she rewarded him with a kiss upon his head.

“The Invictus and Carthians leave each other be, thanks to you. You have earned rest.”

He nodded, and crawled back on the bed. He moved with more solidity than someone as injured as him should have.

She sighed as she watched him, and disrobed. Once she was naked, she crawled over to him, and pulled the blankets over the two of them. For the unlife of her, she wanted to pull his head to her breasts and let it rest there, but the position would be awkward and painful to him.

“It’s a strange sensation,” he said. “The curse, it ... it was power, you know?”

She turned to face him, and continued to lightly stroke his head.

“You wish to speak of it?” A strange topic. She thought he would wish to speak of Julias or his sister, but perhaps he felt those topics could wait until he felt better.

“It’s g ... He’s gone, now. Lot more comfortable talking about it.”

“Then, by all means.”

He nodded, and turned so he could rest his back against her breasts. He wanted to be the little spoon, and she happily obliged.

“When the curse started to get it hooks into me, before Julias died, it hit me with some of the most twisted, sick desires you can imagine. Real psychotic shit. When I released it, it ... I don’t know. I guess it copied a part of me, and created its own intelligence? But that part was also part Susanna. And it was part Strix, it had to be, to be that fucking vile. It was like ... having a really, really powerful horse between the legs, one I'd raised from a foal. When it worked with me, it was amazing, thrilling, and empowering. When it fought against me, it was terrifying. This creature had zero sympathy. It hated the very idea of empathy. It was, fucking stupid as the word is, evil. But..."

"But?"

"But I still ... feel like I'm missing a part of me. Or maybe, like I'm missing something important to me." Again, he slowly clenched a fist in front of his face, curling and uncurling his fingers. "It's like, someone's taken my crazy horse, a horse I've been driving for years, shot it dead, and told me to walk."

"Quite the malevolent horse, though."

"Yeah. Good thing it's gone, I know. But it still feels weird. Feels like ... losing something that, yeah sure it was horrible, but it was still mine. It's gone, and it feels ... empty. I keep trying to put my hands on the reins, but they're not there, because the horse isn't there anymore."

An interesting dilemma. She kissed the back of his head, and risked a hug, a gentle one.

"It was 'your' horse." She emphasized 'your', sealing the meaning.

"It was. I thought maybe an extra limb was the better comparison, or maybe a car. But, no, the curse was alive. It ... He had his own personality, his own desires, and life. He was mine, and now he's gone. I know I should be happy, and I am. I fucking am. But ... it feels ... strangely lonely. And I even feel ... a bit guilty, about him dying. He was my horse. He killed so many people. He killed Monica, and Caleb. But ... he was my horse."

“You would be surprised, my love, how many people have felt similar feelings, over similar circumstances. Someone with a violent dog. Someone with a violent friend. People have followed their destructive companions into misery and worse, in some misplaced need to help them, or feeling bound to them in some way.”

He let out a quiet chuckle, and groaned with pain.

“Toxic relationships.”

“In a sense. Even mutually destructive, forced companionship, is still companionship. But with time, you will forget the sensation of the curse beside you. You will move on.”

“Yeah, I guess.” He nodded, and relaxed into his pillow.

She dare not say what she thought. Jack was convinced the Ripper was truly evil, and perhaps it was, but her love thought that neither he nor anyone else were capable of such levels of evil. He was convinced only the Strix, or similar, soulless creatures, could be capable of such total lack of empathy, and the ability to indulge and enjoy in cruelty of biblical proportions.

For all her love’s wisdom, he was still naive. Even a human was capable of becoming a monster who could enjoy such cruel indulgences. A Kindred, more so. It was quite likely the Strix curse did not carry any Strix desires at all, and was merely Susanna’s own personality, twisted by hate and rage, carried onto Jack. Or perhaps even worse, simply Jack’s personality, from an alternate world where he had suffered whatever horrible betrayals Susanna had.

It was better he continued to think such things impossible.

Day came, and torpor took them.

---

“There were many flaws with your plan.”

Antoinette stood in front of her grand office window, and looked below to her city. Safe, secure, at least from cataclysmic events brought on by gods and witches.

“There were.” Elaine stood beside her, both of them dressed in their usual business suits.

Antoinette’s insides still felt quite pained, Mary’s ghost claws having left lasting injuries. Elaine had suffered no magical injuries, but had been beaten ten times worse. She looked much better after a night’s sleep, but she moved as an old woman suffering arthritis might.

“How long had you been working with Jacob?”

“Not long. We had talked on several occasions, and once he finally explained to me what he and Black Blood were doing, I sensed an opportunity. I used the blood I had withdrawn from Jack, infused by vitae tainted by the curse, and placed my trap for him.”

“All so it would force the Strix curse to fight Black Blood.”

“Yes,” Elaine said. “I realized that Black Blood could control ghosts. I also realized that Black Blood, ghosts, and the Strix curse had much ... overlap. The curse would not be able to possess a piece of a god’s mind; Black Blood was neither Kindred, nor had a physical brain. It would instead force a direct confrontation. Which I needed, if I wanted to stop Jacob. Black Blood could control ghosts, and had summoned an army of them to help power his ritual. I needed the god of the dead distracted, or he would simply do what he did to you, and use a ghost to stop me.”

“Stop you from killing Jacob.”

Her old friend sighed as she nodded, and lowered her head. “Yes.”

“You did not think to come to me, and you and I, and my sheriff, could have—”

“Jacob had contingency plans upon contingency plans, Ann. Do you know what sort of magic Crúac rituals can accomplish? No, the only option I had, was to make sure he died when he was most vulnerable: performing the ritual. And even that was ... risky.”

“Risky does not even begin to cover it! What if Jack had not come?”

“I knew he would come.”

“You knew no such thing.” Antoinette forced herself to keep her eyes on the window, and to not stomp her foot. “The chance Jack would not find his way to Jacob was high, and then you would have had no way of stopping Black Blood. Then what? What would have happened? Would you have tried to kill Jacob? Perhaps when Daniel and I arrived? The three of us, against Jacob and Black Blood’s ghosts?”

“I had considered it, but with Mark helping him, I did not think it possible. And I had a sneaking suspicion Jacob had a trap set. I had expected a Crúac ritual, not an Oubliette, and an unusual one at that.”

“So, if Jack had not come? And the battle went as last time, with both my sheriff and I tossed past the barrier and no longer able to interfere?”

Elaine took a deep, useless breath, and kept her eyes on the window.

“Then ... I suppose Jacob would have won. And you and I would be having this discussion in a new world, a strange ocean of anything and everything combined.”

“You were willing to let the world as it is, end. You were partly seduced by our old friend’s plan. Perhaps a small part, but a part.”

“I ... was.”

“And your great crime against this fellow named Maurice would no longer haunt you.”

There it was, the words Antoinette needed, to break her friend’s composure. Elaine turned and looked to her, but where the elder Ventrue would naturally hold perfect composure, Antoinette found hints of shame. And it was not fabricated, she knew her old friend well enough to see that.

“I suppose after what Julias and I shared last night...”

“I suspected you had performed diablerie the moment I learned how Susanna acquired the curse, that you were her childe, and that you had removed the ritual long ago. Your words with Julias confirmed.”

“Ah.” Elaine forced her eyes back to the window.

Antoinette had not looked her way yet, and would not. She needed her resolve to have this conversation.

“Centuries ago, you used your knowledge gained in the Ordo to devise an experiment that would clash curse with curse, and have them kill each other.”

“I did.”

“You decided to use someone else other than Viktor.”

“I ... did. Viktor was my first childe. I could not harm him.”

“You found someone else, a man named Maurice. You sired him. You lured him into a ritual circle, like the one you used upon my love. You diablerized your second childe.”

Elaine took another breath, pointless to any vampire, and yet there it was.

“I did.”

Antoinette mirrored the breath, turned, and looked her dear friend in the eyes. “Tell me about it.” Before Elaine could respond, Antoinette gestured to the chair across from her desk, as she sat down in her grand chair. It was not an invitation. It was an order.

Elaine nodded slowly, before taking the chair.

“It was long ago. The memories are blurs, many scarred by the ... withdrawal, that happened after. Cravings, Ann, you cannot imagine. No drug any kine has ever tasted comes close. It was more than vitae addiction.”

“The deadly cravings of amaranth are documented, Elaine. And yet, you did not diablerize another?”

“No. Jacob found me, and ... helped me. If not for him, I likely would have.”

Antoinette could not contain her sigh of grief. Yet another reason neither of them wished to see the old Nosferatu dead.

“Continue.”

“I dared not journal my experiences, lest another Kindred discover my sin. But I can remember the cravings, Ann. I can remember what it felt like, to claw my flesh off my bones, as I shuddered and trembled deep within dark, cold caves beneath the Earth. But, that was nothing, compared to ... the voices.”

“Voices?”

Elaine leaned in closer. “He spoke to me, Ann.”

“I do not understand.”

“Maurice. After I ... devoured his soul, he spoke to me, in my mind, for weeks. Perhaps months. There is little I can remember from those years, but Maurice’s voice is a scar centuries have done little to fade.”

“What ... did he say to you?”

Elaine shivered as she leaned back in her chair, and rubbed her arms.

“Nothing but words of hatred toward me, at first. As the weeks went on, and his voice grew quieter, the hate faded, replaced with ... a strange fatalism. He spoke of the end, how everything and everyone comes to ruin, and how eventually, I would too.” Her trembling grew worse. “I never released my curse, as your love did. I do not know what Jack has gone through. But when he spoke of how the curse whispered its desires into his mind, I ... I could not help but sympathize. I could not have him suffer what I suffered to be free of it. Never.”

A similar shiver ran up Antoinette’s spine, and no doubt Elaine saw it. Few Kindred ever accounted their experiences with diablerie, as merely admitting to it often led to immediate execution. To hear her old friend speak of the whispers of a soul, hating her for consuming her, was a horror story told around a campfire fire in the dark of night.

Elaine did not wish to simply stop Jacob. She wanted to destroy Jack’s curse, without forcing him to go through the trials she had. Or perhaps it was simpler, a more basic need, to see the curse suffer for the sins of its earlier incarnations. From the shame she found on Elaine’s face, it was the former.

With a heavy nod, Antoinette leaned in, and motioned for Elaine to do the same. Once she did, Antoinette took the Ventrue's hand in her own, and squeezed it.

“Julias spoke of a shadow?” Antoinette asked.

Elaine smiled, and returned the squeeze of hand, before sitting back.

“I can only assume he meant a piece of Maurice's soul waits for the ... primary piece? I do not know.”

“Ah. Peter Pan.”

“Peter Pan?”

Antoinette nodded. “If Maurice's shadow waits in the ... afterlife,” she hated herself for using such a word, “then all that remains is for the main body to rejoin it. A body that ... rests within you.”

The guilt on Elaine's face was heavy enough to drown all of Paris.

“I see.”

“Julias also told you there is no rush, non? As if telling you you should not rush to reunite Maurice with his shadow. Then, perhaps ... time has no meaning, at least no true meaning, in whatever river realm he spoke of?”

For the first time that night, Elaine gave a genuine smile. A tiny, pitiful thing, but a smile nonetheless. She placed her open hand upon her sternum, and tapped it several times in a slow beat, as if mimicking a heart of flesh.

“A sick, disturbing way to learn so much about what waits for us beyond death,” she said.

“Indeed. We learned enough secrets last night to have the Ordo buried in research and experiments for decades.”

“Dangerous experiments.”

“Quite.” Antoinette nodded again, and returned her friend’s smile with a sly smile of her own. “It may, perhaps, be in the Ordo’s best interest that such information be withheld from them.”

Elaine’s smile brightened. “Thank you.”

“For what, my dear? I am only making the best decision for our Ordo.”

“Then I thank you for that.” They chuckled, as they pushed the sad realities of their pasts, and present aside. “How is Jack?”

“My love recovers slowly. Without the curse, he has but the strength of a young neonate Ventrue once again. But, he is happy. He feels a touch out of sorts, and guilty for those the curse killed, but joy bubbles within, and will rise to the surface more and more as he accepts his new life. He is free of the curse, thanks to you.”

“And we shall live to see another night, thanks to his mother. How does she fare?”

“Samantha is ... both better, and worse. Her meeting with Mary’s soul, and Mary rescuing her own ghost, settled much of Samantha’s pain. And seeing her husband, knowing James is with Mary, has done even more.”

“But...”

“But, the first person she has ever killed, is not only another Kindred, but the first man she had loved and physically enjoyed since her husband. I know of no woman, none, that could have done what she did that night.”

They both sighed as such cruel poetry ripped the few droplets of joy from the room.

“The Terrys are willful people, in their own strange ways, are they not?”

“Oui.”

“Even Mary. To see what she did, what her ghost became, and yet still held onto her mind enough to fight a god of corpses, to save her mother?”

“Oui,” Antoinette said, smiling as she thought of her childe, and her love. “I am a lucky vampire, to have such intimate company.”

“Can I ... also, be intimate with such company?”

“With Jack and I? After what you did? I am sure Jack will happily invite you into our bed again. But if you so much as look at Samantha with desire, Jack will never forgive you.”

“Alas, I do not believe Samantha will be looking at anyone with romantic or lustful eyes for some time.”

“No,” Antoinette said, though after a moment to consider, she smiled and shook her head. “But, she is a Terry. I believe she will recover faster than we anticipate. In fact, I think it will not be long, before she is embracing the joys of her second life once again.” The look her childe had given her last night had been a powerful one. Samantha intended to live. Truly, live.

Chapter 175

~~Beatrice~~

Their first stop was to go get Aaron. And, shit, he wasn't there. They checked for ashes, but didn't find any, except the ones his limbs left.

Aaron was stronger than a Gangrel his age had any right to be, and apparently, maybe even stronger than he'd appeared to be when he fought Athalia. Regenerating limbs was difficult, even for elder vamps, but the dude was a Gangrel, and they could do it better than anyone. Maybe he had a Crúac ritual set up to allow himself to do that, too, or get yanked across the realms back into some secret hideaway? Or maybe he'd run off, and was now trapped in the Great Below?

Well, shit. Enemy? She fucking hoped not. Dude turned out to be a thousand times scarier than she ever expected of him. Hopefully he'd be happy they let him live, and return the favor. Either way, once they were back to the cave, she was going to either find a new place to sleep, or set up some defense measures with rituals of her own.

Sándor dropped them all off at the Elysium Tower, and from there they went their separate ways. Triss had been tempted to talk to Sándor, to maybe ask him about how his conversation with his wife and kid went, but something told her to leave it be. So, she gave him a very manly 'let's talk later' nod, and got Jen from the tower.

Jen wanted to know what happened, but she quickly figured out Triss was way too fucking tired. They got a quick drink, and went to one of their hideouts to sleep.

---

The next night, they made the trip to Jacob's cave, and Triss explained what happened. She explained about Aaron, and what Athalia, Triss, and Mary went through to get to Jack and Sándor. She explained about Jack and the Ripper, and the werewolves he'd killed. She explained about what they found deeper in the Great Below, the crazy ghosts down there, the standing stones, and what Jacob and Black Blood were doing. Who lived, who died, Antoinette's random arrival, what Elaine did, what Samantha did, everything.

"I can't believe he's gone," Jen said, standing outside their headquarters cave in the canyon, on the city's edge.

"Yeah, me neither."

"And Samantha—"

"I can't even imagine how fucked up she's feeling. She cut off his head, Jen. Like ... slice..."

"Good god." Jen rubbed her arms and nudged herself into Triss's. "I can't even wrap my mind around it. Jacob, gone ... Are you sure—"

"I'm sure, Jen. He's dead."

"Jesus. I ... didn't want him to die."

Triss nodded, slipped her arm around Jen, and gave her a sideways hug.

"Yeah, but at the same time, I ... I wouldn't be surprised if he's happier where he is now."

"You think?"

"Yeah. After what Julias said, about a great river and shit, I think ... eventually, Jacob will be happier where he is."

“Uh, I’m sorry, what?”

Triss leaned in, and gave her girlfriend a quick kiss on the cheek.
“I got to speak to Julias.”

“Julias?”

“Story time part two.”

Triss went into detail about the gold souls, about Julias and Mary in particular, about the things they said, about Mary saving her ghost, about Julias and Triss finally getting to have that last conversation, about all the other souls who showed up, everything. Even Margaret and her kid, Theo, and even Angela.

“You couldn’t have explained this last night!?”

“Jen, I was exhau—”

Jen threw up her hands, pouted some, and crawled into the cave. Triss couldn’t help but chuckle as she followed her in.

Othello was there, but Madison wasn’t. And neither was Aaron. Triss continued on, and went in detail about what happened last night, close enough Othello could hear. The big lug didn’t say anything, but he listened with wide eyes and dropped jaw. And when they moved to Jacob’s den, he followed, not saying anything, still listening like a confused child.

“What ... What was it like, seeing Julias again?” Jen asked.

“It was amazing. It was ... sad. We got to say goodbyes, apologize. We got to ... to ... have that final conversation lovers are supposed to have, you know? That’s what he came for, so we could have that talk. That’s what they all came for, all the dead people.”

Jen sat down on Jacob's furs, and lifted one of his many big scary witch books. The ones he'd left in the Great Below were confiscated by Daniel, but the Prince said she might let Triss have them. Emphasis on 'might'.

"You're doing a bad job telling this story, Triss."

"Well fuck you, sorry I'm not a storyteller."

"Not forgiven! You got to see Julias! You got to see ... Julias..."
Jen's head collapsed, and she threw the book aside.

Shit. Triss sat down beside her, and hugged her. A proper hug this time, full on, Jen's head against her neck and everything, complete with some back rubs.

"He was pretty sad he didn't get to see you, too. He wanted to."

Jen let out a pitiful groan and nudged her nose into Triss's neck.
"And Mary?"

"Super happy and cheerful, just like she'd been when we ... you know."

Nodding, Jen slipped out of Triss's hug, and they got back to work, checking for any weird traps or rituals Jacob might have left behind.

"I'm glad Mary's ghost got to join Mary, then," Jen said. "I thought, after what happened, after what ... we did to her..."

"It only got worse. Mary's ghost was a monster by the end of it. She was gonna become one of the other freak monsters we ran into. If the real Mary hadn't saved her, it'd have been fucking awful. Sam's worst nightmare."

"Jesus christ."

“Yeah, that’s what I said.”

After a few minutes of more exploring, they got up and headed back out to the main room. Othello followed.

“I can’t believe Margaret talked to you,” Jen said. “I can’t believe she ... encouraged you.”

Triss laughed again as she poked her head in Aaron’s alcove. No changes. The two of them started digging through his stuff, but considering how minimalist Aaron was, they didn’t find shit, except some reading material, all fiction.

“More than encouraged me. She basically told me — us — how to seduce Sándor.”

“Oh! Do tell!”

“Well apparently, you were right. Or at least, more right than I was. When Sándor is in human form, we should ... basically just seduce the guy. Like, directly. Like, very directly, in his face directly.”

Jen clapped her hands. Sure, Jen felt bad about Jacob, but no chance she was going to put that out on the surface for long. Excitement about romance and sex, on the other hand, Jen was all too eager to indulge visually.

“I can do that.”

“The whole city knows you can do that.”

Scrunching up her nose, Jen yanked out some of Aaron’s fur blankets and threw them out into the main cave, looking for hidden ritual symbols and whatnot.

“But,” Jen said, “if he just talked to his dead wife and son, I think maybe we should wait?”

“Yeah. We should drop by and say hi soon, but maybe wait a week or two before trying to seduce him.”

Jen grinned at her, and hugged her from behind. “With Julias’s blessing.”

“Yeah.”

“Which is all sorts of strange, you know. Very strange.”

“Yeah, it is,” Triss said. “Very fucking strange. But, it was ... it was weirdly ... perfect. It wasn’t like it was some creepy scene with ghosts or anything. It really felt ... amazing, you know? I don’t know if it was the gold water we were all standing in, but it ... it was calming, and soothing, and ... every word those souls said hit home. It was like one giant therapy session, where everyone was completely committed. Christ, even seeing Angela again, I couldn’t get angry at all. And seeing her come to some kind of ... understanding with Athalia? Everyone walked away feeling better.”

“I wish I’d been there.”

“Yeah, it was fucking terrifying, but ... amazing, you know? You should have seen the look on Sándor’s face when he got to talk to his wife and kid again. You could practically see a hundred thousand pounds get lifted off his shoulders. Dude even cried, a little.”

Jen sighed dreamily into her ear. “I can’t imagine what sort of meeting that was, for you or Jack to not want to kill Angela ... again.”

“It was the sort of meeting that gets written down and turned into a religious text some idiot cult misinterprets for the next five thousand years. It was the sort of event someone paints a painting about and then it gets copied a thousand times across a dozen cultures. It was ... It was powerful.”

“Are you going to do either of those things?”

Triss laughed. “I mean, maybe some stick drawings and some shitty notes? If I’m gonna keep doing this witch thing.”

“Jacob would want you to.”

“Yeah, he would.”

“I am sure I can write poetic witch verse, and draw detailed pictures better than you,” Jen said, grinning.

“Then I guess you’ll be my ghost writer. Though, I doubt Jacob ever used one. I’ll ... never be as good a witch as him.”

“Give it a few centuries and I bet you’ll change your mind. And Jacob, he was the villain in this story, wasn’t he?”

“No, he wasn’t. Neither was Aaron. Hell, neither was Black Blood.” She plopped down in the middle of Aaron’s alcove, and gestured around. “It was a giant asshole thing for Jacob to do, to decide the fate of the world for everyone. But ... good intentions, right?”

Jen nodded as she sat down beside her. “Do you regret helping stop him?”

“No.” And because she said it instantly, she knew she didn’t sound sincere. Fuck. “I mean, I ... I do, but it had to be done. It’s better this way. It is.”

“We should go see Samantha,” Jen said. “Last time, she was upset we didn’t talk to her after her daughter’s resurrection failed. And now that Jacob’s dead, she ... she doesn’t have any friends anymore, not really. Jack's her son, and Antoinette's her sire. Neither will ever really qualify."

"Yeah, we should. But ... let's make another stop, before we do." Slowly, she dragged herself back up to her feet, and blinked a few times at Othello. Dude stood in the door of Aaron's alcove, jaw still hanging open, staring at them. "You okay, dude?"

"Jacob's dead?" he asked.

"Yeap."

"Samantha killed him?"

"Yeah..."

"And Aaron—"

"Mary's ghost fucked him up bad, put him in torpor. Or at least, so we thought."

She took a few minutes to clarify shit for Othello, each word making his jaw drop more and more. It was strangely satisfying, seeing the normally calm and collected playboy look so utterly confused. She wished she could have enjoyed it more, but thinking about Jacob kinda ruined it.

And what she was about to do next, ruined it more.

---

Elen wasn't in the cave. The Prince had her. The book and knife were still hidden away, but Triss didn't even entertain the idea the Prince would let her keep them. She might even confiscate all of Jacob's other stuff, probably in hidden caves and tunnels and shit Triss didn't know about.

Would she give Elen back, if Triss asked? Without her, Julias's body would eventually die and rot away.

No reason to even think about it. No point.

She yanked the tarp off Julias's naked body. There it sat, unchanged, eyes closed, breathing in only the slow, methodical way someone in a coma could. The body was completely oblivious to everything that'd just happened. To the soul that'd paid Triss a visit. And to the shitty news that souls in the afterlife weren't 'life compatible' or whatever. The body was useless. Unless she found some way to do a genuine godly act of divine power, to somehow bring a piece of that other domain along with Julias's soul back into the physical world, it was never going to work.

And even if it was possible, Julias wouldn't want it. And, neither did she.

She held out a hand, and Jen handed her a knife. Othello stayed behind at their headquarters cave, and that was for the best. This was too personal.

"Triss, we could just—"

"No. I'm not going to leave him ... it, here, to starve to death and rot."

"But it's empty. It's just flesh."

"It's not just flesh. It's..." Sighing, Triss gently pressed the knife against the body's chest, where the heart would be. She didn't push it in, not yet. "Every night, I feel like I know what it means to be a witch, more and more. I feel like ... like I get where Jacob was coming from with all those stories and shit. The Ordo Dracul might treat everything impartially, scientists filling out numbers in a fucking spreadsheet, but ... the Circle of the Crone know better.

"Everything has weight. Everything has meaning. This isn't just a body. It's a representation of the shit I've gone through, the stupid decisions I've made, and the shitty, brutal reality we all deal with. In the past, I'd say sure, that's all true, but it doesn't make this empty body special, like dealing with it is now some kind of rite I have to push through. But it does, and it is. It really fucking is. It's all ... connected..." She could almost feel the electric tingle of something magical with her knife resting on the body's flesh. Magical and personal.

Jen came a little closer, and stuck her head in front of Triss enough so Triss saw her cock an eyebrow as they met eyes.

"You don't need a ghost writer, Triss. That sounded exactly like the sort of thing Jacob would say. The sort of thing you'd read in one of his books."

Triss managed a weak chuckle. "Yeah. Guess you're right. I thought about maybe talking to Garry and going back to the Carthians, but ... fuck me, there's no going back. I can't even talk without sounding over-the-top dramatic anymore. Jesus christ, I really do sound like Jacob sometimes."

"It's warranted." Jen straightened up a bit, and ran her fingers back through the empty body's blonde hair. "So, I guess ... the meaning of this act, this rite ... is obvious..."

"Yeah..." Triss gulped on a dry vampire throat, and set her free hand on the body's head, next to Jen's.

There were some things about life you couldn't get around. Eternal truths, even to vampires. The body sitting in front of her, empty and waiting, was the result of her trying to break the rules.

No, that was only half the truth. Sure, big magical rules and realms of existence, the afterlife, the inevitability of death, crazy shit like that, it was all very real, and impossible to ignore. But the witch in her knew that was only half the puzzle, half the lesson to learn. The other half was far more personal, and far more real. After letting her suffer in ignorance and confusion for a while, Jacob would have told her straight up exactly what the lesson was, and he'd have told her to suck it up and use it. It was the perfect lesson for a witch, complete with permanently scarring trauma.

You had to let people go.

She pushed the knife into Julias's body, straight into his heart. He was dead in seconds.

---

They buried the body deep in the rocky sand, near the cave. Triss half expected it to crumble and melt away on death, but nope, it really was just a perfectly normal body, which made burying it a hundred times harder. It was like life wanted to rub it in just how much she'd fucked up. But at least digging up a big hole wasn't hard, vampire strength and all.

Once they were done, Triss looked down at the crow skull necklace dangling from her neck, and gently flicked it a couple times with her index claw. There was no going back. She was a witch, now.

After the burial, and a few painful words, the two of them went to the Elysium Tower.

Daniel met them at where the Elysium Tower's front stairs met the big hedge maze front lawn, and what do ya know, Athalia was with him, hanging out. It was weird. Neither of them had the hanging-out personality, so seeing them just standing around, chatting, was very strange. Seeing Daniel wear a small smile, stranger.

"Athalia," Triss said, and she gave a small wave.

"Beatrice." And, holy shit, Athalia returned it. Just as small, but still.

"Sheriff."

“Miss Damar.” Daniel’s smile vanished, and he adjusted his glasses, single finger against the bridge. God forbid the dumbass let anyone know he actually had feelings.

They went silent. Not an awkward silence, but a calm silence, complete with some real eye contact full of acceptance and understanding. It was super out of place for them, and Jen picked up on it instantly.

“I really missed out, didn’t I?”

Triss shrugged and kissed her girlfriend on the cheek. “Yeah, you did. Sorry.”

“Five people died,” Athalia said. “Maybe six, if Aaron’s dead. More, if you include the ghosts.”

“Yeah, I know. But you all got to have something so special.”

Daniel nodded slowly as he sat down on one of the hedge maze’s very Gothic stone benches, and Athalia sat with him.

“It was,” he said. “But Athalia is right. Five people died, and many of us nearly died. I am sorry to say, a young Ventrue like yourself wouldn’t have survived.”

“Jacob wouldn’t have hurt me,” Jen said, “I don’t think...”

Triss slipped her arm behind Jen and pulled her in so she stood hip to hip with her.

“He didn’t want to hurt anyone.”

“No,” Athalia said, “he didn’t.”

They all looked down, even Daniel, and let the shitty reality of what happened last night sink in. Jacob was dead, and sure, it needed to happen, but that didn't change that the guy wasn't some evil fucker who deserved it. And it sucked that he was gone.

Triss spoke up first. "How's Samantha?"

The sheriff managed the smallest shrug she'd ever seen.

"She hasn't come out of her room."

"Eesh, really? I mean, she sounded fine when I texted her. Asked her if Jen and I could visit, and she said yes."

Daniel shrugged again. Ugh, the dude was useless.

Triss turned and made for the stairs, stopped, and walked over to Athalia.

"Athalia, I—"

"It was wonderful, getting to talk to my daughter again, Triss. I want my last memories of her to be of ... of what happened last night. My daughter, in my arms, crying. She told me she loved me, you know? Whispered it."

"I ... wow."

"So, don't worry about it, me, us. I don't want to think about the stuff that happened between you and her, if you don't mind. Let me have my last memory of her as ... as what you saw."

"Yeah, yeah sure." Nodding, Triss gave Athalia a smile, and Athalia returned it. That was what last night gave people. Closure. Sure as fuck Triss wasn't going to ruin that for Athalia, who'd had it worse than any of them, save for maybe Sam.

Jen and Triss walked into the tower, where one of Antoinette's thralls waited, some dude in a suit with the bulge of a pistol hidden under his jacket.

“This way, please.” The thrall bowed, and headed to the back stairs, past the elevators.

Jen and Triss rolled their eyes. It wasn't like they were a threat to Antoinette, or could sneak around and steal Ordo secrets. But whatever, they followed anyway, as the guide took them down into the tower. It was a pretty awesome tower, and as much as Triss had grown pretty damn fond of dark, scary caves lit with candles and covered in ritual symbols, the black marble walls with their cool white lighting lines were very cool. They fit Antoinette well.

Down and down, the staircase grew wider, and a glance down hallways showed some of them led into very large rooms filled with furniture, or electronics. One of them had a pool.

“I wonder,” Jen said as she poked her head into the giant underground pool room that'd probably cost a billion dollars, “what sort of antics Jack gets up to in these rooms.”

“Probably everything you're thinking, considering Antoinette is ... you know, Antoinette.”

“This way, please,” the thrall said, and they continued on, earning a pout from Jen.

Eventually he stopped in front of a big metal door down a hall of black marble, bowed again, and walked back the way he came. He stopped at the hallway entrance, and waited. Yeap, Triss and Jen weren't allowed to go roaming alone, and apparently the Prince and Jack weren't around to play chauffeur.

Triss knocked. She expected to hear a quiet, meek ‘come in’, but instead, the door opened, and Samantha smiled at them from inside her room.

“Hi Triss. Hi Jen. Come on in.” She wore a business suit, which Triss most definitely did not expect. Pajamas, maybe, or something super comfy, the sort of clothes anyone wore when sinking into a pit of despair. But nope, the woman was looking okay. No jogging pants or loose hoodie to be found.

Triss and Jen blinked at each other a couple times, but followed the woman in. Big room, with more black marble walls, but there were curtains hanging from them too, very mature sky blue curtains. Her bed was the same color, and damn it was a big bed, with a night stand beside it with three pictures. Jack, Mary, and James.

There was a bandage on the nightstand, too. Jesus, that was Jacob's eye bandage.

"Sam." Jen came up to her, and held out her arms. And to Triss's surprise, Sam didn't hesitate to return the hug.

"Jen. Did my sire hurt you too bad?"

"I can't say a stake in the heart is fun, but the pain dies pretty fast when torpor pulls you down in seconds."

"That's good. I wasn't too happy when I learned what she did."

Triss shrugged as she came in and stood beside them. "I can't blame the Prince. She didn't know if she could trust us."

"I can certainly blame her," Jen said, putting a hand over her heart. "Ow."

Triss laughed, which of course made Jen frown at her, which of course got Sam between them to play peacekeeper. She pulled them down until all three were sitting on the foot of her huge bed.

"How's Jack?" Triss asked.

“Sleeping. Er, torpor. Now that the curse is gone, healing all those wounds is going to take him a long time. A week or two.”

“That’s definitely a good thing,” Triss said. “Well, you know, about the curse. Sucks that he’s down for the count for so long. I bet he got used to recovering from injuries like that in record time.”

“He did. But, he’s happier now. Much happier. The little we’ve talked, it was like ... I could see he didn’t look so heavy.” Sam smiled as she looked down, and set her hands on her knees. “I owe Elaine a lot, for that.”

“Maybe,” Jen said. “But she bet a lot on things going a certain way. It could have easily backfired, from what Triss told me. And from what else she told me, it sounded like Elaine wouldn’t have been all too disappointed if Jacob had actually succeeded.”

“Maybe.” Sam nodded as she pat Jen on the leg. “Maybe. Jacob promised ... something really amazing. But, Mary was right. It wouldn’t be fair to everyone who didn’t want that. And, more importantly, it wouldn’t be paradise, would it?”

“No,” Triss said with a heavy sigh, and collapsed back on Sam’s bed. Big ceiling. “No, it wouldn’t have. It might have been, at first, but give it some time and I bet everyone woulda kinda just ... stopped. Without death, there’s no life. Without down, there’s no up. All that crap.”

“It’s not crap.” Sam reached out and gave Triss a pat on the stomach; on the abs, considering Triss had a cropped tank top on. “Mary made that clear. And Julias made it clear, right? Enjoy life while you can. It’s special.”

Holy shit, this woman was unbreakable. Triss lifted her head enough to smile at Sam, before relaxing back on her bed again.

“You’re right.”

“Samantha,” Jen said, “you okay to talk about it? I missed it, and Triss talked about it with me, but I wanted — we wanted — to know how you felt about everything. But, if—”

“I can talk about it.” She nodded as she got up, fetched Jacob’s eye bandage, and sat back down between the two women. “James really ... really helped me.”

Triss sat up. “Yeah?”

“Yeah. Jack takes after his father. James was a logical man, and he helped me see things in a way that was ... painful, at first. But he knows ... knew, how to say things in a way that I could understand. I’m not smart like him or Jack, or my sire, and sometimes I think they’ll never really figure out how to talk to me so I can understand things. But James knew.” She held the bandage in her hands and along her lap, and stared down at it as she ran a finger across it. “He was happy for me, you know? But he was also sad, because he knew what I’d do, once I realized ... what I had to do.”

Fucking christ. Triss slipped an arm about the woman’s shoulders, and gave her a sideways hug as she looked down at the bandage, too.

“James knew you pretty well.”

“We were married for a good while, before he died. He knew me better than anyone. And he ... helped me understand.” Nodding, she slid the bandage onto Triss’s lap.

“You want me to have this?”

“Yes. I thought about keeping it, but James was right. Everything that happened, Jacob, Black Blood, the ritual, me ... killing Jacob, it was all a ... different Samantha.”

“Different? I don’t—”

Sam shook her head as she laughed. “When I first woke up as a vampire, everything just kept ... happening. I didn’t get to make any decisions. All I could do was hold on as everything kept happening around me. The only decision I got to make was trying to bring Mary back, but that wasn’t really a decision either, that was just me running away and trying to get things back to the way they used to be. Last night, when I killed Jacob, that was ... the first time ... I’ve made a real decision.”

Oh. Triss nodded as she took the bandage, and admired it in her palm.

“You changed.” More than changed. Sure, Sam wasn’t the smartest cookie, but now, she was talking with a degree of self awareness Triss doubted most vampires had. You didn’t get to thinking in those terms until life chewed you up, spit you out, and you had the will to get back up.

“Looking back at it, I can’t even understand how I wound up in such a situation! And Jacob, he...” She shook her head as she frowned. “We used each other. We were both running away from our pains, and ... I don’t think either of us would have agreed to Black Blood’s plan, if we hadn’t been.”

Jen rubbed Sam’s back and rested her head against the mother’s shoulder.

“You did the right thing in the end, I believe.”

“Agreed,” Triss said. “Just, holy fuck it sucks that ... that you had to do that.”

“It does.” Sam managed a solemn nod, before she pulled a gentle smile out of some deep reservoir of will Triss doubted she’d ever be able to match. “But James was right. I’m not the person I used to be.”

Triss hugged her friend, nice and tight, before wrapping Jacob's bandage around her wrist. Whether Sam knew how 'witchy' it was to hold onto something like this, from someone she'd killed, Triss didn't know, but it was pretty much a given the bandage would have power. Dangerous witchy power she could investigate later.

Triss felt bad Jacob was dead, but, not as bad as she thought she would. Sure, the dude had been awesome in his own way, and if it wasn't for him, she'd still be that punk Carthian, raging at the Invictus for being assholes and controlling everything. Now, those problems seemed petty and pointless.

She flicked her crow skull necklace a couple more times, looked at the bandage wrapped around her hand, and smiled.

---

~~Eric~~

He was in a dream.

He was getting a lot better at figuring out when that happened. Lucid dreams, maybe. He was in wolf form, sitting on the edge of a river, Dolareido on the other side of it and a forest behind him. It was an obvious metaphor. And kinda comforting, now that he'd seen it so many times.

Beside him was another wolf, white, and she let out a long, wolfish sigh as she lay on the ground.

"You won," she said. Her voice sounded so normal, it was almost frightening. She didn't usually sound like that.

"I guess we did."

"Your mother had some interesting things to say."

Eric frowned down at the white wolf beside him, as much as a wolf's face could do that.

“You were eavesdropping.”

“Everyone watched. Me, the old crone, others.”

“Crone?”

“Beatrice can explain, if she wishes.”

Slowly, Eric lay down as well, and looked up at the moon shining overhead.

“You sound disappointed,” he said. “I figured you’d be happy. The Gauntlet’s still up, and everything’s normal.”

“And I am still separated from your father.”

“My fath—oh. Father Wolf. Christ, I hadn’t even thought of that.” He pawed at the ground a little. “I’m surprised you didn’t help Black Blood, then.”

“I will not remake this world for my own selfish reasons. Urfarah will be beyond my reach until the end of days, and so too will Mictecacihuatl remain beyond Mictlantecuhtli’s reach.”

“End of days?”

She shrugged. “Should such a day ever come.”

Oh thank god, she wasn’t predicting the end of the world. He couldn’t stomach an Armageddon prophecy, not right now anyway.

“I’m ... sorry,” he said, “that your mate is still separated from you, then. I—wait. Spirits like you, big, important spirits, were watching Dolareido, weren’t they? A bunch of ... gods, have been watching, because of what Black Blood was doing?”

She nodded.

“This whole time,” he said, “we’ve been stuck in some sort of game, or experiment, or fucking something! You all have been watching, waiting, to see how Black Blood’s plan would go!”

She nodded again, eyes still pointed to the city across the river. If she wasn’t going to say anything, he sure as hell was.

“That spirit I ran into years ago, in the prison, the tiny young spirit that looked a lot like Black Blood. What was that?”

“One of the many spirits of death that grow from the tainted ground Dolareido was built on. It was called to the violence and death of the old prison.”

“Jesus. The city really is on cursed ground?”

“In more ways than one, as the vampire Prince knows. She uses its strange nature to fuel her experiments, just as Jacob did. And just as Black Blood did. His past, his essence, the ruination his existence brought to those who lived here before, has made this land a part of him. And...” She sighed as she gave a wolf shrug. “It doesn’t matter. The guardians have bound him. His new chains will last a cycle. And even when he does return, his presence may lead to millions of deaths, but no damage to the tapestry itself. Such a task must be done by someone in the great game.”

Tapestry? Great game? Guardians? There wasn’t any point in asking.

“How did those souls visit us? I—”

“The tear was powerful, and the guardians decided you and your companions deserved a small reward.”

“A small reward for saving the universe.”

Luna laughed. “Indeed.”

“It was ... pretty amazing, getting to talk to Mom again.”

“She scolded your mate for tempting your father with pictures of her breasts.”

It was his turn to laugh. “Yeah, she did. I thought maybe she was jealous, but nah, I think she was just teasing Jess. Mom was happy that Dad got himself in shape, and is finally enjoying his golden years.”

“I am glad.”

He wasn't so sure about that. Luna sounded torn, maybe a little bitter. Considering Samantha had stopped her from being reunited with her mate, he couldn't blame her. But it was for the better, according to her. It was a victory.

“Are you going to leave Dolareido? I mean, I don't know if you've truly been here, but—”

“I am here more than elsewhere, in a sense. But now that Mictlantecuhtli and Malachi's plot is broken, I shall return to where I used to be.”

“Does that mean, uh...”

Luna lifted her head enough to look directly at him, and give him a small wolf grin.

“I have blessed this city for my forsaken children. The spirits of sexuality remain in the city as well, and will obey my order. You will be able to continue your carnal indulgences, but only within its walls.”

“So Dolareido really is the sex city capital of the world.”

She laughed again. “It is not only I that has set my gaze on this city. Many spirits come and go, and many more will come. Some as powerful as I. Dolareido remains a ... hub, for many forms of interaction. The very soil beneath it has forever been altered.” Slowly, as if mulling the words over, she looked at him. “My children must remain, to keep this place under control. You must herd the flock, and cull the herd, as is necessary. And ... since so many spirits of sexuality exist here, and you have earned my aid, it seemed simple enough to bless it so. A reward for Uratha that remain here and do my bidding.”

“Jessy certainly appreciates it.”

Again, Luna laughed as she sat up. Still a wolf, so, sitting on her hind legs with her front paws between her knees.

“I like her.”

“Jessy? My girlfriend?”

“Indeed.”

“The super brazen punk, Jessy? Hyper sexual, no shame, no guilt, Jessy?”

“Quite.”

“Why?”

Luna shook her head as she chuckled. Okay, no explanation then. Maybe she saw something of herself, or itself, in Jessy? Crazy to think of a god spirit like the moon ever behaving like Jessy.

Or maybe, Jessy behaved like Father Wolf.

“Your father,” Luna said. “Were you considering asking a Kindred to sire him?”

Well, fuck, that was a hard question. He shrugged wolf shoulders as he stared off to the distant city.

“I’d considered it, yeah. Mom’s happy Dad’s finally moving on. But...”

“Your father is old, and alive. To become Kindred at such an age will be difficult, and while he may be moving on from your mother’s death, a part of him will not be able to, not after the strife the three of you faced together. It may be best to let age take him.”

“Yeah ... maybe...”

“And after everything that happened last night, I hope you’ve come to understand, young Uratha. Your mother’s words were wise. Be happy while you can.”

And of course, the god didn’t beat around the bush when it came to the big, life altering questions.

“I ... think I understand.”

“Will you tell your father what she said?”

“I’d thought about it. But he’s ... happy. That’s what she wants. I’m not necessarily happy knowing that he’s seen my girlfriend’s breasts, a lot, or is apparently getting laid quite a bit...”

“The old still enjoy sex.”

“Yeah, apparently.” He shuddered. It didn’t matter how much he’d grown up or would ever grow up, he’d still have trouble picturing his dad having sex. “If I tell him I talked to Mom’s soul, that might ruin things for him. But before that, I think ... I think I’ll ask him, if he wants to become a vampire. He’ll think I’m kidding, but now that we’re talking again, I think I can get an honest answer out of him.”

“Be careful, young Uratha. You would not be the first soul to ruin someone’s life, by having them become Kindred.” Before he got to ask, Luna stepped onto the water. And in classic fashion, she walked on the water, because of course she did. “I take my leave. I am glad to have spoken with one of my children, about more ... normal things. But we will not speak again.”

“We won’t?”

“Mictlantecuhtli will not be back for some time, and my interference, and the interference of others, were only balanced by his own. My gifts will remain, as will his, but you and I will speak no more. From now on, you are on your own.”

“I ... see.”

The wolf looked back at him over her shoulder, and nodded her head slowly.

“The power of the wolf will always threaten to drown you in the lust of the hunt, young Uratha. But it is a desire only. It is not who you are. Breathe, child of the city, and it will not control you. Breathe, and...” Laughing again, her tail wagging slightly, she managed another shrug. “If you do not understand yet, you never will. Goodbye.”

With a quiet shimmer, the white wolf faded away, but instead of floating up into the sky to join the moon, she dispersed into the water below her like mist. The mist settled, coalesced, and disappeared into a white circular shape in the water. The reflection of the moon.

“I understand,” he whispered, “ ... I think.” How long ago had she told him that word? Breathe? At the time, he didn’t get it. It took a long time before he realized Luna was telling him how to be ... aware. Aware in the big sense, in the ‘I’m alive’ sense, in the sentient sense.

Very guru, very yoga or Buddhist, and very much not him. Probably why she felt the need to tell him, or he'd still be that raging Uratha who'd killed and eaten three humans. Sure, Avery probably understood it intimately, and she'd taught it to her pack. Eric didn't have a pack, and he doubted he ever would. Too stubborn, and too dumb.

He owed Luna his life.

---

~~Damien~~

“I have seen crushed insects in better shape than you.”

Damien managed a weak chuckle as he sat down by Maria's new piano, in her cavern beneath the Grand Cathedral.

“I never did heal very quickly. One night is not enough.”

“Indeed.” Maria got up from her desk and sat beside him on the piano bench, facing forward, same as him. “Why didn't you visit me last night? A single phone call was hardly enough of a report.”

He frowned slightly as he looked down. “I had to think about how to ... best tell you about what happened.”

“How best to tell me?” The corpse woman, dressed in one of her fuller, fancier white gowns, eyed him with a raised eyebrow. “What happened?”

His report last night had simply been: ‘Black Blood is defeated, and Jacob is dead. We're safe.’

Now, it was time to explain everything, and maybe bring his boss to emotional ruin.

He spared no details. Maria was the definition of methodical, and she listened with focused eyes as he detailed Jacob's trap, the battle with the azlu, the intervention of Sabrina, the Ripper's slaughter, and finally, the encounter with Jacob and Black Blood.

"Samantha killed Jacob? Oh ... Lord help her. Is she alright?"

"I texted Jack a moment ago. He'll be spending the next couple weeks mostly in torpor, but he assures me his mother is doing well. She's ... grown, for the experience."

Maria did something the corpse vampire almost never did. She trembled.

"I cannot imagine ... doing such a horrible thing. I am glad she did, but..."

"She surprised everyone. And I mean everyone. Jack, Antoinette, her daughter's ghost."

"She is a stronger woman than I had considered."

Damien smiled at her, and leaned in a little as he set his elbows on his knees.

"When the dust cleared, we heard a voice from the tear. It was Mary's."

"The ghost—"

Damien shook his head. "Mary, the real Mary, her soul stepped out of the tear. A being of gold." A shiver went through him, not of fear, but of awe. "I'm sorry you weren't there to see it, Maria. Gold poured out of the tear, liquid gold. It flowed over the stone and caressed our ankles, and it ... soothed everyone and everything it touched."

Maria's mouth fell open.

“Mary,” he continued, “asked her ghost to join her in the afterlife, and the two merged. The ghost’s memories went into Mary. According to Mary, that’s what happens when ghosts cross over, and apparently, most ghosts do not get to do so. But, that moment was just the beginning. More souls stepped out of the tear. First, Julias.”

“Julias Mire!?”

“Yes. Then, others. Many of Avery’s dead werewolves, including those that’d just died that night, came to say goodbye. Jack’s father came. Sándor’s wife and son. Eric’s mother. Clara’s brother. Natasha’s parents. Others I didn’t know. Even the two ghouls Antoinette lost before the Purge came to say hello and goodbye.” He looked to Maria again, and she stared at him, desperate to hear her lover’s name. “But not Lucas.”

“Oh...” Her posture sank.

“Apparently the truly old have trouble abandoning their anchors, according to Julias. It weighs them, traps them, in the afterlife. Which is why I suppose some individuals didn’t appear, such as Viktor or Tony, or Azamel, or Lucas. But ... Julias had a message from Lucas.”

“Oh?” Her posture returned, and she leaned in, eyes so wide he could see into her soul.

“Lucas ... apologized. He admits that, toward the end, he was mad with conviction, not thinking straight, and obsessed.” Before Maria could look away, disappointed with the lack of her in the message, Damien lightly pat her leg. “And, for you, Lucas had another message: he was a fool. His biggest regret, is doing what he did, and asking you to betray Natasha to him, instead of re-seeking the love you two had.”

Lucas had spent fifty years in torpor, with Damien ready to revive him the moment the political situation in Dolareido made it possible for Lucas to rebuild his power. Fifty years was a long time, even for a vampire. Fifty years of Maria, wishing Lucas was with her, only for the maniac to basically ignore her as he went mad with his quest for revenge and domination.

Apparently death had been the wake up call he'd needed to realize how stupid he'd been to neglect Maria. A fool to the end, then. After death was far too late to realize a mistake.

“Is that ... that all?”

Damien pulled up a smile he'd been saving for exactly that line.

“And he said that he loved you, loves you still, and that you should find happiness in your second life while you can. Don't forget him, but move on, as well. And don't do anything stupid like challenge an entire pack of werewolves to a fist fight again.”

Poor Maria. She should have been there, if at least to hear the words directly from Julias, but Damien had recited them accurately enough.

She broke. First, a small laugh over the last remark, but it passed quickly and turned into a quiet sob. Elders did not cry, and yet there she sat, body trembling lightly as she struggled to contain the noise.

“He said those things?”

“According to Julias.”

“And I suppose we can trust Julias, can't we?”

“I suppose so.” He nodded again as he put his hand back on his own leg. “Not everyone got to see someone. Elaine didn't. I didn't. But most did.”

“Truly a wondrous scene. I ... am sad that you did not fetch me to aid you in this battle, Damien.”

“I—”

“I know. Jacob trapped you, and you were catapulted into extreme circumstances.” She sighed as she let herself slouch forward, elbows on her knees, same as him. “Daniel got to speak with his childe, Torrence?”

“Is that who that was? A tall man, skinny, short hair.”

“Indeed. And Antoinette spoke with her dead ghouls?”

“Lana and Darlene?”

“Indeed.” Maria sighed as she smiled, and stood up. “We must chronicle this event, Damien. But we must do so carefully.”

“It shall be done.” The proper word choice, for as big a deal as this.

Maria stepped behind her work desk and got to typing. Damien joined her. It was the first time Maria had smiled like that in a long time, and he was determined to see it continue.

---

Fiona burst into tears the moment Damien stepped into her apartment. She wrapped her arms around him and hugged him as hard as her little body could manage.

“I talked to Sándor!” she said.

“You did? Do I ... need to hurt him? You look upset.”

The tiny redhead burst into giggles, and they mixed into her squeaky sobs. Happy crying.

“Sándor told me Julias talked to him. And Julias had a message from Azamel.”

“Oh?”

She nodded excitedly as she let him go and sat down on the edge of her bed. Small apartment.

“Aye! She wanted to tell me that I ... that I...” The giggles vanished, and Fiona broke down into proper loud sobs, full-on crying.

Damien slid off his shoes, joined her on the foot of her bed, and slid an arm around her. It'd take her a while to stop crying, he knew that. He also knew from the way Fiona was smiling between her sobs, that Azamel's message had been good.

---

~~Natasha~~

“Your parents were really cute,” Jessy said. “I mean, you know, for glowy gold people.”

Tash couldn't help but laugh as she pat her best friend on the leg. The two of them sat together in Tash's apartment, Eric on the couch watching the news while Tash and Jess sat at the kitchen counter. Tash was typing up a report on her laptop for her boss, and Jessy was trying to steal ideas for her own report. Considering how insane it'd been, two nights ago, she couldn't blame her. And considering Michael hadn't been there, Jessy couldn't cut corners. She needed help, especially with Jack on sick leave.

“They were! Oh god, I was s-so happy t-to see them together. The way Dad died, I wasn't sure he'd...” Sighing, she tried to type a few more words, failed, and leaned in toward Jess. “I never really believed in ... Heaven.”

“I don’t think it was Heaven. At least, not the kind I think you’re talking about.”

“Ugh, d-don’t even get me started on that! The Prince told me it’s my new job t-to cross reference what we learned, with every text that talks about the afterlife.”

“Every text?”

“Every text.”

“Damn. That is going to suck.”

Tash giggled as she shrugged. “I like reading.”

“Nerd.”

Rolling her eyes, she gave her friend a gentle shove. Jessy was about to return it, but her expression softened, and she rested against the counter top instead.

“No soul came to visit me. But I guess, yeah, never really was close to anyone when I was alive. And as a vampire, there’s ... well, you, and...”

“Julias.”

They both sighed, and despite their efforts, it was a heavy, sad sigh.

“It was great to talk to him again.”

“It w-was.”

“And in typical Julias fashion, it seemed like he was trying to help everyone. Jesus fucking christ, he was even helping Angela.”

Angela. Even as a gold soul, Athalia's daughter had been absolutely terrifying, and had looked like she was going to strangle her mother, the way she'd dragged herself forward with that big rock hanging around her neck. Everyone in the cave had stared, dumbfounded. Even Jack and Beatrice, two people who had enough reason to hate Angela more than anyone in the world, had been paralyzed and unable to look away.

Tash was glad they didn't interfere, and they probably were, too. Much as Angela deserved to suffer, no one deserved to suffer for eternity; if that was even how the afterlife worked. And more importantly, Athalia didn't deserve to suffer for it. Sure, Athalia betrayed Jack and Triss at the end of their attack against the hunters, but who could blame a mother for doing what they could to save their daughter?

Poor Athalia. Poor Samantha. Tash looked down, and a tiny shudder worked through her.

Which Jessy must have recognized, because she got off her stool, and hugged Tash, nice and tight. And Tash melted into her.

"It was nice," Tash whispered, "to ... t-t-talk to Julias again. I miss him."

"Me too. We owe him a lot."

Eric peeked over the couch. "Should I—"

Jessy waved him off. "Girl moment. You're good."

"Roger that." And the man seamlessly went back to watching TV, without a doubt in his mind that Jessy was telling him the truth. Those two were strangely perfect for each other.

"I w-wonder," Tash said, "if the souls are together, in the afterlife, that river place Julias was talking about. I mean, like ... d-d-do they socialize? Maybe be romantic with each other?”

“Oh fuck me, if there’s no sex in the afterlife, I’m not going.”

Tash laughed. Leave it to Jessy to make her laugh, no matter how serious the topic, or how sad she felt.

“Mom and Dad d-did seem like they were together. And happy.” Every time she summoned the memory of her mom and dad walking out of that tear together, it felt wonderful, and she made sure to smile brightly so Jessy could see it, as she guided her friend back onto her stool. “And Julias looked happy too. Like, m-maybe ... maybe—”

“Like maybe he was getting some pussy in the afterlife. Maybe from that Margaret woman?”

And of course, leave it to Jessy to ruin a deep moment, too.

“That’s not what I was thinking!”

“Uh huh, sure.” Jessy gestured to Eric, only the back of his head visible over the back of the couch. “Question, Eric. I got the impression from Julias that people who’d recently died didn’t get to visit, because of the weight around their necks. But Monica, Carter, and Caleb died that night.”

“No way they’d miss seeing their family,” Eric said. “Werewolf packs are a pretty heavy bond. Soldiers in arms combined with family bonds.”

Surprisingly, Jessy didn’t make a quip about how ‘weak’ or ‘gay’ that was, or call the werewolves ‘pussy bitches’. She nodded, face trying its best to keep her smile and fight off a somber look, and failing.

“Matt and Art,” Tash said, “they were ... they were so happy, you know? They d-didn’t think they’d ever get to talk to Caleb or Monica, or Carter, or Stephanie again. They were ... so happy to get to d-do that. And Avery, how many souls visited her? Seven more? I’ve never seen her so happy.” Happy and Avery didn’t really fit together, not unlike happy and Athalia. But that night broke all the rules.

“It was ... really nice,” the Gangrel said. “And meeting Eric’s mom was great, too. I thought maybe she’d yell at me for how I got Eric’s dad to start taking care of himself ... and she did, a little. But she was happy.”

Eric got up off the couch, and hugged his girlfriend from behind. “She liked you.”

“Of course she liked me. Who doesn’t fucking like me?”

Eric nodded over Jessy’s shoulder, as if Jessy’s words were obvious truth. A few more hugs later, he sat back down on the couch. Jessy joined him, and snuggled into his side.

Tash smiled at the backs of their heads before turning back to her laptop, and tried to type her report again.

“Tash,” Eric said, looking over the couch’s back to her, “we should take a trip into the Hisil soon, when you’re up for it again. There’s someone who wants to talk to you again.”

Tash sat up straight. “S-Sanctuary?”

“It’s alive.”

Oh thank god.

“Let’s!”

---

~~Jack~~

One week since the incident.

He spent almost all night of every night for a week since the incident sleeping. When he was awake, he managed to make some quick calls to his thralls to make sure they and his crows were fine, and a quick call to let Michael know he was still alive. Of course, his boss didn't show him a hint of sympathy, but did tell him Jessy's report covered the bases and Jack didn't have to do anything until he was healed. With no painkillers for vampires, the Beast knew how to draw him into the coma-like state to let him sleep the night — and day — away while he regenerated damage. And nothing in the world felt as good as more torpor sleep.

On the eighth night, when dusk came, he sat up and stretched out his limbs.

“Ow! Fucking shit.”

Antoinette chuckled as she sat up next to him, and kissed the top of his head.

“Rest, my love.”

“I'm feeling good enough to stay awake.”

“Then by all means, remain awake. But that does not mean you should not rest. Only move as required.”

He rolled his eyes, but smiled up at Antoinette, and got a quick kiss for it.

“Yes ma'am.”

“Have you spoken with your mother yet?”

“A little. We’re ... still dodging the Jacob topic. And the Mary topic. All the topics, really.”

The Prince nodded as she set a kiss on his bad eye. It felt healed. Her way of telling him it was.

“You should speak with her. She is resilient, my love, quite resilient, but trauma can be insidious, and leave deep seeds that take years to bloom. Best uproot them now before they dig deep into her mind. Or your mind.”

He nodded as he leaned into her, forehead slipping into the nook of her neck.

“Yeah, you’re right. And I will. But holy fuck I am tired.”

“Quite so. And Beatrice is speaking with your mother, helping her come to terms with what happened, as is Athalia.”

“Athalia...” Thinking about Angela and her mom used to flood him with so much anger, it was blinding. Not anymore. Something about seeing Julias actually helping Angela in the afterlife was like a bucket of cold water dumped over his anger. And that was a good thing. He was sick and tired of being angry.

“And you, my love? Will you speak to me now?”

“About—”

“Two people died at the Ripper’s hands that night.”

He sucked in a breath between his teeth. “Yeah. But their souls visited me. So, I mean, I guess I’m still upset about it, but it’s hard to get too angry when Caleb and Monica both looked me in the eye and told me it was alright. I still feel guilty about it, but ... not nearly as much as I would have.”

“That night did more than settle the deep anguish in many. It settled angers, as well.”

“You mean about your ghouls, and Lucas?”

“Oui. Knowing that Lucas regrets his actions is ... a small comfort, but a comfort nonetheless. But seeing Lana and Darlene again? I was not prepared. It is such a rare thing to be given a chance to revisit the pains of our past, and soothe them so.”

“You looked happy.”

“I was. I am.” Nodding, she pushed on his chest a bit, until he was on his back again, head on the pillow. She snuggled up against his side, and rested her head on his shoulder, squashing her breasts against his stomach and waist. “Never, in my wildest dreams, did I expect that night to go as it did.”

With her head on his left shoulder, his left arm had free rein to caress her back, and she nuzzled into him more as he did. Relaxing. They were relaxing. How long had it been since they'd been able to do that, truly do that, without some looming disaster around the corner, or noose of guilt strangling him. And sure, he still had some work to do, some people to talk to, emotional conversations he knew were going to sting. But that was nothing, absolutely nothing, compared to how good it felt to not have a giant problem to deal with. Nothing that demanded his immediate attention.

It felt weird. Freeing, but weird. Almost like he was psychologically naked.

“I'm actually feeling kinda restless,” he said. “Feel like I should be fixing something, but there's nothing to fix. Only thing I'm worried about is Mom, but you say she's fine? Er, well, not fine, but you know.”

“Oui. Your mother is doing better than I could have hoped for. I still recommend talking to her, but it is not a pressing issue. And I have spoken to others, as well. Maria is happier for Julias’s news.”

“That’s good,” he said. Maria might have been an angry bitch, but she wasn’t as bad as all that. She deserved a bit of happiness, too. “Garry and Michael, they angry we didn’t invite them?”

“A touch, but they understand the circumstance. No doubt the two Gangrels would have liked to speak with Roland.” Sighing, Antoinette leaned in and kissed his jaw, before resting her cheek on his shoulder again. “You have not asked about Elaine.”

Elaine. He’d definitely been avoiding that topic, for a whole bunch of reasons, including her own safety.

“I ... wasn’t sure how.”

“She and I have spoke at length about her dark past. Her diablerie. You need not keep it a secret from me.”

The word was enough to make his whole body tense.

“Is she—”

“It is a secret she and I will keep, as will you, I assume?”

And relaxed again.

“Yeah. After what she did for me? It’s the least I can do.”

“She has earned our trust. Though, her plan was ... a problematic one. If you had not come, you would have never triggered her trap. Black Blood would have had control of the situation with his ghosts. Jacob would have succeeded.”

“You talked to her about it?”

“Mhmm. Many words were exchanged. She ... She did not want for you, what she had to do to rid herself of her curse. She resented it for what it did to her. She despised it for the terrible things it brought on her.”

“From day one, I thought she wanted it because I’d released it from the weird binding spell that church dude in the curse’s flashbacks put on Susanna. I figured Elaine wanted its power.”

His lover chuckled and kissed his shoulder.

“I do not doubt the thought crossed her mind. But my old friend is not as heartless as other elders. Indeed, I think she may have quite a large heart, hidden within.”

“Elaine, a big heart?” He laughed, a proper big laugh, and regretted it as pain quickly put the laughter to an end. Okay, insides still not in tip top shape. “I gotta admit though, I’m surprised she did what she did. Sounded to me like she had good reason to let Jacob win.”

“And yet, she stopped him, and freed you of your burden.”

“Yeah, she did. I really do owe her.”

Antoinette sat up, and reached for the nightstand. With a wicked smile, she held out his phone to him. No cell signal in the tower’s deeper floors, but she did have wifi in all the rooms.

“Call her. Invite her. She has been quite anxious about how you feel about her.”

“Anxious? Her? About me?” Hard to believe Elaine, a Ventrue 500 years old, could be anxious about much.

“Of course. She cares for you, Jack, and as more than your great grandsire.”

He blinked at her.

“That sounded dangerously close to romantic, Antoinette.”

The Prince laughed and shook her head.

“Not at all. But I would be lying if I said it was purely platonic. She cares for you, but until you sire your own childe, it is difficult to explain. She is not your family, nor is she your lover. But she is your friend, and your great grandsire, a true Kindred blood connection. She is my old friend, and the two of us have shared more than friendship for centuries. She is...” Antoinette tapped a finger on her chin thoughtfully. “A very close friend.”

He laughed. Okay, close friend wasn't a bad descriptor, especially when said with a little sly emphasis.

He pulled up Elaine on the contacts list, and almost pressed dial. But his finger stopped halfway, and he stared at the phone as the shitty memories of that night climbed back up into his skull. And they were shit memories, for more reasons than he'd shared.

His arms drooped, and the phone fell on the blankets.

“I was going to kill myself.”

Silence. Look at her? No, not yet, it'd hurt too much. He sat up beside her again, blanket over his legs and phone resting on it, and he looked down.

Eventually she put a hand on his back, and rubbed his spine.

“Tell me.”

He gulped, half expecting a surge of primal, disgusting hate to scream at him from in his head. But it never came. It was just him now, in his head. He'd almost forgotten how ... not angry and hateful his thoughts were, when he didn't have to share them with the Ripper.

“The Ripper killed Caleb and Monica, and he was going to kill Clara. He almost did.” A shudder worked through him, and he squeezed the blankets between his knees. “The Ripper and I had been fighting for control over my body for a while. That night, he decided he wasn't going to give it up, ever again. He pulled out all the stops. Crushed and buried me in my own mind. I had to find a way out, and ... and realizing the only course of action was to kill myself, was ... it was...” He squeezed the blanket harder, until his shoulders trembled. “I tried. I actually tried. I put Damien's sword against my neck and pushed with everything I had. Only reason I'm still here is the Ripper fought me until Mary and Triss showed up and interfered.”

“Oh Jack.”

“I'm sorry. I thought about you, and Mom, but ... but I couldn't let it go on. I couldn't...”

Antoinette took the phone, set it aside, and gently pushed Jack onto his back again. She lay with him, snuggled into his side, and kissed his cheek as she traced lines on his chest.

“I am afraid, little Ventrue, there are no words I can offer. No wisdoms or truths. I can say your situation was dire, and you were willing to do what had to be done to save those you could. But, I know such words are meaningless.”

He closed his eyes, and nudged himself into her.

“I figured if I was gone, you'd figure something out, some way to stop Jacob.”

“I had. But I could not have predicted Black Blood would be able to control ghosts to such an absurd degree. Elen's haruspex proved that he could not interfere with us directly; a flaw in the range of her haruspex, in multiple ways.”

“Elaine knew. She could have told you.”

Antoinette nodded. “She discussed her plan with me. She made quite the gamble, assuming you would arrive to stop Jacob. Though a large part of her plan was born from fear of Jacob’s abilities, fear not misplaced. She waited for the opportune moment to strike.”

“Shitty plan.”

“If her goal was only to stop Jacob. A large part of her goal, my love, was saving you, so you would not have to suffer as she did.”

Yeah, that was true. Much as Elaine’s plan had a thousand ways it could have failed, she’d set it up so she could save him. And if Jack had to kill his own childe to save himself from the curse, he wasn’t sure he could do it. You couldn’t sire someone randomly, it didn’t work like that. You had to pour will and intent into the vitae you used to sire someone. You had to put a piece of yourself into it. It was a big, big fucking deal. More than that, it was literally a magical, binding power. Childe and sire were connected.

And Elaine had killed hers, to free herself. No fucking wonder she felt like shit. No fucking wonder she went with a plan that could have failed, since losing meant undoing Maurice’s death, sorta, and freeing her from that guilt. He couldn’t blame her, considering what he’d been willing to do to stop the Ripper from killing more people.

Elaine knew. She knew he’d kill himself before doing what she did. Would Elaine even do what she did before, and kill her own childe, if she had the chance to repeat history? No, she wouldn’t. What did she say, when she was fighting Jacob?

‘I regret many of my decisions, Jacob. This is not one of them.’

“I guess even elders can change,” he said.

“To my surprise, and delight.” Antoinette kissed his cheek again, and ran a finger down back over his head. “I am glad you did not succeed, my love. You, your mother, your sister, you make decisions with such extremes of will.”

“I guess we have a habit of ... either being very stubborn, or making big decisions.”

“Quite so.”

He smiled at her, and picked up the phone again. “I really should thank her. Elaine, I mean.”

Antoinette rolled her eyes. “You know very well how she will repay your thanks.”

“You’re the one that suggested I invite her.”

The Prince gave him an evil grin, and kissed him. “That I did.”

---

“Ann. Childe oh mine.” Elaine stepped into the Prince’s giant bedroom at the bottom of the Elysium Tower’s basement, and once she realized Jack and Antoinette were still in bed, she closed the giant vault door behind her.

“Elaine,” Antoinette said. Both her and Jack were sitting up, back against the headboard of her ridiculously huge bed, both with blankets pulled up to their waist. And of course, the Prince didn’t bother covering her breasts.

“I have been summoned?”

“Yeah,” Jack said. “We haven’t really talked, since the incident.”

“Indeed.” Elaine walked over to them, eyes spending more than a little time looking both their naked torsos up and down. “You needed rest.”

“I’m rested enough. I wanted to talk to you, to...” Sighing, Jack managed a slow shrug of his shoulders. Yeap, still tender as fuck. “You did something amazing, Elaine, for me. I owe you more than my life.”

Speaking so straight and blunt to someone like Elaine, an elder who danced the Danse Macabre and probably hadn’t said a thing plain and straight in hundreds of years, had her squirming. And seeing a 500-year-old vampire squirm was amazing. He grinned at her.

“I assume dear Ann told you the details of my plot.”

“Some of them, yeah.”

“I see.” She squirmed a little more.

Jack looked back to Antoinette, who smiled down at him and nodded toward Elaine. Looked like he was in charge of the conversation, then. Which the Ventrue part of him absolutely loved.

“If there’d been a way you could have stopped Jacob without doing something so risky, I’d have said yeah, do that. But Antoinette thinks you’re right, there was no better way to try and stop Jacob than when he was performing the ritual. Bastard probably had other rituals set up to stop anything, and if you gave up that you wanted to stop him, or that the Prince even knew what he was up to and wanted to stop him, he’d have disappeared. The smart play was making sure he trusted you, and waiting.” Which was still a tough pill to swallow. It’d meant letting his mom continue to date the man.

“The curse—”

Jack held up a hand. “You did what you did, and I can’t say I agree with it, but ... god, you have no idea how good it feels, Elaine, to not have that fucking voice in my head anymore, begging me to kill and worse. It’s quiet, and it’s ... it’s great. It’s so fucking great, and I have you to thank for that.”

“I ... understand a little more than you realize.” She finally stopped squirming, and met his eyes with a serious gaze. “I could not let my past become your future, little Ventrue. I—”

“You already had this conversation with Antoinette. I’m not gonna make you have it again, unless you want to.”

Like he’d lifted a wet blanket off her, Elaine’s smile beamed, and she sat on the side of the bed close to him.

“No, I would not. Words were had, lessons learned.”

“Okay.” He grinned at her again, and motioned for her to come closer.

The plan was to tease her a bit and convince her to get undressed. Apparently he wasn’t very good at the teasing, coy game, because Elaine kicked off her clothes immediately. The tall, busty and fit, blonde woman crawled onto the bed, naked and huge breasts swaying underneath her as she came over to him. Without even asking, she pulled the blanket aside, and slipped under it so she could sit beside him.

“Welcome,” Antoinette said.

“Indeed. I am feeling quite welcome.” Nodding, Elaine slid down further until she was on her side, facing Jack. And with elder strength, she pulled him down until he was on his back on the bed, head on a pillow, right beside her.

“I welcome you into my bed,” the Prince said, “and you immediately attempt to steal my lover out from under my nose.”

“You let your guard down.” Nodding, Elaine pressed her body into his side, huge breasts squashing into his chest and molding against his body. She blew onto his ear lightly before setting a kiss on his neck. “My childe is—”

“My lover,” Antoinette said, frowning playfully as she scooted down to copy Elaine and lay next to Jack before snuggling into his side, “is mine.”

“He is my childe.”

“He is my love.”

Uh oh. Jack raised a brow as he looked between the two women. They were both looking at each other, and him, with a little more ... animalistic hunger than they usually did.

“Uh, ladies?”

Antoinette grinned at him, and pushed her body against his chest enough for her left breast to press into Elaine’s right. His chest was completely covered in boobs.

“There is an unexpected benefit from the removal of the curse, my love. You are, once again, as weak as a kitten, compared to elders such as us.”

“I mean, that ... yeah, that’s true. I ... um...” Oh shit.

“That he is,” Elaine said. “I have never touched your little Ventrue, with him so vulnerable. Completely, and utterly vulnerable.”

Oh shit oh shit.

“It is delicious. He squirms and wriggles, and there is nothing he can do to stop the pleasure you force on him.” Antoinette leaned over him, and kissed him, while one of her hands slid down his body, and her other took his closer hand and pinned it over his head.

“Oh my.” Elaine leaned in and kissed his jaw, putting her mouth a literal inch from Antoinette’s, while her hands did the same. Her higher one slid down his stomach, while her other slid up and over his head, and pinned his other hand by the headboard next to his other one.

He squirmed. His body was tender and didn’t want to move, but even if it could, he knew he wouldn’t be able to move an inch. Holy shit, he hadn’t even thought about this. Not being able to defend himself out on the street against stronger vampires, yeah sure, he’d been thinking about that the moment he lost the curse. But suddenly being Antoinette’s helpless boy toy? And Elaine’s too? Hadn’t even crossed his mind.

It was exciting. He tried to lift his hands, but they pinned them down easily. He tried again. They pinned him down again, and this time, they both purred.

“You know I’m pretty beat up, right, ladies?”

“Then you will have to stay put,” Antoinette said, “while Elaine and I take care of you. Non?”

“I mean, I guess. But—”

“Stay still,” Elaine said. “That is an order.”

Antoinette gave Elaine a playful swat on the shoulder as she slid herself further down Jack’s body.

“He is my lover, in my city. He obeys me.”

Elaine returned the swat, giving Antoinette a small flick of the back of her fingers against the Prince's shoulder, as she also slid down Jack's body.

"He is my great grandchilde, and I do believe he said he owes me."

Uh oh. Cat fight? No, they were both way too old, and way too friendly with each other to have a cat fight. But they sure as hell would pretend to have one, just to make him squirm. And they were completely right, he was powerless to resist, let alone genuinely stop them. He wasn't Blushing Life, but if he had been, his heart rate would have been soaring.

Both women came to a stop once they were cuddled into the sides of his legs and waist, and their breasts were pressed to his naked pelvis. His penis, flaccid since he was still in undead mode, disappeared underneath the soft, heaviness of their huge breasts. And all four breasts were pressed together, fighting for room on his body, shapes conforming to each other. With how the two women were resting their torsos on him while still kinda lying on their sides, and considering how big their breasts were, the huge pillows nearly reached their chins.

He gulped, and stared.

"Clearly my love cares only for me," Antoinette said, grinning like a cat.

"You seduced him when he was too young to know any better. I am clearly the better match. I am Ventrue, and his great grandsire." And Elaine wore the same grin. This was a game they'd played with each other before, before ever meeting Jack. Silly words that read like a horrible porn script. From the 1700s.

Antoinette reached back up to Jack, took his closer arm, and pinned his left hand down beside her, her torso still fighting for space on his pelvis with Elaine.

“Jack, my love. Blush for me.”

Elaine reached out and did the same thing, re-pinning his right hand next to his hip against the blankets. Unlike Antoinette, she let go of his wrist and netted her fingers with his, still keeping the hand trapped in her grip.

“After all I’ve done? You neglect me so?” Elaine licked her lips, and Blushed, bringing color to her skin, and warmth. And with her closer hand still holding his, with a grip he couldn’t escape, she used her other to toss her blonde hair slightly. Very fashion model-esque.

Antoinette rolled her eyes, and Blushed too, before also netting her fingers into his.

For a super tiny second, he was tempted to say no, just to tease them. But the looks in their eyes told him he’d be much happier right now if he just gave in. They were in a competitive mood with each other, and a dominant mood with him. Dangerous combination, mostly for him.

He Blushed Life, and both women let out quiet, practiced purrs, as they watched his skin fill out and gain a bit of color. And, despite his injuries, his length grew hard in seconds, fighting to point up against the four breasts pinning it down.

~~♥♥♥~~

They both smiled at him, before turning wicked, evil grins at each other, as they both adjusted so his hardening cock could come up between their breasts. Considering how big their breasts were, he was pretty happy the tip of his glans was visible at all, once it was snug between the four giant pillows.

Both women purred again as they pushed themselves toward each other, just a little, just enough to have their breasts press on his cock and bury it in gentle skin-on-skin friction. Sometimes, they looked at him, and gave him more practiced, bedroom eyes, fully intent on making him cum with nothing more than how insanely sultry their expressions could be. And sometimes, they looked at each other, and he could see they were reliving memories, erotic ones.

Antoinette's free hand near his legs slid up onto Elaine's shoulders, and the Prince licked her lips as she eased her fingers behind her friend's head, and into her hair. The two women shared another, knowing look, before they both looked to Jack again with 'cum for me' eyes. As they did, Antoinette pushed down on Elaine's head, and his great grandsire leaned down to wrap her lips around the head of his cock.

Instant wet warmth set jolts of bliss down his length, and he shivered underneath them.

It only got worse when Elaine lifted her head up from between the four breasts, and did the same to Antoinette. She pushed her friend's head down gently, and Jack's glans disappeared under Antoinette's kiss.

They took turns, each woman spending maybe ten seconds slowly working their lips back and forth on his cock's swollen tip. They couldn't reach down very far, awkward angle and all that, plus their huge breasts didn't leave their heads much room to move down, jutted up toward their own shoulders and chins as the huge pillows were. But it made it hypnotic to watch, their faces nudging against their own breasts, and the other's breasts. Each turn they took, more warmth flooded underneath his testicles, until his cock was flexing and pulling toward his abs with desperation. He'd be soaked in precum, if they hadn't licked it all away.

Elaine won the contest. Antoinette rolled her eyes, but chuckled as she smiled at Jack, and kept her hand on Elaine's head. Not really pinning her down, since Elaine wasn't trying to escape, but it looked erotic as hell, her fingers intertwining with Elaine's hair as the elder Ventrue tightened her lips on Jack's cock. His great grandsire drained him as she slowly bobbed her head, easing her lips up and down the base edge of his glans, and milked him dry.

Eventually she lifted her head, winked at Jack, and gave Antoinette a quick kiss on the corner of her lips.

"Elaine! You sneaky little—" Antoinette stopped, and blinked down at the strand of white that connected her lips to Elaine's.

"Sorry," Elaine said as she swallowed. "I could not help myself. And I knew your lover wanted to see such a display."

Antoinette looked to Jack, as if scanning to see if he was offended Elaine had stolen a kiss from her. They did have a 'no kissing anyone else' rule. But, well, Antoinette had a strand of his cum literally connecting their lips. Last thing on his mind was taking offense.

The Prince rolled her eyes for the hundredth time, grabbed Elaine's head, used a bit of real force this time, and pushed her back down onto his cock. Once Elaine couldn't see her expression, Antoinette licked her lip free of the strand, and smiled at Jack. She'd liked whatever expression she'd seen on his face.

~~♥♥♥~~

They didn't drain him too much. A couple orgasms for him, and then one for each other, from each other, with him watching. All in all, a pretty relaxing bout of sex; he was pretty injured, after all. Except, there was something more to it, something more intimate, now that they knew Elaine's secrets. It hadn't just felt sexual and exciting, having her there this time. It felt nice.

He was excited about inviting her again. And he could see Antoinette was, too.

---

As Antoinette and Elaine lay beside him in bed, relaxing, he held up his right hand and squeezed the fist in front of him a few times. It felt a lot better. It also felt a little strange, how his fingers squeezed a little tighter than he'd expected them to, with the curse gone.

He'd gotten intimately familiar with the power the curse gave him, and now that it was gone, he could feel it in every motion. But, he didn't feel like he did before he'd unlocked the curse either. Something was different.

He felt a little stronger than he should have been. The ritual Black Blood had been performing, he'd interrupted it before Black Blood could finish. The god had still been drawing out some of the black smoke from Jack's Beast, when Jack used Elaine's trap. It was a thought that'd been nagging him for days, and making him paranoid the curse would whisper in his mind again, or some of the old hate and rage would resurface.

It never did. He felt calm. He felt good. He felt ... happy.

He felt strong. Not nearly strong enough to resist a couple horny elders, but stronger than a young neonate Ventrue should.

"Antoinette," he said, turning to face her, Elaine snuggled into his other side. Probably best to tell them now, in case something happened. He was pretty sure it wouldn't, but still, no way he was going to keep secrets about the curse. "I—"

"Jack," she said, chuckling as she kissed him, and teased a finger up his abs, "Elaine does not call me Antoinette. You should not, either."

"No?"

She kissed his forehead, before gazing down at him with longing so powerful it made his heart ache.

“Call me Ann.”

---

~~Author's Note~~

This is the unofficial last chapter of Part 10 and My Little Ventrue. I've still got 5-7 chapters coming, but they're all purely about character arcs, closing off some minor storylines, things like that. And lots and lots of sex.

Thanks for reading! I read all the comments, even the mean ones; criticism is very useful to me. I also noticed a few readers who commented frequently, and I greatly appreciate it. Thanks for sticking with me through 2 and a half MILLION words. It took years to finally reach the ending I'd planned since I started Part 3, but I got there! Lots of lessons learned I'm excited to use in my next story.

When this epilogue is done, I move onto my new series The Pleasures of Hell. I hope you'll check it out.

---

While Dolareido and its characters are original creations, MLV was set in the world Vampire: the Requiem (with a bit of Werewolf: the Forsaken, and Beast: the Primordial thrown in there), IPs owned by Paradox Interactive. Make sure to check it out if you liked my spin on it.

Chapter 176

~~Eric~~

“Sanctuary!” Natasha ran at the angel, and hugged it. And Sanctuary hugged her back. It’d already come down to its feet and knees so the tiny vampire could hug the huge spirit, and its glowing white eyes and mouth smiled with almost cartoonish presence. The gold-ish body and white facial features weren’t actually there so much as they were just glowing lines, painted expressions on a gold face, with no nose either. Strangely beautiful, in that ‘oh god it’s an angel and it’s going to burn out my eyes’ sort of imposing way.

Eric, Tash, Jessy, Matthew and Arturo, Clara, Flowing Sanctuary, not-flowing Sanctuary, and for some reason, Brace Harcourt, stood in the street in one of the quiet neighborhoods of Dolareido, Grey Street. In the spirit world, the quiet parts of the city were even more quiet, and the group of them had the street to themselves. No car spirits. A few spirits of rest and respite watched on from the windows of the Hisil’s versions of houses, which looked mostly normal save for a few differences: an unusually long driveway here, a very large window there.

Of course the only human in the group was left staring at everything, overwhelmed, but the female-ish tall angel with the giant wings hugging the little vampire had most of his attention at the moment.

“How did you s-survive?”

Sanctuary pat Tash on the head, its smile unwavering. Almost a bit creepy with how consistent and painting-perfect it was.

“Red Tide was bound to its contract, to stop the Uratha and the Kindred. When you left, its contract no longer applied to me, as I could no longer help you. It left.”

“Gotta love spirits,” Clara said. “They respect their contracts, right down to the letter.”

“B-But, if Red Tide’s contract had been different, you coulda been killed!” Tash said.

“Perhaps. But I couldn’t let harm come to you, Natasha. I owe you much. And I owe Eric much.”

“Eric?” Tash looked back at him.

Damn, he couldn’t stay out of the light forever.

“Yeah, I guess. I—”

“My boyfriend,” Jessy said with a big smile, “is Batman!”

“I’m not Batman.”

“Spider-man.”

“Stop watching those shit movies.”

Her grin was unwavering. She would not be deterred.

“My boyfriend is a vigilante.”

He shook his head. “There’s no law force in the Hisil. Can’t really be a vigilante without—”

“My boyfriend has been going into the spirit world,” Jessy said, approaching Tash, “and trying to clean up the streets. He’s been making places like Grey Street safer.”

“Against Avery’s wishes, I might add,” Clara said.

Jessy shrugged. “Fuck Avery. If Eric wants to be a superhero and give back to the people, I say let him.”

Eric sighed, but Jessy beamed at him and kissed him. He kissed her back. Much as he’d prefer his girl didn’t advertise his activities like they were something to be proud of, he had to admit it did feel a little satisfying.

“Eric,” Flow said, flowing over to stand beside Sanctuary, “is free to do as he wishes, including getting himself killed angering the wrong spirit. I will not defend him in such circumstances.”

“You wouldn’t defend me in any circumstance. It’s not in Avery’s contract.”

“True,” the spirit said. “But I am not forbidden from helping you, either. Perhaps I would, if you would approach situations more wisely.”

“Avery,” Clara said, “is a little more concerned about the ecosystem, Eric. You don’t really appreciate the sort of knock-on effects your actions have. Never watch a nature documentary? You could destroy an entire ecosystem with a small change.”

“Cleaning up some hate or greed spirits isn’t going to bring everything crumbling down.”

With a snort, Clara walked up and gestured to the large glowing angel spirit.

“Sanctuary has grown into a powerful spirit in record time, Eric. This sorta shit normally takes decades, centuries, not a few years.”

Natasha frowned up at Clara. “That’s a p-problem?”

“It is, if it grows out of control. Dolareido is a strange city. The spirits here are very strong, and the whole city just ... teems with extremes. We have to be careful.”

Sighing, Eric gave a slow nod, and started the walk back toward the main city. Everyone followed, Sanctuary included.

“Dolareido is a special city,” he said. “Luna said so, and after everything that happened with Black Blood ... Yeah, I get it. I’ll be careful.”

Clara stepped up beside him. “Please do. Talk to Avery, and—”

“I’m not joining the pack.”

“Yeah yeah.” His fellow Cahalith rolled her eyes before giving him a gentle punch in the shoulder. “You did good, though. Sanctuary is good for the city.”

“I am,” the angel said. “Red Tide has no direct opponents, not anymore. I can oppose it.”

“Carefully,” Tash said, nodding.

“Carefully,” Matt and Art said together, mirroring the little vampire’s body language with familiar exactness.

---

“The tear is gone,” Sanctuary said, and it gestured to where a tear used to be, on the outskirts of the city.

While the city behind them was a giant, towering behemoth of structures, literally warped and twisted with its reflection of the physical realm, Gurihal, outside the city it was just endless desert, with rocks and stone, and very little warping or twisting. No crazy windows with literal teeth, doors with literal eyes, or spirits of asphalt or cars or electricity zooming around. There might have been a few spirits of sand or maybe snakes out there, but not many. It was always where the humans grouped up where spirit activity grew its most intense.

“This tear,” Tash said, “w-was the one that showed the gold place, right? Sándor said it was higher than he could r-reach.”

Eric nodded as he waved a hand through where the tear had been. Just empty air, now. Whatever those guardian things were, they’d done good work.

“I’m guessing Black Blood was trying to cross the chasm — whatever that is — before he needed to. He said he managed a peek, right?” They all nodded. “Powerful.”

“The old spirit is gone,” Sanctuary said, “but that’s only made it more obvious how altered the ground we walk on is. Black Blood changed this land, both here and in the Gurihal.”

“Probably other places too,” Clara said. “Other realms that, uh, crossover in this place. If he could go between realms basically whenever he wanted, he was no normal spirit.”

“He wasn’t a regular spirit,” Eric said. “Same as Luna, I guess.”

His fellow werewolf grumbled slightly as she looked down.

“Only you would know.”

Sighing, he considered giving Clara a small pat on the shoulder. Someone in her pack would have, but for him, it’d just feel awkward.

Naturally, Matt and Art came over and pat Clara on her shoulders in a very buddy buddy, obviously teasing manner.

“Cheer up,” Matt said. “Luna’s never given me any powerful or interesting dreams.”

“Mostly sex dreams,” Art said, nodding sagely. Tash groaned.

“She didn’t talk to me because I was special, Clara. I’m not. She said so herself,” Eric said, shrugging. “Just ... a city boy. And she wanted a city boy Uratha to stick around. You gonna tell me Avery is a city girl? Hell your entire pack could be living in luxury, taking baths in hot tubs, sleeping in giant beds, and indulging in all the vices the city has to offer. But nope, you stay with the Carthians in a shit apartment building, and sure Avery says it’s because she can’t trust the Invictus, but you damn well know it’s because she’d prefer to sleep under a tree.”

“Trees give shade,” Matthew said, mirroring Art and nodding sagely.

Shuffling his feet a bit and digging up some courage, Harcourt came up, shooed Matt and Art off Clara, and slipped an arm around her.

“I’m not much of a city slicker, but I for one am happy Clara doesn’t need a two-thousand-dollar purse to be happy. You know how much money being a hunter pays? I’ll give you a hint: none.”

Eric laughed. He knew what was coming. Without missing a beat, Jessy marched up to the man and jabbed him the chest with a finger.

“I earned that purse, you little redneck shit.”

Everyone, save those two, laughed. Lot of that going on lately. It was nice.

It was really nice.

“Tash,” Clara said. “Since you seem to be the only levelheaded person in the city, or at least the only one I can trust, I was wondering if you wanted to sign a contract with Sanctuary.”

“Contract?”

“Yeah. Avery has a contract with Flow. It’s our spirit. It works for us, and we work for it. It’s how we can store it in special objects easily.”

Tash’s eyes lit up. “I can—”

“I’m not saying you can put Sanctuary in your bracelet and summon it whenever you want, like Triss did with Mary’s ghost. But, Sanctuary can still help you, when in an object. And in the right circumstance, even manifest.”

The little vampire slowly looked up at the giant angel, who smiled down at her and nodded knowingly. Apparently it’d already had this conversation with Clara.

“That ... w-would be wonderful.”

---

~~Beatrice~~

It was the forest again, the one from her dream. The breeze was cool. The moon was visible between some big trees overhead. And a small fire surrounded by rocks burned in front of her.

An old woman wearing rags, standing up with the help of a walking stick big enough to be a staff, smiled at Triss as she nodded slowly.

“You stopped Mictlantecuhtli.”

Triss stood up; apparently the dream started her off sitting. The fire was between them, crackling quietly, so quiet the crickets were louder.

“You could have fucking told me—”

“No, I couldn’t have. The game had to be played. If I broke that rule, then Mictlantecuhtli would have had the power to break more rules without consequence.”

“A game.” She threw up her hands. “We almost died! Or, not die, but ... you know what I mean.”

“Sorry, but not sorry. You are pawns in a great game. What religion, what culture, has not made that clear?”

Triss grumbled and ground her teeth as she paced. “Okay, so, Mictwhatever couldn’t break the rules?”

“Not without risking interference. Which you saw in action, when he touched Samantha.”

“Everything else was fine? Controlling the ghosts and making Mary attack the Prince? Ripping open the tears? Like, what the fuck? What are the rules?”

The Crone shook her head. “I can’t tell you. And you know I can’t tell you. Don’t ask stupid questions. Otherwise you waste my visit.”

Of course, because what fun would there be in knowing how to play the game.

“Then why are you visiting?”

“To congratulate you.”

“I didn’t do shit. That was all Elaine, Jack, and Sam.”

“I suppose. The Terrys are unusually willful, aren’t they? I can’t imagine what sort of resolve it took that woman to kill her lover.”

Weight pulled on Triss’s body, and she sat down as she groaned. It wasn’t real weight, just her instantly becoming depressed at the memory of Sam having to do something so horrible.

“I ... do miss Jacob.” And that.

“Malachi was an interesting, wise man.”

Triss raised a brow. “Wise? You agree with what he planned to do?”

“I think this Fallen World has been broken for a long time, vampire. If you could see what I see, you might think twice before assuming Malachi and Mictlantecuhtli’s goals were misplaced. You saw a tiny, just the tiniest morsel of the gold river, touched the faintest trace of it. How did it feel?”

“It felt ... wonderful. But I remember what it was like being human, and eating enough ice cream to puke. If I had to guess, it’d be like that? Eventually it’d be too much of a good thing, being in that kind of place forever?”

The Crone laughed. “Your mind is limited. Rest assured, you would not puke.”

“Uh huh.” It was hard to imagine being in that sort of place for too long a time. Wasn’t there a dude who said an eternity of Heaven would eventually be Hell?

“Regardless, Luna and the others are satisfied. The world continues as it did.”

“I still can’t believe you guys just sat back and watched that happen.”

“We interfered. We simply did it in different ways. Perhaps not as much as Mictlantecuhtli did, but you saw the results of him overstepping his bounds.”

“Me—”

“I have spoken to you, and Luna has spoken to another, but that was for different reasons. Indeed, be under no illusions. You are not some special snowflake I've come to, in hopes you'd save the world from your master's ambitions. I came to this city because Dolareido is one of the tainted, blessed lands."

Triss grumbled and folded her arms across her chest.

"You're a real bitch, you know that?"

Again the Crone laughed. "Of course."

"So you came to the city because it's special, not me. Still not sure why you're talking to me."

"Because I have made similar mistakes to you, in my past. Because I see a bit of myself in you. And because I like you."

"That's ... scary." Being similar to some sort of ancient god that embodied primal chaos and cruel, harsh nature, wasn't exactly a compliment. Well, it was kinda. Jacob definitely would have considered it a compliment.

"You will go far, Beatrice. You have what it takes to follow in Malachi's footsteps, and further."

"Uh, I don't really wanna end the world, though."

"That will be up to you. But that isn't what I meant. What I mean, idiot child, is that you have a mind capable of thinking in the ways of a witch."

"Growing up on metal will do that."

The Crone blinked at her, confused. Which was fucking hilarious, and Triss laughed, laughed until it hurt, and she fell on her side in the grass and dirt.

"And just like Malachi," the Crone said, "you can make yourself laugh."

“Ha, I guess, yeah.”

Nodding, the Crone waved her stick over the fire slowly. A pillow of smoke rose up, and blocked out the moon for a second before fading into the cool night air.

“I thought you should know,” the old crone said, “that the Prince is probably going to talk to you.”

“She has Elen, and she’ll want Elen’s knife and book back.”

“I suggest you give them to her. I also suggest you ask if you can have what material of Malachi’s she feels comfortable letting you have. And some she doesn’t.”

“Uh, I’m pretty sure the Prince isn’t going to just, give me that shit.”

“She will, because you attempted to stop your master. She trusts you, now, to a degree. And she will, because you’re going to make a rather harsh statement about the amount of kine she killed to have Elen perform that ritual.”

“Wait, what?”

The Crone smirked. “The dragon may dislike how visceral and brutal our ways may be, but when her back was against the wall, she had no choice but to use a witch. And she used the methods a witch requires: weight, and intent. She killed dozens of kine for Elen’s ritual. Her methods, a scientist’s methods, were inadequate to handle the situation, and she knows it. She needs a witch who is an ally in her city.”

“Jesus, you really are a manipulative schemer.”

“As was your master. As are the best witches, and vampires. It’s a skill you lack, but Jennifer will help.”

“Lucky me.”

“Indeed.” With another hearty, croaky chuckle, the Crone waved her stick over the fire again, and another pillow of smoke met the night sky. “I take my leave. We will not speak again.”

“Not gonna answer any of the questions you know I have?”

“Of course not. They are stupid questions.”

Which meant questions about the afterlife, about Jack’s curse and the Strix, Crúac rituals, the Beast, the different realms, all of the important questions were shit she wasn’t supposed to know. Or at least, not have the answers handed to her directly.

“Fucking asshole. I—wait, I got one. The fuck do we do about Elen? I mean, I’m guessing you won’t tell me about how she managed to make herself semi immortal.”

“I won’t.”

“But what do we do with her now?”

“She is not invincible. Burn her.”

“Burn her.” Triss gulped as she stared. “Burn ... the witch?”

“Trust me, little vampire, that flesh witch has done more than enough to deserve a worse fate, as Sándor can attest. But if you’re feeling sympathetic — very un-witch like — then cut off her head, then burn her. Leave no trace. Only when every trace of her is ash and soot will she be truly dead.”

“Jesus. Okay, we’ll uh, do that. And, um ... thanks, for, you know ... at least talking to me, and helping me with the resurrection ritual. Kinda wished you’d told me from the get-go it was basically impossible, and spared me a bit of pain. But...”

“But pain is how a witch learns.”

“I must be a fucking genius by now.”

This time, it was the Crone’s turn to laugh hard. Not that an old woman could laugh all that hard, but she did anyway, and Triss smiled at her as she did.

After a minute, the old bitch winked at Triss, and without flair or anything, the Crone morphed into a crow. No, wait, too big. Raven. The big black bird circled the fire’s smoke a few times as it gained height, before it blinked out of existence.

Leaving Triss sitting there in her forest dream, gently flicking the crow skull necklace her dream body had for some reason. It was just a random necklace, one Jacob had given her when he’d started teaching her Crúac rituals, a lifetime ago. Or maybe not so random. Maybe Jacob had actually done some impressive work on it, given it witch powers or something. She didn’t know, but it wouldn’t have surprised her.

Jacob had liked her, and it would have been just like him to do something sneaky like give her a super powerful artifact and never tell her. Or maybe it wasn’t powerful at all, but something he’d crafted with care. Or maybe it was just ... her, being sentimental, that her boss was dead.

She sighed, let her head droop, and for the first time, cried about Jacob’s death. Just a little, just a few tears; the dream seemed happy to let her have those. A bit more pain to learn from.

She got up, and kicked some dirt on the fire until it was out.

---

Two weeks since the incident.

She hadn't expected the Prince to do everything the Crone said she would. But she did. Now, safely stored away in a hole in the ground, Triss had most of Jacob's shit, including the stuff he'd had with him in the Great Below. Not Elen's book or knife though, Triss had returned those. But the Prince did say she'd give them to Triss eventually. The Crone was right. She wanted a witch ally.

A partnership. The Prince would officially acknowledge Beatrice the primary member of the Circle of the Crone in the city. She wouldn't be going to any Primogen meetings yet, and probably not for decades, but still, it was a step toward some big responsibility, responsibility Othello didn't want. Lazy asshole.

More importantly, Beatrice wouldn't get flack from the sheriff when she did witchy things, as long as she maintained the Masquerade. And hell, maybe the Prince would even give Triss some tips on weird magical shit, if Triss returned the favor. Probably not. Freaky Frankenstein scientists, and witches with cauldrons, would never get along when it came to their pursuits.

And now, Elen was dead. Triss suggested burning to Antoinette, and she'd taken to the idea, especially after Triss had mentioned the mysterious disappearance of a lot of Dolareido kine. Antoinette really hated how she'd had to use Elen, and how she'd had to commit murder on such a scale. It made her a little more malleable to deal with. Sure enough, they chopped off her head; Elen barely noticed, but at least her head went still and didn't start talking. After that, they burned her. More than burned her, they fucking cremated her. Nothing of Elen existed anymore, save for the book and knife.

---

Triss and Jen walked the street of Dolareido, on the way to The Quiet Note, the most up-its-own-ass hippie joint for poetic artist types who thought they were going to change the world. Sándor would be playing again, and they wanted to see. More shockingly, he'd invited them. Triss had been pretty surprised to learn the man knew how to text at all, and hadn't just given up and sent them a literal letter in an envelope, with a wax seal.

Jen wore something dark and sexy, but safe for a joint full of hippies. Triss wore her usual black jeans and black tank top, because she'd wrapped herself in Face in the Crowd so no one was going to notice her anyway.

They hadn't arrived yet, though, and stayed close as they ducked around the sidewalk traffic.

"It's been two weeks," Jen said. "Think he'll be happy to see us?" Two weeks save for a few very short visits, just to make sure the dude was okay.

"I hope so. Considering what his wife told me, and what I'm guessing Julias told him, I'm guessing he will..."

Jen leaned in as they walked. "You're nervous he secretly doesn't like us, doesn't like you, but because he's so against voicing any of his thoughts, he just hasn't told you."

Groaning, Triss stepped away and dodged around an oncoming kine, before coming back in with a sideways lean of her own.

"Yes, okay? Yes. This isn't how I do ... this sort of shit. I can't fucking stand this build up. Does he like me? Not like me? Christ it makes me want to puke. When I decided to go on a date with Julias, I just fucking told him we would, that first night. When I wanted to fuck Julias, I just told him we would."

"On the first date, I might add."

"Yeah yeah fuck you. This 'does he doesn't he' shit is torture, and I'd have loved to skip over it. But there's always been something in the way." Mostly her own damn fault.

“Now there isn’t. And he’s ready to talk. I’m sure we’ll find out tonight if he likes you. And us.”

Triss groaned again as she let her head hang, earning some chuckles from Jen. The two vampires walked into The Quiet Note, wrapped in Triss’s increasingly awesome Obfuscate abilities, and found one of the small benches alongside the wall and its god awful gray flowery wallpaper. The small circle tables in the large room were full, and people sipped their drinks quietly, waiting for the various musicians who’d come up on stage. The place was dark, with only a bit of dim light near the stage so the audience could see.

The place smelled of lots of different drug flavors, but the crowd didn’t make a noise. People came to a place like this to hear the artist, not use it as an excuse to socialize. It made more sense to Triss to just stay home and use some good headphones, but at the same time, there was a special magic to seeing someone live. And that time she’d seen Sándor live, it’d been strangely magical.

Sure enough, Sándor came out on stage, wearing some blue jeans and a loose white shirt. With the somber stoic look, his European face, and super short dark hair, the simple look really fit him. He was, as far as anyone could tell looking at him, a super simple guy from Romania. Until he had an instrument in hand.

He sat down on a small stool, spent a few seconds tuning his guitar, and pulled the mic nice and close.

“Sorry I haven’t been around. Had things to do.” He nodded to himself as he looked down at his guitar, plucked a string, and tuned that one, too. “Feeling a lot better though. Lot of things happened. Good things.” Holy shit, the man gave the crowd a tiny smile, the wickedly handsome ones that were subtle and confident. Everyone stared, hypnotized. “It’s amazing what a few words from an old friend or lover can do. Amazing, how much your perspective can change.”

He tuned the final string, and slowly ran the pick along the strings, striking out a clean chord. Then he strummed it, teasing out the beginning of the song to see if people could figure it out before he played it at proper tempo.

Triss knew it instantly, and just like someone putting in the final piece of a puzzle, she felt complete when Sándor finally started strumming right.

“I was a little too tall, could’ve used a few pounds. Tight pants, points, hardly renown.”

A shiver shot up through her, and she melted into Jen’s side as they both listened. The crowd knew the song, or at least most of them did. A few, like Jen, were utterly oblivious. Fucking kids. They didn’t know what it’d been like to bring out a jukebox, and listen to a song like this, out in the fields or on the side of a dirt road when the moon was high. You closed your eyes and let the music take you on a journey.

She’d thought Sándor’s singing voice was similar to Bob Seger’s. Apparently he thought so, too.

It only got better. He was up on the stage alone, so there wasn’t any drummer or piano to join in, but that didn’t stop Sándor. If the dude could play Symphony X, this song was a cakewalk, and he proved it as he started tapping his foot to the beat. The hook that pulled everyone in, and had them all humming the melody as they lightly swayed with the beat. No one said a word. Everyone listened.

His eyes. Dreamy blue eyes, normally so hard and stern, melted in the song, and he stared off over the crowd, like he was looking to the horizon, as he played.

“I woke last night to the sound of thunder. ‘How far off?’ I sat and wondered. Started humming a song from 1962. Ain’t it funny how the night moves? When you just don't seem to ... have as much to lose. Strange how the night moves. With autumn closing in."

---

"I'm sorry," Jennifer said, "I don't listen to my grandparent's music."

Triss groaned and shoved Jen hard enough she fell on Sándor's couch with a bounce. They'd gone to his apartment after his time at the club, when another artist came up to play after Sándor played a half dozen songs. Surprisingly, the sleek, modern, stereotypically expensive Dolareido apartment wasn't entirely empty anymore. The gray couches remained, so did the piano and guitars, but now there was also a couple pictures on the walls, big paintings of landscapes, and an old cathedral.

It was the new picture on the countertop that really struck Triss, though. It was a picture of Margaret and Theo.

Sándor followed Triss in, noticed what she was looking at, and touched the framed picture slightly before he moved over to sit on the piano bench.

"I listened to them," Triss said, picking the conversation with Jen back up. "I mostly listen to metal, but sometimes it's nice to listen to the bands that my metal bands owe their existence to, you know? Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band. The Eagles."

"Agreed." And like he was taking a breath, Sándor played a tune on the keys.

"Roll Me Away!" Laughing, Triss plopped down on the bench with him, and watched his fingers work. Just like ringing a bell. "You really do like music. Like, really like music, in the way most people just don't get." Sounded dumb to say, considering he was a musician, but some people didn't really get or 'feel' music. It was worth saying.

“I do. So do you.” He gave her a tiny grin, and played another song. It took her a second to pick it up. But once it picked up speed, she caught it, like chasing a butterfly with a net.

“Don’t Stop Me Now!” Christ, now she couldn’t stop laughing. “Jen doesn’t listen to Queen. It physically hurts being her girlfriend.”

“Hey!” Jen said from the couch. “I like music.”

“You like to listen to pop and EDM while you do other shit. I said music, not flavor of the month noise to fill up the background.”

Jen scrunched up her nose, and with a bit of bounce in her step, plopped down on the bench on Sándor’s other side.

“Play something romantic,” she said, and she grinned brazenly up at Sándor as she ran a finger down the keys.

Sándor nodded. Didn’t grump or grunt or anything, just nodded, hell he even smiled a little, leaving both women speechless. Jen had definitely been trying to get a reaction out of him, but instead, Sándor rolled with it and got to work.

Three notes in, and both girls sighed dreamily. Even Jen knew this song.

“Faithfully,” Triss whispered, and she swayed to Journey’s tune. “Do you just know every song?”

“When I came to America, long ago, music was evolving in ways no one could have imagined. From Robert Johnson, John Lee Hooker, Muddy Waters and many others, blues evolved and changed the world, and rock and roll evolved from it. Elvis changed the world. Johnny Cash changed the world. Then Queen and Journey, two of my favorite bands, changed the world, too. I have to admit, the rock bands from the seventies and eighties, and sometimes nineties, dominate most of my listening.”

It was a wonder he didn't start playing Don't Stop Believin', but he stayed on Faithfully, and Triss and Jen continued to sway with it.

“Another,” Jen whispered.

Sándor paused only long enough to let them know he was switching songs, before his fingers found the high notes and danced on a tune.

Triss frowned as she watched his fingers. “I know this ... I know this ... Styx!”

The man smiled, his eyes on the keys, as he played Lady.

“I can't sing like DeYoung.”

“Trust me,” Triss said. “You can sing. Maybe not that high pitch, but still.”

“Thanks.” And again, he smiled. What the fuck was with all the smiles? Yeah, sure, they were small smiles, as if his face wasn't capable of big expression, but tiny smiles and plenty of them was still a big jump from the usual Mister Stoic she was familiar with.

Triss put her fingers on the keys. Sándor stopped, and Triss showed off her insane piano skills she'd honed over the past couple weeks. She played Mary Had a Little Lamb, on rhythm and everything. Volume all over the place, since Sándor insisted he used a realistic keys setting for his electric piano, but still.

“Impressive,” he said, in the steady tone a teacher would use when happy with a student.

“Thanks, but I’m still shaky. If I push a little too hard, I know I’m gonna push the key straight through the piano into the floor.”

“Even human students suffer that problem. Maybe not to that degree.” Nodding, he reached out, and put his hand on hers. “But you’re getting past the issues with your Kindred body. That’s good.” He gently pushed down on her finger, with just the right pressure to get the key volume perfect.

He paused, and looked at her hand. She looked at his hand, so warm compared to hers. Electric jolts shot up her arm, making every nerve ending tingle, before she slowly looked from their fingers, to him. And he looked at her.

Was he nervous? Was he even capable of being nervous, considering how old he was? Dude was ancient. He looked at her with a calm expression, just a touch sad, but also a touch ... hopeful? He was so hard to read, she couldn’t tell. But he was looking at her, straight at her, deep blue eyes hiding a billion thoughts the fucker refused to share. If she wanted to know what he was thinking, she’d have to beat it out of him, like Margaret had.

Fuck it. Time to ignore the butterflies in her stomach. She wasn’t some high school virgin, even if he made her feel like one. She was a woman, damn it, and this man’s dead wife told her how to break the ice. Just, be bold.

She leaned in, and kissed him.

Sándor blinked, a little surprised. And Triss stopped kissing, but kept her face an inch from his. No words. After everything that’d happened, the fuck needed to be said? Someone needed to actually hit the ‘go’ button. Might as well be her.

The world melted away, and so did her muscles and tension, as Sándor half closed his eyes, and leaned in to return the kiss.

God. Yes.

She smiled into the kiss as her eyes closed, and she set her piano hand on his chest as she half turned to face him. He didn't move at all, and she had to fight to keep herself from chuckling. Yeah, Margaret was right, this man needed a tour guide if he wasn't merged with his Horror. That was fine. Jen and her—

Jen took the man's head, turned him mid-kiss to face her, and kissed him.

“Jen!” Triss leaned around Sándor enough to see one of Jen's eyes, the other blocked by Sándor's head, and her girlfriend grinned at her mid kiss as she waved Triss off with her hand.

So Triss did the only reasonable thing to do. She pushed her off the bench.

Jen landed on the hard floor with a squeak, and glared at Triss.

“Hey!”

“Bitch, don't make me come down there and kick your ass.” Triss flipped her off. “Ruining our first kiss, what the fuck?”

Sándor tried to help Jen back up, but Triss grabbed his head, twisted it around to face her instead, and got back to kissing. Dude was completely confused, frozen, which meant Triss got to kiss him as much as she wanted.

At least until Jen made some whining puppy sounds. Literally. Groaning, Triss let Sándor go and motioned to Jen. Sándor reached out to help her up, confusion doubling, which had both girls laughing.

“I've been waiting to do that,” Jen said. “So's Triss. The kissing, I mean.”

“So Julias told me.” Sándor scratched his hair a bit, so short it almost looked buzzed. “I ... I wasn’t...” Oh shit, he was doing the awkward backpedaling thing. Because he mentioned Julias? Fuck that. She wasn’t going to let anything ruin this, not now.

“Nope,” Triss said. “Nope nope, we’re not doing awkward. I am too old for awkward. And you are way too old for awkward. So we’re just gonna go past it.” She took Sándor’s hand, and guided the man to the couch.

“Agreed!” Jennifer followed after them, and together the two ladies pushed Sándor down until he sat in the center of his couch. “We’re not going to think about the stuff from before. I like you. Triss likes you. You like her. I hope you like me.”

“I do, but—”

“Then the hard part is over. Now we move onto the good stuff.” Nodding matter-of-factly, Jen reached behind her, undid the zipper of her dark dress, and slid it off until it fell on the floor. The busty brunette wore nothing more than a tiny lingerie thong, the sort you wore when you were expecting sex.

It made Triss roll her eyes. It made Sándor gulp and stare. But, that was a look of intrigue in his eyes, if startled. Intrigue was good.

Triss slipped behind Jen, and hugged her from behind, with Jen pointed at Sándor. And, because actually breaking Sándor’s stoic face and getting a surprised look out of him was proving to be fucking awesome and fun to do, Triss cupped her girlfriend’s huge breasts. She squeezed them, molded them against her fingers and palms, and Jen Blushed Life as she did, earning another gulp from the man as Jen’s skin filled out, darkened with blood flow, and her nipples hardened.

“I’m ... not sure how—”

“Two women?” Jennifer asked. “Two women in a relationship at that?”

“Yes...”

Jennifer nodded, and set a hand on her hip. “It’s simple. Beatrice and I are best friends, and very close, sexually and emotionally. But the romance parking space isn’t reserved. I’m more comfortable sharing it with someone, than I am holding it on my own. So, you”—she gestured to Sándor—”get to have that spot with me. Dare I say, you even get priority parking over me.”

“The fuck kind of analogy is that?” Triss asked. “I’m a fucking parking spot?”

“It’s good enough.”

“Uh huh. Look at him. The dude is confused as all fuck.”

Sándor did manage a small nod, eyes drifting from Triss’s eyes to Jen’s, and occasionally at her huge tits, too. His stone face couldn’t hide that the man definitely had a sexual appetite.

“It is a ... unique situation.”

“Okay, I’ll explain it better,” Jen said. “When I was young, I read a book, about a king and a queen, and a small slave woman they’d saved. Over the course of the story, the woman gets closer to the king and queen, until they invite her into their bed. And it’s this super hot scene where the king and queen, obviously deeply in love with each other, share that intimacy with the young woman. They fuck her silly and cuddle and ... and all the good stuff.” With a quiet moan, Jen slid her hands down her naked stomach, and between her thighs, where one of her hands lightly caressed her clit through her thong. “I’ve always wanted to be the young woman in that story, not the queen. I want a happy lovey dovey couple to pamper me and fuck me.”

Sándor raised a brow slightly, looking between the two ladies again.

“That is ... a lovely way of describing it. I think I understand you better.”

Jen beamed. “I know, right!? People just don’t get it!”

“I get it.” He nodded, and his eyes drifted down her body to her masturbating hand, before shooting back up. “Though, isn’t it the king and queen doing the seducing, in the story?”

“Yeah well, I can’t just sit around waiting for my fantasy to come true. Gotta work for it.” Nodding, Jen slipped out of Triss’s grip and walked off for the bathroom. “I’m getting a towel. You two, get naked.”

“Towel?” Sándor asked.

Triss grinned at him, and slipped off her tank top. Dude had no idea what he was in for.

The way his eyes looked her tattooed body up and down had her quivering like a schoolgirl, and it only got worse when she Blushed Life.

“Like tattoos?” she asked, and she traced a claw along the snake biting her nipple before it ran down her abs.

“I do.”

“Piercings?” She shifted onto her toes and back to her heels a few times, making her small breasts jiggle lightly. Maybe next time, she’d wear something fancier than plain old nipple studs.

“Very much.” Dude wasn’t lying, from the way his eyes locked onto her hardening nipples.

Nodding and grinning, she slipped off her jeans and kicked them aside, leaving her in just her socks and a black thong. Unlike Jen, she just wore simple thongs, and she wore them because they made her righteous, large, firm ass look amazing, not because she just went around expecting someone else to see her in nothing but the thong. But the way Sándor's eyes opened wide when she turned around slowly for him, was enough to have her body lit up like a Christmas tree.

He was hard. She could see the bulge pressing up against his jeans.

“We just kissed. First time. Are you sure—”

“We're vampires, Sándor. Dolareido vampires.”

“I know, but—”

She reached down, and pulled on his shirt. After a few seconds of hesitation, he helped, and she groaned bliss as the man finally was finally topless. He was slightly above average height, with a lean, muscular build, not super thick but definitely super defined, with fucking chiseled abs. It matched his short facial gruff and dreamy, stern, stoic eyes perfectly.

She'd seen him topless before, when she and Tash and them had sneaked into the flesh chamber, a lifetime ago. Some of Elen's knife work had even left scars on his back, though not the whole ritual symbol the flesh witch had used to control him, thank god.

Jen returned, towel in hand. “Ok Sándor. Up please.”

~~♥♥♥~~

The man blinked, but did as requested. Jen threw the huge towel down where he'd been sitting, before she reached out and undid the button on his jeans. Just like Margaret said, Sándor didn't resist. He was more or less stuck in a state of ‘what do I do?’, and the girls — especially Jen — were happy to guide him. Triss had been hesitant to the idea of bullying Sándor into sex, but with his wife’s advice in hand, it suddenly got fun. Super fucking fun.

Triss joined in, and the two vampires worked together to get the man’s jeans and boxers off, revealing a firm, hard ass, and a nice big cock, standing and waiting. Much as Sándor was clearly unsure of how to handle himself with two women tugging on him, he wasn’t embarrassed. He didn’t blush or cover himself, and considering how ripped the dude was, it was no wonder. Or maybe it was the gargoyle in him, or the hundreds of years of experience.

He had an Apollo’s belt that made her fucking melt, and a big cock that was only getting bigger the more he looked at them. She could see, and almost hear, his pulse fill it more and more. Hell, he’d even trimmed his pubes down short. Dude was fitting into Dolareido more and more.

Jen pushed him down onto the towel. He sat, back against the couch, eyes looking between the two ladies.

“What do I—”

“You,” Jen said, “can sit there, and simply enjoy yourself. We’ve been wanting to do things to you for a while now. We’ll tell you what we want.” Purring, she straddled his lap, knees pressing against the couch. She came in closer, close enough to press her big breasts against his chest, while she put a couple kisses on his neck.

Triss made sure to sit on the side where Jen was kissing, Sándor’s left, and she gave her girlfriend a harsh slap on the ass. A loud squeak, and Jen sat up straight before glaring down at Triss. Her sitting up also meant Triss got to see Sándor’s big dick pinned against his abs by Jen’s pussy, still wearing panties. Wet panties. This woman, good god.

“I kissed him first, so you fuck him first? Is that how this is gonna go?” Triss asked.

“Naturally.”

Well, if Jen was gonna be a bitch, so was Triss. She slid a claw under the side of Jen’s thong, and snip snip, cut the thing. And before Jen could squeak again, Triss reached around and did the same to the other side, and pulled the remains of her girl’s underwear off.

“Those were expensive!”

Smirking, Triss tossed the ruined underwear away, and snuggled into Sándor’s side. The man was a deer in headlights, which teased something in Triss so bad. Every part of her suddenly wanted to pull a reaction out of this man, like a cat playing with a toy. A dangerous toy. She lifted his arm and got under it so it draped her shoulders, and she leaned in and kissed his jaw. He turned, and she took the opportunity to kiss him proper.

“Sorry,” she said. “About us, I mean, and uh ... being romantic. We really suck at this.”

“Says you,” Jen said, and she set one hand on Sándor’s outside shoulder, her other on Triss’s outside shoulder. With a deep, playful groan, she eased her hips back and forth slightly, and her pussy lips dragged along every inch of Sándor’s long cock. Up to the fat tip, and down and down until his length pointed up slightly from how Jen’s weight pushed on the bottom. Coated in juices.

He gulped. “You’re both...”

“Beautiful?” Jen asked.

“Yes...”

Jen grinned. “And gorgeous? Amazing? Absolutely breathtaking?”

“I think,” Triss said, “he was going to find a polite way to say sluts. You’re already dripping.” And, god damn it, seeing her naked girlfriend rubbing her bare slit back and forth on her—their boyfriend’s cock? Yeah, Triss could feel her body warming up, too, little waves of heat that flowed down between her thighs and told her things were getting swollen.

Shrugging, Jen nuzzled her nose against Sándor’s, gave him a kiss, and then did the same for Triss, leaning in before giving her a kiss, too.

“Sándor,” Jen whispered, “you’ll have to forgive me, but I cannot stand silly little girlish games of flirting for ages on end. I know what I like.” She leaned in close enough to squash her breasts against his chest again, slipping her head around his neck opposite of Triss, but still speaking loud enough she could hear her. “I hope you don’t mind.”

Sándor’s eyes half closed as he relaxed back against the couch, before turning to look at Triss. Even his hard, stoic face couldn’t hide that super hot look of guilt as Jen continued to rub her clit along the underside of his cock while kissing his neck.

“Dude, she’s my girlfriend,” Triss said. “Stop worrying. You like her, right?”

He scrunched up his nose for a fraction of a second.

“Her taste in music is horrible.”

Triss laughed. Hell, Jen laughed, and drew her head back so she could scrunch up her nose at him, too, for longer and far more obviously.

“That aside?” Triss asked.

“I ... don’t know what I’m getting myself into. But, I always found the two of you very intriguing. And intriguing grew into more. But, I’m still not ... sure how to...”

“Deal with two women.” Nodding, Jen knelt up higher, reached down, and guided the man’s large cock up toward her wet slit. Everyone went silent as they watched the big cock’s fat tip spread her open, and a bead of juices dripped down his cock’s front until it reached his pelvis. Once his glans had slipped into her, earning a small quiver from the man, Jen set both her hands on his shoulders, and licked her lips as she slowly worked her way down, swaying her hips left and right as she did. Triss couldn’t help but stare at how her perfectly smooth pussy spread around his cock as she made sure to take him balls deep. Lock and key.

“Don’t worry about it,” Triss said. “Like in Jen’s ridiculous story, I’m the queen, you’re the king, and she’s some silly little girl with a ridiculous sex drive who’s living rent free in our bed and eating our food.”

“Perfect,” Jen said, after a playful, satisfied moan.

Triss slipped a hand under her own thong, and rubbed her clit as she watched. She’d get her turn, but for now, this was a good way to help a super vanilla dude like Sándor get used to what was probably going to be a very unusual sex life for him. She cuddled into his side, and kissed the side of his chest a couple times, before she snuggled back into the groove of his shoulder, and masturbated as her girlfriend slowly swayed her hips while keeping him buried to the hilt.

“My queen, you say?” Sándor asked, looking down at Triss. Once he realized Triss had started masturbating, his breathing picked up, and his eyes locked onto how Triss’s hand worked underneath her thong. She could feel his heartbeat speed up, too.

“Mhmm.” With her left hand massaging her swollen clit, her right hand, the one closer to Sándor, was free to slide up onto his abs, and walk down the hard muscles. “Which also means we get to do whatever we want to our little sex slave.”

“Sex slave? I thought in the story—”

Jen put a finger on his lips, shushing him. “You can think of me sex slave, too.” Her other hand found his, the one not currently around Triss’s shoulders, and pulled it toward her. With a purr, she put it underneath one of her breasts, and squeezed her hand around his, making it squeeze her tit. “I would make a good sex slave, wouldn’t I?”

The man nodded slowly, eyes locked onto her huge breast as he gently squeezed it on his own several times, making its softness spill over his palm and between his fingers.

Words weren’t going to be enough to help Sándor get more comfortable with the situation. He needed encouragement. So, Triss stopped masturbating, got up, and got behind Jen. She leaned in, hugged the girl from behind, and slipped her arms under Jen’s, so she could cup her breasts. After having fucked her dozens and dozens of times, Triss knew exactly how Jen liked to have her tits played with: full cupping, with some gentle nipple pinching.

Jen mewled, turning her head enough to almost reach Triss. Triss leaned around enough to meet her, and they kissed, long and deep, while Triss continued to massage and caress her girlfriend’s tits and swollen nipples. All the while, Jen worked her hips back and forth, grinding her body against Sándor’s.

“Sándor,” Triss said. “Take her hips.” Sándor did as ordered, eyes locked onto Jen’s breasts filling and overflowing Triss’s hands. “Work her.” No need to explain what she meant, Sándor pushed Jen back and forth on his lap in a way every man understood. Stay deep inside the girl, and enjoy her pussy clenching on your cock while she grinds.

With Sándor holding the Ventrue's hips, Jen's hands were free to do whatever they wanted, and naturally one of them tightened on his shoulder while the other found her clitoris. She masturbated, and Triss smiled as Sándor's eyes almost completely closed. No doubt Jen was clenching on the guy like a vise, and considering the familiar, quiet groans Jen was making into Triss's kiss, the girl was in one of her hyper horny moods. She'd been wanting this for months, finally got it, and now she was soaking the man between her legs.

Much as Jen was a certifiable sexpert, she didn't have much patience. She masturbated faster, fingers abusing her clit and making her tremble. The only thing that kept her moving back and forth now was Sándor's grip on her, and Triss broke the kiss so she could watch his fine arms flex with the motion. God damn the man was beautiful.

Jen came. She grabbed both of Sandor's wrists and held on as her body quivered. Triss let her go, and her girlfriend leaned forward enough to plant her body against Sándor; from behind, Triss could see the backs of her huge tits, spread out from how they squashed against Sándor's chest. She hugged him as she hid her face in his neck, probably kissing him some more as she slowly ground into him, milking her orgasm aftershocks.

Sándor looked at Triss from over the woman's shoulder, a tiny smile on his otherwise calm, if slightly surprised face.

"I've never done anything like this," he said.

"Gonna be a lot of that," Triss said. "Now, gimme a hand here." Nodding, she put her hands on Jen's hips, and lifted the girl up a few inches, before slamming her down.

Instant groans from Jen. She hadn't seen that coming. Triss bounced her a few more times, until Jen sat up straight, hands on Sándor's shoulders, and she looked back at Triss.

"You want to make him cum? Sándor isn't Kindred. He might not be able to ... you know..."

Sándor managed a tiny smirk. It was a super weird expression on his face, and it vanished a second later.

"I am Begotten, and the gargoyle's appetite is ... large. I'll be fine."

And from the momentary smirk, Triss bet he was being modest. The gargoyle Horror probably influenced him in a lot of ways, and sure, Sándor did everything he could to keep it suppressed, but vampires and werewolves certainly used their inner monster to fuel their sex drives. Good chance Sándor did the same. Hell, reading between the lines from what Margaret said, there was a chance the woman literally couldn't keep up with him.

The idea of learning about the man's limits got Triss quivering, and she bounced Jen on the man harder.

Sándor took her hips, and picked up the job, bouncing Jen on his cock. He wasn't gentle. Awesome. Triss had half expected the man to be too gentle, but he was getting in the mood now, and a quiet growl rumbled in his throat as his eyes drank in Jen's giant breasts bouncing against her chest.

Triss had to see this. She sat back down beside the man on the towel, and immediately slipped her hand back under her thong as she watched her girlfriend's smooth slit work up and down his long length. Jen's hands found Sándor's wrists so she could lean back, probably trying to drive the angle of his cock to hit against her g-spot more. Whether that was her goal or not, it made her look fucking amazing, her chest jutting out so her breasts rippled against her with each bounce.

Jen came again. Her head fell back, and her moans came out as short pants, barely a noise, as Sándor continued to bounce her hard enough the couch was doing a little more than squeaking. How the fuck had Sándor not cum yet? Some weird zen mode? The woman was squeezing on the man hard enough slivers of her insides came out with her each time he lifted her up, only to slam her back down through her orgasm, until trickles of her juices flowed out of her onto his pelvis.

Triss managed a quick peek up at his face, and another tiny quiver shot through her. He didn't look like Sándor anymore. He looked like the gargoyle, stern face mixed with animal hunger, eyes set on his meal. Hard bounces had the couch shaking, and Jen almost fell back as her body trembled. The only reason she didn't fall was the dude's grip, as Jen's hands eventually went limp as the poor girl came again. Sándor didn't stop.

Sure, Jen was the sort of girl who got off easy; pretty common trait for the lady paranormals, at least the ones in Dolareido. But Sándor bounced her in just the right way to have her melting. Much as the man was the quiet, stoic type, he was old as dirt and knew his shit.

Finally, it was his turn to cum, and he slowed his pace, instead using just a few harsh, heavy bounces, with a lot of downtime between them, earning some girly squeaks from Jen. Finally he relaxed, and Triss snuggled into his arm as she watched where his thick cock had her girlfriend spread apart. Heavy white cum leaked out of her drenched slit, and Sándor groaned softly as he relaxed back into the couch as he filled Jen up.

Filled, and filled. Triss hadn't really known what to expect. She knew the werewolves were bundles of life and shit, and came their brains out; Jessy loved to talk. Sándor was part giant gargoyle monster. Uncharted territory. But sure enough, as he relaxed back on the couch, using his grip only to gently move the limp and leaning back Jen back and forth on his cock to milk him, he pumped her full of cum until more heavy drops of the white fluid leaked out of her. And more. Holy shit.

Triss leaned up, and kissed the man's jaw. It was enough to get him to look at her, and she grinned as she kissed his lips, instead. He let go of Jen with his closer arm, and slipped it around Triss, half hugging her as they kissed. Considering the man was in the middle of filling up their girlfriend, little shivers worked through him, and a couple of groans, too. Something about kissing the man as he filled Jen up with enough cum she was literally overflowing, had Triss boiling.

But finally he was done. Triss got up off the couch, doing her best to ignore how soaked her thong was, and set her hands on Jen's shoulders. She gently pushed her friend forward, and the girl collapsed against Sándor's chest. Apparently the man was getting on the threesome wavelength, because he stroked the girl's back a few times, kissed the side of her head, lifted her up off his cock, and set her down on the couch on his right, on the towel. Big towel.

Jen nuzzled into his arm, eyes half closed, legs half spread, cum oozing out of her onto the towel. Which left the man's big cock, dripping with both their cum, pointing up toward him, waiting.

Triss licked her lips, and her extra teeth, as she watched his thick, soaked cock flex toward his abs a couple times, and another drop of white rose to the tip. Christ, she was going to cum the moment he was in her.

"Wait," Jen said, voice wavering a bit. Somehow, the girl managed to sit up enough to reach over to the table, and into her purse. And of course, sat back with a small tube of lube in hand.

"Seriously just walking around with that, Jen?" Triss asked.

“Of course.” Nodding as if it was perfectly reasonable, she popped it open, and poured it onto Sándor’s cock. The man raised an eyebrow, not sure what was going on, but considering he’d just had a huge orgasm, he seemed happy to wait and see.

Rolling her eyes, Triss slid out of her thong, making sure to stick her ass out a bit as she did. A quick glance down showed a line of juices connecting it to her swollen slit, and she groaned, annoyed, as she kicked it aside. She turned, and aimed her ass toward Jen, but kept her eyes on Sándor. His eyes were locked on her large, firm ass, and his breathing quickened.

It quickened again, once Jen soaked her fingers in lube, and set them on Triss’s ass. Jen spent a little time working the liquid on the outside, before gently easing two fingers into her ass, and spreading the lube around a little more. And god damn it, Triss’s slit was already dripping. She moan. She didn’t cum, thank god, but she squeezed on Jen’s fingers as she tried, and failed, to not make more noise.

Sándor’s eyes were wide.

“Never had anal?” Triss asked. “You look surprised.”

“Never.”

“Wait, really? Dude, you’re ancient.”

“It’s ... never come up.”

Triss licked her lips again as she watched his eyes stare at her ass while Jen worked lube into her, longer than needed. The damn Ventrue saw an opportunity to have some fun with her, and the hypnotized Sándor, so she spent a minute longer gently working her fingers around and around in Triss’s ass. Plain as day in the man’s eyes, he liked what he saw. He liked what he heard, when Triss failed to stop another tiny groan from slipping out of her.

Jen stopped, thank god, and Triss straddled the man, her man, putting her weight on her knees around his legs. Big couch meant his ass was forward enough she had the room to straddle him properly, and she smiled down at him as she held his shoulder with one hand, and took his wet cock in the other.

“Beatrice,” Jen said, “is an anal addict.”

“I’m not ... addicted...” Another small moan snuck its way out of her as she lowered herself down on the man’s thick cock, and set the warm, drenched glans against her ass’s entrance.

Jen laughed as she turned in toward Sándor, and slipped under his arm so she could press her body into him, half sitting, half rubbing herself into him and Triss’s leg.

Triss didn’t really want to prove Jen right, but her body didn’t give a fuck. The sensation of her ass’s sensitive skin spreading open, and the sensitive nerves getting caressed by a hot, hard, drenched cock, had her sighing happily. But it was the sensation of being full she ached for, and she forced her muscles to relax so she could take the man deep and deeper. It didn’t take long. She’d done this a hundred times, and she was out of her fucking mind horny.

She got the man balls deep in her ass, and groaned as she leaned back and put her hands on his knees. Fucking finally. The feeling of being full. The feeling of a hard cock pulling toward her pussy from inside her ass, the way the pressure inside felt so similar and different, it had her quivering. You had to get the right angle, and she made sure she found it, sliding her hips forward a bit while leaning back, making sure the dude’s hard cock pushed straight toward her belly.

Plus, leaning back like this really showed off her abs and tight little waist. She loved them, and Sándor did too, from the way he was looking.

“It’s pierced,” Sándor said.

“What?” Triss followed his hypnotized eyes, and managed a tiny laugh. A little bolt piercing sat above her clit, through her clit hood. “Next time I’ll wear something fancier.”

“Lots of chains,” Jen said, nodding. And as she grinned up at Triss from within the nook of Sándor’s arm, she reached down over his abs and cum-soaked pelvis, and with palm up, she slipped two fingers down along Triss’s pierced clit hood, over her clit, along her swollen lips, and then directly into her. Fuuuuuck.

“Feel that?” the Ventrue asked Sandor, and she moved her fingers toward Triss’s ass, pushing the backs of her finger knuckles against the back of Triss’s pussy, before pulling her fingers forward, and pressing them against Triss’s g-spot.

Instant pleasure, a deep tingling wave that pulsed out from her insides and down into her toes. Triss sucked in a quick, useless breath, and tightened her grip on Sandor’s knees as she teetered on the edge of orgasm. But she kept the position. Sandor was staring at her, at her tattoos, her small breasts and pierced nipples, at her smooth pussy and tiny piercing, and her abs as they stretched. It wouldn’t be long before he grabbed her and fucked her hard, same as Jen. The anticipation was killing her.

“I can,” the man said after a heavy, deep groan. Unusually deep. Gargoyle deep.

Jen chuckled, and without warning, finger fucked Triss, hard. She worked her hand back and forth, the back of her fingers hitting the back wall of her pussy, and pushing against the man’s cock through the wall of flesh. But it was the strength of her fingers hitting Triss’s g-spot with almost slapping speed that broke Triss. She leaned forward and grabbed Sandor’s shoulders for dear life as Jen fingered her, her ass and pussy clenching down hard, and instant pulses of tingling bliss shot out through her whole body.

A gush of her fluids splashed over Jen's hand and over Sándor's abs. Jen didn't stop. The damn Ventrue grinned up at Triss, and continued to pump her hand, fighting against Triss's clenching insides and driving her fingers against Triss's g-spot again, and again, and again. It was too damn good. The way Sándor stared down at Jen's hand, and then up Triss's abs, to her jiggling breasts, and up to her face as her mouth fell open, his own eyes wide with surprise, was too good. He was hypnotized, and she couldn't help but cum until her toes curled while Jen pounded away. She squirted again, harder, drenching Jen's hand, Sándor's stomach, and even a bit of his chest.

Eventually the damn slut stopped, eased her fingers out of Triss, and teased them up Sándor's now very soaked abs, and up to his chest. Now that she had some time to recover, Triss sat up straight again, and looked down at Sándor's breathing, sweating body, and how his abs flexed in slow crunches as Triss quivered on him. The orgasm aftershocks worked through her, up and down, waves that had her nipples so hard the metal studs hurt.

"You call me a slut," Jen said, giggling as she lifted her hand, and let a drop of Triss's clear juices drip from her fingers down onto Sándor's abs.

"Oh fuck you." Triss stuck out her tongue before leaning in again, and snuggled in close to Sándor. "Sorry, I soaked you." She shifted up and down along his body, rubbing her small breasts and diamond nipples into his chest. Her whole damn body was tingling and shivering and refused to stop.

"I can see that," he said, gulping, before looking over her shoulder and down her back. Noticing, she made sure to arch her back, and squash her stomach into his so her ass stuck out in a way she knew looked damn good. With her face buried in his neck, she couldn't see what he was looking at anymore, but his hands found her ass, and squeezed. Which got her all sorts of tingly again, and she sighed happily into his neck.

Her noise apparently encouraged him, because he squeezed her ass harder, massaged it, and dug his fingers into the meat of it. Triss hated the idea of comparing her body to his dead wife's, so no fucking way she'd actually say it out loud, but Margaret had been a tall, thin woman. Not much meat on the bones. Triss had a small waist with abs, and an ass for days; lot of time spent at the gym, lifting heavy shit, when she was alive. And feeling Sándor squeeze and knead it had her grinning into his neck as she kissed him. He liked her body.

Well, Margaret had said to be aggressive with him, and even bully him a little. So Triss sat back up, licked a couple of her extra, large teeth, and turned around. No need to get off, half the fun was showing off how comfortable she was doing this, and Sándor groaned as she twisted on his cock. Once she was facing away from him, she put her feet between his on the floor, put her hands on his knees again, and slowly worked her ass left and right as she made sure to keep the man balls deep.

Poor guy. Dude had been alive for centuries, but it was obvious he'd never gone through a sexual indulgence phase. Every paranormal in Dolareido, except for maybe the more fucked up Nosferatu, went through at least one horny phase in their long lives, where they fucked and fucked and fucked, and tried everything under the sun or moon. And now he had two girlfriends, Jen and Triss. Sándor was in for the time of his life.

Triss ground her ass around and around, going in circles, and occasionally give the man a hard squeeze. Sure enough, his hands found her ass again, and she looked over her shoulder to drink in his hypnotized, hard blue eyes.

Jen, looking a bit jealous, leaned in and kissed Sándor, making sure to squash her big tits against the man. Triss laughed and nodded to him, giving him permission to kiss her back. He did, eyes mostly closing as Jen made sure the kiss lasted, taking extra time to tease his wet abs with her hand, and rub her breasts into his side and chest a few times. Satisfied, she sat back down, snuggled under his right arm, and put a hand on Triss's ass.

And gave it a good slap.

Instant groan from Triss. It wasn't so much that Triss liked having her ass slapped; she did, but definitely not as much as someone like Samantha. But the way Sándor's eyes widened as he watched her butt ripple, was fucking perfect, not to mention how Triss's spontaneous clench pulled a quiver out of him. From the way Jen grinned, she was trying to draw out the animal that'd power fucked her fifteen minutes ago.

"Don't worry," Jen said, and she gave Triss's ass another slap. "We're not only here for sex. You and Beatrice can indulge in some cuddling and other romantic, far less sexual stuff, when we're done."

"I do like cuddling," Triss said.

Jen nodded, and traced her finger up and down Sándor's body some more.

"Cuddling is very personal. Very intimate," she said.

Sándor raised a brow as he looked between the two of them.

"Cuddling. Not sex?"

Triss laughed. This guy was so old fashioned, it was hilarious. And fun. Would he change after a year or two of nonstop crazy sex?

Considering how old he was and still a stoic quiet stern vanilla dude, probably not. Which was going to be strangely fun, too.

“Like holding hands,” Jen said. “Extremely intimate.”

“Naughty,” Triss said, grinning back at her girlfriend.

Enough foreplay. She lifted her ass up a few inches, and worked it back down. She had to shift herself forward a bit to get the angle right, but once she had his cock hitting the right places, she bounced a little harder, and mewled. The feeling of being full, of pressure against those places, sent more tingling waves up into her chest and rippling down into her legs.

Jen leaned up and whispered something into Sándor’s ear.

“Are you sure?” he asked.

The Ventrue nodded, and shifted back on the couch a bit away from him before lying on her back, head against the couch arm. Oh, she wanted to do that position. Triss was down, and from the way Sándor looked to Jen and then back to Triss, he was too. Dude just needed permission to indulge in a fantasy.

Triss rolled her way toward Jen, off the man’s cock, and Sándor got up off the couch. A second later, Triss lay on Jen’s body, grinning down at her, head over Jen’s breasts and her knees between Jen’s legs. Sándor got behind her again on his knees, and stared down at Triss’s ass as she arched her back for him. His eyes grew wider when Jen pulled Triss’s ass cheeks apart for him.

He slipped the head of his cock back into her, set his hands on her hips, and very slowly sank himself balls deep into her ass. When his heavy testicles rested against her lips, she shivered.

“Dude, I am fucking dying here. Just fuck me already.”

With his eyes still locked on her ass, Sándor pulled his pelvis back a bit, and experimentally thrust forward. Fucking finally. A long, hard cock, hitting those deep places. She moaned, and didn't try to suppress it at all.

"She's well lubed," Jen said. "Fuck her hard."

Sándor managed to lift his eyes from her ass long enough to check in with Triss, and she grinned at the man as she nodded, before resting her head between Jen's breasts. With her head on her girlfriend's sternum, and her chest pushing into Jen's stomach, her ass was high up in the air, creating pretty much the most perfect looking display possible. Sándor had no chance.

He thrust into harder, a lot harder, hard enough his testicles slapped against her pussy, and Triss's whole body shifted slightly on Jen's. Jen reached down along Triss's back, and gave her ass another hard slap, both hands, earning a deep growl from Sándor, and another hard thrust. And another, and another.

A proper fucking rhythm. Triss groaned into Jen's body as she melted, body going a bit limp so she rested on the girl's torso. Jen took advantage, and teased fingers down her back before again reaching down low and playing with Triss's ass, digging fingers into its curves. The occasional slap, too. Triss's eyes rolled up as she hugged Jen with weak arms, as Sándor fucked her faster.

Her empty cunt clenched down hard, and a shot of her juices splashed down against the towel. He thrust again, another quiet, dark growl rumbling in his throat as he forced his cock into her ass despite her clenching muscles. Lube putting in overtime. She managed a quick peek back up at Sándor, and the look of sheer hunger in his eyes as he pounded her ass was perfect. The pleasure wave came back, rolling up and down through her, and again her empty pussy clenched so hard she heard the gush of fluid hit the towel. And then, hit Sándor's testicles, as again the man thrust into her hard. Her cum splashed, soaking her thighs, only getting worse as the man didn't stop.

He only slowed down when it was his turn. He gave her a few more hard thrusts before sinking balls deep into her and staying there, as he flooded her insides. Warm, so warm, cum poured into her, and she gasped as she managed to push her quivering body up onto her elbows. She inched forward a little, just enough to collapse on Jen again, this time burying her face in her girlfriend's neck. More tremors worked through her, making her toes curl and her pussy squeeze, earning another gush of fluids, some hitting the large testicles resting against her lips, and soaking her thighs. The dude just kept going. He stayed deep, grinding her ass against him with his grip, and her muscle spasms pulled more quiet, dark growls from him, and more cum.

Jen chuckled up at the man, and held her hands out to him.

Sándor relaxed his grip on Triss's hips, and lay forward. Triss managed another quick peek of his eyes — relaxed and blissful — before his chest met her back, and gently pinned her against Jen's body. A Beatrice sandwich. Jen wasted no time, and pulled the man's head down to hers. Triss could feel them kissing, her own head in the nook of Jen's neck and shoulder.

Jen broke the kiss, and when Triss managed to turn her head enough to look at her, she kissed her instead. Fuck it, Triss kissed her back as she melted against her. She doubly melted when Sándor kissed the back of her head.

And then she groaned, as Sándor lifted his hips up, and thrust into her. Lying on top of her, his cock pointed straight down, and drove straight toward her belly. Triss mewled into Jen's kiss, and her girlfriend laughed.

“Fuck her until you're done, Sándor,” Jen said. “As long as it takes.” The sneaky Ventrue hid an odd inflection in there. She was implying that Sándor's previous lovers had been human, and not able to fuck as long as him. Unlike vampires.

Apparently, gargoyles could fuck for a long time. Triss lay where she was, trapped between girlfriend and boyfriend, as Sándor fucked her ass again. Softly at first, until her sensitive insides had her moaning, inviting Sándor to fuck her hard. He did, still lying on top of her and keeping her pinned. She drenched her thighs, Jen's, and the man's testicles, as he got faster, and faster. And when it was his turn to cum again, he slowed down to a crawl, stayed balls deep inside her, and ground into her like he was trying to break her apart in a mortar with a pestle, forcing his long, hard cock toward her belly and keeping it there as he poured more cum into her.

Sometimes, she hated the fact she was a vampire. Sometimes, she loved it. Paranormals had the best sex.

~~♥♥♥~~

---

"I'm still not ... sure," Sándor said.

Triss and Jen blinked at each other before looking at him. They were all in his shower, and thankfully since he had one of the modern, stupidly expensive apartments, it was a big shower. Lots of sleek, metal-colored tiles and whatnot.

"About what?" Triss asked. She stood in front of Jen, and was running soapy hands up and down the girl's chest. Not like the girl had anything to wash off her chest, but she wasn't going to pass up the opportunity to tease Sándor some more.

Sándor stood literally one foot away, and was having a difficult time not staring at what Triss was doing.

"About the nature of the relationship."

Triss gulped. “You mean—”

“About there being two women.”

Oh thank god. For a second there she thought she might have fucked the man to the point of post-nut clarity, and now he was thinking he wasn't into her. Guys with heartbeats did have a habit of thinking with their dick until a good orgasm got their brain working again.

Triss let go of Jen, and walked into Sándor. His back was already against the shower wall, so it was easy to lightly pin him, and press her pierced nipples straight into his stomach; he was a good six inches taller than her.

“You and I are dating. I like you. You like me. Right?”

He smiled, and set his hands on her hips. “I do.”

A shiver worked through her spine, the good kind, and she leaned into him a little harder.

“We're boyfriend and girlfriend. We don't fuck anyone else. Jen is our sex slave.”

He raised a brow and looked to Jen. “She—”

“I already told you,” Jen said, and she came in beside Triss, and did the same thing, pushing her huge breasts into the man's side and chest as she fought for room beside Triss. “I know what I like. I like this.”

“But—”

“She's free to fuck other people,” Triss said. “But she won't.”

“It's not interesting anymore,” Jen said. Yeah, she said it ‘wasn't interesting’ but Triss was pretty sure the girl was just romantically invested, whether she wanted to admit it or not. It'd been the same with Julias.

“And she won't fuck me or you without the other present,” Triss said. This was annoying, but necessary. It was a weird relationship, and Sándor was a defining example of ‘too old to change’. They had to talk about it and set up rules. Communication was important, and she wasn't going to let something as stupid as not talking about shit end the relationship.

Look at her, growing up and getting wiser about the more normal shit, too.

“I ... see.”

Triss and Jen both laughed. The man was so different to Julias. Every night, the two of them were going to have to work past the man's conservative nature. But that also meant they'd get to enjoy teasing him out of his shell every time, to pull out the hungry man hidden inside. Like opening up a not-illegal Kinder Surprise egg.

She nodded as she pushed up onto her tippy toes, and kissed his chin. When he looked down to her, she turned it into a proper kiss, and the man eventually closed his eyes. And slowly, as if he might shatter the illusion if he went too fast, he ran his fingers up her back. God yes. She melted into him, and hugged him into her.

A tiny part of her wanted to ask if he stroked her spine like that because Julias told him to. Nah, too weird. Better to leave the mystery.

Jen whined like a puppy until Triss broke the kiss and gave her girlfriend a kiss, too. And both girls peeked Sándor's way to make sure the man was hypnotized by the sight of their bodies pressed together. He was, and gulped as his eyes looked them up and down, head to toe.

No wonder Antoinette enjoyed fucking Jack so much. Sure, there was something to be said for a more even sexual dynamic, but seeing Sándor's surprise and almost guilty delight that he was getting something as extreme — not even close by Dolareido standards — as two women at once? It had her feeling all tingly with excitement. Probably how Antoinette felt with Jack.

And, unlike Jack, Sándor had another half.

“Sándor,” she said, and she slipped behind Jen. Wet, naked bodies pressed together, both girls pushed their asses out, creating a big S shape that had Sándor's eyes running a race track. “We ... were wondering...”

“How ... comfortable you were,” Jen said, reading her mind and jumping in, “with ... your Horror, and ... sex. Because, we were—”

“Pretty damn interested,” Triss said.

Sándor raised one eyebrow very high.

“But, after what happened—”

Triss gave the man a slap on his naked, wet chest, hard enough to make the water ka-splat.

“Yeah, that sucked, but that was then. You regret what happened, and we regret what happened. We didn't respect the fact your Horror is fucking terrifying, and powerful as all fuck.”

The man looked down. And unless she was seeing things, a tiny smile appeared on his lips before he wiped it away. Happy? No. Proud? No. Satisfied? Well, he was a half monster of nightmares. It probably did appeal to some existential part of him that his Horror was so horrifying.

“But you still want to ... have sex with it?”

“Not it,” Triss said. “You, as it, with all those ... big arms and stuff.” Very, very big arms. And legs.

Jen nodded as she came in again, right up to Sándor’s chest, and pressed her huge breasts into his upper stomach. When in doubt, use the boobs. No man could resist the feeling of giant boobs squashing against the body.

“I was angry for what it tried to do. But this is different. I want to be a tiny little woman in your giant monster gargoyle hands, and disappear in your shadow as you bury a giant cock inside me. I want to groan and feel like I’m about to burst, as you treat me like a plaything.”

Jesus christ. Triss agreed with everything Jen said, but her saying it like that was so damn direct, Sándor was floored. Hell, it was surprising Jen didn’t ask him to rearrange her guts.

“Now?”

Triss laughed, and shook her head. “No, not now. When you’re comfortable with the idea. When you’ve fed. For now, you know what I want to do? I want to go cuddle and watch a fucking movie. I got nowhere to be tomorrow, and that’s a great fucking feeling I want to savor.”

Lie down on his bed or couch, cuddle up, and watch a movie. The most god damn romantic thing in the world.

Jen stepped back as she laughed, but nodded.

Sándor paused, eyeing Triss. Maybe he didn’t believe her. Maybe he thought she was being sarcastic. So she kept her expression serious as she waited for him to realize she was being completely legit.

He relaxed, and smiled. “That sounds heavenly.”

Chapter 177

~~Jack~~

He went home. He didn't want to go home. Well, he did, because he wanted to see his thralls and crows, and make sure everything was going well. And much as it kinda irked him, he did feel possessive of his thralls. They were his pets, his, and any good owner took care of what was theirs. The Ventrue half of him loved that idea.

But at the tower, he spent all night in bed, recovering, and being the center of attention to Antoinette and Elaine. Antoinette, er, Ann, got in a pampering mood whenever Jack was injured, and considering how the confrontation with Black Blood went, combined with him now being as weak as a young neonate again, mostly, she was in a super motherly, pampering mood. He'd spent every night with his head on her lap, kissing and sucking on her breasts, while Elaine made sure he came over and over, until he had to feed on Ashley or Julee just to stay hard.

Difficult to walk away from that. But, as he stepped out of the car in front of his mansion, and Mulder and Scully flew down to land on his shoulders, he smiled. There was something empowering about coming home, even if he felt only a shred of the curse's power left in him. A shred was a shit load more than Elaine had expected him to have left, and he was damn happy to have it. He'd need it. Owning a mansion as a young neonate? There was a chance Michael or Garry would try and take the mansion from him, and he'd have to prove he could hold his own territory from pushy Carthians.

And he was kinda excited to do that.

He stepped into the mansion, with his mom, Damien, Beatrice, and Athalia following behind him. It was originally just going to be Damien and his mom, but he'd found her with Beatrice and Athalia, chatting away. And naturally, his mom had invited them, without checking with him, because it never even dawned on her that Jack might not want all the possible company he could have for his first trip back home.

That was fine. After everything that'd happened, those three deserved a little leeway from him, especially his mom. If she'd been anyone else, his mom would have figured out how to use the 'I saved the world' card to get whatever special treatment she wanted. But she was his mom, and the idea would never, ever enter her mind.

He loved her for that.

"I feel like I should be helping carry some bags of clothes," his mom said as she followed him into the entry hall, big stairs in front of them inviting them to come upstairs if they wanted. Not yet. "Like old times, you know?"

"This isn't a yearly trip to the university dorms, Mom."

"I know. Still. Where's the girls?"

Right on cue, all three girls stepped around the wall upstairs and stopped at the top of the stairs. He half expected to have a very awkward situation with his thralls standing there in sexy fake maid outfits, or bikinis, or nothing at all. Thankfully they were wearing more normal, modern maid outfits, and they all waved before hopping down the stairs.

"Master!" they said in unison as they ran up to him. Before he could say anything, they all hugged him, at the same time, and they made sure to squash him between them as they did.

Veronica with her blue hair was a bit shorter than Jack. Leilani with her brown hair was his height. Rachel with her short blonde hair was a couple inches taller than him. Having all three hugging and giggling was colorful and varied, and Jack did his best to hug them back while ignoring the judging looks he got from his mom and Athalia.

“Dude,” Triss said, and she held up a thumb. “Nice.” Which earned a small slap on her hand from his mom.

“It’s nice to see you too, girls,” Jack said. “Sorry I haven’t been here. I’ll make sure you get your blood later.”

Their eyes lit up like kids on Christmas.

“Yes master,” they said. They stepped back, gave him a small bow, and gave his mom a small bow, too.

“Thank you, Miss Terry.”

“Thank you.”

“Thank you.”

They bowed deeper, and left.

If she’d been Blushing Life, his mom would have incinerated from the heat of embarrassment. She stared after the girls, before looking back at him and the others.

“Don’t look at me,” Jack said, shrugging. “Probably something Antoinette told them to do.”

“You didn’t call them?”

“I did, but I didn’t really fill them in on the details.”

Nodding and sighing, she came in closer to him and gave him a quick pat on the arm.

“I know you don’t like to talk just to talk, but young girls do. Make sure you treat them nicely, even if that means just having a conversation with them every so often. Even if that means ... sitting around and just listening to them talk.”

He raised a brow, and looked to everyone else. Damien shrugged. Triss shrugged. Athalia shrugged.

“Yes, Mom.”

And then they all laughed. Assholes.

“Think you can defend this place without the curse?” Damien asked. Leave it to him to be direct about the issue. One of the reasons he was Jack’s best friend.

“We’ll see. I know Michael’s gonna wanna talk about it.”

Athalia frowned as she looked around. “But you own it.”

“I’m Invictus, and this place was passed down from other Invictus. I don’t really own it. I mean, I kinda do, and I kinda don’t.”

“Stupid,” she said, shrugging, and walked off.

“Mom, follow her and make sure she doesn’t burn my home down.”

Athalia laughed, which was a pretty damn strange sound to hear from her. And kinda creepy, evil sounding, like she belonged behind some big computer screen with a countdown showing the seconds before her deadly nuclear strike wiped out the world.

His mom nodded and followed after her.

“I’ll show you around. This place is huge! Almost as big as my sire’s tower! Well, its basement anyway.”

Jack watched after them as the two mothers left, before he relaxed and sat down on the stairs. He clucked his tongue a few times up at Mulder and Scully, and the two crows nodded before flying after his mom and Athalia. Much as he trusted his mom, she could be a bit of a pushover, and he didn’t want Athalia rummaging through all his shit. The birds would stop her. Hopefully.

“How’re things with Sándor?” he asked Triss as she sat beside him.

“Pretty great, honestly. You’d think there’d be drama, considering how we met, and all the shit with ... everything. But, no, the dude is so chill.”

“Yeah? Sounds kinda boring.”

She snorted a laugh as she shoved his shoulder, and slid him a few inches across the stairs.

“You’d think, but it’s not. He’s—wait, why do you care?”

“What, I can’t care?”

“No. You’re a guy. And you’re Jack.”

“True,” Damien said, nodding. “She makes a valid point. I couldn’t care less about how Beatrice’s dating life is going.”

Triss nodded and gestured to Damien, as if he’d said some universal truth. And Jack did kinda agree, but only a little.

Groaning, he rubbed his hair a few times. How to say this, how to say this.

“I care, because ... shit’s happened to everyone. Bad shit. And I’m hoping people are recovering.”

Damien leaned against the railing beside him. “That’s also true. Fiona was a wreck when Sándor delivered a message to her from Azamel. She really was the grandmother Fiona never had.”

“That old bitch?” Triss asked.

Jack laughed. “She was an old bitch, but probably the kind who was super nice to her close family. I don’t know how Fiona got into that family, or Athalia, or Mark, but considering Mark was willing to die to see her again...”

“Assuming Jacob meant Azamel,” Damien said, “when he was talking about Mark.”

“Assuming, yeah. Athalia doesn’t talk about Azamel, Triss?”

“Nah. We keep the topics light, ya know? It’s her and Sam that get into the heavy topics with each other. I steer clear.”

“They do?”

She nodded as she looked down, tapping her boot toes on the floor.

“They’re the ones who know what each other’s going through, ya know? Sure, I’m Sam’s friend, and I guess Athalia and I can talk now without wanting to kill each other. But it’s those two that are gonna be best friends, given some time.”

Athalia and his mom, best friends. That was a weird thought, but Triss was right, it fit. Both moms who’d lost their daughters. Both had gone through a lot of other nasty trauma, too. His mom had lost her husband, and then killed the next man she’d gotten close to. Athalia, Jack had no idea what other sorts of troubles she’d faced, but considering the sort of shit Begotten had to go through just to survive, combined with having her own daughter hunting her down to kill her, it probably ranked similar.

“I wonder,” Triss said. “I mean, I know what happened with Jacob is probably eating her up, and Athalia is the best person she could talk to. They both blame themselves for shit. But, Athalia’s got a boyfriend.”

Jack grimaced. Best head this conversation off before it went sideways.

“Mom’s been through Hell. I think we should let her recover before—”

“Fuck no. Your mom is not that sort of person, Jack. She shouldn’t be left alone to wallow in misery in a tomb with candles, listening to shitty emo metal, and drawing bleeding roses on her arms with a black pen.”

Jack blinked, and looked to Damien. Damien blinked and looked to Jack.

Triss threw up her hands. “Yes, I’ve done that. You fucking assholes.”

“Okay,” Jack said, “you think we shouldn’t give Mom time to recover?”

“I think some people need that. The super introspective types that can’t get out of their own head.” Predictably, she poked Jack in the skull, and he winced as her claw almost pierced skin. “But your mom? No. She’s better off with someone in her life. She is the last person on the planet who should ever be alone.”

“I can’t even begin to wrap my mind around that.”

“Of course not. You ever stop thinking, dude? You ever stop running thoughts in your head, around and around and around?”

No point in trying to deny it. He knew it. Damien knew it. And apparently she knew it.

“No.”

“Well, your mom is not like that. She’s a, dare I say it, extrovert. Dun dun dun!” She threw her hands up again. “I know, right? Other kinds of thinking exist. Not everyone is like you, or him,” she gestured to Damien, “or Miss BigTits. Some people are like your mom, or Fiona, or Othello, or Harcourt. If they’re alone, that’s basically their own, personal Hell. They do better when they have people in their lives most of the time, people to talk to.” She pointed at Damien. “What would happen to Fiona if she had to spend a week with no one to talk to, no one to text or call?”

“She’d die,” Damien said, nodding slowly as he looked up and went into thinking mode. “She talks to Jessy all the time, and Natasha, and Athalia, and others. When she’s done talking to one, she moves down the list.”

Jack had to fight to not laugh. Much as Damien was smiling at the thought of his girlfriend, he was also wincing. Fiona likely talked his ear off whenever her girlfriends were out of contact. And sure, Damien probably enjoyed listening to her ... for a while. Jack knew the man pretty well, and Damien loved silence like Jack did. Why the man was so into Fiona, he couldn’t figure out, but the man clearly loved her. One of those mysterious examples of opposites attracting and actually working.

“So what’s the plan, then?” Jack asked Triss.

“I dunno. I’d thought about maybe asking her if she wants to fuck Othello and Madison again. Get some intimacy that way, but—”

Jack groaned and sank his face in his palms. “Why. Whyyy.” It was in his head now. His mom, naked, with Othello and his ghoul doing things to her. Argh.

“Oh shut up. Your mom knows you fuck those three girls who just hugged you and called you master. Fucking slut with a fucking harem. Imagine how she feels seeing that?”

“It’s not a ... okay, fine. Mom has a sex life. I can accept that.” In some alternate reality. “But...?”

“But fucking Othello would probably bring back bad memories for her, what with Jacob.”

A mountain of will and mental fortitude later, Jack managed to not cringe.

“Maybe one of the werewolves?” Damien said. “Maybe Carter...”

Silence hit them like a snowball with a hidden rock inside. The azlu had killed Carter, the oldest werewolf in the pack alongside Avery.

“I don’t have anyone in mind yet,” Triss said, “but I figured I should say it. Your mom is not the sort of woman that should be left alone, but she’s too nice to actively go looking for company. So keep an eye open for any guys you’d think would be good for her.”

“Maybe a thrall?” Damien asked. “Or, you know, a few? She is a Daeva.”

Again, somehow, Jack managed to find the strength to not cringe or groan or even squint at the thought of his mom getting triple stuffed. Look at him, growing up.

“Honestly, Triss,” Jack said, “you’re talking to the wrong guys. I mean sure, she’s my mom, but I don’t really, uh ... hang out with people and talk to them. I have no idea who'd be a good match for her."

Damien lifted a finger. "The Prince would know. So would Elaine."

It was Triss's turn to groan. "I mean, I guess I could ask them. The Prince probably already knows, but sure, yeah, I'll talk to her."

"You're going to be talking to her a lot," Jack said, "if you're going to be the leader of the Circle of the Crone in Dolareido."

"Fuck me, leader? There's three of us. The only one who actually does Crúac rituals is me. And I need another fifty years at the fucking minimum before the Prince gives the smallest shit about my opinion. I'm no Primogen. Far as she's concerned, the Circle of the Crone doesn't exist, and I'm just a hippie with a couple friends who like to dance naked around a fire in the moonlight, smoking random plants."

Jack laughed. It was a pretty accurate description of what a pompous elder would think of anyone who called themselves a 'witch' in the modern era. It wasn't accurate to what the Prince thought, though. Ann knew Triss was more than some deluded hippie.

"You know that's not true."

"Yeah, well, it's true enough. And that's fine. Maybe in fifty years I'll have scratched the surface of the mountain of shit Jacob knew that he didn't tell me, didn't get a chance to teach me. The rituals. The ... crazy weirdness. What it means to be in the Circle of the Crone." She looked overwhelmed, like a kid hanging onto a piece of driftwood in a flood.

Jack was shit at this, but it seemed like the thing to do. He put a hand on her shoulder.

“You got a friend in me?”

“Oh my fucking god, you really suck at comforting people.”

His turn to throw up his hands. “Nevermind, then!”

He got up to walk away, but she grabbed his wrist and yanked him back down.

“Thanks anyway, dumbass. You seen Aaron?”

“No. No one’s seen him. I got the whole Invictus keeping an eye open for him, but so far no show. You sure he got out of the Great Below? You said he had no limbs left, and was in torpor. I can’t imagine he survived, Triss.” That’d be enough to kill any neonate vampire.

She shook her head. “Something happened. There should have been more ashes, and the other ash piles weren’t touched.”

“Crúac ritual?” Damien asked. “Something that yanked him out of the Great Below? Or maybe had some sort of reserve blood that allowed him to heal?”

“Probably. Or maybe a ghost came and helped him? Sabrina was full-on helping Black Blood, right? Like, she was convinced he’d help her get out of the Great Below. Could be the fucker had other ghosts under his thumb, too.”

“Got a place to sleep?” Jack asked. “Must be unnerving, knowing Aaron’s out there, maybe plotting revenge and shit.”

“Yeah I do. Jen and I have a little hideaway, something no one knows about. But it’s just a hole in the ground. Literally.”

“You could—”

“Nah we’re not staying here. Besides, I’m a fucking witch. I got ways of defending myself.”

“Witchy witch stuff?” he asked.

“Hell yeah.” She grinned and flicked her crow skull necklace a couple times. Mulder and Scully hated that thing.

“What about Sándor?”

“Yeah, he might be able to help.” She sighed dreamily, leaned forward, and set her elbows on her knees, chin in her palms. “Me and Jen been fucking the guy pretty much all night every night for a week, now. It’s been great.”

Again, Jack went through his sanity-saving routine of burying his face in his palms before rubbing his buzzed hair. But the beaming smile on the girl’s face settled him. She wasn’t just saying that to screw with him. She was happy.

“Glad it worked out for you two.”

“Thanks. Sándor’s great. Pretty damn hard to read, though. Super quiet all the time, making it a bitch to tell if he’s brooding or just thinking about how to play a song.” Her eyes drifted away, thinking up something she liked. “How about you, you little shit? You need help?”

“From Aaron?”

“Nah. If Aaron’s alive, and if he’s got revenge on his mind, he’ll be coming for me. I don’t think that’s what’ll happen, but who the fuck knows.” She stood up and paced around in front of the giant mansion doors. “I meant with normal vampire shit. If Michael gives you trouble about the mansion, I could cast a curse on him?”

Jack laughed. "I'll find out later tonight." A meeting he was not looking forward to.

"Garry gonna gank your ass for all the trouble you gave him?"

"Hopefully not." He didn't think he would. Michael and Garry were both assholes that liked to shove people around, but they weren't colossal assholes. "Uh, put me a good word for me with your old boss?"

She laughed and shrugged. "Uh, yeah sure, I'll try. What about that bitch Bella? She doesn't like you."

"I think my last conversation with her managed to settle things down a bit. I had the curse then, so maybe she was just biding her time. But, uh, hopefully once I talk to Garry and tell him about what happened with Jacob, Bella won't hate my guts so much."

"Assuming Bella wouldn't have wanted Jacob to win," she said.

There was that, and that was a pretty big if. The details of Jacob and Black Blood's plot were still basically a secret, and usually summarized to others as 'an apocalypse'. If people found out what Jacob had really been up to, some might be angry Jack and the others had stopped him.

"Playing damage control will be harder from now on, yeah, but I think I'm fine."

"Maybe," Damien said. "I'm worried about Isabella."

"Ah shit, right." Another facepalm and head rub. "I did kind of bully her, didn't I?"

"Ice queen?" Triss asked. "Want me to deal with her?"

"She's almost as old as Othello," Damien said. "She's strong."

“With delusions of grandeur,” Jack said. “Pretty shit combination.”

“We could have her killed,” Damien said. That was ice cold, even for him.

Jack shook his head. “I’ll talk to her, probably right after my meeting with Michael.”

---

Mulder and Scully perched on some nearby power lines. If something happened, they had specific instructions to tell the girls, and the girls were on standby to contact the Prince. He wanted the girls out of any situation dealing with Jacob or Black Blood, but typical Danse Macabre politics? They weren’t just his food or pets, they were his backup.

Next time he had a minute for them, he’d do more than teach them how to load and shoot a semi-automatic pistol.

Sure enough, as he stepped into the Invictus HQ, repairs completed since the fire, Isabella cut him off before he could reach the elevator. Tall, busty, wearing a business suit with plenty of cleavage, her long dirty blonde hung behind her in a half dozen braids, she grinned at him with icy blue eyes and a very sharp jaw. Daeva doing what Daeva always did, using their looks to get their way, but he wasn’t the simple little Ventrue who’d walked into this building an eternity ago as a naive kid.

This woman was a venomous snake, waiting for the right moment to strike.

“Mister Terry,” she said, blocking him from hitting the call button for the elevator with her body. “How are you?”

He met her icy gaze with a solid, flat gaze of his own. He would not be intimidated.

“Madam Leauvion. I’m feeling a lot better, thanks.”

“That’s good. News got around about how badly you were injured.”

“Second time getting torn up by werewolf claws. They hurt like fire. Literally.”

That got a shiver out of her. Isabella was confident about a lot of things, but a physical brawl wasn’t her strong suit, even as a Daeva. Mekhet would probably have suited her better.

“Not to mention losing your curse.”

He narrowed his eyes. “Got your ear to the ground, don’t you?”

“Of course.” Her grin was absolutely evil. “I have to know where I should put my focus.”

“Not on me, I hope.”

Her grin only got more evil.

“And why not you? You are at the center of so many conflicts, many I didn’t even know about.”

“Not by choice, and not anymore.”

“You know full well you’ll end up in the middle of events in the future, Mister Terry. Be it with the werewolves, or the covenants, or even the nightmare monsters in our midsts, you’ll be put between it all again eventually.”

Much as he hated what she was saying, he couldn’t entirely disagree with her. It was still his job to play liaison with the different groups and try and keep peace as best he could. It was a job the Prince insisted he keep, and as far as he knew, Michael still wanted him to keep; probably not for its peacekeeping position, but the knowledge it made him privy to. A key piece in his game of chess.

“No point in dodging around it,” he said. “No, I’m not the freak I was before. Just a young Ventrue, now.”

“Very young.”

He smirked. “You could probably kill me in a fight, yeah.”

She blinked. Well well well, a hole in her armor: honesty. Typical.

“How will you defend yourself and your assets now, Mister Terry?”

“With the power, of friendship.” And of course, he made a rainbow-like gesture with his hands.

“What?”

“I got friends in high places, Isabella. And in dark places. You really think you’re a threat to me? You? Some ice queen bitch hiding deep underground with a troupe of actors who can barely throw a punch? I’m dating the Prince, and have been for years. My best friend is one of the stealthiest Mekhets around. My second best friend is a witch, and Jacob’s favorite, largely because she’s a god damn natural at being a witch. I’m close with the Uratha, and despite what you may think, we’re not on bad terms. We’re allies, and they’ll help me if I ask. Same for the Begotten.” He leaned in toward the staring Daeva, and grinned up at her. “You have any idea what Begotten can do, Isabella? Any fucking clue at all?”

She frowned, ground her teeth, and said nothing.

“No, of course you don’t.” His turn for an evil grin. “They don’t need to attack you physically. They have ways of getting into your mind, and terrorizing your dreams. Not to mention literally showing up under your bed or in your closet. And trust me, you fucking sociopath bitch, you wouldn't last two seconds trapped in the dark with one of them." He raised a hand, and Isabella glared at it as he pointed a finger at her sternum. He jammed it into her chest, and she took a step back, giving him the space needed to press the call button for the elevator. "And you might not think it, but you'd be hard pressed to find a Ventrue my age who can do what I do. I'm not an ant for you to step on, or child for you to bully. It won't be long before I won't need my friends to grind you into ash myself.

"With anyone else, I'd be trying to make peace, but you are a cruel, heartless fucking sack of shit, and as far as I'm concerned, the city would be better off without snakes like you. But, unlike you, I have a heart. Stay out of my way, and you get to live. Follow whatever official orders I give you, and you get to live. Fight whatever war you want with Michael, and as long as you keep me out of it, you get to live. But cross me and I'll make sure Hella comes home to find your urn, nice and full."

Her eyes had widened, rage and surprise cutting through her usual icy mask, but he didn't have to keep staring at them. The elevator dinged, and he stepped on. Isabella didn't follow.

---

"I have to admit," Michael said, "I didn't entirely believe my childe's report until the last Primogen meeting."

Jack nodded. The two of them stood alone in the usual meeting room the Invictus council always used, a big expensive black table near a wall that was actually a giant touch screen. It was off. No relevant data to show for this conversation.

"The night was pretty insane, sir."

"Insane doesn't begin to cover it. Everything in the report read like something I'd expect to see in a witch's book, or the bible."

“It was biblical in scale, no denying that.”

Michael nodded as he slid his finger up his smart tablet, likely reading more of Jessy’s report.

“Jacob is dead.”

“Yes, sir.”

“So’s the Begotten Mark. The sheriff killed him.”

“Yes, sir.”

“Your curse killed two werewolves, while one of those azlu monsters got another.”

The man wasn’t trying to hurt his feelings, but damn, he was blunt.

“Yes, sir. Avery and Eric have since told me they’ve been working with the Begotten to find the remnant of that azlu, before it grows up. They’re confident.”

“Good. Monsters in the sewers? Shit like that ends up on the news, and then we get hunters on our doorstep. More hunters.” Nodding, he scrolled some more. “Your curse is gone.”

“Yes sir. Black Blood’s doing.”

Michael eyed him. “The report is pretty vague on the details of that.”

“It was a complicated situation.” How to word this without exposing sensitive information. “But, ultimately, Elaine had set up a trap to stop Jacob and Black Blood. She succeeded. Me losing the curse was a step in that plan.”

“I want more details, Mister Terry.”

“Sorry, sir. I was pretty beat up before I even got to Jacob, and missing an eye. Damien was a bit too far to see the nuances. Jessy and the others arrived in the middle of chaos. Elaine and the Prince, on the other hand, were in pristine condition, and hands-on with Jacob until the end. You’ll have to ask them for the more intimate details.”

Michael knew he was lying, that much was obvious. But considering what Jack and the others had accomplished, there was a good chance Michael would let it drop. He did.

“Damien has spoken with Maria at length of the event.”

“Has he?” Jack asked with his best poker face.

His boss glared at him. “He has, but Maria is hesitant to speak of it.”

Jack nodded slowly. “I wonder why.”

More glares.

“Regardless, you and your companions have done well, Mister Terry. I wish I could have been there, if perhaps for a chance to speak to Roland. But, considering how he died, and how ... shortsighted, my feud with Tones over his death has been, I am under the impression he would not wish to speak to us.”

Oh, shit, he was being honest.

“I ... wouldn’t know, sir. I only know his name wasn’t mentioned by any of the souls.”

Michael nodded slowly, and shrugged. “Very well. This event will remain a mystery, as it always had to simple folk such as Garry and myself. How dare vampires such as the two of us live our second lives in the world of the physical, of blood and smoke.”

Jack said nothing. Hearing his boss be honest one moment, and sarcastic the next, was throwing him off. This was not the usual Michael McDonald.

“Next topic. Your mansion. Do you think you are capable of defending it?”

“I think I can. I am confident I can easily defeat a vampire of similar age in any sort of battle, without the curse.”

“Yes, but it won’t be young neonates coming to your mansion to kill you and hide the evidence. It’ll be vampires like Isabella.”

Jack frowned. “Isabella—”

“Is more of a threat to me than she is to you, officially. She wants my head, and my seat now that the council is gone. But she will forever be undermined by her passions, a slave to them. She is a pale shadow of Antoinette, and she knows it. That, however, does lead to a second issue: she is more of a threat to you than she is to me, unofficially. She does not like you. She envies you.”

“I can handle her. And if I can’t, I have other ways.”

“Other ways.” That seemed to make Michael’s night. He smiled bright, and leaned in toward him. “You mean you won’t just bash your skull into her over and over again and hope for success?”

That reversal came out of nowhere, and Jack winced as he looked down.

“I’ve had to learn a lot of things over the past half a decade, sir. And, I admit, I resisted a lot of those lessons. But, yes, I now know if I have to make something happen, it’s not always optimal to bash my head against the problem and hope for the best.”

“Good. Now, I will let you keep the mansion, Mister Terry, assuming you can deal with Isabella, and Hella, and Garry and Bella taking the occasional poke at you and your rather exposed property.”

“I can.” Especially once his three thralls were not only trained in firearms, but conditioned into fit fighting machines. He didn’t have the luxury to pamper them, like Antoinette did her ghouls. It’d be at least a hundred years before Jack had the sort of defenses the Prince did.

“Very well. I hope you’ll do Julias proud.”

“I will, sir.” Even if you hate him for it, Michael.

“Now, the next topic. Carthians have been poking around in Madam Goldman’s and Mister White’s brothels in Devil’s Corner. They expect confrontations in the future. It will be up to you to—”

---

Mentally. Exhausted. One day back on the job and he was already tired. Yeah sure, he had a lot of catch-up work to do, getting his bearings and figuring out who was arguing over what again, but he didn’t expect to have it all dumped on his lap so quickly. Combined with having to worry about Isabella and Hella being thorns in his side, his brain was done. He wanted to curl up in bed, and do absolutely nothing.

A car in his mansion’s driveway told him that wasn’t going to happen.

“Recognize the car?” he asked Mulder on his shoulder. Mulder nodded, cawed once, and shared a mental image of the Prince. One of her cars, then. Trust a scavenger bird to remember details like that.

Scully cawed a couple times, loudly. She wasn't too happy with the Prince, not after what she did to Jen. It'd take some time for her to get over it, and apparently for crows, that could be a while.

He opened the door to find Elaine and Antoinette standing and chatting with each other in front of his big staircase, both dressed in business suits. On the stairs, Ashley and Julee slid down the railing, literally, both girls wearing some casual jeans and t-shirts, and giggling away as they half rolled off the railing at the end to avoid the ball-top post. They were very lithe and agile, far more than their silly attitudes suggested.

They were in their thirties but looked in their twenties, thanks to Antoinette ghouling them, and they had a large education in a lot of subjects. He didn't know if their giggly attitudes would last forever, but he knew for a fact they'd have lost it by now if they hadn't been ghouls. You didn't get to your thirties busting your ass in sports and academics and stay so cheerful. Or at least, he certainly wouldn't have.

"Elaine. Ann." Wow that still felt super weird to say. "What're you doing here?"

Ann walked over to him and gave him a quick kiss, both elders wearing a rather playful grin. For a second, Jack thought maybe Scully would peck her, but she wasn't that stupid, and instead she flew off and landed on one of the huge curtain rods, holding up a ridiculously massive red curtain over a window. Mulder followed her.

"We are visiting," Elaine said. "The girls have not seen much of the mansion. And neither have I."

"You've been here."

"Yes, but I have not explored. I would like to do so. Is that alright, childe oh mine?"

He rolled his eyes before looking up at Ann. She still had that playful grin on. They were gonna tease him about the mansion, how hilariously old fashioned and gaudy it was, and shit like that.

“Fiiine.”

Elaine nodded. The two ghouls clapped. Ann gave him another kiss, this time on the forehead.

“I can see that you have had a rough day,” she said. “We will make it up to you.”

He eyed her suspiciously. “Oh?”

“Of course. Summon your thralls, if you would please, my love. I have a request to make of them.”

He did. The girls came running, wearing maid uniforms with some blatant cleavage, and they smiled for him as they lined up. Which of course invited some rather hungry stares from Ashley and Julee; they loved large breasts as much as he did.

Antoinette stepped up to Veronica, Leilani, and Rachel, and whispered something to them. They all giggled and blushed, gave Jack a few inviting glances, before they nodded and left.

“You’re not going to tell me what you told them, are you?”

“Of course not.” Nodding, Ann gestured down the hall. “Come, show us your mansion, my love.”

---

“This place, is boring,” Ashley said, and she stomped a foot like the declaration needed to be carved into the floor for all time.

They were in one of the rooms. There were a lot of rooms, and most of them were absolutely, utterly, ridiculously pointless, with hilariously fancy old-fashioned furniture that was less comfortable to sit on than a torturer's wooden horse. Lots of golds and reds, huge curtains hanging on walls, couches with curvy wooden legs and undersides, chandeliers, tables with fancy cloth that looked like they were begging to be covered in fancy cutlery, and a bunch of variations on those themes. Some rooms were huge with tall ceilings, taking up two floors instead of one, and one of them had giant bookcases filled with big, ancient books. Another had a giant poker table that must have been 150 years old.

Currently, the five of them stood in the live theater room. Yeah, it was a big mansion. Having three people around twenty-four-seven to keep it clean sounded ridiculous at first, but now, it seemed necessary. The floor was some sort of black tile, and the walls were draped in blood-red curtains, thicker than the others. A dozen small circle tables lined the walls, ready to be pulled into the center of the room when it was time to host a small party, if you could call fifty or more people small. There was a black wood stage with red curtains hanging, and a bar nearby with lots of bottles on the walls. Empty bottles, or fake bottles, Jack didn't know. Useless to a vampire, except in keeping up appearances. The chandelier was, of course, gold, but at least it was subtle and went with the gold and red curtains that hung from the high ceiling a couple feet, likely for acoustics.

Viktor definitely had a taste.

"Boring?" Elaine asked.

"Boring. I mean, super pretty, but boring." Nodding, Ashley approached the stage and hopped up to sit on it, facing the four of them. "Where's the pool!?"

"Sorry," Jack said. "No pool."

"Where's the gaming room!?"

“Sorry, no gaming room. Unless you like poker.” He did actually have plans to fix that. He missed video games.

“Where’s the ... the ... secret basement room filled with computers, where you can solve crazy mysteries and stuff?”

He blinked at her. “I ... what? I’m not Batman.”

“I like it,” Julee said, and she slowly twirled a couple times under the chandelier and the gold light it reflected around the otherwise dark room.

“As do I,” Elaine said. “And I believe Viktor kept a dungeon, Ashley.”

“Ooooh!”

Jack put up his hands. “Not ooh. Nasty. People died down there.” It was also where he slept when not in the tower, in a sealed off room you couldn’t get to without a mountain of explosives and thermite.

Ashley grimaced as she scrunched up her nose. “Nevermind.”

“Quite,” Ann said. “Come, let us explore upstairs. The bedrooms are far more appealing.”

---

~~♥♥♥~~

He rolled his eyes, but it wasn’t long before they came back down to stare at the sight, hypnotized.

Veronica, Leilani, and Rachel, all three girls sat on his big bed, naked, and all three of them were locked in an embrace. Hugging, rubbing, touching and massaging, and kissing. Veronica, shortest of the three, lay on her back, blue hair on a pillow, and legs locked like scissors with Rachel, who sat on one of Veronica’s legs, other leg under one of Veronica's. She was holding both the blue-haired girl's hips, and grinding her pelvis into hers. Scissoring. Leilani lay on top of Veronica, squashing their breasts together, kissing, and rubbing her pelvis back and forth over Veronica's free leg.

From the quiet mewls and moans, the three women were obviously horny out of their minds. They squirmed and writhed on the giant red bed, little whimpers escaping them as they panted with effort, and as Jack took a step closer, he could see the coating of juices Lei left on Veronica's leg.

"Master." Rachel, tallest of the three, a bit taller than him or Ashley or Julee, short blond hair. She grinned back at him, and it melted into pleasure as she continued to grind her slit against Veronica's. "Please, come join us? The Prince told us to get ready." She lightly tugged on a thin piece of black rope hanging from her neck, silently asking him to come hold it. A leash, attached to a choker. Not a choker, a collar. And the other two girls had them as well, both leashes lying on the blanket, waiting for him to take them.

"I did not say you were free to begin without us." Ann rolled her eyes, and mimed Jack's tone and body language to a T. "Alas, young women. Worse than men, in these modern times."

Leilani sat up, half sitting on Veronica's stomach and high on her thigh, and she pouted as she looked back at the watching vampires and ghouls.

"Master hasn't had fun with us in weeks."

Christ, she did her sexiest pout — very sexy — and ground her hips about as she looked at him with begging eyes. Yeah, it sounded hilariously cheesy, the whole sex slave fantasy. Except not so cheesy, when three naked women were grinding against each other, literally leaking juices all over each other and his bed, while looking at him like he was the only thing that mattered.

“I ... have been neglecting you,” he said, and he sneaked a knowing glance up at Ann. She knew he had been. Hell, even his mom knew he had been.

Ann put a kiss on his lips, slipped a quick, practiced moan into it, and gently pushed him toward the bed.

“Do not neglect your thralls, my love. They deserve your attention, as well.”

He smiled at her, before some squirming drew his attention. Ashley and Julee stared at the three busty thralls like they'd been starving and someone had dropped a dessert buffet in front of them. They hadn't been getting much action lately, either. Jack, Ann, and Elaine had been all over each other the past while, but only the three of them, no thralls or ghouls included.

The Prince noticed, and after a confirming glance with Jack, she gave both her ghouls some pats on the ass.

“Go, enjoy yourselves.”

“Yes!” Ashley threw off her clothes in record time, and literally jumped onto the bed. It took Julee a second to register what was happening, but eventually she blushed red, slipped out of her t-shirt and jeans, and crawled onto the red blankets after her best friend.

Jack came closer, and watched. There was something between Rachel's ass cheeks, and he shivered as he recognized the anal plug; gold, because it went with her blonde hair. He remembered what it felt like to fuck Veronica when she'd had one, how it made everything so much tighter. A quick peek underneath her showed Veronica was wearing a blue one, and glancing around Rachel, he saw Leilani was wearing a black one.

He threw a grin back at Ann, and she returned it as she watched him. She'd sent the girls to go get cleaned up and put in anal plugs.

It was a wonder she didn't have them wearing anal-plug cat tails.

Sometimes, it was great being a vampire. Sure, he'd gone through Hell, him and Elaine and Antoinette, and had dealt with some extreme pain, physiological and psychological. Sure, every night was either an overt or covert battle for life and death, as his rant at Isabella embodied perfectly. But, there were some things that made being an undead creature of the night worth it.

He reached up, undid the knot of his tie, and his three thralls looked to him with widening, excited eyes. They didn't care he didn't have the curse anymore, he was still a powerful vampire, and their master. His pets wanted him, now.

Some day, he'd give them the choice. He'd break their Vinculum and wipe their memories. Or, elevate them to ghoul, and eventually, vampire. But for now, they were his doting sex slaves. And the Ventrue part of him loved that.

"Don't stop," he said, smiling. "And let Ashley and Julee join in." An order, not a request.

The three girls blushed, but nodded as they looked to the two naked ballerinas climbing on the bed with them. Ashley didn't need any encouragement, and she pounced Veronica, lying down with her and snuggling into her side so she could bury the woman's closer breast in suckling kisses. Instant mewls. Julee was a little slower to join in, but once Rachel caught the look in Jack's eyes, she reached over to the ghoul, and pulled her in close.

Five women, squirming and wriggling. Rachel didn't stop scissoring with Veronica, but she also used her height and strength to help Julee climb around onto Veronica's other side, and crouch over her, but facing Rachel. And with a little encouragement from the taller woman, Julee giggled, and wrapped her lips around Rachel's huge breast and nipple.

All the while, his thralls snuck glances Jack's way, eyes devouring him as he slowly got out of his suit. Something about undoing a tie and setting it aside, sliding out of his suit jacket, and slowly undoing his buttons, while five women fucked each other as they waited for him, was the perfect ego stroke. The Ventrue in him sang.

Elaine and Ann undressed in the same way, both of them taking their time and undoing buttons on their suit jackets as they watched the girls. No rush. No one had anywhere to be or anything to do. No immediate concerns, at least none that put a wet blanket over everything, or made them feel like they were dodging a responsibility. No reason whatsoever to not focus purely on the moment, and make it last. It was freeing.

He undid the button of his pants, and his thralls paused to stare.

“Keep going,” he said, voice stern.

His pets nodded, eyes half closed, desperate and hungry, and they set their eyes back to each other. Leilani sat up and ground her pussy against Veronica's leg harder, and Rachel ground her pussy into Veronica's with the same enthusiasm. Ashley and Julee had a smorgasbord of hot flesh to indulge themselves, and both girls smiled brightly as they switched between targets. Ashley spent a good amount of time suckling on Veronica's breasts, before she sat up and massaged the huge pillows, flattened with gravity against her chest. Then she switched, and did the same to Lei, before slipping a hand between the girl's thighs, and into her.

Ashley Ashley Ashley, forever overstepping her bounds. What a brat. She was fun.

Lei squeaked, and looked to Jack with begging eyes, as if he'd save her from the sudden assault. He didn't. He grinned at her, and slowly slid off his pants, making sure she knew he was quite happy with the sight of her getting fingered to orgasm. It didn't take long. She erupted into more squeaks and clutched Ashley close, burying the ballerina's head into her large, tanned breasts, as she writhed on the ghoul's fingers.

Jack slipped off his boxers, and Blushed. Instant erection. The girls whimpered as they watched him, even Lei, who managed to keep her half-closed eyes on him as she wriggled on Ashley's fingers. They must have been grinding on each other for a while before he arrived, because Lei's pussy let out more than few drops of her juices onto the assaulting fingers, and her fellow thrall's leg.

"Too fast, Ashley," Elaine said, and she slipped onto the bed, naked and smiling, huge breasts gently swaying underneath her before she sat near the bed's side, opposite of Jack.

Jack chuckled, a far more confident, manly, quiet and dominant chuckle than he'd normally make. Nodding, he climbed onto the bed, and the five girls separated enough to give him room.

"I think," Ann said, "the master should relax first, before he satisfies his thralls properly. Non?" Nodding as well, she climbed onto the bed beside Elaine, did the same cat crawl that had her enormous breasts gently swinging, before she sat against the headboard and leaned back over some pillows. She held out her hands for him.

They'd done this position before. Usually just with Ann and her ghouls, and sometimes Elaine, but never with seven women in bed. He licked his lips as he crawled up to her, got between her milky thighs, turned around, and lay back against her. She hugged him and helped him get settled, until his head was on her sternum, her breasts resting on his shoulders, and his ass was on the bed between her legs.

He held out a hand to his three watching, starving thralls.

"Give me your leashes."

They all gulped, blushed more, and did as commanded. He gripped the long, thin black leashes, and all three girls sighed happily at the sight of his fingers holding their tethers. They liked how it looked in his grip.

“Now, Rachel, lie between my legs and put my cock between your breasts.”

The tall blonde — almost like a mini Elaine — did as ordered, eyes sliding down his body and Ann’s breasts, to his abs, and finally to his cock where it stood mostly upright, half pointed toward him. She got comfy on her stomach between his legs, and inched forward until she put her elbows down around his hips, and his cock jutted up between her two heavy pillows.

“Veronica, lie on my left. Leilani, my right. Press your breasts into Rachel’s.”

His blue-haired thrall nodded as she smiled brightly, and lay almost perpendicular to him, her legs almost touching his since they were spread out. It took a little angling, but she squirmed in over his left hip, and set her two huge breasts on his lower abs. Leilani did the same. Her tan breasts were a bit smaller than Rachel or Veronica’s, but considering how big their breasts were, that didn’t matter much.

It wasn’t long before the three thralls had their six breasts squashed together on his pelvis, and his cock stuck up between them, only the pink, swollen glans visible. Considering how their leashes dangled from their necks, and gently rested against the huge mounds, before crossing his abs and disappearing into his right hand, the sight was glorious. Six huge, malleable pillows of soft, heavy silkiness, squashing each other into round and bending waves, trapping his hard cock until the friction was perfect. And with them on their stomachs, breasts raised up onto his pelvis and lower abdomen, the huge pillows nearly hit their chins.

“Now, make me cum. Grind your breasts against me. Slowly. I expect to be here a while, and you’re going to make this last.”

His poor thralls. At least Leilani looked a little satisfied; he’d punish her for cumming so soon later. But Veronica and Rachel looked delirious, and they whimpered quietly as they looked at him, and then each other.

“Kiss,” he said, earning some more hungry peeks from them.

They obeyed. His three thralls leaned in closer, burying his cock in softness as their lips met each other. First, Veronica and Rachel, the two of them obviously desperate for any kind of stimulation. They kept their eyes on Jack at first, but it wasn’t long before they were looking into each other’s eyes as they kissed, girlish pecks turning into slow, deep kisses, with bits of tongue eventually joining as they moaned. With them leaning into each other like that, his glans disappeared between the squashed layers of breasts.

Lei watched, and let out a jealous whine. Veronica giggled, and kissed her, before Rachel did the same.

Watching his three thralls make out while they slowly ground their six breasts around his cock, their leashes in his hand, was enough to have precum leaking out of his glans already. It was too perfect. But with the pace they moved and ground against him, the stimulus was minor. He’d cum eventually, but it’d take a while.

Elaine nodded, almost like she was proud, before she slipped in under Ann’s right arm and half leaned against the pillows behind the Prince, half turned to face in toward her and Jack.

“Having your slaves take care of our every sexual whim,” Elaine said, “is quite a Daeva thing to do, little Ventrue.”

“I learned from the best.” He nodded as he looked up at Ann.

He expected to see her smiling back down at him, so they could trade a knowing grin. But instead, her eyes were locked onto the three thralls around his cock. She liked what she saw, and her large pink nipples swelled. She really liked what she saw. Something about his pets being under his command and at the mercy of his every whim, now working together to make their master cum in the way he wanted, really seemed to turn her on.

Elaine noticed. She winked at Jack, before she leaned in a little more, slowly and gently slid her lips and nose along the outside of Ann's breast, and slipped the engorged, pink nipple into her mouth.

Ann let out a quiet, deep groan, and finally tore her eyes away from the display so she could look at Elaine.

"Fiend," she whispered.

Elaine chuckled and shrugged, but didn't stop suckling. If anything, she had some fun with it, gently working her head around a little before pushing her face in toward it, and toward Jack. Considering how big Antoinette's breasts were, it didn't take much for the motion to have the breast squashed against the side of Jack's face. Elaine didn't stop. She smiled at Jack from around the Daeva's areola, and pulled back enough to draw his eyes so he could watch how she teased the nipple with her tongue, then some gentle kisses, and then again, deep, devouring kisses that sucked the nipple into her mouth.

Ann sighed bliss.

Jack grinned at his great grandsire, and looked to the ghouls. Ashley stared down at Jack's waist and the three thralls, probably looking for some way she might be able to jump in and join the fun, despite the lack of space. Julee, on the other hand, didn't have a clue where to go or what to do. So Jack reached out his free hand to the brunette ballerina, and motioned for her to slide into his and Ann's left side, opposite of Elaine.

She smiled, thankful for some direction. She got underneath Ann's arm, snuggled into hers and Jack's side, and set kisses on her master's breast on Jack's right shoulder. Kisses traced down and along the huge breast's shape, before finally enveloping the engorged nipple, inches from Jack's face. The skinny ghoul traded a thankful glance with Jack, and even set her hand on his chest to half rest her weight against him — and caress his muscles — as she focused on sucking on her mistress's nipple.

Ann relaxed back against the headboard and pillows, stroked the backs of the two women suckling on her, and looked back to watch Jack's thralls. Jack did, too. Feeling his lover quiver underneath him as Elaine and Julee brought her closer and closer to orgasm had his own juices boiling, and it wasn't long before the warm tingles of orgasm crept up on him. Each flex of inner muscles prepared more heat underneath his testicles, until finally he couldn't hold it in any longer.

The first squirt of cum shot up high, and splashed against Rachel's chin. She pulled her head back from Lei's lips, and stared down at the tip of his glans between the six huge pillows, sticking out just enough that each flex of Jack's cock caused a heavy spurt of white to shoot up. The three girls mewled quietly, like kittens, as they pushed their breasts together harder, milking him. More cum splashed up onto them, soaking their breasts in white until the lines of cum pooled between them. Jack melted back against Ann's body, but kept his eyes on his thralls, and nodded encouragingly to them, all while still holding their leashes.

He almost didn't notice Ann's suppressed moan. Maybe she didn't want to detract from him being the center of attention, but he could feel her quiver slightly, and both Elaine and Julee eased up suckling on her. She was cumming, too, and a quick glance up showed she was still staring at the three thralls as she did. Seeing him coating his thralls' breasts with his cum and getting milked by them, was apparently really good porn for her.

He smiled up at her before looking back at his pets, and gave their leashes a small tug.

“Again. And take turns kissing my cock. I want to see cum on your lips, before you kiss each other.” No one could say he wasn’t getting into the spirit of things.

His thralls gulped as they looked down at the small pool of cum trapped between their breasts, and his soaked glans in the middle of it. They were so horny, they almost salivated. Rachel leaned in and did as ordered, kissing his cock until she fit most of his glans in her mouth, nudging her chin into her own breasts, and her cheeks into Veronica and Leilani’s breasts. The feel of her hungry lips suckling on his swollen cock’s head, so soon after climax, was enough to send another jolt through him. But when she pulled up her head, and a heavy glob of his cum dripped off her lips onto her breasts, his body told him it was ready for round two.

Rachel leaned into Lei, and the brunette happily kissed her. Both girls closed their eyes as they pressed against each other, and his cum shifted over both sets of lips before dripping down, and falling on their breasts. Veronica took the opportunity to kiss his cock, and spent more time than needed suckling on it, burying her face between the six breasts while the other two thralls made out. She licked him, ran her tongue in circles around him, and slipped her lips back and forth along the sensitive base edge of his length’s bulbous tip, drawing more pleasure sparks out of him, until she suddenly lifted her head with a squeak.

“Master!” Veronica’s eyes went wide before she looked back over her shoulder at the blonde ballerina who’d suddenly decided to sit between hers and Rachel’s legs.

Jack couldn’t see well from the angle, but Ashley’s fingers were inside Veronica, pointed down, and the girl was smiling like an evil queen as she pumped her hand down against her. The blue-haired thralls eyes rolled up, mouth open, and she melted against Rachel's side as she came in seconds. Ashley probably knew how to finger her better than Veronica herself did, considering how many years she'd spent doing exactly that to other women.

Jack grinned at the brazen ghoul. She really was a brat. Well, he'd punish her, or Ann would. For now, he shrugged, and gestured to Rachel, who'd stopped kissing Lei and was staring at the woman cumming her brains out beside her.

Ashley didn't lose a beat. Kneeling between the two women, she had no trouble reaching down between Rachel's ass cheeks with her other hand, and slipping her fingers into the woman's pussy, again pointed down. She grinned at Jack as she pumped both hands down, working them together like pistons, until she had the huge bed creaking.

The noise was lost under the sounds of Rachel and Veronica mewling as they both came.

"Wow," Julee whispered, resting her head against Antoinette's breast — and pushing it into the side of Jack's head — so she could watch Ashley work.

"Leilani," Jack said, and the tan thrall looked his way, eyes lost in hunger and envy. "Kiss me until I cum. Lift your head when I do. I want to see my cum coat my three slaves."

"Yes, master." She managed to tear her eyes away from the two girls beside her long enough to lean down, and bury her face in the sea of breasts. Like she'd been taught, she enveloped his glans, and slipped her lips up and down its base edge, all while gently suckling and licking. With Rachel and Veronica squirming and wriggling, layers of soft breast brushed up against her cheeks and nose again and again, but she didn't stop, eyes closing as she moaned around his cock.

“Rachel, Veronica. I didn’t say you could stop.” He gave their leashes a small tug. “Keep kissing.”

Rachel peeked back at Ashely before looking to him with begging eyes. “But master, she—”

“Now.”

She eeped, nodded, and leaned back into Veronica. Both girls were a panting mess, cum dripping down their lips, chins, and necks, and seeing them struggle to keep their eyes open, let alone kiss each other, was delicious. They managed, both leaning into each other as they locked lips, only to whimper into each other’s kiss as Ashley got back to work.

Lei opened her eyes long enough to look up and see her two thrall friends melting away as Ashley gave them no mercy, before she buried her head between six breasts again. It wasn’t long before she pulled her head up again, his cum dripping down her lips, as a heavy gush of more cum shot out from his cock and onto her breasts. Veronica and Rachel didn’t notice. They were still kissing, or trying to, as Ashley grinned madly and made them cum until their knees bent and their feet kicked the bed a few times. Their enormous breasts rippled with their writhing bodies, and Jack’s cum poured up over the huge mounds before trickling down onto his abs.

Ashley stopped, and the girls got to breathe again. They stared down at the new pool of cum coating their breasts, looked at Lei, and then to Jack. They’d liked that they’d cum the same time he did.

“I think,” he said, and he slowly sat up, “that my lover deserves some pampering.” Nodding, he slid out from between Ann’s legs, and motioned for his three stunned, soaked thralls to come closer.

Their eyes shot open. It was no secret his pets were deathly afraid of the Prince. That was part of the fun. They squirmed like frightened puppies as they came closer, and Ann couldn't help but chuckle as she watched them.

"I do feel like being lackadaisical tonight, my love." Nodding, she spread out her arms where Elaine and Julee were still snuggled into her sides. "How shall your slaves pleasure me?"

He thought about it for a moment. So many possibilities. Dozens. Hundreds. He'd have to narrow it down, and try the others in the future.

"Ashley, join Julee. Elaine, come join me back here. Veronica and Rachel, replace Elaine. You two are to suckle on my lover's breast. Leilani, you are going to eat her pussy."

"M-Me?" Lei knelt up straight, eyes wide, new levels of fear working through her.

Elaine laughed as she got up, and with not-so-gentle hands, forced Veronica and Rachel into the groove of Antoinette's right arm and shoulder. Both thralls looked terrified, but when Ann laughed and rested her arm on them, they calmed down. A bit.

Ashley laughed with the same merriment, cuddled into Ann's left side with Julee, and both girls leaned into do something they'd done together a hundred times: kiss her nipple at the same time. Lips overlapping, half fighting half massaging and caressing, they covered their master's swollen areola with kisses and licks, and took turns softly suckling it, pulling it into their mouths. Ann sighed blissfully.

"Veronica, Rachel," Ann said, grinning down at the two newcomers. "Do rub your breasts into mine first. I want to see you lick your master's cum off me."

God damn. Sometimes he thought he went overboard, and got lost in this whole 'master' role. Then Antoinette said something that made him look tame, or at least, not mad crazy with power compared to her.

His blue and blonde-hair thralls looked at each other, her, and then at Jack for a quick confirm nod, before they both leaned their heavy dangling breasts over the mighty, scary Prince. Then they both lowered themselves down, and gently slid their chests around, dragging lines of white cum along her enormous right breast. Ashley and Julee stared from the other breast, hypnotized.

“That is enough,” the Prince whispered.

The two thralls nodded, took a peek at the two ghouls to see how they managed the position, and the two of them snuggled half into each other, half into Ann’s side. Their lips found the large, cum-soaked nipple, and slowly, carefully, they tested their master’s lover with kisses. A smile from Ann and a practiced moan settled their nerves, and they moved from tiny kisses to proper, deep kisses, burying her pink areola in between the two of them. Their lips met each other as much as the hard, swollen nipple, and they kissed each other, sharing his cum between their lips as it ran down their necks and dripped off their huge breasts squashed into Antoinette’s side.

“Master,” Lei said, “I—”

Jack give her leash a tug, and she fell forward toward Antoinette’s legs. And with a little guiding help from him, the girl was soon on her elbows and knees between the Prince’s long milky thighs.

“Eat her,” Jack ordered.

She whimpered quietly, and Elaine, probably the most evil out of all of them, chuckled as she reached down past Jack and gently pushed on Leilani’s head. The brunette froze for a moment when her face was suddenly pressed to Ann’s slit, but once Ann made a tiny, inviting moan, Leilani relaxed, or at least stopped shaking like a leaf.

And then Jack grabbed her hips, and slammed his cock into her.

“Master!” She sat up with a jolt and looked back at him, only for Elaine to again push her head back down.

It was an interesting position, for sure. Ann, half lying on a mountain of pillows, half sitting back against the headboard. Ashley and Julee were snug under her left arm, both cuddling into her and kissing her left breast. Veronica and Rachel were snug under her right arm, kissing her right breast. Lei was on her elbows and knees between her legs, eating her out, ass in the air so ripe Jack could see her dripping slit grip his girth, and he could see the — likely very large — anal plug above it.

One thrust confirmed. Whatever she had in her ass, it was large, and it buried her tiny pussy in more tight pressure he could feel all the way to the tip of his length.

Moaning hungrily, Elaine came up behind him, got on her knees like him, and pressed her breasts against his back as she hugged him from behind him. She was more than tall enough to look down over his shoulder, and watch Leilani’s tight slit grip his cock as he rammed it into her.

“Let me, childe oh mine,” she said, and slid her hands under his. With a heavy growl he felt, Elaine tightened her grip on his thrall’s hips, pulled her snug to him as she pushed Jack into the thrall’s ass, and forced them to grind together. She was stronger than him now, a lot stronger. He was trapped.

It left Jack’s hands free. He still had his thralls’ leashes in hand, but now he could use his other hand to give his slave a hard slap on the ass. Lei squeaked into Ann’s pussy, earning a happy chuckle and sultry moan from his lover as she looked down at the quivering thrall's eyes.

“Ashley,” Ann said, “hold her.”

Ashley grinned up at her mistress, then back at Jack, and then down at Lei as she slipped her fingers into Lei's long brown hair. Giggling, she gently pinned Lei's head down so the girl couldn't so much as take her lips off Ann's pussy, before she turned back in and buried her face into Ann's breast again.

No need to worry, then. Jack gave his slave another hard slap on the ass, and shivered as she clenched on his length. Elaine moaned into his ear, and apparently decided foreplay time was over. She drew her hips back so Jack moved back with her, and slammed her hips forward, driving Jack's cock back into her, her grip firmly on Lei's hips. Power fucking. Poor Lei didn't stand a chance.

The brunette tried, she really did, earning a few practiced moans from Ann, but it wasn't long before it was obvious she was faceplanting into Ann instead of eating her out, while her insides clamped around Jack's cock and drenched him as she came.

“She failed,” Elaine whispered. With an evil laugh, she forced Jack to keep power fucking her, and Lei's arms gave out. She fell onto her chest, cheek on Ann's pelvis, mouth open and drooling. Ashley could have held her head in place better, but the girl wasn't that mean. It was clear Lei was cumming hard, squeezing as hard as she could, and everyone stopped what they were doing to watch the brunette tremble, and her ass jiggled each time Jack's pelvis slammed into her.

Jack couldn't help himself. Even as Elaine continued to power fuck his thrall with his body, forcing her to drench his cock until her juices dripped from his testicles, he slapped her firm ass again. Again, she clenched, her tiny mewls turning into gasping pants as she struggled to breathe between her pleasure tremors.

Elaine was ruthless. She stopped power fucking the girl, and helped pull the girl up. Jack was feeling a bit ruthless, too, and he hugged the girl with one arm, hand squeezing her breast roughly, while his other pulled on her leash until her back was pinned to his chest. He turned her to face Elaine, and the two of them buried her body between them, as they each took a side of her neck, and drank her. The rush of warm blood filling their stomachs had Jack and Elaine groaning.

The poor thrall left a wet spot on the blankets a foot wide.

Both Ventrue set the exhausted and drained thrall aside, before both setting their hungry eyes on the rest of the orgy.

“Rachel,” he said, and Rachel sat up with a tiny lip tremble. He pulled on her leash. “Replace her.”

Gulping, Rachel did as ordered, climbed over Ann’s leg and got on her knees between them. Again, Ashley — apparently vibing on the power wavelength the Ventrue were indulging in — slipped her fingers into Rachel’s hair, and pinned the girl against her master’s pussy. Ann was content to watch, right hand holding Veronica’s head to her breast, left holding Julee. And Elaine did the same as before, getting behind Jack, and guiding him toward Rachel.

This time, Elaine used her hands, wrapped his cock, and aimed him against Rachel’s soaked lips. He took her shivering hips this time, and slammed his cock into her hard enough the bed shook, her ass rippled against him, and she groaned into Ann’s slit. Jack fucked her on his own, slamming his hips and pelvis into her at rapid speed, while Elaine, still snug to his back, gave his thrall several harsh slaps on the ass. Each time, Rachel clenched down hard, but did manage to work her mouth against Ann’s body enough to earn a few approving sighs of pleasure from her.

That stopped when Rachel’s body began to tremble, her insides buried his cock in random spasms and clenches, and a fresh coating of juices drenched him. He almost didn't realize some of those were his, until a glance down showed white coating her pussy's lips. He didn't slow down, powering through his orgasm until Rachel collapsed, same as Lei.

Again, Elaine picked her up, and again, the two Ventrue took a drink, forcing the writhing thrall to soak Jack's cock until her juices flowed down his thighs.

Veronica lasted less time than either of them. Ashley replaced her on her master's right side, and now that Ann's ghouls had both her breasts all to themselves, they were familiar enough with her body to help bring her to another orgasm quickly. Which meant Veronica was eating the Prince's pussy as she came, and trying to find a balance of stimulating and not overstimulating, while Jack fucked her hard. More than a few times, Ann shuddered as Veronica probably licked her a little too hard mid-orgasm, and Jack made sure to punish her with a hard ass slap. And when he didn't, Elaine did.

He smiled up at his great grandsire, and motioned for her to go to Veronica. She did, sharing his evil grin as she helped pull the girl up to kneel straight up, and press chest to chest with the much taller vampire. Elaine sank her fangs into Veronica's neck, and Jack did the same. This time, he fucked his slave as he did, not able to thrust hard with the angle, but more than hard enough for his tiny thrall to cum again as two sets of fangs buried her in the bliss of the Kiss; not to mention the giant anal plug making her pussy so tight, every thrust drove his cock straight into her g-spot.

He didn't cum, though. Almost, but he stopped shy. There were still four women on the bed, and he wanted to keep going. The two Ventrue set the exhausted, basically unconscious women next to her fellow thralls on the foot of the bed, before looking to Ann and the two ghouls nuzzling their faces into the sides of her breasts.

“How many times have you cum?” Elaine asked, gesturing to the Prince. “I thought this was about Jack. And yet here you are, the center of everyone’s attention.”

Ann rolled her eyes. “A few, if you must know.” Before Elaine could retort, Ann pointed a finger at Elaine’s pelvis. “You would have done the same. You are dripping like the whore of Babylon.”

Elaine groaned — playfully — as she looked down at herself.

“Jack and I have both just drank. Three times.”

“Well then, I think it is time for you to take the spotlight.” With her arms still behind each of her ghouls’ backs, she motioned to the nearby desk. “Lubricant, for you.”

Elaine grinned, slipped off the bed, fetched the lubricant, and crawled back, again doing the cat crawl thing specifically for Jack’s benefit. Ann was right. The woman’s thighs were soaked in her juices. Well, Jack wasn’t much better off. A belly absolutely full of blood, his thralls’ blood, had him ready to fucking explode again.

Ann motioned for Elaine to come to her, earning a raised brow from Elaine and Jack, and a laugh from Ann before she gestured down at her stomach and spread legs.

“Come lie upon me, silly woman.”

“Oh my.” Elaine licked her lips, turned around, and lay on Ann just like Jack had done earlier. She snuggled in, made sure to shift around until both of the Prince’s huge breasts rested comfortably on her shoulders, before she handed Jack the lubricant.

“Girls,” Ann said, “do treat Elaine well, would you?”

As Jack poured lubricant on his cock, Ashley and Julee slid down Elaine’s body, and Elaine closed her eyes as the two ghouls wrapped their lips around the elder Ventrue's nipples. Without a glance, Elaine spread her legs wide, putting her bare, empty, smooth slit on display, and the copious juices dripping from it. A few Kisses and a belly full of blood would do that to any vampire, let alone watching an orgy from a foot away.

Jack slid in close, got his knees under Elaine's thighs, and guided the tip of his cock down to her asshole. Slowly, he pushed his cock's head against the entrance, and took his time spreading the lubricant around and around using his glans. Both him and his great grandsire groaned quietly with the sensation.

He poured a little more lube onto his cock, tossed the bottle aside, and slid in closer. Each inch he came forward was another inch of his length slipping into her squeezing insides, a tight ring of muscle that clenched and unclenched in spurts. She was toying with him.

He took his time, and let the pacing of the night slow down so they could enjoy it. He'd fucked his three thralls into comas, but with a little concentration, a mental reset allowed him to slow down to a crawl, and shiver in bliss as his great grandsire's ass milked his length. He slipped his hands around her hips, and inched forward again, until he was balls deep inside her.

"Girls," Ann said, "make her cum."

Ashley giggled, Julee mewled, and both girls slid their hands down Elaine's flat stomach and onto her swollen clit. Julee stayed there, caressing and teasing, but Ashley knew what she wanted, and she slid a finger into Elaine's squeezing slit. A new drop of juices eased out of her, and down onto Jack's cock. Elaine sighed bliss, until Ashley slipped another finger into her. And then a third. Her sighs turned into moans, and she melted back against Ann's body, as the two ghouls played with her.

Jack barely moved, easing his hips back just enough to feel a bit of friction of her insides, of her ass's ring of muscle squeezing the base of his length, and of his swollen cock's head pressing against her depths. It'd take a long time to cum like this, but he'd already cum three times. Elaine hadn't cum once. He could wait. And besides, he wanted to focus on watching.

Elaine didn't so much as lift her hands, leaving them to both rest on the girls' hips, while she enjoyed being the one pampered. She was rarely the center of attention whenever they had these group sessions. It was wonderful, watching her eyes close and her mouth open as she drifted away into pleasure. She hadn't cum, not yet, but it wouldn't take long at all, and Jack smiled down at her as he fought the urge to fuck her hard.

Without warning, Ashley started finger fucking her hard for him. Elaine's eyes snapped open, and she glared down at the blonde ballerina sucking on her breast, but Ashley didn't stop; probably out-of-her-mind horny and beyond saving, considering how long they'd been going and no one had so much as touched her yet. She'd pay for her brazen behavior later, and she knew it, too, but that didn't stop her. She finger fucked Elaine hard enough they all heard the slapping sounds of her fingers hitting the woman's inner wall. And Jack felt it, too, the jackhammer motion of the ghoul's fingers hitting the back wall of the woman's pussy, straight down into his cock, before up again against her g-spot.

She only slowed down when Elaine came. She came hard. Fluid flowed over Ashley's hand, and the little ghoul giggled as she withdrew her fingers, and let Elaine's clenching muscles force more juices to leak out of her empty pussy until it flowed down over his cock, beneath it, and down her ass and his testicles. She'd drenched him. Holy shit, Elaine had really been wanting that.

"You little devil," Elaine said between pants. "You—" She quivered and stared down at her beautiful, empty pussy, as Julee's hand slipped past her clitoris, and sank three fingers into her as well, stretching her insides apart.

Ashley moaned into Elaine's breast, her own eyes closed, barely aware of what was going on, as she found Julee's hand, and worked past it. Another three fingers forced their way back into Elaine's pussy, and the elder watched, mouth ever so slightly parted in unprepared pleasure, as the two ghouls stretched her wide while bathing her breasts in suckling kisses. A belly full of blood had her whole body blushing, her pussy and nipples swollen like crazy, and every motion the girls did had her quivering. Breathing too hard on her neck would have been enough to make her cum, let alone two girls fingering and pounding her insides.

Jack couldn't wait any longer. With six fingers inside her, everything was so damn tight, wriggling sensations from digits that fought for space inside her pussy he felt in her ass. And when Ashley and Julee started finger fucking her properly, enough to have her huge breasts rippling against their faces, Jack fucked her, too.

He grabbed her hips, pulled his hips back, and slammed them into her. It was a poor angle for anal sex, at least for her pleasure, but that didn't matter with six fingers opening her up and slapping up against her g-spot again and again. She came in seconds. He didn't stop.

"Jack!" The powerful, deadly, normally so very confident and in control Ventrue, looked at him with just a hint of desperation in her eyes. "Slow down!"

He didn't. He grinned at her, and winked at both ghouls. They didn't stop, and he didn't stop. Elaine at one point actually tried to push the ghouls away, but Antoinette got her arms out from behind her ghouls, grabbed Elaine's wrists, and pulled them up over her head.

"Harlot," Elaine said, voice wavering as she looked up at her old friend.

Ann looked absolutely drunk on pleasure, her eyes constantly drifting between Jack and Elaine. A far more honest expression than she'd normally ever let herself show.

Elaine squirmed and writhed on Jack's cock, arms still held up over her head so Ashley and Julee had free rein, and she glared at him for a whole half a second before she closed her eyes and melted back. A fresh coating of juices leaked out of her, drenching him. He didn't stop.

He tightened his grip on her hips, and knelt up straight. Elaine managed to open her eyes again to look up at him, back arched, head still pinned to Antoinette's sternum. The ghouls had to adjust slightly to deal with the new angle of Elaine's ass being in the air, but they did quickly, and continued to devour the elder's breasts as they fingered her. And now Jack had the angle he needed to fuck her properly.

He thrust forward, hard, hard enough he felt his great grandsire's ass ripple against him, and her huge breasts jiggled underneath the pinning faces of Ashley and Julee. Her ass squeezed, only the copious amount of lubricant allowing him to keep fucking her, as she trembled on his cock and came again.

It wasn't long before he flooded her insides, her relentless milking of his cock draining him and sending jolts of pleasure through his core, under his testicles, and down into his thighs. Each flex of his inner muscles poured more cum into her, and more, and he gave a hard thrust with each, waiting a full second between thrusts to make sure he drained every ounce of cum he could into her.

And then he did it again. She was going to punish him later, and Antoinette was going to let her, no doubt. He was just a young neonate Ventrue. How dare he do something so absurd like fuck his great grandsire until her whole body was a trembling mess, and every few moments she clamped down like a vise, and soaked him?

Yeap, Elaine was gonna make him pay for this.

Worth it.

~~♥♥♥~~

Chapter 178

~~Author's Note~~

These last 4 chapters are mostly just fun sexy times, with a strong focus on monster sex, kind of like a primer for my next series The Pleasures of Hell. Expect kinky monstery goodness.

~~Natasha~~

“Bye,” Samantha said, waving as she stepped out of the apartment, Daniel beside her. “Bye!” And back to the tower she went, sheriff in tow.

Natasha and Jessy waved from the couch. So did her boys, and Eric, and Beatrice and Jennifer and Athalia and Sándor. The others were in the kitchen, having an argument about how to cook steaks. Well, the boys were and Eric were, and Athalia. Sándor said nothing, while the two vampires witches provided witty commentary as they examined the raw steaks.

Jessy and Tash, on the other hand, stayed on the couch, the one along the wall across from the kitchen, so they could see the kitchen, the others, and the door as Sam and the sheriff left. Which was a good spot to be sitting, because the video playing on Tash’s phone, was utterly carnal. If Sam saw it, she’d implode.

It’d taken a second to figure out what was happening in the video, but after a few disorienting camera pans, they’d pieced together the puzzle. And they watched it again.

It was Jack’s bedroom in his fancy mansion; well, one of his bedrooms. Antoinette’s ghoul Ashley had the phone, and she was having fun with it, aiming it at her own naked body before turning it to face the crowd on the bed. And it was a crowd. Antoinette was on her back with Julee snuggled into her left side, hugging and kissing the woman's absolutely enormous left breast. Jack's three thralls were kneeling on Antoinette's right, and each of them were also kissing the Prince's body, burying her right breast and big pink nipple in kisses. Antoinette looked pleased.

---

Jack was straddling her stomach, and with his three thralls on Antoinette's right, each of them pushing their face into her right breast, the breast was sitting more in the center of her torso. Ashley brought the camera in nice and close, so it showed Jack's penis rubbing on the huge breast, his dripping wet glans leaving trails of juices along her areola. His thralls kissed it away, and either kissed the engorged nipple, suckling on it, or they kissed Jack's penis. Or each other, often with Jack's penis, or Antoinette's nipple between them.

A hand stroked the base of his length. At first Tash thought it was his own hand, but Jack's hands were out of the way, behind him, as if he didn't want his arms to get in the way of the camera. It was Elaine's hand. She was also straddling Antoinette, sitting behind Jack and reaching around him so she could work his shaft with one, and sometimes both of her hands.

Jack let out a small groan, and Ashley zoomed in so all the camera could see, was Antoinette's breast, the faces of three thralls kissing and licking and suckling, and Jack's cock with Elaine's hand, milking him as he gushed cum onto his lover's nipple. The thralls let out quiet moans as they buried his cock in kisses, again half kissing each other, half kissing Antoinette's nipple, and covering it all in more strands of white as the young man gushed cum. A lot of cum. Jack was taking advantage of his Kindred body and indulging in his orgasm, prolonging it and making sure to absolutely coat Antoinette's breast until it looked like avant-garde art.

Judging from the quiet, satisfied moans from the Prince, she wasn't just enjoying it. She was cumming, too. Tash knew her boss had very sensitive nipples, but, wow.

With an ecstatic giggle, Ashley handed the camera to one of the thralls. They took it as Ashley cuddled into Antoinette's left side along with Julee, and the position was repeated. Ashley and Julee pushed their master's giant left breast up onto her torso, and buried it in kisses as Elaine guided Jack's cock onto it. The young man's great grandsire worked his length in slow, deep strokes, and made sure to run his dripping glans around her friend's areola in circles, before settling it on the center of her nipple so the two ghouls could kiss it and their mistress at the same time. And each other.

It wasn't long before Jack came again, and drenched the Prince's other breast in white.

---

Jessy and Tash both gulped as they leaned back into Tash's couch.

"Jesus fucking christ," Jessy said. "That kid is just living in a fantasy world."

"You have four g-ghouls who—"

"Yeah yeah I know. But I haven't fucked them since Eric. This kid though, has got two ancient elder vamps pampering the shit out of him, and five sex slaves he's pumping his cum into on the reg."

"I'm sorry, what?" Athalia asked as she walked over. Apparently a lull in the argument about steaks allowed her to hear the ever-too-loud Jessy.

Jessy snatched Tash's phone and tossed it to her.

"H-Hey!"

“Oh come on. If Ashley sent it to you, she’s gonna send it to me, too. And Fiona. Athalia would see it eventually anyway.”

“Jesus,” Athalia said, staring at the phone. “I ... Jesus.”

“I know, right?” Jessy said, chuckling and gesturing to the phone. “Christ, I’m jealous.”

“Envious,” Tash said.

“Whatever!”

Her raised voice drew the others, and soon everyone was standing around Athalia and looking at the phone.

“Holy shit,” Matthew and Art said together.

Jen and Triss stared. Sándor looked, face its usual unreadable, stern self, but he did do a double take before eventually sitting on the other couch.

“You vampires are ridiculous,” Athalia said, and she gestured to the phone as she held it a little closer to Triss and Jen. “That ... boy, has seven women in his bed!”

“That he fucking does,” Triss said, and she took the phone. “My fucking god the tits on that woman.”

“Indeed,” Jen said, and she leaned in close to admire the video. “Though, I think it’s worth noting that Jack is quite the sexy little morsel. Julias trained him well.”

“Fuck yeah he did,” Triss said. “Kid’s got abs for days.”

Nodding, Jen licked her lips as she glanced Sándor’s way. “And quite an exquisite looking cock. Look how Elaine holds it.”

Poor Sándor. The man looked up at Jennifer, eyebrow raised, and Jen giggled as she leaned over the sitting man and gave him a quick kiss. The girl loved to tease. How she wasn't Daeva, Tash would never know.

Matt, Art, and Eric all looked clearly troubled. They liked what they saw, but the camera was focused on Jack's penis, a man they knew. Men got awkward about that sorta thing.

Athalia looked just as troubled, at least she did for a moment, before she took the phone back, sat beside Tash on the end of the couch, and made the motion like she was about to return the phone ... but didn't. She slowly drew it back and stared at it as she leaned into the couch's arm. The video didn't stop. It just kept going and going, showing stuff Tash hadn't seen yet. Seeing the young man pin Ashley down by her throat against Antoinette's sternum, the Prince's huge breasts resting on her ghoul's shoulders, while Jack fingered the lithe, skinny girl into a plethora of orgasms, was particularly hypnotizing.

Jessy laughed. "I'm picking up on a few clues, Athalia."

With a snort, Athalia quickly gave Tash back the phone. "I don't know what you mean."

"Ha, yeah you do. Skinny girl getting choked and fingered into a coma? Bet that scratches a fantasy."

Athalia groaned. The only thing hiding the blush in her cheeks was her dark complexion.

"Don't be absurd. Not every girl walking around Dolareido is looking to wind up in an orgy."

Jessy leaned in over Tash toward Athalia, and her grin would have made the Devil envious.

“I didn’t say orgy.” She licked her lips. “I bet a lot of your sex with the sheriff plays out like this: you, him, sitting around on a couch, having some pretty fulfilling but boring-as-fuck conversation about real life shit. You get up, maybe to get a bite to eat, but you make sure to put just a little hip sway into it, or toss your hair a bit. You play innocent. Suddenly Daniel, the big tall scary-as-all-hell sheriff is there, silent as an assassin, and you turn around, pretending to be shocked. He adjusts his glasses as he looks at you, gaze steady, like some sort of anime villain, and—”

“Anime?” Jennifer asked as she sat beside Sándor on the other couch. “You watch cartoons?”

“Shut up, let me finish. Then he reaches down, takes both your hands, and pins them up over your head against a wall. He uses his other, slips them into your pants, and—”

“Fine, fine!” Athalia squirmed a few times. Poor woman. Vampires had a good nose for blood, and they could tell hers were flowing faster.

“Sounds awesome to me,” Triss said, sitting on Sándor’s other side. “I mean, getting pinned against a wall and fingered and shit. I’m not really into Daniel. Dude scares me and not in the sexy way.”

“He’s not scary...” After a moment of silence from the room, Athalia groaned and shook her head. “He’s not! Not ... usually ... He’s just quiet.”

“Quiet like Sándor?” Jennifer asked, before shaking her head. “No, it’s not the same. Sándor is quiet because that’s who he is. Daniel is quiet because he’s plotting a thousand ways to kill you every time he looks at you, and because he knows showing any kind of expression would be a tactical disadvantage.”

That did sum up Tash’s sire pretty well. There was always something going on his head, probably dozens of somethings. He never stopped thinking, planning, plotting. It was why he made a good Mekhet, and a good sheriff.

A tiny mewl erupted from Tash's phone. The video was still playing, and despite the volume being set super low, a woman had made a loud enough noise everyone in the room heard it. Before Tash could stop the video, Jessy snatched the phone, and groaned.

"Wow, that girl has got a kink." And because she had to, Jessy held up the phone in a slow pan for everyone to see. Jack was fucking Julee, very hard, while the girl was on her knees between Antoinette's legs, hands pressing on her mistress's hips. The Prince had both her hands around her ghoul's throat, and was clearly choking the girl while Jack pounded her from behind. And to make matters worse for the poor brunette ghoul, Elaine knelt beside her, and was routinely giving the ballerina's butt a rather harsh slap.

Julee always had a super innocent look to her, and kinda behaved like Tash sometimes. Which made the new twist the video had taken all the more problematic, because everyone knew the sort of kinks Tash enjoyed, considering the videos she'd shared. The grin from Matt and Art confirmed, they were picturing her getting the same treatment.

"That reminds me," Triss said. "Anyone find a guy for Sam, yet?"

"Is that something we're doing?" Jessy asked, looking to Athalia. "I mean, Jacob hasn't even been dead a month. Moving on kinda fast."

At this point, everyone knew Athalia and Samantha had become close friends, even if it was Beatrice who spoke on her behalf. It made sense. Triss would always be more comfortable with the group than Athalia.

"It is something we're doing," Athalia said. "Maybe not throw her into a situation right now, but Sam is not the sort of woman who should be alone. She's her happiest when she has someone."

Tash tapped her chin. That, was true. Samantha was simply not the sort of woman who did well on her own, which, kinda irked Tash. Her, Jessy, Jen and Triss, and obviously Athalia, all prided themselves on their autonomy. It felt weird suggesting that the woman was actually better off with someone in her life, and yet, it was true. Some people simply did better when they weren't alone. Some people needed other people.

There wasn't anything wrong with that, but it did mean the lot of them weren't well equipped to understand her. And they all knew it, each of them throwing some guilty glances at each other.

"I'm sure the Prince is helping her," Sándor said.

Triss nodded. "Yeah, but, there's gonna be a bit of awkwardness there. And, uh, I'd ask Othello, 'cause that dude absolutely loves hanging out with Madison and other people every moment of every night. But with his history with Sam, that'd get weird."

"How about Fiona?" Jessy asked, looking back to Athalia. "She's got that kinda personality."

"Yes," Athalia said, "but she's just a kid. And sure, her Horror has memories of her own, and plenty of wisdom to share, but none of that would help in this situation."

"This," Matthew said with a powerful hand gesture, aimed to the sky, "is a challenge for the likes of the pack!"

"No it isn't," Jessy said, shaking her head.

"No, it isn't," Eric said, shaking his head.

"Yes it is!" With a confident nod, Matt spun around once in the center of the living room, before he grabbed one of the kitchen stools and sat on it. “You lot may not have noticed, but I generally don’t like being alone. Art and I hang out twenty-four-seven. Others in the pack go all day every day with someone else in the pack nearby. We know a thing about social types.”

That was also true. The Uratha were a pack, and they did talk to each other and other people all the time. They mingled with the kine, and vampires too, made friends, and got the ‘lay of the land’ the old fashioned way: lots of talking. Eric was the oddity.

“Gonna sleep with her?” Jessy asked Matt, raising a hand. “‘Cause, I mean, if you two and Tash bag Sam, I want that video. Or can I just, like, come watch?” Eric sat on the arm of the couch beside Jessy, and gave his girlfriend a firm, loving pat on the shoulder. Which quickly evolved into a forceful squeeze that earned a squint of pain from her. “I give I give! Jesus!”

They all laughed. It was a nice sound.

Tash raised a hand. “That d-does bring up a good point, though.”

“Wait, it does?” Jessy asked.

“Yes.” And she gave her friend a pat on the leg, much gentler than Eric’s. “Do we w-want Sam to find someone else to love, or just a friend? And, I s-suppose, maybe someone else to fuck as well?”

“That is a good point,” Triss said. “I’d just assumed we were gonna play matchmaker, but Sam doesn’t necessarily need someone to replace James and Jacob. At least, not yet. She definitely needs romance in her life, but in the meantime, yeah maybe a friend?”

“I’m her friend,” Athalia said.

“Yeah I know, you’re a closer friend to her than I am, and I’m glad. But Sam’s gotta have some man energy in her life. And some dick. So a friend with benefits.”

Jennifer nodded. “Agreed. She’s just that kind of woman. If this was a eighty years ago, she’d be a stay-at-home mom raising six children, and loving every moment of that life. She’d happily cook supper for everyone, and when her husband came home from a hard day at work, she’d happily give his tired body a massage and quick blowjob in the privacy of the bathroom before serving supper to him and the kids.”

Tash raised a brow as she looked at Jen. They all did. But the Ventrue just shrugged like what she’d said was perfectly reasonable.

“I read a lot,” she said, as if that explained everything. “Though, in retrospect, she’d do all that, but she’d also be one of the first people to help the resistance if it was World War II.” And the last detail gave it away. She was reading about some romance story set during World War II. From the look on her face, she’d found the fantasy of being a loving house wife back then strangely appealing. Or at least novel.

“Okay,” Triss said, laughing. “I uh, wasn’t picturing that. But yeah, Sam likes being a mom and wife and sitting around with a bunch of other wives, drinking wine and talking about their kids and the latest books they’ve read and the latest shit crime or medical drama they’re watching.”

Jessy, Athalia, and Tash all cringed.

“Exactly,” Matt said. “So, the Uratha can help her out. Carter—”

Oh no. Matt cut himself off as he looked down, and took a deep breath as he gulped down something in his throat. He’d forgotten. Much as Tash hadn’t known Carter, he had seemed like an interesting, older man.

“Carter,” Art said, stepping in closer to his best friend, “might have been an interesting match for Sam. Old fart, bitter on the surface, but a heart of gold.”

They all smiled. That did sound like it could have worked.

“So we’re sure it needs to be a man?” Jessy asked.

They all looked to Triss and Jen.

“Uh...” Triss scratched her head a few times and looked to Jen for help. Jen shrugged and gestured back to her. “Uh, well, I mean, probably? I think Sam is her happiest when she’s opposite some masculine energy, you know? But, um, sexually, she’s ... willing to explore.”

Jessy leaned in. “Gimme. Details.”

“I don’t—”

Jen leaned in toward Jessy. “Her, riding Jacob, but facing Othello. Othello, fucking Madison’s ass until she’s a mewling mess and clutching Sam for dear life. Sam, kissing and suckling on Madison’s breasts as the gorgeous creature cums her brains out.”

“Fuuuuck.” Jessy squirmed a few times as she looked up and let her imagination wander.

“Jen,” Sándor said, “I think maybe Sam would prefer you didn’t tell everyone about her sexual past.”

Jennifer grumbled as she sat back and folded her arms across her chest. She knew Sándor was right, and it was terribly cute seeing her take his advice. Something about the way the man talked was soothing, even when he was more-or-less berating Jen for being rude. You couldn’t be mad at Sándor, and you couldn’t help but consider his words when he felt the need to say something. Part of that was how rarely he did say something. Part of that was his calm, direct, mentor-like way of talking. No wonder Azamel asked him to take over for her.

“Either way,” Triss said, “she needs a man in her life.”

“Agreed,” Athalia said. “I guess we should all keep an eye open. And ... as much as it pains me to even think of it, Samantha probably wouldn’t mind us trying to help her more overtly. She is a social creature. As long as we respect her, we can do this like ... like...”

“Like normal people would?” Art said, laughing. “You know, hanging out, talking, having a good time, getting drunk and introducing people?”

“I do that!” Jessy said. “Minus the drunk part.”

Arturo shook his head. “You’re on the hunt when you do that. Either for blood or sex, but you’re always on the hunt, Gangrel. And it comes through in your actions. Even the humans see a predator when you’re on your best behavior.”

With a playful, fake scoff, Jessy put her fingers on her sternum, as if Art had just wounded her with his words.

“You wound me, sir!” There it was. “I’m not ... always hunting.”

“Yes you are,” Triss and Jen and Eric said in unison.

Jessy slumped her shoulders and leaned against Eric’s hip, him sitting on the couch arm.

“You’re out of your depth,” Art said. “Antoinette would do better.”

“P-Probably,” Tash said, “but it would be awkward. I know I can barely talk normally when my sire is around.”

Jessy lifted a finger. “Same.”

“Then I think,” Art said, “it’s time Sam made some new friends in the Uratha. I bet Brianna or Clara could help her quite a bit. Though you should probably come too, Athalia.”

“Sure, I’ll be there.” Nodding, Athalia got up, and headed for the door. “If you’ll excuse me, I think I’m going to head home.”

“Let me know how it goes,” Jessy said, grinning at Athalia like a devil.

After a heavy, exaggerated groan, Athalia grinned slightly, and went.

---

“Why not!?”

“B-Because...” Tash squirmed on her couch, suppressed her embarrassment, and glared at Jessy on her laptop screen. “Because!”

Jessy rolled her eyes. She was on her side, in bed, and Eric was behind her. It wasn’t the first time Jessy had called her during the middle of sex with her boyfriend, and it wasn’t the first time Tash hadn’t hung up immediately when she’d realized.

“Tash, I’m telling you, and Eric’s confirmed. Whatever Luna did to the city, it’s made it safe for Uratha to transform. Well, I mean, safer. As long as you don’t try and kill them, I’m sure Matt and Art can fuck you senseless, no worries!”

Tash frowned and folded her arms across her chest. How Jessy managed to have a conversation with Eric spooning and fucking her, Tash didn’t know. The Gangrel was clearly enjoying herself, with nipples blatantly hard, and little shivers occasionally working through her. Her laptop’s camera was pointed at her upper body, and Jessy had her head propped up on a palm, elbow against the mattress so her other hand could work the laptop.

Eric peeked over her shoulder long enough to give Tash an affirming nod, and kiss Jessy's neck, before he sank back behind her. His arm sneaked up around Jessy and half hugged her before he cupped her lower breast, and casually teased and caressed it, while he maintained a slow fucking rhythm. Jessy had completely corrupted him.

“Matt and Art are huge! And I'm t-t-tiny!”

Jessy outright moaned, and it wasn't because of Eric.

“Sounds perfect to me.”

“Well, unlike you, my v-vagina isn't the size of a—”

Jessy laughed and pointed a finger at the camera.

“We've seen you getting double stuffed by those two boys, Tash. You can't fool me. I saw the look in your eyes when you looked and saw yourself getting split open. You were wondering what it'd be like if they were giant, fucking glorious wolf monsters, forcing huge cocks into you.”

Groaning, Tash squirmed a little more. Why was Jessy her best friend? The woman was brazen and rude and hedonistic and ... and absolutely concerned with Tash. She wanted Tash to be happy, which in Jessy's mind, meant the best sex possible.

“I ... don't know. I mean, they'd be so huge!”

“Just get them to go slow.”

“W-Would they listen?”

Eric poked his head up again. “Yeah, they would. Don't worry, Tash. Luna made it pretty clear. Dolareido is a blessed city.”

“Or c-cursed,” Tash said, gesturing at nothing, but obviously implying all the things that’d happened recently.

“Yeah, true, but Luna has a vested interest in the city. She wants Uratha to stay here. And considering it’s Dolareido, she figured out a way to do that.” Eric kissed Jessy’s shoulder, and disappeared behind her again.

Jessy grinned evilly. “It’s working pretty damn well, from what I’ve heard. Mason’s fucked that Tilly girl while transformed. Even Brianna’s fucked her two boys while transformed.”

Both girls looked up, wondering. How would that work? Big powerful werewolf woman with two normal-sized vampire men?

Big movement on the camera drew Tash’s eyes. Something gigantic moved in, black and gray and white and blurry, until the camera focused and revealed a cat’s fur. An American Shorthair.

“Kat, you bitch.” Giggling, Jessy reached out and dragged Kat off the laptop’s keyboard, and into a snug hug and a big kiss on her head. The fact Kat interrupted a bout of sex didn’t bother Jessy at all, or Kat apparently. This was probably a common occurrence.

After a few pets and kisses, and deep scratches into the cat’s head fur, Jessy lifted Kat up and set her beside the laptop with only her tail in view. Judging from the tail, Kat settled down, and probably chose the laptop’s exhaust as a warm place to nap.

“You’re gonna do it sooner or later,” Jessy said. “You know you will.”

“I w-won’t.”

“You will. And then you’re gonna describe it to me in intimate details.”

Tash scrunched up her nose. “I won’t!”

Jessy laughed like an evil queen. “Yes you will. I’d say you’d eventually film it too, but fucking hell no matter what we try we can’t get cameras to work when Eric changes. Fucking werewolf Luna curse or some shit. Buuuut, you will tell me about it, ‘cause you’ll be dying to share details, you little nerd.”

Groaning, Tash looked away, but some more movement drew her eyes back. Eric was fucking Jessy faster, fast enough her big breasts rippled against her chest, and Jessy groaned quietly as she reached around and set her free hand on Eric’s hip, off camera.

“N-Not if you’re gonna be mean about it.”

“I’m not being mean!” She chuckled a few times, a few groans sneaking in between them. “It’s just killing me waiting. I want it to happen so we can talk about it! Big, juicy details.”

“You have a problem. Big meanie.”

Jessy rolled her eyes. “Imagine it, Tash. A giant, sexy-as-all-fuck werewolf with a huge hand wrapped around your waist, slowly pushing your tiny pussy onto his huge dick until he’s stretching you deep, deep, and deep. And when you think you’re about to burst, that super thick bottom part sinks in, and you can feel him so deep inside you it’s like he’s just ... wearing you on his cock like a toy.” She groaned, louder, her own dirty story driving her crazy with arousal, and she half closed her eyes as she turned her torso into the blankets.

---

Eric took it as a sign. He got up, got behind Jessy off camera, rolled her onto her hands and knees so the girl’s ass was high up, also off camera. The camera was focused on Jessy’s upper half, so Tash could only see her friend’s big boobs smushed against the blankets, and her back curve deeply. Jessy grinned at Tash, reached out, and turned the laptop just enough so the camera was now looking down from near Jessie's shoulder and over the rest of her body. It put Eric in view as the naked, very handsome dark-skinned man grabbed Jessie's hips, and thrust into her hard enough the Gangrel's big ass rippled with the impact.

Apparently the conversation had driven Jessie to the edge, because it wasn't long before she was cumming, her groans turning into moans. She made no effort to suppress them. And as much as Tash enjoyed watching Eric's hard body pound away at his girlfriend, arms and abs flexing with each thrust, Jessie's noises had Tash looking at her. Why was the Gangrel so damn hot? The short pixie cut blonde hair, the muscular but feminine body, the large breasts squashed, one sticking out from under her chest where the camera could see. It was absolutely unfair.

Then again, Jessie thought the same thing about Tash and her tiny, skinny little body. The grass was always greener.

Eric and Jessie finished, and Eric sat back, leaving Jessie's big butt to take up most of the screen, laptop still by her shoulder. Tash expected the call to end, but nope, Eric flipped Jessie over, earning a very girlish squeal from her, and he slipped his knees under her legs. There was more than a few spots of white cum on Jessie's body around her thighs and pelvis.

"M-Missionary?" Tash asked him. With Jessie on her back and legs spread, now it was Eric's amazing body on display, camera pointed directly at him between Jessie's knees.

He shrugged. "What's wrong with missionary?" The tiny, but very real cocky grin on his face was frustratingly pleasing and hard to look away from. He knew he was handsome. And he knew he could put on a good show, and play for a crowd. Spending his younger days as a professional fighter had definitely given him a bit of that arrogance Jessy loved. She probably spent every day trying to draw more of it out of him.

Jessy laughed, and slid the camera a bit so it was more beside Jessy, but a bit further away, so it could see all of both her and Eric.

“Ain’t no girl ever cum from missionary, Eric,” Jessy said.

“You have.”

“Well, yeah, when I’m full of blood and I’ve already cum five times. Kiss my fucking ear and I’d cum when I’m like that.”

Tash smiled. These two were so strangely perfect for each other, it was a joy to watch. It was also great porn, and the next time Tash saw the boys, she was going to funnel all this bundled up sexual energy right into them; and show them the recorded footage at Jessy’s request. But, it was also heartwarming to see Jessy so happy. And Eric, too.

“Eric,” Jessy said, “let Tash pick the position, ya?”

Oh no.

Eric stopped thrusting, rolled his eyes as he smiled at Jessy, and looked to the laptop.

“Hit me,” he said, waiting.

Oh no oh no. They’d never done this.

“I ... I um...”

“Come on, Tash,” Jessy said. “I know you’ve got lots of ideas. You got that horny nerd mind running all the time, picturing scenarios. How you wanna see me get fucked?”

Tash wriggled and squirmed on her couch, looked away, looked back, looked away again, before slowly looking back, eyes sliding along Jessy's naked body, big breasts flattened against her chest, down her hard stomach, and then up Eric's harder abs and thicker arms and shoulders.

There really was no point in being embarrassed anymore. Habits died hard, but, she did know what she wanted to see.

“Y-Your ankles ... over his shoulders...”

“Ah yeah.” Nodding, Jessy grabbed a thick pillow and put it under her butt, before lifting her hips up. Eric gave each of her ankles a quick kiss before setting them on his shoulders, before the man took her hips into his hands again, with her legs between his arms so they wouldn't slide off.

Tash loved directing her own porn films. It scratched some weird itch inside her that loved being in control, despite very much losing control when her two boyfriends fucked her. But, telling other people how to have sex? She hadn't thought of that.

The two of them fell into a very comfortable rhythm. They'd done this before, and had slept with each other so many times, they knew exactly how to make the other happy. Jessy made sure to lift her arms up out of the way, and grinned at Tash several times, as Eric's thrusting made her large breasts flow back and forth along her chest. And Eric flexed his hard abs and arms probably a little more than the position required. They looked amazing.

Jessy came first, and she arched her back as she did, smiling at the laptop camera for a second before melting into her pleasure. Eric slowed down, but sped up a moment later. A quiet grunt from him told Tash he was about to cum.

“W-Wait, Eric, don't. Can you ... climb onto Jessy, and ... um, cum on her breasts?”

Eric blinked at Tash, before another tiny, handsome grin hit his lips. He spread the trembling Jessy's legs aside, and crawled up onto her stomach and straddled her. His long, dark cock dripped with Jessy's juices.

Eric leaned in toward the camera, and smiled at Tash, making her freeze and blink, before the man brought the laptop in close. Much much closer. Once it was directly beside Jessy, the camera lens at the top of the screen allowing it to look down over her chest, Eric grabbed his cock in one hand, and slowly stroked the drenched length as he aimed it down toward Jessy.

Jessy recovered quickly, and with a still lightly trembling body, took her breasts into her hands, and pushed them up onto her chest. Eric had no trouble pressing his cock's swollen glans against one of her nipples, and he masturbated onto it.

They knew what she wanted. She wanted to see them do what Jack had done in the video, or at least as close as they could mirror it.

From so close, the camera could only see Jessy's lips, jaw, neck, breasts, and Eric's cock, one of his big muscular arms, and his flexing abs. And soon, all Tash could see, was the gush of white squirting out of his cock, and onto Jessy's body. Thick, heavy strands of white, each leaving huge trails along Jessy's breasts and over her nipple, and then down in the valley between her breasts, and onto her other nipple. Eric came, a lot, just like Matt and Art did, a ridiculous amount of cum that soon had Jessy's chest absolutely drenched in white, until a couple lines of it trickled down her ribs near the camera.

All the while, as Tash stared at the glorious display, she couldn't quite ignore the words in her head, yelling at her that this would look so much better through the lens of proper professional cameras, under controlled lighting. She'd make Eric's abs glisten and pop, and Jessy's breasts look divine.

“Um...” Tash bit her bottom lip. “Can w-we try another?”

---

She had to wait a whole night before she got to meet up with the boys again. Now that Black Blood had been dealt with, she didn't have the contract she used to have to keep them under her thumb. They didn't have to go where she told them to, and instead had to do what Avery told them to do, which meant hunting that final azlu.

It made perfect sense, and Tash wouldn't have stopped them, but damn it, she was out of her mind horny! How could she not be? Eric and Jessy had done everything she'd asked, and that'd gotten increasingly kinky as the night went on. It'd scratched an itch inside Tash she didn't even know she had.

Every night, Tash felt a little more of Jessy's evil corrupting ways devour her.

A knock on the door. Finally. The boys stepped into her apartment. Jeans, t-shirts, the usual. They took off their boots as they looked around, and Tash stepped into view.

“Tash,” Art said. “I—whoa.”

“Whoa,” Matt said, staring at her.

Tash stood there in absolutely nothing but some sky blue thigh high socks, and a bottle of lubricant in hand they knew well. And as they stared at her, she Blushed Life.

It was beyond embarrassing how quickly her body lit up like kindling. Right in front of them, her skin fleshed out and gained a bit of color, as much as a tiny pale girl's could, but her nipples also hardened and swelled, and she could feel her vulva doing the same.

She knew it'd changed a few shades of pink, no need to look down and check.

“Um ... something happen?” Art asked, smile turning into a hungry grin as he pulled off his t-shirt, revealing tan skin and delicious muscles.

Matt didn't bother asking. He smiled bright and stripped out of his clothes with all the grace of an ox.

Art was a little bit bigger than Eric, and Matt was a bit bigger than Art, and Tash licked her lips as she looked them up and down, imagining their huge bodies squashing her tiny one between them. Maybe Jessy had a point.

“J-Just, um, a very ... sexual vid call with Jessy. I recorded it for you. B-But, later! Now, I am...” Dying. She was absolutely dying. “Come on.”

They followed, stripping off more clothes and tossing them on the floor as they did. She didn't care. The only thing on her mind was getting her two boyfriends inside her, now.

She hopped up onto her bed, on a big towel, and popped the top of the lubricant.

“No camera?” Matt asked, stepping in and standing beside her, near the bed.

“No. No camera. Just sex. We're going to f-f-fuck, all night.”

“Well damn,” Art said, standing beside Matt, “you even need us here? You look—”

“Shut up!” She glared up at him as she spread her legs, poured a giant glob of lube onto her palm, and got to work spreading it on her ass. She tried to keep up the angry glare, but it melted away as the lube softened her skin more and more, until she slipped a finger past the ring of muscle, and another finger, and made sure to absolutely drench it with enough lubricant to drown someone. Nothing would interrupt them tonight.

Satisfied, she slid the towel and herself to the edge of the bed, reached out, and grabbed both men's cocks. They were already half erect, and a couple strokes was enough to bring both large phalluses to fullness, thick and hard, hot and lined with interesting patterns of veins. She bit her lip as she looked up at them and their massive bodies, and gave them her best doe eyes before she leaned in, and kissed the tips of their lengths.

The smell of testosterone, life, flesh and sexual desire, it came off the boys in spades. It had her dripping. She switched from man to man, working both their lengths with her hands, a tight grip at the base of each long cock massaging the firm, almost spongy but hard texture of their girths. All the while, she slipped the head of one cock into her mouth, buried it in suckling kisses until her lips slid back and forth along the base edge of the bulbous tip, before switching to the other man. They both groaned quietly, and she gave them her doe eyes again, knowing full well it'd drive them crazy, and make them throw her onto the bed, pin her, penetrate her together, choke her, squeeze and hug her and bury her, until she—

She squeaked, sat back, and set her palms down against the towel around her, as she stared up at the giant men. Gianter men. They grew larger, and larger, and larger. Thicker. Heavier. Where there was skin, short dark fur emerged, short enough that it didn't hide their insane musculature. Their cocks changed, thickening, and turning into shades of red from end to end, with a big thick round base above two enormous testicles; just like Eric's had been, that one night Tash saw him fuck Jessy as a werewolf.

Werewolves. Massive, towering behemoths of muscle, with thick necks and longer fur, practically manes. Hunched forward slightly, like hunting animals usually did, the two monsters rumbled deeply, quietly, in their throat as they looked down at her, and their animal eyes devoured her.

She could hear their new hearts, enormous, thumping heavy and hard in their gigantic chests. She could hear their huge lungs taking slow, deep, hungry breaths. She could feel the heat radiate from them, like living furnaces.

“Um ... uh...” Oh shit. “I ... I d-didn’t ... uh...”

Arturo, fur slightly darker, body slightly smaller — still almost nine feet tall! — lowered himself down toward her, and set both hands on the blankets around her. Oh god he was huge.

“Jessy told us to, last night.”

“Jessy!” Oh that bitch. That manipulative, scheming, overstepping bi—Tash squeaked, and stared down at Arturo, as the colossal creature lowered himself down and down, until the titan was inches from her face.

He slowly ran his long tongue along her cheek.

“You’ll like,” he said, voice so deep and rumbly she felt the vibration through the floor and bed. “Promise.”

She shivered as Matt came down, and did the same, opposite cheek. And his rumbling purr was so deep, she felt it buzz inside her. She almost didn’t notice, eyes locked onto the size of his shoulders. She could curl up into a ball and fit inside his torso, with room to spare.

“I ... I mean, I ... I d-don’t know if ... um...”

Arturo got down onto his knees, leaned in between her legs, and ran his long tongue up her tiny, smooth, swollen and drenched slit.

She squealed, reached out, and grabbed the giant beast by the fur his neck. Soft fur, warm, inviting. She blinked as she stared down at him, and he looked up at her with wolf eyes as he nudged his huge, teeth-filled snout between her thighs, and again licked her pussy. And again, she squealed, but at least no so loudly this time.

Matt pushed in beside Arturo, one hand pressing on Art's back so he could lean over him, and not jam their giant shoulders together. And as Arturo experimented with his massive tongue along her slit, Matthew pressed his tongue against her slit as well. Tash had no choice but to put one hand on Matt's head, and sink her fingers into his mane to hold on, as she stared down at what was happening.

Two terrifying beasts, two strangely handsome, towering juggernauts, creatures of violence and legend, were licking her pussy. At the same time. They didn't care if their tongues touched the other's. They buried her small slit with broad strokes of their tongues that fought for space on her body, and she froze, legs spread wide, her hands on their necks near the backs of their heads, her eyes locked on the strange sight.

Werewolves were terrifying. Absolutely, utterly terrifying. And the two biggest ones she'd ever seen were burying her clit and tiny lips in so much warm, wet friction, she was shuddering in minutes. She came, and she forced herself to keep her eyes open as she dug her fingers into their fur, let out a defeated mowl, and watched them relent. But they kept their tongues pressed against her, not moving, not licking, but still burying her pussy in wet heat as her clit fired sharp jolts of pleasure into her thighs and insides.

They really were terrifying. And ... thrilling.

They both stood back up, mostly, crouched low enough their huge bodies loomed over her, and they rumbled desire. Their cocks were pointed straight at her. Enormous, pinkish redish things, each thicker than her wrist, with knots at the bottom even more swollen than before. Jessy took one of those things, all the way inside her, regularly. Tash didn't know how.

Possessed by some evil, vile demon of lust, Tash's hands reached up, and did the same as before, wrapping each giant cock in her grip. She squeezed them gently, experimenting, and both wolves purred; she almost melted at the sensation of the vibration flowing through her. Gulping, she squeezed again, testing the firmness and unique texture of something she'd never thought she'd touch. So warm. Not as hard as she'd thought they might have been, but considering how big they were, that was a good thing.

Again, completely not of her own volition, she leaned in, and set a kiss on the tip of Matt's enormous cock. The heavy, bass-filled, rolling purr she pulled from him had her thighs quivering. She did the same for Art, getting the same purr, and a little more as she tried to fit more of his cock into her mouth. The tip was slightly more pointy than a human penis, but quickly grew thicker than anything like one. She could only manage the tip no matter how wide she opened her mouth, and she couldn't even get her fingers all the way around it. But from how Art's rumbling purrs continued and grew, that was enough.

She worked her hand back and forth along it, and when large drops of precum rose to the surface, she spread those with her fingers along his cock, and resumed. A hot, gentle prod against her cheek drew her attention to Matt as the beast poked her with his length, then slipped one of his titanic hands behind her hand, and gave her a gentle pull in his direction. Matt would normally wait his turn. This Matt had a little more aggression in him. The animal desire in his eyes pulsed through her until she was rubbing her thighs together.

She fit as much of the titan in her mouth as she could, and ran her hands down his thick length until they hit the strange new shape at the base. His knot, a super thick part of his cock, hot and firm, and when she cupped it and teased fingers along it, experimenting, the biggest werewolf in the city rumbled deep in his throat, and loudly.

She blinked up at him, and outright squeaked when the beast used his giant hand, and gently pulled her toward the corner of the bed.

“W-What are you doing? Matt? I—” She sucked in a quick breath as the titan gently pushed her onto her back, and with her butt on the corner of the bed, her legs dangled limply over the bed’s side and bottom. Art stepped aside, and watched.

Matt reached down, took her legs, and brought them up. One of his palms was as wide as her shin was long. She stared at the size of his grip, not able to compute what she was seeing, as the colossal beast brought those tiny shins toward her shoulders, until they pressed against them, her back rounded and ass pushing up into the air. He’d bent her in half.

The werewolf’s cock rested against her pussy, and she stared at it, at how long it was, how wide it was, and how Matt picked a position Tash knew would let him ram himself into her. Her fake heartbeat skyrocketed, and she whimpered quietly as she tore her eyes away from the gigantic cock, and up toward the beast looming over her.

Matt leaned in, and gave her a gentle lick on the cheek again.

“Will be gentle,” he said between deep rumbles.

Her heartrate slowed. A little. He was in control.

She nodded slowly, her whole body shaking like a leaf as Matt stood up a bit straighter, and used his left hand to pin both her ankles to her shoulders, burying her upper chest under his palm and long fingers. His right hand took his giant cock, and pressed the slightly pointed tip against her clenching pussy.

He eased in the first two inches, and already she was spread wider than ever before. She stared down her bent body, at her tiny slit, and watched in a strange mix of fear and awe, as the huge red length spread her apart. It wasn't like she wasn't already dripping wet and ready, but the thing was so gigantic, she couldn't help but bite her bottom lip as she stared.

He eased in a couple more inches, and she mewled. He eased in a couple more, and she whimpered between growing pants. There was a distension on her lower abdomen, showing a subtle outline of the thickness of his cock, how much he was stretching her wide, and now pushed against her deepest places. As the titan gently forced in another inch into her clenching pussy, she moaned. Any other time, it might have been too deep already and maybe a bit painful. But she knew she was drenched, her insides aching and swollen, and begging to get penetrated and stretched deep.

He still had many inches to go, and she reached up between her pinned legs up to his giant body looming over her, and gently pressed on his abs and lower chest, the only things she could reach. The titan kept going, his wide, giant chest and torso coming in closer until she disappeared in shadow, and he sank another inch into her stretched insides. And another. The pulsing waves of sensation as his cock forced her deepspot deeper into her body had her legs trembling under his pinning hand, and she managed a few more weak whimpers as Matt pushed deeper.

He let go of his cock, and her legs. He placed both his hands against the bed around her shoulders, and again, Tash whimpered as she realized she couldn't lower her legs. They stopped at his arms, half hooking over his elbows, trapped and unable to go lower. She was trapped under a mating press.

She meeped like a squeak toy as Matt lowered himself down onto her until his giant chest and abs were only inches from her face, and his thick cock's knot pressed against her already stretched lips.

“W-Wait! Wait, p-p-please...”

With a heavy, deep purr, Matt held still. He stayed where he was, giant body of short fur and muscles covering her, her ass held up because her knees were locked toward her shoulders by his arms. But he did listen, and stopped, leaving just enough room between them for her to look down at her small belly, and the bulge pushing out against her abs.

“Oh ... god...” Whenever Matt and Art were both inside her, her short stature, tiny frame, itty bitty waist and flat stomach meant she could see a subtle distension along her body, showing how deep they penetrated her. This time, it was just one of the boys, and the bulge was bigger. And deeper. Her head was swimming, hints of pain from being stretched so deep disappearing under waves of tingling bliss that flowed down through her legs and back up into her chest.

Matt gently shifted his pelvis back and forth a little, just enough to gently pull his thick cock back out of her a couple inches. She mewled as her clenching insides came out with him, the grip of her flesh almost sucking on his cock, before he gently sank himself back down onto her, until again his knot pressed against her lips. Slowly, gently, the giant beast again fucked her just a couple inches, stretching her so deep she thought she might burst.

She relaxed back against the blankets, reached up between her raised legs again, and ran quivering hands against Matt’s abs. With him hunching over her, normally she’d look up to see his neck and chest over her head. But now he was a werewolf, and she gulped as she stared up at his sternum and upper abs over her head. She was so small compared to him. So very, very small.

The giant creature rumbled, a heavy purr that vibrated out through his body into hers, and she let out the tiniest mewl as it sent tingles into her toes.

He picked up speed, and she let out a little whimper with each gentle thrust the giant made into her. Each time, her insides clenched tight, and she peeked down to watch her stretched pussy squeeze around him, and to watch the bulge push up along her belly. She'd had no idea she could stretch so much. Each inch he worked was delicious friction on her squeezing insides, rubbing against every inch of her, while the terrifying beast forced her aching depths deeper into her.

She came again. Her head fell back, and she stared up at the werewolf as tingling bliss worked through her, flowing up and down in waves that started deep inside her pelvis. She managed another quick peek down at her pussy, only to groan as the sight of her juices leaking out of her, coating the giant red cock filling her, and soaking the knot pressing against her lips.

Matt slowed down for only a few moments before he resumed, not giving her nearly enough time to recover. A few more squeaks worked out of her, and she again pressed up against the giant chest and abs directly overhead, a pathetic weak attempt slow the werewolf down. He wasn't going fast, but with everything stretched taut, each inch was friction and pressure filling her up until she could only pant. If she'd been human, she'd have started seeing stars from not breathing.

As the giant beast got a little faster, Tash managed to turn her head. She couldn't see much, with her legs and their thigh high blue socks nearly pinned to her shoulders, still hooked around Matt's arms, but she could see another werewolf. He stood nearby, waiting, not touching himself at all despite how hard his cock was, with several thick drops of precum leaking from the tip. Art was waiting his turn, and she knew what he was going to do to her when it was.

Then he disappeared, as the hulking beast already over her lowered himself more, and suddenly she was pinned under Matt's chest and stomach, unable to see a thing. His body pressed down on her, literally, pinning her whole body to the bed while he bent in her half, her legs sticking out from around his arms, while he pushed his cock down against her. He stopped thrusting, and instead ground himself down into her, and he pushed harder.

“M-Matt!” She managed to pull enough air in to say his name, but nothing else. She tried to say things like ‘wait’ and ‘stop’ and ‘no please I’m going to break’, but they all disappeared under her panting mewls as the werewolf pushed. Again, she pressed up against his chest, but even that was hilariously weak. She could have pushed harder, gotten his attention, she knew that. But some part of her was locked in place, head swimming, as the beast ground his cock’s thick knot against her soaked slit.

Slowly, the giant creature forced a sliver of his cock’s base into her, and a bit more, and a bit more, each bit making her body tremble and her insides clench. He was stretching her, deeper, and wider, and all she could do was whimper as he buried her with his body against the bed. Her juices flowed down her from their connection, soaking her, and she whimpered into Matt’s chest as her squeezing muscles milked on his length. He didn’t stop.

The knot slid in. What little air she had left came out as a tiny squeak, and she pressed up on Matt’s chest hard enough to finally get his attention. He lifted his chest and head up, and looked down at her and her body with hungry eyes, and thank god he’d stopped moving. Any movement would have been too much. She couldn’t stretch anymore! She was going to burst. Absolutely, utterly, was going to burst, and she whimpered as she looked down at the long bulge reaching across the whole length of her belly. The bulge near her pussy, just above her pubic bone and below her navel, was huge, showing where the beast’s giant knot was stretching her to the limit. Only its soft flesh texture, and the fact she was dripping soaked, made it possible.

And the beast was so deep, she swore she could feel him in her stomach.

“Slow!” Finally, she found some air again. “Slow! P-Please ... Oh ... oh god, I can ... Oh god.”

With a deep, purring rumble, the beast lowered himself down onto her again, and she mewled openly as she was again pinned by his body. For a second, she was terrified he'd get aggressive and fuck her hard; way too big and too deep for that, way way too deep. But the deadly, gorgeous monster gently flattened her against the blankets, so again only her legs could be seen sticking out from under him, hooked around his forearms, as he slowly fucked her.

He gently pulled himself back an inch, but her clenching pussy kept the knot buried in her, refusing to let it go. Then he pushed back down onto her, and she whimpered openly as the tip of his cock stretched her as deep as she thought her body could possibly go. He stayed there, balls deep, and ground into her in a gentle humping rhythm, sometimes working his body in slow side-to-side motions, and sometimes back and forth. There wasn't much friction anymore since he couldn't pull himself out of her, but there was pressure, so much pressure on her insides she could barely have moved even if he hadn't pinned her.

She came again. The unending bliss of being so full, of having so much thick, hot pressure filling and stretching her in every possible direction, was too much. She melted into the blankets, and her arms went limp as the giant beast continued to gently grind on her, working his cock around and around so the pressure drifted in different directions, but forever against her deepest places, while his knot pressed relentlessly on her squashed g-spot. The pain of being penetrated so deep was quickly lost under waves of more tingling electric shocks that worked down her legs until her toes curled, and up into her chest until she was a trembling mess.

A loud rumble announced the beast's orgasm, and Tash let out a squeak as Matt at last gave her an actual thrust. Not hard, not hard at all, but she had no room left inside her, and he literally forced the squeak out of her. Again, and again, gentle thrusts that filled her to her limits, and she squeaked with each one like a squeak toy, as the titan pumped thick waves of warm cum into her. More and more, unending waves of white she felt overflow her insides instantly, and gush out of her, literally splashing against her thighs before flowing down onto her stomach and ass. More, and more, until she felt her insides stretch a little, parts of her deepest places filling with his warmth she couldn't have expected, until she could feel her swelling belly pressing against the beast's body.

At last, Matthew stood up, and growled like a possessive wolf as he looked down and licked his chops. Her belly wasn't just bulging with the ridiculous amount of flesh he'd forced into her anymore. It was bulging with cum.

"Oh ... g-god," she said, staring down at herself.

After a few satisfied, rumbling purrs, Matthew stepped back, and pushed against her thighs to keep her on the blankets as he removed his knot from her body. It took some effort, and her clenching insides didn't make it any easier. She couldn't stop her body from trembling with orgasm aftershocks, and the sheer pressure of his knot against her g-spot. But he managed, and Tash forced herself up onto her elbows to stare at the sight.

His cum gushed out of her like a momentary waterfall, and within moments, her belly was back to its tiny, flat shape.

"I ... I ... I d-didn't kno—Art!" She managed another squeak, one of many tonight, as Art came around and picked her up. He'd been waiting a while, and she could see animal lust in his eyes. He was ready to cum then and there.

She mewled as she stared up at him, biting her lip as the giant beast held her in his huge hands like a toy, and inspected her, considering his options. Pin her on the bed, like Matt? On her back, or on her belly? Maybe on her side? Maybe—

She trembled as the beast turned her over so she was facing the ground, and he held her horizontal in the air. With one giant hand holding her tiny waist, his other half wrapped around her left shoulder and half wrapped around her neck, he guided her ass toward his cock, and pressed its dripping wet tip against her entrance.

“Art, slow down! Slow ... down...” Her voice melted away as the beast pushed against her. He did go slow thank god, and she managed to relax a little. Just a little. Two giant hands with claws held her like she was a doll, and every time she glanced back and up, she could see the hungry eyes of the wolf staring down at her body, hunched posture meaning his chest and head were over her, like he was ready to pounce and eat her.

Her ass was still soaked in lubricant, and Matt’s ridiculous amount of cum. Art didn’t care. He rumbled as he slipped the tip of his huge length into her asshole, and paused long enough for her clenching muscles to stretch. He didn’t wait long. The beast pulled her further toward him, and she whimpered and managed to lift her head again to look down her back and over his hands, to see her tiny ass spread apart around the massive, thick red cock. Thick, and thicker, until the pressure stretching her apart had her eyes rolling up.

She let her head dangle, and her arms and legs go limp. Her long blue socks and toes gently swayed back and forth below her as Art sank her onto his length, occasionally lifting her off an inch, only to sink her down two. She peeked past the giant claws around her breasts and stomach, and whimpered at the sight of his thickness creating a subtle bulge along her belly. As Matt’s cum, and hers, dripped down her thighs and soaked her thigh highs, Art pushed deeper, and deeper, until the heat of his cock reached places he never had. Slowly, gently, he pushed the knot of his cock against her ass checks, forcing them apart, and she shivered as the pressure along her insides buried her pussy through the wall of flesh.

When the knot finally reached her entrance, he kept pushing.

“Art ... sl ... ow ... d-d...” She couldn’t stop panting and whimpering. Dangling in his grip, limbs hanging loosely, she closed her eyes. It wasn’t uncommon for the boys to lift her up and do things to her, using the fact she was tiny and light to put her in helpless positions. And it wasn’t uncommon for her to beg for them to stop, despite absolutely loving it; it’d become a frequent, exciting, and erotic part of their love making. But this was new. This was extreme. Tonight, she was nothing more than a tiny toy in the grips of monsters, and she trembled as more of the gorgeous creature’s huge cock forced its way past her clenching, soaked muscles, and into her tender insides.

He pushed harder, and her asshole slowly spread around the thick knot.

“St...” Her eyes rolled up, and she shivered as the sensation of the boiling heat of his thickness spreading her sensitive skin wide and wider had her whole body tingling. And every inch he sank into her was pressure against her pussy, burying it completely and pushing it toward her belly.

He kept going, pushing deeper, and deeper, and the tingling waves built up more. Everything inside her was aching and swollen, and no matter how she tried to relax her muscles, Art’s thickness kept burying everything.

And then her ass’s muscles slipped past the apex of his cock’s knot. The last couple inches pushed into her suddenly, and she let out a squeak as her ass hit his hard pelvis. His heavy testicles lightly slapped her pussy's lips and clit, and sent a shock up into her pelvis. With her toes dangling more than a foot above the floor, her legs quivered blatantly, swaying with the sudden penetration, and her insides squeezed in milking spasms as the beast's knot buried her g-spot in pressure. She came hard, and found enough strength to look down underneath her body to her belly, and the bulge that pushed out from it, almost as big as Matt's despite him using a different hole. A few beads of juices leaked out of her, directly onto the short fur of the testicles resting against her pussy, before falling to the floor. More, and more, until she couldn't watch anymore, and she let her eyes close, head and neck going limp as she shook like a leaf.

Art fucked her. He didn't pull the giant base of his cock out of her, instead leaving it inside her like a plug. But that didn't stop him from pushing her away from him a few inches, only to pull her back, her ass's ring of muscle squeezing hard around the knot to make sure he couldn't slip out. And each thrust filled her to the limit. The length of her pussy, her deepspot, all of it pulsed tingling waves through her from how his cock pressed against them through her ass, but the sheer size of his knot pushed on her g-spot relentlessly. And each thrust caused his huge, soaked testicles to slap her dripping pussy, until she felt the splashes against the bulge on her belly.

It wasn't long before she came again, and her toes curled hard as the splashing only got worse.

Art rumbled pleasure, and slowed. Slowly, tenderly, he fucked her, and the vibration of his purrs rippled through her as he flooded her insides with cum. Waves of white flowed out of her hard enough she felt it splash up over her ass and Art's abs before gushing down over her legs and his testicles. But a lot of it went into her, and she whimpered as heat filled her, thick and heavy and flowing, until she knew the bulge on her belly had grown.

“Art,” she whispered, and the beast gently pulled her up until her back was pressed to his abs, and he placed both of his palms against her chest and swollen belly, pinning her against his stomach. “So full ... I—”

Matthew stepped up to her, took her dangling legs by the thighs, lifted them until his hands slid up to her calves, and he crouched down enough to press the tip of his cock against her pussy.

“Matt! W-Wait! I can’t ... I can’t fit...” She gulped as she stared down at the bulge the angle created. With her back against Art’s chest, his cock pointed straight into her abs, and she panted between her tiny whimpers with how it pressed on her insides. Her belly really was even more distended than before, filled with his cum. Oh god.

Matt came in closer, and forced the first few inches of his long, dripping cock into her pussy.

“Matt!” She found enough strength to lift her arms and press against his chest, and she stared down at the distension. Not subtle anymore, not with another werewolf already penetrating her. She could clearly see the bulge his cock created on her body, pushed out by Arturo’s cock, and it only got worse as he pushed in another inch.

She was full. She was so full she was going to pop. Her mouth hung open, and she stared at her body and the encroaching titan in front of her, his muscles and short fur and rumbling purrs, as he pushed more cock into her. A few weak pushes and slaps of her hands against his chest did nothing, her mind unable to do anything but drown in the sensation of being so completely full. Each inch Matt sank into her was insanity, her tiny pussy lips squeezing and milking desperately. With Art filling her already, knot pushing constantly against her g-spot, it made Matt’s cock bury each inch of her now stretched pussy in pressure and friction. She stopped breathing. She simply sat there, legs held apart by Matt’s grip, but otherwise gravity doing most of the work to keep her pinned on Art's cock, as Matt forced more meat into her.

Two standing werewolves, her trapped between them, filled with cum and meat, and shivering from head to toe. She let her arms go limp, and stared dumbly down at her belly as she came again, her body now on a hair trigger. The giant's cock dripped with a new coating of her juices.

Matt finally pressed his knot against her stretched lips, and stopped. Not because he stopped pushing. He ground into her, fucked her gently but determinedly, and pushed her back into Art's body as he tried to force his knot into her. There was simply no more room left inside her. She managed to summon a quick mewl, and even set her hands against the giant's upper abs, hoping he got the picture. She couldn't take anymore, literally. She was full.

He did get the picture. He rumbled, maybe a little unhappy, but it passed quickly and became a deep purr, as he pulled back several inches, and sank them back into her. Again, he pushed against her pussy, knot rubbing against her taut lips, but instead of trying to ram it into her, he pulled back again, and fucked her.

Tash was hypnotized. She stared down at herself, arms going limp again as she watched the distension move back and forth along her skin. God, how had he managed to stretch her so much? Each time the beast sank his cock into her, and pressed the boiling hot knot against her lips, the bulge pushed an inch past her navel. And he'd been deeper than that, moments before. He was trying to get deeper now, gruitlessly grinding his knot against her pussy lips, drowning his cock in her juices and pushing her insides directly into Art's cock.

A tiny whimper worked through her, and she managed to tear her eyes away from her pussy, up to the behemoth in front of her holding her legs apart. His tongue hung out from between giant, sharp teeth, and his eyes stared down at her with more of that animal hunger that had her whole body tingling. She tried to lift her arms again, maybe just to touch him and feel his body, his heat, the short fur that did nothing to hide his muscles, or maybe just to feel his heart beat; she could definitely hear it. Thump thump. Thump thump. But she couldn't. Her arms hung limp, and her eyes slowly slid down Matt's body down again to the giant cock trying to force its way into her, gently but persistently grinding the thicker part of its base against her slit.

Art rumbled, deeper and louder than before, and she mewled, barely audible underneath the heavy bass flowing through her. He fucked her again, faster than Matt but still slow enough he didn't hurt her much. But every time she felt a little pain spark from being stretched so deep and wide, her body betrayed her, and drowned it in waves of tingling electricity that flowed out from her core where the two cocks fought for space. Down into her toes, up into her nipples, she shivered as the orgasm worked through her again, and again she stared down at the bulge and its evolving shape shift and morph along her once tiny, flat belly, as the two werewolves fucked her.

"Lie down?" Art asked in that harsh, barky kinda sound.

"Yes," Matt said, and he took a step back as he crouched down.

Art crouched down with him as Matt sat on the bed's edge, and slowly Matt lay back on the blankets. It creaked with the weight of him, but he kept his legs planted on the floor, while Art squatted over him and Tash, all of his weight still on the floor. Half of Matt was nearly enough to have her bed breaking, and anymore would have cracked it in half.

Art let go of her, and she collapsed onto Matt's stomach. The hardness of his abs was offset by the soft fur, and she rubbed her cheek against it, only half aware of what was happening, as Matthew held onto both of her thighs. He was so thick, her knees only grazed the blankets, and none of her weight reached them.

Art put one hand on her back, and pushed down, earning a squeak from her as he pinned her to Matt's body. His other hand grabbed her waist, and with him squatting low behind her, she was free to lay on Matt's body, as Art fucked her again. He wasn't so gentle this time.

She lifted her head long enough to see the towering beast gazing down at her body, and how her small, firm ass smacked against his pelvis as he thrust into her. Matt kept her pinned in his cock, forever threatening to force the knot into her, as Art's faster pace had her shifting back and forth on Matt's body. His cock stayed inside her, her ass still locked around the giant knot, squeezing around the base of it to keep it locked inside her.

She almost didn't notice when Matthew came. With her ear pressed against his sternum, her body trapped and pinned, she drowned in the vibration of the beast as he rumbled pleasure. More cum gushed into her, but without his knot to block it off, and it squirted out of her like a fountain. Hot, thick cum poured around their legs, and Tash whimpered as her quivering muscles basked in the heat of it drenching her thighs, and her stomach where it rested on Matt's.

A moment later, Arturo's pinning hand wrapped around her throat, and pulled her up to straddling. Her weight pressed her straight down onto Matt's knot, and she mewled as the wolf, holding her thighs, shifted her back and forth to milk more of his cum out of her, rubbing her squashed lips against the huge base of his length. Art held her snug to him as he fucked her ass, and it wasn't long before he was cumming again, too. Another wave of heat poured into her guts, and another. She couldn't see it with Art pinning her head against his upper abs, but she felt her belly stretch more. And more. He was filling her up, and the cum had nowhere to go.

Art let go of her neck, hand taking her shoulder instead, and her head lulled forward so she could look down. Her belly was bigger.

She thought maybe they'd stop. They didn't. Somewhere, deep inside her mind, a little voice told her if she could just stop cumming for two seconds, she could punch Matt hard enough to at least get his attention, and let her have a break. But it was a tiny voice, lost in an ocean of pleasure. Of heat, and fake sweat, and rumbling purrs and tingling waves that had her nipples so hard they hurt. She couldn't see her pussy anymore, not with her distended belly in the way, but she could feel her juices leaking out of her, soaking the giant's knot until her cum was probably trickling off his testicles.

She'd never made such a mess, and she'd made a lot of messes before.

Art pinned her down again. She turned her head, cheek to Matt's body, and she looked up to see Art staring at her ass. Again, he fucked her, hypnotized by how it devoured every inch of his length. It was his first time having sex in this form, and he was reveling in it. He picked up speed again, hunched position ensuring his cock pressed straight down against Matt's with every thrust, squashing her pussy until again, she came. And then again, he came. All she could do was lie there on Matt's chest and stomach, arms spread apart over him, as Art pumped her full of cum for the third time. With her stomach pressed to Matt's, she could feel it bulge, feel it squash against his abs, feel their cocks press it down into him, and feel the new waves of thick cum flow deeper into her guts, stretching her belly more and more.

With a heavy, satisfied rumble, Art pulled back on his cock, and kept pulling. Slowly, steadily, he managed to slip the knot from of her body, and Tash moaned into Matt's chest as the pressure inside her poured away. How much cum was flowing out of her ass and onto her bed right now? She couldn't see it, but she could feel it as her belly shrank.

Matt pushed down, hard, and forced a squeak out of Tash as he forced his knot into her. She didn't move. Didn't squirm or wriggle or even try and push on his chest. She lay there, arms limp, legs trapped in his grip, as the beast thrust up into her, again stretching her pussy deep up into her body, and burying her poor g-spot in the massive thickness of his knot. Clenching muscles drowned him in her juices, renewed by her vampire body; no human could have kept going this long.

He stayed inside her, balls deep, knot secure and abusing her g-spot until her clenching muscles demanded she cum again. Tired, aching insides, engorged and pulsing with way too much stimulus, tingled with another wave of pleasure, and she shivered ever so slightly on Matt's body as he fucked her. Always a couple inches, never letting the knot slip out of her, but still fucking her hard enough to pull tiny squeaks out of her.

It didn't take long before he slowed down, and she melted onto him as her clenching insides milked him. Most of his cum poured out of her. Some didn't, reaching places even his cock couldn't, and making her belly press against his abs just a little more. She was absolutely exhausted, and her body refused to listen, but she did her best to squeeze on the giant thing stretching her pussy to bursting, and she smiled at the rumbling purr she pulled out of the giant, terrifying werewolf between her legs.

She half expected Art to come back in and fuck her some more. Perhaps he wanted to, given the quiet rumbling growl he made. But she glanced back at him, and sighed relief as the man transformed back into a human. She held onto Matt for a little longer, and milked the last few drops out of him, before he transformed back as well.

---

She handed Matt the bucket, Art the mop, and pointed to the giant mess they'd made of her bedroom.

"I expect the blankets washed twice, and the m-mattress to be replaced!" One towel had not saved it from the pool of fluids those two had made.

The two boys frowned as they looked down, looked at the tools, then at each other. Everyone had showered, and the boys were in their boxers, ready to clean up a giant, smelly mess that defied reason. They didn't look happy about it.

"You didn't enjoy yourself?" Art asked, wearing his perfect, cocky, handsome, infuriating grin.

"I nearly d-d-died!"

Matt waved a hand, dismissing her. "You didn't nearly die. You loved it."

"I could have split open!"

Art also waved a dismissing hand. "That was some of the best sex we've ever had and you know it. I've never seen you go completely coma like that. Well, I mean, I have, but not like that that."

She glared daggers into the two boys. Yes, when they had sex, they had a habit of getting a bit rough with her, and she had a habit of really, really liking it. But that was no excuse for nearly popping her like an overinflated balloon. Or, soaking her bedroom in buckets of werewolf cum. Hot in the moment, not hot after. And unlike a vampire's fluids, it didn't fade away.

She wore her bathrobe, and she tightened it around herself as she squirmed a bit under Art's knowing gaze.

"It was g-good," she said eventually. "But if I wasn't a vampire, my insides would be b-b-bruised for weeks, you know."

"But you are a vampire," Art said, and he chuckled as he dipped the mop into Matt's bucket, and got to scrubbing.

Matt sighed as he picked up the soaked blankets and bundled them together, ready for washing.

"This is the price for being so good at what we do," the Canadian giant said, and he sighed a little louder.

"Next time!" she said. "Next t-time ... we can ... do it somewhere easier to clean."

"Next time?" Matt asked, perking up and beaming a big smile.

She scrunched up her nose at him, got her laptop, walked back to her living room, and called Jessy. She had some yelling to do.

Chapter 179

~~Beatrice~~

They had more sex. A lot of sex. A lot, lot, lot of sex. They spent multiple weeks in bed, pretty much only getting up and out when they needed a bite to eat.

Part of Triss thought maybe Sándor would reveal a more forward and open personality when he got comfortable. And he did get comfortable with them. But, nope, the man was just a quiet, reserved, stoic dude, right down to his soul. Which made every conversation with him a strange delight, because she — Jen, too — managed to pull smiles and chuckles out of him semi frequently. And with a guy like Sándor, semi frequently was a lot. It was a fun game, seeing if they could get past his shell, and they were getting better at it.

His reserved nature changed when you got an instrument in his hands. Some people were just like that. They opened up when they had the avenue to do so, and Sándor opened up like a nerd talking about his favorite topic. He talked about music, and then rode that momentum to talk about other stuff.

It felt like a normal relationship, which was really fucking weird considering their history, who he was, who she was, and the second girl in the bed with them. But, something about hanging out with Sándor and just talking about shit felt perfectly, oddly normal.

Where was the drama? Was she too old for drama? Was he? A small part of her wanted some drama, the part of her that was actually kinda interested in sparkling vampires who stalked high school girls. A much larger part of her was so fucking god damn glad she didn't have any of that shit to worry about.

Like, right now. She was in bed with her boyfriend and girlfriend, getting spooned by Sándor, and melting back into his chest to feel the hard muscles against her. Jen was sitting on the foot of the bed, looking at the TV Sándor had in his bedroom, and looking through the streamer app for something to watch. All three of them were naked.

Cuddling. She was cuddling with Sándor. It'd taken a while to get to this point. Sex was the easy part, but it'd taken a couple weeks before either of them felt comfortable holding hands, let alone cuddling. That was where shit could get real intimate, and the both of them were terrified of that.

But, again, like trying on clothes that fit perfectly, she fell into a groove with Sándor that left her fucking speechless, and him too. They just ... got along, intellectually, and emotionally. No need for a big dramatic argument to break down some emotional wall between them. It just fit right. And it was fucking weird, but god damn exhilarating.

She was cuddling with a man again, a great man, and it felt wonderful.

“Nope,” Triss said, waving a hand at Jen. “Nope. Nope. Nope.”

After a heavy groan, Jen threw her a heavier glare.

“Pick something!” She got back to flicking between the options of shit to watch.

“Nope. Nope. No—wait, go back. Um ... nope. Nope. Nope.”

Sándor chuckled, and slipped an arm around her chest. Surprisingly he didn't need to be invited this time, and he cupped her lower breast with a gentle squeeze while his index finger teased her nipple piercing.

Jen snapped her head around to yell at Triss some more, but when she saw what Sándor was up to, she put the controller aside and crawled over to them. And Jen wouldn't crawl anywhere unless she did it cat style, back arched and huge breasts swaying underneath her. She got on top of them, both of them, and let gravity pull her down until she was between them.

"Selfish bitch," Triss said.

"Mhmm." Nodding and grinning like, again, a fucking evil cat, she put her back to Sándor instead, and guided his hand to do to her what he'd been doing to Triss.

Honestly, Triss couldn't blame her. She turned around, rested on her other shoulder, and watched as Sándor was helpless to resist gently massaging the breast that filled and overflowed his hand.

"Find Aaron yet?" Triss asked. Much as she kept telling herself there was nothing to worry about anymore and that they could relax, the Aaron puzzle itched at her.

Sándor looked over Jen's shoulder, shook his head at Triss, and leaned down to kiss Jen's neck. Wow, he was feeling bold. No matter how many times they fucked, it was clear Sándor was never going to get used to their weird threesome relationship, at least not completely. He must have been in a playful mood.

Jen grinned at Triss, sharing the same thought. She nudged herself back into Sándor, and encouraged the man to continue.

Triss had full plans to ruin Jen's fun, but not just yet. Instead, she put a hand on Jen's other breast, and joined Sándor in the miracle that was playing with a big tit.

"I think you're fine," Jen said. "He's not going to try and hurt you."

“Yeah, not with all these blood door rituals I’ve been setting up.” No way she went to sleep at day anymore without one. Aaron could have a thrall or ghoul around, waiting to storm into her home and set her on fire while she slept. It was why she and Jen had found a new place to sleep during the day, a cozy little hole in the ground — literally — that no one else knew about. Maybe they’d start sleeping at Sándor’s place, but it wasn’t entirely safe either. No building was.

“Stop worrying.” Jen grabbed her shoulder, and pulled her in for a quick kiss. “Aaron’s not going to do anything.”

“Says you.”

“I knew him longer than you.”

“I don’t think any of us really knew him, except Jacob,” Triss said.

“Maybe, but Othello knew him for a long time, too.”

“Othello is—”

“A moron, yes, but he’s also a good reader of people. He’s like a ... golden retriever.”

Triss choked on a laugh. “I guess.” She glanced past Jen to Sándor, but he just shrugged slightly. Dude was ancient and patient and all sorts of mature and wise, but not a people person. He’d probably be good at poker, not because he could read people, but because he could make himself unreadable.

“Well, I’m still gonna sleep in our little cubby-hole with a blood door set up, until we at least find out what happened to him,” Triss said.

“Smart,” Sándor said. “But there is another place you could sleep.”

“Yeah?” Triss asked.

“My lair.”

“Your la—ooh.” She nodded slowly as she came in closer, until her body was pressed to Jen’s. “Is that safe?” Much as she was cool with the idea of sleeping in Sándor’s badass, if super old and dirty, nightmare castle, they hadn’t done anything involving his Horror. Anything, not even visited for a chat. Not because they were afraid to, even though they kinda were, but because they were enjoying being in the physical world and fucking all night and enjoying the softness of modern beds. Talking with him while he was merged with his Horror was on the to-do list.

“It takes a long time before my hunger becomes an issue. Months, thanks to Azamel’s help.”

“Awesome. Because, yeah, the lair would be a great place. Aaron’s got no way in there unless he convinces Athalia or Fiona to help him, or if Mark’s still alive.”

Uh oh, she said the M word. Sándor sighed as he looked down, and his massaging hand went still.

“He’s not.”

“Shit, I’m sorry, man.” Fuck, mood ruined. She let go of Jen, and Jen turned over to press her back into Triss instead. They’d both gotten used to reading his vibes, subtle as they were, and much as the dude had a horny side they’d been playing with nonstop for weeks now, he also had a really heavy somber side. Case in point, just mentioning Mark was enough to have his thoughts probably spiraling down into a bit of guilt and shit.

There wasn’t any point in telling him it wasn’t his fault. Mark wasn’t his responsibility, even if Azamel told him he was. The dude pulled an Aaron, and decided to help Jacob try to end the fucking world. No fucking way that was Sándor’s fault, and he knew it. But it was just the kind of guy he was.

Different, and yet, kinda similar to Julias.

“I texted Jack earlier,” Jen said, saving the day with a topic change. “I thought we’d visit, before we left permanent ass impressions in this bed.” Before Sándor could respond, she gave him a small pat on the shoulder. “Not you. Just us girls.”

To most, that’d probably have sounded almost mean. But Sándor gave one of those tiny smiles before nodding, leaning in, and giving Jen a quick kiss. He was relieved.

“When do you leave?” he asked.

“Thinking thirty minutes?” Jen said.

Sándor nodded, and surprising them both, slid across the bed even closer, until his chest pressed to Jen’s, and he leaned over her to kiss Triss, too. Wow, he bounced back a million times faster than he would have a few months ago.

“Time for a quickie?” Triss asked, and she Blushed Life. Sándor’s small grin and nod confirmed.

“New position?” Jen said, Blushing too.

“There are more?” he asked.

The girls laughed.

---

The visit to Jack’s was short-lived. He’d intended on hanging out, but Ann and Elaine had dropped by, with Ashley and Julee, and the lot of them were having sex, thralls included, when Triss and Jen arrived. In the lobby. He’d apologized, but Triss and Jen just laughed, shrugged it off, and decided to go eat.

Seeing Veronica answer the door, clearly by order, with a ridiculous old maid outfit on and her tits completely hanging out, had been pretty awesome.

“I want a taste,” Jen said, mind clearly on food after witnessing that. “Of Sándor I mean, not ghouls or thralls. Think he’ll let us, yet?”

Ah, this topic. Drinking of the Begotten. Jen and Triss had talked about it with each other, but hadn’t brought it up with their boyfriend yet. Weird topic. Potentially sensitive topic.

“Yeah, so do I. But I dunno. I mean, we’re getting along so well, right? Like ... really, really well. I’m afraid to rock the boat.”

Groaning, Jen shook her head as she started up the stairs. Bloodlust, tried and true, a place any vampire could go if they wanted an easy meal, save for a Nosferatu. But Triss was getting better and better at Obfuscate, at a record pace at that, and she felt comfortable hanging out around the kine now. Face in the Crowd meant they’d basically ignore her, and as long as she was careful about the lighting, and using Jen’s boobs as a distraction, she could convince them to let her get close enough to Kiss them.

Except, she didn’t want to Kiss some random kine. She wanted to Kiss Sándor. She wanted to feel his warm blood filling her up, as his cum filled her up. She wanted to squeeze and hold onto him with her legs, latch onto him like a fucking animal, and sink her teeth into his neck. She wanted to feel his her breasts squished against his hard chest as his monster blood warmed her.

“I think we should just ask,” Jen said, taking the final step up onto the second floor of Bloodlust, where all the vamps liked to hang out. “You said so yourself, Margaret told you to be pushy with him. He’d appreciate it.”

“She meant about romance and shit, Jen. Not like she ever drank him.”

“Not his blood, anyway.”

Triss rolled her eyes, but yeah, Jen’s stupid joke managed to make her laugh a bit.

Jen wore a skimpy black dress, and Triss wore some black jeans and a tiny black tank top. Like, super tiny. She didn’t have any intention of sleeping with anyone except Sándor, but when it came to hunting kine, seeing a girl’s nipples point out against her shirt was the best bait.

“Okay,” Jen said. “How about, we get a small drink here, maybe one kine between the two of us, and then we go back to Sándor and talk about it? Maybe even ... talk about it while he’s transformed?”

“Oh is that what this is about? You want a piece of the gargoyle.”

“Are you telling me you don’t?”

Triss grinned as she leaned in and kissed Jen on the neck. “You know that gargoyle side of him is dangerous as fuck, right?”

“And you know that only makes it better.”

“You’re like a kid with his dad’s gun.”

“You—” Jen stopped, and looked into the shadows toward the back of the second floor. In one of the booths, there was movement. A couple, having a good time. And judging by how quickly Jen decided to stroll on over there, it was people they knew.

Sure enough, Triss recognized the couple once they were closer. That, was Damien, and Fiona.

With zero hesitation, Jen slid into the booth on one side, Triss the other, and the two lovers going at it eventually stopped once they realized they had company.

“Hi,” Jen said, and she licked her lips as she looked at Fiona.

The redhead sat on Damien’s lap facing away from him, her stomach almost hitting the booth table. Big booths, lots of room, designed for fucking, and Kissing. Her giant tits rested on the table, literally, jiggling lightly as Damien fucked her, grinding her on his lap with his grip on her hips. Or, had been fucking her. He slowly removed his grip from the smiling ginger, and set them on Fiona’s legs under the table instead as he squinted at the two visiting vampires. Fiona was completely naked, and Damien’s shirt was undone and pants pulled down.

Jen and Triss blinked as they met his eyes. He looked hungry. Not for blood, but for sex, in a very obvious, aggressive way that was very not Damien.

“Hi,” Triss said eventually as she took a little more time than necessary to admire the huge mountains of soft pillowy goodness sitting on the table. Jen had large breasts, but Fiona was something else.

“Hi,” Fiona said, blushing. Not embarrassed, but coming down from an orgasm high.

“Hello Damien,” Jen said, and she slid in closer, until she was almost shoulder to shoulder with the now clearly uncomfortable Mekhet. “Enjoying yourself?”

“I was.”

“Come now, don’t be like that. If you’re going to make love to your girlfriend in a public place, you must be willing to accept a little company.”

“Yeah!” Fiona said, giggling, and she half turned to lean in toward Jen. “You could—”

Damien slipped his hand around her throat, and pinned her back to his chest. The little ginger girl melted instantly, and her arms went limp as Damien put just the right amount of pressure on her to make her face go a little red, and her body quiver. Yeah, this girl was on a hair trigger and ready to cum her brains out the moment her tall emo vampire boyfriend did anything to her. How much of that was from being post Kiss, or just good sex, Triss didn't know.

"It was Fiona's idea," he said, making sure to frown at both newcomers some more. Though, he didn't push Fiona off him or anything, or even try and cover up her tits. He just held her against him, putting her wriggling on display, complete with some delicious choking he'd obviously mastered because the girl was balancing on that edge of asphyxiation and cumming her brains out.

And he had taken a drink. They could smell the blood. Perfect time to get some questions answered.

Triss smirked as she slid in a bit closer. "You drank her, right? Got all that Begotten blood in you?"

Damien rolled his eyes, but nodded as he let go of Fiona's neck, and wrapped her in a gentle hug. She didn't resist.

"Tell us," Jen said.

"It's amazing," Fiona said, mewling as she cupped her breasts over Damien's hugging arms, and massaged them and her big, swollen nipples. She did it more for the audience than herself.

"Not you," Triss said, laughing. "Damien. We want some details. About what it's like to drink a Begotten."

"I—"

"You told us nothing last time," Jen said, and she slipped in a little closer, until her leg nudged against his. "Same situation, remember? And last time you left us high and dry.”

“You wanted sex details.”

“Well, that too,” Triss said. “But right now, we want to know what it’s like to drink a Begotten from the only man doing it. Except, you know, Daniel, but not like he’d tell anyone shit.” Damn it, she couldn’t help but grin at him as she watched the girl squirm on his lap. On his cock. “It’s got you so out of your mind horny you can’t even stop Blushing Life if you wanted to, am I right?”

Damien rolled his eyes again, but a quiet mewl from Fiona gave him up. He was still inside her, probably hard as a rock, and Fiona was loving every minute of it. With weak arms barely able to stay up, she massaged her breasts some more, before lifting one up as she bent her neck and head down, so she could slip the big nipple into her mouth.

Triss and Jen stared at her, as she suckled on herself. Holy shit that was hot.

“You’ll go if I answer?” Damien said.

Both girls said nothing.

“Triss. Jen,” he said.

Slowly, Triss managed to tear her eyes away from Fiona, whose own eyes were closed as she continued. Jen leaned over the table and stared from only a foot away. Lost cause.

“Uh, yeah, we’ll go.”

After a slow nod, the tall, pretty boy vampire took Fiona by the hips, and turned her. She squeaked in surprise, but the ginger was utterly exhausted, and didn’t do a thing to resist him. He lifted one of her legs, got it up and over him, and once she was facing him, he used one hand to squeeze her tight to his chest in a hug. His other hand held her ass, hidden under the table, or it would have been hidden if Triss and Jen weren't sitting so close. They could see the man knead her soft ass, and give it the occasional slap.

She wasn't sure she needed details anymore. Damien was clearly hornier than he would ever normally get, and feeling confident, and aggressive, aggressive enough they could probably ask him to throw Fiona on the table and fuck her hard for a display, and he might just do it.

“It—”

Triss put up a hand and shook her head. “I think I can see.”

He grinned a little. Damien, grinning. He never grinned. The Begotten's blood was doing some powerful shit to him.

Sure enough, right after his cocky grin, the man used both hands to slap Fiona's ass cheeks, hard enough they could hear it over the music. Jen and Triss stared.

“That's a ... strong effect,” Jen said, and she peeked in a bit closer so she could see down at their connection. She licked her lips.

Much as Jen was a fucking hornball, Triss trusted her. If Damien and Fiona both, right there, asked her to take a drink of Fiona, and fuck them, she'd say no. But damn did the girl love to tempt herself, and she made no effort to look away.

And Damien didn't even try to hide it. He actually pushed Fiona back a bit so her back pressed to the table edge, and she pressed her elbows down against it behind her. Poor girl was barely awake, considering she was post Kiss, and making love to her boyfriend was obviously hard. But she was enjoying it, and really enjoying being the center of attention of a couple observers.

Her huge tits rippled like water balloons when Damien used both hands to slap her ass cheeks again, and the leaning-back ginger squeaked. He shifted his grip, grabbed her hips, and bounced her on his cock; Triss couldn't help but take a peek down to see what that looked like. Dude was utterly drenched. But, much as seeing his big dick spread the tiny girl apart as he bounced her was hot, there was something so damn hypnotic about Fiona, her blushing face, her huge bouncing tits, and the way she tried to keep from falling over, elbows still on the table behind her, that Jen and Triss couldn't look away from.

The ginger's squeaks turned into weak little whimpers, and her elbows started to slip. Damien took her by the throat, stopped her from falling over, and choked the quivering little woman as she came all over him. A glance down showed, yup, she was drenching his cock more, and a pretty copious amount of white stuff was leaking out along with her own juices.

Damien's eyes were locked onto his girlfriend, and Jen and Triss shivered at the look on his face. That, was a very horny, possessive vampire. He didn't even care that Jen and Triss were seeing every intimate detail as he pumped his trembling girlfriend full of cum. Dude was completely absorbed.

He let her neck go, pulled her in snug, gave her ass a few more hard slaps — probably felt amazing, pussy clenching on him mid orgasm like that — and bounced her up and down some more. Yeah, dude was totally gone.

Jen and Triss watched for a little longer, before they looked at each other, nodded, and headed back to Sándor's place with a mission.

---

“Please?” Jennifer asked as she stepped into the apartment. She slipped out of her dress without so much as a hello, leaving Sándor dumbfounded and stepping back to give her room.

“Please what?” he said, eyes staring at her breasts for a second before he managed to rip them away to Triss.

“Please.” Triss said. She slipped out of her tiny tank top, kicked off her jeans, and Blushed Life. Instant hard nipples. “I mean, you can say no, if you want, but ... Jen and I are both really hungry, and we saw Damien with Fiona tonight, and...”

“Can we taste you?” Jen came closer, now in only a skimpy little thong, and pressed a hand against Sándor’s chest. He was wearing blue jeans and a white shirt, so hilariously casual compared to the two girls coming at him.

Triss was down to nothing but her own thong too, less lace, more g-string than Jen’s, and she came up and pushed her chest into his, beside Jen’s. They really were bullying him, just burying the poor guy in tits and ass and begging for some of his blood. But hey, Margaret said bully him a bit, and holy fuck she needed a piece of what Damien had.

Sándor took a second to process what was happening, before he smiled, and sat down on his couch, leaving room on both sides of him.

Jen clapped and jumped onto the couch beside him, and Triss half-jumped onto the other.

“I’ve been Kissed before, a long long time ago,” he said.

“Sexually?” Jen asked, and she leaned in to put her lips to his neck.

“Not exactly, but it was ... very pleasant.”

“Well,” Triss said, putting one hand on his jeans and undoing the button and fly as she leaned in as well, “this is gonna be sexual.”

A second later she had his cock out, and Sándor sighed peacefully as he relaxed back on the couch, and—“Wait,” he said.

Jen and Triss froze.

“Don’t wanna?” Triss asked.

“It’s not that, just ... I thought after talking about my lair ... maybe you’d want to ... after the Kiss, visit my lair ... and ... the gargoyle.”

The girls blinked at each other, and then their lover a few times.

“What?” Jen asked. “When we Kiss you, you’ll be pretty drained. I thought we’d make sure you came a couple times as we Kissed you, before Triss and I fucked each other while you watched.” And as if she’d just said something perfectly reasonable, she nodded at him and Triss expectantly.

Oh god, Triss laughed and gave Sándor a happy pat on the stomach.

“She does have a point,” she said. “Kinda hard to keep an erection when you lose a pint of blood.”

“Maybe, but ... this body and the Horror’s body are two different things.” He nodded as he leaned in, kissed Triss on the cheek, and then the same for Jen. “You can drink me, but, if you want, you can join me in my lair after, and we can ... perhaps...”

That, was an invitation to a night of monster sex. Triss gulped and shared a much more shaky glance with Jen, who did the same, her eyes lighting up and lips putting on a nervous smile. The idea of seducing Sándor until he ravaged them with his huge gargoyle half had seemed more like a fantasy than a reality. Now he was offering that possibility? That the girls come visit the giant gargoyle and get fucked? Get absolutely ... utterly ... ravaged?

Jen and Triss leaned in, pressed their breasts into the man, and sank their fangs into him.

Holy. Fucking. Shit. The blood hit her like a freight train, and she groaned into his neck as the thick liquid flowed down her throat and into her belly. The difference wasn't slow or subtle, or hidden in the flavor or any shit like that. It bowled her over, and she melted into the man as the strange power of his blood sent tingling waves of ... something, through her. Something dark, and twisted, and hungry, and powerful, and exciting.

It'd been so damn long since she'd had alcohol, but this was like taking six shots, and instead of getting overwhelmed with a need to vomit, something came rushing up through her body that had her Beast singing. She groaned louder, drank harder, and hugged the man tight. More. She needed more. The Beast in her guts demanded more.

No fucking wonder Damien was so confident and aggressive with Fiona's blood in his belly. The alcohol comparison only got more accurate as the blood spread out through her, and every thought she had was cut short and replaced with the most simple, absurd impulses. How the fuck had Damien even managed to speak? The only thoughts she could come up with now were: fuck, eat, and maybe fight.

She pulled her head away long enough to see her man's stoic face looking ever so slightly not stoic, even a little pleased. Not even Mister Gargoyle could resist the power of a Kiss double whammy. She looked to Jen, who pulled away too, and the two of them stared at each other, ready to pounce. Jen's body was on fire, same as hers.

But she didn't get to. The room went dark.

---

Sándor was crazy strong. Her Beast knew that, each time she was near the man. Just being around him was enough to feel overpowering, in a quiet kinda way, like standing in the presence of a cathedral. It didn't make a sound, but you damn well knew the building was imposing, intimidating, grand, and ancient.

Sándor did a good job hiding that aspect of himself. Normally he was just a quiet dude, and now, someone she could kiss and hug and tease, and even bully a bit. Sometimes she straight up forgot the crazy shit he'd done in the past.

And then, bam, it was right in her face just how insanely powerful Sándor was. The other Begotten talked about how hard it was to open up paths into their lair, or out of their lair into any place that didn't really jive with it. It was why they often did things in the dark, because most of them had dark places in their lair. But if Fiona wanted to open up a place to her jungle lair and she didn't have any dark places, she'd have to find a forest or something. Even then she'd probably need to do it at night, otherwise, she wouldn't be able to do shit.

Sándor was strong enough to open up paths to his lair even with all the lights on, and when he did, Triss sucked in a quick breath under the sudden weight of his presence. Holy shit.

And then, she was there, in the lair. Her, and Jen, standing beside each other in the gigantic throne room. Sándor had dropped a blob of darkness right on them, and now that it was gone, they were surrounded by pillars, and the braziers on the walls and pillars alike went from dim, to bright, and brighter, fires growing within and lighting up the place for them. Did he have magic monster powers allowing him to control his lair, like a psychic connection or some shit? God damn. She gulped as the fires grew so large the flames poured out of their little gargoyle mouths and eyes, and she took a step back. Yeah, just because it was weird dreamland fire didn't mean it wouldn't turn her to ash if she touched it.

Jen touched her hand, and with familiarity, Triss slipped her fingers into it, and the two of them stepped out into the main hall of the giant castle. He hadn't dropped them off in one of the hallways off to the sides, with the wooden walls and ceiling, old rooms for an old castle. This time, he'd skipped that part, and the two of them, tiny and borderline naked, were left standing in the colossal room of colossal pillars topped with colossal statues of the gargoyle.

It was like being dunked in a big bucket of cold water. Yeah, sure, they still had bellies full of blood, and her heart was now beating, pumping her full of fake life that had every bit of her tingling. But now it wasn't only horny aroused. She had enough self awareness to know what was happening to her.

She was scared. Horny and scared. Fake adrenaline coursed through her, got her heart racing even faster, and before she knew it, she was breathing faster too as she looked around at the giant, life-sized gargoyle statues. One of those handsome fuckers was probably waiting on his throne right now, ready to scoop her up, and fuck her. And hopefully, not eat her.

Jen took a step forward, and Triss followed, quickly catching up so the two girls walked side by side. Slowly, they approached the giant throne in the distance.

“Um...” Jen leaned in to her and whispered. “I feel ... weird...”

“Drunk on Begotten blood and ready to pin and fuck Sándor?” she whispered back. The only reason she was even able to think straight, was the cold-water dunk getting yanked into Sándor's lair had been.

“Yeah, but...”

“Fucking terrified, too?”

Jen gulped and nodded. And squirmed. Yep, getting scared was only making her hornier. She was one of those girls who got pretty randy after an intense roller coaster ride, and apparently, so was Triss.

It took will to not throw herself at Jen and fuck the girl right there. Something about the weird blood in her belly had her Beast roaring, and telling her to just give into her desires and hungers. Aggressively. But every time the urge flooded back up to her brain, she looked around at the scary-as-fuck nightmare chamber they were in, and the distant throne they were walking toward, no doubt with a giant gargoyle sitting on it. A gargoyle that'd almost done something horrible to them in the past. And yeah, that was water under the bridge, but still, maybe this wasn't such a good idea?

The throne was empty.

Oh fucking shit.

The girls spun around in time to hear the creature roar as it swooped down from one of the pillars. It landed in front of them like a giant eagle landing in front of a free meal, slow and casual, big wings flapping and burying them in heavy gusts that almost knocked them over.

Sándor's gargoyle body was huge. Ridiculously huge. He must have been twelve feet tall, and considering he had that animal-ish hunched posture in his upper body, he'd probably be taller than that if he stood up straight. Muscular as fuck, big chest and shoulders and tapered waist with huge abs, and two sets of arms, one set under the other. Big, giant, dark horns, dark blue skin, long dark claws and talons, and a couple of dark eyes on a surprisingly handsome, oddly hyper masculine face with very pronounced eyebrows and an inhumanly hard jaw.

Jen and Triss didn't even try and run. They just stared up at the huge beast who'd just landed basically on top of them, four wings drowning them in shadow.

He picked them up, upper left hand taking Triss's torso, lower left taking her legs, and the right hands doing the same for Jen. The two eyes glowed red for a few seconds as they locked onto the girls, before switching back to their dark color.

Okay, this was bad. Was he thinking straight, or was he like the last time they met the gargoyle? Were they dead?

He brought them in closer, slowly, and rumbled with a deep vibration that had her shaking, fear mixing with the vibrations.

"Your one and only chance," he said, that deep voice full of gravel and bass. "Stop?"

Jen and Triss slowly looked at each other. That confirmed Sándor was in his right mind, at least.

"Is it safe?" Jen asked, voice wavering.

Sándor brought her in closer, until she was only a foot away from his head and giant horns.

"I won't hurt you," he said. "But the gargoyle is ... a powerful creature. And willful."

Message received. If they agreed to do this, Sándor might have trouble controlling himself. Sure, if they both screamed bloody murder, he'd probably stop, but...

The two girls looked at each other. Dive in? Back out? Holy fuck it was so damn hard to think straight with Sándor's blood pulsing through her and telling her to try and fight and fuck the titan holding the two of them like dolls.

"Y-Yes," Jen said, voice wavering even more. "Yes, please, fuck me."

Sándor rumbled, and the smile he wore had Triss shivering. Gorgeous, and terrifying, the kind of smile a deadly villain wore before committing some horrible act. It faded, thank god, and a subdued-but-very-real animal hunger replaced it. He was a nightmare monster, so the smile probably wasn't something he had full control of. The gargoyle was supposed to be scary, in a very literal, that's-why-it-even-existed sense. It was.

He began his prowling walk toward the throne, giant tail swaying gently behind him, like a crocodile casually treading water. Every so often, he rumbled, a deep purring sound that reminded Triss of the stories Jessy had shared. She'd said Eric's rumbles and purrs felt like what a giant cat would if they could purr, something heavy and bassy, but still a rapid-fire sound like a normal cat's purr. Sándor's rumble was like putting her ear up against one of those mega-sized dump trucks. It was so deep she felt it more than heard it, the sound almost entirely nothing but heavy waves of vibration that flowed through her like she was plugged to a motor.

Jen and Triss stared at each other. It was becoming all too apparent way too quickly, just how beast-like this giant gargoyle was.

The gargoyle stepped up to his throne, and sat down with slow, lumbering steps. His long tail draped over one of the throne's arms so it could dangle off the side, and one pair of wings hooked over his neck and shoulders like a cape, the other two snugging it behind him so he could press his spine to the throne as he got comfortable. Nodding to himself, like a king thinking deep thoughts, he held out both vampires in front of him, each dangling by their hands from his upper arms, while his lower arms reached out, slid a giant claw into their underwear, and slid them off.

Triss didn't bother looking. She knew she was wet, and now Sándor knew it, too, his stern gargoyle face again showing that dark, scary grin for a second before fading away.

Both vampires squirmed a little, dangling, helpless, as they watched the gargoyle look their naked bodies up and down like meals. Each breath the beast took was slow, and now that he was staring at them with his dark, hungry eyes, each breath was a quiet, but deep rumbling wave of vibration.

His lower hands were free, and he used them to undo and toss his loincloth aside.

Both girls looked down, and gulped. Well, they were right, he had two. And they were huge. They looked like a human penis for the most part, bulbous tips a dark shade of purple compared to the navy of his body, no foreskin. But, yeah, two of them, both massive and lined with veins, and getting bigger and harder by the minute. Not so hard they stood upright though, a bit more malleability to them than a normal dude's cock. They hung forward, half bending with their own weight.

The upper cock was a bit bigger and longer than the lower one, which was already big enough Triss was having some serious doubts about whether it'd be fitting into anything. Anyone.

Naked, a titan of muscle and power, the gargoyle relaxed back against his throne, leaning back so his pelvis slid forward a little. Jesus fucking christ, just one of his legs was bigger than Triss. He rumbled again as he looked to the two of them, and brought them toward him until they were both close enough to his face they could feel his breath.

“Who first...” He spoke the words slowly, voice carrying as a wave of depth and bass that almost shook the pillars. Nodding to himself, he brought in Jen toward his mouth, and opened the giant thing filled with a lot of damn scary teeth. Not super sharp teeth, but more like a crocodile's, fully capable of clamping down on flesh for a good grip. The sort of teeth you'd use to bite on something as an anchor, while using your hands to tear it to shreds.

Jen stared down, frozen, as Sándor brought her in so close her thighs nudged against his chin, and they spread apart as he brought her in closer. Just as she was about to say something, or maybe kick the gargoyle out of reflex, Sándor let out another deep, pouring rumble, and his tongue slipped out from between his teeth.

Jen managed a quick peek at Triss, before her head lulled forward, and stared down at the fucking massive monster tongue forcing its way into her slit.

“Sándor! Slow down! I ... oh ... oh...” Her voice fell away, wavering and fading, as the gargoyle brought her in closer again, until he literally had her pussy an inch over his gaping maw. More and more tongue, long and pink and wet, came up out of his mouth in waves, and once he had what must have been a dozen inches of it fighting for space inside the wriggling vampire, the rest of it pressed against her pussy, and buried her clitoris.

Jen just sat there, literally sat on the dude’s tongue as he fucked her with it, and stared down at her belly as a small distension flowed up it in waves. Triss had done that with her own tongue inside Jen before, but Sándor’s was easily twice as thick and long, and Jen was reduced to nothing but a mewling kitten as the huge thing filled her up, and probably stretched her both deep and wide, as it curled and rolled like a wave machine. And each roll forced her to slide back and forth along the portion of his tongue outside her and pressing against her clit, making sure the helpless Ventrue got every bit of her thoroughly tongue fucked.

Even if Jen had come into this cold and dry and thoroughly unaroused, she wouldn’t have been able to stay like that long, not against this. But with Sándor’s blood pumping through her, Triss and her girlfriend had come ready to skip the foreplay. Sándor had other ideas, and his tongue broke Jen in a matter of minutes.

Triss stared on as Sándor brought her in close enough she could see every detail, now dangling only a couple feet away from his head. Christ, she couldn't look away, eyes locked onto her girlfriend's huge tits rippling against her chest as she came, her stomach wriggling as she squirmed on his tongue, and holy fuck the rolling bulge that worked up her belly from her pubic bone up to her navel, and past it. That, was deep. That was very deep.

Sándor wasn't just eating her out to make sure she got to cum before they got to the good shit. He was literally stretching her, and prepping her. He pushed more tongue into her, and Jen's mewls turned into loud squeaks, before she melted back into her rolling rhythm as again the gargoyle fucked her with his tongue, forcing the bulge on her belly further and further up.

Satisfied, he lifted her up, and Triss stared at the lines of juices connecting his tongue to Jen's now thoroughly drenched slit. He took a moment, looking her up and down, as if considering if his new sex toy was ready, before he adjusted his grip on her. He set both girls down onto the arms of his throne, careful to make sure they didn't fall, and slid his hands down so he could hold them around the waist instead, like toys, or dolls.

He lowered Jen down, and slid her legs down his abs so her limp thighs slowly spread apart around the monster. And as she did, not even trying to resist the giant gargoyle's motion, he sat Jen on his abs, her legs spread around his titanic waist. And then he lifted her up a bit, lowered her ass between his thighs, and brought her back down again so she was sitting under his cocks, with the weight of the two huge things now resting on her stomach. All Jen could do was stare.

Triss could only do the same. She shivered as the juggernaut admired the sight of his two cocks sitting on Jen's body. He was measuring. With one hand holding Triss, and the other holding Jen, his other two hands were free to make adjustments and set the two huge lengths on Jen's stomach in a more straight line, and both girls gulped as it became obvious just how big the gargoyle was.

The smaller cock was, what, almost a foot long? And it was thicker than Jen's damn wrist. And the larger one was ... larger. A little longer, and a little thicker.

Okay, maybe they had bit off more than they could chew.

Sándor took the smaller of the two cocks in one hand, and slowly lifted Jen. She didn't fight or protest, or even make a sound. She just stared up at the giant monster, and then at the two cocks leaving trails of precum on her stomach. The bigger one left a few drops of it just under her sternum.

The gargoyle lifted her up, and guided her dripping slit onto the head of the smaller cock.

"Sándor, I ... I ... nnnn!" Her voice disappeared in a harsh gasp, as the beast pulled her down toward the fat glans of his length, and her lips rubbed against it as they slowly spread apart. Juices trickled down over his girth, quickly drenching the tip as Sándor made sure to rub her pussy around it, almost like chalk on a pool cue. Only when the huge thing was dripping with her fluids, did he really start to pull her down toward him.

She outright squeaked when her pussy spread apart, and the huge glans slipped past her clenching muscles.

"Oh god ... Oh ... g-god..." She looked down at her body, and at the distension now pushing out from above her pubic bone. Before she could say anything else, the gargoyle pulled her down further, and she whimpered as she squirmed on his cock. So much thick meat filling her, slowly getting pushed into her, Triss just stared, awestruck by the sight of the bulge moving up her once flat belly.

Sándor's other, bigger cock rested on her stomach, and slid along her skin, up and up as the gargoyle sank the vampire onto his length. More drops of precum oozed from it, glistening her skin and trickling off the sides of her waist. His bigger cock reached higher, and higher, passing her navel before it finally came to a stop. But Sándor wasn't done. He gently lifted Jen off his cock a few inches, exposing slivers of her insides as her pussy squeezed him, before he sank her back down. When he hit the same depth, he waited a little, and then pulled her down a little further.

Jennifer moaned, and clutched onto the gargoyle's fingers as she stared at the bulge on her belly, and the larger cock sliding up along it. He did it again, lifted her a bit, and then lowered her back down. Once he hit the same depth, he took his time, ground her hips around a little, and pulled her down deeper. Each and every time, Jen's whole body quivered, and she groaned loud as fuck as Sándor gently stretched her deeper and deeper. And fucking deeper.

Even if the girls hadn't been out-of-their-minds horny on Begotten blood, the way Sándor worked Jen on his cock was fucking perfect. Jen melted like butter, and her hands squeezed on his fingers tighter as she started to shake. She was cumming. The gargoyle still had a couple inches to go, but Jen's body didn't feel like waiting, and she writhed on his length as more of her juices leaked out of her. Sándor kept going, ignoring her whimpering mewls and trembling body, and he pushed another inch into her.

"Sl ... slow ... d ... d..." She tried to lift her head, and probably beg for some mercy, but one look up at the giant gargoyle's eyes was enough to strike her quiet. Triss risked a peek, too, and froze. The hunger in the gargoyle's eyes was gigantic, and inhuman.

He continued the same motions, lifting her up a couple inches, and again, pulling her back toward him, even as her insides were probably clamping down like a vise, mid orgasm. She just kept sinking deeper onto him, bulge pushing past her navel and earning some desperate mewls from the vampire, before at last her spread lips finally hit the base of him, and her legs and ass rested on his pelvis and hips.

The larger cock on her stomach had pulled to the side a bit, bending under its own weight. Sándor used one of his hands to right it and set it on her body, and Jen stared down at its thick glans, as it rested just under her sternum and between her heavy, hanging breasts.

“Jen,” Triss said, “holy shit. You—shit!” The world turned upside down as Sándor lifted her up toward his face, and actually did turn her upside down.

Before she knew what was happening, she had her hands pressed against the gargoyle’s chest to keep her balance, as the giant spread her legs around his face. Jen and Triss shared a shocked expression, but it vanished in a blur and then shadow as Triss closed her eyes.

Something very hot, firm, wet, and strong, was rubbing against her asshole. It was huge. She managed to open her eyes and look back and up over her body, and down to her ass, where the gargoyle’s eyes sat above it, looking down at it as he rubbed his very, very, very long tongue against her, while he held her upside down over his jaw and chest.

He pushed it into her, and she squealed, just as loud as Jen. It was so damn thick, almost as thick as the cock splitting Jen open right beneath her, and Sándor wasted no time forcing more of the wriggling muscle into her ass. Inches on inches on inches, rolling over each other and creating waves of flesh that stretched her apart and filled her. The muscle pushed down toward her pussy and stomach as it went in, and she knew she had a bulge on her stomach, too.

Triss had no idea how much tongue he forced into her. A foot? Two? Fucking more? All she could do was wriggle there, half upside down, half doing a push-up against his chest, face aimed down at Jen, as the titan filled her up. She couldn't think straight, not with the weird position, and definitely not when Sándor lifted Jen up a few inches, and sank her back down balls deep on his cock right in front of Triss's eyes.

“W-Wait!” Jen said, eyes wide. “Wait, I’m still—nng!”

Mental note for the future, Triss. Sándor's Horror was not easily communicated with in the middle of sex. He lifted Jen up and sank her back down again, a slow rhythm that was more than enough to leave the girl a quivering mess considering how deep he was, and how thick he was. Her juices trickled down his length before disappearing underneath him, only for her pussy lips to flatten against his pelvis as he forced her down again, and she soaked him again.

Sándor pulled Triss in closer, and she gulped as she felt some of his huge fangs — thankfully not razor sharp — press against her big ass cheeks. The tongue pushed deeper, and she groaned as he rolled it, making it stretch her insides apart, before slipping further into her. And with unending consistency, he rolled the whole damn thing toward her pussy and belly like a fucking ocean wave, forcing a mountain of pressure against everything aching and swollen and begging for it inside her.

Her empty slit clenched down hard, and shot juices straight into the giant mouth filled with huge teeth. As pleasure tremors filled her, tingling waves that rolled up and down through her, she stared down at Jen, who was getting the fucking of her lifetime. It wasn't that Sándor was rough with her, he wasn't. But the dude was just so damn long and thick, a slow fucking was enough to have the girl grunting and groaning as she looked down at her body, and the giant cock between her rippling tits, coating them in precum.

The world shifted again, and Triss had to put her hands down against Sándor's literal fucking jaw, as the gargoyle pulled her up and into his mouth. Now she was almost sitting upright, the gargoyle's head tilted back, and he had both her thighs wrapped in one hand each, keeping her legs spread. He continued to masturbate with Jen's body, slow and steady, but it was clear it was Triss the monster had his mind on, because he pulled her down further and further into his mouth — damn thing could open real wide — as his tongue pushed deeper into her.

Fear shot through her. She was literally sitting in his mouth. He could have bitten down right then, and with how much he'd managed to fit her ass and pelvis between his jaws, it'd have split her into four pieces. That was fucking terrifying, and she managed to tear her eyes away from Jen long enough to look back over her shoulder, and down at the hungry eyes of the colossal creature.

He didn't have to say it, or communicate it. He liked that she was afraid of him, if only for that split moment. He was a monster of fear, literally, and he fed on fear, literally. And now with the heat of his breath, and the vibration of his quiet rumbles filling her up, that suddenly meant a lot more.

But he didn't bite down, and after a few seconds of panic, she knew he wouldn't. He wanted to scare her, just a little hopefully. It fucking worked. That sudden shock of fear had had her muscles clamping down hard, and in the new position, he'd pushed in more of his tongue anyway, past her squeezing entrance, and deep into her fucking guts.

She whimpered as her arms shook, and her body shivered as another climax hit her. Before she could fall forward and get a nasty gash from his teeth, his one free hand came up and pressed up on her shoulders, giving her something to relax against, and not obstruct the view of Jen. Her girlfriend stared up at her, body shaking, before her head fell back, and her body trembled, too.

Then Sándor rumbled. A deep rumble, with enough bass Triss's whole body buzzed with the vibration. A deep, heavy sound that flowed out and went into the walls. If a whale could purr, it'd sound like that.

Jen forced her head up, and she stared down at the huge cock resting between her tits, as a giant wave of white flowed out of it. It didn't squirt or gush, as if it was too heavy and thick for that. Instead, it came out as a massive, slow wave, and with Jen half sitting up in Sándor's hand, gravity caused the huge wave to gently splash between her tits, before flowing down over itself and her body. A moment later, a similar wave came flowing out of Jen's pussy, thick cum that took its sweet time pouring out of her before trickling down her thighs and Sándor's pelvis.

More, and more, and more. Sándor slowed his masturbation, and instead only gently moved Jen up and down a single inch, keeping her balls deep as he used her to milk his orgasm. She managed to lift her hands and set them onto the base of the huge cock sitting on her, and she even found enough energy to gently stroke it. The rumble her hands pulled out of Sándor was enough to have Triss's insides vibrating like a living ... vibrator. More and more cum flowed out of him, heavy globs of it, each so thick it only slowly fell from Jen's body, leaving thick trails of the fluid on her skin.

How Jen managed to pull herself out of her own pleasure to think up new kinky shit to do to the giant monster fucking her, Triss had no idea. But she did. Jen leaned forward slightly, and with both hands, pressed her big tits together against the head of the giant cock coating her chest, neck, and stomach in buckets of cum. Again, Sándor rumbled pleasure, and gently lifted Jen up so he could masturbate with her body a little faster, and at the same time, rub the head of his bigger cock against her tits where she pushed them together for him.

It went on for a while. How long did it take a normal dude to finish coming? Ten seconds, if that? Sándor went on for at least a whole fucking minute of just drenching Jen in slow, heavy, thick waves of cum, before it finally came to a stop. The girl now looked like she was wearing a white robe from the neck down.

Triss whimpered as a weird pulling sensation filled her, and Sándor lifted her up out of his mouth, pulling his tongue out at the same time.

“Jesus christ,” she said. “Jen, you okay?”

Jen nodded slowly, her two hands now resting against the base of the big cock sitting on her white stomach. Her pussy was drowning in a pool of white cum, completely hidden from view.

“Y-Yeah.”

“I—” She gulped as Sándor turned her around as he lowered her down. Uh oh. “Um, Sándor? Jen’s—”

She outright squeaked when Sándor lowered her in the exact same way he had Jen, with her facing him, legs dragging down his abs until they spread around his waist. One of his free hands took the bigger, drenched cock sitting on Jen, and pointed it upright.

“You’ve got to be kidding me, right? ‘Cause, I mean, I don’t think —”

Sándor rumbled, eyes staring down at her with that weird mixture of a stern statue face, and obvious animal hunger, as he pushed her down against the head of his cock. He rubbed the soaked thing against her pussy a few times, its tip thicker than her own fist, before he lowered it down a bit, and pressed it against her already thoroughly stretched, drenched asshole.

“Sándor! Holy shit dude, can you ... oh ... fuck...” She stared down at the giant slab of abs, and the absolutely massive, cum-soaked cock thicker than her fucking arm, slowly pushing its way into her body. The soaked tip pushed her ass apart, so much more than his tongue did, and Triss held onto his fingers for dear life as the huge thing pressed against her, and spread her open.

The titan licked his lips, and pushed her down. Triss let out the most embarrassing, pathetic squeak she'd ever made, as the giant cock's tip slipped past her clenching asshole, and into her body.

“Jesus ... fucking ... christ...” She held on for dear life as Sándor put her through the same treatment he had Jen. Slowly, with the most absurd patience she'd ever seen, the gargoyle sank her ass down onto his cock, forcing two inches past her clenching ring of muscle before lifting her a single inch, then doing it again. The fucker was so damn thick, each inch was pressure she felt against her pussy through the wall of flesh separating it from his cock.

One of his hands took her right thigh, and the hand holding her waist took her left thigh instead. With one of his hands behind Jen and keeping the girl where she was, resting back against his palm and balls deep on his cock, Triss's back now rested against the girl's breasts. And his other two hands were free to hold Triss's legs and keep pulling her down, giant grip encasing each thigh so completely her legs borderline disappeared.

It also meant he wasn't holding her waist or torso anymore, leaving her free to look down, and stare at the bulge moving up her abs.

Triss tried to say something, maybe ask Jen for a reality check that this was really happening. All she managed was pants and groans, as Sándor sank her deep. The bulge pushed higher, slipping up to her navel, and past it, as the giant beast eased her down and down. Once she was low enough, her ass pressed against Jen's pelvis, but Sándor kept pulling her down anyway, and Jen's legs spread far apart to make room for Triss's ass as she sank deeper.

So. Damn. Thick. His cock filled her with heat, its malleable texture bending slightly to fit her god damn guts, and giving her squeezing muscles a little leeway to work with. But even being a bit bendy didn't change that the cock was thicker than her forearm, and longer. And he was determined to get every inch into her. Deeper, deeper, until the distension on her once flat stomach reached way past her navel, and got closer and closer to her sternum.

Finally, Triss's ass pressed against the beast's pelvis, squashed snug between Jen's thighs and right up against her pelvis. Every inch of the fucker was inside her, filling her, making her gasp—and quickly realize it'd gotten harder to even breathe with so much meat inside her. Thank god she didn't need to breathe, but still, how fucking deep was he?

She stared down at the bulge along her stomach, and the tip of it that almost nudged against her sternum, showing where most of the cock was pressing up into her.

“Oh ... god...,” she said. “Jen ... I, I um...”

Jen reached around her, and hugged her tight, squashing her heavy wet tits against her back as her hands roamed Triss's body. One hand reached down, and teased along her inner thigh just above Sándor's finger, while the other pressed against her belly.

“Oh my god,” Jen said, in the same tone as Triss. Her hand slid up higher and higher, squeezing and pressing on the distension, and earning some rumbling purrs from Sándor that had both girls quivering. Jen couldn't see much, trapped behind Triss like she was, so she let her fingers see for her, prodding and pressing, until they reached up to Triss's breasts, and the bulge just underneath them. “Oh. My. God.”

“Christ, I ... I—nnng!”

With another deep, rumbling purr of pleasure, Sándor lifted Jen and Triss both up at the same time, gently working a few inches of length out of them, before he eased them back down again. Triss’s clenching asshole squeezed for all it was worth, but everything was dripping wet. All she managed to do was make the gargoyle rumble more, and fill both girls with enough vibration buzzing through their insides they were both whimpering.

Triss expected Jen to start fingering her, or play with her clit, or squeeze her tits, or anything. Nope. Jen was reduced to putty faster than Triss was, and she hugged her tight, wrapping her arms around her and holding on for dear life from behind, as Sándor fucked them both.

“Sán ... dor...” Triss reached out and pressed down on the behemoth abs in front of her. “W ... Wa ... W...” No good, she couldn’t get the words to come out. All she could do was quiver in Jen’s hug and Sándor’s grip, as the beast gently bounced them on his cocks.

And then not so gently. He lifted them at least six inches off his lengths, before he sank them back down. Triss pushed down on his abs, trying to slow him down a bit as he picked up speed, but the gargoyle found his new, slow-but-not-too-slow rhythm, and was determined to stick to it. Again and again, he lifted them off his cocks, two dolls in his hands, and sank them back down until he’d made sure every inch was buried inside them.

Jen clutched Triss tight, and writhed. Triss would have said something if she could, ask Sándor to slow down if he could, give Jen a break since the girl was clearly cumming and cumming hard, while the gargoyle made no signs of stopping. She wasn’t much better off. The constant, wet, delicious friction against her sensitive ass, combined with the ridiculous girth of his cock pressing against every inch of her pussy and then some, was too damn much. She came too, and squeezed on Sándor's fingers as her empty slit clenched hard, and shot juices straight down onto his pelvis hard enough it splashed up onto his abs.

Sándor looked pleased. He licked his teeth, rumbled some more, and turned Triss around.

“Sándor!” Fucking finally, he'd slowed down enough she could say something. “Dude, we're ... we're...” The look on Jen's face as Triss was turned to face her, both her legs now hooked over Jen's hips, shut her up. Jen's eyes were glazed over, half closed, mouth parted slightly, and she had a half smile on, the sort she sometimes got when she was really, really into the sex zone. There wasn't a single thought going through that Ventrue's mind anymore, just sex, bliss, and a clenching pussy drenching the huge cock stretching her to her limits.

Before Triss could look away from Jen's gorgeous, sex-coma face and cum-soaked body, Sándor bounced them again, earning some instant kitten mewls from the Ventrue. She reached out, wrapped her arms around Triss again, and hugged her close, squashing their breasts together and coating Triss in the warm, white cum from earlier.

Triss hugged her back, slipping her arms in between Jen's back and Sándor's palm. She managed to peek behind her up at the gargoyle, just long enough to see his hungry eyes locked onto her ass, before she melted against Jen and let her head lull over her girlfriend's shoulder. Squashed together with her legs hooked over Jen's hips, her pussy rubbed against Jen's pelvis, coating it in her juices.

Jesus christ, Triss could actually feel the bulge on Jen's stomach press against the one on her own stomach. So much meat, filling her until she was ready to explode. She squeezed Jen close, and held on tight as the giant beast found a faster rhythm, and bounced them on his cocks while he sat back on his throne, enjoying himself. Faster, harder, hard enough Triss's ass rippled with each bounce, and Jen's tits jiggled despite being pressed against hers. Flowing flesh, squirming and wriggling, as Sándor masturbated with their bodies.

Jen's thighs were soon drenched in a new coating of juices, almost all of it Triss's, and plenty of it hers. They held on, whimpering into each other's ear as the giant rumbled with pleasure. He got a little faster, and a little faster, his quiet deep rumbles getting louder as he bounced them harder, lifting them higher until the beast was pulling at least eight inches of his lengths out of them, before pulling them both back down balls deep. All they could do was hold on, and tremble.

Her girlfriend clutched her hard before desperately patting Triss's back several times. She was trying to say something.

"Sándor!" Oh thank fuck, Triss found enough air to say his name between the bounces that had her squeaking like a chew toy, his cock literally knocking the wind out of her.

He stopped. Both girls clutched each other as they shivered, legs shaking, toes curling, slowly coming down from their orgasm high as Sándor let them simply sit there on his cocks.

"I think..." Jen's hugging arms relaxed, and she let them go limp into the giant palm behind her. "I think ... I'm gonna tap out."

"Wuss," Triss whispered, and she gave her girlfriend a quick kiss. "Sándor, can you..."

The gargoyle, with two hands still holding Triss's thighs, used his other two hands to gently lift Jen off his cock. It was fucking glorious. Triss stared, gulping as she watched Jen's tight pussy clench on the huge thing on the way out, a bit of her insides coming out with her, just slivers of pink pussy flesh exposing themselves before the huge, cum-drenched log came free.

Jen wasn't off the hook. Sándor held her between his legs, half dangling half standing, holding both her hands up overhead so she didn't collapse. He pulled her in close, and with how thick and kinda malleable his now free cock was, it hung forward toward her. Maybe in another situation, Triss coulda grabbed it and massaged it or something, like Jen had done with the bigger cock before. But Sándor had other ideas. He brought Jen in closer until her chest pressed up against it, and the huge cock nestled in between her big tits.

He lifted Triss up, and sank her back down again, forcing another squeak out of her as the giant slab of meat filling her insides pressed deep enough it made her head spin. Triss looked back at the creature, and he licked his fangs as he stared at her and her ass, before he peeked his head to the side a bit to make sure Jen was lined up with his other cock. It was.

It didn't take long. Sándor bounced Triss for maybe two more minutes, earning a few pathetic whimpers from her she doubted she'd ever made in her life, as his cock stretched her apart. And each stroke meant the other cock resting between Jen's breasts shifted gently between her soft, cum-drenched tits. And with her so close, between Sándor's and Triss's legs and looking up at her, both girls stared into each other's eyes as Triss again clenched down hard, and squirted juices straight onto the cock in front of her, fucking Jen's tits.

Sándor slowed down, and the world slowed down with it, as the first gush of his cum poured into Triss's insides. She blinked, looked back at the gargoyle and his subtle, satisfied smile, before looking back down at Jen. Sure enough, more of the heavy globs of white cum oozed from the huge thing on her body, and with his glans against her neck, this time it poured out and over her shoulders, the tops of her breasts, and down over every inch of her body below the chin.

That much cum was pouring into Triss's guts. She stared at the holy mess her girlfriend was getting drenched in, for the second time, before looking down at her distended belly, and the growing bulge there. Both girls stared, and both girls groaned at the way it shifted slightly with the obvious waves of warm, white cum filling her up. He was literally pumping her insides full of his juices.

Just like last time, his orgasm lasted ages. Buckets of fluid, just, pouring into her, until she was wriggling and squirming with how much of it flowed from her ass and around her thighs, but still went deeper into her. This was insane. She clenched on the fingers holding her legs, and a hard shiver pulsed through her as Sándor worked her back and forth a few times, making her milk more cum out of him with muscle spasms.

"Sándor," Jen said. "I think I can stand on my own now."

The beast, nearing the end of his orgasm, nodded as he let her go, and set his other two hands casually on the arms of his throne. If Triss didn't know any better, she'd think this was a perfectly normal day for this gargoyle, leaning back in his throne while turning a fucking gorgeous vampire into a cock sleeve he could pump full of cum until she popped.

Now on her own two feet between the gargoyle's legs, her now white body almost up against the throne, Jen took the cock between her breasts into both hands, and gently worked its length with a milking grip. More cum flowed onto her until it literally dripped off her hard nipples and down into a pool of white around her feet.

"Sándor," she said, eyeing Triss evilly. "Want to lift Triss up? Just a little ways? I want to try something."

Uh oh.

“Jen, don’t you dare. My insides are thoroughly tenderized and I feel like I’m about to explode. If you—” Her voice vanished under another pathetic little mewl, as Sándor did as Jen asked, and lifted her up and up until her empty slit was on display for the Ventrue.

Jen licked her lips as she stared at Triss’s pussy, and guided the huge cock in her hands toward it.

“Jen! I’m warning you, if you—” Oh fuck.

Jen pressed the huge, swollen head of the giant cock against Triss’s dripping slit, and rubbed it against her clenching hole. She wasn’t gentle. She pushed against it, half guiding it, half forcing its fat tip against her pussy.

Sándor lowered Triss down, and Jen made sure the huge cock stayed where it was, jammed right up and under her cunt. Her clenching muscles gave way, and the monstrous thing slipped inside her.

She tried to say something. Beg for mercy? Something, anything. But the friction and pressure of Sándor’s second cock filling her up ripped the wind out of her. She stared down at her body, panting, mouth hanging open, as Sándor gently eased her down, sinking both his cocks into her holes. And as one cock pushed up into her ass until he was practically in her cum-filled guts, the other spread her tiny cunt wide, and deep, stretching her pussy inward as the head of his warm dick pressed against her deepspot.

When her insides gave some resistance, Sándor slowed down but didn’t stop, content to grind her around and around, rubbing his glans against her deepest place, until her aching muscles stretched more to fit him. Triss couldn’t do a damn fucking thing but stare, eyes locked onto her stomach, and the huge bulge pushing up along her abs. It wasn’t subtle. It was a big, fucking, bulge, showing a second cock wearing her pussy like a sleeve, and another behind it, pushing up through her insides.

Sándor pulled her down more, until she thought she'd pop. No room left inside her, not an inch. She couldn't even bend anymore. She sat there in the beast's hands, and went limp as the gargoyle sank her down until her little slit's lips found the base of him. Balls deep.

"Oh my god," Jen said, and she put both her hands on Triss's stomach. "Oh ... my god..."

Triss tried to say something, but getting enough air into her lungs was too damn hard. Either she let it go as a weak little whimper or pant, or an attempt to take a proper breath was cut short by the pressure filling her.

Jen's massaging hands slid up the bulge on her stomach, up to where it stopped a few inches above her belly button. And higher above that, the other bulge behind it, going even higher and almost hitting Triss in her sternum. So deep Triss could feel its malleable shape bend — just slightly — to fit her insides. Triss stared down at her body and Jen's hands, just as shocked, just as frozen.

And then Jen slid her hands down and down, and cupped the giant monster's soaked testicles in her palms. Enormous, heavy things, coated in everyone's cum and dripping the warm fluids everywhere. She giggled a couple times as she experimented, lifting them up and down in various patterns, before she grinned up at Triss, leaned in, and put a heavy, hard kiss on her clit.

Too much, too fucking much. Triss again let out the weakest, most girly sound she'd ever made, kitten mewls they could barely hear over Sándor's breathing, as the shock of Jen's kiss sent electric bliss through her whole body. Sándor took it as a sign, and he ground Triss around a few more times, trying to fit more cock into her despite every inch of his lengths already rearranging her insides.

Triss's muscles clenched hard. With her pussy stuffed to its limit, she couldn't squirt out her juices with force like usual, but that didn't mean they didn't come out of her anyway, trickling like a tiny waterfall down over the giant testicles underneath her. Jen's giggles turned into moans, and her hands slid up to massage the giant bulge on Triss's belly, while her eyes stared down at the mess Triss made.

Sándor rumbled, deep, powerful, and with one hand still on each of Triss's thighs, holding her spread open like a toy, he lifted her up half of his length, and sank her back down.

"Fuuu—" The wind got knocked out of her again once the beast pushed her balls deep, and she whimpered with the final bits of air before they were gone. Sándor wasn't gentle; not super rough, but not gentle either. He bounced her, hard enough her small tits bounced too, and she stared down at her body and the giant bulge on her stomach as long as she could before her eyes drifted closed.

A gargoyle over twice as tall as her, was masturbating with her body, and forcing two gigantic cocks into her insides. Holy fuck. It was surreal, and for a second, she thought she was dreaming, but the vibration of Sándor's rumbles buzzing through her body yanked her back to reality.

Her eyes opened when he stood up.

"Sándor?" Jen asked.

Sándor stepped over Jen, clear over her fucking head, before he turned around, and with one of his free hands, picked Jen up and sat her down on the giant throne instead. Before she could ask what he was doing, Sándor squatted down in front of the throne, facing it, and lowered Triss down onto Jen's body.

Jen lay back on the huge throne, looking up at Triss, confused, but her eyes went wide as she looked up at the gargoyle now looming over her, like a monster ready to pounce. She gulped as Sándor leaned over the two of them, and they disappeared under shadow as the titan spread his wings. With two hands still holding Triss, his other two each took an arm of the throne, and he hunched over the two vampires as he held Triss in place against Jen's lying body, and fucked Triss more.

He didn't lift her up and down anymore like a sex toy. He held her in place, pinned her against Jen's chest, and fucked her, like a beast. He pulled his hips back and thrust into her, and the world disappeared as the monster again sank his cocks balls deep into Triss's pussy and guts.

Sándor roared. Not a rumble or a purr, or a grumble or anything quiet. He fucking roared, more than loud enough Triss's whole body clenched hard, and Jen's eyes widened again. Scary. The gargoyle was fucking scary. And exhilarating. His voice rumbled throughout the huge stone hallway, and echoed in the aftermath as the monster thrust into Triss again and again.

He could have fucked her hard enough to literally break her, but he didn't. If it'd been just the Horror, it probably would have, but Sándor kept the pace reasonable, by giant monster standards. His heavy, soaked testicles gently slapped against Triss's thighs as the titan found a consistent rhythm, pulling his hips back before thrusting them into her, working over half his length in and out of her with each stroke. All Triss could do was let out a tiny squeak with each thrust, and go limp, body lying on Jen's, while Jen hugged onto her tight.

Triss came again, and it didn't stop Sándor. The beast probably didn't even notice. He kept thrusting, giant cocks pushing past Triss's clenching muscles until his testicles were slapping her newly soaked thighs harder, and splashing everything with her juices. She could feel him, stretching her apart, huge girths forcing her stomach to bulge and press into Jen's. She could feel the distension slide up and down her abs with each thrust. And she could feel the heat of his cum, when he finally slowed down, buried himself balls deep inside her, and came again.

“Oh ... ffffuck...” Triss went limp, and went into lala land. Electric pulses worked up and down her body, from her nipples stabbing into Jen’s soft tits, to her curling toes under her dangling legs hanging off the front of the throne. Her cum dripped from her toes, but that was just tiny drops compared to the copious warm flood of cum that flowed down her thighs now. Thick, heavy, hot, white cum that oozed from both of her holes.

Some of it managed to swell places in her pussy she had no fucking idea Sándor could reach, so much cum flowed into her cunt she felt it, going deep into her and filling her womb.

But it was the cum gushing into her guts that had her shivering. Most of the cum he shot into her slit squirted out of her, but most of the fluid he poured into her ass flowed into her insides, and she held onto Jen as her belly swelled.

“W ... Warm,” Triss said, voice a shaking mess, and an octave higher than usual. She could barely breathe before, and now with Sándor filling her up, it was almost pointless to try.

She lay there, letting her boyfriend fill her with cum, as Sándor slowed down to nothing. He went quiet. The girls went quiet. No one moved as Sándor simply held Triss balls deep on his cocks, and gently ground his massive weight against her tiny body, making sure she milked more cum out of him. She did, whether she wanted to or not, body trembling and squeezing.

An eternity later, Sándor pulled out, and Triss managed to relax as all that cum flowed out of her. She kissed Jen’s neck, and Jen kissed her back, as the orgasm aftershocks tingled up and down her cum-soaked thighs still pouring with new waves of the white fluid.

But finally, it stopped, and with a few more minutes to recover, Triss found enough energy to push herself off Jen, and sit beside her. The throne was more than big enough for both girls to sit, legs dangling. And a glance down showed a literal pool of cum at the throne's base. Fucking christ.

~~♥♥♥~~

Sándor got down on a knee in front of them.

“Are you alright?” he asked.

Triss laughed, and with a shaky hand, reached out and touched the man's huge, handsome face. She pulled on his hard jaw, got him closer, and gave him a kiss. Hard to kiss something this big, but she tried.

“Y-Yeah, I am ... I think. Jesus christ, you really just ... went to town me.”

“I've been wanting to do that to the both of you ... for a long time,” he said.

“Really?” Jen asked.

He nodded, grinning. “Many fantasies. I wasn't sure if you could ... manage me, but you did. I am ... very satisfied.”

Holy shit her boyfriend had been fantasizing about fucking her and Jen as a giant monster all this time? Fucking. Awesome.

“We can ... do some more,” Triss said. “Later, maybe? More fantasies? I know there are things Jen wants to try.”

Jen put up a hand. “Of course!”

“But,” Triss said, “there's things I want to try too. Lots of ... different things.”

Sándor's grin softened. “You are welcome to stay in my lair whenever you want. I will make sure my Horror's hunger will not be an issue.”

A new jolt of tingles worked through Triss’s insides, for a different reason, this time with some butterflies in the stomach, too. Moving in with Sándor? That was ... exciting, and for more reasons than just the inevitable amount of monster fucking there’d be.

But that was a good reason, too.

Chapter 180

~~Antoinette~~

“Do not lie to me, Begotten. I can see your thoughts.”

“No you can’t.” Sándor did not so much as blink as he looked at her, and then back down at his electric guitar.

The two of them sat together in her Elysium Tower, in one of its many deep, large rooms. This one was a carefully balanced room with acoustic panels in strategic locations, to ensure whoever played their instrument within its center, would experience only the most perfect balance of sounds. The appropriate amount of time smearing and echo, minimal but existent. No standing waves. No loose bass to bury their instruments and hide their depth.

But other than the various, and sometimes intricate arrays of white panels along the black walls and ceiling, with especially thick panels within the room’s corners, it was an empty room. Large enough for plenty more than Antoinette and Sándor, but small enough that such a small arrangement felt natural. She had been tempted to invite Maria, but ultimately, she was happier to have not. The two of them would never get along, and she wanted to speak with Sándor alone.

“Nonsense. I can see it in the way you move. I can see it in your eyes.”

Sándor effortlessly played a scale along his guitar’s neck, and the tiniest smile appeared, only to vanish. The man did not like showing his emotions, but he had them. It would be an interesting challenge discovering them, a challenge that likely intrigued Beatrice to no end.

“Fine. It’s going well.”

“I would imagine so, for it to garner such massive reactions from you.” She grinned at him as she mirrored his scale. Alas, the cello was not designed for such quick notes. She did well, and Sándor watched with a pleased, if subtle expression.

“It’s going very well,” he said at last.

“That is good. Beatrice, and even that little minx Jennifer deserve some happiness. As do you, whether you believe it or not.”

He nodded slowly as he looked back down at his guitar, and quickly tested another scale.

“I believe it.”

“Oh?”

“I do.” He nodded again, and played the scale faster.

She eyed him as he continued to warm up. Any other man would have explained what he meant, but Sándor was content to let his words stand. He knew that she knew he referred to the night of Jacob’s death, and the advice the dead souls had given many. A powerful night for all present, and perhaps Sándor most of all.

Antoinette mirrored the scale.

“I can only imagine the sex has been quite the adventure for a man such as yourself. Two women at once, with appetites as large as theirs? Jennifer is a buxom, beautiful woman. And of course, Beatrice and her rather ... large derrière.”

He missed a note, paused, and resumed playing the scale again, faster.

“You’re shameless.”

“Of course.”

He closed his eyes for a moment, as if rolling them would have been too great an emotion.

“The sex has been great, and they’re both gorgeous. And, they’re both wonderful.”

“That they are.” She offered the man her most warm, inviting smile, and scanned his expression as he peeked up at her from under his stern eyebrows still aimed at his guitar. A confirmation. The two women had indeed satisfied some of his fantasies, helped settle his nerves, and perhaps, even opened him up to new experiences he had not considered.

Antoinette was tempted to tease him about it. A threesome was hardly a step above vanilla, and neither was anal sex, two forms of sexual activity that had been practiced by many cultures for thousands of years. But she could not tell how sensitive the man would be to teasing. Some quiet men were quiet because they were fearful, with sensitive egos. She doubted that applied to him, but still, no reason to poke the bear and taint his newfound pleasures.

But that did not mean she could not indulge the conversation and satisfy her curiosity, either.

“And the gargoyle?”

He lifted a brow as he looked up. “What about it?”

“Forgive me for asking, but it gave me the impression it was capable of sex, when I saw it. Am I wrong?”

He looked back down at his guitar. Hiding his facial expression then. Embarrassed? Unsure of himself? She could not tell, not yet.

“Not wrong.”

The small inflection was enough to tell her much. He had had sex with the girls while transformed, and it had been good. And considering who he was now dating, the girls had likely been the ones to suggest the idea.

Antoinette tapped her chin with a finger, before again setting her bow to the strings of her grand instrument. She paused, opened her mouth, and closed it, before again playing a scale.

“You want to say something,” he said. He had not looked her way.

She smiled. “You know I am interested in sexuality in many ways. Academically and artistically.”

“I do.” He tuned one of his strings.

“It appears you have indulged Beatrice and Jennifer in what has likely been some of their greatest sexual fantasies. I would be in your debt to learn of the details.”

“Details...”

She grinned as she looked back to her cello, and again played the scale he did. The cello would never be as fast an instrument as the guitar, but a few centuries of practice helped mitigate the issue.

“Details. Such a fantasy is so tantalizing, so delicious, I am afraid I must ask for the particulars.”

“I’m not sure I get ... why my sex life would be so interesting to you.”

She laughed and shook her head. Sándor was an ancient, wise man, but the ways of a woman’s mind were, perhaps, still a mystery to him.

“The idea of a beast, gargantuan, deadly and dangerous, powerful and beyond intimidating, even terrifying, and yet strangely handsome and oddly masculine? And, dare I say it, perhaps a touch tortured, morose, and longing for companionship? That, is a romantic fantasy given life, Sándor. Have you not spoken with Jessy? Or rather, has she not bombarded you with tales of what it is like to be pinned and thoroughly ravaged by Eric when he is transformed? To be filled to bursting by hot flesh, claws wrapped around her throat, while a hungry beast glares down at her with an aching need to wholly possess and own her? She craves such a fantasy.”

“I...” He gulped. Finally, she had managed to dent his armor.

“Have you not seen Disney’s Beauty and the Beast?”

“I ... have.”

“Then be aware that many, many women, found the idea of Beast in said movie, to be utterly carnal.”

“Because he transf—”

“No, not because he transformed into a man at the end. I mean, as the Beast, Sándor. A deadly, terrifying, massive, strangely handsome monster. To be held down and ravaged by such a creature? Many young girls — and boys — had their sexual awakenings watching that film.”

He frowned slightly. “You might ruin that movie for anyone listening.”

“Then be glad it is only you that listens.” Chuckling, she played her scale again, faster, faster than a song would require, until she felt comfortable her Kindred half would not interfere with her muscle memory tonight. “There is no need to feel self conscious. Women everywhere would love to taste such a fantasy, not just Beatrice and Jennifer. And as you and I become better friends, I hope you will share with me the details of such an indulgence. I envy those girls.”

He eyed her, a little suspicion in his gaze.

“You never—”

“Alas, never. Looking back, I can see I was too absorbed in my own growth of power to ever dare risk a sexual encounter with a deadly creature, such as a werewolf or monster. Now, I am centuries old. There are few creatures on this planet I could not fight face to face. The delight in being helpless and at the mercy of a colossal creature about to force his massive length into my dripping, boiling insides? I will never experience such a treat. And while I adore my life with Jack, and our sexual dynamic, a wandering mind cannot help but peek over the fence to examine the grass elsewhere.”

The man said nothing for a while, watching her, looking for the joke in her words. There was none. She was serious, and she made sure he knew it as she held her smile.

“You’re a strange person, Antoinette.”

“Do not be ridiculous, Sándor. No one can live as long as us and not become a touch bizarre.”

“Touché.”

She laughed, and motioned to him and the small tablet in front of him, held up by a music stand. It could display sheet music, and scroll through it automatically, along with a metronome beat for them to follow. She had her own.

“I assume you know Vivaldi.”

He frowned slightly. “I do.”

“But...”

“But I was kinda hoping we could play something a little more contemporary.”

“Why would we, when we can play the true classics?”

With his subtle frown unrelenting, Sándor looked at her, and began to play.

She stared, and forced herself to keep her jaw from dropping, as the man effortlessly played Vivaldi’s Summer. He did not glance at the tablet, and needed no metronome. Indeed, as his left hand smoothly danced the fret board, and his right hand’s picking missed no string nor struck too hard, Sándor continued to look at her. And despite herself, her mouth did part slightly as he began to tap his foot. To play a fast, complicated piece of music from memory without error, on beat, was the territory of a master musician. To do so while tapping the foot, was a place where even the virtuoso struggled.

She stared on and listened as he completed the movement, and she managed to close her mouth once again.

“I ... did not realize you were this talented, Sándor. Dare I say, you are more talented than I, or even Maria.”

“Thank you.” He nodded as a small smile crept onto his face, and he looked down at his guitar as he effortlessly swept an arpeggio. “The gargoyle likes to ... sit around, and watch the world go by. I like music. So I practice a lot.” And by a lot, the quiet man likely meant several hours a day, every day, for literal centuries.

“I can only imagine.”

“So, Maria’s good, too? I’m surprised you didn’t invite her.”

“We do not get along, she and I. I am a scientist. She is a devout, religious...”

“Simpleton?” he said, offering her a knowing eye.

“She is not simple. That is part of the reason her blind faith in a religious figure infuriates me so.” Shaking her head, Antoinette set her bow against her strings. “You think I should invite her regardless.”

“I do. I can play the piano about as good as I play the guitar, but it’d be nice to have a pianist join us. Three instruments. Fuller sound.”

She frowned. “I will ... invite her another night, if you play some classical music with me now, dear Sándor.”

He chuckled, a quiet sound that carried with it a gentle breeze that soothed her. It was likely a sound he rarely made, and she could easily imagine Beatrice savoring each one she managed to pluck from his soul.

“Alright. After that, how about some Pink Floyd?”

---

~~Jack~~

Down and down into the Elysium Tower, down past all the sealed off doors and long hallways where Antoinette did her crazy experiments.

Which one of these rooms did Antoinette kill all those people in? He didn’t want to know. It wasn’t like she kept it a secret from him, and it’d been just a matter of time before the Invictus — and Damien — stumbled onto the information. A lot of kine had disappeared, a lot lot, enough to be a Masquerade risk, and the Invictus and the Prince were doing some double duty on the media to keep it from spreading. A shit load of people had disappeared off the street, in one night.

Jack wasn't going to ask her about it, either. He knew she'd done, did, and would do everything she could to make sure she only killed kine who deserved it, but, damn that was a lot of people.

Elders were scary. No way in hell could Jack do some twisted shit like that, just execute a bunch of people who deserved it ... Except, that one time, with Beatrice and Jacob...

He shook his head and rubbed his buzzed hair. Don't think about it. That was then, a lifetime ago. Now, he was on a trip to visit his amazing girlfriend, and hang out and talk about stuff. Just, hang with his girlfriend, and talk. Not strategize or talk about politics. Just, hang, and talk.

There were two people in the whole world he actually liked talking to, just to talk about stuff. Damien, and Ann. Yeah sure, the others were his friends too, but not like Ann and Damien. And now he was going to have a conversation with Ann—and Sándor, apparently.

He stepped into the music room, and made sure he raised his eyebrow in a very obvious quizzical manner, as he looked between Sándor and Ann. She had her giant cello, and the gargoyle had an electric guitar in hand, plugged into an amp.

Where the fuck did Ann get an amp? Did she even know anything about amps? Or had Sándor brought it?

Jack joined Ann's side, and she smiled at him as she finished off a song, a song he knew pretty well.

"That," Jack said, grinning at her before giving Sándor his 'I know that' eyes, "is Pink Floyd. Comfortably Numb, right?"

“Indeed,” she said. “I am not unfamiliar with the band.”

“You’re ... not?”

“Of course not. But, no, I do not know how to play the song. Sándor was teaching me.”

“Sándor?”

The man nodded, and rested his hands on the guitar, letting the neck strap keep it on his thigh and knee.

“I’m a fan of the classics. Unfortunately for the Prince, she thought I meant classical music.”

“Which,” she said, “are the classics.”

Sándor snuck in a quick smile, so fast Jack almost didn’t notice, before he looked down at his guitar and slipped his left hand under the neck, fingers to the fretboard.

“Agree to disagree,” he said.

“You like Pink Floyd?” Jack asked.

“Yes.”

“And...”

Sándor shrugged. “Classic rock from the sixties, seventies, and eighties, are my true loves.”

“Oh shit.” Jack grabbed one of the tiny stools and sat down. “I mean, I knew you played music. Triss mentioned that, but we haven’t talked much lately.” On account of her hanging out with Sándor pretty much nonstop since they started dating. “You like metal, too?”

He nodded.

“You like ... Metallica? Megadeth?”

He nodded.

“Journey?” Sándor had to like Journey, if he liked rock.

He grinned, again a sneaky thing that vanished quickly as he nodded. He loved Journey.

“Judas Priest?”

He nodded.

“OZZY?”

He nodded.

Fucking god, finally! Finally, someone else who knew music. Sándor probably didn't live in the modern era of metal, like Jack did, kinda, but Jack enjoyed the classics, too. If it weren't for the classics, his favorite metal bands wouldn't even exist.

“Dio?”

He nodded. It was practically a given.

“Queen?”

The man outright smiled, bigger this time, almost as big as a normal person's smile.

“I think it's safe to say I'll like most of the classic bands you do, Jack.”

Fucking. Awesome.

“Newer bands?”

“Maybe.”

“Ayreon? Avantasia? Nightwish?” Not exactly new, but new by Sándor’s standards, for sure.

Sándor nodded.

“Unleash the Archers? Devin Townsend? Blind Guardian? Sabaton?”

He nodded again. Okay, maybe some heavier stuff.

“Lamb of God? Architects? Sold Soul?”

He nodded. He knew the names of all these bands? Did the guy just live and breathe music?

“Lorna Shore? Mys—”

“Jack.” Ann reached out and pat him on the shoulder. “I think it is safe to say, that Sándor has dedicated his free time to music in a way none of us have.”

“Well, damn. I mean, I uh ... I had no idea.”

With a hint of a smile again, Sándor plucked a string, but didn’t play anything.

“I assume you play, Jack?”

“Nah. I’ve tried, but I could never stick to it, you know? Fiddled with some instruments when I was younger but never stuck to anything.”

“No time like the present.”

“From what Damien and Triss have told me, learning to play an instrument as a vampire is a pain in the ass.”

Sándor nodded as he looked at his strings and tinkered with them idly. “Supposedly. But...” He gestured to Ann.

Ann grinned at Jack, leaned over, and kissed him. “You do seem to like music in a way few do, my love. You should learn to play an instrument.”

“But I suck at it.”

“Then it is a good thing you will have centuries to learn.”

He couldn't help but laugh. Encouraging words, with absolutely zero attempt to bullshit him. No ‘oh I'm sure you're fine’ or ‘I bet if you just put your mind to it, you'd be great’ or any of that crap. God, he loved her.

“Well, I mean, I do like guitar and piano, but it's the singing that really sucks me in.”

Ann and Sándor looked at each other, considered, and smiled.

“Then,” Ann said, “you have some work to do, my love.”

---

Garry's apartment building was old, shitty, and strangely comfortable. There was something freeing about knowing you didn't need to worry about making a mess. Scuff marks, dirty footprints, no one in this building cared, and its hallway carpets showed enough wear and tear you could see the story in them. A fight here, some old vomit stains over there, claw marks from a local cat using the carpet to sharpen their nails, shit like that.

“I miss this place,” Triss said.

Jack grinned at her. “Take your pick. Crappy apartment buildings and crappier bars, or underground caves filled with bones and stuff.”

“Oh the caves, definitely.”

They both nodded as they walked the stairs up toward the top floor of the building. The stairs creaked, unhappy with the intruders.

“You know your boyfriend is a great guitarist?” he asked.

“Dude is a fucking virtuoso, with guitar and the piano.”

“And he loves music. A lot of really, really good music.”

“I know! Wait, how do you know?”

“I caught him playing with Antoinette. She had her cello and he had his guitar.”

“Oh damn. I knew she played, but, she can play with Sándor?” she asked.

“Maybe not Sándor good, but still damn good.”

“Bet they’d make some awesome metal.”

“Ha, good luck convincing Antoinette to play metal.”

“Not a fan?”

“Fan, no. She can enjoy it, some of it, but she’s a diehard classics lover. And by classics I mean—”

“Mozart and shit.” Laughing, Triss gave him a gentle punch on the shoulder. “Shame she hates Maria. With Maria on piano, the Prince on cello, and Sándor shredding, they could play some pretty wicked shit.”

“That ... is the plan, I think.”

“Really?”

“Sándor wants her to try and get along with Maria enough to at least play with them. He hasn’t had anyone to play with, especially not at his level.” Jack looked up at the old ceiling as they walked. “If he can manage that, he can have my job as peacekeeper.”

“Thought that was only for dealing with the Uratha and Begotten? Not Maria.”

“He’s better suited for the job than I am, if he can get Maria to play with Antoinette.” And honestly, Jack wouldn’t mind someone else taking the role. Then again, with Azamel and Mark dead, and Athalia best friends with his mom, the Begotten were now easy to deal with. Avery, on the other hand, not so much. She was next on the visit list.

Triss knocked on a door, but didn’t bother waiting. With a little more force than was probably necessary, she swung the door open and marched in.

“Garry, long time no see.” And without so much as a glance to the man to see if this was okay, she sat down in one of the shitty chairs in front of his big, wooden, chipped and worn desk.

“Beatrice. Nice to see you’re still a bitch.”

Garry sat behind the desk in his chair, wearing a black t-shirt and blue jeans. He was leaning back, feet up on the corner of the desk, and the shaved-bald man smirked as he looked at Jack.

“Mister Tones,” Jack said.

“Jack. I suppose you’re here to get an update on shit and get back to your job? Took your sweet time, jackass.”

“Sort of. May I sit?”

“Yes you can fucking sit, Jesus Christ.” He pointed a thumb at Jack while looking at Triss. “This guy. Just like Julius.”

Triss smiled. “He is.”

Jack sat, smiled at Triss, and gave Garry a stern look.

“I—”

“This isn’t about Vicky and Parker’s brothels, is it? Those two little fucks can suck my dick, Jack. Those brothels are getting problematic, and—”

Jack put up a hand. “Not about that.”

“Then the fuck do you want? And why’d you bring the witch?”

“Hey!” Triss yelled.

“Oh come on, you telling me you’re not a witch?”

“You said it like I was some ugly bitch making villagers sick. Which, I mean, I could do, but I resent the implication.”

Garry laughed, plucked a knife that’d been stabbed into the corner of his desk, and idly flipped it in his hand as he looked back to Jack, waiting.

“I’m here,” Jack said, “to talk about Jacob.”

Garry stopped flipping the knife.

“I’ve already talked about Jacob with the Prince.”

“All official, right? As official as a Primogen meeting can get.”

“And?” Garry asked, narrowing his eyes.

“And, that’s not what you want to hear, is it? What was said in those meetings. I know you and Jacob were friends, sort of. You want to know more about what happened, right? No Carthian was there to fill you in on the details.”

With a heavy snarl, Garry stabbed the knife back into the desk’s corner closest to him, and Jack got ready for a fight. But, nope, Garry stayed sitting, feet still up on the desk as he looked up and stared at the peeling, stained, white paint on the ceiling.

“And what will this information cost?”

“Nothing.”

That got him to take his feet down.

“Nothing?”

“Nothing,” Triss said, “you fucking asshole. Not everything needs to be a transaction.”

“With the Invictus, it does.”

“I’m not here as Invictus,” Jack said. “If I were, I’d be telling you to stay the fuck away from Vicky and Parker’s brothels before Michael retaliates.” It took some doing to not make it a more personal threat. Talking with Garry was always a struggle, like trying to help a wounded animal who didn’t understand you were trying to help, so they kept snapping at you as you tried to undo the trap. It put Jack on edge.

The man laughed and shrugged. “Alright. Lay it on me, kid. What do you want to tell me about that fucker?” And there it was. Garry frowned, voice darkened, and followed his words with a quiet snarl. He wasn’t happy with Jacob.

“That Jacob wasn’t a villain.”

“The fuck are you talking about? He’s dead, right? You and the Prince and that bitch Elaine killed him because he—”

“We killed him, yeah.” Better he think that than knowing Sam did it. “And stopped Black Blood. But, Jacob wasn’t a villain.”

“He stirred up the hornet’s nest on purpose, Jack, and got me and Michael fighting. He got Avery on Maria’s ass, and nearly got her killed.” Her, being Avery. Garry didn’t give a shit about Maria. “And unless I’m wrong, Antoinette was pretty clear Jacob is the reason Avery showed up in the first place, and lost people to the azlu. Jacob —”

“Jacob barely lifted a finger and had you and Michael ready to burn the city down to kill each other and ruin each other’s lives. Don’t put that on Jacob. Yes, he tricked Avery and others to go after Maria, but if Avery had just taken a second to talk to Maria, that wouldn’t have been a problem. And yes, Black Blood lured them here to fight azlu for him, but Avery wants to fight azlu. Her whole pack does. Even if he hadn’t specifically lured her, she’d have happily come.”

Garry raised a brow. “You’re seriously defending him? You?”

“I figure you deserve to know the truth.” Or at least some of it. “Jacob, and even Black Blood, weren’t just a couple of villains trying to fuck everything over. Sure, their goals were selfish, but they wanted to share their goal with everyone. They legitimately wanted to help the whole world, Garry, especially Jacob. Fucked up as it was, twisted as it was, they wanted to help. Hell, Jacob could have killed us at any time, at the end there. He didn’t. He wanted us alive and around when things changed, and I don’t think it was to gloat. He just ... He...”

“Jacob was awesome,” Triss said. “And yeah, he needed to be stopped, but no one walked away from that fight thinking Jacob was some shithole fuckwad, Garry. He was a great guy. Maybe misguided and fucked in the head, I don’t know, but he was a great guy. I miss my boss.”

Garry looked between the two of them, silence heavy in the room. But after a minute to think about it, Garry nodded as he leaned back in his chair and put his feet back up.

“Jacob and I were always strange friends. We agreed on a lot of things, and disagreed on others. He really fucking hated Avery for what Simon did. If I hadn’t talked to him, I wouldn’t be surprised if he ... if he woulda killed her. Poor guy was really fucked up.”

Jack didn’t say anything. Triss didn’t say anything. Everyone stewed in the shitty reality that Jacob hadn’t been some horrible person, some vile asshole villain who needed to be put down. He was a man who’d been hurt, and saw a way to ‘fix’ that problem for everyone.

“How’s your mom taking it?” Garry asked.

Jack didn’t flinch.

“She’s recovering, pretty fast, too. The whole situation was weird. She really liked Jacob, but he also really helped her ... find herself, I guess. She’s not the same person anymore.” He smiled. “I owe Jacob for some of that.” And his sister for a lot of it, too.

After an awkward laugh, Garry grabbed his knife again and resumed tossing it in one hand, flipping it handle to handle each time.

“You came all this way just to have a chat about Jacob?”

“You’re not that far.”

“Far enough. But don’t think I’m taking this as a favor done, Jack. I don’t owe you anything for this, got it?”

“Got it.”

“But ... thanks, anyway.”

Nodding, Jack got up and made for the door, but stopped.

“Garry.”

“Yeah?”

“You play an instrument?”

“The fuck?”

“He plays a bit of bass,” Triss said as she got up and joined him.
“Just a bit.”

Jack nodded, grinning.

---

“The fuck do you want, Jack?”

Oh boy.

Wincing, Jack forced himself to keep eye contact with Avery. Every time he talked with her, it was more and more obvious the woman was wolf software running on human hardware. He had to treat her like a dangerous animal, and that included not showing signs of weakness.

“Just wanted to check up on the pack.”

Avery grumbled and looked back to her TV. She sat on her couch in her apartment, a couple of her pack nearby watching as well, but it was clear Jack’s arrival had soured things a bit.

No Clara. He looked, but no, she wasn't around, and he breathed a sigh of relief.

"We're fine," Avery said.

"Yeah, you sure sound fine." Maybe a little bit of his classic cynicism and sarcasm would push the conversation along better.

"You really gonna visit just to get on my bad side? And why's the witch here?"

"I'm already on your bad side. And Triss is here because she's my friend." He smiled at the Nosferatu standing beside him, and she fist-bumped him in return.

"Figured you'd take that Damien dude with you," Avery said. "He was damn good with a sword."

"It's his day off. But that doesn't matter anyway. I'm here because ... we haven't really talked much since that night, and—"

"What? That fucking surprises you? Jack, I had to watch that curse thing use your body and kill two of my family. Not to mention nearly kill the rest of us."

"I know. I just thought—"

"Thought what? That because I got to talk to their ghosts, or souls or whatever, and that Monica and Caleb gave you a pass, that I'm going to stop seeing your face every time I think about how they died?"

Fucking ow. Jack looked down, shaking his head. "I ... I..."

"Fucking bitch," Triss said. "You just fucking said that wasn't Jack."

“I know it wasn’t.” Avery got to her feet and marched up to them. For a little woman, she could march. “And Caleb and Monica told me to not blame you. Hell, they told me to thank you for everything you’ve done. And sure, I’ll do that, I’ll thank you for everything you’ve done, kid. But ... I’m only human.”

“You’re not human,” Triss said.

“Oh shut up, you know what I mean. I’m just a fucking person, and ... and I think about Stephanie and Carter, and I’m fucking wrecked. I think about Monica and Caleb, and I’m fucking wrecked. But at least with Steph and Carter, I get to have my revenge. I hunt and I kill those fucking abominations and have for a fucking century. But ... Monica and Caleb? All I can see when I think about them, is that Ripper asshole wearing Jack’s skin.”

Heavy silence, even worse than with Garry.

“Yeah, I get you.” Nodding, Jack turned and reached for the doorknob. “Sorry. I thought—”

Avery put a hand on his shoulder and turned him around.

“Kid, what I’m saying, is ... just give me a bit of space, okay? Give it a few years and maybe I’ll be able to look you in the eye.”

He breathed relief. “Okay, sure. Um, and Clara, she—”

“Is handling it better than I am. She’s still young.”

“Good. Where is—”

“Out with Harcourt, getting laid I assume.”

Triss and Jack smiled at each other, before stepping out.

“Hey, Avery,” Triss said. “You play an instrument?”

“Bit of drums. Why?”

Triss and Jack’s smiles only grew as they left, leaving Avery with eyebrow cocked and confused.

---

Triss and Jack walked the streets, slowly heading back to the more populated center of South Side. They didn’t say anything for a while. Not an awkward silence, just a silence that didn’t need to be broken. If it hadn’t been for Julias’s visiting them to say goodbye that final time, it definitely would have been an awkward silence, and painful. It’d be the sort of silence most people had to deal with when hanging around with people who used to be connected by someone, and now that someone was gone.

Jack and Triss were lucky. Unlucky, and lucky.

“I’m on my way to Damien’s,” she said after a bit. “Piano lessons.”

“So much for him having a day off.”

“Dude. Teaching me is a delight.”

“Ha. Good enough to play anything yet?”

“Nah, not really. I mean, some simple Disney stuff?”

He laughed. “Figures.”

“How’s that?”

“You’re the type who’s probably always wanted to be a Disney princess.”

“Hey, fuck you. I am a beacon of feminism. I don’t need no king or—”

“You want to sit in bed, get fed pancakes — or blood now, I suppose — by a bunch of servants, while your dad rules a kingdom and owns a giant castle. You want to try on fancy custom-made dresses, and have suitors doing everything in their power to win your hand.”

She snorted and shoved him. He shoved her back.

“Hey, that ... does sound awesome.”

“As awesome as a cave filled with skulls and candles and ritual symbols?”

“I mean, yeah? I live in a cave filled with skulls and candles and ritual symbols. Being a pampered princess would be novel.” Despite her attempts to hide it, he could see her grinning.

“What’s up?”

“Well, Sándor asked me to move in with him, sorta.”

“That’s ... wait ... weird? I mean—”

“Not like that. I mean, into his lair. We still haven’t seen Aaron, and I’m pretty sure he’s just up and left Dolareido. But if he hasn’t —”

“He’s not gonna—”

“Dude, you don’t know. You didn’t see him, at the end, when he tried to stop me. He—” She cut herself off this time, and waved both hands for a second. “Don’t worry about it. He’s my problem, and I’ve got a few rituals set up to hopefully warn me — us — if he shows up. I was gonna say, because no place I sleep is perfectly safe, Sándor’s letting me stay at his place, his lair. And, uh...” She squirmed a bit, rubbed one of her arms once, and looked down as she smiled. “He was pretty insistent I could stick around.”

“Stick around? You mean, live there?”

“I guess? Kinda? ... yeah, live there.” She shivered. “That’s fucking scary!”

“He is a nightmare monster. The castle is, literally, a nightmare.”

“Not because of that. Er, mostly not because of that. I meant more normal shit. How the fuck do you live with someone else?”

“You hadn’t been living with Jennifer and Jacob and them?”

“Fuck no. I hung out there, sure, slept there too but that ain’t exactly ‘living’. Sándor thinks I could, like, live with him.”

“Which is ... what? Hanging out in his lair slightly more than you did the witch cave?”

She threw up her hands. “It’s symbolic!”

“Symbolism is a trap. Just think about the reality. You’re gonna spend more time with the guy you love—”

“Whoa whoa whoa! No L words have been exchanged yet.”

He leaned in and eyed her. “Really?”

Rolling her eyes, she shoved him away hard enough to hit a lamppost. None of the nearby kine looked. Her Obfuscate skills were getting better.

“Really. Awesome monster sex aside, my relationship with Sándor is very ... normal, and new.”

“And normal means what? You can’t say things like ‘I love you’ because there’s no big, dramatic moment to underline it?” He leaned in again, eyeing her until she turned away slightly. “The relationships that need big dramatic moments are called ‘toxic relationships’.”

She put a hand on his shoulder, but instead of shoving, she pat it slightly, and smiled.

“Getting smart in your old age.”

“My sire taught me a lot. He was awesome.”

“Yeah, he was.” Laughing, her pat turned into a shove, and she timed the shove so his shoulder hit a lamppost dead on this time. “Yeah, it’s normal, and I’m very afraid of ruining that. It’s so comfy.”

“I admit, comfy does sound nice.”

“Dude, there is no one living a comfier life than you.”

“Eh?”

“We all saw you getting jerked off by Elaine onto the Prince’s tits, with five”—she held up five fingers—”kine there to kiss it all off.”

“Oh ... right.” Damn it, Ashley. “Sex aside! I love Antoinette and my relationship with her, but I wouldn’t exactly call it comfy, in a normal kinda way. And thinking about it, maybe I wouldn’t like normal? I dunno.”

“Well I do, apparently. I like that I can get in bed with Sándor and we can cuddle and watch a movie and no one has to say a fucking thing. It’s almost like ... all the drama shit got wrung out of us before we ever started dating.”

“If you’re gonna be basically living at his place now, then maybe it’s something to think about?”

That got another smile out of her, and she nodded as she looked down, thinking. She loved the guy, she knew it, but it was just so weird for her to be in a normal relationship she didn't know how to approach the topic. In another month or so, they'd sit down and have a romantic, powerful, but otherwise normal and healthy conversation where they'd share their feelings with each other. In her lover's castle.

Before he could stop himself, he laughed.

"The fuck is so funny?"

"Disney princess is moving in with a beast and his giant castle. Does he have talking utensils?"

"Dude, fuck off." She tried to go for a shove again, but he managed to jump out of the way. "And Belle wasn't a princess. Plus, the castle is creepy as fuck."

"You like creepy."

"And it has a giant ghost town outside of it."

"You like the ghost town." He put up a hand before she could retort. "Go live your Disney fantasy ... metal version, I guess."

"Ha, I guess that is what it is, isn't it? Fine, fine, I'll go live in a giant castle, safe and secure and getting routinely railed by a giant sexy monster. And hey, maybe I'll invite your mom, and she can join Jen and me riding Sándor. Think she can handle two giant dicks at once?"

"Dude ... not cool."

---

~~Damien~~

"Aye? Ye did?" Fiona asked.

Jen grinned wildly as she nodded. "Yeap."

Damien groaned as he rolled his eyes, and glared down at the piano keys in front of him. They were in his apartment, Beatrice beside him on his piano bench, and they were supposed to be going through piano lessons for her. But when Fiona and Jennifer were around, it was impossible to get her to focus. She sat on the bench backward, facing the others on the couches, laughing and even occasionally giggling, a sound she never used to make.

He didn't say anything. Much as this chattering annoyed him, it made Fiona happy. And, it made Beatrice happy. It even made Samantha happy. She sat beside Fiona, and couldn't help but giggle along with her, sometimes outright losing control and letting out a snort from how hard she laughed. Triss and Samantha deserved some happiness.

And, in a painful way, this was sort of like exposure therapy for him, all this socializing. The problem was when Jen steered the conversation toward sexual topics, and Fiona not only did nothing to stop her, she pounced on the opportunity.

"We were both dying for it," Jennifer said. "After seeing what your blood did for Damien, first thing we did is head back and do that to Sándor, and—"

"You saw Fiona with Damien?" Samantha asked. "Details!"

Triss chuckled, glanced Damien's way, snickered at him and his probably very obviously uncomfortable expression, and looked back to the girls.

"We found Fiona and Damien having some wonderful sex at Bloodlust a couple days ago," Jennifer said. "He'd taken a drink of this cute little creature already." She leaned in and gave Fiona a playful slap on the knee. "So naturally, Fiona was making quite a mess all over the man. But it was Damien that surprised us. A private man, not exactly prone to outward acts, correct?"

Everyone looked to Damien.

He put his fingers on the keys and played the famous eight notes of Beethoven's 5th symphony. All the girls laughed.

"Well!" Jen continued, "it definitely left an impression with us. Lots of hugging, and choking, and spanking."

"Oh my." Samantha peeked over the couch to Damien, and Damien caught her in the corner of his eye before looking back to his piano.

"So we tasted Sándor, and ... oh my, the rush. The absolute rush. It was so powerful, overwhelming, and frightening. It was like ... getting drunk, very quickly—if memory serves. But also the same adrenaline rush of a flight or fight reaction. It was extreme. We were unprepared."

Fiona giggled as she nodded. "I hope ye enjoyed it."

"We did. But then Sándor surprised us. I mean, he told us he was going to do it, but it still surprised us."

"What did? Oh aye, right. He took ye to his lair."

"Yes. And ... proceeded to fuck us until we couldn't walk anymore."

Damien slowly peeked back over his shoulder again. Okay, yes, this wasn't a conversation he'd planned to be a part of, but they were here, in his living room. And the idea of Sándor, the giant gargoyle, having sex with two women at once, while transformed, was ... intriguing.

"Details!" Fiona said, squealing.

Jen, obviously thriving on Fiona's and Samantha's enthusiasm, held up two fingers.

"Two. Two cocks."

"Two?" Samantha asked.

"Two. And they were ... very, very large. And one was bigger than the other."

"Which," Triss said, "I had to handle, because Jen here was too much of a pussy."

Jen scoffed. "Well I'm sorry if—"

"No no no, you don't get to play innocent here." Apparently giving up on the pretense of being here to learn piano, Triss hopped off the bench and sat down beside her girlfriend. "This bitch here was fucking the smaller dick, which was still fucking giant mind you, while I had to handle the bigger one. And then Jen taps out! Like it's wrestling! Before I knew it she was helping Sándor get both dicks inside me, and I was lucky I didn't just explode by the end of it."

"How big?" Fiona asked.

"Fiona!" Damien reached out from the bench and gave the back of the couch a slap. Of course that did nothing to deter his girlfriend. She just giggled, stuck her tongue out at him, and leaned back toward the girls.

Jen held up hands, indicating a size. A huge size.

"Like that," Jen said. "Thicker than my wrist. And that was the smaller one."

"And you took both!?" Samantha asked Triss, voice rising a lot more than expected.

Whoever said women were prim and proper and didn't talk about extremely intimate details, never met two or more women at the same time. Utterly filthy creatures. Vile. Eve tempted Adam, and Jezebel was fed to the dogs.

Damien laughed quietly, shaking his head as he looked back to his piano and gently practiced some scales. Lucas's old lessons sounded so ridiculous in hindsight.

"And I lived to tell about it," Triss said. "Joys of being a vampire. We're pretty durable."

"I mean, I've seen some porn of normal women putting some large things inside them," Fiona said. "Even a living lass can stretch quite a bit."

Everyone went quiet, before erupting into laughter again.

"It's nice you ladies are having fun," Samantha said, with a little inflection Damien hadn't expected. Ah, right, she'd had some sexual interactions with all the witches. Her friendship with them was different than the one with Athalia.

"How about you?" Triss asked. "Taste any interesting kine lately?"

"I'll have you know I met a very nice man at a book store a few nights ago."

"Really? How'd he approach you in at a book store?"

"I approached him."

Jennifer whistled. "Oh my." No need to say it. No one expected Samantha to have that much courage, not in a social situation like that.

"I did!" Samantha said. "And I ... I um..."

“Tell us tell us!” Fiona said.

“We uh...” Samantha was squirming. Damien didn’t have to look to tell. “I took him into one of the quieter corners, hidden behind some bookshelves, and I ... I Kissed him.”

Jennifer clapped. “Quite the Daeva, aren’t you? Seducing kine ... in strange places, but seducing nonetheless. Did you sleep with him?”

“No. I—”

“Why not?”

“Jennifer! I just met him.”

“So?”

Jennifer. A modern day Lilith.

“Because I ... I don’t know. He was a kine. I don’t want to start a relationship with a kine ... do I?”

“Plenty of books about it,” Triss said. “You know, those black tragedy books about vampires romancing a human, getting the human all obsessed with them, only for it to all go down in flames.”

“Triss!” Fiona said. “Dinnae be mean.”

“Hey I’m just trying to be real. Human-vampire relationships can get pretty fucked up, especially if she makes him a thrall or ghoul. Then you’ve got a dotting servant who’ll do almost anything for you. That’s fine if you’re keeping them at an emotional distance. Not so fine if you’re looking for more.”

“But, couldn’t I just ... not give him my blood?” Samantha asked.

“Sure, if you’re cool with your lover dying of old age. But what vamp is going to let their lover, or even their fucking pet, die of old age? It’s a pretty weird, shitty situation. Buuuut, if you just want a fuck toy and a servant, thralls and ghouls are awesome.”

Fiona hopped up from the couch, and sat on Damien’s bench with a loud plop, body facing the couches and the girls, but head pointed directly at him. That, was a Jezebel grin.

“You want me to adopt a thrall, or a ghoul,” Damien said, eying his wicked, sinful girlfriend.

“Aye!”

“A man, I assume.”

“Ha! Aye, a lad, if ye can stand it. But I wouldnae mind having a lass in bed with us.” She walked some fingers up his arm to his shoulder, very spider like. “Someone we could both have some fun with, ye ken?”

He rolled his eyes, now intimately familiar with the dark space hidden inside the upper echelons of his eyelids and brain.

“Ya dinnae want a ghoul?”

“Mekhets like to do things quietly, and alone.”

“Is that so?” Triss asked, and she replaced Fiona on the couch beside Samantha. “Sam, you shoulda seen the way this church boy fucked Fiona in Bloodlust. I swear he was putting Fiona on display for Jen and me. We got to see everything.” Triss leaned in toward Samantha. “I mean everything. Big dick, her little pussy, making a mess. Damien made it all very visible.”

Samantha gasped and looked over the couch back at him. “Damien!” The look in her eyes was a combination of surprised and disappointed, classic mother look. Damien had never been close with his parents, at all, hence his attachment to Lucas back then, but even he could feel the ancient weight of a mother's mom gaze.

"I ... it was..." He grumbled and looked back down at his keys, earning more laughs from the girls.

"Aye, and it was great," Fiona said. "Begotten blood turns vamps into truly wicked creatures. I love it." She scrunched up her nose, leaned in, and gave him a quick kiss on the cheek. She knew this social environment was Hell for him, and this was her way of telling him she'd make it up to him.

"Damien's aversion to joy aside," Jennifer said, watching him and apparently reading his mind, "Triss makes a good point. If you want a fuck toy, or even just a blood bag you can trust, a thrall is a great option. You'll definitely want to run it by Antoinette first, though."

"Okay," Samantha said. "I'll ... think about it. About that, and what Triss said, 'cause I like him and I don't wanna ruin that."

"Smart," Triss said. "It's a whole lot healthier to be in a relationship with someone who has some free will, ya know?"

"That ... is a little sad to hear. My son has three thralls, and—"

"Antoinette probably has a dozen or so, Sam, not to mention her two ghouls. It's just a fact, the older you get, the more you need some thralls and ghouls to keep you safe during the day, and be a food source in emergencies. But she also seems to know better than to get romantically into one. And, speaking of, how is Jack?"

"Jack is good!" Naturally, Samantha's voice rose in pitch. She liked talking about her son. She was proud of him. "I was talking to him yesterday. He's ... He's different. Very different, than when he was alive. But, very different than he was after that, too. When I woke up that first night, as a vampire, I could tell Jack was all torn up inside, you know? He was worried about me, but he was the one who..." After a slow, heavy sigh, Samantha sat up a bit straighter. "He's doing much better than before."

"Sam, you have a serious mother complex," Jennifer said. "Stop worrying about your son so much. Yes, he had to deal with some pretty horrible things, but he also had some powerful friends to help him."

"I know! I can't help it. He's my boy. My ... only child..."

Before Damien could blink, Jen and Triss both got close to Samantha, and hugged her. Fiona ran over to join them, leaving Damien to stare at the trio of heads surrounding Jack's mother. That was way too much social contact. But, instead of getting up and shoving people away, Samantha let out a very happy 'aww' sound and gave everyone hugs in return.

How Jack came from this women, Damien had no idea.

"Jack's fine, like you said," Triss said. "You, on the other hand, need a man."

"I don't need—"

"You need a man to snuggle with, and talk to about your day. You know it. I know it. And we're gonna find you said man."

Samantha grumbled. Ah, there it was, a noise Damien had heard from Jack many times. They were related.

"Come on," Jennifer said, "let's go to ... um ... I would say Bloodlust, but you'd rather hunt for men elsewhere."

"Not hunt!" Samantha stood with the Ventrue and Nos, shaking her head. "Not hunt. Socialize. We could try a ... quieter night lounge, maybe?"

“You mean an expensive club filled with preppy types and rich shits?” Triss asked.

“I mean ... yes?”

The girls laughed and hugged each other some more, before Triss gave Damien a small wave.

“Same time next week, Damien?” Triss asked.

He frowned at her with his most intense glare, which wasn't very intense. Jack could do intense. Not Damien, and she knew it. Laughing, she waved, and she, Jen, and Samantha left.

“Your friends are evil,” Damien said.

Fiona giggled up a storm as she came and sat with him at the piano again.

“They're nae evil!”

“You don't see it because you're too close, but they're very evil.”

“Samantha?”

He shook his head. “Not her, but she will be soon enough. Daeva blood, Antoinette as a sire, and those two as close friends? She's doomed.”

Laughing until he had to grab her shoulder so she didn't fall off the bench, Fiona eventually leaned in toward him and hugged him.

“I'm nae?”

“You're just as corrupted as those two. Always were, even before you came to the city. Probably before Vrall joined you.”

She stuck out her tongue. “I blame the internet.”

“So do I. Clearly you’ve been living a sinful lifestyle since you hit puberty.”

He got her. Giggling like a maniac, she blushed and hugged him, and rubbed her nose into his.

“When I was a wee lass, I read those vampire novels every girl loves.”

“Those aren’t exactly healthy reading.”

“Pffft. They’re fun!” She kissed him, and tightened her hug on him before getting up, and reaching for the light. “Vrall wanted to spend some time wit ye. Ye up for it? She dinnae have two dicks, but I think she’ll keep things interesting.”

He hadn’t spent much time with Vrall lately, not since Azamel died. Fiona wanted him around, and he wanted to be around.

“Only if it’s okay with you.”

“I am Vrall, ye ken. Of course.”

She flipped the light switch, and the room went dark.

---

It was the jungle. Her jungle. Usually when he visited Vrall they went to the haunted hospital nightmare. A dense jungle wasn’t exactly the best place for a chat, or sex.

“Vrall?” he said. No response. That happened sometimes when she pulled him into her lair. She told him it was because of the nature of opening and closing chamber doors, but he was pretty sure she liked making him stumble around in the dark. It was kind of frightening.

That’s why she liked it. No matter how comfortable he grew with the spider woman, there was always that element to her that wanted him to be afraid of her. Begotten struggled with that, and how it ruined their relationships with the people around them, Athalia being the prime example. It was also part of the reason Fiona left her hometown. But it was a good move, coming to Dolareido, both to get away from her family so she didn't hurt them, and to find more food.

It also meant that, every time Damien interacted with Vrall, there was always that tiny element of fear in the mix, because there had to be. Vrall was beautiful, and frightening. Triss felt the same way about Sándor's Horror, and it probably made their romantic encounter ... spicier.

He'd never admit it to Triss, but it made his encounters with Vrall more thrilling as well.

Sure enough, after a couple minutes of careful walking through a jungle of dense foliage full of insects and stalking predators, he found a dangling, thick white rope of spider silk. In the darkness with the canopy blocking out the two moons, he couldn't see shit, but the rope caught just enough light to glint slightly. Plus, he basically fell into it. And surprisingly, it didn't stick to him.

When in Rome. He grabbed the rope, and climbed. And climbed. And climbed. There were a few trees around that were absurdly thick, and the canopy of the shorter trees hid their tops from him, until he managed to get a good fifty feet up. Past the first canopy, he found another fifty feet to climb up to a more parse canopy, giant leaves and branches spread apart so the moons were visible. Stars, too.

It would have been a beautiful sight, and it sort of was, except for the distant howls of predators.

The rope took him up to a giant ... trampoline? Something like a trampoline, made of web, spread out over empty air.

“Lie down,” the darkness whispered.

Damien smiled, and stepped off a branch onto the huge, tightly wound web. It didn't stick to him, which should have made him feel a little less nervous about tangling with a spider monster. But it also meant a very large fall was right beneath him, and from above, it looked more like a death pit trap, the sort filled with poison spikes.

But, thankfully, the web didn't have any gaps in it larger than an inch, and he was free to lie down on it. If he rolled too far to any side, he'd plummet, and probably break a dozen bones, even as a Kindred. He wasn't afraid of heights, but still, it was a little frightening. Which was, of course, Vrall's goal.

The spider woman descended from the shadow of a tree, and Damien gulped as she lowered herself with such smooth, seamless motion, it was chilling. Eight spider legs, each coming out of her spine, each ridiculously long at almost thirty feet, thin, and almost a pure shade of dark steel, ending in tips she could easily skewer him with. Eight Blade Arach, her old title, made sense.

But, terrifying as the blade legs were, the human-ish part of her was always a treat to look at. She didn't bother with her usual white silk dress this time, nude and onyx-colored skin on full display, glistening slightly in the moonlight. Human-like legs that ended in blade points, and three claws instead of fingers and thumb. Breasts just as massive as Fiona's, but on a slimmer body and an inhumanly small waist.

Even more distinct than that, was the lack of eyes. An onyx bone-like plate covered where eyes should have been, and raised up and back into giant horns that curved back like a crown. Not a single hair on her body, anywhere. Combined with her sharp chin and small, sharp navy-tinted lips, it was no wonder ancient tribes worshiped her, feared her, and lusted for her.

She grinned down at him as she used her spider legs to walk onto the giant, flat web, and stood over him, licking her lips. She was about as tall as Damien, without the horns.

Without a word, she leaned forward slightly so two of her spider legs rested on the web near Damien's feet, and two more rested on the web past his head, putting her horizontal. He smiled up at her, doing his best to not let her see how vulnerable he felt, a spike pit of death beneath him, deadly spider monster above him. And he smiled because her hanging like that made her huge breasts hang and sway underneath her.

She used her other four spider legs to poke at and undo his clothes. He helped her. No need to cut them off this time, not without any stick in her web. And with how sharp her spider legs were, he had plenty of reason to undress quickly. She did like to stab him, gently, when he didn't obey fast enough.

Naked, he spread out on the web as if it bound him like a trapped fly, even though this was one unusual web. It was the first time she didn't bother with the stick. Or, was sticky default, and she had to do something to make it not stick?

Vrall lowered herself down toward him, until her heavy hanging breasts brushed against his face, and the rest of her hovered a single inch over his skin.

“Beatrice and Jennifer had sex with Sándor, while he was transformed.”

He nodded, cheeks brushing against the inner contours of her breasts.

“She told you?”

“I am her. I hear what she hears.”

“Right, right.”

Chuckling, she lowered herself down more, and buried his face with her breasts as her stomach settled on his chest. Her thighs spread around his waist, and he shivered as the long, sharp points her human-ish legs ended with teased along his own legs, almost hard enough to cut him.

“The gargoyle is quite the beast,” she said.

“Pretty scary, last time I ran into him.”

“And gorgeous.”

“You think?”

She chuckled, voice quiet and deadly. “I do.”

“Going to make me jealous.”

“Oh? Fiona adores her pretty vampire boyfriend. She loves that you are beautiful, and would look good with mascara.”

He frowned up at her, but she just laughed and slid forward until her breasts fell off the top of his head. Higher and higher she slid up, until she righted her torso over his neck, thighs spread around his shoulders.

“I’m not a pirate in a movie,” he said.

“Of course not.” Nodding, she reached down, and ran her long claws through his hair. She was looking down at him, but without eyes, it was hard to tell. And with her sitting up directly over him, huge breasts hanging down and blocking a lot of his view, it was hard to notice anything else.

“You made it sound like my girlfriend would prefer to be ravaged by a giant gargoyle.”

“I think being ravaged by you, more thoroughly, interests her. You should experiment with inserting large objects into both of her holes.”

He blinked. That was pretty forward advice, even for Vrall.

“I’ll ... talk to her.”

“By all means.” Nodding, the spider lady shifted her hips forward, and lowered her sex directly onto his mouth.

~~♥♥♥~~

Vrall’s proportions were exaggerated, in the most sexual, alluring, deadly sort of ways. A ridiculously tiny waist with huge breasts, a small mouth hiding long fangs, and a very, very small slit. She wasn’t just some spider monster. She was an ancient nightmare god, worshiped and loved, with ritual sacrifices done for her, and she’d likely slept with many of her followers, hundreds of years ago. A divine gift in the eyes of the tribes that paid her tribute.

What she saw in him, he’d never know.

He Blushed Life, and ran his tongue slowly along the outside of her smooth lips, wetting them before sliding his tongue higher. A quick brush against her clitoris was enough to make her shudder, and he grinned up at her before moving his tongue back down to explore the lips of her entrance some more.

“You may be wondering why my web does not stick to you tonight.”

He nodded.

“I thought,” Vrall said, “I would enjoy tonight more if my prey was ... not so much my prey, as my helpless, dotting servant. You will do as I say, with the utmost enthusiasm. Understood?”

He nodded, and gave her clit a quick kiss, earning an evil, soft chuckle from the spider woman and her quiet, raspy voice. Like a lounge singer who'd smoked her whole life. She hadn't sounded like that when he'd first met her, but she'd adapted to Dolareido quite a bit.

“Good. I want my lover bound by my words tonight, not my webs.” She leaned forward, and set her claws onto the web over his head. How she managed to dance her claws along the web without cutting it, he had no idea. “Now, continue. Devour me.”

So he was going to be a slave tonight? He could do that. He spent so many nights tying Fiona up, and sometimes he also ordered her around and made her do things for him. To him. Maybe Vrall wanted to try that?

“Hold my legs, vampire.”

That was, indeed, what she wanted. He put his hands on top of her thighs, and helped hold her snug against his mouth as she got comfortable.

They went slow at first. No need to rush things; the novelty of that truth was still euphoric. They could spend all night doing things to each other, and no emergency would blink on their phones to greet them. So, slow kisses on her inner thighs, one for the left, one for the right, before again his lips found her sex, and explored her lips some more. Gentle, teasing, playful, a part of him he hadn't ever known.

When he tasted a drop of her juices, she leaned forward more, and pressed the front of her slit down against his face. He opened his mouth wide and devoured her, like she'd ordered, and her smile was positively evil. She shifted her hips back and forth slightly, barely moving them at all, only helping him bury her clitoris in heavier a longer strokes of his tongue. More of her juices wet his face, and the spider monster moaned as she shivered on top of him.

Her claws took her breasts, and squeezed, causing their huge softness to spill over her fingers. Her bodyweight never planted down on him hard; she weighed very little even if it did. Her spider legs kept most of her weight off him, giving him no trouble keeping his mouth latched onto her slit, so he could hide her clitoris in his mouth and massage it in faster and faster licks. She preferred it when he started soft, and got faster and harder as she grew more and more aroused, and the beautiful spider creature was growing more aroused by the minute.

She grabbed his head, and pulled it up into her pussy until his lips were flattened against hers.

“Faster.”

He licked faster. The dark, steel-skinned creature groaned openly, quiet voice erupting for a single moment before quieting again as she ground her pelvis down against him. After a few shudders, she came to a halt.

“Stop.”

He stopped. Tongue still pressed to her clit but no longer licking, or daring to move in any way, he let Vrall move in whatever way she wished that milked the most pleasure she could from her orgasm. And she did, grinning down at him with her small, dangerous smile and dark purple lips, as more beads of her juices wet his cheeks.

Once her shaking body recovered, she slid herself down over him until she straddled his waist, and it was his turn to shiver as another droplet of her warm juices fell out of her onto his abs.

And then she moved lower. He managed to push his torso up a bit, weight on his elbows against the webbing, and he gulped as the skinny, curvy creature reached down with a set of claws, took his cock, and aimed it up at her tiny slit. With a subtle, hypnotic sway of her hips, she pressed her small, clenching hole down on his cock's swollen head, and licked her lips as she slid his glans into her wet insides a single inch. She squeezed, and electric tingles shot down his length and in between his thighs.

“Tell me,” she said, “that I am beautiful.”

“You’re beautiful,” he said, voice wavering slightly as she worked her pelvis up and down, so her clenching muscle stroked the tip of his length and nothing more.

She sank a little lower, and squeezed hard, making him shudder again as a warm bead of her juices trickled down his girth. With that quiet evil chuckle she’d developed lately, she let go of his cock, keeping its tip inside her as she reached out, and set both her hands against his chest. Her human legs lifted up and forward, and rested their rapier tips on his shoulders, leaving her eight spider legs to do the work of keeping her from falling on his cock.

“Tell me I am terrifying,” she said, and one of her spider legs reached up and around to run its blade tip along one of her horns. The spider legs were hyper flexible.

He was tempted to tease her, maybe say something like ‘not all that scary’, but it’d be a mistake. It was the grin. No eyes made it borderline impossible to read her, except now her grin was wearing an especially evil smile that was more than a little scary. Was she angry with him about something? He’d definitely been paying Fiona a lot more attention than Vrall lately, what with Azamel’s death and Fiona being far more emotionally ... hungry, than Vrall.

Plus, even with how utterly beautiful and sexy she was, she was still a monster, with claws and horns and a web. Maybe she’d always looked this scary? He’d gotten used to it, but he could still remember the first time he’d ran into the spider monster, the panic of getting caught in her webs, the chill that’d run down his spine when she’d shown herself.

The memory was enough to send that chill up his spine again. His erection didn't mind.

“You're terrifying.”

Her grin softened, and she lowered herself down all the way, squeezing on him in spurts as she did. Hot, wet, clenching flesh surrounded his cock and buried him in heavenly warmth that didn't fit the spider woman's exterior at all, and he groaned as he fell back, lying on the web again. She was so ridiculously tight.

She folded her legs, putting her right leg over his left shoulder along with her left leg. Her hands found her breasts again, and she gently caressed them, teasing her claws up and down her dark skin, while her eight spider legs slowly lifted her up. When only the tip of his length was inside her, leaving it coated in her juices, she lowered herself, and Damien sighed bliss as her gripping pussy swallowed every inch of him.

“I haven't been entirely happy with you as of late, Damien.”

“I ... had a feeling.”

She chuckled. No, it was more of a giggle. She wasn't the sort to giggle, and it sounded less lovely and inviting than Fiona's would, and more like a scary spider monster who impersonated a beautiful woman, about to enjoy her meal. The lure of a siren, or angler fish.

“You fought Black Blood and Jacob without me.”

He lifted his head. “That's what—”

She clenched. He froze, wincing as her boiling insides squeezed hard enough to almost hurt. It felt amazing, her powerful muscles gripping him from base to tip until more of her juices trickled out of her, but she made sure to do it hard enough to border him on the edge of pain.

“It annoys me that you did not bring me.”

“Fiona was out like a light, and everything happened so quickly, and Jacob trapped us, and—”

“Are you sure you could not have stirred her awake?” She relaxed her grip on his cock, only to tighten it again, and folded her arms across her chest under her heavy breasts. Even without eyes, he could tell she was looking down at him, sorta, in a royal manner. Combined with how her legs crossed at the knee and sat on his left shoulder, while her spider legs shifted her back and forth along his body while she sat like a queen, it was a very imposing look.

“No, I couldn’t have. She was completely exhausted. You were ... there, right?”

Vrall sighed, and stopped squeezing so hard. If he’d been human, he’d have let go of his breath he’d been holding onto. Nodding slowly, she slid her feet off his shoulder, and sat sideways on him, legs still folded at the knee and blade tips sticking out over the web, perpendicular to him, dangling off the web’s edge. She put her hands on her knees, contemplative, again like a queen considering her options. She’d used her eight spider legs to turn her seamlessly, and she continued to use them to move her body around and around, making her beautiful ass squash down against his pelvis as she went up and down, while also swaying side to side.

She was dancing on his cock, while also sitting on it like she was on a throne, pondering the politics of her kingdom. It was strangely beautiful to watch.

The warning signs began, and he let out a soft sigh. Heat built up underneath his testicles, and sparks of pleasure flowed out of his swollen glans, down through his length and into his core. Inner muscles flexed, and he pushed his pelvis up—

“Don’t move,” she said, and she licked her small lips as she grinned at him.

He didn’t move. Every part of him wanted to thrust, or grab her hips and yank her down, but the moment he lifted one of his hands, one of her spider legs pressed down on it. If he didn’t give into it, its sharp tip would penetrate his skin. He relented, and gulped as he watched the spider woman slowly sway her body around and around on his cock, up and down in a slower, milking rhythm.

She knew exactly what she was doing. Much as he loved Fiona, cherished every moment he was with her, and enjoyed pinning her and choking her as he fucked her, she wasn’t a very self-aware woman during sex. Vrallar’trakla of the Eight Blade Arach was an entirely different woman, completely in control of every motion, every muscle, and she milked his cock of every gush of cum with deliberate purpose. She was making sure his orgasm was almost painfully pleasurable, and he groaned a couple times as she clenched.

Only when the final spurt of cum flowed into her, and then out of her around her spread lips, did she stop her dance.

“I was there,” she said at last, and she slowly turned her whole body to face him again. The wringing sensation of her soaked insides squeezing on his cock was euphoric. “And I admit, Fiona was incapacitated.” She spread her legs, and leaned forward. Her claws found his shoulders, and she pulled him up into a sitting position before wrapping her legs around him. “But it was ... frustrating, to learn that so much happened. To learn you almost died?” With a heavy sigh, she leaned in, and hugged him tight, burying her face in his neck and her breasts against his chest.

“I ... I didn’t...”

“Hug me,” she whispered.

He hugged her.

“Use your hand and stroke my horns.”

He lifted his hand, and ran it along the texture of her horns. Surprisingly smooth, but not perfectly smooth, almost like a turtle shell. He'd never touched her horns before, not like this at least, and to his surprise Vrall let out a content sigh as she relaxed into him.

“Caress my back, and the grooves between my legs. Both hands.”

He did as ordered, and ran his fingers between the bumps where her spider legs connected to her spine. A hard, firm texture, again almost like a turtle shell, that quickly softened into a normal skin texture outward. He rubbed, massaged, and experimented, pushing in on those places with his thumbs hard, as if trying to work out the knot in a muscle. Vrall sighed bliss again, relaxing against him. She liked it.

“Now, hold my hips, and bounce me on your cock.” She leaned back, and with her human legs still wrapped around him, she used her spider legs to keep her from falling as she leaned even further back, while her claws gently held his shoulders.

She was now weightless.

He licked his lips, took her hips, and stared at her glorious body, her huge, dark steel breasts spreading out over her ribs as she leaned back, and her tiny waist underneath them. He held her waist, caressed it for a moment, and enjoyed the softness of her skin there despite how lean and tiny it was. After, he slid his hands onto her hips again, and lifted her.

Still weightless. Her spider legs were, somehow, working with his motion to keep her bodyweight nonexistent.

He slammed her down onto his cock, and couldn't help but smile as the deadly spider monster let out a squeak. A weird, raspy, quiet sound, but a squeak nonetheless. Her huge breasts rippled across her chest, taking a couple moments to settle. Her hands on his shoulders tightened slightly. And her mouth smirked, as if judging him for only now figuring out what she wanted.

He tightened his grip, and bounced her hard. And didn't stop.

"There ... we ... go," she said between bounces, and she moaned with that quiet, alien voice, as she leaned back further until her torso was horizontal. Flexible. And as much as he wanted to look down and admire her tight slit drenching his cock in new layers of juices, he couldn't help but stare at her breasts flowing back and forth over her chest. Her dark, purple nipples jutted out from her onyx steel skin, and her breathing — now panting — raised them with each gasp.

"Faster," she said. He bounced her faster. "Harder." He bounced her harder.

A part of him was acutely aware of how much the web trampoline shook with each bounce, as if it was getting ready to launch him out of it, or maybe tear. But it didn't. He was free to hold Vrall's hips tight, and slam her down on his cock as hard as he wanted. With her being weightless, it didn't have the same sway and motion of normal sex. Every bit of strength he put into moving her meant speed. He bounced her harder.

She let go of his shoulders, and let her arms dangle as she came. And after a quick smile, she let her head dangle back as well, body going limp, and yet not, spider legs still keeping her weightless. He slowed down a bit, indulging in the muscle spasms of her insides milking his length and coating him in wet warmth, but she lifted her head and frowned at him.

“I did not give you permission to slow,” she said, even as her body quivered, and voice wavered slightly.

He got back to work, bouncing her hard on his cock, even as she squeezed like a vise. An affirming nod from her, and she leaned back again, torso going limp again as she relaxed and quivered. The way her enormous breasts flowed in circles along her chest was mesmerizing, and he stared, mouth parted, as he watched them jiggle with each motion he made.

He could feel his juices build again, and he squeezed her harder as he lost himself to his own desire. Closer and closer to orgasm, it became less about sex, and more about doing whatever he needed to do to milk pleasure from his length with her clenching insides. He pulled her down hard enough to make noise, and to feel her ass ripple as her pussy took his length. And—“Stop,” she said.

If he'd had Fiona's blood in him, stopping would not have been an option. Begotten blood, or the Begotten's vessel blood, filled him with enough mindless need and aggression that he always succumbed to it, and fucked Fiona until she was either begging him for a break, or went coma. Tonight, the sex was far more controlled. Vrall wanted to have a more aware and intimate night with him, and he was going to make sure she got what she wanted.

He stopped, and couldn't help but frown slightly as she pulled herself upright again.

Vrall chuckled as she took his shoulders again, and pulled herself in until she put kisses on his neck, and her huge breasts molded to his chest.

“You make me climax easily,” she said. “I wonder if that's because of Fiona, or because you are a talented lover.” Grinning at him like a playful devil, she leaned back again but kept her hands on his shoulders, and slowly ground her hips up and down, rubbing her clit into his pelvis as she massaged his length. But she was going too slow to push him over the edge and let him cum, and she knew it.

“I don’t exactly have a long list of lovers in my past.”

“There is two, right? Fiona, and me.”

He smiled. “You’re a lot different to Fiona.”

“I am.” She slid one set of her claws down his chest, and traced the lines of his pectorals and abs. “I am much, much tighter.” If Fiona and Vrall ever talked to each other, they probably had a catty relationship.

Vrall squeezed on him hard, and again he shuddered as her boiling insides pulled more pleasure sparks from his swollen glans. She wasn’t wrong, but no way he was going to say it.

She chuckled. “Sit up on your knees.”

He gulped, got his legs underneath him, and knelt up straight.

Vrall smiled up at him as she leaned back, her spider legs again seamlessly moving around. Even with her pussy wrapped around his cock and thighs holding his hips, he couldn’t feel her spider legs doing any movement. Weightless. She used her spiders legs to lay her body horizontal, hovering and perfectly in line with his pelvis, and she folded her thin arms across her chest under her breasts and held the huge pillows together with her biceps and forearms.

“Fuck me.”

He tightened his grip on her hips again, and pounded into her. On his knees like this, he was free to thrust, and with her still making herself weightless, yanking her toward him was beyond easy. Hard, powerful, rough, he fucked her until the entire web was shaking, until the branches it was bound to were shaking, and her breasts, still held together by her arms, bounced up and down beautifully and inversely to her movement.

He continued to stare, almost oblivious to her grin, as he came inside her. He slowly pulled her off most of his length, and yanked her back down hard, earning a heavy gush of his cum, and a flowing wave of tingling bliss through his length down between his thighs. Again, he fucked her, slow but harsh thrusts that had her skinny body and her huge breasts jiggling, as her muscles clamped down and more of her juices joined his own. Her expressions were impossible to read, but her mouth was open a bit, and she made a few moaning sounds with each thrust.

She was cumming along with him.

Eventually everything slowed down. He held her balls deep, and let her squeezing muscles milk the last few drops of his cum out of him. She was content to do just that, and she shivered between muscle clenches, grinning at him even as a mix of their juices soaked his testicles.

They both stared at each other for a little while; he did, at least, and could only assume she was also looking at him. After a minute of simply holding still, and letting the jungle night fill the silence, Vrall raised herself in a seamless, all too creepy motion using her spider legs, until she was sitting upright. She hugged him, and hid her face in the groove of his neck.

“You should stay here, too.”

“What?”

She kissed his ear, and hugged him tight, squirming on his cock as she did and making sure to mold her breasts into his chest. Eventually his cock softened, fell free of her, and their juices fell through the web to the jungle canopy below.

“Stay here, with me, where it’s safe. I cannot protect you out there. I can protect you in here.”

Where it’s safe. Like Sándor had provided for Beatrice and Jennifer.

“I don’t—”

“Not to stay here all the time. I’m no fool. But, you should ... rest here, more often, during the day. I’ll protect you. No one will lay a finger on you. I will not ... not let Fiona suffer another loss.”

He smiled into her neck, and kissed her skin as he hugged her back.

“The sun won’t catch me here?”

“There is no sun in this chamber. Forever darkness, where it is safe.”

He nodded slowly as he stroked her back and the hard skin between her spider legs, using his newfound knowledge to make her melt against him.

“I can do that.”

~~♥♥♥~~

Chapter 181

~~Author's Note~~

And we're done! There might be more MLV epilogue chapters in the distant future, exploring different ideas and stuff. But MLV is officially complete. Thanks for all the love.

This whole chapter is a big porn experiment and some mindless fun, something for the truly degenerate readers. Enjoy.

---

~~Jessy~~

Once Eric was out of the room, she looked back, winked at the old man, and lifted up her shirt and bra. The sparkle in his eyes was hilarious, and she laughed as she lightly jumped up and down a few times, showing off how fucking amazing her big tits were, before she slipped the clothes back on, gave him a thumbs up, and chased after his son.

“You didn't just—”

“Personal business,” she said, and she gave him a quick peck on the cheek as they stepped out of the retirement home. “Dude's in great shape for his age. You must be happy.”

“I am. Not necessarily happy with how it happened, but happy.”

“It's the power of tits. All men can be encouraged to become better, awesomer versions of themselves with the reward of tits.” Which was completely legit and a universal truth not nearly enough societies utilized.

It wasn't actually the tits. It was her, showing Eric's dad, that not only was his son in a new life that was awesome and full of good times, but that his could be awesome, too. Tits were the perfect metaphor.

"Uh huh." Her handsome boyfriend rolled his eyes, and the two of them fell into a familiar rhythm on the Dolareido sidewalks. They were a ways out from the business center of the city, but they had nowhere to be. Nothing to stop them from just going on a fun stroll, which was fucking great and a nice change of pace. She had some heads to clonk later, some Carthian assholes being a pain in the ass for Vicky and Parker, but it'd be a few nights before it came to that.

"Tash and me are going to Bloodlust tonight. You in?" she asked.

"Who else is coming?"

"I didn't say—"

"You didn't say it, Jess, but I can see evil in your eyes."

She covered her eyes with her palms, still facing her boyfriend.

"Tash and the boys are coming, duh."

"And."

"And ... Marge."

"Uh huh."

She lowered her hands and glared at him. Of course he was right, and was already down wind of her plans apparently, but she could still try.

"Hey, I think we deserve to hang out and have a fun time!"

"Fun time. Uh huh."

“And that fun time will include alcohol for you and the boys, and Marge.”

“Uh huh.”

“And I’ll make sure Marge gets a deep Kiss. And, uh, maybe Tash will drink her a bit, too.”

“Uh huh. And will Marge be naked during this Kiss? Lying on our booth table? With a couple of your fingers inside her?”

She threw up her hands. “Dude I don’t know! I’m not a fortuneteller!”

“Uh huh.”

Laughing, she elbowed Eric gently, hooked her arm with his, and guided them toward her apartment. No need to explain, she needed better clothes for a trip to Bloodlust.

A question ran through her mind, and she was tempted to ignore it. She had sexy plans tonight, and it was a question that could easily derail that, ruin her fun, and leave her high and very dry. But it was important, and damn it, she loved Eric. Stupid love shit getting in the way.

“Ask your dad yet? About becoming a vampire, I mean.”

Eric nodded as he looked down, thinking.

“Yeah.”

“And?”

“He ... laughed.”

“Well, I mean, becoming a vampire does sound like a joke to most sane people who think we don’t exist.”

“No. He laughed about the idea of living forever. He said, who in their right mind would want to live forever? He’s gonna enjoy life, but he’s also ready to move on, see Mom again, and ... yeah.”

“Wow. I ... shit.” She looked down too, and the two of them walked quietly for a bit. Yeah, that was a heavy topic, with a heavier response from his dad. Part of her regretted asking; no sexy times. A bigger part of her was happy she did. Eric wanted to talk about this, but in classic man fashion, didn’t really know how to broach the topic.

But even she didn’t want to touch the other topic that, unless she took a sunrise to the face or someone blew her head off with a shotgun, she was going to live forever. And he wasn’t. Sure, werewolves lived a long time. She had at least a hundred years of having Eric in her life before he got into that dangerous old category like his dad, if the other Uratha were any indication. But, fuck.

She slid her arm down from around his elbow, and slipped her fingers in between his. He squeezed her hand.

“But I’m not my dad,” he said eventually, and he kissed the side of her head. “He’s got that old man energy going, and will happily go on a ... merry stroll, I guess, when death comes for him. Not sure how he’s going to explain his new sex life to Mom when he dies, but, he’s looking forward to seeing her again.”

“But you don’t?”

“I look forward to seeing her again, but no, I don’t plan on dying any time soon.” He gave her hand another squeeze, slid it up, and wrapped his arm around her shoulders. “I’m happy he’s happy. Really happy. That’s thanks to you.”

She grinned up at him. “You just gotta know how to talk to a man.”

“Evidently.” He kissed her forehead, smile returning. “Right, so, your place to get some clothes, right?”

Oh. Apparently sexy times weren’t out of the question. She loved her boyfriend.

---

~~♥♥♥~~

She swung open the door to Eric’s apartment, and the group laughed as they stumbled in. Tash and Jessy, the only two not shitfaced, because their seconds lives were cruel and insisted they could only drink blood, helped Marge in. Kat, oblivious of the dangers of drunk people’s feet, immediately attempted to kill them all by rubbing against their shins, and Jessy had to very gently slip a foot under the cat and nudge her aside.

Satisfied with her attempted murder, Kat took a perch on the windowsill in the back, and looked out into the city.

The boys and Eric followed in after. Getting them drunk hadn’t been easy, and they weren’t exactly drunk, just very tipsy, but even that had taken four times as much drink as it’d taken to turn Marge into a mess. The good kind of mess though, giggly and horny and with shit hand-eye coordination. One more drink would have pushed her over the edge into vomiting, and maybe sobbing territory. No good.

Eric had three couches in his big-as-fuck fancy living room lately. A three seater, two seater, and one seater, all pointed at each other; they moved them when they wanted to watch TV. So once everyone was in the apartment, she and Tash set Marge down on the chair, while Jessy sat down on the loveseat. Tash stepped aside so Eric could sit with Jessy, but before she got out of reach, Jessy snatched her best friend by the wrist and yanked her onto the loveseat with her instead.

“J-Jessy!”

“Ha.” Laughing, Jessy motioned for the boys to sit on the bigger couch. They did, stumbling slightly until Eric took the left arm, Art the right, Matt in the middle. “Have fun tonight, boys?”

“Yes ma’am,” Matt said, nodding enthusiastically. “Got to see plenty of skin!” He gestured to the three women.

Jessy wore a tiny black skirt with a high-hip thong, and a black tube top that threatened to fall off any minute. Tash wore a sleeveless club dress, a one-piece thing that stopped halfway down her thigh, covered her chest nice and snug, and left all of her back exposed. Blue, or sapphire, something like that, very pretty. Marge wore the same sort of dress as Tash, though it had more cleavage, with some cross straps exposing her sternum. Black.

“Plenty of skin,” Art said, nodding half as enthusiastically, but that was still plenty of enthusiasm.

Jessy caught Eric’s eye, and he laughed quietly as he nodded.

“Yeah,” he said at last. “I admit, it was nice, dancing with a few lovely ladies.”

Tash beamed brightly. Jessy grinned. Marge managed a happy laugh, and waved a hand as if all the compliments had been for her. Then she got up.

“Marge,” Eric said, “you might wanna sit down and—”

“I! Was promised, a Kiss.” With a happy, teetering sway, Marge walked past the boys, and gave each of them a silly smile, before she fell on Jessy. Marge was a small woman, not Tash small but small, but the angle meant Jessy had to reach out and catch her so the woman didn’t hurt herself.

“Yeah, I did promise.” Nodding, Jessy helped sit Marge between her and Tash, leaving no room on the small couch. “Tash, want a taste of Marge?”

“W-What? No! I’m fine.”

“You’re not fine. You’re hungry.”

“I mean, yes, b-but I’ll take a drink of Matt and Art later.”

“Why? Marge is right here, begging.”

“Begging!” Marge said, and she grinned up at Jessy before turning her attention to the tiny vampire beside her. With an evil grin Jessy knew all women were capable of, Marge leaned in toward Tash and rubbed up against her shoulder. Playful shoulder-on-shoulder rubbing turned into more as Marge full-on faced Tash and tried to basically lie on top of her.

“I ... I um...” Tash gulped as she looked between Jessy and Marge, obviously feeling a little awkward. Good. The more Jessy could push her out of her shell tonight, the better.

Laughing, Jessy pulled on Marge’s shoulder toward her, and Marge, borderline oblivious and giddy, giggled as she turned and leaned into Jessy instead.

“Come on, Tash. We both promised we’d Kiss her before the night was over.”

“I p-promised no such thing!”

Jessy grinned at her. “I believe you said ‘umm, y-yes Marge. I’ll k-k-kiss you later.’”

“I ... I ... L-Later could mean anything!”

“Uh huh.” Rolling her eyes, Jessy slid one of her hands down Marge’s back, leaned in, and put a normal, but plenty powerful kiss on the girl’s quivering neck. “What about the boys?”

“The boys?” Task asked.

“The boys!” Jessy gestured to the three boys watching. “They paid to see a good show.”

“They didn’t p-pay anything!”

“Yeah I know, but still. They definitely want a show.”

“A ... show?” Tash blinked at her, before sheepishly looking over at the boys. All three of them were staring at the three pretty ladies on the couch. They’d entered ‘dumb man zone’, where they’d sorta zoned out and were just watching, waiting.

Without drawing Tash’s eyes, Jessy slipped the strap of Marge’s dress up over her head, and let it fall off her chest.

“Jess, w—hey!” Marge sat up, looked down at her small, dark breasts, and let out a sultry moan. Or at least, it would have been sultry, if not for her giddy giggles and tripping words.

“Jessy,” Tash said, frowning at her. “W-What are you doing?”

Jessy shrugged at her best friend, before she hugged Marge tight to her, and Kissed her.

Everyone went quiet as they stared, the boys getting even quieter while Tash’s eyes opened wide as the topless kine wriggled, squirmed, and mewled. How Marge got into hunting, Jessy still didn’t know, but it was pretty damn obvious the girl would have been better off not pursuing that line of work. She was fun! Hunters were supposed to be broody and mean, but Marge turned into a bag of joy with a drink or two in her, and her body was on just as much a hair trigger as any slut's. Which was awesome.

Marge melted into Jessy's chest, and Jessy hugged the girl tighter as she drank her, letting the girl's own heartbeat squirt the warm fluid into her mouth. Blood was fucking amazing. To a kine, it just tasted like metal. To a vampire, it tasted like ambrosia. It sent tingles through the body when it hit the tongue. It relaxed the body as its warmth coated the throat. It pulsed energy and life through the body once it hit the stomach. And in seconds, whether she wanted to or not, Jessy was Blushing Life as well.

She didn't drink Marge as much as usual. Nah, she had bigger plans. With an evil grin, Jessy helped push Marge back up to sitting, and slowly turned the now half delirious, topless drunk girl toward Tash.

Tash gulped as Marge, barely aware of what was going on anymore, leaned forward toward the small vampire, and then onto her. Full chest-on-chest hug, and while Marge was a small woman, Tash was smaller, and she half fell back into the couch's arm as Marge half laid on top of her.

"Please," Marge said, and she kissed Tash's neck as she hugged her snug.

Tash glared at Jessy over Marge's shoulder, but didn't push her off. Oh ho, was that hesitation in her eyes? It was! Hesitation, and straight-up vampire hunger mixing with horniness. It only got worse when she looked over at her boys, and the two of them were in full puppy mode, mouths open slightly, eyes wide. They liked seeing a half naked woman lying on Tash and begging for her.

After scrunching her nose up at her boys, and then doubly so at Jessy, Tash grumbled a few times, rolled her eyes, and sank her teeth in Marge's neck. She tried to keep glaring at Jessy, but no vampire could resist the lull of the Kiss, the sensation of warm blood filling the belly, and the life and pleasure it pulsed out through the limbs. Mission successful. Tash melted, and her hands hugged Marge's back as she clutched her prey against her.

And that meant Marge's ass was pointed straight at Jessy.

Jessy slipped both her hands up under Marge's dress's short skirt, between her legs, and pulled her underwear aside. Marge didn't respond, and Tash's eyes were closed. Perfect. Jessy winked at the boys and Eric, who again, all stared at what was happening, but didn't say a thing. Well, if they weren't gonna stop her, Jessy was just gonna keep going until someone did. Point one on her manifesto.

With one hand holding the tiny lacy underwear to the side, her other hand slipped two fingers in between Marge's cheeks, down to her already wet pussy — the Kiss was amazing — and sank them into the girl's slit. Jessy kept her right hand's middle and ring finger's nails short for a reason, since she'd started using Marge to spice up her sex life with Eric, and, god damn the girl's ass was right in front of her, wriggling. The fuck was she supposed to do?

Marge's mewls and whimpers turned into an outright squeak, as Jessy fingered the girl hard and fast. No need to build up to it, she'd been horny for the past hour at least, and getting double Kissed had her on edge. Marge melted in seconds, and Tash was too engrossed in her Kiss to notice at first. She did, when Marge started wriggling like a worm on a hook as she came, tight little slit squeezing on Jessy's fingers for all she was worth.

Tash opened her eyes, awareness kicking in, and she glared at Jessy, but didn't stop Kissing her prey either. She was in it now, out of her mind with the pleasure of the Kiss, and even as Marge obviously shuddered with a cunt-shattering orgasm, Tash continued to drain her. And drain her. And drain her. That, was a full on deep, coma-inducing Kiss, and it gave Jessy plenty of time to lean in, get closer, and wink at Tash as she continued to finger the small hunter woman. And closer, until she pressed her chest into Marge's back, and squashed her against Tash, who'd closed her eyes again as she indulged her Kiss, and the prey cumming on top of her.

God damn, the tiny vampire was so beautiful.

Tash finally opened her eyes, and Jessy stopped. Marge was drained. Apparently Tash had been so hungry, and horny, she'd actually Kissed Marge into a coma. Chuckling, Jessy sat back, and gently pulled Marge up until she was sitting up between them again. Yeap, out like a light.

"Still alive?" Jessy said, and she gave the girl a small pat on the shoulder. No response. The hunter's eyes were closed, but she was breathing, and her small breasts' nipples were hard as stone despite the blood loss.

"Of course she's alive," Tash said. "I w-would never..." Squirming a bit and rubbing her thighs together, Tash sat up, and looked at the unconscious woman beside her. And, unless Jessy's eyes were playing tricks on her, Tash looked down at the small woman's dark breasts and lean stomach more than a few times. "She um ... she really enjoyed that."

"Girl came her brains out in a single fucking minute." Jessy couldn't help but laugh some more as she scooped Marge up, set her back on the one-seater, and sat back down with Tash. She hooked her elbow over the couch's back, and smiled at her friend before looking her up and down a few times. The girl's nipples were hard and pushing points out against her tight little blue dress.

"You d-didn't tell me you were gonna ... finger her."

"Would that have stopped you?"

"Maybe!"

Jessy scoffed and waved a hand. “Tash, you were hungry as hell. And I know you’ve been waiting to get railed all night, ever since we showed up at Bloodlust. Probably planning to drink your boys.”

“I have n-not!”

“Come on. You’re waiting until you can leave right now! Go home and get those two gorgeous dudes inside you.” She gestured to Matt and Art, who were staring at the two of them with obvious ‘I want to fuck Tash right now’ eyes.

“I ... well, I m-mean, I ... have a healthy sex life with my b-boyfriends. You can’t j-j-judge!”

“You are a horny little thing and I bet if I had a camera here, I could get you to do a live show, right now, and absolutely love it.”

Tash glared, angry ... for a whole half a second, before she looked down with some obvious guilt and shame, before looking over at her boys. They weren’t any help. They both looked at each other and nodded enthusiastically before looking back at Jessy and Tash. Eric chuckled.

“You do ... live shows for me,” Tash said, as if that’d make Jessy feel hypocritical or something. Bahaha.

“Yeah. Ha. I love that. I love it when you watch.” Grinning at Tash, Jessy tapped her chin a couple times before sliding across the small couch to get closer. “I like the way your eyes light up.”

“They d-don’t light up.”

“They fucking light up and it’s such a turn on.” Nodding, Jessy leaned in closer, shoulder to shoulder with Tash, and licked her lips. “Like they are now.”

“They’re ... not...”

Jessy leaned in a little closer, and whispered.

“Want to show the boys something they’ll never forget?”

“I...”

“You know all three of those handsome-as-fuck guys are staring at us, wishing we’d do things to each other. Look at them.” She nodded to Eric first, who was folding a leg to try and subtly adjust his erection. Matt and Art didn’t bother hiding theirs.

“You just want t-t-to...”

“To what? Have some fun with my best friend? Damn right. But more importantly, look at them, Tash. They are drooling. Let’s have some fun and I can guarantee those two boys are going to fuck you for the rest of the night like their lives depended on it.”

Tash blinked up at her before looking back to her boyfriends, and Eric as well. Jessy grinned at Eric, and pointed down to Tash with her eyes a few times, encouraging the man to look at the tiny, pale little vampire instead. He did, and when Tash met his gaze, she squirmed and wriggled, and rubbed her thighs together. Poor girl was horny out of her mind.

“Let’s vote,” Jessy said. “Boys! Eric! You guys want to watch me and Tash have some fun with each other?”

Matt and Art both immediately put up their hands, while Eric rolled his eyes, but lifted his hand, too. Much as Eric tried to be all chivalrous and shit, the dude had a kinky side. He liked it when Jessy vidcommed with Tash while having sex, the pervert. She loved him.

“Jessy!” Tash said. “It’s not a vote.”

“Come on. We’ve seen each other naked, seen each other fuck, a lot, and so have the guys. Hell, you fucked my ghouls with me, way back in the day.” She gestured to the werewolves again. “Just imagine, all three of ‘em, masturbating right now, as we touch each other.”

Her words had Tash wriggling more, obviously getting turned on by Jessy’s story, and the images they put in the tiny vampire’s head. Time to risk it. With Tash watching the three guys, Jessy was free to lower her lips, and put a little kiss on Tash’s ear.

Tash didn’t push her away, and quivered. Progress!

“You’re evil,” she said.

“Yeap. You love it.”

“I d-don’t ... love ... it.”

“Yeah you do. The thought of these three dudes drooling at the sight of you squirming and wriggling while I touch you?” Jessy slid a hand up Tash’s back, and caressed her naked spine, fingers getting closer and closer to the strap behind her neck. “Who knows. Maybe if we put on a good enough show, Art and Matt will pounce and just ravage the fuck out of you. Right. Here.”

Tash squirmed a little more, her eyes locked on her boyfriends, and Eric too. Eric wouldn’t fuck Tash, and that was fine. That didn’t mean they couldn’t have some fun anyway. And Jessy knew just how she’d make all three guys happy.

“Art? M-Matt?” Tash asked, voice quiet and wavering.

The boys licked their lips as they smiled at her. They weren’t gonna do anything to save her from Jessy. And Jessy knew Tash well enough — partly because of all the porn Tash had released — to recognize the girl's 'I want this but I'm afraid to say it' body language.

What Jessy needed to do, was find the perfect balance of gentle suggestions, and outright bullying. Tash needed a push sometimes, but once she was past that edge, the girl really got into whatever it was that'd peaked her interest. And Jessy was sure this would be just like the porn films her best friend loved making.

So, Jessy lifted up the strap behind Tash's neck, fast enough Tash would have to make an effort stop her if she didn't want this. If she made the effort, Jessy would stop.

She did try and stop her, but it was slow and halfhearted, more of Tash's fake attempts to try and not seem like a total hornball. The act was pointless, and Jessy didn't really understand why Tash was so insistent on clinging to that mask, considering she literally made porn and shared it. But it was also super cute, and it was fucking hot as hell, forcing Tash's dress top down despite her trying to put her hands in the way.

All three boys breathed deeper, too. Oh, that was why Tash acted like this. Tiny little dainty woman acts all defenseless, and innocent-but-horny? It shot fire through the boys' veins, all three of them, and Tash knew it, even if she couldn't admit it. Tash let out the tiniest whimper too, and the boys had to clench their knees to keep from getting up and pouncing Tash right there. God damn she knew how to get a man nearly berserk horny. Maybe Jessy should try playing the innocent, weak and defenseless damsel once in a while?

"You ... meanie," Tash said, voice still a quiet whimper. Jessy grinned down at Tash, and pushed her off the couch. "Hey!" And now with Tash standing, Jessy had an easy time reaching out, grabbing the bottom half of the dress, and pulling it down to her ankles. Which left Tash standing in nothing but her tiny little blue thong. Her small breasts were gorgeous, and her tiny pink nipples were swollen to hard points.

“Fucking. Hot.” Jessy said, looking her half naked best friend up and down as she licked her lips.

Tash blushed from head to toe as she covered her breasts with her forearms, and looked back at the boys. All three guys stared at her, eyes showing more of that werewolf hunger. Much as Jessy was doing a lot of pushing, it was the three men staring at Tash like they wanted to pin her down and fuck her senseless then and there that had her giving in. It was their hungry eyes that had Tash so horny, Jessy was having an easy time manipulating her.

“You’re evil!”

“Nah, come on. Don’t be like that.” With an evil grin, Jessy stood up, and slid off her skirt, showing her own black thong. Unlike Tash, she made damn sure to stick her ass out as she did, and spent a little time bouncing her ass cheeks on the waistband of the skirt once she pulled it down a bit. Sure enough, all eyes fell on her, Tash included, and everyone watched her great butt jiggle on the waistband before Jessy laughed and kicked the skirt away.

She did the same with her thin tube top. The thing was barely wide enough to cover her breasts, but she had some fun with it, pulling it down just barely enough to expose the tips of her areola, before jiggling it to make her breasts ripple. Her nipples were more than hard enough they poked diamonds through the fabric, and again, all four of her audience stared at what she was doing. She peeled the tube top up, slowly revealing more of her amazing big tits, before taking the thing off and shooting it like an elastic band at the unconscious Marge. It landed on her lap. Bullseye.

“You enjoy this way too m-much,” Tash said, folding her arms across her chest, hiding her tits.

Jessy couldn't have that. She grabbed Tash's arms, and pulled her down onto the couch while conveniently pulling her arms off her breasts. But she didn't sit down with her. She winked at her friend, before marching over the whole four feet to the three men on the couch. She grinned down at them and stuck out her hip as she licked her lips.

“Boys, y'all are about to watch the two sexiest women in the city do some kinky shit to each other, and you're all just sitting here? Fully clothed? Get naked! I want to see some muscles, and some hot guys jerking it — slowly! — while Tash and I have fun.”

Art and Matt blinked at each other, then Tash, and then at Eric, as if he'd have something to say to rein in Jessy's awesomeness. But she was unreinable! She grinned at the three men, licked her fangs, stood in front of Eric, and set both her hands on his knees. And of course she made sure to stick her ass out as she leaned over, and shake her tits a bit so they swayed underneath her.

“I promise,” she said, “this'll be fun.”

“You really are evil,” Eric said.

“Yeah but you love it.”

He rolled his eyes, and looked over at Art and Matt. Guys could get pretty self conscious about getting naked around each other too, but the boys were drunk, and they'd seen each other all naked indirectly through vids and shit. So when Art and Matt reached down and pulled up on their shirts, Eric shrugged and did the same.

Once all three men were shirtless, Jessy helped Eric take off his pants; mostly she just pulled on them. Once he had the button and zipper undone, she yanked them off with a little more roughness than probably necessary, half pulling off his boxers along with them. She yanked them off too, leaving Matt and Art looking at her with raised eyebrows.

So she came over to them, winked, and pulled on their pants, too.

“Jessy!” Tash said.

“I’m not gonna fuck your boys. Calm down. But everyone should be naked!” Nodding, she got their pants off, and helped them with their boxers too. Both guys did a check-in with Tash, not so much for her permission, but to see if Tash was still in her ‘I want this but I’m not allowed to say it’ mood. She was, and the boys let Jessy strip them.

Three fucking gorgeous, ripped, muscular men, all looking at Jessy and Tash, all with big dicks hard and begging for a pussy to milk them. Perfect.

Jessy sat down beside Tash again, and sure enough, Tash stared at the boys and their dicks, blushing from head to toe and squirming. Knowing three gorgeous dudes were looking at her just as much as Jessy, aching to get inside her, turned the little Mekhet on like paper to fire. Tash didn’t even notice when Jessy slipped an arm around her shoulders.

“Now,” Jessy said to the boys, “masturbate! Slow, like I said.”

Matt and Art didn’t even hesitate. Eyes locked on both ladies and their naked breasts, the two men wrapped their big hands around their big dicks, and slowly stroked. Eric took a second, a knowing smirk aimed at Jessy, but he relented eventually, and masturbated. And after Jessy again gave him a few eye-points to aim his gaze at Tash, he aimed his hungry gaze at the petite vampire, and smiled at her as he squeezed his cock.

Tash was utterly hypnotized. What a pervert.

Jessy leaned in, set a kiss on Tash’s neck, and the girl outright moaned. She probably didn’t even realize she’d made the sound.

“Come on,” Jessy said. “We’re supposed to be the ones putting on a show, not them.”

“But ... I um...”

“Get over here.” Laughing, Jessy reached under and around Tash, and picked the girl up, earning a squeak. Jessy turned on the couch, lay on it sideways with her legs up on it, and sat Tash down on her lap, nice and snug over her hips so she could straddle Jessy. “I mean, if you really want, Tash, you can just sit there and let me do whatever I want to you.”

“You meanie! I don’t—nnng!” Tash whimpered when Jessy leaned in, and set her lips around one of Tash’s tiny nipples. Hard as a button. The little vampire pushed her hands against Jessy’s shoulders, so Jessy grabbed Tash’s wrists and pinned them against the small of her little friend’s back. Half hugging, half restraining her, Jessy was free to pull Tash in close, and bury her small breasts in hungry kisses that had her writhing and squirming on Jessy’s lap.

All three boys groaned.

Tash sat up straighter at the sound of the boys’ voices. She’d forgotten about them for a moment.

“Matt! Art! D-Do something!”

Matt and Art did nothing. They sat there, staring at how Jessy kissed and suckled on their girlfriend’s tits, and they masturbated. They were completely mesmerized. And even better, the sight of her boyfriends, and Eric, staring at her with hypnotized eyes while Jessy played with her, was enough to have Tash go from squirming and wriggling to escape, to squirming and wriggling in pleasure. The damsel-in-distress kink really turned her on.

Chuckling, Jessy leaned back and relaxed her shoulders against the arm of the couch, her feet against the other arm, knees up with Tash's ass pressing against her quads.

"K, you do me. Play with my tits. Have fun."

"You..."

Jessy was tempted to interrupt her and tease her some more, but it wasn't needed anymore. If Tash wouldn't give in now, horny to the point Jessy could smell it, then she'd never get horny enough. Instead, Jessy relaxed back, her big tits on display and half flattened against her chest, and she set her hands on Tash's ass. Tiny but firm and sculpted, it was a great little ass, and Jessy squeezed and kneaded it as she grinned up at her friend.

Tash scrunched up her nose, for a whole one second, before she melted into Jessy's touch, and her horniness swept her away. With shaky hands and a few shy peeks at the boys watching, she set her palms on Jessy's breasts.

"They're ... soft."

Jessy sighed happily. Finally, her best friend was touching her. How long had it taken to get to this point? Fucking decades!

"Yeap."

"And ... heavy." Tash slipped her hands under them, cupped them, and gently lifted them to feel the weight of them in her palms.

"Yeap. Imagine how the Prince feels."

Tash smiled sheepishly, and experimented a little more. She had her own tits, but the girl was mostly flat, and she'd never played with another girl's tits before. This was new territory for her.

"Suck on 'em," Jessy said. "Maybe gimme some of that Jack treatment."

Tash blinked. She hadn't expected the comparison, but truth was, no matter how much Jessy had seen Jack suck on Antoinette's tits in the few vods she'd seen, Tash had seen it a lot more, from the stories she'd shared. Jack and Antoinette fucked in the Elysium Tower in public areas sometimes. So she instantly knew what Jessy meant, and blushed until she could have burned a hole through the couch.

But after another peek at the men, she gulped, slowly leaned in, and wrapped her lips around Jessy's nipple, the one closer to the audience.

Jessy didn't have super sensitive nipples or anything, but it still felt great to have something wet and warm massaging them. Tash was way too gentle at first, but it didn't take long before she picked up the intensity, and full-on kissed it. After a few seconds of that, she pulled her head back, squeezed Jessy's breast, stared at the swollen nipple, and leaned back in again to bury it in living, heavy licks. The boys groaned again, and Tash went harder, outright suckling, and peeking over at the boys as she did.

It was all about the boys, for Tash. Yeah sure, Natasha thought ladies were hot, but she was most definitely the type who wanted a big strong man to have his way with her, routinely. That was her biggest turn on, not women like Jessy. But, hey, this was fine too. Jessy got to have her fun, and Tash got to enjoy turning on the guys in a way she hadn't done before. Everybody won.

Seeing how much the three guys were turned on by Tash and her breast kissing really did something for her. The tiny vampire moaned softly a couple times, and after a very guilty glance up at Jessy, leaned in and pressed her face straight into the other boob, half burying her face in the softness of Jessy's breast. It felt great. Jessy sighed happily as she looked over at the men, smiled at each of them, spent more than a few happy moments admiring their hard cocks in their big hands, before she slipped her own hands under the waistband of Tash's thong, and slid it down off her ass.

Tash finally stopped suckling, sat up, and frowned down at her. It was the weakest frown Jessy had ever seen, and she laughed at her friend on her lap.

“You're really n-not going to stop, are you?” Tash asked.

“Fuck no. You really want me to?”

“I...” Tash looked over at the guys, at their big dicks and their grips slowly working them up and down, and looked back down at her. “N ... No.”

Fucking finally, admittance! Maybe next time they'd bust out the cameras and do a proper orgy. Not tonight, but still, it was always smart to plan ahead.

Jessy spread her knees, and gave Tash a small shove, making her squeak as she fell between Jessy's legs, back on the couch cushion. A great position to pull on her thong so Tash's legs came up, and the thong came off. And holy shit, a couple lines of juices connected it to Tash's teeny tiny pussy. When Tash saw, she squealed and covered her slit; reflexes died hard.

Laughing, Jessy scooped Tash up and sat her on Jessy's lap again, slipped her hands under her own thong, and pulled the thing off. There, two naked ladies. The boy sighed with desire.

“Whatcha wanna do?” Jessy asked. “What would be the hottest thing we could do to get those three guys over there to cum?” Oh ho, a devious thought occurred to her. “Or, what would look really good on a camera, if we had one?”

Tash, still a giant red beet, gulped as she looked down at her from Jessy's lap.

“I ... I um...”

“I bet I know the position you’re thinking of.”

“What? W-Wait! I didn’t—” She squeaked when Jessy pushed her back again between her knees, and this time helped slide Tash along the couch a bit so her shoulders and head rested on the couch arm behind her, Jessy’s own shoulders and head on the other couch arm.

All three boys groaned quietly, when they realized what Jessy was doing. With an evil, dramatic chuckle, Jessy slipped one leg over Tash’s, and the other under Tash’s. Tash was lying on her back, and so was Jessy, which made it perfect to put the girl into a scissoring position with her, grab her leg so she couldn’t escape, and casually press their pussies together.

“Jessy! You...” Tash peeked over at the boys again, before slowly looking down her small stomach, her smooth, little mons, and down to where her teeny tiny perfect little pussy, was squished against Jessy’s.

Jessy was wet, pretty damn wet, but Tash was fucking soaked. Her juices drenched and leaked down over Jessy’s, and her body shivered as Jessy slowly ground her hips into her to make sure their slits were completely squashed. And, because Jessy had done this more than a few times, she knew how to angle her hips and pelvis to gently grind her clit against Tash’s.

Tash pushed herself up onto her elbows so she could sit up more, but didn’t stop Jessy. Hell, she stared down at the squished flesh between them, eyes wide, body quivering. She liked how it looked. She liked how it felt.

“Not exactly a good position for getting off,” Jessy said. “But damn doesn’t it look fucking amazing? I bet it’d look great on camera.” She reached out, slid a finger down Tash’s stomach down to her mons, and then down an inch to gently run her finger over the top of both of their pussies and clits. Tash let out the tiniest little mewl, and it was Jessy's turn to shiver. Why did her best friend have to be so damn hot?

"It ... It..." Tash gulped as she looked between Jessy and their rubbing pussies, before looking over at the boys. Sure enough, seeing the three guys struggling to not jerk themselves to a quick orgasm right there had the tiny Mekhet boiling. Her pussy was swollen, dripping, and every grinding motion Jessy made had her shivering.

Shivers turned into trembles. Trembles turned into shaking, and Tash panted as she fell back against the couch, and came.

"Holy shit," Jessy said, watching her best friend quiver and squirm in that fucking perfect way Jessy would never be able to match. Tash squeaked, and Jessy stopped. Yeah, the girl's clit got super sensitive when she came, so Jessy went still and watched with delight as Tash wriggled. More than that, more of her juices leaked out of her, coating Jessy's lips until beads of girl cum soaked her ass. And the way Tash's flat stomach and little waist flexed and rolled with her orgasm, her small body between Jessy's thighs, was beyond erotic. All three guys groaned.

Tash recovered, eventually, and she managed to push up onto her elbows again as she stared down at her pussy, and the mess it'd made.

"I ... I um..."

"As I was saying, it's pretty damn hard to cum from tribbing. Unless, you know, you're a total hornball who cums at the drop of a hat."

"That's ... n-not fair!"

“I’d planned to just put on a good show for the boys, and they could be the ones making you cum. But, damn. Guys, get in here, and look at this, close up! She’s soaking me.”

“N-No!” Tash fell back and covered her face with her hands, but spread a few fingers to peek through them at the men as all three of them got up and walked over. Three big, muscly guys, all with a hand around their cocks, still slowly masturbating as they stood nearly shoulder to shoulder, looking down at the two girls on the couch. Their cocks were beyond swollen, each of them with wet tips, just begging for release.

“Come on guys,” Jessy said, grinning up at them, Eric especially. “Cum all over us.”

“W-What?” Tash lowered her hands and grabbed Jessy’s leg, the one hooked over her own. “But ... But...” Slowly, she looked at the men directly beside her, Matt and Art, with Matt between Art and Eric, Eric closer to Jessy.

“I think I’ll wait a bit,” Art said, grinning at Jessy and winking. Ooh, a devious wink. She liked him.

“Suit yourself.” Jessy took Tash’s leg by the knee, the one over hers, held on nice and snug, and ground their pussies together again. Instant whimpering mewls from the tiny vampire. Jessy used her other hand to cup one of her breasts, and squeezed and massaged it, making sure all the boys got an intimate look at how fucking amazing her tits were.

Eric leaned over her, and set his free hand against the back of the couch over her so he could aim his cock straight down at her chest with his other hand. And he masturbated faster.

Matt clued in and did the same, aiming his cock down at his squirming girlfriend. Tash’s eyes opened wide as she looked up at her giant boyfriend, and she peeked at Jessy a few times, eyes flicking between her and the huge cock just begging to cum. Precum dripped from the big, fat, swollen glans, and fell on Tash's closer breast.

Laughing quietly, Jessy tightened her grip on Tash's leg, made sure to mostly stay on her back so the boys could see everything; because who the fuck wouldn't want to see everything with two amazing women scissoring. She rolled her abs and made sure it looked fucking amazing, how her lean and fit figure writhed and rubbed against Tash, and how amazing their two smooth pussies looked flattened against each other. Matt couldn't help but stare down at where the two girls were squished together, and even looked over to stare at Jessy a bit as he masturbated. She winked at him, and used her free hand to squeeze her tit all the more.

Eric came first. With a single, quiet groan, the man masturbated faster, and leaned down while half squatting, free hand still on the back of the couch so he could put his cock's tip right on her breast. She helped him, cupped the breast and pushed it up into his cock, and shivered as the first gush of warm cum squirted straight onto her nipple where he rubbed his dripping wet glans. More, and more cum poured over her breast, into the valley between her tits, and down her abs. Werewolves came a lot, even in human form, and sure enough he managed to coat her in enough cum some of it actually reached her pussy.

Jessy let go of her tit, grabbed his cock, and helped milk the last few drops of it straight onto her abs, so it could ooze down her awesome body until it slid between her and Tash again, and coated their pussy lips in cum.

Tash stared down at the cum flowing down Jessy's body, and didn't even react to Matt doing the same thing. The giant got down low, and squirted cum straight down her body. And because Matt was a fun guy apparently picking up on Jessy's vibe, he aimed his cock down Tash's skinny little body so it flowed straight down from her sternum, down her stomach, her mons and around it, and into the groove of her pelvis and thighs so it got between her and Jessy. Squish, squish, warm white cum, from two guys, mixing and soaking their pussies.

Jessy didn't grind hard enough to make Tash cum again, and she'd never really be able to cum from this position herself. But, god damn, it looked so damn fucking good, a couple big cocks coating them in cum until both girls had streams of white running down their skin, trickling off their breasts, the sides of their waists, down their stomachs, and between their perfect cunts. Everyone stared at how hot it was.

Jessy, was a genius.

“Okay, time for more stuff.” Nodding, Jessy got up off the couch, and both boys backed off as she quickly scooted into the bathroom. A quick glance back showed Tash, staring at her cum-soaked belly and pussy, blushing even worse than before. A lot of that cum was Eric's and she knew it.

Jessy grabbed a few towels, her favorite lube, and rejoined the group as she quickly wiped herself down, and handed Eric the lubricant.

“Here, Tash.” With a mischievous grin, Jessy leaned down and wiped up most of the cum off her girlfriend's small, dainty, fucking hot little body. Tash glared at her the whole time, but didn't stop her, even when Jessy winked at her.

Then she yanked her friend up onto her feet.

“H-Hey!”

“Come on, gotta prepare you if the boys are gonna fuck you.”

“But, I thought ... I d-didn't...”

Rolling her eyes, Jessy guided Tash over to the bigger couch where the boys had been, threw the biggest towel down first in the couch's middle, and sat Tash down on it. Matt and Art sat around her, and took her wrists into their hands, holding them on their legs so Tash couldn't go anywhere. Jessy licked her lips. A small yank was enough to have Tash's ass hanging over the cushion edge slightly, and she squeaked as she looked to her boyfriends with begging eyes.

Jessy took the lube from Eric, poured a huge glob of it into her palm, and pressed her hand against Tash's ass.

“Jessy!”

Jessy stared down at Tash's little slit above her hand, and how it clenched in spurts as Jessy rubbed the lubricant into the even smaller asshole. She wasted no time, drenching the squeezing hole in enough lubricant to drown someone, before she pushed her middle finger against it. And into it.

Tash's mouth dropped, and she stared up at Jessy before looking down at her body, view of what Jessy was doing blocked by her pelvis. Which meant she didn't see it, but felt it, as Jessy sank her ring finger into her as well, palm up, and spread the lubricant around inside her ass. Every attempt she made to squirm away from Jessy's hand was blocked by the boys still holding her wrists, and honestly, they weren't very strong squirms.

Jessy groaned as she pressed her two fingers up, straight toward Tash's pussy, and up toward her g-spot. The simple motion made Tash's smooth little pussy clench hard, and earned a squeak from the trembling vampire.

“Jessy! I'm ... lubricated, okay? Stooooop.” Oh, a whiny kitten voice. Damn that just made Jessy want to bully her more.

“I dunno. I think you need a little more.”

“Jessy, y-nnng!” Tash mewled into more whimpers, as Jessy began to finger the girl, pushing both fingers in her ass up toward her pussy in a nice, proper fucking rhythm. She made sure to use most of the finger in the upward motion, pressing the whole underside of both up fingers toward her pussy, especially her g-spot. And to make doubly sure that’s where Tash felt it, Jessy used her free hand to squash Tash’s lower abdomen, just above her pubic bone.

Poor Tash, reduced to kitten mewls in seconds, as Jessy fingered her ass.

Tash was a bundle of nerves and pleasure, and she melted back into the couch as her body betrayed her. It was beyond hot, watching her squirm, half trying to escape her boyfriends’ hands as Jessy bounced the girl’s ass on the edge of the couch. No need to touch her pussy. Tash’s body clamped down hard as she came, and her empty slit leaked more juices down her lips and skin, down onto Jessy’s fingers, joining the lubricant as Jessy went on.

She could have gone on, forced Tash to keep cumming until she was exhausted and spent, even with a vampire body with a tummy full of blood. But she still had a whole night of fun planned, so she relented, and slipped her fingers out of her friend’s perfect little ass, before standing up again.

“Okay boys, have fun with her.” Jessy rubbed her hands together, and wiped them off on the towel as she watched Art scoop up his little girlfriend, move over to sit on the towel instead, and slowly lower her shaking body onto his cock.

A nice, big, now coated in lube cock that slid nicely into her pert little ass. Tash didn’t fight this time. She spread her legs, mostly out of limp exhaustion more than anything, as Art sank her down and down, thick girth spreading her tiny hole open more than Jessy’s two fingers had. Down and down, Tash’s legs spread out over his, empty slit on display as her boyfriend slowly penetrated her ass with his big cock. When Tash's ass finally squished against the big guy's pelvis and lower abs, Art wrapped one arm around her waist, and his other hand took her by the throat, and pinned her back against his chest.

Tash melted.

“Wow,” Jessy said, eyes locked onto the embarrassed, guilt-ridden, high-on-pleasure face Tash wore. Getting pinned, trapped, with a hand around her throat, was a huge trigger for her, especially with an audience. “Eric, mind if I get in there?”

“Go ahead.”

Oh wow, her boyfriend was feeling very explorative tonight. Had to be the alcohol. Or maybe he just trusted Matt and Art a lot more than she thought he did? Maybe because of the shit that happened in the spirit world?

Matt stood up at Eric's silent request, and the two of them backed up and stood by, whispering to each other as they watched Jessy from behind. Well, she did have an amazing ass.

Jessy grinned down at her helpless friend, leaned down, put her hands on Tash's hips, knelt down, and wrapped the girl's tiny pussy in her mouth.

“Jessy! W—” Her voice cut off hard as Art squeezed, and with his arms wrapping around hers, Tash couldn't get her hands out to stop Jessy. Which was exactly what Jessy — and Tash — wanted. She squirmed and wriggled, and with Jessy's lips on her slit and tongue burying her clit, it was easy to feel Tash clench and squeeze her muscles. Art was in Heaven.

Jessy grinned around her best friend's perfect little pussy. She could taste Tash's cum, and hers, and Eric's, and Matt's. Tash trembled, unable to say anything, but her body language was obvious, and Jessy eased up as the girl melted into an orgasm. God damn she was easy to make cum.

Better yet, Jessy tightened her grip on the girl's hips, and bounced her. Sure, her clit was too sensitive to play with mid orgasm, but a deep ass fuck? Tash's legs trembled with muscle spasms as Art's big cock filled her ass, and from how hard Jessy pushed down on her hips and bounced her, his hard dick probably hit all her best, deep places.

Art looked at Jessy over Tash's shoulder as he came, and his eyes half closed as he grinned at her before he leaned in and kissed Tash's neck. It was sexy, and wholesome. Fucking your girl's ass and pumping her full of cum while you kiss her neck and choke her? Didn't get much more wholesome than that. Tash certainly loved it, eyes closing and body going limp.

Jessy stood up and smiled down at her friend as the girl melted into Art's chest again. What to do next?

"You," Eric said as he came up behind Jessy, "have been enjoying being in charge way too much."

"I—" The world went white for a second as Eric grabbed her by shoulder and hip, stood behind her, and slammed his cock into her. Hard. Her legs trembled, and she almost fell as her pussy, already boiling for a fucking eternity, almost came from just one fucking stroke. Sweet fucking jesus christ she did not expect Eric to just penetrate her like that.

She looked back over her shoulder at him. And froze. His nose was getting longer. His mouth was getting longer. His skin was growing fur, and his body was getting bigger.

Uh oh.

“Eric? What’re you—” She blinked. Matt was transforming too, standing a couple feet beside Eric, hungry wolf eyes glancing at her before looking down to his real prey, Natasha.

Jessy’s feet slowly lifted off the ground as Eric, with now giant hands still holding her hip and shoulder, kept her pinned on his cock as he got taller. And taller. And fucking thicker. She groaned as her eyes closed, bliss pulsing out from her pussy into her legs as his giant cock split her open as it grew. It stretched her, her own bodyweight and gravity keeping her pinned on it so it pushed up into her and forced her pussy deeper inside her. And the thing got so damn thick she always thought she might split open when they fucked, especially when the knot filled her. Transforming like this, it was already inside her, and she groaned loudly as it squashed against her g-spot, hard.

Dangling above the floor, skewered on a big, fat, werewolf cock, Jessy managed to open her eyes again, and look up at her boyfriend and his hungry wolf eyes. Transformed werewolves were not part of her plan.

“J-Jessy,” Tash said.

“Tash, I—” Holy shit.

Art’s hand wasn’t wrapped around Tash’s throat anymore. Instead the giant werewolf beast was content to leave both his ridiculously huge, clawed hands resting on his girlfriend’s spread thighs; spread much further now, now that Art was a werewolf and his legs were like tree trunks. The dude was big, giant, even a bit bigger than Eric. If it wasn’t for Jessy and Eric making sure they got furniture durable and strong enough to handle werewolf weight, he’d have broken the couch easily.

And just like Eric, he was balls deep inside his tiny girlfriend. Getting penetrated by a giant werewolf cock was bound to make a bit of a distension on any girl’s stomach, but Tash was such a small, dainty little thing, it was straight up a big bulge that went way past her navel. Her boyfriend's knot was clearly defined against her skin, too, right above her pubic bone. And Tash, with her mouth hanging open and staring at Jessy, was quivering with that 'oh no they're going to fuck me until I pass out' look in her eyes.

Jessy didn't get to admire for very long. Eric fucked her, hard, and Jessy hung in his grip with nothing to hang onto. The giant beast kept his knot lodged in her pussy, but that didn't stop him from bouncing her a few inches, her cunt's muscles locking his cock inside her. Her ass rippled with each impact, and her feet bounced against his knees and shins, Eric holding her horizontal so her whole body swayed with each thrust.

So. Fucking. Deep. Christ she loved that feeling of something stretching her in, and wide. So. Fucking. Thick. Her g-spot was absolutely squashed, and every thrust altered the pressure his knot jammed against it, until her muscles lost control. Tingling waves shot out from deep inside her cunt, and her toes curled as she let her head go limp, and melted into the electric shocks working up and down through her whole body. Nothing, nothing in the whole world except maybe the Kiss, felt as good as those sparks of bliss in her thighs making her legs spasm, and coursing up through her core.

Art rumbled, drawing Jessy's eyes as the orgasm faded, and Eric slowed down again. Tash was staring at her, biting her bottom lip. She really liked what she saw.

"I didn't ... plan this," Jessy said.

"L-Liar."

"I didn't! We were just gonna have a good time, maybe touch each other a bit, before fucking our boys. I didn't—" Her voice broke away into a wavering, mewling mess, as Eric got down on his knees in front of Tash and Art. Every movement he made, even just kneeling down, was shifting pressure on her thoroughly stretched, taut, aching insides, making everything tingle.

He knelt close enough to the couch it put Jessy was on her elbows on the couch, her knees grazing the floor, body still partly held up by Eric's grip. On her left, Art's giant muscular thigh. On her right, Art's other giant muscular thigh. In front of her, Tash's spread thighs, her dripping little slit, and Art's huge testicles.

With a heavy grumble that vibrated through the couch, Art took one of Tash's hands, and put it on Jessy's head. Jessy stared up at the huge wolf head looking down at her over Tash's head, at the giant hand guiding Tash's small one, at the bulge on her friend's belly, and gulped.

Art guided Tash's hand, and Tash stared down at Jessy, still biting her bottom lip — fucking hot — and let her boyfriend pin Jessy's head to her slit.

Jessy groaned into Tash's pussy, and buried it in hungry kisses and licks. As she did, Eric thrust into her, and the world exploded into white lights again as she buried her nose against Tash's mons. By the second slow, deep thrust, Art let go of Tash's hand, and Tash set both of them on Jessy's head on her own with a desperate, shaking, weak grip.

And because she couldn't help herself, Jessy slid one arm in closer, and pressed down against the big bulge pushing out against Tash's belly. Holy fuck she could actually feel Art's cock through her friend's flat — well, used to be flat — stomach. Even better, Art put his titanic hands on Tash's hips, and gently ground her on his cock, causing some of his earlier cum to leak out of her ass, causing Tash to groan, and causing her pussy to rub against Jessy's lips.

Licking a girl's pussy while getting railed was not easy. Licking a girl's pussy while a werewolf fucks you in the cunt right up to the lungs, was borderline impossible. She tried though, smiling up at her friend as she licked and kissed, and pressed harder on the bulge above her pubic bone. Tash loved it, and her jaw dropped as she stared down at Jessy, and melted. Cumming again already. Jessy pulled her head back a bit, but kept pushing against the bulge, squashing the tiny vampire's g-spot against the werewolf cock in her ass, and making her empty pussy clench and leak more juices.

Vampires really did get to have the best sex.

“Down,” Matt said, voice deep and barky. The titan gestured to the floor.

Eric pulled Jessy back, and gave Art the room to stand up. He held Tash like Eric did Jessy, horizontal, dangling, skewered on his cock, with her limbs going limp and swaying with his movement. The huge beast lay on the floor on his back, and Tash, still trembling and limp, fell back on his abs and chest, legs going wide around her boyfriend's.

Rumbling, Eric knelt beside Art, perpendicular to him, and pointed Jessy straight at the man. And at Tash. He came in close, and closer, until Jessy had to climb over Art's giant arm, and her head was now directly over Tash's stomach.

Much as she wanted to dig into Tash like a buffet and molest the shit out of her, a shadow drew her eyes up. The biggest werewolf got down on his knees between Art's legs, took his fucking massive cock into his hand, and aimed it down at Tash's pussy. It was hard to pick what to stare at. The beautiful tiny vampire underneath her who came at the drop of a hat. Or the goliath blocking out Jessy's view of the ceiling as he leaned over her and Tash, and pressed the tip of his werewolf cock against Tash's tiny slit.

Matt, definitely Matt, and the monstrous thing he was about to force into the little vampire.

Unable to stop herself, because why the fuck would she, Jessy reached down with her closer hand to Tash's pussy, and spread it for the big guy. He rumbled his thanks, and pressed his red cock against her clenching little hole. And sank himself down into her.

For a second, she thought he'd really just squash her into Tash, which mighta been kinda sexy getting sandwiched like that, but once Matt had the tip of his cock spreading his little girlfriend open, he let go and put both his hands against the floor around Art's shoulders with his long arms. He still loomed over Jessy, but at least he wouldn't flatten her into Tash as he leaned in more, and more, giving Jessy a visual feast of watching his giant abs and their short fur come closer, while his thick cock spread Tash's slit apart.

The distension the second cock created on her belly was massive. With one cock already filling her insides, it only made sense, but Jessy hadn't expected this. She could literally see the second bulge slide up her once flat stomach, showing clearly how thick Matt's cock was, getting pushed up into Tash's abs by Art's cock. Licking her lips, Jessy set a hand on Tash's stomach, and shivered from head to toe as she felt the girth of Matt's cock pushing deeper and deeper into his girlfriend's pussy, sliding under Jessy's hand as it stretched the girl inward.

Tash stared on, managing to push herself up a bit with her elbows on Art's chest, and her eyes flicked between the giant looming over her, the bulge moving up her belly, and Jessy. The most noise she managed was quieter than a kitten's mewl, and it was clearly taking every bit of energy she had to not go completely limp and fall back on Art's chest again. She wanted to see.

Jessy still had her hand on Tash's pussy, fingers spreading her swollen little lips, and she squeezed them together softly, pinching them around the log pushing into the tiny vampire. Okay, much as Jessy had wanted Tash to get fucked by werewolf cock, and from what Tash had told her, she'd ultimately enjoyed it, Jessy hadn't really thought this through. That, was a lot of cock, and Tash was so dainty and petite. The second, new bulge on her belly just keep going, higher and higher, passing her navel and—coming to a stop, as the thick knot of Matt’s cock squashed against Tash’s lips and Jessy’s fingers.

Tash had mentioned this too, with enough embarrassment to fill a swimming pool. The boys couldn’t both fit inside her at the same time, not completely. She just didn’t have enough room inside her. But holy fuck it looked so fucking good, the way the giant’s throbbing cock’s thickest part buried the girl’s lips in its round shape. And Tash’s juices coated the parts of it that touched her as Matt ground gently into her and Jessy’s fingers, earning some more whimpering, quiet mewls from his girlfriend.

“You,” Jessy said, looking to her friend, “are too damn small.”

“I’m not ... n-not...”

“What, not that small?” Laughing, Jessy pushed down on the giant double-cock bulge pushing out against Tash’s belly, earning a small grunt from her. “Look at this!”

“It’s your fault!”

“Well, yeah, and you should be thanking me. Damn shame you can’t fit them both inside you all the way though.”

Tash eyed her suspiciously.

“W-Well! They’re my boyfriends, so you’re not ... fucking them.” It would have sounded defiant, if she didn’t sound so completely exhausted.

“I didn’t plan to fuck them!” She rolled her eyes as she leaned down, and gave one of Tash’s nipples a kiss, earning a tiny shiver from the thoroughly penetrated Mekhet. “But, uh ... it’s kinda in my way. Mind if I touch it a little?” She gestured to the thick knot rubbing against Tash’s pussy.

Tash frowned at her, but it melted quickly as her two boys very gently ground their bodies against hers, massive cocks softly rubbing and stretching her insides; Jessy recognized the look. Get a girl on the precipice of orgasm and you could make her agree to anything.

“Only ... Only if they don’t mind. Eric, t-too.”

Jessy looked to Art. Hungry eyes, struggling to keep back an animal need to power fuck Tash into a wheelchair. Jessy looked up at Matt, who’s head hung over Tash’s head a few feet up. The same look, but he did manage a small nod. She looked back at Eric, and her boyfriend gave her what could only be described a very subtle wolf’s grin, mixed with a lot of the same wolf hunger.

Okay, she was in the clear to touch the boys. A little. Definitely dangerous territory. And hey, maybe someday in the future, they could do something crazy like that? But tonight, she had her eyes on Tash.

She pressed one hand down against Art’s hip for balance, beside Tash’s waist, leaned her head in toward Tash’s pussy, and pressed her lips against the top of it, where the curve of Matt’s knot pressed against Tash’s very swollen, and likely very, very sensitive, now thoroughly abused clit. And, as much as Jessy did make an effort to keep her kiss on Tash, there was no stopping her lips and tongue from rubbing up against Matt’s cock, too. The rumbles of pleasure he made were so heavy, she felt them, like a bass guitar plugged into her kiss.

Tash whimpered. “T-Too much! It’s...”

Right, right. Jessy grinned back at her friend before putting a gentler kiss on her clit. Too sensitive. She kissed it again and again, but with a very tender touch, only little licks that brushed up against the big cock squashing it.

Eric rumbled. Oh shit, too far? She peeked her head up over her shoulder to her boyfriend, only to find the beast resettling his grip on her hips, and resume thrusting. She knew that sound, too. That was his 'I'm going to fuck you until I cum' sound.

She melted, and dug deep to find the control to not collapse. Fuck, seeing Tash get stuffed up to the gills was so fucking hot to watch, it had her own body on that edge too, and kept it there. And of course so did having a giant werewolf cock in her, staying in her, and refusing to go anywhere. She had to put her other hand against Matt's closer leg to keep from face planting.

Trying to keep her lips on Tash's clit quickly became a lost cause. Her body went limp, her head and neck fell on the Tash's bulging belly, and she shivered from head to toe as the pleasure pulsed through her. Pleasure, and heat. She groaned as cum poured into her, filled her pussy instantly, and forced itself deeper into her. Most of it splashed against Eric's pelvis, and considering how much werewolves came, the splashes were big enough to soak her ass, her thighs, and some poured down the small of her back before trickling off the sides of her waist.

Matt pulled his big cock out six, seven, eight inches, and slowly pushed it back into his girlfriend. With Jessy's head resting on Tash's stomach, facing Matt, she not only got to watch the huge cock split her open from close up, she got to feel it. His cock sank deep into the little vampire's slit, and the bulge pushed itself under Jessy's cheek, while Jessy quivered like a fish out of water.

Eric slowed down, rumbling with satisfied pleasure, and Jessy found the strength to push her weight back up on her hands again. Good thing, because once she had both hands on Art's hip so she could look down at Tash, the two werewolves began to fuck her in earnest. Art's hands took Tash's spread legs, one arm under Jessy, and sorta bounced his girlfriend's limp, panting body on his cock, while the tiny thing still lay back on his chest. Matt straight up fucked her, deep thrusts that always squashed his fat knot against her pussy and buried her lips and clit in its soaked, hard girth.

Jessy stared down at the distention on Tash's stomach, and how it slid back and forth with each motion. Even with Art's motion being pretty shallow compared to Matt's, it was still visible, its distension moving up and down a couple inches so deep in Tash's body she could probably feel it in her guts. Two giant cocks, fighting for room in her little pelvis and past it, leaving Tash a squirming mess, wriggling between her weak mewls, before she collapsed back on Art's chest again.

Couldn't have that! Jessy slid her closer hand behind Tash's back, and helped prop the girl up a bit so she could look at the two bulges fighting for space inside her.

"Grab his cock," Jessy said. "Come on, don't leave him hanging."

Tash blinked at her, lip trembling, trapped between orgasm waves. But, after staring at the huge knot desperately trying to get inside her but unable, she managed to reach out with her shaking arms, and wrapped her hands around Matt's giant cock's knot.

Matt let loose. His purr turned into a rumble, and rumble turned into outright growl, as he fucked his little girlfriend faster. Tash whimpered openly, and looked at Jessy with some pleading eyes, as if Jessy could help her somehow. Well, they'd made the rules. Jessy wasn't going to touch Matt. If Tash wanted to make sure both her boyfriends got to enjoy total dick coverage, she had to do it herself.

She managed. Somehow, even as her body quivered, her eyes half-closed, and her clenching slit coated Matt's huge red cock in another layer of juices, she managed to keep her hands on its thick knot, circling it and cupping it. Matt loved it. He fucked Tash faster, groaning with each thrust, until it was less Tash grabbing his cock to pleasure him, and more Tash holding on for dear life while a bronco pulverized her. And Jessy, one hand still holding up Tash's back so she didn't collapse, could only stare at the giant bulge pushing back and forth along her belly like a piston.

Jessy slipped her other arm under Tash's, put her hand on the girl's lower abs, and pressed down. Holy. Fucking. God. The feel of Matt's cock driving in and out of her leaking little slit was amazing. She couldn't help but press down a little harder, wrap her fingers around the wide bulge, and squeeze it a bit through Tash's flesh. Tash's thighs trembled again. She loved it.

Matt loved it too. He sank himself down to the knot, and ground into Tash long enough for the first gush of cum to pour into her. Jessy could see that, too, the distention on her friend's thin little belly shifting slightly as cum filled her. Matt thrust again, and the second gush splashed outward, coating the base of his cock, the knot, and Tash's hands. The third thrust only made things worse, and Jessy blinked down at the geyser of cum that splashed up over Tash's mons, coating her thighs, her wrists, her stomach, and Jessy's hand.

It was Jessy's turn to be hypnotized. She continued to press and massage her hand down against Tash's belly, squashing the girl's g-spot down against Matt's cock, and occasionally squeezed her fingers around the bulge to make the girl whimper. And every time she did, Matt purred. He must have been in heaven, considering Tash was doing the same to his knot, both her hands squeezing and caressing, now coated and dripping with thick, white cum. Both girls were milking him.

And then Art came. As much as it was hot as fuck, seeing what Matt's cock did to Tash, and being able to touch it through Tash, what Art did made Jessy's jaw drop. He poured cum into her. And more cum. And more cum. Jessy had expected a bunch of it to come squirting out of her ass, but his cock was just too damn big. He'd plugged her, and almost all the cum the werewolf poured into his girl, stayed in her.

The bulge on her belly got bigger.

"Fucking god..." Jessy gulped, and let go of Tash's back. She melted back, lay on Art's chest, let her arms go limp, and let the boys pump her full of cum. Matt stopped, but Art still had a little bit to go, and he purred as he ground Tash's body down against him, his grip still on her thighs, the distension on her belly only getting bigger. He was loving this, too.

"Good," Matt said, nodding.

"Good," Art said, nodding.

Eric rumbled, and nodded. "Good."

Okay, the boys were enjoying themselves. That was good. Jessy had been confident she could make Tash love this sorta stuff given the chance. Her bigger concern was whether the boys would feel comfortable around each other. Alcohol helped alleviate that concern a little. Apparently werewolf form made it a moot point. They were super horny and ready to fuck. And fuck some more.

"Change," Matt said, and he motioned to Eric.

Eric pulled back, slipped his cock out of Jessy's pussy — fucking god — and helped slide her back a couple feet so the two behemoths could roll over. They stayed in the same spot in front of Jessy, and Matt had to pull out of Tash completely for a bit there, but otherwise they got into the same positions as before, except now Matt was on his back on the floor, and Art was the one between their legs and leaning over them.

Tash lay on Matt's stomach and chest, her head on his sternum, swollen belly flattened on his abs. She was still recovering.

"Tash. Wakey wakey," Jessy said, and poked her in the cheek. "You—ah!" Eric took Jessy's hips, and rolled her over. "Uh, dude, not sure this position is gonna—" He pushed her, and she fell on her ass, her back pressed to Matt's side.

Eric, still on his knees between her legs, gripped her hips, lifted her pelvis up, and pressed his drenched hard cock's tip against her cum-soaked ass. Oh fuck. He pushed her down, and with how much cum everything was soaked in, it was more lubricated than a handful of lube could do. He wasted no time, and pushed harder, sinking wet flesh into her squeezing ass, and soaking it cum.

Art took Tash by the shoulders and pulled her up so she was sitting upright, her back against his chest again. When he did, Eric pushed Jessy toward Matt, and her shoulders and head slipped up over Matt's side, over and onto his abs, and slightly past it. Well, fuck, now she was the one lying on her back on a werewolf's abs, except perpendicular across him, her body on full display for Tash while she got fucked in the ass.

Tash blinked down at her, and once Art let go of Tash's shoulders, she leaned forward slightly and put both her hands down on Jessy's stomach, gently resting her weight there, as Eric pushed more of his cock into Jessy's ass.

"Um..."

"I didn't—shit!" Jessy forced herself to sit up slightly, elbows pressing down on Matt's giant slab of abs so she could look up at her boyfriend. He came in closer, and closer, eventually planting a hand on the floor on Matt's other side so he could lean and loom over them, as his other hand held Jessy's hip. And pulled her in closer.

With her on her back like this, even on Matt's thick-ass body, Eric still had to hold her ass way up in the air to meet his pelvis with him on his knees. It left her a squirming mess, trying to keep balance on Matt's body as Eric stretched her ass. It wasn't long before his fat knot spread her ass cheeks, and Jessy outright groaned as he worked her pelvis up and down against him, grinding his knot into her asshole until the soaked muscles spread wide. Really, really wide.

In it went, and Jessy collapsed back on Matt's stomach, going limp for a second with the delicious sensation of getting her insides filled. She loved it. Fucking god she loved it.

Tash blinked down at her, and at the much smaller bulge on Jessy's belly. With a shy little smile, she put a hand on Jessy's stomach, and pressed down, right above the pubic bone. Instant flowing waves of tingling bliss spread out from Jessy's cunt, down into her thighs and up into her chest until her nipples were so swollen they fucking hurt. She hadn't cum yet, but god damn the way Tash was looking down at her with a mixture of hunger and shyness was so fucking hot, she was going to pop the moment Eric gave her a proper fucking.

Except, Eric didn't. With a strangely hearty werewolf chuckle, Eric reached out, and took Tash's closer hand from Jessy's belly, earning a surprised squeak from the little vampire. His hand was big enough her entire forearm disappeared in it. But somehow he managed to guide her hand down further, until her knuckles brushed up against his abs, and then lower and lower, until her cum-soaked fingers pressed up against Jessy's slit.

Tash, a quivering mess, crazy horny just like Jess, and now staring at the giant werewolf holding her hand, gulped, and slipped her fingers into Jessy's pussy. Fuck yes fuck yes fuck yes. Jessy groaned encouragingly, squeezed down on Tash's fingers, and went limp on Matt's abs again, head half hanging back over the werewolf's waist. That was Matt's cum Tash's fingers were filling her with.

Apparently to get Tash to this point, Eric was the one needed to give her a push, not Jessy. Awesome.

“Go nuts,” Jessy said, grinning up at her little friend, still splayed out on Matt's abs like a fucking charcuterie board of the most amazing meat ever. “Probably got some pent up aggression you wanna take out on me, right?”

Tash frowned, but it was the playful kind, and she nodded.

“Then—” Jessy's voice stopped short as a moan cut it off, and she melted into a big pile of bliss, as Tash fingered her. Hard. She sank another finger into her, and then another, spreading Jessy's slit wide with four fingers, palm up, and slapped them up against Jessy's g-spot with enough force it made noise.

The little woman's eyes were wide with something a little closer to maniacal evil than Jessy ever expected to see on Tash's face. With hungry eyes, Tash fingered Jessy continuously, and when the pleasure waves erupted and flowed up and down Jessy's body, forcing her cunt to squeeze damn hard, Tash didn't stop. She kept going, and going, fingers smacking up against Jessy's g-spot, down into Eric's cock, and back up again, rapid fire.

“Tash! Holy shit, gimme—” No good. Jessy tried to sit up, but Tash kept pounding away, even as Jessy coated the girl's fingers in enough juices her cum splashed against her thighs, and with her pelvis held up in the air by Eric, it splashed onto her abs, too. Okay, Jessy had expected Tash to maybe finger her gently, not give into some deep seeded desired to fingerbang Jessy until she went into a coma, but that's what was happening.

Eric was loving it, too. He purred with pleasure, and found a decent rhythm to fuck Jessy's ass with, while Tash continued fingering. Her other hand took Jessy's closer breast and squeezed it. Not rough, but hard enough it conformed to her grip and pushed out between her fingers slightly, and she massaged it like a young guy getting his first taste of a big tit.

Jessy managed to look up enough to see Tash's eyes, and how they flicked between Jessy's body, and Eric's. Every so often, when Jessy's head fell back as more electric tingles worked through her, Tash paused long enough to press her fingers down, hard, straight into Eric's cock through the wall of flesh between them. It made Eric rumble with his own pleasure, and he tightened his grip on Jessy's hip as he fucked her a little faster, against the sensation of Tash's fingers rubbing his cock from inside Jessy's slit.

Tash had to stop fingering and groping her though, when Art gave her his own thrust, earning a gasp and squeal. With how hard Tash had been fingering, both girls had been shaking and quaking, and that meant Matt and Art had both been holding still while their little girlfriend's insides had been squeezing and milking on their cocks. Art had had enough, and he matched Eric's rhythm, fucking Tash's ass with the same consistent, fast-but-not-too-fast pace that left Jessy groaning, and Tash whimpering.

Now that she had a second to stop cumming her brain outs, Jessy pushed herself up onto her elbows again, but it didn't last. Eric pulled his head back, giving room for Art to lean forward, and forward, until his giant body pushed Tash down onto Jessy. Oh fuck they actually did it. Jessy blinked, staring up at the titan of short, dark fur, and massive muscles only a few inches over her, pressing Tash's body down against hers, squashing Tash's stomach straight onto Jessy's. Both girls were trapped between two titans of hot, hard muscle.

Art picked up the pace, and Tash's fingers slipped out of Jessy as she melted. Her whimpers and mewls lasted maybe ten seconds before she went limp, and her body quivered with her climax.

With Tash flattened against her, the bulges fighting for space inside her little belly pressed down against Jessy belly too. And she could feel Art's cock pushing against Matt's as he thrust back and forth inside his tiny girlfriend, never removing his knot from her ass but coming pretty damn close with each thrust. Deep, so fucking deep into Tash's guts, it was no wonder each thrust he made earned a tiny squeak, almost inaudible, from the little vampire. He was knocking the wind out of her.

And then of course that's when Eric decided to pick up the pace as well, and Jessy melted away again. He'd had to move out of the way a bit to make room for Art, so now he had both hands free again, and he held Jessy's hips snug so he could pound away. Jessy couldn't see any of it, apparently the lettuce in this sandwich, but holy fuck she could feel it. She felt all of it, all four other people at the same time. It didn't get more intimate than this.

Somewhere along the line, as she clenched her empty slit and drowned Eric's cock in her juices, the boys began to cum. Eric first, and Jessy groaned and squirmed on his length as the first gush of thick, warm cum flooded her insides. Considering Art was still pounding away, keeping everything a moving, writhing mess, there was plenty of shifting movement to help milk her boyfriend of his cum, even if Jessy was trapped and barely able to move.

Art came next, right after Eric, and he knelt up straighter as he did. He wrapped one hand around Tash's throat, pulled her up against his chest again, and pinned her head to his sternum as he poured cum into her ass. With his fat cock plugging her ass, and this being his second time — third if you counted his human form earlier — cumming in her, the poor girl was getting filled. The bulge on her belly grew and grew, and Tash, eyes half closed and limbs dangling, didn't so much as mewl as Art filled her guts with his cum. She was spent.

“Fucking god,” Jessy said, staring at the growing bulge on the girl’s belly. That was insane. That was hot as hell.

Art was still cumming when, probably from the ridiculous increase in pressure on his cock, Matt came too. Gushing waves of white poured out of Tash’s little slit, and splashed over everything, since she was sitting upright and directly on the knot of his cock. It squirted out of her with force, coating her thighs, Matt’s pelvis, and the side of Jessy’s body since she was still lying on Matt’s abs. Jessy barely noticed. Her eyes were locked on Tash, her dazed, euphoric expression, and the big distension on her belly getting bigger.

But finally, they were done, and the men all transformed back into human form. While still in the girls, and around them. The world shifted and turned, and soon Jessy lay on her back on normal Matt’s abs, staring up at Eric, Art, and Natasha, and the girl’s stomach quickly went back to normal size as the two cocks filling her went back to normal; plus the whole bucket of cum thing gushing out of her, coating the floor.

Jessy sat up, and with some very shaky legs, got up with Eric’s help, and the two of them looked down at the giant mess. That, was ... yeah, a giant mess.

“This is your fault,” Jessy said, stumbling a bit again until Eric grabbed her arm. “I didn’t say a thing about werewolves.”

Eric rolled his eyes, grabbed some of the towels, and tossed them at Jessy and the three still on the floor in the fucking literal pool of cum. Jesus christ.

Kat, who’d apparently jumped onto the bigger couch’s back at some point, looked down at the three on the floor, then at Jessy and Eric, and scratched herself a few times like. She didn’t give a shit.

“Shower time?” Jessy asked.

“Shower time,” Matt and Art said in unison.

Nodding, Jessy picked the limp and exhausted Tash up, and walked her toward the bathroom. “We’ll go first. You can come watch. And then we’ll watch you three shower at the same time. Sound good?”

The three guys looked at each other, eyebrows raised, before they grumbled, picked themselves up, and followed after. Marge snored.

~~♥♥♥~~

---

The End

---

Posted on 2018-02-21

---

View on Website:

<https://storiesonline.net/s/17526/my-little-ventrue>

---

Jump to voting form on site

---

More From Novus Animus:

Novus Animus

---

**storiesonline.net**