

His deployable armor is structured like these, mjolnir and ODST armor from halo , minus the helmet, gloves and bulky backpack. It's also sleeker and covers more of the stomach with segmented plates. When it's not deployed it's just a chest and upper stomach piece and hip armor, which looks more like a utility belt type thing (See second image.) The vambraces are also smoother and less bulky. Imagine the black parts as his armored underlayer.

This is what the armored under layer looked like before, only black and with bigger plates. Now it looks similar in color but metal bands that go around it as well as the plates, very similar to how colossus skin looks like

The helmet ends up looking something like a doom helmet, save most of the seams, lights and color changes. The filter/air system in the front is much more robust and prominent, influenced by the filtration mask he added.

